Speech of President Arroyo during the 108th anniversary of the proclamation of the Philippine Independence
[Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa ika-108 na anibersaryo ng proklamasyon ng Kalayaan ng Pilipinas

[Ipinahayag sa Quirino Grandstand, Rizal Park, Manila, ika 12 ng Hunyo, 2006]

Maraming salamat Secretary, Ace Durano sa inyong pagpapakilala.

Iba't-ibang mga kasapi ng ating gabinete; si Mayor Atienza at iba't-ibang mga opisyal na halal sa Maynila at buong bansang Pilipinas; Excellencies of the diplomatic corps; officials of the Philippine government, civilian and military; mga minamahal kong kababayan, maligayang anibersaryo ng ating kalayaan sa inyong lahat!

Muli nating binibigyan ng karangalan ang ating mga ninuno na nagpakasakit upang makalaya at makapagsarili ang ating bayan. Gayun din, binibigyan natin ng parangal ang mga kababayan nating nagsakripisyo sa nagdaang animnapung taon upang ipagtanggol ang ating kalayaan at demokrasya. Patuloy nating ipinagsasanggalang ang pamana sa atin. Hindi natin minamaliit ang halaga ng ating kasarinlan.

Ngunit walang saysay ang independensiya ng bansa kung walang laya ang mamamayan. Kaya nakatanod tayo laban sa mga kaaway na ibig wasakin ang demokrasyang nilikha ng pakikibaka ng ating mga ninuno 180 years ago, pati na rin ang patuloy nating pagtatanggol sa ating demokrasya sa nakaraang animnapung taon.

Batid nating may katuwang na tungkulin ang kasarinlan — ang tungkuling mapalawig ang kapayapaan, ang tungkuling mapalawig ang mga prinsipyo ng demokrasya, at tungkuling masigurado na may pagkakataon ang lahat ng Pilipino na buhayin ang kanilang mga pamilya at mapag-aral ang kanilang mga anak, at ang tungkuling ipagsanggalang ang ating saligang batas.

Lumaban ang ating bayani upang matamo ang kalayaan, at gayun din ang ating patuloy na gagawin upang mapatatag ang saligan ng Republika ng Pilipinas at mapagtibay ang ating sambayanan.

Maaaring masigla ang demokrasya, ngunit hindi dapat hati-hati. Marapat lamang na igalang ng mga Pilipino ang mga karapatang nagkaroon ng iba-ibang pananaw, subalit dapat pagkasunduan nating lahat na kailangan humakbang tayo ng sabay-sabay pasulong para sa ating kinabukasan bilang sambayanan.

Ang pakikibaka para sa kalayaan ay hindi laban sa atin-atin, kundi laban sa dayuhang mananakop na ayaw tanggapin hindi lamang katauhan natin, kung hindi sambayanang pinagbuklod ng mga paniniwala at dangal na yakap nating lahat.

May mga inaalipustang alaala ng mga nakibaka para sa ating kalayaan sa pamamagitan ng mga pakana nilang sukat wasakin ang pagkakaisa ng ating bayan. Subalit inaasahan kong mga kababayang narito, magsisikap tayong magpundar ng mas magandang buhay para sa lahat ng Pilipino, at magkakaisa tayo upang matamo ang pangunahing layuning iyon.

Nasa sangangdaan ang ating bansa. Marami na tayong naisakatuparan, at marami pang mas dakilang bagay ang nasa hinaharap, ngunit kailangang itigil na natin ang dating gawi ng pulitika at pagpunyagi upang bigyang hugis ang Republikang Pilipinong tunay na magkakaloob ng oportunidad para sa lahat.

Dapat tanungin natin sa ating sarili kung maliligayahan ang mga nakipaglaban para sa ating kasarinlan sa bansang sumilang mula sa pakikibakang 'yon. Naniniwala ako na utang natin sa ating mga ninuno na magkaisa tayo sa pagsisikap na maghatid ng higit pang antas ng kapayapaan, pagkakapantay, pagkakataon sa lahat ng sulok ng ating bansa.

Lumikha tayo ng sambayanang tunay na nasa daigdig ang tanaw, at pakitungo natin sa mga bansa, gaya ng Espanya at Amerika, na naging bahagi ng ating kahapon, ay walang mas maganda pa sa kasaysayan kaysa ngayon. Mga kapanalig natin sila sa kalakal at kapayapaan, gayun din sa paglaban sa terorismo. Naniniwala akong nasisiyahan ang ating mga ninuno sa paghakbang ito. Idagdag pa natin dito ang pahayag ng mga Amerikanong negosyante na napupuna nila ang pagbawas ng katiwalian sa Pilipinas. Salamat sa inyong lahat.

Nanaig ang sambayanan natin sa maraming hamon nitong nagdaang anim na dekada, at walang hihigit sa pakikibaka para sa patuloy na pagyabong ng ating demokrasya.

Nitong nagdaang linggo lamang, napabalita ang pagbaba ng antas ng matinding kahirapan o extreme poverty level sa bansa na nagpamalas din ng pagbuti sa kalagayan sa buhay ng mga kapatid nating muslim sa katimugan. Ngunit bagaman bumaba ang porsiyento ng mahihirap sa bansa mula sa dami ng aking namana sa dating administrasyon, milyun-milyon pa rin ang dukha.

Ganunpaman, may natatangi tayong pagkakataon na maghatid ng kapayapaan sa isang bahagi ng ating bansa na labis-labis ang pagdanak ng dugo sa pakikibaka para tatagbas sa ating bansa.

Nabubuhayan ang loob ko lalo na sa aking huling pagsubaybay at pagmasdan sa kalagayan sa Mindanao. Nabubuhayan ang aking loob sa pagdating ng kapayapaan sa Mindanao. At nagpupuri ako sa lahat ng nananalig na mas malaking kabutihan ang magagawa natin para sa bayang Pilipino kung magbababa tayo ng ating mga armas at magtulungan.

At malapit nang dumating sa ating mga mamamayan ang oras ng pagpasyang maaaring makawakas sa mga hindi pagkakasundo na malaon nang humadlang sa ating bayan na makaakyat sa mas matayog na antas.

Hindi nagbuwis ang buhay ng ating mga ninuno para sa lumikha ng malayang bayan kung saan nauuna ang pamumulitika kaysa sa pag-unlad. Umaasa ako na ang alaala ng ating pakikibaka para sa kalayaan ay magbubunsod ng pakikibalikat sa ating mga layunin para sa bayan sa mga taong darating.

At sa inyo, aking mga minamahal na kababayan, salamat sa inyong pakikiisa sa ating pagdiriwang. Diyaan sa mga walang trabaho na nagpunta ngayon, pumunta kayo sa ating jobs fair na ginaganap dito sa Luneta. At sa inyong lahat, lalo na itong mga ating mga masigasig na kabataan ng maynila na narito sa harap, salamat at kayo ay kumakatawan sa kinabukasan ng ating bansa.

Mabuhay ang kalayaan ng Pilipinas!

Mabuhay ang Pilipino!

Maraming salamat inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the 108th Anniversary of the Proclamation of Philippine Independence. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213029/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2807&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on the signing of the Abolition of Death Penalty

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the signing of the Abolition of Death Penalty

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, June 24, 2006]

DEAD MEN WALKING NO MORE

Today in signing the abolition of the death penalty, we celebrate life in the most meaningful way by gathering our institutions together to repeal the death penalty.

I appreciate the enthusiasm of Congress in expressing the moral and spiritual force of the Filipino in this law.

I thank the Church for the beacon of grace and discernment. When I meet the Holy Father soon in the Vatican, I shall tell him that we have acted in the name of life for a world of peace and harmony.

I allay the concerns of those who think that the abolition of the death penalty opens the floodgates to heinous acts. We shall devote... We shall continue to devote the increasing weight of our resources to the prevention and control of serious crimes, rather than take the lives of those who commit them.

I call on the entire criminal justice system — law enforcers, prosecutors, judges, jailers and the whole community — to take stock of the responsibility of sharpening law and justice for all.

On the bombing in Maguindanao targeted at the governor and which killed five people, I condemn this act of terrorism in the strongest terms as a crime against peace and humanity. The authorities must identify the perpetrators, launch a manhunt with the proper rewards, and bring them to justice.

I extend my sympathies to the families of the victims and assure them that the search for justice will be firm and relentless. We will never be intimidated by these treacherous acts and we shall fight terror as seriously as we embrace peace and development, solidarity among our law-abiding citizens, and our strategic alliances. This commitment stands firm and will not relent until the total defeat of terrorists in every part of the country.

The rule of law, strictly enforced, shall ride side by side with social justice in paving the way for an atmosphere of political and economic security, so that every person and family shall have the blessings of stable employment, better health, education and public safety.

We have taken a strong hand against the threats to the law and the republic, but at the same time we yield to the high moral imperatives dictated by God to walk away from capital punishment.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President during the opening ceremonies of the 9th Annual Asia-Pacific Group Meeting on money laundering and terrorist financing

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremonies of the 9th Annual Asia-Pacific Group Meeting on money laundering and terrorist financing

[Delivered at Meeting Room 4, Philippine International Convention Center, CCP Complex, Pasay City, July 3, 2006]

Thank you, Secretary Teves.

Governor Tetangco and other members of the Anti-Money Laundering Council of the Philippines as well as the other officers of the Asia-Pacific Group on Money Laundering; Congressman Jaime Lopez, Chairman of the House Committee on Banking; delegates; ladies and gentlemen.

To all of you from Asia-Pacific, welcome to the Philippines! And to my colleagues in government who have been active in anti-money laundering, I would like to congratulate them that the Philippines is a strong player domestically and globally in the fight against money laundering. Congratulations to you, say and to everyone else!

All our political institutions are in the thick of this fight. Under the leadership of Congressman Lopez many years ago, we enacted the Anti-Money Laundering Law in 2001 and our Supreme Court has designated 56 commercial courts, I understand, as special anti-money laundering courts in all the 12 jurisdictions, judicial jurisdictions of the country.

The polity context of all these is that we're working to reform our regulating environment, to invest in modern infrastructure, and to train our young people so we have a business environment that is as competitive as any in Asia. And the Anti-Money Laundering Law is one of the key reforms in our regulating environment.

I can't help but think of what we have accomplished in anti-money laundering and what we still have to do as together with the rest of the world yesterday, we celebrated the victory of our boxing hero Manny Pacquiao. As the entire nation stood still in yesterday's big fight at the Araneta Coliseum, I could not help but dream that one day we would see the same passion in the hearts of our leaders and all Filipinos in supporting the common vision of the future.

We've already won many struggles in our journey forward and one of them is the Anti-Money Laundering Law. And as we prepare for more challenges that lie ahead including the even more vigorous implementation of this law and other reforms, we draw inspiration from the great fighters like Manny Pacquiao who can knock down the obstacles along the way and beat the odds. We are on our way to the championship of the Filipino in the world arena on the back of our innate excellence, enterprising spirit and courage as a people.

I'm very glad to hear the report from the Anti-Money Laundering Council that from the time the Philippine Anti-Money Laundering Act was enacted in 2001, the AMLAC has frozen more than one billion pesos in suspected dirty funds and other criminally tainted assets. Released close to 600 million pesos to victims of swindling or fraud. Found about a hundred money laundering and related cases, and the recent conviction of money launderers, one a criminal conviction and three forfeiture of the laundered assets, proves that our system works.

Now to supplement all of these, I have certified as urgent the passage of a bill calling for the enactment of an Anti-Terrorism Law which will criminalize not only terrorism but its financing as well.

We have to remain vigilant, united and committed. And I am confident to see from this group that there will always be people like you who will stand in the way of evil.

To all of you, thank you and Mabuhay!

Welcome once again to the Philippines!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Opening Ceremonies of the 9th Annual Asia-Pacific Group Meeting on Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212834/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2841&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Philippine National Police Change of Command Ceremony and Retirement Honors for outgoing Police Director General Arturo Lomibao Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Philippine National Police Change of Command Ceremony and Retirement Honors for outgoing Police Director General Arturo Lomibao

[Delivered at Camp Crame Parade Grounds, Quezon City, July 5, 2006]

Thank you, Secretary Puno.

President Ramos and the other former chiefs of the PC and the PNP including now Former Chief Art Lomibao; the new Chief of the PNP, Director General Oscar Calderon and the other officers and men and women of the Philippine National Police; Congressman Espino and the other elected officials of the Philippine government; Cabinet members; AFP Chief of Staff General Senga and the other appointive officials of the Philippine government; ladies and gentlemen.

Isasabit na ni Art Lomibao ang kaniyang unipormeng pulis pagkatapos ng tatlumpu't walong taon ng huwarang paglilingkod. Ang kaniyang labing-anim na buwang termino bilang pinuno ng pulis ay isa sa pinaka-puno ng pangyayari at pinaka-nakakahamon na panahon kailanman sa kasaysayan ng PNP, gaya nang sabi niya simula pa sa kanyang day one.

At gaya nang sabi niya, sa halip ng seremonyang kagaya nito, ang tumanggap sa kanya ng pagpasok niya sa pamumuno ng PNP ay yung kalagitnaan ng malaking tangkang kumalas sa preso. Walang seremonya, wala siyang diskurso, pati ako walang diskurso.

Troop commander, please give 'Tikas Pahinga.'

Kaya ngayon sisimulan ko ang aking diskurso doon sa gagawin ko sanang pasimula nung diskurso noong araw na yon. Gusto ko sana noon maikuwento kung papaano ko nakita si Art Lomibao bilang Chief PNP material. Alam ng lahat siya ay matapang, magiting, competent professional. Pero maraming matapang, magiting, competent at professional sa mga opisyal ng pulis. Pero ang nakita ko ay kaiba-ibang kadakilaan at potensiyal sa liderato ng pulis nung sa paraang napaka-madignidad, mapagkakumbaba, malumanay at matahimik. Sumunod siya sa utos na bumalik sa Region I pagkatapos ng isang araw lamang naglingkod sa CIDG. Hindi niya tinanong kung bakit, lalo na't ang CIDG ay tinatanaw bilang isang pinakamakapangyarihang pwesto sa PNP kasunod lamang ng pinuno.

Kaya nung kasunod na naging bakante yung pwesto ng CIDG, may ibang mga pinanukalang iupo doon, at sinabi ko: "Ang CIDG ay hindi premyo na binibigay sa gusto nating paligayahin. Dapat ang ilalagay natin doon ay yung tamang opisyal. Dapat ilagay na natin doon si Art Lomibao." at hindi ko kailanman sinisi yung desisyon na yon, gaya nang hindi ko kailanman sinising gawin siyang pinuno ng Philippine National Police.

Napakamakasaysayan yung panahon ni Art Lomibao. Hinarap niya mga terorista, mga kriminal, mga sindikato, mga destabilizer sa ibabaw ng pagtatayo niya ng kanyang legacy na mga police station at lahat itong pagsubok na ito pinasa niya na may flying colors dahil sa kanyang kadakilaan pati na rin dahil suportado siya ng lumalaking liga ng propesyonal sa organisasyon ng Philippine National Police.

Indeed, our law enforcement men and women are essential to upholding the constitution and the rule of law that are so important to our democracy.

Nagpapasalamat tayo kay Art, at nagpapasalamat din tayo itong araw na ito sa pagtanggap kay Director General Oscar Calderon bilang bagong pinuno ng Philippine National Police.

Ang lahat ng mga liderato ng PNP sa ilalim nitong administrasyon ay nagtagumpay sa makabuluhang pagbaba ng sukat ng krimen, pagsangga sa destabilisasyon, at ganundin sa terorismo. At ngayon pinili ko si General Calderon upang ituloy yung direksyon na yon kung hindi mapag-ibayo pa dito. Sigurado tayo na hinahangad niya ang higit na mataas na resulta sa gawing mas ligtas ang kalooban ng taong-bayan sa kalsada, sa mga tahanan nila at sa kanilang mga lugar ng trabaho.

Sa kanyang mga kredensyal sa liderato at record sa paglaban sa krimen na kasama sa mga pinakadahilan sa kanyang paghirang, si Director General Calderon, General Calderon is geared for a solid professional horizon in bringing the Philippines closer to the interests and aspirations of the people, and orienting the Philippine organization to the high imperatives of political stability and economic growth.

Si General Calderon ay inirekomenda ng police search committee mula pa noong si General Aglipay ang Chief ng PNP. At pinili yung mga succession noon pang panahong yon upang masigurado ang katatagan ng mga pagpalit ng liderato ng PNP at iwasan ang paninira na kung minsan nangyayari pag masyadong matindi ang pagkakaribal sa pinakamataas na pwesto ng PNP. Hindi ba n'yo nahalata na itong panahong ito halos walang nagsasabungan para maging Chief PNP, dahil halos naman lahat alam na nila noon pa yung succession.

Bilang resulta ng maagang desisyon at the top of the PNP, the team has consolidated into a more compact, homogeneous group. This set up is inherently more effective than an organization that is bruised by intense rivalries that often accompany the immediate period before a turnover.

Next, a corresponding consolidation of the execution level within the PNP and with other institutions will improve implementation capabilities. This consolidation will revolve around several areas, including the strategic battle with the left.

The National Security Council, of which the Secretary of the Interior and Local Governments as well as former President Ramos are members, and where the chief of the Philippine National Police is a technical member, the National Security Council is already overseeing this consolidation through a series of draft executive orders — one of which is already being finalized and probably will be signed by me this week — with the objective... Designed among other objectives to create a PNP-AFP partnership in the battle against the left.

Sigurado ako na ang malawak na karanasan ni General Calderon sa police management ay magkakaroon ng malaking kaganapan dito sa ating executorial consolidation.

As we run to the ground the armed core of the terrorist left, kakalasin natin ang takot na pinipilit nila sa ating taumbayan at tatalunin ang kanilang layunin sa mga sandata ng pagtayo ng bansa o nation building. Wawaksan ng PNP at AFP ang tinatawag na revolutionary taxation at sisiguraduhin na yung mga pinilit magbayad ay ipapagtanggol nila kontra sa bengansa.

Samantala, ang bagong liderato ng pulis ay patuloy na masipag na tutulak upang mapigil ang mga sindikato ng krimen — kidnap-for-ransom, hold-up ng mga bangko, illegal drug trafficking, smuggling, illegal gambling from their underground trade.

I have no doubt that General Calderon will carry on the banner of service that is turned over to him today.

And to Art Lomibao, who has made so many personal sacrifices to do an excellent job, my congratulations and Godspeed! And maybe now you can get married.

Congratulations!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Philippine National Police change of command ceremony and retirement honors for outgoing Police Director General Arturo Lomibao. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212815/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2838&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the National Awarding Ceremony for the 2006 Ten Outstanding Students of the Philippines (TOSP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the National Awarding Ceremony for the 2006 Ten Outstanding Students of the Philippines (TOSP)

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 14, 2006]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Chairman Puno.

Secretary Concepcion, the moving spirit behind the TOSP awards; Joey Concepcion, who is helping me to develop our young entrepreneurs; Mr. Ramos, President of National Bookstore; Marissa Concepcion of the RFM Foundation; Joey Lina, the President of Makati Central Rotary Club where I belong as a rotary ann; awardees; finalists; their families; sponsors; guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Young nation builders are our hope for the future. And I congratulate our ten outstanding students, the latest to be recognized as young nation builders. You are bestowed these awards because the judges have found that you have the vision, the will and the energy to make the dreams of the Filipino — our dreams — come true.

Batang bansa ang mahal nating Pilipinas. Kabataan ang karamihan sa ating taong-bayan. Wala pang tatlumpung taon ang anim sa bawat sampung Pilipino. Batang bansa tayo. Animnapung taon pa lamang ang ating demokrasya, and the growing pains are still will us.

Batang bansa tayo dahil niyayakap natin ang buhay, awit, sayaw, sports, mga bagong ideya at teknolohiya gaya ng sinabi ng naunang nagsalita ngayon. Batang bansa tayo sapagkat ganap ang pagiging mamamayan ng mundo nating mga Pilipino. Bahagi ito ng mabilis na pagbabago sa daigdig. Nasa unang hanay tayo ng mga manggagawa sa mundo. Itong ating tatlong unang tinawag. Yung ating mga nursing graduates, magiging bahagi palagay ko ng unang hanay ng manggagawa sa buong mundo.

Sa araw na ito, on the occasion of honoring our outstanding students, I am calling for a new vision for a young nation. Nasa ating kabataang Pilipino ang sigasig na ipatupad ang inyong minimithi. Panahon na upang makisangkot sa buhay pambansa ang susunod na salinlahi. Mangusap, kumilos, at hawakan ang inyong sariling kapalaran. At kayang-kayang gawin ito nitong ating sampung outstanding students. Magsikap sa loob ng mga institusyon at sektor upang lalong mapabuti ang daigdig. Gamitin ang kakayahang ipinagkaloob sa inyo ng pamahalaan, pamilya at lipunan upang maging mga manggagamot, abogado, magsasaka — salamat, meron tayong outstanding student galing sa Cabacan na nag-aral ng agrikultura — at mga mangangalaga ng kalusugan. At manguna sa larangan ng teknolohiya ng makabago at malinis, at iba pang dakilang propesyon.

The new vision must include creating high-paying jobs right here at home, hindi lamang sa ibayong dagat. Itinatangi natin at binibigyan natin ng halaga ang ating mga OFW, at ikinararantal ang kanilang pagsisikap at sakripisyo. Gayon pa man, dapat tayong magsikap upang dumating ang araw when a job abroad is a choice and not the only option available to a hard working Filipino. Bukod sa magandang trabaho sa sarili nating bayan, dapat din tayong magpunyagi upang alagaan ang ating maganda at dalisay na kapaligiran, gaya ng kagandahan at kasibulan ng sambayanan. Nananawagan ako sa susunod na salinlahi upang makibalikat sa ating kampanya para sa Bagong Berdeng Pilipinas.

Kailangan nating palawakin ang ating mga kakahuyan, magtanim ng mga bagong puno kung saan may naputol, at subukan na proteksyunan ito, ito ang mga gubat na sisibol para sa ating mga mamamayan at lupain. Ibalik natin ang kagandahang itinatangi at ninanais ng lahat. At ibig kong idulot sa sigasig ng Pilipino, anumang gulang, ang pagdadalisay ng kapaligiran. Dapat nating mapaganda ang mga barangay at lungsod na napaliligiran ng basura, magtayo ng mga liwasang kaaya-aya, at linisin ang tubig at lupang nabahiran ng dumi ng industriya.

Bilang bahagi ng ating Berdeng Pilipinas, hangad ko ang bansang masinop sa paggamit ng enerhiya, hindi na umaasa sa sasakyan at plantang maaksaya at mausok. Gagamitin natin ang masagana nating araw, hangin at geothermal resources, at gagawa ng sarili nating panggasolina sa sasakyan mula sa tubo at niyog sa halip na umasa lang sa petrolyong dayuhan.

Kailangan natin ang pagkakaisa at buong loob ng sambayanan upang isulong ang mga pinuno ng bayan na yakapin at pagyamanin ang bagong Berdeng Pilipinas.

And as I have said before in the center of our tourism in Central Philippines, I want to turn our coral reefs and beaches, the wonder of the world, into national parks and international sanctuaries for eco-tourism and scientific research. Meron tayong pagkakataong paunlarin ang ating bansa na mula sa simula — malinis, malusog, productive at maganda. Nais ko sana na ang ating mga kabataan ngayon ay maging bahagi ng bagong Berdeng Pilipinas. At nananawagan ako ng pagkilos na gawing pangyayari ito sa loob ng limang taon.

Iyan ay ilan lamang mga ideya. And through our outstanding students, I call on our youth to respond to this call of action to bring new innovative thinking to land management, care for our environment and ways to create jobs and have a clean, socially responsible environment policy. We need to get beyond the era of “either/or” thinking on our environment. Dapat yakapin natin ang pagbabago at maging malakas ang loob sa paglikha ng berdeng Pilipinas na kapwa berde at matagumpay na pangkabuhayan. And that is the very, very mission that Joey Concepcion has given for himself and which we have very, very heartily embraced. I truly believe the Philippines can become a model of environmental stewardship within ten years. But I need your help, the young people of today, the leaders of tomorrow, to create that vision.

And as you receive your awards, as you celebrate today and tonight with your parents and loved ones and friends, and as you go out into the world now that you have graduated from college, continue to stand as role models of hard work, excellence and service.

And in closing, I wish to commend the RFM Foundation, the Rotary Club of Makati Central and the National Bookstore, for your support in inspiring our young to spread their wings and soar high. I am proud of all of you. I am proud to have Filipinos like you.

Congratulations! Thank you and good day.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). GMA's Speech during the National Awarding Ceremony for the 2006 Ten Outstanding Students of the Philippines (TOSP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212722/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2831&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Call by the delegates of the 2nd Ambassadors/Consuls General from North America Goodwill Tour of the Philippines and Tour Group of Filipino and Filipino-Canadians

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Call by the delegates of the 2nd Ambassadors/Consuls General from North America Goodwill Tour of the Philippines and Tour Group of Filipino and Filipino-Canadians

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 15, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Romulo.

Ambassador Chito Brillantes, the consuls general and consuls and honorary consuls to the U.S. And Canada, officials of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Tourism, the Filipino communities that's represented here, guests, ladies and gentlemen.

To all of you, good morning and welcome! Thank you for visiting us. This is the second such visit organized by the DFA and the DOT, and it's a good time for you to come and visit. We're celebrating the 60th anniversary of our friendship with the United States as sovereign nations and we're celebrating the 100th anniversary of the first immigration of Filipinos to the United States. In fact, I hope to go to Hawaii in September to be able to join the celebration.

It's also a good time to visit us, because at this point in time, the Philippines is at a crossroads of political transformation and economic take off.

As Chito Brillantes was talking about the good news and the bad news, that you might have heard, Bert Romulo was whispering to me the latest good news is from the IMF and all the good things they're saying about our economy.

In governance and politics, military service, business, sports, arts and literature, showbiz and culinary experience, Filipinos shine not only in the Philippines but especially in North America.

In the U.S., we've known for quite sometime that Filipino-Americans surpassed the U.S. national averages in educational levels, median household income and median home values. Congratulations!

And even as you're doing so well in the United States, I appreciate your loyalty to the motherland. Yes, Chito says, many of you have taken American and Canadian citizenship but many of you have also applied and taken dual citizenship. Thank you very much for that.

Thank you for your faith in the Philippines and your love for democracy.

The Philippines has a strong, modern and confident relationship with the U.S. Based on our shared democratic values, the fight against terrorism and strengthening the economy to liberate the poor.

The Philippine relationship with the U.S., I believe, has matured and grown under our administration from the depths to which it plunged when the U.S. bases left the Philippines. We have a strong personal relationship with President Bush and the U.S. government, and we are a staunch ally in the war against terror. We believe fervently in democracy. We have sworn to uphold the rights and liberties of every Filipino. We bring these values and our own deep personal faith in God to our governance of the Philippines and to our relationships with the U.S., Canada and all nations.

And so it is with Canada, since the establishment of bilateral relations in 1949, Philippine-Canada ties have grown by leaps and bounds in tourism, trade and investment, and people-to-people exchanges.

The people... the Filipinos especially the balikbayans of Canada and the U.S. are number one in tourism visits to the Philippines followed very closely now, however, by the people from the People's Republic... from Korea, from the Republic of Korea. We have 3.5 million Filipinos in the U.S., We have 500,000 Filipinos in Canada and they serve, you serve as a sturdy bridge across the pacific.

Now I have... was able to learn what your itinerary is — looks very exciting, very nice — and while in the Philippines, you will be able to rediscover personal and professional ties at all levels; you will also be able to discern, I hope, the real situation prevailing in our country.

The spirit of freedom and democracy thrives as robustly as when you left home the first time. I am advocating constitutional reforms to facilitate the legislative process and open up the economy to responsible investment.

I wish you could help us communicate the good news and the real issues to all our friends in North America. I hope you will see when you visit for instance the Makati business district tomorrow that our country is an incomparable shoppers' paradise. And there are innumerable business and investment opportunities worth exploring. And when you go to your selected places in the provinces during your optional visits outside Manila, I hope you will see once again and remember that we have some of the most beautiful tourist spots in the world. And of course, yourselves included, the Filipinos are among the friendliest people in the world.

We believe that the Philippines can make first world status in twenty years through the force of Filipino industry and excellence here in the Philippines and Filipinos outside infusing our mega regions from North to South.

When I make my State of the Nation Address on Monday, the 24th, I will be explaining to the people that for purposes of putting public investments, we have divided the economy of the Philippines into four sub-economies or super regions, we might call them, divided in terms of their... in accordance with their competitive... natural competitive advantage. We have Northern Philippines and Mindanao, two super regions that have the natural competitive advantage in agri-business. We have Metro Luzon, the urban beltway around Metro Manila, from Clark-Subic to Batangas port and beyond, as the center for service and industry, the urban center that needs to compete with the rest of the metropolises in the world. And we have the center of the Philippines, the Visayas, Palawan, Romblon, Bicol and the Northern Islands of Mindanao, as our centers of tourism. And this is where we will be spending the new money that we are now receiving as part of our vat dividends which Congress has passed and which our Filipinos in America and the U.S. supported. And I thank you for your support for that difficult legislation.

In closing, let me share the pride once again of celebrating with you and all our people both the centennial of Filipino migration to the U.S. And the 60th anniversary of our friendship with the U.S. as sovereign nations.

Once again, welcome to the Philippines! Have a wonderful stay and bring beautiful memories when you go back to North America.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Call by the Delegates of the 2nd Ambassadors/Consuls General from North America Goodwill Tour of the Philippines and Tour Group of Filipino and Filipino-Canadians. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212718/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2829&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the meeting with the World Islamic Call Society (WICS)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the meeting with the World Islamic Call Society (WICS)

[Delivered in WICS compound, Tripoli, Libya, July 17, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Romulo for your introduction.

Dr. Sheriff, thank you very much also for inviting me to be here with you today and all the scholars who are associated and who are friends of your society; the students, Filipino students who are here especially and the recent graduates; ladies and gentlemen.

It's my pleasure to be with all of you today, and I appreciate the opportunity to speak with the leaders, members and friends of the World Islamic Call Society that has done so much for our Muslim brothers and sisters in the Philippines.

You're a wellspring of hope and optimism and I'd like to thank you for participating in the 2003 National Conference of Dialogues of Culture Among Major Faiths that was held in the Philippines.

I would also like to thank the Islamic Call Society for establishing a Philippine office in 2003.

And I am proud that the Philippine office is but one of many examples to show that we and Libya, Libya and the Philippines, have been friends long before the recent and welcome reconciliation of Libya with the United States and other members of the international community.

In fact, Dr. Sheriff has talked about the 1976 Tripoli agreement many times in his welcome remarks. And my trip to Libya at this time is in fact the 30th anniversary celebration of the 1976 Tripoli agreement. It is the 30th anniversary celebration of the support that Libya has given the Philippines since the Tripoli Agreement of 1976. As Dr. Sherif said the Tripoli Agreement of 1976 was facilitated by the leader and it started the peace process with the Moro National Liberation Front in Mindanao in Southern Philippines, culminating in the final peace agreement of 1996.

I also came to Libya to thank the leader not only for his support for the peace process but also for his support for my administration's war against terrorism since I became president in 2001. He has supported us even before the 9/11 attack on the World Trade Center. Because in May of 2001, when the Abu Sayaff terrorist group hostaged a group of tourists in Dos Palmas in Southern Philippines, I was able to talk on the phone to ask the help of Colonel Gaddafi. Because I wanted to fight the Abu Sayaff rather than pay ransom and the leader helped me. He denounced the Abu Sayaff and with his help and the help of other friends in the international community, the Philippine Army was able to defeat the Abu Sayaff.

Today, even as we thank Libya for helping us win the peace, we look at the world around us and we see that peace is not yet with us in the whole world. Today, therefore, the Philippines joins the international community in seeking for the peaceful resolution of the Israel-Lebanon conflict. The volatile situation in that part of the Middle East all the more makes us appreciate the friendship and support of Libya for the last 30 years since the Tripoli Agreement.

The leader has also been helping me with my peace efforts with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front. And hopefully just as the 1976 Tripoli Agreement resulted in the final peace agreement of 1996, hopefully, the Tripoli Agreement that was signed in 2001 with the MILF will also finally bring about lasting peace in Mindanao.

I am very gratified that after an initial agreement with the MILF that was signed in Tripoli in 2001, we have reached an advanced state in our peace talks with the MILF and we are grateful that since the MILF called for a ceasefire in 2001, which the Philippine government reciprocated, Libya and two other Muslim countries have actively participated in the international monitoring team that has successfully held the peace in Mindanao for the past three years.

Libya is also to this day an active member of the ministerial committee of the eight of the Organization of the Islamic Conference or OIC which monitors the implementation of the 1996 peace agreement.

We are committed to the full implementation of the Tripoli agreement of 1976 and the final MNLF peace agreement of 1996, which ended the MNLF rebellion and brought the MNLF to the mainstream of Philippine governance. Just to personify the mainstreaming of the MNLF in Philippine governance, today we have with us in the Philippine delegation a former MNLF commander who is now the elected deputy speaker of the House of Representatives, Deputy Speaker Gerry Salapuddin. And it is not only Deputy Speaker Gerry Salapuddin who is here with us from the MNLF, another former MNLF commander is now the mayor of the Islamic City of Marawi. He is with us in this delegation, Mayor Omar Ali and among the other Muslims in the mainstream of Philippine political leadership who are with us today, we have the brother of another MNLF commander who is now the governor of the Muslim province of Sulu, Governor Ben Loong. Well, she is not MNLF but she is the congresswoman of Lanao Del Sur. We also have with us Congresswoman Faysah Dumarpa, another Muslim in the mainstream of Philippine leadership. And we have a Muslim governor in a Christian province, the governor of Sultan Kudarat, Datu Pax Mangudadatu. I'm very happy that they are all here with us in this delegation to join us in thanking Libya for all of your support for our peace process.

Parallel to our political peace efforts, the Philippine government is also implementing significant socioeconomic programs for Muslim Filipinos. This is a major effort to stamp out poverty, disease, illiteracy and injustice.

And on this note, I would like to take this opportunity to express my gratitude for the work that the World Islamic Call Society has done in the Philippines, particularly your willingness to participate and contribute to our local interfaith initiatives. Interfaith initiatives are very important to the Philippines. Like many members of the OIC, the Philippines is a pluralistic nation with various religious and cultural communities, the biggest of which are the Roman Catholics and the Muslims. And this is why we are grateful also to Libya, for in addition to all the other support that I have already mentioned earlier, Libya is also the most ardent advocate for observer status for the Philippine government in the OIC.

Interfaith dialogue is an integral part of our six-year Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan as an official framework for the conduct of healing and reconciliation programs.

The role of interfaith dialogue in restoring peace in Southern Philippines is an experience that we like to share with the world. In Mindanao, we have a network of non-governmental organizations that strive for interfaith understanding, pioneered by the Bishops-Ulama Conference which is composed of Roman Catholic bishops in Mindanao, protestant bishops and Muslim religious leaders as well as those from the indigenous peoples sector. The Bishops-Ulama Conference has yielded improved and mutual understanding and reconciliation between Christians and Muslims.

By communicating with each other, we are encouraged to keep our minds and hearts open through meaningful dialogue and we are able to engage each other to establish trust and harmony.

We must always strive to find the common thread through which differences may be bridged, and the shared values such as that of love for peace, justice and respect for human dignity that they can be perpetuated through interfaith dialogue.

Philippine initiatives on interfaith dialogue are well-entrenched in the United Nations. The interfaith dialogue in the United Nations stems from a Philippine initiative, a Philippine resolution that was unanimously approved by the U.N. General Assembly on interfaith dialogue in November 2004. It continued with the holding of the Tripartite Conference on Interfaith Cooperation for Peace, chaired by the Philippines by Secretary Romulo at the U.N. in New York on June 22nd of 2005.

Also in 2005, the Philippines steered the security council to pass Resolution 1624 which institutionalized interfaith dialogue as a mechanism for international cooperation.

Resolution 1624 called upon all states “to continue international efforts to enhance dialogue and broaden understanding among civilizations, in an effort to prevent the indiscriminate targeting of different religions and cultures.”

And also in 2005 during the 60th anniversary summit of the United Nations in September, I chaired the informal meeting of leaders on interfaith dialogue and cooperation for peace.

And early this year, we had the Asia-Pacific Interfaith Dialogue in Manila. The Philippines also successfully hosted the Cebu dialogue on regional interfaith cooperation for peace, development and human dignity with the Philippines, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand as co-chairs.

In all of these things that we are doing, interfaith dialogue within the Philippines especially in Mindanao, interfaith dialogue all over the world, I reiterate my gratitude to the World Islamic Call Society because you have been supporting the interfaith initiative of the Philippines.

And so on this note, I wish you all the best, Dr. Sheriff. May you continue the good work that you are doing here in Libya among the many countries represented in this forum today and of course in the Philippines.

Thank you and good day.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA’s Speech during the meeting with the World Islamic Call Society (WICS). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212506/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2827&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during a meeting with the Filipino community in Libya

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a meeting with the Filipino community in Libya

[Delivered at the Golden Tent Sala, Omar Muktar St. Tripoli, Libya, July 17, 2006]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. Ang ganda ng inyong pagtanggap sa inyong lingkod at sa ating delegasyon.

Maraming salamat rin kay Secretary Art Brion sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin at ito na rin ang pagkakakilala sa iyo bilang ating bagong kalihim ng mga manggagawa ng Pilipinas.

Batiin ko ang ibat-ibang mga kasapi ng ating delegasyon, pero mamaya na. Batiin ko muna kayong lahat, mga minamahal kong kababayan, magandang gabi sa inyong lahat; balamu ating cung Cabalen a Capampangan, maayap a bengi kekongan; no adda kakailayak ti bangir ni mamang ko, naimbag nga rabii yo amin; sa aton mga kaigsuonan gikan sa Mindanao ug Bisayas, maayong gabii kaninyong tanan at wassalamu alaikum sa ating mga brother Muslims; sa mga kasimanwa sang akong bana nga ilonggo, maayong gab-i sa inyo nga tanan; at sa maasin sa mga Bikolano, marhay nga banggi sa indo gabos.

Ang saya-saya kong makapiling kayo ngayong gabi. At napakagandang pagkakataon na magkasama tayo lahat dahil gaya nang sabi ng inyong pangulo ng Philippine community, thirty years ang ating pinagdidiriwang, tatlong dekada, 30th anniversary ng pagkakaibigan ng Pilipinas at Libya sa napakaraming bagay. Tatlumpung taon nang may mga OFWs sa Libya. Tatlumpung taon na rin ang pakinabang ng ating bansa sa suporta ng Libya sa proseso ng kapayapaan sa Mindanao.

Tatlumpung taong nakaraan nang namagitan ang lider ng Libya, the great leader, sa pagbuo ng 1976 Tripoli Agreement. Siguro alam ng karamihan sa inyo na itong 1976 Tripoli Agreement ang nagsimula ng pangkapayapaang pag-uusap natin sa MNLF. Ngayon, hindi na rebelde ang mga MNLF, sa halip na rebelde sila ay may mahalagang bahagi sa pamamahala sa Pilipinas. Ang exhibit A' noon na sinabi ko isa sa mga dating commander ng MNLF siya ngayon ang deputy speaker ng ating Kongreso, si Deputy Speaker Gerry Salapuddin. Wala yata siya rito pero banggitin ko na rin. Isa pang MNLF commander, ang city mayor ngayon ng Marawi, si Omar Ali na kasama ko sa delegasyon bagamat wala siya sa kanyang upuan. Nandiyan ba siya? Ay naku! Just in time, ayun! Entering the hall marunong, former MNLF commander, now mayor of the Islamic City of Marawi. Halika! Omar dito ka sa iyong upuan. Yon namang — wala rin siya dito pero baka papasok pag banggitin ko ang pangalan niya — yung isa naman ang kapatid niya ang MNLF commander, ngayon siya ang gobernador ng lalawigan ng Sulu, si Ben Loong. Ayun! Nandoon pala. Okay. Ayan, narito rin yung ating congresswoman na Muslim, si Faysah Dumarpa at ang Muslim na gobernador ng probinsiyang kristiyano, si Governor Datu Pax Mangudadatu ng Sultan Kudarat.

Kaya salamat sa nagsimula sa 1976 Tripoli agreement. Sila ngayon ay hindi na rebelde, sila ay mahalagang bahagi ng ating pamamahala. Sa ibabaw ng pagpasalamat sa tatlumpung taong nakaraan, nagpahayag din ako ng lubos na pagpapasalamat sa lider ng Libya, dalawang beses kagabi nagkita kami sa kanyang state dinner, kanina nagkita kami muli sa kanyang tent para magpaalam ako sa kanya at nagpasalamat ako, dalawang beses, sa kanyang suporta sa ating laban naman kontra sa terorismo mula noong Mayo ng 2001, bago pa nangyari yung pag atake sa World Trade Center nung 9/11.

Sa kabila ng pasasalamat sa Libya, nakikiisa rin ang Pilipinas sa pangmundong komunidad sa paghahanap ng mapayapang katapusan sa giyera ng Israel at Lebanon, habang inaanyayahan natin ang buong bansa, kasama ang ating Filipino community dito sa Libya, na magdasal para sa kaligtasan ng libu-libong manggagawang Pilipino hindi lamang sa mga danger zone ng Lebanon kundi pati na rin sa ibang mga apektadong lugar. Ang di-matatag na sitwasyon sa gitnang silangan ay hindi bagong bagay para sa atin at inaasahan natin ang kagalingan at karanasan ng ating mga opisyal sa paghawak ng krisis.

Our Lebanon team is now in place and we assure the families of the OFWs in the affected areas that we will employ all available means to keep their workers, their breadwinners out of harm's way.

Kailangan din nating bigyan diin muli ang panawagan sa mga Pilipinong naghahanap ng trabaho na iwasan ang mga lugar na baka magkaroon ng siklab sa rehiyon at bigyang pansin ang mga payo ng pamahalaan at ang mga babala para sa kaligtasan ng ating mga mamamayan. Siguro masasabi ko sa kanila kung lalabas din naman sila sa Pilipinas, siguro dito na lamang sa Libya kasama ng napakagaling na Philippine community.

Ikinagagalak kong malaman na kamakailan lang, Ambassador Mangibin, ay may pinasang batas dito sa Libya kung saan ang mga manggagawa ng sektor pangkalusugan ay binigyan ng tatlong porsiyentong pagtaas sa mga natatanggap na benepisyo kumpara noong 2002. Ha? Ay, tignan natin siguro meron pang mga process of implementation.

Maunlad at mapayapa ang Libya lalo na ngayon at nag-reconcile na ang Libya at Amerika at iba pang mga bansa. Kaya ngayon kinikilala natin lalo na ang malaking potensyal ukol sa ekonomiya na umiiral dito sa Libya bunsod ng mga magandang pagbabagong nagaganap sa pagitan ng Libya at ibang bansa.

Sa biyahe kong ito, gaya nang nakita ninyo, kasama ko ang kalihim ng manggagawa, si Secretary Art Brion; kasama rin natin siyempre, parating kasama sa official or state trips ang ating Secretary of Foreign Affairs, si Bert Romulo; kasama rin natin, pero meron yata siyang assignment na ginagawa para sa akin, si Press Secretary Toting Bunye. Ayun! Okay. Nandoon ang pangalan mo kasi Toting eh sa kabila; at saka ang kalihim ng enerhiya, si Popo Lotilla; ang aking tagapayo ukol sa kapayapaan, si Secretary Jess Dureza.

Maibalik kay Secretary Brion. About 30 minutes ago, siya ay nagpirmahan ng Minister of Labor ng Libya ng kasunduan tungkol sa pag-aangkat ng mga manggagawang pangkalusugan at konstruksyon, pati na rin ang pag-training ng mga taga-Libya. Malalaman natin sa Agosto kung ilan ang kanilang kailangan pero itong araw pa lang alam na natin mula lamang sa Bank of Libya sa pag-uusap sa ating Philippine Chambers of Commerce and Industry — nandiyan ang pangulo, si President Donald Dee, Ambassador Donald Dee — ang kanilang financing construction ay 40 billion pesos worth, at first choice nila manggagawang Pilipino. Palibhasa inip na inip na nga silang pabilisin ang pagpasok ng mga manggagawang Pilipino dito sa Libya kaya magtatayo ang kagawaran ng mga manggagawa ng Libya desk doon sa Maynila na mag-aasikaso ng recruitment sa Libya. Saan yung government-to-government.

Ang Libya naman ay magpapadala ng labor attache sa Manila sa loob ng buwan na ito.

Inaasahan rin natin at magkakaroon — ayon doon sa kasunduan na pinirmahan ni Art Brion at ng Minister of Labor ng Libya — magkakaroon rin sila ng joint efforts, Philippine-Libya to protect Overseas Filipino Workers. Hindi ako nagugulat na naipasok ni Art Brion ito sa kanyang kasunduan. Alam ho ba niyo na si Art Brion ay number one bar topnotcher sa Pilipinas nung...? Inaasahan rin nating ma-recycle ng Libya ang kaniyang petrodollars at malaking kita sa kalakal ng langis sa pamamagitan ng pamumuhunan sa Pilipinas.

Magandang panahon upang mamuhunan sa Pilipinas ngayon. Tatlong buwan nang sunod-sunod ang ating budget surplus kaya kayang mabalansiyado natin ang budget sa 2008, gaya ng gusto ng ating mga economic managers.

Pinuri pa ng IMF ang ating mga reporma sa buwis at ang ating pagbawas ng pag-uutang. Nalampasan ng BIR ang kaniyang target sa nakaraang buwan. Malumanay ang pagtaas ng presyo ng mga bilihin kahit na mataas ang presyo ng langis sa buong mundo. Ang Alemanya ay kakatabi lamang ng kalahating bilyong piso para sa reforestation program natin. At ang matatag na pag-angat ng mga remittances ng mga OFW kasama na yung mga taga Libya ay umabot na sa higit na one billion dollars sa isang buwan lamang ng Mayo kaya pinaangat ang ating mga dollar reserves.

Alam niyo nung araw sabi natin we always need 16 billion dollars reserves para masigurado natin matatag ang ating piso. Ngayon dahil sa inyo mga manggagawang Pilipino, 21 billion dollars ang ating reserves. Kaya maraming salamat mga OFW. Maraming salamat sa inyong pagkakaisa, yung mga nagkaisang mga ibat-ibang mga tribo ng mga Muslim. Salamat sa inyong pahayag ng suporta sa akin kanina. Salamat sa foster parents ng mga mag-aaral doon sa Pilipinas.

Ang pagkalinga ng OFW ay importanteng bahagi ng ating foreign policy dahil sa pagkikilala ng mga Pilipino sa ibayong dagat ay tuloy na gumaganap ng napaka- importanteng papel sa katatagan ng ekonomiya at lipunan ng ating bansa. Bilang pagkilala sa halaga ng ating mga OFW, sa aking mga paglalakbay sa ibat-ibang bansa at pakikipag-usap sa mga pinuno ng mga bansang ito, laging nasa itaas ng aking mga preyoridad ang inyong kapakanan.

Matagal nang binibigyan ng Libya ang Pilipino ng magandang trabaho dito, tatlong dekada, yan ang ating pinagdidiriwang. At gaya nang sinabi niyo kanina ay maganda naman at mahusay ang trabahong binigay niyo sa kanila. Malaki ang inyong kontribusyon din sa kanilang pag-angat sa kanilang ekonomiya.

Kaya salamat din sa magandang mukha ng Pilipinas na ipinapakita ninyo sa Libya. Kaya tuloy minamahal ng Libya ang Pilipinas dahil minamahal niya ang manggagawang Pilipino. At kung sinabi niyo na kayo ay nasisiyahan na sa wakas sa tagal ng mangagawang Pilipino na narito sa Libya nakita niyo ang Pangulo ng Pilipinas, ako rin masasabi ko yon. Para sa akin, malaking-malaking karangalan na magkasama tayo ngayong gabi.

Sabi nga ni Ambassador Mangibin, dito sa Tripoli, tatlong libo ang manggagawang Pilipino at pitong daan na ang narito. napakalaking porsiyento ang nakapunta itong araw na ito sa madaling notice.

Kaya salamat sa pagkakataon at mabuhay ang dakilang manggagawang Pilipino!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during a meeting with the Filipino Community in Libya. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212620/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2823&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the meeting of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI) and the Libyan Union of Chambers of Commerce, Industry and Agriculture (LUCCIA) Speech
of

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo

President of the Philippines

During the meeting of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI) and the Libyan Union of Chambers of Commerce, Industry and Agriculture (LUCCIA)

[Delivered at the El-Bawho Al-Ahder, Al-Kaber Hotel Tripoli, Libya, July 17, 2006]

I have come to Libya at this time together with our business delegation to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the Tripoli Agreement of 1976 where the leader facilitated and started the peace process of the Philippine government with the Moro National Liberation Front or MNLF in Mindanao in Southern Philippines. Thirty years, that is how long Libya has been a friend of the Philippines under the visionary leadership of the great leader President Colonel Muammar Gaddafi.

The Tripoli Agreement of 1976 eventually led to the final peace agreement of 1996 which ended the MNLF rebellion and brought the MNLF into the mainstream of Philippine governance. In fact, one of the MNLF commanders has been elected deputy speaker of the Philippine Congress — and I think he will be joining us later — he is part of my official delegation on this state visit.

Another leader of the MNLF, the brother of a former commander — he was just outside — is now the governor of the province of Sulu in Southern Philippines. And another MNLF commander is now the Mayor of the Islamic City of Marawi in Southern Philippines. So they have really... The process that was started in the Tripoli Agreement of 1976 thirty years ago has indeed been working very well bringing the MNLF into the mainstream of governance.

The help of Libya and the leader did not stop there. When I became President in 2001, I asked Libya to help us again with another peace process. This time with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front or the MILF which did not accept the earlier agreement. And the government of Libya obliged and hosted a second Tripoli Agreement. This time the Tripoli Agreement of 2001 and we are confident that just as the Tripoli Agreement of 1976 led to the final peace agreement with the MNLF in 1996, we hope that the second Tripoli Agreement with the MILF in 2001 will also lead very soon to a final peace agreement very very soon in a very short time.

With the support of Libya also in 2003, we agreed on a ceasefire with the MILF, and that's why I am confident that the original agreement in 2001 will also ripen into a final peace agreement. The ceasefire agreement that we have with the MILF which started in 2003, three years ago, is being monitored by our friends: Malaysia, Brunei and, of course, Libya.

Another way in which the leader has helped me very much also happened in 2001. In fact, when my peace panel was here in Tripoli negotiating the 2001 Tripoli Agreement with the MILF, in the Philippines, terrorists belonging to the Abu Sayaff group hostaged a group of tourists in a resort called Dos Palmas in Southern Philippines. And I had the chance to speak with Colonel Gaddafi on the phone who asked me how he could help. I asked for his help. I said I would rather fight the Abu Sayaff than pay ransom, and I asked him for his help. He helped me and he denounced the Abu Sayaff and with his support and the support of other friends in the international community, the Philippine military eventually defeated the Abu Sayaff.

And because of the leader's quick response that time when I asked him to help me against the Abu Sayaff, with his quick response in denouncing the Abu Sayaff, I was not surprised that when 9/11 happened, the leader was one of the first — in fact, he gave the firmest denunciation of the Al-Qaeda bombers after 9/11— by any Muslim leader. Also I rejoiced with the recent news of the successful reconciliation of Libya with the U.S. and the other members of the international community which occasions the opening up of the Libyan economy.

I congratulate Libya for this diplomatic triumph, even as I am proud that Libya has been our friend long before this reconciliation with the U.S. and the international community. In fact, I'm here to reiterate my deep gratitude to the leader not only his support for our peace process since thirty years ago but also his support to my administration in our fight against terrorism since 2001.

And it is in this context for the thirty years of friendship that I hope to discuss the prospects of opening the doors to broader and deeper bilateral trade between our two countries. Apart from obtaining support for peace and development in Mindanao, I am trying to secure a steady supply of oil for the Philippines in the face of projected continuing high prices of oil.

And last night at the state dinner, I asked the leader if the investment management fund of Libya could recycle some of the profits of Libya from the high oil prices in the form of investments in the Philippines, like refineries, gasoline stations, agriculture in Mindanao, and hospitals all over the Philippines. Our ambassador, Mr. Mangibin, is tasked to follow through on this request by submitting specific proposals to the investment management fund of Libya and also to the private Libyan health care industry.

Libya helps many African countries, and I hope that a similar kind of assistance can go to a Southeast Asian country that has recognized Libya as a friend for a very long time, namely the Philippines.

Besides, the Philippines is a good stable economy to invest in. In June last month, we posted the third monthly budget surplus, keeping my economic managers' balanced budget projection by 2008 attainable. The IMF has commended our tax reforms and debt reduction program. The Bureau of Internal Revenue beat its tax revenue goal for the month of June. We have tamed the inflation rate so far notwithstanding the high oil prices in the world market.

And Germany has just earmarked half a billion pesos for two Philippine forest programs. Our overseas Filipinos, their remittances including those from Libya are increasing steadily to now more than one billion dollars for the month of May alone that boost our dollar reserves.

Speaking of overseas Filipinos, the Philippines is grateful for the good treatment of our nurses and other workers here in Libya.

In fact, during this trip of mine, the labor ministers of our two countries are discussing a memorandum of understanding to develop a program of further partnership and cooperation between Libya and the Philippines in infrastructure construction, in infrastructure operation and maintenance, in hospitals and health care. I understand that the twin interest of Libya in this program of partnership are first, the hosting of workers from the Philippines and second, the training of Libyans by Filipinos.

On the first, Libya will hire nurses in the public sector and private clinics and hospitals, also other paramedical professions. Libya will also hire construction workers in roads, buildings and allied trades. The minister of labor of Libya will determine the number of workers needed by mid-August. So I hope that the Libyan business community will submit to him the information that he needs about your human resource requirements as soon as possible.

And I would also like to invite, as I said earlier, Libya and the Libyan health industry to invest in hospitals in the Philippines because the way for us to produce more nurses to fulfill your requirements is to educate more nurses in the Philippines and so they need more hospitals to qualify for training for their profession. This is a profession of which enjoys a very very large demand not only in Libya but all over the world.

Libya I understand needs trainors for nursing and paramedical professions. So it will be our honor to accommodate this need as I reiterate therefore we need more hospitals to conduct the training of nurses. And I hope that the Libyan health care sector community will consider investing in hospitals in the Philippines to provide a venue for training nursing students.

Indeed, as you have said, Excellency, Libya is opening up right now very rapidly. This accelerating economic and development activity in Libya requires accelerating also the human resource recruitment from Manila. So the Philippine Department of Labor will set up a special desk to attend to Libyan recruitment on a government-to-government basis.

And I understand Libya will also assign a labor attache to Manila within this month.

Aside from labor and human resources, because of your rapid opening up that is going on, we view Libya as a challenging and potentially rewarding market not only for Philippine labor but increasingly for Philippine exports as your own national development efforts continue to accelerate with your renewed engagement with the international community coming on the heels of the establishment of diplomatic relations with the United States.

So, we look forward to an improved market access such as fresh and processed foods like canned tuna, fresh bananas. Speaking of fresh bananas, last night, we had a wonderful dinner hosted by the leader and I was told that all the fruits that were served last night are grown in Libya except the bananas which are imported from Ecuador. I'd like to inform you that the Philippines is one of the top exporters of bananas in the world. Almost all the bananas in Japan come from the Philippines, and we are the number one supplier of bananas to the huge market of China. So, I think that if you can buy from Ecuador, you will also like the bananas coming from the Philippines.

We also would like to have the chance to sell to you Halal poultry products coming from the Philippines and also consumer manufactures such as furniture and furnishings. Our furniture are world-class, very fashionable, very sophisticated. Automobiles and auto parts. Construction services, which I am sure you are already beginning to purchase very much not only from the labor side but also from construction companies in the Philippines, we hope we'll be able to have construction contracts here and also information and communication technology or I.C.T.

With regard to I.C.T we together with India are the top providers of I.C.T. services to the world. And we suggest that a particular area of interest to Philippine businessmen is I.C.T. service for banks, offices, hospitals and hotel resorts in Libya.

Back in the Philippines, I've been talking about investing in Mindanao. But in Luzon, where the capital of the Philippines is located, we are positioning the Clark-Subic economic zone just north of Manila — an hour's drive from Manila — to be the most competitive logistics and transport hub in the region, with capabilities to respond to the maintenance of the world's airlines.

In this regard, we're inviting Libya to patronize the Philippines C-130 depot maintenance in Clark. Ran here by a member of our delegation, Mr. Peter Rodriguez. I understand that the Philippines is one of only two ASEAN countries that have been authorized by the U.S. government to maintain and upgrade C-130 planes which are plentiful here in Libya.

Last night, when I told the leader about offering to do the maintenance and upgrading of C-130 aircraft in Libya. He said, "but does the Philippines have that capability?" and yes, it has the capability because Lockheed Martin is the technical partner of this maintenance center.

So, ladies and gentlemen of the Libyan business community, the great leader of Libya has supported the Philippines since thirty years ago in our peace process. And he has supported my administration in the war against terrorism since 2001.

Now, let us move to a new stage of our relationship. Now I ask the Libyan business community as you open up to be our companions in a journey towards greater peace and prosperity for both our countries.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the meeting of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI) and the Libyan Union of Chambers of Commerce, Industry and Agriculture (LUCCIA). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212628/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2826&Itemid=38

Speech of president Arroyo during the opening ceremonies of the Small and Medium Enterprise (SME) Development Week and Exposition Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremonies of the Small and Medium Enterprise (SME) Development Week and Exposition

[Delivered at Trade Hall A, Market, Market, Fort Bonifacio Global City, Taguig City, Metro Manila, July 20, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Peter Favila.

Other Cabinet members; Undersecretary Alonzo, our host; Mayor Tinga, the host government.

I'd like to greet our special guest, Canadian Ambassador and the other members of the diplomatic corps; Governor Villafuerte and Congressman Pancho; all the donor organizations; all the participants; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Una sa lahat, salamat dito sa SME Development Plan Accomplishment Report. Eto ay pag-aaralan ko para maipasok ko ang ilang bahagi doon sa aking State of the Nation Address.

Ako ay nagagalak na magkasama tayo ngayon lalong-lalo na ang ating mga magiging na maliliit na negosyante sa pagbubukas nitong exposition kaugnay ng pagdiriwang ng Small and Medium Enterprise Development Week. Ang pagdaraos ng SME Development Week ay pagkilala sa halaga ng maliliit na negosyo sa pambansang kaunlaran.

The national SME agenda spearheads the fight against poverty.

If you remember during my inauguration as President in 2004, when I gave my ten-point program, the first one was: to create six to ten million jobs by developing entrepreneurs. And that is part of the work of the SME.

Our entrepreneurs are part of Philippine global competitiveness and that is why in order to help you, I have asked Peter Favila to conduct a national competitiveness summit in the middle of August and to have a national competitiveness council which I hope the SMEs will participate in.

Aside from the SMEs, another very important aspect of our competitiveness are our Overseas Filipino Workers. And I would like to take this opportunity to say something about our workers in Lebanon:

“We are keenly focused on our zero casualty goal for Filipino workers in the Lebanon-Israeli conflict and we assure the families of the OFWs trapped in Lebanon that we will exhaust all the available means to ensure their safety.

The Philippines makes a special appeal to all combatant forces to spare Filipino nationals who have no wish other than to be taken out of harm's way.

Our crisis managers on site shall devise clear markers and signify that will identify Filipino nationals. And in the name of humanity, I ask the combatants not to shoot or harm them.

I have also ordered our diplomatic posts to negotiate at the political level and on the ground whenever possible to ensure that our nationals are given safe passage and humanitarian assistance and safe sanctuary.

At the same time, the government will open as many avenues of communication between our OFWs in Lebanon and their families here in the Philippines. I have further released the amount of 150 million pesos to support our objectives.

Our resources may not be enough, but we are trying to address the problem by teaming up with other foreign countries that could help us in the evacuation process.

Our diplomats shall coordinate with private foreign firms for the leased of pesos that could be utilized.

Our best laid plans can never come to fruition without the cooperation of all. This is true for the safety of our OFWs safety in Lebanon and it is true for the SME development plan.

And so the next step is, let us build on our collective experience. Let us continue to innovate. Let us prosper by dint of unity and hard work.

Mabuhay ang ating mga small and medium enterprises!

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Opening Ceremonies of the Small and Medium Enterprise (SME) Development Week and Exposition. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212438/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2821&Itemid=38

Speech of President of President Arroyo during the Change of Command Ceremony of the Office of the Chief of Staff Armed Forces of the Philippines
Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Change of Command Ceremony of the Office of the Chief of Staff Armed Forces of the Philippines

[Delivered at the Grandstand, Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, July 21, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Cruz.

President Ramos and the other former chiefs-of-staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; the newly-designated chief-of-staff, General Esperon; the immediate past chief-of-staff, General Senga; Speaker de Venecia and the other members of Congress; Senator Dick Gordon; governor of the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao, Zaldy Ampatuan; the governors of the Philippines led by the president of ULAP and the Governors' League, Governor Aumentado; the officers and men and women of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen.

General Yano to commander: give 'Tikas Pahinga.'

Salamat. Hayaan ninyo magsimula ako sa pasasalamat: "To our men and women in the Armed Forces who are willing to give their life in defense of our nation, salamat. Whether it is fighting communist forces bent on destruction or the rightist allies or rebuilding Mindanao, our service in the cause of peace and stability deserves our deepest gratitude."

Our military men and women are essential to upholding the constitution and the rule of law that are so important to democracy. Pinakita ninyong muli ang inyong pagpapahalaga sa ating kapayapaan, demokrasya at sa saligang batas nang masukol ninyo sa fairview ang mga sundalong nagbalak maghasik ng lagim tungo sa kanilang pagtatag ng isang iligal na pamahalaan, maraming salamat.

Kay General Senga who has not only upheld the loyalty and professionalism of the Filipino soldier but has shown that military justice works in an organization led by the great martial principles and values, courage, audacity, integrity, professionalism and decisiveness, maraming salamat.

I give General Senga credit for containing then neutralizing and finally demolishing the infamous February coup. Maraming salamat, General Senga.

Democracy thrives in strong leadership. That is what you got from your outgoing chief-of-staff and that is what you will continue to get from your commander-in-chief and your new chief-of-staff.

That is why I appreciate the decision of the Supreme Court on the national I.D. in line with its consistent service to the highest public interest. This paves the way for the full implementation of the national I.D. system which is a strategic linchpin of both national security and social justice. It will help us to secure our communities from terror and crime and at the same time, facilitate the delivery of basic services to the people.

The Philippines stands to gain from a national I.D system in terms of political stability, economic growth and global competitiveness. This is part of every modern nation in a modern world. We acknowledge the issues that are being raised regarding the system and we shall ensure that it carries all the safeguards to protect the rights of every citizen under the law.

I call on all Filipinos to stand as one behind the national I.D. system.

Within the armed forces, we will revive the office handling civil military operations, as has already been mentioned by your new chief-of-staff. And he said there will be a new division in the Davao area. But we will go beyond that, we will divide the southern command into two unified commands for more effective troop management and control.

General Senga recommended these reforms and I approved them without second thought.

Thus, today, we thank General Senga and welcome General Jun Esperon.

Jun is the first commander who grew up in the PSG, who rose to the post of AFP chief-of-staff. He was the deputy PSG commander of President Ramos and he was my PSG commander. And I believe that President Ramos will join me in attesting that his only partisan interest is the people. His grit and audacity are legend.

If we had Angie Reyes as the hero of Abubakar. If we had Roy Cimatu as the hero of Camp Busra. If we had Gene Senga as the hero of Buliok. We have Jun Esperon as the hero of Rajah Mudah.

And he shall wield the sword of military justice with an even hand and dispassionate command. He shall steer the Philippine defense reform agenda forward and across the sea of multiple challenges and constraints. He shall steep the armed forces in globalized doctrine even as they dog tail their mission with socioeconomic aspirations of the masses. With Jun at the helm, as he has committed, we shall destroy the armed capability of the CPP-NPA, remove their logistics bases and dismantle their support networks.

Military civilian inter-operability is the name of the game to wield the comprehensive weapons of fighting and governance to constrict terrorist, strike them down, liberate communities from the crutches of fear, bringing to bear the economic psychosocial, political and diplomatic components of strategic victory.

Those who cling to the failed ideology and impose their political will by force shall be met with counterforce. Our forces are true to the mission.

And so, as I preside over this turnover once again, may I say, General Senga, thank you for your faithful service to the armed forces and to the republic.

General Esperon, carry on.

Mabuhay kayong lahat!

Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Change of Command Ceremony of the Office of the Chief of Staff Armed Forces of the Philippines. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212353/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2820&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the arrival of the first batch of 232 OFWs from war-wracked Lebanon
[Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pagdating ng unang pangkat ng 232 na mga OFW mula sa dinigmang Lebanon

[Ipinahayag sa 250th Presidential Airlift Wing Hangar Villamor Air Base, Lungsod ng Pasay City, ika 23 ng Hulyo, 2006]

Mga balikbayan, magsimula tayo sa pasasalamat.

Una sa lahat, sa ngalan ng buong Pilipinas, dapat bigyang-halaga ang dakilang sakripisyo na ginagawa araw-araw ng mga Pilipinong nagtatrabaho sa ibayong dagat, maraming salamat. Walong milyon kayong naghahandog ng inyong kaalaman at kakayahan sa lahat ng dako ng daigdig. And in doing so, many of the eight million... The eight million lift up our nation, even as they are often separated from their loved ones here at home for long periods of time.

Sa araw na ito lalo na, nakatuon ang isip natin sa ating mga kababayan sa Lebanon na nasa kuko ngayon ng malagim na paglala ng digmaan. At sinasalubong ko, sinasalubong natin, sinasalubong ng buong bansa ang unang dalawang daang OFW na lumikas mula roon. At doon sa mga nakausap ko na kanina, ikinagagalak kong sabihin na nagpapasalamat silang nakauwi sa tulong natin. And I assure you all, I assure the nation, that we are doing everything in our power to secure the safety of those who need to remain in Lebanon and those who wish to leave are being transported out in an orderly way.

Dumating ngayon ‘yung unang dalawang daan, sa tulong ng Panginoon, sinisikap natin na meron pang darating bukas na grupo at ito ay courtesy ng gobyerno ng Bahrain na magbibigay... Tutulong sa transportasyon. At inaasahan natin sa makalawa, meron pang pangatlong grupong darating. And we are working with international partners on how to restore peace in that troubled land.

Tunay na mga bagong bayani kayo mga kababayan na nagsisikap sa ibayong dagat. Sa inyong paglilingkod sa pamilya, sa bayan at sa Diyos, mabuhay! At maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA’s Speech during the arrival of the first batch of 232 OFWs from war-wracked Lebanon. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212342/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2819&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Testimonial Lunch in Honor of NCRFW Chairperson Myrna Yao and Ms. Olivia Ferry, and conferment of the “Champion for Life” Award on 2005 Miss International Precious Lara Quigaman

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Testimonial Lunch in Honor of NCRFW Chairperson Myrna Yao and Ms. Olivia Ferry, and conferment of the “Champion for Life” Award on 2005 Miss International Precious Lara Quigaman

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 26, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Narda Camacho. Salamat sa iyong panukala na gawin natin itong selebrasyong ito.

To our honorees: Myrna Yao; Olivia Ferry; Precious Lara Quigaman and our Madrigal Singers, to all of you, ladies and the gentlemen who are here today. Congratulations to all of you! Congratulations to all of us!

In my State of the Nation Address last Monday, I said, we are a great nation with great people.

And today, we celebrate the achievements of eminent men and women such as Myrna Yao and Olivia Ferry, and Precious Lara Quigaman and our young men and women, the second generation of the Madrigal Singers. All of you have done us proud. Congratulations!

Now Myrna is my chairman for the Commission on Women but that’s not the reason why we’re giving her an award. We are giving her an award because the Global Summit of Women gave Myrna Yao its 2006 International Entrepreneur Award. And she won it not in the course of bureaucratic job functions, but it was for steering her company, Richwell Philippines into a giant in children’s toys and footwear. Congratulations, Myrna!

Olivia Ferry has been elected world president of Zonta International. I was telling Olivia not only is she the first Filipina to be... Not only in Zonta — although she is the first Asian in World Zonta, but although we already had a Philippine President of Rotary — but of any giant world women’s organization, I think Olivia is the very first from the Philippines. Congratulations!

And I’m happy to know that... To learn that Olivia used to work with my father. She must have been so young then, maybe 20 years old or something, because at a time though she was working at the program implementation agency which later was merged with the National Economic Council to become the National Economic and Development Authority. Congratulations, Olivia! You’ve been an achiever for so many decades.

And the Madrigal Singers. I still remember the very first performance of the Madrigal Singers. I was there. It was still the older generation. My father was president, and their very first performance was a performance for a benefit for my brother Arthur’s foundation — the scholarship foundation for the Filipino youth. And now what they have become? — world acclaim. So, thank you. Congratulations!

We’re not giving them an award today because they fall under culture and the whole system of cultural awards was already organized before I became president. And it goes through a process by a Committee of the Cultural Center and the Commission on Culture and the Arts. Nonetheless, we’re happy that their founder is already a national artist.

And of course, we remember the headlines that Precious Lara made by winning Miss International last year. It was a headline comparable to other headlines like Manny Pacquiao’s many wins; like the Mt. Everest climbers and like the South East Asian games gold medalists. And we want to honor that as well.

Going back to Myrna, Myrna's success in business. When I appointed her head of the National Commission on Filipino Women, her success in business made me ask her to concentrate on micro-entrepreneurship as the main door out of poverty.

And I can tell you that a good part of the additional monies realized from our fiscal gains will be driven in the same direction — micro-enterprise, of which 95 percent of the beneficiaries are women.

So, I asked Myrna to make micro-entrepreneurship a major vehicle for women's participation in the super regions that we announced and as super opportunities for every Filipino family.

Roads, bridges and ports are what I talked about in my State of the Nation Address. But they move trade as they move troops to strike down terror, and make the environment better for micro-entrepreneurs to flourish.

Linkages are just as important as leaders. So I'm asking Myrna now in her capacity as government official, to strengthen the connection between the programs of the National Commission on Women with those of the women's clubs especially Zonta in the Philippines to respond to women's issues — fight poverty at the family level, check violence against women, push the pro-life family planning strategy and get the women behind our grand vision.

And to help the women's groups do that, and in honor of the great honor that Olive Ferry has given to us in order to help carry out the partnership of Myrna with Zonta and the other clubs, I'm going to give one million pesos from the president's social fund to help in the micro-entrepreneur program.

As I said, I can't give an award for culture to the Madrigal Singers until there is a recommendation from the joint committee of the NCCA and the CCP, but I can give them one million pesos also from PAGCOR to promote the momentum of their excellence. Congratulations!

The latest achievements of Myrna Yao and Olivia Ferry and the Madrigal Singers, and the headline-grabbing achievement of Precious Lara last year, all symbolize the great triumphs of the global Filipina and the young Filipinos.

I'm not speaking only of achievement at leadership and center stage level, but also of the valiant sacrifices of Filipino women all around the world in earning the keep needed to feed their children at home and send them to school. Lara's mother is an example. She's a very successful nurse in Bristol in England. And look at the international education that she was able to give Lara to give her the grace on top of the beauty to win a prestigious international award.

But I salute not only the executive women like Myrna and Olivia and the young women in the Madrigal Singers and Lara, the international celebrity and her mother, the successful career woman working outside the Philippines but also the ordinary working class women like the ones who were lugging and are lugging their bags home from war-torn areas like Lebanon.

For the sake of these working women so that we can create jobs for them right here in the Philippines, so that a job abroad is an option like for Lara's mother and not a necessity, I reiterate the sincere call for national unity. In this spirit, I say mabuhay! Myrna, Olivia, Lara and our young Madrigal Singers!

Thank you. My best wishes for your continued success!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Testimonial Lunch in Honor of NCRFW Chairperson Myrna Yao and Ms. Olivia Ferry, and Conferment of the "Champion for Life" Award on 2005 Miss International Precious Lara Quigaman. Retrieved from <https://web.archive>

http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2815&Itemid=3
8

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo on bringing OFWs Home from Lebanon

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On bringing OFWs Home from Lebanon

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, August 3, 2006]

BRINGING OUR OFWs HOME

We must have a mandatory evacuation if we are to expect a zero casualty rate in a war that is increasing in breadth and tempo. Task Force Lebanon will undertake all means to get Filipinos to safety, including those who do not want to move or those facing problems with their employers. Dapat ang ating mga kababayan na nasa mga mapanganib na lugar ay makipag-kooperasyon upang manatiling ligtas at maginhawaan ang kaba ng kanilang mga pamilya dito sa Pilipinas.

The window for safe evacuation becomes narrower for each day that battles ensue on land. At higit na mabuting lumikas nang mas maaga kaysa mahuli pag sa wakas nagserado na iyung bintanangyon.

May sapat na pera naman tayo upang mai-uwi silang lahat.

Ngayong nailikas na natin ang marami sa ating mga OFW nang walang nasasawi — itong araw na ito magiging higit na tatlung libo na, mahigit na ten percent na makakauwi — awa ng diyos, bibigyan ngayon ng pansin at pagkilos ang panibagong kabuhayan ng mga bumalik mula sa Lebanon. Gaya ng halimbawa ng mga manggagawa ngpabrikang nasunog, matapos silang iligtas sa apoy, kailangan namang ihanap sila ng mga bagong hanapbuhay.

Kaya naman pinulong ko ngayon sina Secretary Arthur Yap — nanduon; si Secretary Buboy Syjuco; si Secretary Art Brion; si Secretary Espie Cabral; si Administrator Nitoy Roque ng OWWA; si Executive Director Una Amata ng National Livelihood Support Fund; at saka si Nelson Buenaflor ng Quedancor.

Tatalakayin natin ang mga pagkilos ng mga ahensiya upang mapanatag ang loob ng mga kababayan natin pagka-uwi.

So, bago tayo magkuwentuhan, punta muna tayo doon sa hinanda ng DOLE tungkol sa reintegration program para sa ating mga overseas Filipino workers.

(Closing statement)

Okey. So, yan ang ating sagot para doon sa mga OFW na natatakot sila, anoong mau-uwian nila, at mayroong bagong buhay na naghihintay dito. In fact, ayaw na natin na mag... Bilang patakaran ayaw na natin magpadala ng mga manggagawa doon sa mga lugar na mapanganib. Hindi ba ganun ang ating patakaran, Art? Kaya naman hindi tayo nagpapadala na nang bagong mga manggagawa doon sa Iraq. Kaya dito sa Lebanon hindi na rin tayo magpapadala ng mga manggagawa, at inuuwi nga natin silang lahat. Pero mayroon pang bagong buhay.

Kaya ibig kong ipanatag ang loob ng ating mga kababayan bumalik mula sa Lebanon. At sino mang mapipilitang lumikas sa trabaho sa ibayong dagat man patakaran natin sa mga mapayapang lugar lamang hahayagan magtrabaho ang ating mga mamamayan.

Laging handa ang inyong pamahalaan na ilayo kayo sa panganib at tulungan kayo magtrabaho at makabangon muli.

So, yung parang naririnig ko ang tanong naman ng nandito, -eh bibigyan niyo ng trabaho yung mga galing sa Lebanon, eh ako ang tagal-tagal ko na sa Pilipinas wala pa akong trabaho dito. Papano ba natin ma... Dapat yung mga package na ito, hindi ba pwedeng bukas rin sa lahat ng mga manggagawang walang trabaho?

Okay. So, ito bukas para sa OFW, pero dahil nakalista sila tinutulungan sila. Pero kahit na hindi kayo nakalista, tiga-rito kayo sa Pilipinas, makinabang din kayo dito sa mga programang ito. Kaya halimbawa, ayan hanapin ninyo yung mga TESDA office, hanapin ninyo mga DOLE office. Yung DOLE, hindi ba meron na kayong online na yung jobs available, so yon po ang gawin natin.

Kaya ako'y nagpapasalamat sa lahat ng ating mga ahensiya na tumutulong sa hanapbuhay. Maraming salamat, Secretary of Labor Art Brion. Maraming salamat, Secretary of DSWD, Espie Cabral. Maraming salamat, Chairman ng TESDA, Buboy Syjuco. Maraming salamat sa Director General ng PMS, si Artie Yap. Maraming salamat sa Administrator ng OWWA, si Nitoy Roque; ang namumuno ng National Livelihood Support Fund, si Lina Amata; ang namumuno ng Quedancor, si Nelso Buenaflor.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo at the ASEAN Summit Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the ASEAN Summit

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, August 8, 2006]

ASEAN: “ONE CARING AND SHARING COMMUNITY”

The Philippines is proud to be the chair of ASEAN this year and host to the ASEAN and East Asia summits in December, also president of the ASEAN Parliamentary Organization in the person of our Speaker of the House of Representatives.

All these underscore our commitment that it is in the interest of the Philippines to be regionally and globally engaged politically, economically and diplomatically.

As we celebrate 39 years of ASEAN, we celebrate how with collective wisdom and resolve, we in ASEAN have broken free from the chains of colonialism to seek the blessings of peace, prosperity and progress for all our peoples.

We have faith that we will continue to find the full promise of a region known for its rich diversity and panoply of races and creeds.

Our leadership in ASEAN this year, as Secretary Romulo has said, carries the theme of “One caring and sharing community.” Through the years, we’ve seen and felt the reassuring presence of ASEAN’s humanitarian power in countries devastated by natural disasters — be it a tsunami, earthquake, landslide or volcanic eruption.

We will push for initiatives that will make ASEAN a shining institution that cares for its peoples, for its environment, and one that truly shares resources for uplifting the disadvantaged integrating the marginalized and realizing the common good.

We will work for the protection of the rights of migrant workers in all corners of the earth. There are many ASEAN workers in the Middle East including two million Filipinos, 30,000 in Lebanon. In this time of crisis, we will share with our ASEAN neighbors our government apparatus. It keeps track of our overseas workers and takes care of their needs. We have moved thousands of our people to relative safety from the most harmful areas of South Lebanon.

We ask our ASEAN neighbors to join us in calling for peace in the Middle East and a cessation of violence by all parties.

Starting today, the Philippines will host the ASEAN Center for Biodiversity in Los Baños. That was what we signed this morning. It’s only fitting. Our Sulu Sea is the biodiversity hot spot of the world, and we are one of the 17 megadiverse countries that account for the most of the terrestrial, freshwater and marine species on earth.

We will push for greater cooperation in energy security including a joint energy project with our neighbor Indonesia in the southern Mindanao-Sulawesi border.

Peace and security is at the center of the ASEAN Regional Forum. Only peace and security can enable free and fair trade on sea and land inhabited by almost 600 million people producing almost one trillion U.S. dollars.

By pushing for a convention on counter terrorism, we will advance teamwork in the fight against evil. By engaging our neighboring region, the Shanghai Cooperation Organization Nations, we will widen our reach.

At the apex of our dreams, as Secretary Romulo said, is an ASEAN charter — a legal organization with a juridical personality — bound by institutional rules and standards, empowered to engage the world in more constructive and powerful ways.

Ladies and gentlemen, brothers and sisters in ASEAN, let us work together.

Fellow Filipinos, to make the country's leadership of ASEAN this year a success, let us help make our dream of "One caring and sharing community" come true.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the Groundbreaking Ceremony of the Pantal Bridge Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Groundbreaking Ceremony of the Pantal Bridge

[Delivered at Brgy. Pantal, Dagupan City, Pangasinan, August 9, 2006]

Balbaleg ya salamat Speaker de Venecia. Thank you very much to the father of Pantal bridge and my super ally, Speaker Joe De Venecia.

Madame Gina de Venecia and my companions at mass earlier this morning, Congressman Tulagan and Espino; Ambassador Yamazaki and all our friends from Japan who have helped make this project a reality; our Cabinet members; our host mayor, Mayor Benjie Lim and the other officials of the City of Dagupan; Governor Agbayani and the other officials of Pangasinan and the other mayors who are here today to help us celebrate this beautiful affair; Commissioner Fernandez; all of the officials and people of Pantal and Dagupan, Masantos ya ngarem ed sikayon amin. Tuloy-tuloy so schedule ko ya bisita ed saray naduma-duman probinsya, tan malike-liketak imbita-an kayo a mila ed martsa, intayon amin paunla ed progreso na baley tayo.

Your Excellency, Ambassador to the Philippines Yamazaki, please relay to your government and people the deep appreciation for your continued support for Philippine development. Japan is by far the biggest source of official development assistance to the Philippines. And I thank you ambassador and the other Japanese guests for joining us in this groundbreaking and also for joining us later for lunch because I understand bangus is the favorite dish of Ambassador Yamazaki.

Ambassador Yamazaki told us about the almost 200 projects under this package, 200 projects amounting to eight billion pesos. But this one project alone is 800 million pesos, one-tenth of the whole package. So, this Pantal bridge, as said earlier by our different speakers, is the only long-span bridge of the bridges to be built nationwide under this Japan facility that's why it cost much much more than the other smaller bridges. This is called Package III of the loans from Japan. Ayan tatawagan nga Package III met so sankan-unan ed samay apat era ya packages manlapo ed samay urgent bridges construction project for rural development, as Ambassador Yamazaki has explained to us, for the bridges of the rural areas of the Philippines. But Dagupan is not a rural area. It's an exception to the rest of the bridges because Speaker de Venecia was so active in making sure that this bridge would be financed after 100 years of waiting by the people of Dagupan.

Para doon sa mga hindi namin kabaleyan na Pangasinan, itong Pantal bridge ay bahagi ng Dagupan bridge diversion road. Eto ay pet project ni speaker para maging mas maginhawa ang komersiyo dito. And this will increase the land area, the usable land area of Dagupan by one-third. Yes, and sa ganun itong bahagi ng bansa, gaya nang sabi ni Mayor Benjie Lim, hindi lang tutulong sa Dagupan kundi na rin sa buong Pilipinas. Dagdagan ang halaga ng Dagupan bilang sentro ng puhunan, trabaho, edukasyon lalo na sa hilaga o sa amyanan ng ating Luzon.

This is one of the big projects in our Medium-Term Public Investment Program.

Doon sa aking State of the Nation Address kwenento ko yung ilan sa mga programa sa MTPIP at sinabi ko na itong mga proyekto natin ihahati natin sa apat na sub-economy ng Pilipinas, panglima yung Cyber Corridor mula Baguio hanggang Davao. Why are we dividing the country into sub-economies? Because each super region has its natural advantages and we want to focus on these advantages so that we can speed up the programs vital to the main growth strategy and reduce the dependence on Imperial Manila.

Ang Dagupan, Bangus capital of the Philippines; of the world, reyna ng aquaculture sa North Luzon agri-business quadrangle. It provides not only bangus but other high-value fish not only to the rest of Luzon but also to the rest of North Asia including the country of Japan. Ang Dagupan at Pangasinan din ay mahalagang bahagi ng Cyber Corridor dahil napakarami ang inyong mga magagaling na kolehiyo. And I want to congratulate the people of Dagupan and Pangasinan for your excellent tradition of academic excellence.

Itong North Luzon agri-business quadrangle, ang kanyang pinakamalaking proyekto ay narito rin sa Pangasinan, yung Agno River Irrigation Project, ang halaga nito ay five billion pesos. At gusto ko rin ikuwento hindi lamang yon ang irrigation project sa Pangasinan meron ding ibat-ibang mga maliliit na irrigation project na humahalaga ng — there are 35 other irrigation projects — na humahalaga rin ng 354 million pesos. Papano natin napopondohan ito, papano natin napopondohan yung mga binanggit ko sa aking State of the Nation Address? Salamat, Joe, sa aking super ally, sa iyong liderato at suporta kaya mayroon tayong budget para dito sa mga malalaking proyekto na kailangan sa kaunlaran ng North Luzon agri-business quadrangle at buong Pilipinas.

Yung Medium-Term Public Investment natin over the rest of my term as president... Ah, hindi. Yung budget lang natin for year 2007 is more than one trillion pesos. And that is the economic dividend of the greatest fiscal reforms of our generation, achieved under the great leadership and support of the beloved son of Dagupan, Joe de Venecia and our other congressmen represented here today by Gener and Madz.

Nagbubunga na ang ating mahihirap na reporma sa ekonomiya at pananalapi ng bayan. And we not only successfully sourced funds for our programs, we also gained international confidence and support for current and future projects. And I am very very grateful to the government of Japan because they have more projects like this lined up for our Philippine future.

Noong isang linggo lamang nakatanggap tayo ng mahigit pitong bilyong dolyar na commitment ng Hapon, Tsina, World Bank at Asian Development Bank para pondohan yung ating mga super region kasama ang North Luzon agri-business quadrangle.

And while I thank the congressmen, I think I'd like to say also that I am happy that our senators heed well the voice of the people in suspending the investigation of the OWWA funds that after all had been certified by the COA as intact and readily available. Our OFWs stranded in Lebanon have to be served with our undivided attention until they are all rescued. Meanwhile, other national priorities have to be attended to.

Now for instance, we promote agri-business and commerce more aggressively through more and better infrastructure projects not only to the Pantal bridge, not only to Redios-Dagupan diversion but other major roads and bridges. At ito ang papel ng Pantal bridge. But aside from that, we also need other roads.

Every month we are allocating 500 million for farm-to-market roads all over the country — 200 million pesos are for the North Luzon agri-business quadrangle; 200 million para sa Mindanao; 50 million para sa mga ilang sasakahan ng Luzon Urban Beltway; at 50 million para sa Central Philippines.

Dito lang sa Pangasinan meron nang inapprove ng Regional Development Council ng labing anim na farm-to-market road amounting to 25 million pesos and counting. Sa buong Pilipinas naman, pinapalaki natin ang gastos ng mga serbisyong panlipunan gaya ng kalusugan, edukasyon, lalo na ang edukasyon sa Cyber Corridor kung saan ang Pangasinan ay isang malaking- malaking bahagi.

Our reforms are taking root and our growth is irreversible. Ang inyong pamahalaan ay nakatukoy sa kaunlaran.

Suporta-an tayon amin sirin so reporma ya mangiter na malakas tan progresibo ya Pilipinas.

Congratulations! Joe for this bridge. Thank you Ambassador Yamazaki.

Balbaleg ya salamat ed sikayon amin.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Groundbreaking Ceremony of the Pantal Bridge. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212219/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2887&Itemid=38

Keynote Speech of President Arroyo on the occasion of ABAC's 10th anniversary

Keynote Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the occasion of ABAC's 10th anniversary

[Delivered in Cebu City, August 12, 2006]

Happy 10th anniversary to ABAC! Your jubilee comes at an exciting time in a dynamic world. The Philippines is moving in the right direction. The ASEAN regional community moves closer every passing day to meaningful integration. East Asia is consolidating along shared ideals of trade and security.

You are the leaders who translate these trends into actual transactions. In the era of rapid globalization. Or as Tom Friedman calls it, the flat earth, the role of the marketplace and the private sector is most influential in moving the nations of the world towards integration.

The course I have charted for the Philippines is based on market-driven economics, private enterprise and a desire for full, equitable participation of our country, our private sector and our people in the global economy. It will take the private sector, both domestic and foreign, working together with government, to create the jobs we need to build a strong middle class and a modern, first world nation.

We have been a strong, vocal and visible player on the regional and international stage. I have wanted to restore the place of the Philippines in the region and the world. I believe we have done so. We are not shy about global engagement. It enhances our national security and improves our economic performance and competitiveness.

Central to global engagement is our membership in ASEAN. More and more, Philippine foreign policy decisions are made in the context of ASEAN.

I am proud to say that the Philippines is the Chair of ASEAN this year and host to the East Asian Summit in December. This underscores our commitment that it is in the interest of the Philippines to be regionally and globally engaged politically, economically and diplomatically.

ASEAN has provided important lessons in regional interaction, namely the importance of sensible and peaceful management of inter-state disputes, and the value of a partnership between government and business. ASEAN brought this culture of consensus to APEC.

By fostering, through dialogue and mutual reinforcement, the notion that liberalization and facilitation, supported by capacity building, are keys to economic prosperity, APEC members have undertaken voluntary actions to free their markets from restrictions. This has resulted in unprecedented trade expansion.

For the Philippines, APEC still provides the ideal forum for managing and enhancing our trans-Pacific engagement. We will continue to support the attainment of the Bogor Goals. We will work to enhance the capacity-building aspects of APEC. We will use APEC as the primary vehicle for promoting greater ease of doing business in the region.

Trans-Pacific political and economic engagement will remain an important part of our foreign policy agenda. The United States, China and Japan and their relationships will be the determining influence in the security situation and economic evolution of East Asia.

Although I see APEC continuing to play a crucial role in promoting regional economic cooperation, new realities have emerged that require pragmatic responses. The first reality involves the rise of China, India's awakening and the deepening of economic interaction within the region.

The second reality is the trans-boundary nature of the growing threats to human security in the region from terrorism, epidemics and natural disasters and to the security of supply for resources particularly energy and minerals.

We cannot deal with the threats alone. We must work with other countries and international institutions if we are determined to successfully address and eliminate them.

By pushing for a convention on counterterrorism, we will advance teamwork in the fight against evil. By engaging our neighboring region the Shanghai Cooperation Council nations we will widen our reach.

Our leadership in ASEAN this year carries the theme of "One Caring and Sharing Community."

We will push for initiatives that will make ASEAN a shining institution that cares for its peoples, for its environment, and one that truly shares resources for uplifting the disadvantaged, integrating the marginalized and realizing the common good.

Energy security has clearly assumed grave importance.

While difficult in the near term, particularly for the poor, the high price of energy is actually an opportunity that we have seized in order to take our energy future into our own hands. We have declared a war of independence from oil, and aspire to be like Brazil, becoming self-sufficient in bio-fuels within a decade.

I draw my inspiration for this initiative from our experience in the development of the use of bio-fuels, specifically of ethanol.

Parked right outside this conference room is a vehicle that uses this technology. The Ford Focus Flexi-car has an engine that can run either on conventional gasoline or on gasoline blended with ethanol. Ford will be producing such engines here in the Philippines.

This is the future of commerce and this is the future of our self-reliance on alternative fuels like thermal, wind and solar. In the meantime, we have clamped down on price gouging and have secured a steady supply of fuel for our people.

We must rally our region to the cause of energy independence. The proposed East Asian Summit initiative on renewable and alternative energy development will require true public-private partnership, where we Governments create an environment conducive for the private sector to develop and invest in renewable and alternative sources of energy.

Another development that has profound implications on all participants to the East Asia Summit and one that will require us to draw up a collective response is the suspension of the Doha Round negotiations and the increasing likelihood that it will end in failure.

The economy makes the world go round; politics increasingly makes the world stop, as the WTO debacle has shown, and as a possible escalation of the Middle East crisis might likewise demonstrate.

The people in this room will do more for peace by tearing down economic barriers through the dynamism of the marketplace.

I cannot over emphasize the role that you the business sector must play. A great deal of work still needs to be done. The time for the meat of the work is now, on your tenth anniversary. Welcome to the Philippines!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Keynote Speech on the Occasion of ABAC's 10th Anniversary. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212158/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2882&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 22nd anniversary overnight celebration of El Shaddai – DWXI Prayer Partnerships Foundation International, Inc. and birthday celebration of Brother Mike Velarde [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa magdamagang pagdiriwang ng ika-22 na anibersaryo ng El Shaddai – DWXI Prayer Partnerships Foundation International, Inc. at pagdiriwang ng kaarawan ni Kapatid Mike Velarde

[Ipinahayag sa Quirino Grandstand, Rizal Park, Manila, ika 19 ng Agosto, 2006]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Brother Mike Velarde at sa napakaraming panauhin na pumunta ngayong gabi para magbati kay Brother Mike. Hindi ko na babanggitin lahat kung hindi mauubos ang panahon na binigay ni Brother Mike para makibati. Pero sa ating lahat, Happy 22nd Anniversary. at siyempre bukod doon, sa ating servant leader, kay Brother Mike — happy, happy birthday!

Mga kapatid, sabi nga ni Brother Mike sa tuwi-tuwina ako’y narito, sa 22 years ng El Shaddai ito ay 15th year ko na na magkasama tayo. Kaya ako’y nagpapasalamat sa lahat ng mga biyaya at pagbasbas na binigay ng Panginoon sa akin gaya ng binibigay niya sa inyong lahat, sa lahat ng anak ni Yahweh El Shaddai.

At maraming nagtatanong kapag nakikita nila ‘yung napakaraming tao parati. Ano ang staying power ng El Shaddai? Ano ang staying power ni Brother Mike? Sa labing-limang taon na ako ay nakasama na ninyo parati sa mga gawain, siguro masasabi ko, nauunawaan ko na ‘yon dahil na rin sa mga inspirasyon na dumadating sa ating lahat kapag tayo ay nanalangin. Sabi nga ni Brother Mike noong araw, noong hindi pa ako Pangulo, ay nandiyan ako sa harap madalas kaysa doon sa likod kasi nakikita ko ‘yung mukha ni Brother Mike pag siya ay nagsasalita.

At minsan, I think mga sampung taon nakaraan nandiyan ako sa harap, 1996, kasama ng aking mga kaklase sa eskuwela na manalangin, ‘yung mga mahilig manalangin. At isa doon sa aking madasalin na kaklase, nung si Brother Mike ay nagsasalita, binulong niya sa akin, sabi niya, “talagang si Brother Mike ay annointed.” ‘yan ang palagay ko dahilan ng staying power ng prayer partners ng Yahweh El Shaddai. Sa madaling salita, nanggagaling sa Panginoon ang pagbasbas sa prayer partners ng Yahweh El Shaddai.

Ngunit ‘yung mga annointed, ‘yung annointment ay tumatagal hanggang lamang sila ay may covenant sa Panginoon. At ngayong gabi, sabi ni Brother Mike, ang simbolo, ang logo ng ating pagdiriwang ay ‘yung rainbow. At ‘yung rainbow ay unang lumabas sa ating mga istorya sa bibliya matapos ‘yung great flood bilang sagisag ng covenant ng Panginoon sa katauhang sumusunod sa kanya. Kaya ‘yung rainbow natin — ayan, nandiyan sa likod natin ngayong gabi — ay ang dahilan sa staying power ng El Shaddai prayer partners dahil nananatili sa covenant sa Panginoon.

Kinuwento ni Sister Belen sa akin kanina na noong lumipat ang mga gawain mula sa PICC doon sa Parañaque, nagkaroon din ng rainbow sa unang gawain. Talagang binigyan ng senyas na tuloy pa rin ang covenant, ang annointment, ang pagdadasal ng mga anak ni Yahweh El Shaddai.

Kaya naman ang inyong lingkod ay madalas humihingi ng payo kay Brother Mike dahil magandang humingi ng payo sa mga annointed at ang parating pinapayo ni Brother Mike sa akin anuman ang ibang sasabihin niya meron parating kasamang payo — reconciliation.

Kaya ngayong gabi, noong sinabi ni Brother Mike itaas ang dalawang kamay at hingiin sa Panginoon kung ano ang gusto mo, ang aking hiningi — reconciliation. Para sa ganun, ang ating anibersaryo ay parating babasbasan ng Panginoon at ang lahat ng kaarawan ni Brother Mike ay parating basbasan din ng Panginoon.

Muli, sa ating lahat, Happy 22nd Anniversary at happy, happy birthday! Sa ating servant leader Brother Mike.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the 22nd Anniversary Overnight Celebration of El Shaddai – DWXI Prayer Partnerships Foundation International, Inc. and Birthday Celebration of Brother Mike Velarde. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212148/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2881&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the wreath laying ceremony and program in commemoration of the 23rd Death Anniversary of Benigno “Ninoy” Aquino, Jr.

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the wreath laying ceremony and program in commemoration of the 23rd Death Anniversary of Benigno “Ninoy” Aquino, Jr.

[Delivered at the Ninoy Aquino Monument, P. Burgos cor. Roxas Blvd., Manila, August 21, 2006]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Mayor Lito Atienza at lahat ng namumuno, mamamayan at kabataan ng Maynila. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Binabati rin natin ang mga kapatid ng ating bayani, si Ninoy Aquino, sa pamumuno ni Congressman Butch Aquino, ni Former Senator Tessie Aquino, ni Paul Aquino, ni Lupita Aquino-Kashiwahara at saka ni Maur Aquino Lichauco.

Binabati natin ‘yung EDSA People Power Commission sa pamumuno ni Ed Ermita at ni Brother Rolando Dizon. Ganun din si Bert Romulo, si Toting Bunye, si Sonny Alvarez at ‘yung iba pang mga Cabinet member at kasapi ng ating administrasyon.

Binabati natin ‘yung mga kasamahan ni Ninoy sa kaniyang pakikibaka, nandiyan si Reli German at ‘yung ibang narito na napakarami ang dumalo ngayon, hindi ko na babanggitin lahat ng pangalan nila.

Batiin natin ‘yung spirit of EDSA sa pamumuno ni Cris Carreon at saka ‘yung nag-aalaga ng pangalan ni Ninoy sa ating kasaysayan, ang National Historical Commission sa pamumuno ni Executive Director Badoy.

Sa inyong lahat, mga humahanga kay Ninoy, mga susunod na henerasyon ng Maynila at Pilipinas, karangalan kong makidalo kasama ninyong lahat sa anibersaryo ng kamatayan ng ating bayani si Ninoy Aquino sa pamamagitan ng pagdala ng bulaklak sa kanyang dambana at pagkatapos magtanim ng yellow fire tree dito sa Maynila para mas lalong mabuhay ang Maynila at hindi lamang ang demokrasya.

Itong araw na ito, sinisimulaan din natin ang “Greening of Manila” ni Mayor Lito Atienza at mga kabataan ng Maynila. Di ba kayo ang magtatanim ng puno sa buong Maynila? Ito ay tugmang-tugma, tugmang-tugma sa inyong kinabukasan, tugmang-tugma rin sa bagong berdeng Pilipinas na inilulunsad ng pambansang pamahalaan kasama rin ng susunod na henerasyon.

Kasi kung gusto natin na maging first world ang ating bansa sa 2020, sa panahon ng susunod na henerasyon, yung henerasyong ipinagbaka ni Ninoy Aquino, kailangan ang higit na atensyon sa ating likas na kapaligiran at siguraduhin ninyo mga kabataan, palaguin natin at hindi lamang ubusin ang ating mga likas yaman.

Isa pang tanda ng modernong bansa na gusto maging first world ay katarungang panlipunan at karapatang pantao. Dahil itong araw na ito, naaalala natin na si Ninoy Aquino ay nagbuwis ng kaniyang buhay upang bumalik ang demokrasya. Si Ninoy Aquino ang pinaka-kilalang biktima ng political killing, at hanggang ngayon hindi pa natin alam kung sino ang mastermind ng pagpaslang kay Ninoy Aquino. Dapat lang hindi natin balewalain ang kaniyang sakripisyo.

Democracy in the Philippines will not stand for senseless political killings. Every man and woman in our country is entitled to speak, free from fear that they will pay for their beliefs with their very life. Whether you are a journalist or political activist, of the left or the right, it is the obligation of the government and indeed the entire nation to protect the rights and liberties of every citizen.

At kayo bilang mga tagahanga, tagahanga ni Ninoy Aquino — Thank you — bilang mga tagahanga ni Ninoy Aquino kaya tayo ay narito, mga nag-gugunita ng pagka-martir ni Ninoy Aquino na nakibaka para sa susunod na henerasyon. You know that for too long there has been a culture of violence in our political process. For years, political disputes have been settled looking down the barrel of a gun.

A week ago, I announced that I was going to appoint a Former Supreme Court Justice to investigate the recent political killings. Today, in honor of the great victim of political killings, Ninoy Aquino, I am announcing that Former Supreme Court Justice Jose Melo will lead an investigative group imbued with wide power and a sweeping mandate for its members to put murderers behind bars and break this cycle of violence once and for all.

We've been making progress in bringing these cases to court and putting the killers behind bars, but I've been impatient, we've been impatient with the pace. That is why we took the step of appointing Melo. He will be joined by NBI Director Nestor Mantaring and Chief State Prosecutor Jovencio Zuño and members of civil society including Bishop Camilo Gregorio of the catholic church and Rogelio Vinluan as senior counsel and Nelia Gonzalez in the legal and academic community.

I have directed Melo to prioritize and focus investigation of media and activist killings; to be the government's sole voice on the issue; and to make a report to me outlining its actions and policy recommendations including appropriate prosecution and legislative proposals, if any, aimed at eradicating the root causes of extra judicial killings and breaking the cycle of violence once and for all.

I have directed him to leave no stone unturned in their pursuit of justice. I want them to pursue every lead down every path. The victims and their families deserve justice to be served; the Filipino people for whom Ninoy died fighting for democracy deserve a democracy they can trust.

It's time that the culture of political retribution stop. I hope that this special investigative commission will not only solve the killings before us today, but will propose permanent remedies to change this culture.

Ipagpatuloy natin ang sigla ng demokrasyang pinagbuwisan ng dugo, pawis at buhay ng ating magigiting na bayani tulad ni Ninoy. Sa ganitong paraan, hindi mauwi sa wala ang sakripisyong inialay ni Ninoy para sa atin at sa bayan.

Sana ay tularan si Ninoy ng maraming magmalasakit para sa mahal nating bayan, lalung-lalo na ang ating susunod na henerasyon, ang kabataan ng Maynila at ng buong Pilipinas.

Mabuhay si Ninoy! Mabuhay ang Maynila! Mabuhay ang berdeng Pilipinas!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Wreath Laying Ceremony and Program in Commemoration of the 23rd Death Anniversary of Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino, Jr.. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212134/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2880&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on launching the People's I.D. Card

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On launching the People's I.D. Card

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, August 23, 2006]

LAUNCHING THE PEOPLE'S I.D. CARD

I'd like to let you know that we're launching the People's I.D. card. The purpose is to strengthen good governance, improve transparency, empower our citizenry, and give every Filipino faster access to dependable government services.

This card is part of the unified multi-purpose I.D. system or MU-ID forged by various government agencies from concept to implementation for the convenience and security of the public. We are now pilot testing the system to make it foolproof and remove any bugs in it.

This system fills the last mile in the gap between the people's needs and a streamlined government that serves those needs. As we continue to make government operations, system and procedures move faster and better, we shall integrate and harmonize existing I.D. systems in the different government agencies and government-owned-and-controlled corporations.

'Di ba mas maganda kung isa lang ang I.D. na ginagamit mo sa lahat ng transaksyon ng pamahalaan, keysa pumuputok ang wallet mo sa dami ng mga ID. na kailangan mo? That's the whole purpose of that.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the 18th National Convention of the National Prosecutors League of the Philippines (NPLP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 18th National Convention of the National Prosecutors League of the Philippines (NPLP)

[Delivered at the Waterfront Cebu City Hotel, Lahug District Cebu City, Cebu, August 25, 2006]

Thank you. Thank you very much.

Thank you very much, Secretary Gonzalez for your kind introduction.

Other members of the Department of Justice including Chief State Prosecutor Zuño; other members of the executive branch including Secretary Ace Durano, the cabinet officer for regional development of Region VII; Congressman Raul Del Mar, thank you very much for your tireless and excellent presiding over the impeachment proceedings.

I'd like to greet also chairperson of your league, Marilyn Cynthia Madamba- Luang, and the other officers and members of the prosecutors league; ladies and gentlemen.

Thank you for inviting me to be here with you today. You are important members of our society and government. Our prosecutors are working together and charting ways to further strengthen criminal justice and I am glad to join you not only today but to join you in this quest especially today that we face the challenge of putting extra-judicial killings to a full stop.

Democracy in the Philippines will not stand for senseless political killings. Every man and woman in our country is entitled to speak free from the fear that they will have to pay for their beliefs with their very lives.

And since Congressman Del Mar is here, I would like to thank the Filipino people for casting a vote of confidence in this administration through their duly elected representatives in the house. As the presidency is relieved of the heavy rush and burden of partisan politics, I'm grateful to all my supporters as I extend a sincere hand of reconciliation to my detractors based on the high principles of justice and the common welfare. The people have spoken and the message is clear, we must close ranks and face the most compelling demands of national stability and growth.

I call for a tearing down of partisan fences, a consolidation of voices, and a welding of national heart and will to fight poverty, stop conflict and heal the nation. Now is the time to act to sharpen executive focus, to sharpen in fact prosecution focus because you are indeed part of the executive branch to get the legislative mill on track and uphold the rule of law and democracy that holds together the nation and strengthen its sinews for the world of competition and the future of extreme challenges.

The nation is moving in the right direction. The economy is strong and growing, and the budget is under control for the first time in a long time.

The first phase of our economic turnaround plan was to stabilize our budget and spending and then secure increase revenue through better tax and customs collections, and through an increase in the value-added tax and other taxes. Thanks again to the good work of congress.

We achieved that goal. The nation is better for it although I have paid a political price in public opinion.

Phase two of our plan is to take advantage of our improved economic picture to finally make the long overdue investments in infrastructure, education and health care to name a few areas. The most sweeping element of this phase is to restructure our economy to bolster the natural advantages of five distinct regions of the country.

In this region, the Central Visayas, the great economy, the driver of the economy will be tourism. And our Secretary of Tourism Ace Durano will move up from cabinet officer for regional development in Region VII to the super region champion in Region VII, VIII, VI, Palawan, Romblon and Bicol, which are part of the tourism central region of our country. And to take his place as CORD for Region VII will be Secretary Cerge Remonde who is also here with us today.

Finally, phase three of our national plan is turn our sights to truly joining the ranks of first world nations. We have a vision that we have shared and talked about — that we will take our place alongside other first world nations by 2020. This phase must be marked by increase attention on our natural environment and making sure we build up not just deplete our natural resources.

That's why this morning, we planted trees all over the archipelago. The biggest number of trees planted at one time in the history of the world. We will probably make the guinness book of records for that.

And more good news. After the tree planting ceremony, I received the news that the oil tanker that sunk off the coast of Guimaras has been located.

I'm deeply concerned over the mounting health hazards in the communities affected by the oil's leak. And I am ordering a meticulous and rapid assessment of the situation by the health authorities followed by prompt and sustained actions. Mobile hospitals will be set up and evacuation procedures will be undertaken as necessary to ease suffering and save lives. I call upon Petron and the ship owner to immediately clean up the mess, and our Task Force Guimaras headed by Secretary Nonong Cruz, Environment Secretary Reyes, Health Secretary Duque, Transportation Secretary Mendoza and Social Welfare Secretary Cabral and Coast Guard Admiral Gosingan to attend to environmental and health issues.

There is a need for human hair and chicken feathers to absorb that oil. And as for that need, I am instructing the task force to work with the private sector including the media and the maritime industry to put up drop off centers all over the country. And ensure speedy transport and deployment in the affected area.

I am declaring the Guimaras oil spill as a national calamity that demands the cooperation and solidarity of all Filipinos. Let us do what has to be done first and deal with the blame later.

Another hallmark of a modern first world nation is justice and human rights.

At about 3:15 yesterday afternoon, a shooting incident happened inside the Tropical Hut hamburger store located along General Romulo Avenue near corner Aurora Boulevard in Cubao. When assailants armed with handguns shot Attorney Rodolfo Paglinawan in the head causing his instantaneous death.

Now, who is Attorney Paglinawan? The victim was allegedly the legal adviser of Nagkakaisang Samahan ng Purefoods Hormel in Marikina City. One of the assailants was apprehended by responding policemen and security guards of Araneta Center, Capitol Pawnshop and the Barangay traffic aides of Quezon City. The arrested suspect was identified as Jeff Rafanan Alias Louie, an alleged member of the Rogelio Laurente Command of the Partido Marxist- Leninist ng Pilipinas. Now I hope they will not blame again the military or the police for this killing. When initially investigated, the suspect claimed that the victim was just collecting money from the labor union, but nothing happened to their labor cases. Well, that's the investigation. But at the end of the day, the prosecution and the conviction will lie in your hands.

I ask our prosecutors to be squarely behind me in the fight, in this fight against hideous elements challenging our political stability.

Last Monday, I announced that former Supreme Court Justice Melo will lead an investigative group to put political murderers behind bars and break this cycle of violence. One of the members of that five-person commission is no other than our Chief State Prosecutor Jovencio Zuño.

The work of the commission, as far as the pursuit of justice is concerned, will be investigative. It will also recommend administrative policies and legislation, but the prosecution will be left to Chief State Prosecutor Zuño and all of you wherever the crime may have happened. And therefore the fight for justice will last beyond the life of the commission.

Meanwhile, I will continue to look after the needs of our prosecutors. As Chief State Prosecutor Zuño has said, our battle cry is Republic Act 9279 that grants additional compensation in the form of special allowances for members of the national prosecution service and state counsels in the Department of Justice.

In addition to Republic Act 9279, two weeks ago, I released 50 million pesos to augment the prosecution of graft, tax evasion, smuggling cases and rebellion cases. And you might have heard about the U.S. Millennium Challenge Account of one billion pesos to help us fight graft and corruption. Again, that is for technology, for investigation and for prosecution.

You have much work to do but we are providing you with resources to be able to do that work better.

To the upcoming new set of officers, my advance congratulations! I hope that you will pursue your association's goal with great vigor because the country needs you. Congratulations!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the 18th National Convention of the National Prosecutors League of the Philippines (NPLP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212114/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2877&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on the briefing of “Making Things Happen”

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the briefing of “Making Things Happen”

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Dusit Hotel, Makati City, September 5, 2006]

MAKING THINGS HAPPEN

As we have seen earlier the theme of this briefing is “Making Things Happen” And I would like to emphasize that our economic team has indeed been working hard to make good things happen in the Philippines. Congratulations to them!

And I’m pleased to join you today. It’s appropriate that we mark a successful half-year of economic performance with the people who have been a key part of that success. Congratulations too to all of you!

When I assumed office as president in 2001, I committed our administration to an economic plan that would lay the foundation for building prosperity for the greatest number of our people.

Today, despite the challenge posed by soaring oil prices we have made significant progress towards achieving that economic goal. We have much work to do, but it’s clear that progress is being made. The economic indicators that you have seen in the presentation, and that the members of the economic team will discuss with you today underscore the success of our policy—the deficit is down, the stock market is up, and the peso is strong.

And for the first time in many years, we’re paying less in interest on our debt while bringing in more tax revenue, freeing up capital to invest in vital infrastructure and human needs to increase the quality of life for our hardworking Filipinos here at home. Foreign investment levels are helping us to create thousands... Hundreds of thousands of new better paying jobs.

There was a political price to pay for forging ahead with this long overdue economic reforms, but I’m content to see my popularity go down as long as the nation’s fortunes rise as a result of this positive economic reforms.

And let me be clear—these reforms will continue.

The first phase of our economic turnaround plan was to stabilize our budget and spending and then secure increased revenue through better tax and customs collection and through an increase in the value-added and other taxes. These were painful but necessary steps, and the performance of our economy validates these actions.

Phase two of our plan is to take advantage of our improved economic environment to strengthen the competitiveness of the Philippines—we’re well into this phase. The most significant part of this phase is to restructure our economy to strengthen the natural advantages of five distinct regions of the country. These super regions need building up to create opportunity across the country because as I’ve said before our country is too Manila focused in its politics and its economic wealth.

We genuinely need to lift up the entire country and not rely on trickle down economics from Manila to do the job. We’re making progress, but much more remains to be done. Our success in extending economic gains to all corners of our country lies in creating the national infrastructure we need to help us lower costs, increase productivity and better compete for the increased levels of foreign investment we need to drive economic growth and create well-paying jobs.

In our Medium-Term Public Investment Program more than two trillion pesos will be invested by the national government, the government-owned-and-controlled corporations, the government financial institutions, the local governments and the private sector B-O-T investors in roads, railways, sea ports, airports and other infrastructure over the period 2006 to 2010. These are investments in competitiveness.

But economic development is not just about roads and railways, it's also about providing people with right incentives and opportunities to be entrepreneurs or well-paid workers and get the education and training they need for the career they want. Our improved fiscal position has provided us a boost in funding for science and technology, education and training that will produce a skilled workforce suited to the opportunities that are being created in our national economy.

During the first half of this year new revenues from the VAT and other tax reforms were invested in new school buildings, new text books and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators.

While we remain thankful for the contributions of our overseas Filipino workers, I'm pleased to see that our economic growth is broad-based with significant contributions being made by the services sector, agriculture and exports. In the services sector over the last five years, we have created 200,000 new BPO jobs and our focus now turns to growing this important industry in which our nation is globally competitive. Agriculture and the exports sector will benefit greatly and become more competitive from our investments in new infrastructure.

Today, we acknowledge the results of our economic plan—steady economic growth, rising imports and related exports, a strong stock market and peso, higher revenues and a lower deficit. But we also acknowledge the need to continue the economic reforms that have produced these positive results.

We will continue our policy of prudent economic management.

Our revenues will continue to rise and our economic managers are determined that the budget will be in balance by the end of 2008.

We will continue to invest responsibly in the infrastructure that will boost our international competitiveness, attract job creating investments, and deliver social services that will improve the quality of the people's lives.

Only a strong economy will reduce poverty and expand our middle class. Progress is being made and our economic managers today will expound on that theme.

To all of you, thank you and thank you for being part of the progress that we are making.

Maraming salamat.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo on ICT in Education

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On ICT in Education

[Delivered at the Waterfront Cebu City Hotel, Cebu City, September 6, 2006]

ICT IN EDUCATION: THE WAVE OF THE FUTURE

ICT is the wave of the future. The foundation of tomorrow's economic development.

It's the provider of jobs to millions of Filipinos from constructing cell sites, manufacturing microchips, manning computer dependent industries, working at BPOs to small entrepreneurs, operating cyber cafes or selling mobile phones and internet cards.

The computer has changed the way we look at the world, the way we use information, the way we work, the way we play.

In 2001, with my State of the Nation Address, we started with small realizable goals—high-speed interconnectivity at cost affordable to the public, more efficiency among service providers, and technologies for multimedia convergence. In three year's time, by 2004, and despite limited resources, we were able to link the whole country even as we started bolstering efficiency in math, science and English. Yes, English it did. And thank you Jesli for your very strong pronouncement about English as the medium of instruction.

Yes, English. Because we must engage the world to bring the benefits of global engagement home at a time of Philippine economic vibrance, at a time of increase in our gross international reserves to an unprecedented 22 billion u.s. dollars due to strong exports and remittances. Balance of payments forecast to hit two billion dollars from the original 1.6 billion- dollar target; 15 percent increase in OFW remittances; 14 percent increase of foreign exchange reserves; the peso hitting a fresh four-year high; and stocks rising to a three-month high and easing inflation to a lowest level in two years.

Those are macro figures. Let's go down to some micro anecdotes.

In the town of Panamao in Sulu, that used to be the lair of rebels, cell sites have risen. The major islands of Tawi-Tawi now have access to internet. The Philippine Cyber Corridor stretching from Baguio through Cebu—where we are very appropriately—to Davao, runs along a digital backbone that carries ICT services to every municipality.

And let us thank the House of Representatives for approving the bill promoting the use of voice over the internet protocol or VOIP that will dramatically cut down the cost of telephone calls across continents and bring Filipinos closer to their loved ones abroad. Congratulations! Thank you, Nerisse.

When we started putting together the comprehensive plan for our digital highway in 2001, less than 2,000 people were employed in call centers. Today, five years later, over 200,000 are employed in BPOs and we expect their figure to grow to over one million by the end of this decade.

Our country is now identified as the second most preferred location for BPO operations in the world, next only to India. Semiconductors remain a top export and this sector continues to grow by 10 percent annually.

In my 2004 campaign, we articulated the goal of putting computer connectivity in every public high school. In compliance with this, we're working on increasing the number of internet-ready computers particularly in the most populous high schools. So if your high school is still not internet connected, please let Secretary Lapus know so that we can attend to it right away.

But we need more ICT-competent teachers. And I'm glad you're all here today. The DepEd and the commission for ICT are now crafting the National ICT Competency Standard for teachers or NICS, to be implemented in all public high schools. The majority of the public high school teachers should fulfill the requirements of the NICS by 2010.

Educational content can be dramatically increased with one keystroke. All of us must take in step to harness the force of ICT to advance the quality of education, the development of the Filipino youth and building a brighter future for the Filipino nation.

Educators, thank you for being here. Let us truly make our Philippine education system fit for the knowledge century of the new millennium.

Maraming salamat. Thank you to all.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo before the European Business Community

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Before the European Business Community

[Delivered at the Sheraton Park Lane, Piccadilly, London, United Kingdom, September 14, 2006]

THE SUNRISE INDUSTRY THAT IS BUSINESS PROCESS OUTSOURCING

Aggressive trade policy has been an important benchmark of our overall economic plan under my administration. And this policy is now bearing fruit: the peso is up, the markets are up, exports and imports are up, inflation is steady despite the high oil prices in the world market, and investments are up. In fact, the net portfolio inflows into the Philippines are more than double that of last year.

Most importantly, our poverty level is down and our income level is up. Our poverty level has been going down by one percentage point a year during my administration. And if this keeps up, we will be able to comply with our millennium development goals of reducing poverty by half in 2015 compared to year 2000.

When my administration took over in 2001, I knew that in addition to sending strong signals on trade, I needed to get our economic house in order. I inherited huge budget deficits, a bloated budget, a dysfunctional bureaucracy and the worst revenue collection in a very long time. I knew that I needed to make fundamental reforms that would help drive our credit ratings up to improve our cost of borrowing and invite investments. And we have done that through new taxes or higher taxes, improved collections and a crackdown on corruption.

As a result, many of our industries are booming, including electronics, agriculture, mining and outsourcing, to name a few. For instance, the outsourcing industry employed only a few hundred jobs when I came to office in 2001. Today, in large part due to the new business climate we have fostered, there are almost 200,000 new jobs in this space — 2,000 to 200,000 in a period of five years, turning the Philippines into one of the premier global outsourcing locations in the world. That's why I am in this BPO conference today to help promote the industry.

In my official trips I have taken the added task of being the main herald of world class excellence of the Philippines. I made it my mission for world class companies such as yours to meet world class talent from the Philippines because indeed the Philippines is recognized for its well-educated, English-speaking labor force. And this is a reputation we intend to maintain as our stronger fiscal position is making it possible to invest heavily in education and training for our young men and women.

Significant progress has been made in creating a better environment in which to do business in the Philippines. The government's economic reform program has placed the government's finances on sustainable footing and generated additional revenues for investment in infrastructure, which will lower costs and improve productivity for all businesses.

We will build on our past successes, and the modernization of our country will create excellent opportunities for ICT companies and entrepreneurs. As I said earlier, the Philippines is very well recognized for its well-educated, English-speaking labor force, a reputation we intend to maintain as our stronger fiscal position is making it possible to invest heavily in education and training for our young men and women.

I'm indeed very happy about the recognition of the Philippine labor force. And I would simply like to say that significant progress has been made in creating a better environment in which to do business in the Philippines.

The government's economic reform program has placed the government's finances on a sustainable footing and generated additional revenues for investment in infrastructure. And I would like to say that we are constantly striving to make our country more competitive for both domestic and foreign investors.

Late this month, there will be a national competitiveness summit in the Philippines that will bring together private sector participants, government officials and other key players such as the legal community, to look at how we can create a road map to make us even more competitive.

Our investor-friendly reforms include comprehensive measures to reduce bureaucratic red tape and streamline administrative procedures.

Some of you or many of you know the Philippines and I would like to address some of the issues that businessmen in Europe have been raising about the Philippines. For instance, we have a new international airport that has not opened for many years. And I would like to say that the new Manila international airport is a vital national asset that must be turned at long last to productive use. The government is determined to open the airport terminal as a matter of national interest.

We respect international law and contracts and expect to compensate the appropriate parties who did actual work in the construction of the project — that's not the issue. The issue is not whether we are willing to pay those who built the airport or not, the issue is that the terminal had been held hostage for so long by a very questionable transaction entered into before my administration at the expense of the public good. We look forward to a final resolution of this matter as soon as possible.

Last Monday, we paid the preferred price under our expropriation proceedings, and we have taken physical possession of the airport. And when the international technical evaluators tell us in October that the airport is ready technically for operation, and then we will proceed to open the airport.

And I hope this airport will bring about more convenient travel and more convenient trade.

Trade of course is not a panacea; it poses problems for developing countries that need to weather the onslaught of competition. But in the main, I aspire for the Philippines not only to abide by all trade deals, by all contracts, but also to initiate new opportunities where none exist.

Many of us are disappointed about the Doha Round. You're all businessmen even if you're in BPO or not in BPO, you're interested in the Doha Round. And though we're all disappointed about the apparent failure of the Doha Round, I would like to assure you that we in the Philippines are committed and remain committed to the WTO process. But we are not going to sit idly waiting for the recalcitrant nations to sort out their problems. Who are the recalcitrant nations? The whole big controversy is really between Europe and the United States. And as I've always said, when the elephants fight, the ants stay out of the way.

In the meantime, we, the smaller economies are moving on many fronts to propel our trade agenda. And as chair of ASEAN this year, we are taking the lead reinvigorating ASEAN as a trading bloc.

The competition in the next coming decades would be one for talent and training, particularly within the Asian region. Asia right now is being powered by several engines — India, China, Korea and the ASEAN region — all these economies will compete for talent from the region. The Philippines has significant advantage from the point of view of language, education and familiarity with western business processes. That's why so much of the world accounting is done in the Philippines.

Our economic reform program focuses and builds on some of our nation's strongest competitive advantages:

We have a 94 percent literacy rate. More than 400,000 people graduate from our schools every year with specializations in such areas as I.T., computer science, engineering, commerce, accounting and medical sciences.

We have passed vital legislation to establish a stable and effective regulatory environment for the ICT sector, including an e-commerce law and an intellectual property code.

We offer excellent international connectivity and an expanding multimedia infrastructure to support 24 by 7 operations.

The Philippine animation industry is a major supplier to Japanese, American, Australian and European companies. Many of the cartoons you see are done in the Philippines.

Contact centers are currently the fastest growing services in the Philippines. And medical transcription services are projected to grow by 80 percent in 2006 with the domestic transcription industry enjoying a strong reputation for the quality of its work.

You know our great nurses here, great quality work. They do as much quality work in the Philippines together with our doctors on medical transcriptions. And not only that, they do higher levels of transcription like for instance, there's a surgery ongoing somewhere, somewhere in the world on a path-breaking medical experiment and the doctor is talking, describing what he's doing in this very innovative, path-breaking surgery and a Filipino doctor in the Philippines is taking it all down and putting it in the appropriate language.

And while our strength in contact centers is well-established, we are now focusing on growing the higher value-added segment of the industry, including accounting. As I said earlier, I'm very happy that Shell, HSBC and so many British firms do all their accounting or most of their accounting in the Philippines, legal, human resources and administrative services as well.

So I encourage all of you to take a closer look at the ICT opportunities in the Philippines by attending our annual I.T. Conference E-services Philippines — that's what it's called — in 2007 to be held on February 15 and 16 next year.

Going back now to the Asian region and the context of doing business in the Philippines. While I was in Helsinki — because Prime Minister Koizumi was also in Helsinki — we took the advantage of signing the Japan-Philippines economic partnership agreement with the Japanese prime minister. And last year the Philippines signed the early harvest trade agreement with China. So we have these very important trade agreements. And not only trade agreements, in Japan we call it the economic partnership agreement because it's more than a trade agreement. It's an agreement not only for goods, it's also an agreement for services like health services, caregivers and entertainers, accountants too are coming up.

Given the strategic location of the Philippines as a logistics hub, we fully expect to benefit from the economic activity being generated by China. And I am confident that Asia with the surge in importance of China is going to play an increasingly important role in the world. One reason why I am in Europe meeting with European leaders is a reflection of the need for our respective regions to work more closely together. Nonetheless, the U.S. is and will remain a strong presence in the region, certainly for the Philippines as our number one trading partner.

The ASEAN regional community moves closer every passing day to meaningful integration. And so doing business in the Philippines is like doing business with China, with Japan, with the United States and with the ever integrating ASEAN region.

You are not just businessmen, you are Europeans. And I know that when Europeans think of ASEAN, they think even in the back of their minds, they think of Myanmar. And let me take this opportunity as chair of ASEAN to say a little bit about Myanmar. Even as ASEAN remains constructively engaged in Myanmar, we hope to see tangible progress in Myanmar's transition to democracy. We hope to see the early release of those placed under detention. We hope to see effective dialogue among all parties concerned. And this is a view, not just of the Philippines; this is a view in which the nine ASEAN countries are united.

As for the Philippines, because you are Europeans and human rights are so important to you, I would also like to convey that we have abolished the death penalty, the only country in the region to do so. You may have read some newspaper accounts from some NGO, human rights NGO about a spate of what we call extra-judicial killings. And I want to let you know again not just as European businessmen but as European citizens that I condemn in the harshest possible terms the indiscriminate killings of political activists and journalists.

No Filipino citizen regardless of political affiliation should have to pay for the right to free speech with their life. Unfortunately, this mode of political retribution has a sad history in our nation but I aim to stop it once and for all because the spate of killings has no place in a democracy or in our government.

I recently appointed a former Supreme Court justice of impeccable credentials, with the full powers of my office, to investigate and cause the prosecution of these killings to the full extent of the law. Just this morning, I asked for a meeting with the amnesty international, and I am very happy that they will help us to find experienced investigators who will help the independent commission do its investigations.

I am saying all these in a BPO conference because I think that a European businessman would like to look at the entire cultural environment in which he or she is doing business. And I would like to point out all these things to let you know that not only are we familiar with western accounting processes and other business processes, we are also very much in synch with you as far as the universal values of democracy and therefore of free enterprise are concern.

During my visits to Helsinki and Brussels, I asked Spain, Finland and Belgium to recommend members of the international NGO community to review the situation and our aggressive actions taking to end this specific kind of violence against political activists and media practitioners.

This issue, as important as it is, is just one of my many very positive discussions I've been having while in Europe. First and foremost, as what I'm doing here, I'm promoting the Philippines as a great place to do business. And the leaders of Europe are also very open to helping us resolve one of the greatest humanitarian issues in the Philippines today — the prospects for peace with our Muslim brothers in Mindanao.

For those of you who are not familiar with Mindanao, sometimes you may read about some fightings that have been happening — it's practically history. We have had a successful ceasefire for the last three years. So you may have read some old news but today there is peace in Mindanao, there is peace in the Philippines. And with the journalists and activists who have been the victims of killings, justice will be done to them. Under our judicial processes that also convey and hew very closely to the judicial processes of countries like the United Kingdom and the rest of Europe.

All in all, it's an exciting time to be in business in the Philippines because we have solved our budgetary problems, our deficit problems and therefore because of that we are able to get the confidence of the international business community

Of course, there remains much to do. And that is why I am very frank with you about the problems that we recognize and that we are working on. But all in all, our economic reform program, our tax reforms, the biggest reform in a generation, demonstrate our determination to make the Philippines a competitive investment location, in particular for sectors such as ICT.

And so ladies and gentlemen of the London, U.K. and European business community, I thank you for this opportunity. And I hope we will see each other in the Philippines. You only need to see us once because after that they can transact all our business on the internet.

Thank you.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo on the Golden Anniversary of the Gridiron

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the Golden Anniversary of the Gridiron

[Delivered at the Pandanggo Room, Manila Hotel, September 27, 2006]

THE PRESS AND OUR MORE HOPEFUL FUTURE

To roast the president in the gridiron is indeed a glorious occasion for the press. And I'm sure you would never get bored even if you did it everyday.

Congratulations! For 50 years of keeping up this traditional event.

After the laughter and poking fun, perhaps tomorrow we can see some reasonable headlines in the papers.

Roy is right. You have the power either to make the sun shine, figuratively speaking because the storm is coming tomorrow whatever happens tonight. Or you can have the power to make the stock market go down. That is how powerful the press is.

And as for the killings of journalists, I'm glad that you support the Melo Commission and I hope that you will continue to support the Melo Commission so that it would come out with meaningful results for you.

I'm counting on the press to help our people become more hopeful of their future because indeed there is much to be hopeful for. As our president of National Press Club earlier said, the economy is showing great signs of health, not only the strong peso, not only the good stock market, but the fact that at last our people will be enjoying a per capita income of 1,400 dollars this year.

And if what has been happening during the earlier years of our administration that the poverty level has been going down by one percent point every year, that means that by 2015, we will be able to reduce our poverty level to one-half of what it was in the year 2000 in accordance with our millennium development goals. And we will be able to reach our dream, because right now we're not third world anymore. At 1,400 dollars, we are now second world—a middle class country. And we'll be able to achieve if we continue the trajectory of one percent decline in the poverty level, we can reach hopefully first world status by the year 2020.

But much of it depends not only on government officials, not only on the business community that creates jobs, not only on the hardworking Filipinos that create wealth, but also on the powerful media—one of the most powerful media and one of the freest presses in the whole world. Because if the military has the power to topple governments in other countries, in the Philippines that power belongs to the media. You have the power to make or break an economy. Because you are so powerful that your prophecies becomes self-fulfilling. And I hope that the friendship and goodwill of this fine evening will beckon us to gather around the nation's brighter future.

There is a saying that goes: “Those who can, do; those who cannot... Those who cannot do, teach or criticize.” On my part, I prefer to do the “doing” and I leave you to your good choices.

But let us always uphold fairness and justice, duty and responsibility.

I hear you well when you asked me for things that promote the freedom of the press. I hope you can hear me just as well when I ask you to promote the responsibility of the press.

Maraming salamat and happy golden anniversary to Gridiron!

Thank you.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the 58th Calbayog City Charter Day Anniversary Celebration Speech
of

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines

During the 58th Calbayog City Charter Day Anniversary Celebration

[Delivered at the Tiburcio Tancinco Memorial Institute of Science and Technology (TTMIST) Gymnasium,
Calbayog City, Western Samar, October 16, 2006]

Maraming, maraming salamat, Congressman Rey Uy sa iyong napakagandang pagpapakilala sa akin at salamat sa iyong suporta sa akin mula nung ikaw pa ay mayor ng Calbayog City at ako ay Senador pa, hanggang ngayon na ako ay presidente at ikaw ay congressman na. Maraming salamat sa iyong suporta.

Maraming salamat rin Mayor Mel Sarmiento sa iyong pag-imbata sa akin pumunta dito sa inyong Calbayog City Day at maraming salamat din sa iyong suporta sa akin kasama ng iba't-ibang mga local government officials sa ating bansa. At congratulations din sa iyong napakaraming mga premyo bilang outstanding city sa iba't-ibang mga bahagi ng kaunlaran.

Gusto ko ring batiin nandito lahat ng Congressmen ng Samar Island. Nandito rin hindi lamang si Congressman Rey Uy, ang ating host, kundi na rin si Congressman Kata Figueroa, maraming salamat sa 'yo narito at sa suporta; si Congressman Nonoy Libanan; at si Congressman Boy Abayon, mula sa Samar Del Norte, maraming salamat kayo ay narito lahat.

At nandito rin ang gobernador ng Eastern Samar na parating tumutulong kasama ni Mayor Mel Sarmiento, si Governor Ben Evardone. Nandito sila lahat kaya nakakalito ang iba't-ibang puwesto. Nung araw si Rey Uy ay mayor, ngayon siya ang congressman kaya iba't-iba. Kung noon si Boy Abayon ay governor, ngayon siya ang congressman din kaya iba't-iba ang mga puwesto pero kilala ko na sila lahat noon pa. Kaya ang ganda-ganda ninyo... Nag reunion na ito ngayon sa fiesta ng Calbayog.

Hindi ko na babatiin iyung iba't-ibang mga official ng national government na kasama ko ngayon. Nabati na ng ating mga previous speakers kaya sa kanilang lahat salamat na sumama dito sa ating pagdiriwang at sa inyong lahat happy anniversary Calbayog!

Gusto ko ring ulitin muli sa ating mga hosts: kay Congressman Uy, kay Mayor Sarmiento, kay Vice Mayor Aquino, lahat ng SB members, hindi lamang sa inyong imbitasyon kundi na rin sa inyong suporta. At yung narito lahat na mga congressmen ng Samar Island, anong ibig sabihin noon? Sang-ayon sila doon sa sinabi ni Mayor Mel Sarmiento kanina na sana dito sa Samar pag nag-iisip tayo ng kaunlaran, hindi Western Samar, hindi Eastern Samar, hindi Northern Samar, kundi — "Samar: One island; One culture."

Gusto ko ring batiin si Monsignor Marceling Rosales, so nice to see you Monsignor. Almost 100 years old na si Monsignor, pero ang talas- talas pa rin ng isip. I'm so happy to see you. Matagal ko na siyang kilala, ako ay batang maliit pa. Kaya ang sarap makasama dito. Matagal na tayong magkakilala. Gaya nang sabi ni Congressman Uy, ako ay nagpunta na dito sa eskuwelang ito at nagpupunta ako dito nung ako pa ay senador, nung siya ay mayor pa. At ngayon parang ang saya-saya puwede tayong magkuwentuhan sa ating pagdiriwang ng anibersaryo ng Calbayog. Ano ang gusto kong ikuwento sa inyo? Tungkol sa ating mga balak para sa Calbayog City.

Ang Calbayog City ay bahagi nang tinatawag nating Central Philippines. Kasi kung sinabi ni Mel huwag ng North Samar, East Samar, West Samar, politically okay. Pero, economically, one Samar lang. Ganun din ang Pilipinas. Politically, meron tayong Region 8, meron tayong Region 4-B, meron tayong Region 6, meron tayong Region 7. Pero sa economics isa lang lahat yon — Central Philippines. 'Yon ang bahagi sa mga binuo nating super region, isa lang na ekonomiya yon. Binuo natin bilang isa hindi sa pulitika kundi sa ekonomiya. Tuloy pa rin yung RDC ng Region 8, tuloy pa rin yung RDC ng Region 7, ng Region 4-B, ng Region 6. Pero ang ekonomiya isa lang — para patatagin ang kakayahan o competitiveness ng bawat bahagi ng Pilipinas. Kailangan kasi mag-isip tayo kung ano ang gagawin natin para lumakas ang ekonomiya.

Naalala ko noong unang punta ako rito. Hindi lamang itong socio-cultural center na ating ipinangako, nagkasundo rin tayo noon na ayusin ang packaging ng inyong mga tinapa dito sa Calbayog City. At sa ating kasunduan, sa ating pakikipag-ugnay parati natupad ito kaya hindi ba ang sigla-sigla ng pangangalakal ng smoked fish ninyo ngayon? Ngayon, pati bangus ginagawa ng smoked fish sa dami ng order kasi gumanda ang packaging ng Calbayog City. Kung ano ang nagagawa sa isang siyudad ganun din ang buong bansa. May likas na produkto pero gumagawa tayo ng mga patakaran na nagpapalakas, ganun din ang ekonomiya ng bansa. Sa bansa ang kinailangan nating gawin ay reporma sa kaban ng bansa — yung tax reforms. Kaya salamat muli Rey Uy, salamat muli Kata Figueroa, salamat muli Nonoy Libanan, salamat muli Boy Abayon dahil tinulungan niyo ako ginawa ninyo yung mga reporma sa kaban ng bansa kaya ngayon sumisigla ang ekonomiya.

We welcome the reports that the Philippines could be due for a credit rating upgrade by Moody's. Fiscal discipline is winning the day for the Philippines. And we urge the Senate — kasi ang galing-galing ng mga congressmen natin dito — we urge the Senate to speed up the deliberations on the budget. Salamat nga pala mga congressmen dahil alas kuwatro ng umaga ninyo ipinasa yung budget.

Now, we urge the senate to speed up the work on the budget so that we can show the world our determination to keep the banner of reforms up and the drag of politics down. Pumalakpak ako ng husto nung sinabi ni Congressman Uy na dapat hindi natin hinahayaan ang paninirang pulitika na maging sagabal sa ating kaunlaran.

The budget not only defines our development agenda but signifies the payback to the people of our tough economic reforms. Alam ba ninyo for the first time in many, many years, itong budget ng 2007 mas malaki ang mapupunta sa social services kaysa sa mapupunta sa pambayad ng utang. Itong budget na ito, this is a matter of national interest that can no longer be delayed as the train of popular expectation is waiting to travel onward. Binanggit ko yung waiting to travel onward. Travel — 'yon naman ngayon, kung pinag-usapan natin noon yung tinapa, pag-usapan natin ngayon ang travel. 'Yon ang pagkasunduan natin ngayon tungkol sa Calbayog City.

Alam ba ninyo na sa almost three million na tourists na pumupunta sa Pilipinas ngayon — hindi ba almost three million? — mahigit isang milyon at kalahati or mahigit kalahati na mga turistang nagbibiyahen sa Pilipinas ay pumupunta sa Central Philippines, lalo na sa Boracay, Cebu, Bohol at Palawan. May kulang na probinsiya sa binanggit ko.

Naalala ko noong ako ay senador pa, kasi sabi nga ni Mayor Rey Uy, kung noong senador pa ako nagpupunta na ako dito, nagpunta ako dito kasama ng aking mga kaklase. Alam ni Gabby Claudio ito, kuwento ko parati sa kanya dahil siya ay tiga rito, tiga Catbalogan at Calbiga. Sabi nung kaklase ko nung dumadaan kami sa may dagat, ang ganda-ganda ng Samar, mas maganda kaysa doon sa ibang pulo, kaysa doon sa mga ilang lugar na popular na pinupuntahan ng mga turista. Bakit hindi sila pumupunta pa rito, bakit hindi pa nila nadidiskubre ang Samar? Yan ang noon pa pinag-aralan ko na, ano ba ang mga dahilan kung bakit hindi pa nadidiskubre ang Samar ng mga turista? Ang pinakadahilan ay yung larawan ng kapayapaan at katiwasayan. Doon sa kasaysayan ng Bohol, nung araw yung maraming turista sa Pilipinas ay Boracay, Palawan at Cebu, hindi pa kasama ang Bohol noon. Bago dumagsa ang turista sa Bohol, dinaog muna nila ang rebelyon sa kanayunan at ilang mga kabayanan nila. Palagay ko kung gusto nating puntahan din ang Samar na napakaraming turistang pumupunta sa Central Philippines, kailangan ganun din ang gawin natin dito sa Samar Island.

At isa pang kailangan, yung transportasyon. Palagay ko gusto niyo, I believe you want the city of Calbayog to be interconnected with other places efficiently, cost-effectively, conveniently and with sufficient frequency. Kaya sa inyong Charter Day celebration dalawa ang pagkasunduan natin na bagay — 'yung isa, ilapit natin ang Calbayog sa ibang mga lugar ng Central Philippines at pangalawa, sama-sama nating ibalik ang kapayapaan at katiwasayan sa siyudad at probinsiya.

Yung una, yung transportasyon, yung ilapit natin ang Samar sa iba't-ibang lugar na pinupuntahan na, kabilang sa mga proyektong gagawin natin ngayon para tumatag ang negosyo at turismo dito sa Samar. Kasi sabi nga ni

Congressman Rey Uy ang tatay ko ang nagtayo ng Calbayog port. Kaya tuloy yung PPA ay papalawakin ang Calbayog port. Maliban doon ay inyong lingkod ay nagtayo ng pangalawang Calbayog port. Ano'ng pangalan nuon? Manginoo. Yon. Ano ang espesyal sa port na yon? Ito ay Roll-On/Roll-Off ferry port, RO-RO port kagaya ng Allen. At itong port na ito ay ikokonekta natin sa mga port ng Biliran at saka sa mga port ng Masbate. Kaya sa ganun magiging sentro ng Roll-On/Roll-Off ferry ang Calbayog port. Kaya ngayon sasabihin ko sa tatay ko, pagdasal ko sa kanya sa November 1, "Tatay," sabi ko, "yung pantalan na itinayo ninyo doon sa Calbayog port may anak na rin."

Ang kabutihan nito ay... Hindi ba yung mga highway, yung mga expressway may mga interchange para lumipat from one highway to another? Itong Calbayog port na ito doon sa Manginoo ay gagawin nating interchange din. Kasi itong Calbayog nasa Maharlika Nautical Highway. Hindi ba ito yung unang-unang nautical highway, may RO-RO sa Allen, may RO-RO din sa Liloan.

Ngayon, ang inyong lingkod gumawa ng Central Nautical Highway at Western Nautical Highway — pero gumawa rin tayo ng Eastern Nautical Highway — yung Western Nautical Highway, yon alam na ng lahat kasi dinadaan nila yon eh from Batangas to Mindoro, to Baracay, to Panay, to Negros hanggang Dapitan o Dipolog. Pero gumagawa rin tayo ngayon ng Eastern at saka Central Nautical Highway. Yung Central — Cagayan de Oro, Camiguin, Bohol, Cebu, Masbate — so Central yon. Yung Eastern naman ay Surigao, tapos noon yung usual yung Liloan, Southern Leyte, Leyte, pero Biliran ang tuloy — yan ang Eastern. Kaya kung ang Calbayog ay konektado sa Biliran, konektado sa Masbate, 'di ang Calbayog nasa Maharlika Nautical Highway, nasa Eastern Nautical Highway, nasa Central Nautical Highway, talagang magiging interchange ang Calbayog City. Sa ganun magiging kaimportante ang Calbayog City sa ating Roll-On/Roll-Off ferry system kagaya ng Toledo City ng Cebu na siya rin ang interchange, San Carlos City ng Negros Occidental at Dumaguete City. Itong mga ito ay mga interchange, makakadaan ka dito sa mga bayan na ito para lumipat from one Nautical Highway to another. Ganun din ang mangyayari sa Calbayog City, gagamiting hub to transfer from one Nautical Highway to another. Kaya ang ganda ng mangyayari sa Calbayog City.

Pero siyempre, itong Nautical Highway ay dadaanan ng tao, tama yung sinabi ni Congressman Rey Uy, ire-rehabilitate din natin yung Allen-Calbiga section ng Maharlika highway na dumadaan sa Calbayog City. Bukas nga may notice to proceed kasi tapos na hindi ba? Hindi ba tapos na yung Allen to Calbayog? Kaya ngayon yung Calbayog to Calbiga — bayan ni Gabby — bukas ang notice to proceed, 2.8 billion pesos.

Kaya sabi ni Congressman Rey Uy, itong two million na ibinigay ko dito hindi na hihingi ng pandagdag, kasi yung hiningi yung two billion pesos para doon sa Calbiga-Calbayog road. At dahil ang Calbayog City ay magiging hub — daanan ng Maharlika road lalo na pag gumanda na muli yung Calbiga to Allen, puwedeng pumunta sa Biliran, puwedeng pumunta sa Masbate at sa ganun pupunta sa ibang Nautical Highway — maglalagay tayo ng traveler's rest area diyaan sa Pantalan. Eh di parang nagkaroon na kayo ng hotel, ng airport hotel, kaya lang Ro-Ro hotel ang mangyayari doon.

Pero kanina pinag-usapan namin ang Medium-Term Plan ng Eastern Visayas. Lahat nito ay makakatulong sa inyong probinsiya at siyudad kung magtulungan tayo para masigurado ang kapayapaan at katiwasayan sa Calbayog at sa Samar.

Kanina, pinakilala ko sa mga official ng Samar Island ang ating mga bagong military leaders ng ating lugar. Napakagaling na Central Philippines Commander si three-star General Cardoso Luna; napakagaling na Eight Division Commander si two-star General Macky Maclang; kasama nila sa pagtulong sa kapayapaan matagal na ninyong kilala si General Dela Paz, matagal na narito. Linagay ko siya dito kasi kayo ang humingi sa kanya. Pero maikuwento ko kung bakit ko pinili itong dalawang three-star at two-star generals dito. Nung kinuwento ko nga kanina sa mga official, binulungan ako ni Mayor Mel Sarmiento, ang tindi-tindi pala ng war record ni General Luna. Alam niyo si General Luna kinuha ko yan mula sa Mindanao. Nung siya ay brigade commander, sa kanyang buong area of command, bayan-bayan tinalo niya yung mga kalaban. Kaya nagbigay ako ng award sa kanya at sa kanyang mga sundalo in the middle of the battlefield, in the middle of the battles. But after I left them, they won more battles. Kaya they forced away the enemy from his area of responsibility.

Kaya palagay ko kung may makakagawa ng mga top level operational and strategic decisions para sa ating laban para sa kapayapaan at katiwasayan dito sa Central Philippines, yon na ay magagawa ng ating war hero na si General Cardoso Luna. At si General Macky Maclang, alam niyo matagal siya ang namamahala lahat ng ating mga tangke, yung light armor brigade. Tatlong taon ka ba? Tatlong taon siyang aking brigade commander sa light armor brigade hanggang prinomote ko siya, siya ang namuno sa ating intelligence, J-2. Pero nung si General Bonifacio Ramos — kilala ninyo yon. Magaling din, ‘di ba? —prinomote ko siya kailangan kasing galing niya yung kapalit. Kaya, although si Maclang ay ipapadala sana ng mga leaders, ng mga top brass ng military sa Davao, hiningi ko puwede kayang si Macky ay pumunta sa eighth division para sa ganun makatulong sa kapayapaan at katiwasayan ng Samar at Leyte.

What I’m saying is that, I personally assigned to Central Philippines and Eastern Visayas as best as I can find na commander. Kaya sana tulungan ninyo sila para magkaroon ng kapayapaan sa lahat ng barangay ng Samar. Eto ang paraan kung papano tayo makakabalik sa dating sigla ng Calbayog — yung sigla nung panahon ng tatay ko, nung nagtayo ng first Calbayog port — magtulungan tayo para makamit ito.

Kaya sa 58th anniversary ng Calbayog City, ano ang dapat hangarin natin? Kapayapaan at kaunlaran; peace and progress. Peace through a close partnership between the government of the local governments, the people and our armed forces, and development. Hayaan natin, mag-aliw tayo, alukin natin pumunta ang mga turista sa isa sa pinakamagandang isla sa buong Pilipinas, walang iba kung hindi ang Island ng Samar — One island; One people; One culture.

Maraming salamat. Happy anniversary sa inyong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA’s Speech during the 58th Calbayog City Charter Day Anniversary Celebration. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412210839/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3014&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 27th Camiguin Lanzones Festival

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 27th Camiguin Lanzones Festival

[Delivered at the Camiguin Tourism Center Mambajao, Camiguin, October 19, 2006]

Daghan salamat Ace Durano sa imong pagpa-ila kanako ug congratulations! Sa DOT tungod kay almost three million ang aton turista kining tuiga. Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Sa aton mga host sa gihapon Governor Loy Romualdo ug Congressman Romualdo ug tibuok pamilya Romualdo, daghan salamat sa inyong pag-imbata kanako sa... Kanunay kada tuig sa atong Lanzones Festival.

Ipaabot ko sab ang akong pag-abi-abi kan Mayor Romualdo. Karong adlaw kauban ko karon ang daghan kaayo nga mga Cabinet officials: anya na kaila na ninyo si Secretary Ace Durano; aniya sab si Budget Secretary Nonoy Andaya; si Public Works Secretary Jun Ebdane; si Peace Process Secretary Jess Dureza; ug unya sa atong meeting niadto na sila sa meeting place, si Secretary Ronnie Puno naa sab ng DILG ug ang National Security Adviser, si Secretary Bert Gonzales; kauban nato sab ang head sa SPDA (Southern Philippines Development Authority) si Zam Ampatuan; aniya sab kauban ang tanan ang tibuok top brass sa atong armed forces nga karon nga naa meeting sab diri sa Camiguin, ang Chief-of-Staff sa Armed Forces si General Jun Esperon.

Ug tungod kay naa kita dako nga meeting dili lang sa mga heneral kundili sab sa mga gobernador ug City Mayors sa Mindanao, aniya ang mga gobernador diri sa Mindanao kauban ko karon: governor sa Sarangani, Governor Dominguez; si Governor Plaza sa Agusan Del Sur; Governor Loong sa Sulu; ug Governor Pimentel sa Surigao Del Sur. Naa pa lima ka gobernador ug duha ka city mayors sa among meeting place karon. So karon adlaw, daghan kaayo ang mga bisita ni Governor Loy ug Congressman Romualdo. Ug kaninyong tanan, siyempre salamat mga Camiguingnon, maayong buntag kaninyong tanan, akong mga pinangga nga Camiguingnon.

Nalipay ko nga nino naman ako, kami tanan karon sa inyong Lanzones Festival, labi na karon na gi-apil nato ang Camiguin sa Central Philippines super region kansang pag-uswag naa sa turismo.

Gihimo nato ang mga super regions aron labaw pang mopaspas ang paghuman sa mga importanteng imprastruktura sama sa mga kalsada, pantalan, airport, irigasyon, telekomunikasyon nga ginakinahanglan sa mga negosyante ug investors ug mga ordinaryo ka pumuluyo o katawhan.

And I'm very happy that Camiguin is one of the provinces where we are carrying out our super regions blueprint. There's a growing bandwagon of belief that economic take off is well within reach, and this is why the government — naa tanan ang atong daghang mga Cabinet members — why the government has been working overtime on our economic blueprint.

The Philippines has shown itself to be relatively imperious to domestic and global pressures tungod sa kamo ang aton mga katawhan. Our people are upholding productivity and stability on all fronts, akong pag-abi-abi kaninyong tanan. Zam Ampatuan ginbalhin siya karon gikan sa Poverty Commission hangtod sa Southern Philippines Development Authority. A minor reshuffle in the Cabinet and agencies is being done to put performance in the people's interest at peak as I and my entire team intensify the campaign of good governance, more revenues, and prudent spending. The payback to the poor is becoming evident as take off looms in the horizon.

Angay sa Camiguin ang turismo. Lami kaayo ang inyong lanzones apan gamay lang ang inyong isla busa gamay lang ang yuta ug gamay lang ang kita kung mo-depend ta sa agrikultura. Apan pina-agi sa turismo, mas mo-ayog yud ang inyong panginabuhi ug mas madali ang pag-uswag dinhi sa Camiguin.

Sa una, ang Camiguin kauban sa bottom 10 provinces. Karon dili na, na- graduate na kamo gikan sa club 10 sa mga pobre nga probinsya. Dinhi sa Lanzones Festival pila ka beses na ako ni-anhi. Duha ka pulo ug pito ka tuig na naton gisa-ulog ang inyong Lanzones Festival nga makadani gihapon kini ug daghang turista aron mo-anhi sa Camiguin. Karong adlaw gyud, nine governors, two city mayors, daghan kaayo nga mga heneral and officials of the SPDA for the first command conference of the new divided Mindanao— Western Mindanao and Central Mindanao — we are doing the first command conference dinhi sa Camiguin. Tungod kay gwapo kaayo ang Camiguin isip host sa mga turista ug sa mga official ug mga meeting.

Inila sab... Ini-ila sab ang inyong probinsya sa inyong bugnaw nga klima ug mga nindot nga lugar sama sa mga baybayon, sa Mt. Hibok-Hibok, mga waterfalls, mga hot and cold nga bukal ug ang sementeryong natabunan sa dagat. Gwapo kaayo ang inyohang mga tourist attractions all concentrated in one beautiful island nga murag ang Isle of Capri.

Karon aron mo-labaw pa ang mga turista kauban sa mga super region ang mga proyekto sa Roll-on/Roll-off ferry. Ka-ila na ninyo kay naa kamo Roll-on/Roll-off ferry gikan sa Balingoan hangtod sa Guinsiliban, karon uban nato ang Roll-on/Roll-off ferry gikan sa Mambajao ngadto sa Jagna sa Bohol.

Kini sama sa gipatindog natong Strong Republic Nautical Highway sa Western Philippines na kauban ang mga pantalan sa Dipolog ug Dapitan, ngadto sa Negros, Panay, Mindoro paingon sa Batangas diretso sa Manila. Karon naman ang Central Nautical Highway — Cagayan de Oro ug Balingoan, pa-agi sa Guinsiliban hangtod sa Guinsiliban-Mambajao road pangadto sa Bohol, Sugbo, Masbate, Bicol o Quezon diretso sa Manila.

Aron mo-kumpleto nato ni... Kauban nato, murag kauban nato ang Philippine Ports Authority District Officer — are they here? Diri. — ug ang port manager — ikaw Sab? Usa ra na tao — ang atong proyekto sa Ro-Ro pantalan kauban ang extension sa Ro-Ro sa Guinsiliban port, kay gihangyo ni Congressman Romualdo, ug ang Mambajao port naman ang extension sa Ro-Ro ramp usa ka passenger terminal ug reclamation sa back-up area. Ang mo-gastos nato diri labaw sa 83 million pesos alang sa Mambajao Ro-Ro port.

Kinahanglan mahimo nato tungod kay apil ni sa atong mga saad sa akong State of the Nation Address niadtong July ug mahuman sa umaabot nga tuig kining atong Mambajao-Jagna Ro-Ro. Kay sa karon gina-prepare na ang program of work ug mahimo ang bidding sa umaabot nga Nobyembre.

Karon siyempre kon gusto nato na mahimo ang Camiguin nga apil sa Roll-on/Roll-off Central Nautical Highway kinahanglan dili ra ang atong mga pantalan ang gwapo, kinahanglan ang atong kalsada sab gikan sa Guinsiliban hangtod sa Mambajao. Busa anhi karon sab si Secretary Nonoy Andaya, gidala niya ang duha ka saro. Usa nini ang 10 million pesos isip sub-allotment sa Camiguin circumferential road labi na sa Guinsiliban-Mambajao section. Ug naa ikaduha nga sub-allotment usa pa nga 10 million pesos aron ma-repair nato ang slow protection sa parte asa nagikan mi karon ni Congressman ug Governor Romualdo.

So karong adlaw ang aton gidala nga proyekto alang sa atong Ro-Ro, para sa atong... Alang sa atong turismo labaw sa 100 million pesos sa atong selebrasyon sa Lanzones Festival.

Sa Lanzones Festival kada tuig usa ka fiesta asa pagasalamat ta sa mga grasya gihatag ug atong ginoo. Karon adlaw sa labaw sa atong pagpasalamat sa iya manaad sab kita pag-usab nga labaw pa natong pakusugan ang panaghiusa ug pagtinabangay.

Daghan salamat sa inyong suporta kanako kanunay, ako sab hinigugma ko kamo tanan.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the 27th Camiguin Lanzones Festival. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409204500/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3010&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 32nd Philippine Business Conference

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 32nd Philippine Business Conference

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, Manila, October 20, 2006]

Thank you Secretary Favila for your introduction.

Secretary Romulo and the other officials of the Philippine government; our leaders of the business community: Donald Dee, Mike Varela, Francis Chua and the president of this conference, Mr. Lacson, thank you for giving me the resolution of the 32nd Philippine Business Conference; Excellencies of the diplomatic corps; participants and delegates to this very important annual conference; ladies and gentlemen.

First of all, congratulations to this year's awardees. Secondly, congratulations to the biggest delegation in this conference, the Mindanao delegation. And thirdly, congratulations to the whole PCCI for staying the course of excellence in global business. I am glad that your theme is once again — one. Global. Filipino. "Seizing Global Opportunities."

Beating the odds and competing globally has been our common mantra, you and we in government, believing in the Filipino talent that can hold its own in the field of nations and economies. You are our standard bearers, the Philippine global business community. In world high-tech manufacturing, our semi-conductor and electronics industries enjoy a proud niche with 18 percent of the world market. As preferred location of BPOs, we are second only to India in the entire world. And we have companies like Palafox associates which exemplifies Philippine companies which have acquired a big share of markets previously dominated by foreign giants. Your success, the success of our awardees, the success of these industries and corporations I have just mentioned, the success of PCCI, your success is our country's success.

I thank Francis for mentioning our upbeat economic indicators. These upbeat economic indicators increase our confidence in achieving our growth target for this year. And the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry has done so much in uniting the business community and concentrating on your business which is business.

The people have taken on the path of productivity and concord. And I thank the PCCI for having been a very reliable partner of development of the Philippine government. We, the Filipinos, are set to achieve more if we continue to join hands and remain focus on our agenda of economic growth and political stability.

Our speakers have mentioned the indicators, but they are so important for us to remember and take note of, I will mention some of them again. The money market remains firm, exports and imports are up, inflation remains weak, our stock market has surged to a record high as pointed out by Francis. Eight-year high now, isn't it, Francis? We need to stay the course with the national leadership stewarding good governance, equitable revenue programs, a strong fight against corruption and a permanent campaign for social justice.

There is still a lot of work to be done. We urge all vital sectors of our society, and indeed the business community is one of our most vital sectors. We urge all vital sectors of our society to hold on to our gains. On our part, in government, we assure you that economic take off and lasting social payback are on the way. We improve our fiscal condition, we plug revenue leaks, we tighten spending even as we step up the campaign for more investments.

Together, you and we in government had a national competitiveness summit two weeks ago to maximize our gains. That has been alluded to by Donald Dee and the other speakers, and you have mentioned some of the things we have done since that summit are leading up to that summit. Let me again just mention a few of them because many have already been mentioned by the speakers before me.

On infrastructure, more than one trillion pesos will be strategically allocated over the medium-term by the government, the national government excluding what will be allocated by the government corporations and government financial institutions and our private sector partners. Each of our super regions that I introduced in my State of the Nation Address will get its appropriate share of roads, seaports, airports, railways and irrigation systems, depending on the natural competitiveness advantages of the super region.

We've already mentioned in our State of the Nation Address that we hope for North Luzon to be an important food exporter to the economies of North Asia.

I came across when I was walking towards here, the delegation from Cagayan province. So I hope that you will be very successful. Naimbag nga malem yo amin apo o bigat pay. I hope you will be very successful in developing your exports to North Asia.

We hope for Mindanao to develop its processed food industry because you are agri-business industry but especially — Joji, like Halal food — we hope to develop that some more for export to the ASEAN and the Middle East.

When we went on my state visit to Saudi Arabia, the Saudi Arabian business community was very enthused about buying more from the Philippines. They said it's a business decision but also some kind of a payback to the 1.5 million Filipinos in Saudi Arabia whom they treasure so much and who have been contributing so much to their economy. And they mentioned that they would like to buy more poultry from the Philippines but we need to have them Halal-processed.

I congratulate the Boracay Chamber of Commerce for being the most outstanding in the Visayas and I mentioned that because what does Boracay mean? Boracay is our symbol of tourism in the Philippines and Boracay is the center of Central Philippines, our tourism destination, where more than half of all the foreign tourists to the Philippines go. And therefore building on that competitive advantage, we will build airports for preferred tourist destinations like Boracay, Bohol and Palawan to bring in more tourists.

Speaking of airports, we will open NAIA III as soon as the federal aviation agency accepts its safety features.

On human resources: we have ongoing programs — as you know, because we do it together with you — to improve the level of English, Math and Science from the elementary through the tertiary levels. And that's for basic education. For high school, we have achieved almost 90 percent of our target to have computer-linkage in every high school. It's not enough that high schools have computers, they must have computer-linkage so that our young people will be really hooked up to the world economy.

On transaction flows and costs: together we organized the public-private sector task force on Philippine competitiveness to oversee all measures related to cutting down documentation requirements, signatures and other forms of red tape that cause delay and open the bureaucracy to corruption.

On the way to Manila Hotel, Secretary Favila and I were riding in the same car because we wanted to discuss the things that are most important in terms of transaction cost and reforms — most important to the PCCI and to the business community. And he asked me to make sure to let you know that I am instructing Peter to draft an Executive Order that will exempt accredited exporters going to trade fairs from having to pay the travel tax, right Peter?

On energy cost competitiveness and self-sufficiency: the National Power Corporation and Meralco have filed with the Energy Regulatory Commission the customer choice program that will initially benefit consumers of over one megawatt, and when that starts to work we will try to work on smaller consumers. Meanwhile, I instruct the Department of Energy to listen to fears about inadequate power supply particularly in the Visayas and Mindanao.

On efficiency of public management: again, because of your recommendation in the Philippine Competitiveness Summit, we had issued the Administrative Order institutionalizing quality systems management in government.

On access to financing: I understand that private banks have reduced their interest rates and to cushion the negative impact of the strong peso on exporters without intervening in the foreign exchange market. When we met with the exporters of Cebu — and I congratulate Cebu for being the most outstanding chamber in the whole Philippines — part of your outstanding work was to give me very specific recommendations to help exporters maintain competitiveness without interfering in the foreign exchange rate.

And as a result of your letter and our discussions following that letter during our meeting in Cebu with the Cebu Chamber, the Central Bank announced the rediscounting, e-electronic rediscounting facilities so you can get your proceeds in 10 minutes flat, right, Peter? That should reduce red tape.

For the SMEs, we are strengthening the SME database to improve access to loans. I direct the GFIs to set up a system of sharing credit information on their SME clients so that the due diligence period will be shorter for loan applications.

I have mentioned this, Donald has mentioned a lot, much has been accomplished, but as I said earlier, much more remains to be done with a common spirit of patriotism and teamwork which the PCCI has always had with the Philippine government in my administration.

We must not stop our efforts until the foundation of our globally competitive Philippines is stable and sustainable. This is the investment of a lifetime. Let us not retreat from what we have started for the glory of the Philippines. Let us go on working for “One. Global. Filipino.” — Philippine economy.

Maraming salamat. Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA’s Speech during the 32nd Philippine Business Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409204419/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3013&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Cultural and Awards Night in celebration of the Golden Anniversary of the Christian Family Movement (CFM) in the Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Cultural and Awards Night in celebration of the Golden Anniversary of the Christian Family Movement (CFM) in the Philippines

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, One Rizal Park, Manila, October 21, 2006]

Thank you.

Thank you very much. Thank you Lito for your kind introduction.

I would like to greet Tita Terry Nilya, the founding president of Christian Family Movement, very nice to see you again and you're looking so well, Tita; Roger and Nora Panlasigui, thank you so much for the kind things you said about me during your opening statement; other members and officers of the Christian Family Movement; ladies and gentlemen, happy golden anniversary to the Christian Family Movement!

I'm very glad to join you here tonight because, indeed, Filipino society is founded on the family. And as Roger acknowledged earlier, family is very much a part of my administration's policy, especially population policy, responsible parenthood and natural family planning.

I always stress to the bureaucracy, especially the health bureaucracy, that we hope for every couple to make responsible parenthood decisions regarding birth spacing because it's good for the health of the baby; it's good for the health of the mother; it reduces infant, child and maternal mortality; it's also good for the healthy relationship between parents and baby; the healthy relationship between husband and wife, and therefore the healthy relationship within the family.

It's also good for the health of the economy.

Our administration has focused on economic reforms because this is the way to remove our country from poverty that has been with us for centuries.

Yesterday, in this very hall, we announced a 10 percent increase in SSS pensions. This increase in SSS pensions is a direct payback of our tough economic reforms. We can see how biting the bullet can speedily win dividends for the average Filipino family because the average Filipino family has at least one SSS plan holder among you.

Meanwhile, the bullish outlook of various investors and financial institutions has sparked business confidence and boosts the cycle of more growth and social reforms. We take pride in the resiliency and productivity of the Filipino people that drives the economy forward. Both business and labor continue to reap the fruits of good economic stewardship and social justice. We made some very difficult decisions regarding tax reforms. But now with resources at hand, because of those tax reforms, we can continue to invest in education, infrastructure, basic services and other important components of national strength and discipline.

This is what we call the second phase of economic reforms, escalating infrastructure and social services, because the first phase was to reform our tax base to raise more revenue.

Because of the confidence generated by our tax reforms, next year, we will save 22 billion pesos in interest payments. Where will we put this 22 billion pesos? We will increase education spending by 16 billion, we will increase health spending by five billion, and we will increase social welfare services by one billion. Sixteen plus five plus one is 22 billion — all coming from savings in our interest payments.

With the 16 billion pesos for education, part of that will go to building 6,000 classrooms to close the classroom gap in elementary education. I have told the Department of Education: I hope, after I give you 16 billion pesos more than your present budget, we will no longer have classrooms with 100 students per classroom. It's because if we have less than 100 students per classroom and we have two shifts, then it would be very comfortable at less than 50 students per class, per shift.

We will also be able to provide universal health insurance, which means at least 85 percent of our families should have PhilHealth or SSS or GSIS health insurance.

And we will make sure that the 10 poorest provinces in the country will have comprehensive and integrated delivery of social services including microfinance. This is where we will spend our 22 billion pesos in interest savings.

I would like to thank CFM for reinforcing our socioeconomic reforms with the spiritual and moral transformation of our society. Thank you for what you have been doing all this past 50 years.

And as I was telling Roger because we are pushing for natural family planning, in the Population Commission, I have put Lito Sandejas, representing CFM, and Gerry Sotto Padilla, representing Couples for Christ. So we will make sure that the Population Commission's policies will be on pro-life family planning.

So, I was happy to see that Lito is a member or an officer in fact of CFM, and I hope that we will work together — CFM, the Population Commission and the Department of Health — so that we will push pro-life policies in our family planning programs.

I think that would be the best way to start spending your next 50 years.

To all of you, let's work together for pro-life policies.

Maraming salamat.

Happy golden anniversary sa inyong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Cultural and Awards Night in Celebration of the Golden Anniversary of the Christian Family Movement (CFM) in the Philippines. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409204409/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3007&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on Green Philippines, October 23, 2006

DREAMING AN EVER GREEN PHILIPPINES

*Dusit Hotel Nikko, Makati City
23 October 2006*

Clean and Green Foundation is eleven years old. And for the past several years, you have tenaciously pursued the vision of increased attention to our natural environment and making sure we build up, not just deplete our natural resources, as lamented by Ambassador Yamazaki.

In these past several years, you have assembled environmental criteria applicable to an array of products, including laundry detergents, household batteries, tissue paper, automotive engine oil, crayons, portland cement, and fire extinguishers.

And it seems like only yesterday, in 2003, when together in a similar ceremony as this, we launched the National Eco-Labeling Program called “Green Choice Philippines.”

In 2004, I signed Executive Order 301 mandating all government offices to patronize environment- friendly products.

We did these twin moves to give impetus to an active practice of green productivity among manufacturers and green procurement by institutional buyers, and the biggest institutional buyer of course is the government.

We have come full circle today to fulfilling the equation: GP1 plus GP2 equals GP3. Where GP1 is Green Productivity, GP2 is Green Purchasing, and GP3 is Green Philippines.

Our administration has likewise laid out the outlines of creating a Green Philippines that encompasses conservation, energy independence, reforestation, and designation of national parks and wildlife refuges.

We must take back our forests—and I’m happy that Mrs. Ramos was talking about some of your activities including planting trees—we must replenish fallen trees and many of them fell during the last Milenyo typhoon. We must replenish them with new, protected forests to protect our land and our people. We must reforest that land and bring back the beauty of the Philippines we all love and want—the beauty that was described in the song ‘What a wonderful world/ we want to tap the enthusiasm of everyone to clean up our environment. We need to beautify our villages and cities of trash. We need to build up more urban parks and recreation areas—I thank shell for building that very beautiful linear park and its perimeter—we must purify our water and clean up industrial sites that are an eyesore and are unhealthy.

Over the weekend, I played golf somewhere and looking over the fence, I saw a factory emitting smoke. I said, “Oh my God, I thought we had no more smokestacks.” But we still have some of them and therefore we do need to enforce more environmental laws.

As Peter said, the first law I signed as president of the Philippines on January 26, 2001 was Republic Act 9003, also known as the Ecological Solid Waste Management Act.

We’re also earnestly implementing the Clean Air Act and the Clean Water Act in partnership with local government units and private organizations nationwide—many of whom are here today. As we end, let me say that as we progress to the full implementation of the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act and the Ecological Solid Waste Management Act, we would like to see an improvement in universal compliance with all the laws, rules and regulations on the environment.

There have been mild protests regarding these laws, by those who claim that we are trying to accomplish too much in too short a time and increasing costs. But we need not enumerate the sordid statistics of the social cost of environmental damage and the dire consequences that arise from the lack of clean air and clean water and proper solid waste management. Pollution kills people and saps the strength of the nation.

As part of our Green Philippines, we also want an energy-efficient nation, free from reliance on costly and exhaust-spewing cars and smokestacks. Although I saw that smokestack in that factory this weekend, I can say that overall, our industrial and business organizations—that some of the icons are here today—have steadily imbibed the spirit of environmentalism.

We can harness our sun, wind and geothermal resource and produce our own clean fuels through biofuels and not rely on foreign suppliers. But we need the will of the people and NGOs like Clean and Green to move the politicians and legislators to embrace this new, clean, green Philippines.

And we want to turn our coral reefs and beaches, the wonder of the world, into national parks and international sanctuaries for eco-tourism and scientific research. Among the national parks must surely be Verde Island which is the center of marine biodiversity in the world today I have instructed Secretary Reyes, our DENR secretary, to hold a biodiversity forum right in Verde island so that we can all remember that we have the chance to develop our nation right from the start: clean, healthy, productive and beautiful.

These are just a few ideas for our ‘Green Philippines’ and we take the opportunity of this GP3 conference-workshop to call on everyone—not just those in the workshop—together let us call on the rest to respond to this call to action to bring new, innovative thinking to land management, care for our environment, and ways to create jobs and have a clean, socially responsible environmental policy.

We need to get beyond the era of “either/or” thinking on the environment. We must embrace change and be bold in creating a ‘Green Philippines’ that is both green and economically successful. The Philippines can become a model of environmental stewardship within ten years. And GP3 with your labelling program, your green productivity, and your green procurement is indeed a big help in creating that vision.

And on the part of government by patronizing producers and suppliers that adhere to green production principles, government procurement will be serving notice to the rest of the country’s producers that they should shift to green production or be left out.

E.O. 301 directs the incorporation of environmental criteria in public tenders, whenever appropriate, and the establishment of specifications that would make it possible to ascertain and classify products as environmentally advantageous.

We have systems and mechanisms to make our GP3 equation a practical reality because we have such an efficient and enthusiastic secretariat like clean and green foundation. It has only been two years since we issued E.O.301 and we are getting there slowly but surely, and faster with the support of clean and green and with GP3.

As our previous speakers have said, there is now a National Eco-Labeling Program Board to serve as third-party verifier of claims on the environmental soundness of products and services, and updates a growing list of environmentally-sound products like the products of Unilever, like the products of Procter and Gamble also. They’ve all been very, very environment-friendly

The transformation to a green culture is already underway. To illustrate, bottled water and organic foods, which are generally more expensive than the traditional products, are rising in popularity. This tells us that our people would rather spend more on healthier food. And that’s why aside from institutional buyers like industry and government, we should never forget consumer power.

With that trend in place, therefore, GP3 and the government can work together to ask everyone to help us bring about a 'Green Philippines' that will be our ultimate profit and prize for the benefit of the rising generation of Filipinos.

Thank you very much and Mabuhay!

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo on reducing infant mortality and retardation via newborn screening

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On reducing infant mortality and retardation via newborn screening

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, October 23, 2006]

Kasama sa pag-aayos ng ating kinabukasan ang pag-alaga sa kalusugan ng ating mga bata, dahil sila ang mamamayan ng hinaharap. Kung nais nating magkaroon ng kakayahan para sa global competition, dapat nating siguruhin na lalaking malusog, malakas at matalino ang mga bata sa pamamagitan ng pagbibigay sa kanila ng wastong pagkain at iba pang pagkalinga

Layunin din nating maibaba ang bilang ng mga inang namamatay sa pag-anak at ang bilang ng mga bagong silang na namamatay. Sinusuportahan natin ang breastfeeding mula pagkasilang ng sanggol hanggang sa ikalawang taon nito.

Ang National Action Plan for Infants and Child Feeding na nilunsad nung nakaraang taon ang kumprehensibong programang tumutugon sa mga issue tungkol sa kalusugan ng ina at ng kanyang anak, ang kalagayan ng ekonomiya ng pamilya, ang pagsunod sa pambansang programa ng responsible parenthood, at ang kalusugan ng katawan at pag-iisip ng bata habang ito'y lumalaki.

Dapat kasama rin sa National Action Plan for Infants ang newborn screening.

Itong Oktubre, pinagdiriwang natin ang National Newborn Screening Week sa pamamagitan ng Presidential Proclamation 640 na pinirmahan natin noong isang taon.

Kasama natin ngayon sina Secretary Francisco Duque III ng Department of Health at si Dr. Carmencita Padilla, geneticist, upang pag-usapan ang newborn screening.

Magandang tanghali, doctora. Ano ba itong newborn screening na ito?

So, inborn na nga talaga. Totoo yan. Kasi ang akala ng marami basta inborn hindi na magagamot, pero yon pala merong gamot basta maagapan, kaya itong napakaimportante na maagapan natin ito. At kaya nagkaroon tayo ng new born screening week para mabigyan ng pansin na meron itong bagay na ito na kung sa lahat ng mga magulang kung sakali hindi kayo binigyan ng payo ng inyong midwife or doktor sana maalala ninyo hingiin ninyo itong examination na ito.

Okay. Good, very good. So hindi kailangan gagastos ng extra dahil kasama sa Philhealth package.

Bawat araw, mahigit siyamnapung sanggol ang nagkakaroon ng congenital metabolic disorder; bawat oras, apat.

Sama-sama nating pagtulungan iligtas ang tatlumpu't tatlong libong sanggol mula sa mental retardation at maagang pagkamatay dahil sa kapansanang ito. Alamin ang tungkol sa newborn screening mula sa pinakamalapit na ospital o health center. Ipa-newborn screening si baby.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the 16th League of Municipalities General Assembly and the National Summit on Hunger and Population Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 16th League of Municipalities General Assembly and the National Summit on Hunger and Population

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, One Rizal Park, Manila, October 25, 2006]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Puno sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

Maraming salamat, Mayor Guico at lahat ng mga official ng League of Municipalities of the Philippines. Binabati ko rin si Governor Aumentado at yung ibang mga official ng ating pamahalaan. Sa inyong lahat, una sa lahat, congratulations! Mayor Guico sa iyong liderato sa League of Municipalities itong nakaraang limang taon, congratulations! At sa inyong lahat naman, ating mga punong-bayan, ipinagmamalaki ko ang sama-sama ninyong nagagawa bilang mga kaalyado at aking kabalikat.

At gaya nang dati tuloy kong aasahan ang inyong pagtataguyod ng bandila ng pagbabago sa kinabukasan ng Pilipinas habang patuloy naman na susuportahan ko at ang pamahalaang nasyonal ang inyong liderato sa ilalim ng mga bandila ng mabuting pamamahala at progresibong pagtayo ng ating bansa.

Ang sabi nga ni Mayor Guico, the national government draws its strength from local governments — totoong-totoo yan. Una sa lahat, gaya nang sabi ni Mayor Guico, binibigay sa inyo nang buo ang IRA at dahil ginagastos ninyo ang inyong mga IRA sa mga preyoridad ng pambansang pamahalaan nababawas din ang utang ng ating buong bansa. Kaya maraming salamat sa inyong pagtulong sa pagbawas ng ating utang.

The reduction of our domestic borrowings is not only proof that we're sailing in the right direction in terms of our fiscal reforms but also a good omen on our goal of achieving a balanced budget very soon. Government's growing capacity to raise funds on its own to finance the budget will reap greater confidence and propel the cycle of investments, growth, more jobs, broader prosperity. We would not have been reaping these gains had it not been for the local government's leadership and the people's cooperation in biting the bullet, improving our tax collections, and pushing aside political noise. Kaya maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

All our economic gains are a tribute to the Filipino. Abot-kaya na ang economic take off kahit na may ingay sa pulitika at may kahirapan sa langis sa mundo. Ang stock market ay umabot na sa pinakamataas noong 1997 Asian crisis. Bago ako pumunta dito tinignan ko yung stock market monitor, 50 points ang tinaas itong umaga. Patunay ng lumalakas na tiwala ng pandaigdigang komunidad. Naitutupad ang mga repormang pangkaunlaran at pangkapayapaan dahil kayo sa local level ay laging naririyang upang alalayan ang inyong lingkod. Maraming salamat sa pag-aalalay.

Sa nakaraang limang taon lahat tayo ay tahimik na nakibaka sa gitna ng gulo sa pulitika upang manatiling makaangat tayo sa laban kontra sa kahirapan. At ibig kong ipahayag ang pagpapasalamat sa inyong katatagan at katapatan sa taong-bayan.

Kailan lamang binati ng United Nations ang matatag na hakbang ng pamahalaang Pilipino patungo sa U.N. Millennium Development Goals. Sabi nga nila tayo ay early achievers sa nakararami sa mga indicators doon. At binabati natin ang sampung pamahalaang lokal na tinukoy ng United Nations kasama ng gawad galing pook para sa nangungunang pagsikap sa localization ng Millennium Development Goals. At doon sa mga LGUs, mga municipalities, tatlo ang municipalities — at binabati natin sila — yung mga outstanding municipalities tungkol sa Millennium Development Goals: Concepcion, Iloilo, congratulations! Ayon! Mayor Baniyas, congratulations! Malalag, Davao Del Sur at Maitum, Sarangani

Ngayon naman ang inyong liderato ay masusubok sa implementasyon ng mga super region at cyber corridor. Malaki ang mga papel ng mga lokal na opisyal tulad ninyo sa mga programang ito. Halimbawa, doon sa North Luzon at saka sa Mindanao eh kung agrikultura ang pag-uusapan natin eh devolved yon. Kaya napakaimportante ang mayor at ang municipal agricultural officer. Kung pag-uusapan naman natin ang Central Philippines, ang tourism, ang pagpaganda ng mga iba't-ibang bayan, pag-aalaga ng mga baybay ay nasa local government din yon. Kung pag-uusapan natin yung urban beltway para tumatag yung mga small and medium enterprises para maganda ang investment climate, yung mga pinupuntahan ng mga investor ng mga permit sa mga municipality ninyo kayo rin yon. Kaya napakaimportante ang inyong papel sa paglaki at paglago ng ating mga super regions at cyber corridor.

At ayon sa batas ng pamahalaang lokal hindi lamang agrikultura ang devolved, maraming devolved — social welfare ay devolved, health ay devolved kaya devolved sa lokal. Ang ibig sabihin noon ang pamahalaang lokal ang bahala sa kalusugan, at kasama sa health o kalusugan ay ang reproductive health, at sakop naman ng reproductive health ay yung mga programa ukol sa populasyon. And that is the reason why, because health including reproductive health and population services are devolved to the local governments, I have been advising our funding agencies — and I advised our U.N. population program — to deal directly with local governments as far as population assistance is concerned.

Ngayon sa panig naman ng national government, asahan naman ninyo ang tulong ng Department of Health sa mga bagay ng natural family planning dahil yon ang tinutulak naman ng national government.

Ang pagganap naman ng National Summit on Sustainable Upland Development ay mabuti rin lugar upang harapin ang problema ng kagutuman lalo na't kasama sa ating programa na magbukas ng upland para sa agrikultura kasama ito sa two million hectares na gusto nating buksan para sa agri-business kasama ang upland agriculture. Kaya noong isang araw nag meeting kami ng mga officials ng League of Municipalities at pinadala yung draft institutionalization ng upland sustainable development. Ito ay binigay ko kay Secretary Reyes ng DENR para isama yung mga ibang inputs ng ibang mga government agencies at sa mga abogado, at pag nabuo na ito — at inaasahan ko sa madaling panahon mabubuo ito — ay pipirmahan ng inyong lingkod ang Executive Order tungkol sa sustainable upland development.

Mabuti nandito si Romy Neri kasi siya yung nagdala ng konsepto ng upland development sa ating Cabinet para matanggap natin yon, at siya rin ang gumawa ng ating masterplan, comprehensive masterplan against hunger. So, inaasahan ko nakita ko nga sa programa ninyo na si Secretary Romy Neri ay tatalakayin niya ang ating komprehensibong programa kontra sa kagutuman.

Kaya andami nating nagagawa nung nakaraang limang taon, andami pa nating pwedeng magawa sa mga susunod na taon. Kaya bilang pagwakas, hayaan niyong pasalamat ko kayong muli na sa kabila ng ingay sa pulitika at pangmundong krisis ng langis tinutulungan niyong umunlad ang ating ekonomiya. Kayo ang nandiyaan sa harap, kaharapan ng taumbayan.

Congratulations! And more power to our municipalities in the Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the 16th League of Municipalities General Assembly and the National Summit on Hunger and Population. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203817/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3004&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during a Luncheon Meeting with Fujian Business Leaders

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During a Luncheon Meeting with Fujian Business Leaders

[Delivered at the Mandarin Hotel, Xiamen, Fujian, PROC, October 27, 2006]

Thank you very much, Madame Undersecretary of Trade and Industry.

Honorable Lu Zhangong, Party Secretary of Fujian, thank you so much for your warm welcome and your great hospitality; Governor Huang Xiao Jing and the other officials of Fujian and Xiamen and the other members of the business community and party leaders; members of the Philippine delegation; leaders of the business community both from the Philippines and Fujian province especially the leaders of the Federation of the Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce who are hosting this luncheon today. Thank you very much for putting together this wonderful luncheon. To all of you, good afternoon.

I'm deeply honored to be visiting China once again. I cannot remember how many times I have been to China since I was a young lady, co-chair of the Philippines-China Friendship Association working for the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Philippines and China. Now this time, it is an honor for me to be here again especially because I will be co-chairing with Premier Wen Jiabao the Commemorative Summit to celebrate the 15th Anniversary of ASEAN-China Partnership.

All of the ASEAN leaders are travelling to China to celebrate this very important milestone, important for ASEAN, important for the region, important for the world. Open dialogue and trust between peoples and nations have never been more important than in today's world.

Speaking as chairman of ASEAN, I can say that ASEAN takes some amount of pride and satisfaction in helping China become an economic powerhouse as a result of the economic, political and cultural collaboration between ASEAN and China.

China has surged onto the world stage and ASEAN has surged with it. The change has been profound. ASEAN welcomes the deepening of ties through the ASEAN-China free trade agreement. This agreement is built on respect, reciprocity and pragmatism. It will help all our economies grow and strengthen peace and security in the region.

So it gives me great pleasure to declare to you today that relations between ASEAN and China have never been better or stronger. This is an important state of affairs that can only help the region and the world.

I am also proud of the role that the Philippines is playing in the integration of China into our region. As I made this trip to your great country, I welcome this opportunity to communicate with the people of China in order to help forge stronger ties between China and the Philippines.

Relations between China and the Philippines are at an all-time high and are based on mutual respect. A golden age, in the words of President Hu Jintao when he said this to me in Chile in 2004. I visited China on a state visit in September 2004 and President Hu visited Manila on a state visit in 2005. These respective visits underscore the growing maturity of our relationship and the commitment we both share to strengthen our ties.

Our nation's relationship with China is among the most important ties of our country. Relations with China are now more confident, mature and comprehensive punctuated with substantial and important projects aimed at deepening exchanges in a number of areas, including economics, trade and investment, and even defense and security.

From 2001 to 2005, trade with China grew at an annual rate of 42 percent. And during President Hu's visit to Manila, the Philippines and China formalized an agreement for the early harvest program through an MOU signed on April 27 of 2005. This early harvest agreement includes 214 tariff lines or product lines for immediate tariff elimination.

The Philippines electronics industry gained access to a new market because of our friendship with China. As the demand for electronics slowed down in the United States and U.S. manufacturing firms outsourced to other countries than Southeast Asia like India, the Philippines found another huge customer with China. And today, China is the biggest electronics market of the Philippines. Philippine electronics firms were able to boost their export performance during difficult years. The top exports between China and the Philippines comprise semiconductor devices, machinery parts and accessories, electrical and electronic machinery, and electronic micro assemblies. Approximately one-third of total electronics exports of the Philippines are skewed towards the Chinese market.

China is now our number three trading partner all in all. Bilateral trade between the Philippines and China amounted to almost 17 billion dollars in 2005. And we are delighted with the financing of our north rail project, the train that will bring our people faster from Manila to Clark, one of our major industrial areas, my home province and the home province of our Senator Lapid who is here in our delegation. This is one of the most important projects in our infrastructure development which is crucial to our economic development plan for the nation.

We are also happy to note China's support for the Philippines in the field of agriculture, especially with the establishment of the Philippine-Sino Center for Agricultural Technology in Nueva Ecija. When I first visited this Filipino-China Agricultural Technology Center, I thought I was entering a Ming Palace.

But I should not say only on the Philippines and China, I should think especially of the Philippines and Fujian. The people of Fujian and the Filipinos as we have heard from our previous speakers share a special relationship. This relationship goes back many years to when the first generations of Fujianese emigrated to the Philippines in search of green pastures in an open and hospitable land.

Today, the Filipino-Chinese business community — represented here by so many Chinese businessmen both members and not members of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce and Industries — the many individual members of my delegation is an important integral part of the Philippine economy.

Dr. Francis Chua mentioned to all that my husband, Attorney Mike Arroyo, Mike Tuason Arroyo is a descendant of a Chinese from Fujian, from Xiamen in fact, His name was Son Tua and later on after several generations the Son Ttua became Tuason. That is the family name of my mother-in-law. I am happy to be a great granddaughter of Fujian and Xiamen.

And here in Fujian province, especially in Xiamen, several of Philippines' Taipans have returned and invested in prominent businesses and facilities. We even have an SM mall here in Xiamen in Fujian. And Dr. Lucio Tan has a bank in Xiamen and I... And I saw Mr. Jon Ng somewhere and I said, "Jon, don't you have any investment in Xiamen, too?" Yes, he has a beautiful building also here in Xiamen. Those are only a few examples of Filipino-Chinese Taipans who have invested here in Xiamen and in Fujian.

Tomorrow, we shall be going to Jinjiang, where we will visit the shrine of our national hero Jose Rizal. Yes, another descendant of Chinese from Fujian province. The monument of Jose Rizal is literally a monument to our close ties and friendship.

Both the Philippines and China, especially Fujian, should push to further deepen existing cooperation between the two countries. We hope that agricultural trade between the Philippines and China especially Fujian would increase because we have the Philippine-China Memorandum of Understanding on the early harvest program. Already I understand Philippine bananas are number one in China. Philippine pineapples are number one in China. I hope more and more from Fujian will buy our Philippine fruits and other agricultural products.

And most importantly, as our Filipino-Chinese have looked at Fujian province as an area of destination, China and especially Fujian should look at the Philippines as a destination for greater investment. Francis Chua mentioned some of them — mining. There is a very big demand for minerals in China — copper, nickel and other minerals. And I understand especially here in Fujian.

Infrastructure. I already mentioned the railroad to the north, to my province which is a very industrial area. We are also looking forward to China's financing our railroad to the south all the way to what we call the Bicol peninsula.

Agriculture and fisheries, and housing. I hope that we will be able to conclude agreements — not this time but when premier visits the Philippines in December — on housing assistance from the People's Republic of China.

I encourage Chinese firms to plan relocation of the assembly of agricultural machinery to the Philippines. The Philippines buys a lot of agricultural machinery from China and sometimes we need to have parts to service this machinery. It would all be so much simpler if the machines are assembled right there in the Philippines.

I would also like to invite Chinese fishing firms to participate actively in the Philippine-China fisheries cooperation activities under the bilateral memorandum of understanding on fisheries cooperation which we signed during my state visit to Beijing in 2004.

And the Philippines is the perfect regional partner to aid as a logistics partner and provider of high-value, high-skilled labor. As Francis said, "That is our best resource of all — our world class Filipino workers."

And so, let me conclude by saying, that we look forward to the day when China and especially Fujian — the home of many of our families in the Philippines. The homeland of many of our families in the Philippines — when China and Fujian substantially raise the level of investments in the Philippines.

I hope to see the day that indeed the Philippines will be part of the Golden Triangle of Party Secretary Lu Zhangong — the Golden Triangle of Fujian, Taiwan and the Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyo.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during a Luncheon Meeting with Fujian Business Leaders. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203747/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3001&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during a meeting with the Filipino community

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a meeting with the Filipino community

[Delivered at the Mandarin Hotel, Xiamen City, Fujian, PROC, October 27, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Reyes, sundalo ka talaga. Pero nandito si Secretary Reyes hindi bilang sundalo, siya ang ating Secretary of Environment and Natural Resources, at marami tayong pangangalakal at investments mula sa Tsina doon sa ating mga minahan. Tatlo silang Cabinet member na kasama ko ngayon. Nandito rin si Secretary Arty Yap ng Agriculture, at nandito rin si Secretary Toting Bbunye, ang ating Press Secretary.

Malaki ang ating delegasyon ng Pilipinas dito sa pagbisita sa Fujian, homeland ng mga maraming Filipino-Chinese, kaya papakilala ko sila sa inyong lahat. Kilalang-kilala ninyo ang dating gobernador ng Pampanga, ngayon, siya ay senador natin, si Lito Lapid. Ang ating mga congressmen naman mula sa Palawan, si Tony Alvarez; mula sa Negros Occidental, ang aking bayaw, si Ignacio Arroyo; mula sa Pampanga, ang aking anak, si Mikey Arroyo; mula sa Laguna, si Dan Bueser; ang ating Deputy Majority Floor Leader at siya ay mula sa Iloilo, si Art Defensor; nandito rin mula sa Lanao Del Sur, si Jun Macarambon; mula sa Sultan Kudarat, si Teng Mangudadatu; mula sa Isabela, si Anthony Miranda; mula sa Bulacan, si Pedro Pancho; mula sa Negros... Bacolod City, I mean, si Monico Puentevella; mula sa Pangasinan, si Gener Tulagan; at mula sa Mindoro Occidental, si Girlie Villaros. Meron bang congressperson na hindi ko nabanggit? Kasi madalas pag malaki ang delegasyon may nakaliligtaan.

Marami rin tayong mga gobernador at city mayors na narito ngayon: mula sa Bohol, si Governor Rico Aumentado, siya rin ang pangulo ng Union of Local Authorities of the Philippines; mula sa Eastern Samar, si Ben Evardone; mula sa Cebu, si Gwen Garcia; mula sa Laguna, si Ningning Lazaro; mula sa Zambales, si Vic Magsaysay; mula sa Agusan Del Sur, si Eddie Bong Plaza. Ano, hindi nakasama si Leo Ocampos? Okay. Pero he knew, he knew that he was invited. Okay. Anyway, mga city mayors naman natin mula sa Valenzuela, si Win Gatchalian; mula sa Butuan, si Boy Plaza; mula sa San Carlos City, si Jolly Resuello, ayun!; At saka mula sa Calbayog, si Mel Sarmiento. Yan ang ating mga elective officials na kasama natin dito sa ating delegasyon.

At siyempre ang ating mga ‘Cream of the Crop’ ng Filipino-Chinese business community ay taga-Fujian kaya ang laki ng ating business delegation. May ilan na nandito, ilan lang ang nakapasok kasi kung isasama natin ang buong Pilipino... Ang buong business delegation wala ng lugar para sa ating overseas Filipinos dito, andami-dami nila. Anyway, can we have the Filipino-Chinese and the Filipino business community stand up to be acknowledged — at least those who were able to enter the room because there are so many of them. At siyempre gusto rin nating batiin ang ating mga official ninyo dito sa China, ang ating Ambassador, si Ambassador Sonia Brady, at ang bago nating Consul General, not yet one year old here, si Consul General Lee Pineda. Nandito rin si Undersecretary of the Department of Foreign Affairs, si Frank Benedicto, of Chinese descent din.

At alam niyo dahil napakalaki ang China, biro niyo naman one-fourth of the world ang China di dapat one-fourth of our personnel dapat nandito yung mga foreign service natin. Pero siyempre hindi naman pwede yon, so nag-appoint tayo ng ilang mga honorary special envoys para tumulong sa ating trabaho dito. At sa nakita ko nakapasok dito sa kuwartong ito, nakita ko si Fred Yao, isa sa ating mga special envoy para magpalawak ng ating pangangalakal dito sa Tsina.

Ako’y narito dahil una sa lahat merong importanteng pinagdidiriwang doon sa Nanning sa mga darating na araw. All of the ASEAN leaders are traveling to China to celebrate a very important — ayun! Tagbilaran City Mayor

Danny Lim. Thank you — a very important milestone for ASEAN, the region and the world — that is the 15 years of ASEAN-China collaboration. At malaking karangalan para sa Pilipinas dahil Pilipinas ang co-chair kasama ng China dito sa Commemorative Summit ng ating napakaimportanteng anibersaryo. Ngunit sa pagkakataong ito, tiniyak ko na magkaron ng pagkakataon makipagkita at makipagbalitaan sa ating mga overseas Filipinos. Kasi tuwing pumupunta ako sa mga opisyal na paglalakbay sa ibayong dagat lagi akong nagagalak na makapiling ang ating mga kababayan.

Doon sa Saudi siyempre one-and-a-half million sila. Dito, kayo ay mga 500 pero ganunpaman gusto kong makipagsama-sama sa inyo itong araw na ito. Salamat at narito kayo kahit na oras ng trabaho. Salamat doon sa mga nagbiyahe ng tatlong oras. Thank you very much for coming here. Kumusta na ba kayo dito sa Xiamen, sa Fujian, sa China? Very good. Ating mga Capampangan queti? Uy, kumusta qongan? Adda kakailyak ti bangir ni mamang ko, ilocano naimbag a malem yo amin, apo. Dunay Bisaya? Maayong hapon kaninyong tanan. Gikan sa bisayas ug Mindanao, may ara ba kasimanwa sa akong bana nga Ilonggo? Maayong hapon sa inyo nga tanan. At meron ba tayong mga Bicolano dito? Wala. Ayun! Isa. Marhay nga hapon. At meron ba tayong mga waray kagaya ni Mel at saka ni Ben Evardone dito? Wala. Walang waray. Ayun! May isa. Papano yon? Maupay nga kulop.

Dito sa Xiamen at sa kanyang mga paligid na lugar, ako'y nasisiyahan na kahit na kayo ay konti lamang, limang daan lamang, you're actually very, very highly regarded by the people of China — meron pang bago. Ha! Another one, si Aro Mendoza of Tarlac City. Ayun, okay — kasi the few Filipinos who are here gaya nang sabi ni Consul General are engaged in professional or technical work. Kaya ang ganda-ganda ng inyong kalagayan dito. I'm very proud of the status and reputation of Filipinos in this part of China. Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Sabi nga ni Consul General Pineda, the spirit of the Filipino is everywhere, talaga naman. And I see the spirit of Filipino... Of the enterprising Filipino everywhere I go. Aba! May SM pa kayo nga rito, di ba? Nagsho-shopping rin ba kayo sa SM? Very good. Di ba sabi nga ni Tessie Sy sa akin, sana makita ko yon dahil parang mga malls na nasa Pilipinas. Di parang pag nandoon kayo sa SM parang nasa Pilipinas na rin kayo. And there's even a Rizal Shrine in Jinjiang that we will visit tomorrow.

Maraming monumentong nagbibigay parangal kay Jose Rizal. Meron sa España, meron pa kaming nakita sa Cuba. Pwedeng matagpuan ang estatwa ni Rizal sa iba't-ibang panig ng mundo, pero sa tingin ko ang monumentong dito sa China, sa Fujian ay isa sa pinaka katangi-tangi, makahulugan sapagkat, itinayo ito sa lugar na tinataya ng mga dalubhasa na pinanggalingan ng ninuno ni Rizal na si Ke Nan. Kaya yon ang kanyang hometown.

The Chinese roots of our national hero underscore the racial and blood ties that Filipinos have with the Chinese especially from this area of Southern China. Kaya kanina tinitignan ko yung mga iba dito, yung iba very obviously kayo ay mga professionals na narito, pero yung iba mga Filipino-Chinese. Gusto ko magpasalamat sa ating Filipino community, yung mga nag- contribute ng Gawad Kalinga, ito ay mga pabahay para sa ating mga mahihirap. Isang pabahay ay 50 or 60,000 pesos lamang, so mga 1,000 dollars. Kaya gusto kong magpasalamat, unang-una, in behalf of the Philippine community yung inyong pangulo, si Engineer Go. Ay, hindi, hindi, si Celso Halap. Maraming salamat, Celso. At saka si Engineer at Mrs. Go, yung may-ari ng international school. Pati na rin si Sotero Baluyot-Lee. Alam niyo tinanong ko sa kanya, ano kayo ni Sotero Baluyot? Sabi niya ninong niya. Dahilan kung bakit tinanong ko kung sino si Sotero Baluyot, yan ay dating Secretary of Public Works. Siya yung ninong ko nung ako'y bininyagan, kaya tayo magkakapatid.

Anyway, bagamat tatlumpu't isang taon lamang ang tanda ng pormal na pagkakaibigan ng Pilipinas at Tsina, mabibilang sa libong taon ang itinagal ng pakikipag-kaibigan at palitan ng kalakal ng mga Pilipino at Tsino. At ngayon, lalo na itong nakaraang limang taon, higit pang lumalaki ang ating ugnayan sapagkat ang Pilipinas at Tsina ay tumatahak sa isang yugto ng relasyon na tinatawag ni President Hu Jintao "The Golden Age of Partnership." At kayong mga Pilipino na narito bahagi kayo dito sa partnership na ito.

Relations between China and the Philippines are at an all-time high. They are based on mutual respect. Siguro naman nahahalata ninyo ang respeto ng mga Chinese para sa inyo, di ba mga Pilipinong narito? Our nation's relationship with China is among the most important ties of our country. Philippine relations with China are now more confident, mature, comprehensive, punctuated with substantial and important projects aimed at deepening exchanges in a number of areas, including economics, trade and investment, and even defense, and even people-to-people exchange. Nandito nga ang ating mga dalubhasang professional kagaya ninyo at nandoon din sila sa iba't-ibang bahagi ng Tsina.

Naalala ko nung nagbisita ako sa Tsina nung September 2004 at si President Hu Jintao naman ay nagbisita ng Manila nung April ng 2005. Kasi last year ito ang 30th year ng ating anibersaryo ng ating relations kaya nagbisita si Hu Jintao doon. At ano ang mensahe ng pagbisita ko dito sa Beijing noon at yung bisita niya doon sa Manila? Ang mensahe ay: "To underscore the growing maturity of our relationship and the commitment our two countries share to strengthen our ties."

Yung Pilipinas at saka yung Tsina ay gumawa ng kasunduan, tawag dito ay Early Harvest Program. Sa pamamagitan ng MOU or Memorandum of Understanding na pinirmahan nung nagbisita si President Hu sa Manila. Ibig sabihin nito mga dalawandaang produkto ng pangangalakal sa isa't-isa ay pwedeng pumasok sa isa't-isang bansa na walang tariff or duty. At dahil dito ay malaking-malaki ang ating pangangalakal. Mabilis ang paglaki ng pangangalakal ng China sa buong Southeast Asia pero sa buong Southeast Asia pinakamabilis lumaki ang kanyang pangangalakal sa Pilipinas. Kaya espesyal na espesyal ang ating relasyon. Nandito nga si Arty Yap, ang Secretary of Agriculture, isang dahilan ay dahil napakalawak ang pangangalakal ng agrikultura sa pamamagitan ng Pilipinas at China. At ito ay lumawak pa nung nagkaroon nga tayo nitong Memorandum of Understanding kasama ng China nung 2005. Agricultural trade increased with the conclusion of the Philippine-China Memorandum of Understanding.

Doon naman sa Pilipinas ang nandito ito ang Fujian, malaki tayong pangangalakal sa electronics. Nagbebenta tayo ng electronics sa kanila, nagbebenta rin sila ng electronics sa atin. Kasi ang electronics hindi... The way that it's happening in the world today ay hindi ang isang piyesa lahat gawa sa isang bansa. May isang piyesang gawa doon, papadala dito para mafabricate. May isang pyesa pagawa dito, papadala doon para mabuo. At ang kabutihan ng ating pangangalakal sa Tsina ay nagkaroon tayo ng isang malaking-malaking market para sa ating electronics industry. Kasi electronics industry sa Pilipinas ay number one sa exports.

Noong araw lahat ng ating exports halos ng electronics — hindi naman lahat, pero malaki — ay pumupunta sa America. Pero naalala ko nung 2001, nung bagong pangulo pa lang ako, humina ang electronics industry ng America. Sabi ko, naku! Patay, yan ang laki ng... Number one export natin, 70 percent ng exports ng Pilipinas ay electronics. Bagong pangulo pa naman ako babagsak ang ating exports, babagsak ang ating ekonomiya, baka akala nila ako ang malas. Pero hindi nangyari yon kasi habang humina yung American market lumakas naman yung China market. At sa mga panahon ngayon — kasi yung America humina tapos they have to spread their risks, nagpunta sila outside Southeast Asia pati sa India — but in the meantime the Philippines found another huge customer with China. Kaya yung mga electronics firm sa Pilipinas nakapagbenta dito sa China. So kahit na mahirap ang panahon noon sa America nakapagbenta pa rin dito sa China mahihirap na taon.

And as I said, between Fujian and the Philippines mutually ang number one trading, trading product natin ay electronics. So the top exports between China and the Philippines comprise semi-conductor devices, machinery parts and accessories, electrical and electronic machinery, and electronic micro assemblies. Ewan ko kung merong mga Pilipino dito na nandoon sa industriyang yon.

Approximately one-third of total electronic exports are skewed towards the Chinese market. Pero kung pag-uusapan natin yung buong trade between China and the Philippines, 42 percent taun-taon ang linalaki mula nung 2001. Kaya ngayon ang China number three na sa ating mga trading partners, kasunod lamang ang U.S. at saka Japan. Halimbawa, yung mga Capampangan dito — meron bang mga Capampangan... Ah, yeah, ating Capampangan. Ano meron bang mga taga-Tarlac diyan, mga taga-Subic? Yun! Okay — pag-uwi niyo siguro, kung uuwi ka ng mga 2009, ay mabilis ang biyahe mula Manila hanggang Clark-Subic kasi meron tayong mabilis na tren na makakapunta na doon. Kakaumpisa lang ng construction nung isang linggo kaya matatapos sa 2009. Kaya pag kayo'y umuwi, bisitahin ang mga kamag-anak ninyo, kasi sasakay kayo sa Philippine Airlines malamang maglalanding Xiamen to Manila yon. Sasakay kayo ng tren patungong Clark-Subic, mabilis ang biyahe, tandaan niyo eto ay dahil sa pagkakaibigan ng inyong host country at Pilipinas dahil ito ay pinondohan ng Tsina para sa Pilipinas. And we are delighted with the financing of our Northrail project.

Gusto ko ipabalita sa inyo na ang isang malaking preyoridad ng ating bansa ngayon ay imprastruktura kasi sa mahabang panahon — palagay ko baka wala na kayo dito noon o baka nandoon pa kayo — sa habang panahon hindi tayo makapagpondo ng ating sariling imprastruktura na hindi umuutang. Kasi noon ang budget natin 900 billion pesos, ang taxes 700 billion. Sa 700 billion, 350 billion pumupunta sa pagbayad ng interes sa malaking utang natin; 250 billion pumupunta sa sweldo ng ating mga manggagawa sa gobyerno; 150 billion pumunta sa share ng local government, eh di 700 billion na yon. Wala nang maiiwan sa imprastruktura, wala nang maiiwan sa edukasyon, sa social services, sa kalusugan. So saan natin kinukuha yon? Umuutang tayo. Yon na nga yung difference between spending and taxes, the 200 billion pesos. Yon parati yon ang ating deficit nuon.

Pero ako'y nagpapasalamat kay Lito, yung senador natin, yung ating mga congressmen dahil pinasa nila yung mga tax reforms natin. Ngayon ay patungo na tayo sa balance budget, hindi na tayo kailangan parating umaasa sa utang para sa imprastruktura at social services. Meron tayong layunin na maka-balance tayo ng budget natin ng 2010, pero gaya nang sabi ko bago nung reforms ang deficit natin 200 billion. Ang deficit natin nitong taong ito ay between 100 and 120 billion, nahati in one year after your tax reforms, senator and congressmen, kaya sabi ng aking mga economic managers baka kahit na sinasabi ko na dapat magbalance budget tayo ng 2010 makakaya natin ito by 2008.

At hindi lamang mababalance natin ang budget, pwede na tayong gumastos sa mga imprastruktura na matagal nang hindi natin mapagastusan kung hindi tayo nakakautang. Infrastructure development is crucial to our economic development plan for the nation. Siguro kayong mga nakatira sa Xiamen — ewan ko kung gaano katagal na kayo rito. Mga batang-bata pa kayo, baka 20 years ago sigurado wala pa kayo rito — 20 years ago, mahirap lamang ang Xiamen pero nakagastos sila sa kanilang imprastruktura. Ngayon, ang ganda- ganda ng Xiamen, ang yaman-yaman, nakakapagbigay ng magagandang trabaho sa inyo. Yon din ang kailangan gawin natin sa ating bansa — gumastos sa imprastruktura para pupunta doon ang mga namumuhunan.

At itong... Yung proyekto ng northrail bilang halimbawa lang kung gaano kalaki ang tulong ng Tsina sa atin, ang northrail na yon na magpapabilis ng biyahe mula sa Manila hanggang sa Clark-Subic ay nagkakahalaga ng siyam na raang milyong dolyar, 900 million dollars. Maluwag na pautang mula sa China, napakahalaga ito kapag natayo na ang linya ng tren na ito, mas mapapadali ang biyahe sa probinsya patungo sa Clark-Subic. At marami ring suporta ang Tsina sa ating agrikultura — ayun! Si Dr. Undan na doon sa Central Luzon State University ng Nueva Ecija — yan malaking tulong ng China sa kaniya. We are happy to know China's support for the Philippines in the field of agriculture. Doon sa lugar ni Dr. Undan merong magandang Philippine-Sino Agricultural Center or Center for Agricultural Technology na mukhang Ming Palace, ang ganda-ganda. Yon ay simbolo ng pagtulong ng China sa ating agrikultura.

Kaya narito si Arty Yap, malaki ang ating kooperasyon ng agrikultura sa Tsina. At lahat nito ay ginagawa ko para lang magkaroon ng maraming trabaho ang ating mga mamamayang Pilipino. Ang taimtim na minimithi ng ating administrasyon ay maibangon ang Pilipinas upang isang matatag na republika ang manahin ng ating mga anak at ating mga apo.

I'm very happy for you here that you are earning well here in China. But I long for the day when going abroad for a job is an option and not the only choice for a Filipino worker. Kaya bagamat kayo ay nandito sa China ang aking hinihingi sa inyo sana patuloy ninyo ang inyong suporta upang makamit natin ang ating mga plano para sa Pilipinas.

Muli, maraming salamat sa inyong pagdalo. Thank you very much. I am so happy to meet the Filipino community of Southern China.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during a Meeting with the Filipino Community. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203808/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3000&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo before the students of Nanchang University Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Before the students of Nanchang University

[Delivered at the Auditorium, Nanchang University, Nanchang City, Jiangxi, PROC, October 28, 2006]

Thank you very much for your very warm welcome. Ni hao.

Mr. President of Nanchang University; Mr. Huang, Governor of Jiangxi; officials of the Philippine government who are with me today; officials of the communist party of the Philippines here in Jiangxi; students and teachers of this great and beautiful university, Nanchang University, good afternoon to all of you.

I am so happy to be here this afternoon. You know, many years ago before I entered politics, I was a professor of economics. And it was my pleasure to be always with young college students like you. But that was about... Oh, maybe that was 1987 or so, I stopped teaching, I joined the government and it's a great opportunity for me to be here once again to be speaking with young people. I like speaking with young people because it keeps me young. Thank you for this opportunity to speak with you.

I've been to China many times but this is my first time here in Nanchang. And it really gives me great pleasure to have a chance to be here to visit different parts of China because as a young professor many years ago, I became co-chairman of the Association for Philippines-China Understanding and we worked for the establishment of diplomatic relations between China and the Philippines.

And I am so happy that today our relations are at an all-time high. When we were in Chile together for the APEC Summit, President Hu Jintao described our relationship as having entered a golden age. In 2004, I made a state visit to Beijing. It was my second state visit because I had made one in 2001. And in 2005, President Hu Jintao also made a state visit to Manila. That was the 30th year of our diplomatic relations.

During the period that China joined the world as a market economy, it has benefited the Philippines very much and our bilateral relationship. Our trade amounted to seven billion dollars last year. China is the third largest market of the Philippines. And our investments, hopefully with my continuing visits here will also increase between our two countries. But what can I say is that I am very proud of our Filipino-Chinese living in the Philippines. They are among our largest businessmen in the Philippines. They provide us with wealth but they also loved China and they also invest here in China.

In fact here in Jiangxi province, we have a big investment from a Filipino-Chinese, Mr. Carlos Chan, and he's right here, somewhere here. He produces food snacks. So maybe sometimes when you're having your snack between your classes, maybe you are eating the products of Mr. Carlos Chan, the Filipino-Chinese who is here in Jiangxi.

But today, I would like to speak with you more not only about Philippine-China relations but more about ASEAN-China relations. The reason why I have chosen this topic is that it is the occasion of my visit to China this year.

I am deeply honored to co-chair with Premier Wen Jiabao the Commemorative Summit in Nanning to celebrate the 15th anniversary of the ASEAN-China Partnership. It is important to commemorate special anniversaries like 15 years of partnership with open dialogue and trust between peoples and nations. This manner of keeping our relationship has never been more important than in today's world. We are a globalized world which should always be speaking with one another.

I am not the only ASEAN leader who is coming here. All of the ASEAN leaders are in China to celebrate this very important milestone for China, for the region and the world — the 15 years of ASEAN-China collaboration.

President Yudhoyono of Indonesia will be here, the head of the 4th largest country in the world. Of course behind China, the largest country in the world of all. Prime Minister Badawi of Malaysia will be here. The new Prime Minister of Thailand, Surayud, will be here. The Prime Minister of Singapore Lee Hsien Loong will also be here. The Sultan of Brunei, Sultan Bolkiah, will also be here, I mean in Nanning. And so with all the other leaders of Cambodia, Myanmar, Laos, Vietnam, all of us to celebrate with China our 15 years of deep friendship.

And I am very honored that the Philippines is the co-chair with China because we are the co-chair of ASEAN this year. And that's why I take this opportunity to speak as chairman of ASEAN, and speaking as chairman of ASEAN, what I would like to say is that for one thing ASEAN takes some amount of pride and satisfaction in helping China become an economic powerhouse as a result of economic, political and cultural collaboration between ASEAN and China. China started its very rapid development 20 years ago. And 15 years ago, it was the first country to become a dialogue partner of ASEAN.

During the Commemorative Summit, we will be celebrating 15 years of substantive and fruitful relations between ASEAN and China. Further, we will assess current ASEAN -China dialogue relations and set out the direction for the next 15 years when you, the young students of Nanchang will be the leaders of Chinese society and economy.

China has surged onto the world stage. I'm sure you know that and you feel that especially your parents feel it. ASEAN has also surged with China. The change has been profound. ASEAN welcomes the deepening of ties through the ASEAN -China free trade agreement. This is an agreement between ASEAN and China that is built on respect, reciprocity and pragmatism. It will help all of our economies grow and strengthen peace and security in the region.

This ASEAN -China free trade area enables both parties to reduce and eliminate the tariffs for a range of products, and this reduction or elimination of tariff duties will have a positive effect. The free trade area will have a positive effect on the development of China because the ASEAN region represents a market of over half a billion people for Chinese exports and a supplier of much-needed resources. In turn, it will also have a positive effect on the development of ASEAN countries because ASEAN countries can reduce our dependence on western markets such as the U.S. and Europe for our exports.

The ASEAN -China partnership remains one of the most dynamic and progressive in the East Asian region. When China and ASEAN first began relations 15 years ago in 1991, the focus was on cooperation in economic and trade relations. Over the past 15 years, this relationship has evolved. It is no longer just economic and trade, it now includes cooperation on political security, development and other regional issues.

So it gives me great pleasure to come today to speak to the young people of Nanchang and say that relations between ASEAN and China have never been better or stronger. This is an important state of affairs that can only help the region and the world.

As I said earlier, we will be co-chairing, the Philippines will be co-chairing with China the Commemorative Summit. This is because we are the chair of the upcoming ASEAN leaders meeting as well as the host of the East Asia Summit. The East Asia Summit is a dialogue among ASEAN, China, Japan, Korea, India, Australia and New Zealand. We had the first East Asian Summit in Kuala Lumpur last year. And last year, both the ASEAN leaders... The ASEAN, incidentally, the East Asian Summit and the ASEAN Leaders' Meeting will take place in the beautiful Philippine Island of Cebu this december. I mentioned that because the governor of Cebu is here. Please give her a warm welcome also. Doesn't she look like a student from Nanchang University? Anyway, I take great pride in representing the nation and the region at these upcoming gatherings.

Now to go back to what I was saying earlier about holding the very first East Asian Summit that was last year, that was in Kuala Lumpur, that was in December of 2005, and at that time in that summit — it was the very first East Asian Summit — we talked about what is East Asia? What is the East Asian Summit? What is the East Asian community? And we agreed that the East Asian community is a long-term goal that would contribute to regional peace, security, prosperity and progress in the region. We also agreed that the East Asian Summit with ASEAN as the driving force because it was born out of ASEAN meetings with dialogue partners is an integral part of the overall evolving architecture of this region, the East Asian region. Right now composed as I said of ASEAN, China, Japan, Korea, India, Australia, New Zealand.

The East Asia Summit leaders in Kuala Lumpur last year agreed that the East Asia Summit, together with the ASEAN + China, Japan and Korea dialogue, the ASEAN + China, the ASEAN + Japan and ASEAN + Korea would play significant roles in community building in East Asia. There have been so many dialogues between ASEAN and other partners since 1991. But the very first one was China — that's the ASEAN + China dialogue.

Later on, we developed the ASEAN + Japan dialogue. We developed the ASEAN + Korea dialogue. And because these are our three neighbors to the north, we developed the ASEAN + 3 dialogue where ASEAN dialogues together with Japan, Korea and China all in one table. And then later on, Australia and New Zealand joined us, and then India joined us, so it became bigger and bigger. So this is what now we call East Asia, and the dialogue of all of us together is called the East Asian Summit.

So because all of this started from ASEAN, dialoguing with other partners, other friends and all of this started in 1991, 15 years ago, because we signed a treaty of dialogue with China, both ASEAN and China have important roles to play. Singly, ASEAN has a role to play. China has a role to play. Jointly, ASEAN + China as a dialogue partners have a role to play. And in conjunction with the other members of the East Asian Summit because now on its second year, the East Asian Summit is becoming a strategic forum for the East Asian region.

Sometimes I am asked, "You're friend with China, and then you're friends with India, and then you're friends with Japan. Is there no conflict in these relationships?" Of course not. China sees no conflict in its relations with... Ah, no. ASEAN sees no conflict in its relationship with China vis-a-vis ASEAN relations with Japan and India.

Why are we asked whether there's a conflict? I supposed it's because Japan and India are the other two economic powerhouses of Asia aside from China. After all, in the same manner as ASEAN's relations with China, ASEAN's dialogue relations with Japan and India are treated with respect, pragmatism, and reciprocity. ASEAN places great emphasis on the unique value of each dialogue partner.

Well, I have tried to explain to you where we are now from the first time that China became a dialogue partner of ASEAN. Other countries started to join us and now we have become one big East Asia community. Yet what is most important is not what has transpired between ASEAN and China or even between the Philippines and China for that matter. What is important is what happens next. What will our relationship look like 15 years from today when you, the students, who are sitting in the second half of this auditorium will be sitting on the front row because you will be the leaders of China? Will our economies have improved? Will there be less poverty and more prosperity? Will the world be safer and more secure?

These are the issues that we must focus our attention on. These are the issues that will be the subject of our meetings in Nanning and later on in the Philippines as we forge a vision of what the future will be like for the next generation, your generation.

All of these will be the subject of our upcoming meeting. And at the end of the meeting, we will probably issue a declaration on what our vision will be like.

Let me share with you some of my own thoughts about what I would tell our other colleagues in ASEAN and in China about the future: going forward, we shall continue to strengthen ASEAN -China partnership. How? For one thing, by promoting confidence-building measures. For example, there had been long conflicts, long-term conflicts between different countries claiming different or overlapping parts of the South China Sea. There is a claim by China, there is a claim by the Philippines, there is a claim by Vietnam, other countries. But what we have done in ASEAN + China, we have turned that area of possible conflict into an area of cooperation instead because China and the Philippines agreed that instead of fighting all the time over that sea, we will conduct joint research, seismic research in the South China Sea.

At first Vietnam objected because they also have a claim. But we were able to convince them to join us. So now we have been able to conclude a joint seismic research: China, the Philippines and Vietnam in the South China Sea. And we should go forward now, now that the seismic research has been done and the findings are being collated if warranted, we should consider having joint exploration in the South China Sea.

Another way by which we can strengthen and deepen the relationship between ASEAN and China is to intensify interactions, for example, more trade. The China trade with ASEAN has grown tremendously since China joined the WTO. But I am very proud that among China's trade with all the countries of ASEAN, the fastest growing trade is China's trade with the Philippines.

And let's continue to do that. For instance, we have a lot of trade with China, Philippines and China. But I was looking at the statistics, a lot of our trade is with Guandong, Guanzhou, not enough with Nanchang, not enough with Jiangxi. So, my visit here I hope will be a catalyst so that we will talk more with one another and trade more with one another — your province and our country.

Tourism is another very important way by which we can intensify our relationship. China, you, the young people, I understand, have become very curious about the rest of the world, because China has become very rich over the past 20 years. Twenty years before or 25 years before, the Chinese hardly travelled outside of China. But now you are so curious about the world, and we the rest of the world are also very frequent visitors to China because you have so much history and you have so much beauty. I hope that we will be able to intensify tourism.

In the Philippines, for instance, the number of tourists that went to China in 20... No, no. The number of Chinese tourists that went to the Philippines in 2005 is almost three times the number of 2004, very rapid increase. But a very, very small percentage compared to China's tourists going to the rest of the world, just a hundred thousand but from 30,000 the year before. Maybe this year, hopefully we can have 300,000. We would like to have more and more of people-to-people exchange. Filipinos very frequently come to China, I hope the Chinese go very frequently to the Philippines.

Well, I advertised Cebu earlier. Let me now advertise your sister province in the Philippines, the province of Bohol. The province of Bohol just like the province of Cebu, and just like the island of Boracay are all very famous for our beaches. And I hope that very soon, you, the young people of Nanchang will go to the Philippines on tours organized by the tour operators of your city and your province.

Another way by which we can intensify our relationship is to allocate adequate resources to steer the relations and cooperation for mutual benefit. For instance, I understand that China provides preferential loans to support projects invested in by Chinese companies within ASEAN. That is very, very welcome. And I hope that therefore as there are so many Filipino- Chinese investing in China — I think there are at least 1,200 Chinese-Filipino investments in China — I hope there will also be many investments in China going to the Philippines.

Right now what are we doing among ourselves in ASEAN? Right now, the ASEAN member-countries are currently channeling our efforts towards integrating our priority sectors. We have 11 priority sectors among us. Is that not right, Mr. Jose Concepcion, who is the Chairman of the ASEAN Business Advisory Council for the Philippines? These are agro-based products, air travel, automotive products, E- ASEAN — which is electronic ASEAN — electronics, fisheries, health care, rubber-based products, textiles and apparels, tourism, and wood-based product.

By integrating these 11 industries, we envision a region transformed into one single and efficient production base. ASEAN is working towards eliminating non-tariff barriers among us. Meaning, we will have no more outright prohibition in our products going to each other, and we will remove unnecessary technical requirements on one another's export products, and we will eliminate quantitative barriers. Meaning, we will no longer have limits on the volume of products a particular ASEAN country imports from another ASEAN country. In this way, ASEAN becomes one economy even if we are 10 political countries.

As we do this integration among ourselves in ASEAN, we will be able to strengthen ASEAN's role. We will be able to strengthen ASEAN's bargaining position vis-a-vis other large markets, giant markets in the world. And together with ASEAN's partnership with China through the ASEAN -China free trade area, where we let out products go in between ASEAN and China with no tariff or very low tariff, what a huge integrated market that will be that will benefit consumers and suppliers alike.

China is the fastest growing developing country in the world, aside from being the most populous. And therefore China has a strategic and important role to play in the economic development and security situation of the Asia-Pacific region.

The rest of us in East Asia and even in Asia-Pacific expect China to take the lead in promoting good neighborly relations and regional cooperation by handling sensitive issues with surrounding countries in a manner that is guided by the spirit of equality, respect, consultation and mutual benefit.

To summarize and in other words, we are hopeful that China will continue to pursue its foreign policy which as we can see right now is based on the maintenance of world peace and the promotion of common development. We congratulate China for that.

And to conclude, why am I saying that here in Nanchang University, in front of the young people of Nanchang? Because I am hopeful that Nanchang University being a producer of future leaders will forge future Chinese leaders who will carry on the vision of greater regional harmony, cooperation and engagement.

Xie-xie. Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech before the Students of Nanchang University. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203724/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2999&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremony of the 3rd China-ASEAN Expo

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the opening ceremony of the 3rd China-ASEAN Expo

[Delivered at the Nanning International Conference and Exhibition Centre, Nanning, Guangxi, PROC, October 31, 2006]

His Excellency Premier Wen Jiabao, Minister of Commerce Honorable Xi Lai, Governor Lu and the other officials of Guangxi, Your Majesty, excellencies, heads of state, heads of government, other distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen.

We are here today celebrating the golden age of ASEAN-China relations.

All the leaders of ASEAN are visiting China to celebrate the 15th year of China's Dialogue Partnership with ASEAN. As the chair of ASEAN this year, I am particularly proud of the role that ASEAN has played in helping China integrate its economy and become a powerhouse in the region and the world. The relationship between China and ASEAN has helped ASEAN as a region. Our trade is surging with China, we are seeing more Chinese investment in ASEAN. We hope to see more.

The ASEAN-China partnership remains one of the most dynamic and progressive in the East Asia region. When ASEAN and China first began relations in 1991, the focus was on cooperation in economic and trade relations. Over the past 15 years, the relationship has evolved to include cooperation on political security, development, and other regional issues. Going forward, we should continue to strengthen the ASEAN-China partnership by promoting confidence-building measures, intensifying interactions, and allocating adequate resources to steer the relations and cooperation for mutual benefit. This China-ASEAN expo is a good example of what we should be doing.

An expo such as this builds confidence. It also reminds us of strategic themes such as: "What will our ASEAN-China relationship look like 15 years from today?" This expo should strengthen our resolve to intensify the integrative trade within the ASEAN-China free trade area.

The ASEAN-China FTA enables both parties to reduce and eliminate its tariff rates for a range of products. The ASEAN region represents a market of over half a billion people for Chinese exports. It is a supplier of much-needed resources. In turn, we the ASEAN countries can reduce our dependence for our exports on western markets such as the U.S. and Europe.

It is with great enthusiasm that we participate in the China-ASEAN expo. Our businessmen are looking not only for products to bring home but also for industries where Chinese and ASEAN manufacturing can collaborate to produce for our own domestic markets and for the rest of the world.

Our businessmen have come to Nanning looking for products as candidates for integrative trade with China.

I am confident our search will bear fruit in the field of shared prosperity both for China and ASEAN

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Opening Ceremony of the 3rd China-ASEAN Expo. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203647/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2996&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremony of the 3rd China-ASEAN Business and Investment Summit (CABIS)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremony of the 3rd China-ASEAN Business and Investment Summit (CABIS)

[Delivered at the Auditorium, Grand Hall of the People's Congress of Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region
Nanning, Guangxi, PROC, October 31, 2006]

His Excellency Premier Wen Jiabao; excellencies, the Asian heads of state and government; Mr. Liu Qibao, party secretary of Guangxi, thank you for your very kind remarks and welcome; Mr. Wan, thank you also for greeting the guests; to all the leaders and business personalities present here today, Ni Hao.

All of the Asian leaders are in China to celebrate the... The ASEAN leaders are in China to celebrate the 15th year of China's partnership with ASEAN. As chair of ASEAN this year, I'm particularly proud of the role that ASEAN has played in China's integration with the world economy and China's becoming a powerhouse. Our trade is surging with China and we are seeing more Chinese investment in ASEAN. We hope to see more. That is why we welcome this China-ASEAN business and investment summit.

When ASEAN and China first began relations in 1991, the focus was on cooperation in economic and trade relations. Going forward, we should continue to strengthen the ASEAN-China partnership by promoting confidence-building measures, intensifying interactions, and allocating adequate resources to steer the relations and cooperation for mutual benefit. Thus, we congratulate the central government of China and the government of Guangxi and the communist party committee of Guangxi for generously allocating resources for the last three years for this annual confidence-building measure, the China-ASEAN Expo and Business Investment Summit.

In Cambodia in November 2002, at the ASEAN-China Summit, we, the leaders of our 11 nations, signed the framework agreement on our Comprehensive Economic Cooperation or CEC. Today's events are a wonderful celebration of this ASEAN-China CEC.

The current engagement between China and ASEAN is true partnership. ASEAN relations with China are now more confident, mature and comprehensive. They are punctuated with substantial and important projects, like this one, aimed at deepening exchanges in a number of areas. These areas include economics, trade and investment, and even security. The parties to the comprehensive economic agreement respect one another as equals.

One of the most dynamic components of the comprehensive economic agreement is the ASEAN-China free trade area. The ASEAN region represents a market of over half a billion people for Chinese exports. In turn, we, the ASEAN countries can reduce our dependence on western markets such as the U.S. and Europe.

Aside from the ASEAN-China free trade agreement, the ASEAN-China CEC also embraces other matters such as today's event. The China-ASEAN Business and Investment Summit is a marketplace where investors can enjoy fruitful business-matching meetings where they can make deals about strategic business partnership, and where they can therefore participate in an integral part of the larger marketplace of the world.

This is the third China-ASEAN business and investment summit, and the focus is on ASEAN and I am speaking today as chairman of ASEAN. But I want to close on the economic rebound underway in the Philippines. In the Philippines, the poverty rate is down, the per capita income is at an all-time high, and we are on track for a balanced budget in 2008.

Philippine-China relations are at an all-time high. Our nation's relation with China is among the most important ties of our country. Thus, I take this opportunity to invite China to look at the Philippines as a destination for even greater Chinese investment, particularly in the areas of mining, infrastructure development, agriculture and fisheries, as well as housing.

Our workforce is well-educated, productive and English-speaking. The government has taken the difficult decisions to raise the additional revenues needed to invest in infrastructure and services to create an economic environment that is conducive to investment. This commitment shows how serious we are about competing for foreign investment and the jobs that it creates.

It is no secret how the Philippines is partnering with China. But the Philippines is not alone in doing this with China. Each ASEAN member can boast of its own success stories with regards to their business with China. Later on, in the course of this seminar, they will tell their stories in their respective investment promotions' speeches in the course of this business and investment summit.

For the Philippines, it is an honor to co-chair the Commemorative ASEAN-China Summit and therefore to keynote this exciting event. This gathering bodes well for the theme, "One Future." And we hope that "One Future" is a secure life in every home and community in East Asia. We hope that "One Future" will mean the eventual banishment of hunger and poverty. We hope that "One Future" will be a robust and vibrant regional community in one sharing and caring community made up of ASEAN and China.

Thank you, Premier Wen Jiabao. Thank you to the people and officers of Guangxi for a magnificent welcome and a meaningful summit.

Xie-xie.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the opening ceremony of the 3rd China-ASEAN Business and Investment Summit (CABIS). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203653/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2995&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo on launching the National Year for the prevention of child abuse and neglect

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On launching the National Year for the prevention of child abuse and neglect

[Delivered at the Asilo de San Vicente de Paul Quadrangle, U.N. Avenue, Manila, November 6, 2006]

LAUNCHING THE NATIONAL YEAR FOR THE PREVENTION OF CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT

Sabi ni Katrina, magandang senyas itong nakikinig itong ating kalapati dito dahil ibig sabihin magiging matagumpay ang ating taon ng pag-iwas ng abuso sa mga bata. Gaya nang sabi dito sa senyas na ito, prinoklama ng inyong lingkod ang Oktubre ng 2006 hanggang Oktubre ng 2007 bilang taon ng pag-iwas ng pang-abuso sa bata upang ipahayag ang ating walang sawang determinasyon na tigilin ang pag-abuso at pagpabaya sa ating mga bata. At ngayon ko nalaman na tayo pala ang kauna-unang bansa na gumawa nitong proklamasyon na ito.

Panahon na para gumawa ng mga kongkretong aksyon sa buong bansa — pigilin ang mga banta sa kalusugan at kabutihan ng ating mga bata. At meron na tayong mga sandata para gawin ito. Kasi binanggit natin yung iba't-ibang mga partners natin sa pagtanggol sa karapatan ng mga bata. At meron na rin tayong mga sapat na batas. Sa nakaraan, personal nating tinulak ang mga batas kontra sa trafficking sa mga babae at bata, batas kontra sa karahasan sa mga babae at bata, at proteksyon para sa mga nagtatrabahong bata.

Meron na tayong batas, meron na tayong mga iba't-ibang mga partners, kaya dapat talaga, sabi nitong ating ibon, ay talagang dapat magtagumpay itong taong ito.

Ang proteksiyon ng bata — kasi nandito lahat yung mga tumutulong maiiwasan ang abuso or alagaan yung mga inabuso — pero ang proteksiyon ng bata ay lumalampas sa pag-iwas ng mga kilos ng karahasan at abuso at pagbigay tulong sa mga biktima. Ang paglaban mismo sa kahirapan ay proteksiyon sa ating mga bata.

Ang pagbigay ng ginhawa sa karaniwang mamamayan ay proteksiyon sa pamilya at ganun sa kinabubuti ng mga bata.

Sa pag-uusap ng ginhawa ng pamilya, meron tuyong magandang balita, dahil darating na ang pasko. Para sa mga motorista at pamilyang dumadaan sa North Luzon Expressway sa panahon ng Christmas vacation, bilang aginaldo, ang North Luzon Expressway magbibigay ng espesyal na diskwentong diyes porsiyento sa mga toll fee sa lahat ng motoristang gagamit ng NLEX mula a-beinte ng Disyembre hanggang katapusan nitong panahon. Ito ay para alukin ang ating mga kababayang samahar ang kanilang mga minamahal sa panahon ng bakasyon. Preview ito ng pagbaba ng toll rate na dati na nating inanunsyong gaganapin sa Enero sa susunod na taon.

Bakit natin inanunsyo ito? Kasi gusto ko magbigay ng halimbawa ng kung papaano yung ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya ay nakakaabot sa kinabubuti ng mga karaniwang pamilya. Yung ating ginawang reporma sa buwis, sa laki ng kompiyansang napunta sa ating bansa, maging gobyerno, maging mga private company, yung binabayad sa mga utang ay nabawasan kasi lumakas ang piso at saka bumaba ang interest rate. Kaya yung North Luzon

Expressway, yung kanyang mga naimpok dahil sa pagbaba ng debt servicing, sa lakas ng piso at baba ng interest rate, ay ngayon pinapasa sa ating mga motorista.

Ganundin ang ating bansa. Sa gawa ng ating mga reporma sa kaban ng bansa na nagbigay ng malaking kompiyansa sa ating bansa, bumaba ang interest rate na binabayaran natin, lumakas ang piso, kaya sa susunod na taon 22 billion dollars ang ating interest saving. At saan pupunta yang 22 billion dollars na yan? Twenty two billion pesos, I mean. Twenty two billion pesos. At saan pupunta yang 22 billion pesos na yan? Sixteen billion pesos sa pagdagdag ng gastos sa edukasyon, five billion pesos sa pandagdag ng gastos sa kalusugan, at one billion pesos sa pangdagdag na gastos sa social welfare — all in all 22 billion pesos.

Yung five billion pesos na dagdag nating igagastos sa ating kalusugan, layunin nating mapaabot ang higit otsenta'y singko porsiyento ng mahihirap ang health insurance. At alam naman nating lahat na kung isang pamilya ay sakop sa health insurance, lahat ng kasapi ng pamihja ay kasama doon, mga anak maging yung pag-aanak ng ina.

At saan naman pupunta yung 16 billion pesos na igagastos nating dagdag sa edukasyon? Malapit nang mabuo natin o mapuno natin yung kulang na silid-aralan, kasi gusto natin na mawala na yung mga silid-aralan ng more than 100 is to one ang ratio ng estudyante sa classroom. Kasi kung less than 100 is to one sa grade school at merong dalawang shift, maaliwalas na ang ating mga paaralan. At makakamit natin yon sa ating 16 billion pesos.

Bukod pa doon, makokonekta ang higit na high school sa internet at mapapadami ang mga scholarship sa mahihirap na estudyante, lalung-lalo na yung ating mga teenager para sila ay makapag-aral sa tinatawag nating ladderized system of education kung saan magsisimula sa technical school at magagamit ang credits dito para sa college education.

At yon namang mga social work. Isang libo... Ay, isang bilyon ang dinadagdag sa ating social welfare. At inaasahan natin na sa pamamagitan nito ang mga social workers ni Alice bala ay makakaabot sa higit na maraming biktima ng domestic at iba pang anyo ng karahasan at mahihirap na pamilyang kailangan ng suportang moral at pangkabuhayan. Pangkabuhayan kasi kasama nito — di ba, Alice? — yung inxjong CIDSS at yung inyong microfinance.

Pinalawak natin itong mga serbisyo at pinansin pa ng... Pinansin pa tayo ng United Nations Development program sa ating mga pagsisikap na makamit ang millenium development goals.

Itong pinoproklama nating year against child abuse and neglect, logical long yan eh kasi talagang internalize natin yung millenium development goals. At ayon kila kay Jeffrey Sachs, yung mga anti-poverty guru at si Nileema Noble, yung UNDP dito, halos wala silang makitang ibang bansa na ganun na ka-internalize ang millenium development goals.

Ngunit hindi pa tayo makapagpapahinga, habang ayon sa mga dato, isa bawat apat sa ating populasyon ay nahihirapan pang maglagay ng pagkain sa kanilang mesa. Gusto natirt may pagkain sa bawat mesa kasi yon ang paraan kung papaano yung ating mga bata ay lalaking malusog. Kaya lahat nito ay dapat gawin natin sa panahon ng pag-iwas ng abuso at pagpabaya sa mga bata.

All our partners are represented here. And I ask all partners to put the anti-child abuse campaign squarely in the context of our larger war against poverty.

Let us vow, not with words but with deeds, to secure our nation's future and therefore ensure the security of our children.

Sa inyong lahat, mga partners, mga guests of honor, ating mga bata, congratulations! Gawin nating lalong makabuluhan itong panahon, itong taon kontra sa abuso ng mga bata.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the closing program of the 8th National Assembly of the Philippine League of Secretaries to the Sanggunian, Inc. (PLEASES)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the closing program of the 8th National Assembly of the Philippine League of Secretaries to the Sanggunian, Inc. (PLEASES)

[Delivered at the Eve's Garden Area, Coconut Palace CCP Complex, Pasay City, November 9, 2006]

Thank you very much, Ms. Pasaylo for your introduction and for inviting me to be here before you today. Please sit down.

Mr. Lero, thank you very much and congratulations! For hosting this very very important gathering for the Secretaries of the Sanggunian.

Ang Liga ng mga Kalihim sa mga Sanggunian ng Pilipinas ay binubuo ng mga babae at lalaking masigasig sa pagsusulong ng kapayapaan at kaunlaran. Congratulations sa inyo! At salamat sa pagsuporta sa ating mahihirap na reporma na ngayon ay nagsisimula nang magbigay liwanag sa pambansang kalagayan. Hindi na maaring itanggi ang pagsigla ng Pilipinas. Ang palagay ng Standard Chartered na papalo ang piso sa 49 pesos bawat dolyar ay isa pang hudyat ng mas magandang hinaharap. Lahat dahil sa walang kupas na suporta mula sa mga taong gaya ninyo sa pamahalaang lokal. Maraming salamat.

Di sana natamo natin itong mga pagsulong kundi sa inyong pangunguna sa pagkuha ng kooperasyon sa ating taumbayan, sa pagsasakripisyo, pag-ibayo ng koleksiyon ng buwis at pagbawas ng ingay sa pulitika. Kaya salamat. Naipapatupad ang mga repormang pangkaunlaran at kapayapaan dahil kayo sa local level ay laging naririyon upang alalayan ang inyong lingkod. Kaya nung natanggap ko ang inyong imbitasyon ay agad-agad sabi ko isingit natin sa aking schedule, kaya narito ako ngayon.

Hindi naman kayo pulitiko, kayo ay mga kasapi ng mga bureaucracy ng local governments, at masarap kausapin yung mga non-political na mga official. Sa kabila ng mga nanggugulo sa pulitika nananatili tayong tahimik subalit naka-angat sa laban kontra sa kahirapan.

We welcome the news, for instance, that confidence in the Philippines among the Japanese firms are at a high point. Japan is a solid partner of the Philippines for peace and prosperity, and we appreciate the fact that Japan has fielded an economic expert to the international monitoring team in Mindanao, yon bang nagsusubaybay ng ating ceasefire. At hindi ba sa iba't-ibang mga lugar ninyo meron kayong nakikitang mga project na pinopondohan ng mga Hapon. At sa iba't-ibang mga lugar ay meron pang mga pabrika ng mga Hapon.

As we expand new investments and create well-paying jobs for our people, we also look forward to an enduring partnership with Japan in the field of human security. Japan is one of our foremost allies in the world in fighting poverty, and the hundreds of thousands of Filipinos in that country is a testament to our enduring friendship and shared interests.

Bakit ko binabanggit ito? Dahil pagkatapos ng mahabang panahon, positibo ang survey ng mga Japanese companies sa kanilang kompiyansa sa ating bansa. At gaya nang sabi ko dahil mga Japanese companies ay nasa buong Pilipinas, mga Japanese projects ay nasa buong Pilipinas, kung ano ang mga ginagawa niyo sa inyong mga lugar yung mga bunga nuon yon ang kanilang nakikita. Kaya maraming salamat sa inyo, maganda ang pinapakita niyong mukha ng iba't-ibang lugar sa ating mga kaibigan sa ekonomiya.

At panahon nang suklian ang ating taumbayan sa pamamagitan ng higit na imprastruktura upang maka-akit ng mga puhunan at paramihin ang trabaho; higit na pangunahing serbisyo gaya ng edukasyon, kalusugan at nutrisyon; higit na saklolo at tulong para sa mga dukha, gaya ng mga rolling store, yung tindahan natin, botika ng bayan, at pagamutang lumilibot.

Gayon din, higit na malaking saklolo at rehabilitasyon sa mga lugar na natamaan ng kalamidad; dagdag-sahod para sa kawani ng pamahalaan dahil higit na IRA para sa mga pamahalaang lokal. Kasi habang lumalaki ang ating mga buwis, lumalaki rin ang nakukuha ng pamahalaang lokal. Bawat pisong kinukubra natin halimbawa sa value-added tax, kuwarenta porsiyento ay pumupunta sa pamahalaang lokal. Kaya salamat sa inyong suporta sa ating reporma, bumabalik din yon sa inyong mga pamahalaan.

Sayang lamang at may ilang mas gustong guluhin ang gumagandang kalagayan at ibig ibalik ang bayan sa dating gawi ng pulitika. May panahon para magkampanya sa halalan, ngunit hindi ngayon. Kailangan panatiliin nating matibay ang pagkakaisa, pagtutulungan at sipag.

Kayo mga secretary ng mga sanggunian hinuhubog ninyo ang mga unang hakbang sa ating mga super region. Naalala niyo yung State of the Nation Address ko pinag-usapan ko ang mga super region. Halimbawa, sa North Luzon, mga ano — ayan, naimbag nga malem niyo amin. At sa Mindanao maayong pag-abot — sa North Luzon at Mindanao ang agrikultura yon ay devolved kaya nakasalalay ang tagumpay sa mga lokal na opisyal na tulad ninyo.

Sa Central Philippines yung Bikol — o marhay nga hapon at saka Bisayas, maayong hapon — tinututukan natin ang pagpalago ng turismo, ang pagpapaganda ng mga bayan at pag-aalaga ng mga baybayin ay responsibilidad ng mga lokal na pamahalaan.

Dito naman sa urban beltway na kung saan patatatagin natin ang small and medium enterprises para gumanda ang investment climate, ang mga lokal na pamahalaan ang nagkakaloob ng mga business permit.

Nailipat na rin sa pamahalaang lokal ang social welfare at kalusugan, kasama ang pagpapalano ng pamilya. Kaya andami-daming papel ng inyong mga sanggunian na pinaglilingkuran ninyo sa ating mga importanteng programa para sa kaunlaran. Kaya sa mga secretary ng mga sanggunian at sa lahat ng mga lokal na official, hinihiling ko sa inyo na ipagpatuloy natin ang mga nasimulang pagbabago para sa ating bansa.

Sama-sama nating itaguyod ang malakas na republika. Maganda yung sinabi ninyo, yung theme ninyo eto oh, “Strong Nation, malakas na republika na nakasalalay sa pinagkakaisang panaginip ng kapayapaan, seguridad at prosperidad sa ating bahagi ng mundo.”

Kaya ako’y nagpapasalamat sa inyong lahat. Pag tinitignan ko kayo naalala ko ang trabaho naman ng Cabinet secretary ko kasi yon ang inyong trabaho eh. Yung Cabinet secretary ko ay si Ric Saludo, at ano ang trabaho niya? Siyempre yung minutes, at ginagawa rin niya yung follow up, meron din siyang running tally, yung minutes ano na ang ginagawa ng pagpapatupad. Palagay ko yon ang isang magandang paglilingkuran din ng PLEASES na tinitignan din ninyo yung implementasyon nung mga pinagkasunduang minutes ng sanggunian. Kaya ang laki-laki ng inyong papel, kaya ako’y nasisiyahan na nakapagbisita sa inyo ngayon.

Alam niyo, dito ko sana gagawin yung aking official lunch para sa Crown Prince of Brunei. Tapos sabi nila hindi pwede kasi meron nang previous commitment ang Coconut Palace. Kayo pala yon.

Kaya napakaimportante kayo, at ang ganda-ganda nitong lugar na pinagmimiting ninyo, napaka-inspiring, nakatingin tayo sa dagat. At siyempre doon mga taga- Visayas sanay na sanay na kayo sa dagat, marami kayong magandang baybay. Pero napakaganda itong mga surroundings at inaasahan ko na inspired na inspired kayo para mas lalong more that ‘PLEASES’ will please the people that you serve through your excellent service to the Sanggunian.

Maraming salamat at congratulations sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Closing Program of the 8th National Assembly of the Philippine League of Secretaries to the Sanggunian, Inc. (PLEASES). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203531/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3039&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 28th Catholic Mass Media Awards (CMMA) Ceremonies

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 28th Catholic Mass Media Awards (CMMA) Ceremonies

[Delivered at the Carlos P. Romulo Auditorium, RCBC Plaza, Makati City, November 10, 2006]

Thank you very much, Ambassador Cabangon-Chua.

His Eminence Cardinal Rosales, Senate President Villar, other guests, members of mass media, ladies and gentlemen.

Congratulations! To all the Catholic Mass Media awardees that will be honored this afternoon. Congratulations! Also to the Catholic Church for this project of 28 years, so important to the freedom of the press, the freedom of the media and the responsibility of media.

We are here because we believe in the freedom of the press, the freedom of media and also media responsibility. We embrace the central role of the media in a free society. It gives us great pain to see any journalist harmed, any member of the media harmed. We don't always agree with members of the media and what they report, but that is just part of the give-and-take of politics and our job.

On my part, I see my job as being totally focused on the economy because only a strong economy will lift our people out of poverty and expand our middle-class.

The first phase of our economic turn around plan was to stabilize our budget and spending, and then secure increase revenue through better tax and customs collection, and through an increase of the value-added tax. Thank you Senate President Manny Villar for the Senate and the House voting these very important measures.

These were painful but necessary steps. We achieved the goal. The nation is better for it, though I have paid a political price in public opinion, very much recorded by mass media. But it is a price well-worth paying.

Phase two of our plan is to take advantage of our improved economic picture to finally make the long overdue investments in infrastructure, education and health care. And also, to reduce hunger to one-half of what it is today within a year, to name a few areas. We are well into this phase.

The strength of the Philippine economy today reflects faith in the political leadership from the Filipino people and the world. Tough economic reforms and revenue measures are reaping the tide of confidence. The social payback would soon be flowing down in terms of better paying jobs, improved infrastructure and enhanced social services, including reduced hunger, cutting across the alleviation of poverty and hunger.

Investments are up. Inflation remains steady while our money and stock markets have surged to record highs. We are on full swing towards economic take-off and the people are rearing for more.

Finally, phase three is to turn our sights to truly joining the ranks of first world nations. We have a vision that we will take our place alongside other first world nations by 2020. This phase must be marked by increased attention to our natural environment and making sure we build up not just deplete our natural resources. We've already laid out the guidelines, the outlines of creating a green Philippines that encompasses conservation, energy independence, reforestation and designation of national parks and wildlife refuges.

Another hallmark of a modern first world nation is social justice and human rights. The poor not only suffer economically but also through a double standard imposed by an unjust society. We are determined to stop the atrocious killings of journalists and political advocates. We condemn any and all violations in the harshest possible way. There is no room for vigilantes undermining the rule of law.

We are very aware of the concerns these killings have caused both at home and abroad. To that end, we have personally invited members of the European Union to monitor and visit our activities — Finland and Spain have accepted. And I believe, I'm the first head of state ever to meet Amnesty International in London. I did so because we are deeply concerned about this issue. Finally, we launched an independent commission to get to the bottom of these killings once and for all.

I understand that a few days ago, the commission met with the Norwegian ambassador. And although the commission is independent, I have suggested that since the left do not want to cooperate with the commission, I've suggested that the commission turn their attention to interviewing the families of victims who are members of the press and mass media.

I wish we could wave a wand and end all the killings now and forever. We're doing everything in our power to stop them. I hope that everyone remembers though that we do have a number of violent groups that operate in the Philippines — communists and religious radicals — and they are also responsible for a lot of violence.

We're not excusing any killings, and certainly not if they are done by rogue police or military, some of whom are now in jail. We do want to make clear that things get pretty murky with all of these violent groups playing for keeps.

Having said that, let me say that I am happy that the Catholic Church provides for this mass media awards. Because in our government, in our administration, we not only seek to fight poverty, we seek to fight poverty in ways that are in accordance with the teachings of the church. That is why we do not have the death penalty. That is why we promote natural family planning.

And let me make one final note about the Philippines we want to create. Perhaps, more than anything, we want to create enough economic opportunity here at home, including a high quality of life so that Filipinos will want to stay and live in their own country. Millions of hardworking Filipinos live abroad and do our country proud. But we want to make sure that the next generation has a choice to stay at home and live and prosper, or to live abroad and do the same. In other words, a job abroad should be a career choice and not a necessity for a hardworking Filipino.

So much is going well in the Philippines, if you can cut through the headlines and the clutter, and mass media has so much to do with that. Much remains to be done. I hope to leave office in 2010 with a nation well on its way to first world status. And I hope that mass media will do its part, being free but equally responsible. Equally important being responsible.

To all of you once again, congratulations!

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the 28th Catholic Mass Media Awards (CMTA) Ceremonies. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203513/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3038&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 70th anniversary celebration of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 70th anniversary celebration of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC)

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, November 11, 2006]

Thank you very much, Commissioner Palabrica.

Chairperson Barin and all the commissioners and all the very valuable staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Happy 70th Anniversary!

When Chairman Barin asked me if you could pay a courtesy... She said could officers of the SEC pay a courtesy call for me on the occasion of your 70th anniversary, I gladly agreed. And then when I was reviewing my schedule and I saw again the request to pay a courtesy call, I said why courtesy call, it's a great year, 70th year, let's have a very nice lunch celebration. So here we are today.

It's my way of saying congratulations! To Chair Fe and to the whole team at the SEC. You are celebrating your 70th anniversary just when our stock market is experiencing an extended bull run, hitting a 9-year high and piercing the psychological barrier of 2800. Congratulations! To you for that.

A great way to celebrate your 70th anniversary because you have contributed to that bull run as part of the economic team that has brought renewed confidence in our markets and fresh optimism in Philippine business.

On the front line of government agencies, you are among those privileged to have been rated "very good" by the Civil Service Commission. Congratulations! Your efforts to reduce the incidence of graft and corruption, both within the organization as mentioned by Chair Barin's reforms and also in corporate governance, are commendable.

You are also contributing significantly to the public coffers. Thank you for the 645 million pesos remitted to the Bureau of Treasury last October 30th. That was a great 70th anniversary present you gave the Philippine government. It's a 139 million over the amount we had targeted for you to raise for the whole year. So, congratulations! Okay.

Just as you have worked hard to surpass your goals, your partners in our economic team have left no stone unturned to bring the economy back on track and keep it humming. The results of that synergy are now out there for all Filipinos to appreciate and enjoy: our exports have been increasing by over 15 percent this year; international investors and rating houses are giving us the thumbs up; the VAT has yielded 54 billion pesos in nine months, exceeding the target by 1.4 billion pesos.

We commend our revenue agencies for a job well done, but most of all we extol the Filipino taxpayer who continues to exercise the patriotic duty of paying the right taxes. We will continue to increase our tax collection efficiency, seal revenue leakages and maintain disciplined spending as we clear more hurdles along the road and open broader opportunities for enterprises and jobs.

We're determined to raise the rankings of the Philippines in the U.N. Human Development Index on the back of our steady gains in the economy. We shall wield new revenues to accord every Filipino a life of dignity, productivity and human security against the backdrop of larger reforms in governance. As we translate our economic gains into broader social justice, we also extol the sense of productivity of every Filipino that is keeping our strong niche in world competition. Economic growth, competitiveness and social justice are key thrusts to a better future.

Twenty two billion pesos has been shaved off next year's interest payments for our foreign debts.

Our people have led the march back to our fiscal health. They will enjoy our first gains. We have ordered the allocation of P16 billion of the P22 billion savings to additional funds for education; P5 billion to additional funds for health services; P1 billion to additional funds for social welfare. That way the savings in interests go directly to increase social services.

We aim to be part of the first world in twenty years by loosening the grip of poverty at the grassroots. Our immediate objective is to give the poorest of our people the basic amenities of food, water, electricity, health services, education and decent jobs with which they will improve the quality of their lives.

We are starting our strengthened poverty reduction campaign through a comprehensive anti-hunger program to bring affordable food to the ten poorest provinces of our country. While working on our pro-poor programs, we are giving equal attention to the policy, systems and physical reforms that create the environment for sustainable economic growth. And that's where you come in.

All these measures are bringing in positive results. End-august foreign direct investments rose 21 percent, amounting to 1.3 billion dollars. The combined BOI-PEZA record of investments for ten months of this year reflect 220 billion pesos, and may hit 240 billion pesos or more by the end of the year. And of course, I should not be the one to tell you what the SEC statistics are. You know that better than me.

This new growth is not a fluke. It is not a one-time upsurge. Indicators show that it is sustainable.

As the vanguard of the country's corporate governance, you in the SEC set the tone of business practices. You in the SEC ensure that the field will always be level for business. You in the SEC therefore have a direct hand in making our country attractive to investors.

This steady economic growth means you will have your hands full in the coming years with the number of new and expanded businesses to register, monitor and regulate. And I support the reforms that you have put out in your blueprint for the next five years. You in SEC have shown your sterling competence in these areas of promotion and regulation. We know you are committed to work even harder to make a bigger contribution to the fight against poverty and the march towards becoming a first world nation by the year 2020. And so, we support your reforms because we want to have a first world Securities and Exchange Commission for a first world country.

Congratulations on your next 70th year!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the 70th Anniversary Celebration of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203506/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3037&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremonies of the 32nd Top Level Management Conference (TLMC) of KBP member stations Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremonies of the 32nd Top Level Management Conference (TLMC) of KBP member stations

[Delivered at the Sampaguita Ballroom, Taal Vista Hotel, Tagaytay City, Cavite, November 16, 2006]

Daghan salamat Cerge, not only the longest serving chairman of KBP but also my new Director General of the Presidential Management Staff. Congratulations!

Congressman Remulla; Mayor Tolentino; Chairman Nicdao, thank you for the beautiful things that you said. And thank you also for the cooperation of KBP to balance press freedom and national security; Butch Canoy, thank you very much for your leadership in the KBP; and to all of you, magandang umaga na naman sa inyong lahat.

Magkasama na naman tayo. Taun-taon senador pa ako magkasama tayo, di ba kayo nagsasawa? Ako hindi. Hindi ako nagsasawa dahil binibigyan natin ng halaga ang inyong suporta at serbisyo sa taong-bayang Pilipino.

Madalas nating sinasabi at sasabihin muli: naninindigan tayo para sa kalayaan ng media bilang baluarte ng demokrasyang Pilipino. Yinayakap natin ang sentral na papel ng responsableng media. Responsableng media, yon ang paninindigan ng KBP. Ang panindigan ng KBP ay panindigan din natin. Ang sentral na papel ng responsableng media sa pag-angat ng ating pulitika, ekonomiya at lipunan.

Malakas kayong kabalikat ng panguluhan sa pagsagot sa mga hamong himaharap ng ating taong-bayan. Una sa lahat, sabihin ko, na importante talaga ang ating pagkakabalikat gaya nang binanggit ni Chairman Nicdao. Sabi nga niya na merong plot noong Pebrero. Merong plot kontra sa gobyerno, meron ring plot ang responsableng media na manatiling responsable. Dahil yung pananatiling responsable yon din ang pananatiling magiging libre ang media.

And now, some of the events that led from that event — that attempted coup in February — are finally coming to a closure, I hope.

I personally commend the operatives who worked on the Honasan case. I hope there will be no more destabilizing in our democracy and our economy.

The people are tired of adventurism. They seek opportunities to move up and forward in an atmosphere of political stability. The confidence of the world in the Philippines grows firmer everyday. We must put coup threats in the dustbin of history. And we must put coup plotters in jail as we traverse the long journey to the first world in the next two decades.

It is time for solidarity and hard work, not messing up the lives of our people.

Naaresto na rin ang sampung nagpatay sa mga taga media. Nalulungkot ako na naabala hindi lang ang mga taga rito kundi na rin ang buong mundo ng mga masamang balita gaya nang pagpatay ng mga taga media. Di katanggap-tanggap at baligtad sa ating demokrasya ang antas ng karahasan sa pulitika.

Lininaw na natin, ayaw na ayaw natin ang nangyayari. Ginagawa natin ang ilang mga matatag na hakbang upang ma-kontrol natin ito. May mga tagumpay gaya nang sinabi ko, sampu sa nagpatay ng media ang nahuli na at nasa preso na. Sana naman kapag sila ay nahuhuli at naprepreso, pareho ang headline gaya ng kung nung nagpatay sila ng taga media.

Napakamalas na pinagsasamantala ang sitwasyon ng maraming mga grupong radikal na kontra sa gobyerno. Pinu-purge ang kanilang mga ranggo, nagpapatay ng mga inosenteng mamamayan, tapos noon binibintangan ang gobyerno. Ganunpaman, hindi natin hahayaan ang extremism.

Isang henerasyon nang sakit ng Pilipinas itong mga extra-judicial killings. Yon ang dahilan kung bakit binuo natin ang Melo Commission. Yon ang dahilan kung bakit nakipagkita tayo sa mga pangmundong grupo ng karapatang pantao. Yon ang dahilan kung bakit napakabuong loob tayong solusyunan ang problema.

Di natin hinihiling sa medya na ibalita lamang ang magaganda, but deliver the facts straight and accurate. Palagay ko yon ang talagang diwa ng code ng KBP. At maraming magagandang pangyayaring hindi kasing lawak ang balita sa media haming sa kailangang malaman ng taumbayan. Pinakamagandang pagkakataon ngayon dalhin ang magandang balita sa taumbayan upang maani natin ang kanilang kompiyansa kasama ng mundo. Di ko na kailangan ilista lahat ng magagandang balita. Binanggit na ni Chairman Nicdao yung napakaraming magagandang balita na halos nakikita lamang natin sa business page at hindi sa front page.

And we have so many people and entities that we must thank because of the good news. We extol our overseas Filipino workers who continue to be a strong driving force of our economy. Napansin ba ninyong ang dami na sa kanila ang bumibili ng mga bahay at condo dito? Kaya tuloy umaangat ang ating housing at construction industry. Dahil nagiging upbeat na ang mood ng ating taumbayan lumalakas ang inspirasyon nating itulak at ipasulong ang ating road map for global competitiveness. Kayo KBP hinahanap rin ninyo ang competitiveness ng inyong industriya dahil sa pag-angat ng teknolohiya sa mundo ganun din ang buong bansa.

We must be able to sustain the confidence reaped by Filipinos the world over and at home by our unswerving attention to economic take off, social justice, the rule of law and effective democracy.

The face of national unity and consolidation is coming into sharp focus through the responsible exercise of media freedom. At yung responsible exercise ng media freedom iba yon sa exercise ng license, ng media license. What we're after is freedom but responsible media. Through the exercise of responsible media freedom, help me make our people understand the reforms we must pursue to move forward. Gaya nang sabi natin, move forward faster by staying in tune with our vision.

You have a vision of excellence and triumph for the broadcast industry. We have a vision of excellence and triumph of our whole country.

So together, let us work stronger, faster. Let us impart to our people our agenda of excellence and triumph. Congratulations!

Maraming salamat. Hope to see you next year.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Opening Ceremonies of the 32nd Top Level Management Conference (TLMC) of KBP member stations. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203437/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3035&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during a meeting with the Filipino community in Vietnam

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During a meeting with the Filipino community in Vietnam

[Delivered at Tao Li Room, Hotel Nikko Hanoi, Vietnam, November 17, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Bert Romulo, ang ating Secretary of Foreign Affairs na nung huling narito ako noong 2003, siya ang ating Executive Secretary noon. Noon pag-nagbabiyaha ako parati naiwan siya. So sabi niya siya ay domestic helper noon. Pero nung naging Secretary of Foreign Affairs siya pagkatapos ng 2004 elections parati nang kasama ko sa mga biyahe kaya siya raw ay OFW na rin.

Gusto ko rin batiin si Ambassador Berenguel na ilang beses ko nang nakita sa iba't-ibang assignment. At salamat at bagamat maliit ang Philippine community dito gaya nang sabi niya, ito ay mas malaki keysa yung dating assignment niya doon sa Eastern Europe. At papakilala ko yung mga kasapi ng aking congressional delegation. Nakita n'yo kami ay all-women group. Kasi pagkatapos ng APEC, ang susunod na international summit doon naman sa Cebu, sa Mandaue City, yung East Asian Summit. At ang host congresswoman ng East Asian Summit sa Mandaue City ay si Congresswoman Neri Soon-Ruiz. Mabuti kasama siya para makita niya kung ano pa ang mga nagagawa ng Hanoi na pwede pang magawa ng Mandaue City.

Tapos katabi niya dito sa dulo, ang congresswoman ng Bulacan. Alam n'yo doon sa Bulacan nung last term, may dalawang congressman ang pangalan Willy, kaya tawag nila ka-Willy-Willy. Tapos noon pagsabi naman nila kay Lorna Silverio, kanais-nais daw. si Congresswoman Lorna Silverio.

Galing naman sa Mindoro Occidental, si Congresswoman Girlie Villarosa. At yung aking Cabalen, congresswoman from Pampanga, si Congresswoman Anna York Bondoc-Sagun. All-women kami na mga politicians pero yung ating mga Cabinet member naman ay lalaki: si Secretary Bert Romulo; ang ating Trade Secretary, si Peter Favila; at saka ang ating Press Secretary, si Toting Bunye.

Kasama na rin natin dahil siya ang namumuno ng APEC Anti-Terrorism Task Force kaya hindi ba n'yo nahahalata walang terrorism attack sa Pacific ream itong mga nakaraang taon? Meron tayong bragging rights dahil sa magandang trabaho ni General Benjie Defensor.

Sa inyong mga kababayan dito, salamat at naghintay kayo, nahuli yung aking eroplano. Magandang gabi sa inyong lahat at narito na naman tayo kasi tayo ang magkasama nung 2003 merong kulang sa inyo. Kasi noong araw bahagi ng Philippine community dito yung Spanish Ambassador to Vietnam, kasi Filipino yung asawa niya, nandito siya noon. Pagkatapos ng ilang buwan naging ambassador siya to the Philippines, si Ambassador Sagaz. Kumusta raw sa inyong lahat.

At sabi nga ni Ambassador Berenguel, alam naman n'yo lahat kung bakit tayo nandito ngayon, yung summit ng APEC na gaganapin bukas hanggang Linggo. At 21 countries... Ah, 21 economies, economies hindi necessarily countries kasi meron diyang Hong Kong kasama doon, kasama doon yung Taipei. So economies ang tawag doon. Napakalaking grupo ito, binubuo ng mga ekonomiyang pumapalibot sa Pacific ocean, yung tinatawag na Pacific ream. So nariyan ang ating mga kapit-bansa sa Timog Silangang Asya: Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand, Vietnam, at siyempre malakas ang ating relasyon dito sa loob ng ASEAN. Nariyan din yung ating mga economic partners sa Hilagang Asya: China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Japan, Korea. Doon din sa Oceania: Australia, New Zealand. Ganun din sa Europa na bahaging Asya rin yung Russia. Karamihan sa kanila ay mga dialogue partners ng ASEAN o di kaya naman ay kasama natin sa East Asia Summit. Sila-sila rin yung pupunta, magbibisita kay Neri Soon-Ruiz sa isang... Mga two weeks, three weeks from now. Sa Western Pacific naman nariyan ang Papua New Guinea, isang kapwa nating archipelago.

Sa kabilang panig namn ng Pacific, nariyan ang Hilagang Amerika, binubuo ng Estados Unidos at Canada, two of our strongest trade and development partners. Kasama rin natin sa APEC ang tatlong ekonomiya sa gitna at Timog Amerika: ang Mexico, Chile at Peru, with whom we share a lot historically and culturally because we were all former colonies of Spain. Kaya napakahalaga para sa Pilipinas ang maging bahagi ng APEC.

Sana nga ay nai-schedule itong pagkikita natin pagkatapos ng summit para maikuwento ko sa inyo kung anu-anong mga napag-usapan. Kanya lamang ito ang pinaka-convenient mutually sa ating dalawa — kayo at ako — ganunpaman, mahalaga na nagkakaroon tayo ng pagkakataong magkita-kita muli at makipagbalitaan.

Gaya nga nang sabi ni Ambassador at nung nalaman ko nga nung huling nagkita tayo, maliit lamang ang Filipino community dito sa Vietnam, lalo na kung ikumpara natin sa ibang mga lugar tulad ng Singapore na bibisitahin ko pagkatapos nito, o tulad nung Hong Kong, yung assignment ni Ambassador bago siya pumunta sa Eastern Europe. But I saw that the last time, I see it again now, your influence and impact on your host country far outweighs your number. Kaya congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Ilan kayo rito? Humigit-kumulang isang libo dito sa Vietnam. But most of you, as Ambassador said, and as I saw the last time, are professionals or skilled workers, including accountants, engineers, teachers, managers. Napakaganda ng kalagayan ninyo dito at napakataas ang tingin sa inyo ng mga Vietnamese. In other words, hindi lang national ang inyong contribution, kundi regional and even global.

Salamat sa tulong ninyo sa Pilipinas. Hindi lamang yung mga pinapadala n'yong remmitances kundi na rin meron sa inyong tumulong sa ating mga kababayang nasalanta ng landslide sa Leyte noong Marso. At salamat din sa dollars na ibinigay nina Mr. Galang at Mr. Danganan kanina na pakikinabangan ng ating mga mag-aaral na Pilipino sa pamamagitan ng mga silid-aralan na maipapatayo natin gamit itong perang ito. Maraming salamat sa inyo.

Ibinigay ko na kay Secretary Romulo yung 5,500 dollars in cash, kasi makapal eh. Sabi ko Bert kung pwede ibigay mo na kay Secretary Jesli Lapus para maitayo niya yung mga paaralan.

Salamat naman na nanonood pala kayo, napapanood pala ninyo yung NBN-4. So hindi na kayo masyadong homesick. At gusto kong idagdag na balita, noon talagang nahihirapan tayo dahil kulang ang silid-aralan. Pero ngayon dahil malakas ang ating piso at dahil sa ating economic reform bumaba ang interest na binabayad natin sa ibang bansa, naka-save tayo ng 22 billion pesos next year in interest payment. At doon sa savings doon, 16 billion pesos ay ilalagay natin sa pandagdag budget sa ating mga silid-aralan.

Twenty two yon eh. Sixteen ang ilalagay sa pandagdag para sa edukasyon, dadagdagan rin natin yung health ng five billion, at dadagdagan natin ang social welfare ng one billion kaya doon pupunta yung ating 22 billion pesos in interest savings.

Dapat naman hindi kasi tayo maiwan ng ibang mga karatig-bansa. Ang ating growth rate, I'm very proud to say in our administration, average growth rate in the six years... No, five years of my administration is the highest average growth rate of any administration since my father, the late President Diosdado Macapagal. At ang ating per capita income ngayon ay 1,400 dollars, kaya middle-income economy na tayo.

Kahit... Ganunpaman, kahit na mas mataas ang ating per capita income keysa sa Vietnam — nandito kayo, testigo kayo — ang Vietnam mabilis ang pag-angat. Mahigit tatlong dekada pa lang ang nakaraan mula nang matapos ang Vietnam war na tumagal halos tatlong dekada rin. But in such a short time, they managed to rebuild their country.

At ano ang dahilan? Maraming mga analysts ang nagsasabi, patunay ito sa disiplina ng mga Vietnamese. Sila nga ang sinasabing the next China. Ano ang sikreto ng China? Yon din, yung kanilang disiplina. Marahil, sa pagkakataong ito, subukan naman nating mga Pilipino na matuto mula sa halimbawa ng mga Vietnamese at Chinese sa kanilang disiplina para makamit ang pag-unlad ng ating bansa.

Sa mabilis na pag-unlad ng Vietnam marami rin tayong makikitang pagkakataon para lalo ring mapabilis ang pag-unlad sa Pilipinas patungo sa inaasam nating matatag or malakas na republika. Maraming malalaking oportunidad ang mabilis na paglago ng ekonomiya ng Vietnam para sa Pilipinas, and you know this. I'm sure as Filipinos, you are proud to find such familiar names as San Miguel, Jollibee, Robina and Oishi here in Vietnam. At talagang nakikita natin lumiliit ng lumiliit ang mundo.

Narito tayo sa Hanoi dala-dala ang watawat ng kagalingan ng Pilipinas at lumalaking prestihiyo natin sa mundo. Ngayon itong taon, ang Pilipinas ang namumuno or chairman ng ASEAN, kaya gaganapin yung summit sa ASEAN. At dahil tayo ang chairman ng ASEAN, masigasig nating tinutulak ang higit na malapit na kooperasyon sa ekonomiya at seguridad na higit na malaking rehiyon ng Asya Pacific. Ito ay mas malaking rehiyon keysa ASEAN, itong APEC. Pito sa ASEAN countries ay bahagi ng APEC at saka may mga malalaking bansa gaya ng America, yung South America, Central America, na hindi bahagi ng ASEAN pero bahagi ng APEC. Yung East Asia Summit naman yung India kasama pero wala sa APEC, at meron tayong tatlong ASEAN countries na, as I said, hindi kasama ng APEC. Pero malaki ang overlap ng dalawang grupo. At dahil sa overlap ng dalawang grupo, talagang madalas nagkikita-kita ang mga lider nitong mga ekonomiya.

Bukas mangingibabaw sa ating pag-uusap kay Pangulong Bush ang pangmatagalang pagkabalikat ng Pilipinas at Amerika upang labanan ang terorismo at ang kahirapan na kalinya ng higit na malaking agenda ng APEC na seguridad ng tao or human security at kooperasyon sa ekonomiya. At gaya nang sabi ko Pilipinas ang Chairman or Head ng Anti-Terrorism Task Force ng APEC.

Layunin natin maging masusing kasapi ng lumilitaw na pangrehiyong synergy sa ekonomiya at seguridad dahil sa ating mga stratehiyang lokasyon sa Pacific at presensiya ng milyung-milyong Pilipino sa ibayong-dagat, kasama na kayo, na ang inyong presensiya ay nararamdaman sa pagtayo at pagtulay ng mga bansa sa Pacific. Humuhubog ng malakas na hangin ang lumalaking katatagan sa pulitika at ekonomiya upang tulakin ang Pilipinas na pasulong sa mundo.

Last November, Secretary Romulo was here in Vietnam for a meeting of our joint commission for bilateral cooperation, kung papano ba magiging mas malapit ang ating dalawang bansa. It's only a sea that separates us, the South China Sea.

One of the landmarks agreement in that meeting was that we would strive to raise our total two-way trade to two billion dollars by 2007 from a little more than one billion dollars by 2005. Well, tayo meron na tayong binibili sa kanila, yung bigas. Malaki ang pag-angat natin ng bigas mula sa Vietnam. Ngayon, ano naman ang ibebenta natin sa kanila? Sana makatulong kayo, ating mga overseas Filipinos, na makabenta naman ng mga produkto natin dito. Kasi marami sa inyo businessmen, managers, accountants. Pwede kayong magdagdag ng inyong trabaho, maging traders din kayo, magdala ng produkto ng Pilipinas dito sa Vietnam. After all, trade between Vietnam and the Philippines is nothing new .

Even three or four centuries ago, Philippine merchant ships docked in the old port town of Hoi An, to bring home high-grade silk, porcelain, mother-of-pearl and other precious cargo, some of which were then brought to the new world through the Manila-Acapulco galleon trade. So nung panahong yon, yung mga gamit ng Vietnam patungo doon sa Amerika ay dumadaan sa Pilipinas. Tayo ang hub, hanggang ngayon gusto pa rin nating maging hub sa trade between the American continent and the Asian mainland continent.

Isa pang haligi ng relasyon natin sa Vietnam ang mga usaping pandagat. Isang magandang halimbawa ng pagtutulungan natin sa larangan na ito'y yung tinatawag na Joint Marine Seismic Undertaking kung saan kasama rin ang Tsina. Eto nung araw, noong 2003 nung nagpunta ako dito, kagagawa lang ng Oilipinas at Tsina itong agreement. What is this agreement? At first, it was an agreement between the Philippine National Oil Company and the China National Offshore Oil Company. At later on, the PetroVietnam joined to cooperate on data gathering and analysis in the South China Sea to assess the potential for petroleum development in the South China Sea.

Noon, China at Pilipinas pa lang. At nung... Naalala n'yo nagpunta ako, nag-state visit ako dito sa Vietnam. Nung nagpunta ako dito sa Vietnam, nag-o-object ang Vietnam kung bakit raw nagkasunduan ang China at Pilipinas na mag-explore sa South China Sea eh meron din silang claim. So yung predecessor ni Ambassador Berenguel, naalala ninyo si Ambassador Vic Lecaros, ang inatas natin sa kanya, kumbinsihin mo ang Vietnam na sumama rin dito sa agreement na ito. Kaya tatlong bansa ang gumawa ng agreement, sabay-sabay tayong nagre-research sa South China Sea. Ngayon, natapos na yung research na yon. Ina-analyze na sa mga laboratoryo or sa kanilang mga computer. At sabi ni Secretary Romulo, ngayon at natapos na yung research mismo at ginagawa na yung desk work, dapat pumunta na tayo sa susunod na hakbang ng ating kooperasyon. At yon ang... Biro n'yo kung makahanap tayo ng langis. Actually, meron na tayong nahanap na langis off Palawan, doon sa Malampaya. Yung Malampaya Company, hindi Malampaya, Palawan. Ang pangalan ng project ay Malampaya. Meron na tayong oil na nahanap doon pero mas maraming oil ang mahahanap natin, mas aangang ang ating ekonomiya. And I hope, I really long for that day.

I long for the day when going abroad for a job like what you do is an option and not the only choice for a hardworking Filipino worker. And our economic plans are designed to allow the Philippines to break out of the cycle of having our Filipinos go abroad because they have to, because there are not enough jobs in the Philippines. That's why we remain so stubbornly focused on the economy, and why we want our super regions to work.

Ngayon, ano ba itong mga super region na ito? Well, we need to spread the wealth in the Philippines and keep the people working at home. So we're creating appealing employment opportunities by focusing on the development of priority sectors such as agri-business in North Luzon. So that's one super- region made up of Regions I, II, CAR and part of Region III. And then industry services and logistics in the urban beltway from Clark-Subic in the north through Metro Manila to Batangas port. So that's another super region made up of parts of Region III, parts of Region IV... No, Region IV, part of Region IV-A including the province of Congresswoman Villarosa and Metro Manila. And then tourism in Central Philippines, because more than half of the foreign tourists go to Central Philippines, made up of the Visayas, Palawan, Bicol and some islands of Region IV-B. So that's one super region as well. And then agri-business in Mindanao. And in another... In telecommunications technology and education for business process outsourcing in the cyber corridor which cuts along the length of the other super regions from Baguio through Metro Manila, to Cebu and to Davao.

So, eto ang ginagawa natin para hindi nalulustay ang ating mga infrastructure investments. At bilang bunga nitong ginagawa natin pati na rin yung reporma sa buwis sana nababalitaan ninyo, maging sa media o sa inyong mga pamilya at kamag-anak sa Pilipinas na... Ukol sa paglago ng ating ekonomiya, ang pagtaas ng piso. About a year ago, our peso was 55 to 1. Now it is 50 to 1. Gayundin ang ating credit outlook, nung isang taon, negative. Ngayon, stable. Yung pagbaba ng ating budget deficit, about two years ago, it was 200 billion pesos. This year, it's 100 billion pesos. I was aiming to have a balance budget by 2010. But the way we're going, our economic managers, Peter Favila, are insisting na it will be 2008.

At siyempre bunga lahat nito, or bunga ba or dahilan basta nag-i-interact lahat yung mga factors na yan, ang paglaki ng ating foreign currency reserves. At siyempre saan nanggagaling ang ating foreign currency reserves? Sure, may exports. Sure, may investments. Pero meron isang sikreto ng Pilipinas na hindi naman sikreto dahil alam ng buong mundo — ang ating mga overseas Filipinos.

Kaya ang laki, ang laki ng inyong kontribusyon sa ating bansa. Nagko-contribute kayo dito sa paglago ng Vietnam pero nagko-contribute din kayo sa paglago ng Pilipinas. At sana nga tuluy-tuloy ang inyong suporta sa ating minamahal na bansa para sa ganun, gaya nang sabi ko, it will just be a choice and not a necessity to work in another country like Vietnam.

Sa inyong lahat, I'm so happy to see all of you. Hope to see you again soon whether here or in the Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during a Meeting with the Filipino Community in Vietnam. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203429/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3034&Itemid=38

Victory Message of President Arroyo for Manny Pacquiao following his third round knock-out victory over Mexican Erik Morales

Victory Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
For Manny Pacquiao following his third round knock-out victory over Mexican Erik Morales in their third face-off in the ring in Las Vegas, Nevada

[Delivered on board PAL flight bound for Singapore, November 19, 2006]

Narito kami ngayon sa eroplano mula Hanoi patungong Singapore. Kanina pagkatapos ng meeting, yung huling leaders' retreat, ay dumating yung balita sa akin nanalo si Manny.

Well, my heart beats with joy for another victory for the Philippines. It was a battle well fought and we congratulate both sides for their courage and grit.

Kanina dahil Linggo nagsimba yung Philippine Delegation doon sa International Community Parish Church at ipinagdasal si Manny Pacquiao. Talaga naman deep in our hearts, Manny will always be a hero. The bearer of the Filipino dream of winning the good fight in all fields of human endeavor. He will always be the people's champion for toughness, discipline, hardwork and the ability to beat the odds.

Congratulations, Manny!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Victory Message for Manny Pacquiao (Following his third round knock out victory over Mexican Erik Morales in their third face-off in the ring in Las Vegas, Nevada). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203415/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3032&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the closing program of the National Forum on Internal Security and Counter-Terrorism

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the closing program of the National Forum on Internal Security and Counter-Terrorism

[Delivered at Grand Ballroom, Holiday Inn Resort Hotel, Mimosa Leisure Estate, Clark Special Economic Zone, Clarkfield, Angeles City, Pampanga, November 23, 2006]

Thank you so much Ronnie for your introduction. Thank you for your summary and thank you for hosting this strategic forum.

Governor Lapid, thank you for hosting the different governors, city mayors and the uniformed officers who are so important to the subject of this forum. Our champion for the urban beltway super region, Ed Pamintuan. Thank you, because... I don't know if you got my text. I said, you know, there are a lot of things we have to work on as far as political... You know, as far as the internal security is concerned. And I sent you a text message saying that that's part of your job as champion of the urban beltway super region here in this region.

And Oca Calderon, who is in the lead of the work of the police in our internal security, good luck! On your work. All the local government officials who are here — governors and city mayors — all the police officers, thank you all for being here and thank you for your resolve. Thank you to the local governments because as Ronnie Puno said, you're willing to spend, you're willing to put your money where your mouth is. And so if we work together and pool our resources together, certainly, we can achieve our strategic victory by 2010.

Ronnie talked about macro-economic performance. Indeed, our macro' legacies are beginning to emerge:

One, fiscal turnaround. We've all seen that. And our deficit has gone down so much, we may even have a balanced budget by 2010.

Second legacy, Charter change. Tuloy pa rin ang laban mga local government.

The third is the super regions. So that we can develop the natural advantages of your different regions. And here in the urban beltway, as I said, made up of the part of Central Luzon starting from Clark-Subic to Metro Manila through Calabarzon to Batangas port. That's the one that is overseen now by Ed Pamintuan.

And fourth macro legacy is the strategic defeat of the left. Thank you for nodding when Ronnie Puno said the year 2010.

Operationally, how do we do the strategic defeat of the left. You have had a lot of your action plans there, but really if I may mention one important indicator, revolutionary taxation must stop. Not only because it's illegal but because it is a bane to jobs and livelihood.

And then there is the Mindanao peace process. That must be factored heavily in our blueprint for internal security. We must make a distinction between the Mindanao peace process and the players, and the Abu Sayyaf and the cohorts, on the other hand.

As far as the Abu Sayyaf and its cohorts are concerned, they are already on the run and it's only a matter of time before we finally rout them. And I congratulate the police, the local governments who have been helping us fight them.

Sustained confidence is built on the twin pillars of political stability and economic growth. And I'm glad that Ronnie talked about being part of our campaign to win the hearts and minds of the people who are the target market for the insurgency and the terrorists. We need to give them the news about the economy and what it has been doing for them. After all, poverty and the sense of powerlessness that it brings provide fertile ground where terrorism can easily spread its evil ideology. And sometimes unless you point it out very clearly, the benefits to the poor of development are not very clear.

Yesterday, I was on T.V. with two ordinary citizens. One is my neighbor in Barangay San Miguel near Malacañang. I told her how has life improved over the last five years of our administration. She said, because you expanded the MRT and now because — her work is... She is a masahista — now I can go... I can spend less to go to my clients. I require less time to go to my clients, and then I can cross the underpass in Quiapo to Barangay San Miguel because it is very clear and bright and safe. So she's earning more income because of mega projects like MRT and so on.

There was another one who was there, he was a fisherman from Guimaras. And I asked him. 'how has life been changed for you since I became president? He said, 'because you have fought illegal fishing in the seas of Guimaras, now our catch is bigger, and I am earning more income.

It's so difficult for everybody to see the macro benefits, but there are more... The micro benefits of macro measures, but there are so many stories like this that I'm sure you in the LGUs can pick up more quickly than I can and spread the word around.

Meanwhile, we continue to focus on improving the economic indicators under the administration's watch. The economic and social clusters in the cabinet are getting together. I asked Ric Saludo, a Cabinet secretary, to have a joint Cabinet meeting on Tuesday of the National Anti-Poverty Commission and the National Economic and Development Authority because the economic and social clusters of the Cabinet should get together to ensure the benefits in store for the Filipinos in the short and long-term.

And here, as Ronnie has mentioned, I hope indeed that this meeting has been an opportunity for Ronnie to explain to you the solid achievements that this administration has achieved working together with you. And to talk about how we can together explain this further to the people in the countryside and even in the inner jungles of the urban areas.

Our thrust for social payback is founded on several concrete measures we are now pursuing: one is the increased compensation of state workers; the other is the expanded microfinance program, and your social workers in your municipalities are going to be important here because we have empowered the DSWD, which is devolved, to be a conduit for microfinance where the NGOs do not operate; massive infrastructure, and our champions have been going around to explain what that massive infrastructure is; pump priming through the super regions strategy to provide jobs; anti-poverty mitigating measures, most of which belong to agencies that are already devolved to the local governments; health cards for the indigents; agricultural extension for the marginalized farmers.

Just today, I talked to Arty Yap, our balikbayan Secretary of Agriculture. I told him, 'Arty, yung extension kailangan tulungan naman natin yung mga marginalized farmers.' Sabi niya, 'pero devolved na yon eh.' Extension is devolved to the local governments. Ang sabi ko, 'ano'ng ginagawa ng agricultural training institute?' 'gumagawa ng policy study'. 'ay Arty, sabi ko, we're very, very long on policy. Let's have more on implementation.' Let's have the agricultural training institute work more closely with the local governments for local projects for extension to the marginalized farmers.

Another means, another concrete project to bring development direct to the ordinary people is financial assistance and scholarships for students through CHED and the state universities and colleges, and so on.

Well, I have been calling the concerned officials because they should ensure forward momentum. Aside from these projects, there are many important things especially related to internal security and the security of our economy that the officials have to push forward faster:

One, the cases of Atong Ang, Honasan, Estrada and the mutineers must move faster.

Second, the peace process in Mindanao. And I have asked President Bush, the American government to have a deeper and broader involvement in the peace process in Mindanao, and he has said yes' and they have identified a senior person from the U.S. embassy here in Manila to be able to work with our peace process panel.

And then third, Oca, the war on street crimes, illegal drugs and illegal gambling.

And then fourth, moving on corrupt officials, tax cheats and smugglers. Kanina tinanong ko kay Boy Morales, 'ano ba itong sinasabi nilang lumusot na containers?' 'Ma'am, pumunta ako doon sa port, nilitratuhan ko yung containers, those 11 containers are still there bakit nila sinasabing lumusot?' 'Eh, siyempre ang daming hindi na makalusot.' That's why the customs collections are very high. So we really would expect that there will be a demolition job on those who are doing and meeting their targets.

Then, another important measure that was moved forward. Checking non-performing nursing schools.

Also, relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction of disaster hit areas. Rosette, I'm happy to hear that the houses in Guinsaugon are already ready for turnover, congratulations! The Duke of Gloucester, the cousin of Queen Elizabeth, is coming to the Philippines in February, and he specifically asked to see those houses in Guinsaugon. Of course, when an economic superpower wants to see a specific project, we know what that means. So congratulations, Rosette!

In general, disaster management. For instance, this barge, this barge that sunk off Occidental... Misamis Occidental — is Leo Ocampo here? — well, I have instructed that there be an investigation on why that happened, because what happened... What, they caught a local storm? But are these... Aren't this boat supposed to weather local storms? They're supposed to be double hulled, double bottomed, etcetera, etcetera. So we have to have more efficient disaster management as far as things like that are concerned.

And then, of course, our subject matter today, the war on terror and insurgency. We cannot take lightly the fact that activities being perpetrated by local terrorists enjoy the support and funding of foreign terrorist organizations. And that is the reason why we must have a concerted effort against this threat.

And I am very happy that in this forum, we can see that indeed there is implementation of E.O. 546 that gives the PNP a new role directing it to lend active support to the AFP in internal security operations. Because the DILG is in charged of supervising the PNP and overseeing — not supervising but overseeing — the local governments. So it's a perfect relationship that we can have between the PNP and the local governments.

And the solid working relationship that we can see here in this forum between the PNP and the LGUs is the key to our success.

So I thank you all, I thank the governors and city mayors for such a strong participation, fifty of you are here, I understand. I thank you for coming all the way here, I see people from very, very far away. Thank you for your interest in fighting insurgency. Thank you for interest in working with the PNP. And once again, thank you once again because this is only one of the many ways in which you have supported the national government.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Closing Program of the National Forum on Internal Security and Counter-Terrorism. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203031/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3029&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo on the emergent of macro-legacies in the horizon

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the emergent of macro-legacies in the horizon

[Delivered at the Holiday Inn Resort Hotel, Clarkfield, Angeles City, Pampanga, November 23, 2006]

EMERGENT MACRO-LEGACIES IN THE HORIZON

Ronnie talked about macro-economic performance. Indeed, our macro' legacies are beginning to emerge:

One, fiscal turnaround. We've all seen that. And our deficit has gone down so much, we may even have a balanced budget by 2010.

Second legacy, Charter change. Tuloy pa rin ang laban mga local governments.

The third is the super regions. So that we can develop the natural advantages of your different regions. And here in the urban beltway, as I said, made up of the part of Central Luzon starting from Clark-Subic to Metro Manila through Calabarzon to Batangas Port. That's the one that is overseen now by Ed Pamintuan.

And fourth macro legacy is the strategic defeat of the left. Thank you for nodding when Ronnie Puno said the year 2010.

Operationally, how do we do the strategic defeat of the Left? You have had a lot of your action plans there, but really if I may mention one important indicator, revolutionary taxation must stop. Not only because it's illegal but because it is a bane to jobs and livelihood.

And then there is the Mindanao peace process. That must be factored heavily in our blueprint for internal security. We must make a distinction between the Mindanao peace process and the players, and the Abu Sayyaf and the cohorts, on the other hand.

As far as the Abu Sayyaf and its cohorts are concerned, they are already on the run and it's only a matter of time before we finally rout them. And I congratulate the police, the local governments who have been helping us fight them.

Sustained confidence is built on the twin pillars of political stability and economic growth. And I'm glad that Ronnie talked about being part of our campaign to win the hearts and minds of the people who are the target market for the insurgency and the terrorists. We need to give them the news about the economy and what it has been doing for them. After all, poverty and the sense of powerlessness that it brings provide fertile ground where terrorism can easily spread its evil ideology. And sometimes unless you point it out very clearly, the benefits to the poor of development are not very clear.

Yesterday, I was on T.V. with two ordinary citizens. One is my neighbor in Barangay San Miguel near Malacañang. I told her how life has improved over the last five years of our administration. She said, because you expanded the MRT and now because — her work is... She is a masahista — now I can go... I can spend less to go to my clients. I require less time to go to my clients, and then I can cross the underpass in Quiapo to Barangay San Miguel because it is very clear and bright and safe. So she's earning more income because of mega projects like MRT and so on.

There was another one who was there, he was a fisherman from Guimaras. And I asked him. 'How has life been changed for you since I became president? He said, 'because you have fought illegal fishing in the seas of Guimaras, now our catch is bigger, and I am earning more income.

It's so difficult for everybody to see the macro benefits, but there are more... The micro benefits of macro measures, but there are so many stories like this that I'm sure you in the LGUs can pick up more quickly than I can and spread the word around.

Meanwhile, we continue to focus on improving the economic indicators under the administration's watch. The economic and social clusters in the cabinet are getting together. I asked Ric Saludo, a Cabinet secretary, to have a joint Cabinet meeting on Tuesday of the National Anti-Poverty Commission and the National Economic and Development Authority because the economic and social clusters of the Cabinet should get together to ensure the benefits in store for the Filipinos in the short and long-term.

And here, as Ronnie has mentioned, I hope indeed that this meeting has been an opportunity for Ronnie to explain to you the solid achievements that this administration has achieved working together with you. And to talk about how we can together explain this further to the people in the countryside and even in the inner jungles of the urban areas.

Our thrust for social payback is founded on several concrete measures we are now pursuing: one is the increased compensation of state workers; the other is the expanded microfinance program, and your social workers in your municipalities are going to be important here because we have empowered the DSWD, which is devolved, to be a conduit for microfinance where the NGOs do not operate; massive infrastructure, and our champions have been going around to explain what that massive infrastructure is; pump priming through the super regions strategy to provide jobs; anti-poverty mitigating measures, most of which belong to agencies that are already devolved to the local governments; health cards for the indigents; agricultural extension for the marginalized farmers.

Just today, I talked to Arty Yap, our balikbayan Secretary of Agriculture. I told him, 'Arty, yung extension kailangan titlungan naman natin yung mga marginalized farmers.' Sabi niya, 'pero devolved na yon eh.' Extension is devolved to the local governments. Ang sabi ko, 'ano'ng ginagawa ng agricultural training institute?' 'gumagawa ng policy study'. 'ay Arty, sabi ko, we're very, very long on policy. Let's have more on implementation.' Let's have the agricultural training institute work more closely with the local governments for local projects for extension to the marginalized farmers.

Another means, another concrete project to bring development direct to the ordinary people is financial assistance and scholarships for students through CHED and the state universities and colleges, and so on.

Well, I have been calling the concerned officials because they should ensure forward momentum. Aside from these projects, there are many important things especially related to internal security and the security of our economy that the officials have to push forward faster:

One, the cases of Atong Ang, Honasan, Estrada and the mutineers must move faster.

Second, the peace process in Mindanao. And I have asked president bush, the American government to have a deeper and broader involvement in the peace process in Mindanao, and he has said yes' and they have identified a senior person from the U.S. embassy here in Manila to be able to work with our peace process panel.

And then third, Oca, the war on street crimes, illegal drugs and illegal gambling.

And then fourth, moving on corrupt officials, tax cheats and smugglers. Kanina tinanong ko kay Boy Morales, 'ano ba itong sinasabi nilang lumusot na containers?' 'Ma'am, pumunta ako doon sa port, nilitratuhan ko yung containers, those 11 containers are still there bakit nila sinasabing lumusot?’ ‘Eh, siyempre ang darning hindi na makalusot’ That’s why the customs collections are very high. So we really would expect that there will be a demolition job on those who are doing and meeting their targets.

Then, another important measure that was moved forward. Checking non-performing nursing schools.

Also, relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction of disaster hit areas. Rosette, I’m happy to hear that the houses in Guinsaugon are already ready for turnover, congratulations! The Duke of Gloucester, the cousin of Queen Elizabeth, is coming to the Philippines in February, and he specifically asked to see those houses in Guinsaugon. Of course, when an economic superpower wants to see a specific project, we know what that means. So congratulations, Rosette!

In general, disaster management. For instance, this barge, this barge that sunk off occidental... Misamis Occidental — is Leo Ocampo here? — well, I have instructed that there be an investigation on why that happened, because what happened... What, they caught a local storm? But are these... Aren’t this boat supposed to weather local storms? They’re supposed to be double hulled, double bottomed, etcetera, etcetera. So we have to have more efficient disaster management as far as things like that is concerned.

And then, of course, our subject matter today, the war on terror and insurgency. We cannot take lightly the fact that activities being perpetrated by local terrorists enjoy the support and funding of foreign terrorist organizations. And that is the reason why we must have a concerted effort against this threat.

And I am very happy that in this forum, we can see that indeed there is implementation of E.O.546 that gives the PNP a new role directing it to lend active support to the AFP in internal security operations. Because the DILG is in charged of supervising the PNP and overseeing — not supervising but overseeing — the local governments. So it’s a perfect relationship that we can have between the PNP and the local governments.

And the solid working relationship that we can see here in this forum between the PNP and the LGUs is the key to our success.

So I thank you all, I thank the governors and city mayors for such a strong participation, fifty of you are here, I understand. I thank you for coming all the way here, I see people from very, very far away. Thank you for your interest in fighting insurgency. Thank you for interest in working with the PNP. And once again, thank you once again because this is only one of the many ways in which you have supported the national government.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of the St. Paul University Quezon City's Drama anthology entitled "Sa Ngalan ng Ama" Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the launching ceremony of the St. Paul University Quezon City's Drama anthology entitled "Sa Ngalan ng Ama"

[Delivered at the Fr. James B. Reuter Theater, Saint Paul University, Quezon City, November 24, 2006]

(concluding activities of the Asian Bishops Conference on Social Communications and Introduction of the UNESCO-ITI Asia-Pacific bureau's "Theater for All") on TV Maria of the Dream Satellite Network

Thank you.

Thank you, Ric. Thank you for your introduction.

Sister Nintha Lucilla, thank you for hosting us in this event today and congratulations! On the beautiful production, the excerpts of whom we have seen just now.

Father Reuter, thank you for having been around all these years; Bishop Cortez and all the bishops and religious leaders who are here today, thank you also for this opportunity to share our thoughts together on how media can spread the word of the Lord.

Cecille, thank you for the contribution of the I.T.I. to these efforts in culture. And Mr. Jones, congratulations and welcome to the Philippines! Together with our other delegates to the ASEAN religious convention.

And to all of you, Paulinians and visitors who are here, good afternoon to all of you.

It's a very important event that we have today. Values formation in media comes hand in hand with evangelization, and here we see today, that evangelization through media is ably supported by the Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines, the Asia-Pacific Bureau of the UNESCO International Theater Institute, and various leading universities and colleges in the country such as St. Paul University here in Quezon City.

We're glad that through the Asian Bishops Conference on Social Communications, which ended today, our regional neighborhood is harnessing theater and broadcast media to spread the word of God. Commendably, the Asia-Pacific Bureau of the UNESCO I.T.I. is helping us out by organizing theater courses for teachers, students across the ASEAN region. And thank you sister for your contribution to this effort.

The 31st UNESCO International Theater Institute World Congress was successfully held here last May, as mentioned by Sister President. But I would also like to specifically commend St. Paul University Quezon City for producing the drama anthology "Sa Ngalan Ng Ama," parts of which we saw this afternoon but which will be shown over T.V. Maria of the Dream Satellite Network. Congratulations Sister! Congratulations to all involved! and let me say, we wholeheartedly support it.

In the gospel of St. Mark, chapter 16 verse 15, Jesus Christ commanded his disciples to spread the good news of the gospel to all people in all places — the good news. At kahit na sa mga bagay ng mundo, dapat binibigyan nating diin ang mga bagay na nakaka-ahon sa loob, sa kalooban. We must tune in on our economic gains rather than on political noise even in secular matters. The signals are clear that we are on the right track, with Filipinos here and around the world exemplifying great heroism and waging on productivity and excellence. And the government, I'd like to assure you, is making sure that the fruits to be reaped from macroeconomic gains would be well within the reach of every Filipino household. The people are anticipating economic take off and keeping divisiveness and destructive politics at bay. This is the time to surge forward and not fall back as we drive the momentum of the Philippines forward.

Nasa gitna kasi ng pananampalataya at asal ng kristyanismo ang pagmamalasakit sa kapwa, lalo na yung mga kapuspalad. Kasama sa ating asal at pananampalataya yung pagkakaisa at hindi yung paninira.

We go by the exhortation of Pope John Paul II when he said to a group of Filipino Bishops at the Vatican a few years ago that “The pledge of the church in the Philippines to be engaged in renewed integral evangelization demonstrates the people’s desire to capture that Christian faith and values permeate every aspect of society.” Kasama na dito yung lipunan ng ating bansa.

The production and launching of “Sa Ngalan ng Ama,” the drama series is one important step towards this end. We hope that more schools will follow the lead of St. Paul to create heightened awareness of the faith. And I understand that the Archdiocese of Manila is now constructing a state of the art television studio, bishop, in its compound of Caritas Manila, complete with editing facilities. Congratulations to the diocese! Congratulations to Cardinal Rosales! Congratulations Bishop Cortez! For this highly worthy project. And once again, to all our bishops from the Philippines and from all over Asia, congratulations for your noble efforts!

And to all the other men and women behind this highly inspiring affair, and affairs that we are launching, the drama series and looking forward to the improved facilities of T.V. Maria, to everyone involved, you are truly an inspiration. And that is what the Lord wanted you to do, all his disciples to do. That is what the Lord wants all of us to do in propagating our Christian faith.

Maraming salamat.

Congratulations! Sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA’s Speech during the Launching Ceremony of the St. Paul University Quezon City’s Drama anthology entitled “Sa Ngalan ng Ama”. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141943/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3028&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 30th General Assembly and 10th Foundation Anniversary Closing Program of the Bishops-Ulama Conference

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 30th General Assembly and 10th Foundation Anniversary Closing Program of the Bishops-Ulama Conference

[Delivered at Ballrooms 1 & 2, The Marco Polo Hotel, Davao City, Davao del Sur, November 29, 2006]

Thank you, Archbishop Capalla.

Other archbishops and bishops. I'd like to greet also Dr. Mahid Mutilan, the other Ulamas, Bishop Gomez, the other bishops of the Christian churches, Ambassador Beckingham and the other guests, Jess Dureza and the other government officials, ladies and gentlemen.

Assalamu Alaikum! May God's peace be upon us all!

I'm sorry that I have to be the first number of the program, because I just got a call when I was coming down, it's going to be signal number 2 at ten o'clock tonight in Manila and signal number 4 in Catanduanes. So either I have to go there now or I stay here for two days, and that would be difficult because I have to oversee other response to the super typhoons in Manila so I have to go there tonight. But thank you very much for this opportunity to be here with you today.

We are gathered here once more to celebrate interfaith dialogue and solidarity at this crucial time in our national life. I'm proud to say that it was the Bishops-Ulama Conference who pioneered interfaith dialogue as an instrument in defending the national community against extremism.

At a time when nobody in the world was giving much attention to interfaith dialogue, the Bishops-Ulama Conference was already doing pioneering work in building interfaith dialogues in the communities all over Mindanao, from urban centers of Davao to the farthest villages of the island provinces like Tawi-Tawi.

After the gathering of Asia's Ulamas and Bishops in Manila in 2003 — many of you were there — interfaith dialogue appeared in the agenda of major regional and international bodies such as the United Nations and ASEAN. And it will again be a subject matter when we hold the ASEAN Summit in Cebu next month, which will also be an occasion to show the world a new Philippines.

The new Philippines we will show those who will go to Cebu are... Those that are reflected in our economic indicators which are rosy indeed: inflation is easing; we have higher dollar reserves; the market is bullish; we have a strong peso; OFW remittances are increasing. They say it's because Christmas, but then that means we've had Christmas all year long; the interest rate is low, and I hope that the cooperatives have been feeling it; investment inflows are increasing; the image of the country as investment destination is improving, as evidenced by rising Makati rentals on strong demand.

But that's not the totality of it all, those are rosy macro-economic indicators. But what we must do — and we are doing is — we're increasing the social payback of economic reforms in terms of more infrastructure, schools, health facilities, food security, and broader access to small enterprise loans.

Your cooperation and understanding are key in moving our country forward in strengthening the spiritual and moral fiber of our society, in sustaining the spirit of enterprise among our people, in keeping up our guard against terror and destabilization, in bringing peace to Mindanao, and in guiding us towards the preferential option for the poor.

And so we count on your support and understanding as the officials of the different agencies reach out to the grassroots. To deliver government service to indigent Filipinos, we have established rolling stores and ‘Tindahan Natin’ that specializes in low-priced rice and noodles; rolling drug stores and the Botika ng Bayan that sells medicines at half the price of what they were in 2001; and rolling hospitals and medical missions. We want to partner with the Bishops and the Ulamas in the roll-out of these services so that they can reach the people especially the people in Mindanao.

When we had the recent problems in our negotiations with our rebel groups among the MILF, and some sectors in Mindanao and the country expressed concern, you, the Bishops and the Ulamas not only lent your voice of confidence that there is a way forward but you also consulted the Mindanaoans and proposed specific avenues for peace. Thank you.

So, if we can say that the Philippines has never seen a religious war, it is due to the great interfaith solidarity of our people with the Bishops-Ulama Conference in the lead. With some bright prospects of our peace efforts today, to a large extent because of the efforts of the Bishops and the Ulamas, I trust that you will continue to be with us in the various ways of peace building. And we hope that with understanding and enlightenment, commensurate actions will follow to safeguard the perimeters of peace.

You are the sentinels of trust, understanding and goodwill among the tri-peoples of Mindanao — the Muslims, Christians and Lumads.

May God’s grace be with all of us, with all of you, with all the peoples of the world.

Maraming salamat. Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA’s Speech during the 30th General Assembly and 10th Foundation Anniversary Closing Program of the Bishops-Ulama Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141935/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3027&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Chief Girl Scout Medal Presentation Ceremonies

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Chief Girl Scout Medal Presentation Ceremonies

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, November 30, 2006]

Nagpapasalamat tayo sa Girl Scouts dahil pinili ninyo bilang pagbasehan nitong mga gantimpala ang ecology, livelihood, cultural heritage, health. At talaga naman ito rin ang kinatututukan ng ating bansa. Livelihood for all the people so that we can kick poverty. Ecology so that we can take care of the future especially for you, our young women. Cultural heritage so that we are proud of our past. And of course health so that as persons we can be fit to do what we have to do to serve our people. Livelihood covers all these things. If we have a comfortable living, we can take care of our environment, we can take care of learning to remember our past, we can take care of our health. Livelihood and economy are synonymous with each other.

Tayo'y nakatutok sa pagpapalago ng ating ekonomiya sapagkat ito ang tanging paraan upang magtagumpay ang laban sa kahirapan. At sa tulong ng mamamayang Pilipino, napapatupad natin ang reporma ng ekonomiya. Lumalago ang ekonomiya, lumalakas ang ating pera, dumadami ang mga mamumuhunan na lumilikha ng mga bagong trabaho. At dahil sa ating reporma nakatipid tayo ng mga interes na binabayad sa mga utang ng bansa. At yung tinipid natin ay linagay naman natin doon sa ibat-ibang kailangan sa edukasyon ng mga Girl Scouts at iba pang mga kabataan, at ginagastos din natin para sa kalusugan ng mga Pilipino.

Girls Scouts are always prepared, always ready, self-reliant and helpful to one another and to the nation. So should a nation be in a world of global warming and increasing disasters. Kaya ako'y nasisiyahan sa inyong pag-aalaga sa ating kalikasan dahil kung dumami ang mga disaster sa buong mundo ngayon ay ito ay dahil sa tinatawag nilang global warming, sabi ng mga scientists. And it is important for us as a nation to realize this. And it's good that we're having this at this time, this affair at this time when we are about to have another super typhoon.

Multi-level Disaster Management Plans from the national government down to local government units have already been activated to ensure timely and well-coordinated response in areas that could be severely hit by 'Reming.' the warnings made by PAGASA and NDCC should place the public in a state of proactive vigilance. A state of proactive vigilance in order to contain if not fully prevent the potential damage of this typhoon. Siyempre yung ating mga kabataan hindi natin inaasahan na lalabas kayo bago mag-typhoon o habang nagta-typhoon. Pero pagkatapos ng typhoon marami kayong pwedeng magawa ng paglilingkod.

In the meantime in preparation for the typhoon that's coming, the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the Philippine National Police – I've talked to General Esperon and General Calderon this morning — as well as the DSWD and the DOH. I also talked to Secretary Cabral and Secretary Duque this morning, they're already in touch with vulnerable communities for possible evacuation and relief operations. TRANSCO and NAPOCOR — I also talked to Art Aguilar of TRANSCO and Popo Lotilla his boss in the Department of Energy — are keeping watch over the power system while the DPWH and the MMDA — I also talked to Secretary Ebdane and Chairman Bayani Fernando — are checking giant billboards that may pose a danger to the public. The DTI — I also talked to Secretary Favilla this morning — the DTI shall spearhead a comprehensive monitoring of the prices to check unscrupulous traders who could be out to take advantage of the situation. We have seen the wrath of such disasters, although praise God we were spared by the very deadly tsunami and earthquakes that have visited our neighbors. Nonetheless, we have had our own share and we call on all sectors to team up and exercise our collective responsibility in these times. And our Girl Scouts will have plenty to do during the relief and rehabilitation and restoration operations.

Disaster management is not only a Philippine concern. Livelihood is not only a Philippine concern. Health is not only a Philippine concern. And the ecology certainly is not only a Philippine concern. In fact, these four subject matters are going to be important subject matters in our upcoming ASEAN and East Asia Summit.

Sa Disyembre a-diyes hanggang a-trese ay idadaos sa Cebu ang ASEAN Summit at East Asian Summit. Everybody knows I think when they read the papers about the ASEAN 10, but this is not ASEAN 10 only. This is ASEAN plus 6, that's the East Asian Summit. So we will have in fact 17 not 16 heads of government coming. Aside from the ASEAN 10, East Asia is also composed of Japan, Korea, China, Australia, New Zealand and India. And East Timor will be coming to sign a Memorandum of an Agreement with ASEAN in the hope that eventually they will also become a member of ASEAN.

So we will have 17 heads of government coming to Cebu to discuss among other things, but very, very prominently cultural heritage because we want ASEAN to be one socio-cultural community. To talk about health because we have been having problems — not so much the Philippines of HIV/AIDS — but our neighbors. And also the pandemic of the bird flu — not so much the Philippines, thank God! — but we have to be concerned not only about ourselves but the other neighbors as well. And we will be discussing the ecology, and of course part of the problems of the devastation of the ecology in the previous years that the disasters that had been visiting our region. So we will be discussing disaster management. We will be discussing the environment including energy independence and clean energy. And of course, we will be discussing livelihood and how we can all work together to make our economies all better.

Kaya itong gaganaping ASEAN Summit dito sa Cebu, ASEAN at East Asian Summit, importante dahil sa mga pag-uusapan natin. Alam ng Girl Scout kung gaano kaimportante itong mga pag-uusapan natin. Importante ito hindi lamang para sa mga barangay ng inyong eskwelahan, importante para sa buong rehiyon. At mabuti na rin at malaking karangalan na igaganap ito sa Pilipinas ngayon dahil gagawin nating pagkakataong ipakita sa iba pang bansa ng ASEAN at ng East Asian na ang Pilipinas ay handang makipagsabayan sa kanila upang makamit ang kaunlaran at kasaganaan.

Kaya mga bata, our young women, tumutulong kayo sa mga barangay ninyo, sa mga pamayanan ninyo, sa eskwelahan ninyo. Gusto niyong dagdagan pa yung inyong tulong sa inyong Pangulo na magiging host ng ASEAN at East Asian Summit ngayon? Aasahan ko kayong mga Girl Scouts na narito na tutulong din upang ipaliwanag ang kahalagahan ng ASEAN at East Asia sa inyong mga magulang, kapatid, kaibigan. Sabihin ninyo as kanila na ang ASEAN at East Asia ay mahahalagang samahan upang magbubuklod at magtutulongan ang mga magkakalapit-bansa upang sabay-sabay tayong umunlad, upang sabay-sabay nating maalaala ang ating socio-cultural community, upang sabay-sabay nating asikasuhin ang hanapbuhay ng taong-bayan ng ating mga bansa, upang sabay-sabay nating asikasuhin ang kalusugan ng ating mga mamamayan pati na rin ang ating sarili, at upang sabay-sabay natin alagaan ang ating kalikasan.

You know, when we had the ASEAN year, ASEAN anniversary a few months ago, it was dedicated to the youth. And I'm very happy that you are here today on the eve of our ASEAN Summit, so that you can... We can motivate you to be more aware what is ASEAN all about, what is an international engagement all about. And during the state dinner that I shall be giving for the 17 heads of government, we have reserved a few seats for some of our youth. And I would like to give one of... You know, it's the... I would like to be able to invite one of our chief Girl Scout awardees.

I was asking Tessie Choa, is there among our chief girl scout one most outstanding chief Girl Scout? She said, none because they are all equal. So I will really have to leave it up to the Girl Scout organization how to choose whether by raffle or whether by an essay contest on what ASEAN is all about? So I hope to see our Girl Scout representative among our youth invitees to the gala dinner celebrating ASEAN and East Asia in December 11.

So, to all of you, thank you for what you are doing as young people. And I look forward to your doing even more when you become adults in the next generation.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Chief Girl Scout Medal Presentation Ceremonies. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141920/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3026&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on Power, Poverty and the Global Water Crisis

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On Power, Poverty and the Global Water Crisis

[Delivered at The Manila Peninsula Hotel, Makati City, December 4, 2006]

BEYOND SCARCITY: POWER, POVERTY AND THE GLOBAL WATER CRISIS

Nileema says it is ironic that we're discussing this at this time. I think it's providential. But the irony really is — and I think about this all the time — we have water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink in some areas. We have deadly mudflows in Albay, we have water shortage in Manila. So, indeed, this year's UNDP Global Human Development Report is providential. As Nileema says, the report posits that the growing water crisis not just in the Philippines but in the world is not from a shortage of supply but from causes created by man, and only collective human intervention can alleviate it.

We view the report's strong warning as a good argument for governments to adopt stronger policies to overcome poverty and inequality and to act together to prevent global disaster. In our Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan in our Anti-Poverty program, one of our ten points is to provide water to all the waterless towns in our country. We in the Philippines have been victims of successive super typhoons that we believe are a result of severe climatic shifts. Right now, we all have the Albay tragedy.

This is a time for unity and continuous action as we pour in more troops, medical personnel and volunteers as well as dispatch more equipment in the search and retrieval operations and facilitate direct assistance to the victims. We join the Filipino people in praying for that miracle of finding more survivors. We are no strangers to this kind of tragedy, and in the past we've always been able to recover and become stronger. Nevertheless, such recurrent tragedies cannot cut, cannot underscore the need for greater preparedness, operational effectiveness and predictive capacity.

We have had great improvements in our predictive capacity in the past few years. We knew and the whole country was apprised of the hourly changes in the trajectory of the typhoon. But we had to spend a lot of money to invest in that. In other words, effectiveness comes with investment, and investment could only happen when we had our tax reforms. But right now we have more things to do, and for the immediate relief and recovery and rehabilitation for the victims of 'Reming,' Paeng' and 'Milenyo,' I have released one billion pesos. But in the medium-term, we have to spend about 15 billion pesos on recovering from these severe water-related disasters and also from preventing them from being so deadly.

So, I'm glad that Secretary Reyes is here. He is our man as far as water is concerned. He is not a user of water — DENR — he is the... Because you have the competing uses of water: you have water for drinking, you have water for power, you have water for agriculture, and so they're all competing with one another. So the water resource work could not have been made up of those agencies or they'll never come to an agreement. So I decided that it should be a line office under the DENR because DENR is not a user of water, it is the caretaker of all our natural resources including water. And DENR should arbitrate which water resource will go to what use.

Related to this also, I'm directing the secretary of natural resources to step up the National Hazard Mapping Program. This is another program that Secretary Reyes inherited as 'work in progress' to forewarn vulnerable communities and help increase the capability for local governments for early warning and action. The gullies on the slopes of Mount Mayon that bear potential mudflows are a case in point. The death and destruction in the wake of calamities can be minimized by organized and systematic human intervention. We have started, as what I've said, by investing in our predictive capability which has been bearing fruit in the past typhoons. We have 'work in progress' as far as hazard mapping is concerned. We have to do things to mobilize all that wasted — not only wasted water but destructive water — and mobilize instead for life and livelihood.

And as Speaker De Venecia has been pointing out, we do have this certain water management projects in the Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan — big, huge projects. They cost a lot but they will also save a lot not only of money but of lives when they are on stream. We are talking about such major project as the Layban Dam which will be meant to solve the water crisis in Metro Manila in the long-term and the other uses of the Agno river basin in Northern Philippines for power, for irrigation and for drinking water — all the uses of water.

We must not leave things to fatal luck when we can develop the tools to prevent harm. And as I mentioned earlier, the fiscal space we have garnered from the pruned down interest payments and improved credit ratings is being applied to economic opportunities including microfinance being made available to more Filipinos. I like to keep repeating that we're saving 22 billion pesos on interest payments for 2007. And the 22 billion pesos will be allocated to: 16 billion pesos for additional in education spending; five billion for additional health spending, a lot of which will go to PhilHealth, to health insurance for the people; and one billion pesos will go to additional spending by the Department of Social Welfare including microfinance.

We are making a dent on self-perceived and actual incidence of poverty. Ever since the self-rated poverty statistics has been gathered by the survey companies, it is in our administration that the self-rated poverty has become lowest. But we need to institute better water management practices to emphasize conservation and effective distribution for the short and long term.

Social scientists project that future wars — wars among nations, but also wars within nations and among social groupings in the nations — will be fought over water. But such conflicts can be averted by strong policies and agreements that will protect the common interest of mankind and not just those of certain nations or certain sectors by understanding and cooperation among vulnerable peoples and societies and by a determined effort to eradicate global poverty in all its forms including the severe deprivation of water resources.

So, we thank the United Nations for your focus on this great and important issue and we commit to work for water in all the towns of our country, but also to make water a life-giving resource rather than a deadly weapon of destruction.

Thank you.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo on Electronics Business Opportunities in ASEAN

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Electronics Business Opportunities in ASEAN

[Delivered at Rizal Ballroom, Makati Shangri-la Hotel, Makati City, December 7, 2006]

ELECTRONICS BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES IN ASEAN

We're here today because in 2003 the ASEAN leaders signed the Bali concord reaffirming our shared vision of dynamic Southeast Asian nations gathered around three pillars — the ASEAN security community the ASEAN economic community and ASEAN socio-cultural community — to be realized by 2020.

In the summit we will be holding in Cebu, we will stress on the ASEAN socio-cultural community to be reached by 2020, that is why we have the theme of 'One Caring and Sharing Community' to stress that ASEAN is not only a trade association but a socio-cultural association that cares for one another's members.

But today, here in this electronics conference and exhibit, we are stressing on the economic community. And when indeed we signed in Bali the agreement to form an ASEAN economic community as a first step, ASEAN member countries agreed to develop road maps on eleven priority sectors. One of these eleven priority sectors is electronics. Country coordinators were assigned to each priority sector. The Philippines' task was to shepherd the integration in the electronic sector.

We are proud and happy to be in this role. And we host this event at a time when electronics plays a major role in improving the economic indicators for our country — the lowest inflation in the last 29 months. The Philippines is now a net lender rather than a borrower. In other words, our deposit for instance in the World Bank and the ADB and the IMF is bigger than our loans from them.

The stock market has remained bullish for some time, and Philippine bonds are up. We are due for a credit upgrade. Investors are buying into a new deal.

And despite losses from three successive super typhoons — and may I take this opportunity to thank our ASEAN brothers who have very quickly come over, sent planes, planeloads of assistance to our victims of the disaster — inspite of these disasters, we expect our growth projections to be met.

Our economic reforms have likewise resulted in savings. Now reinvested among other things in I.C.T. infrastructure programs.

Indeed, the Philippine economy is gaining momentum on the back of stringent economic and fiscal reforms, and with the huge support of the semiconductor and electronics industries — our top export — as well as the rest of the national enterprises, we have been able to turn the economy around.

Our electronics industry will be among the major beneficiaries of the improved airports, seaports, roads and telecommunications systems coming up on the horizon. And we are very happy to be a leading player in a very dynamic industry in ASEAN.

ASEAN's vibrant electronics industry reverberates in today's event. We, ASEAN, are a force in the world as the home of global giants such as Intel, Texas instruments, Toshiba, Hitachi, Panasonic and many others. This meeting marks our collective determination to be an even more competitive player through robust regional integration.

This year, the world's total electronics output is forecast to be worth over 1.5 trillion dollars. By 2009, it's projected to reach over 1.7 trillion dollars.

But this year also, China is expected to surpass the U.S. A's production of 300 billion dollars to become the world's top manufacturers. That is why if we want to be and continue to be a major player in the region and in the world, this is one of the best arguments for the speedy integration of our region's electronics and other industries.

We are determined to give our best for ASEAN to attain the agreed targets of our electronics road map, particularly the goal of 24/7 customs operations and the exchange of trade documents among member countries.

We aim to meet these targets in December 2007 for countries with mature electronics industries. And in the Philippines, I'm glad to hear from our officials that in fact we are ahead of this December 2007 target. In our export lane, we are already 24/7. And in our airport, we're open up to 12:00 o' clock because no planes carrying electronics come in after 12.

We're also determined by 2007 to have the establishment of a super green lane for each of our economies. And as I said, in the Philippines we're ahead of our target. As a rule, the ASEAN working economies are on track, intensifying regional investment activities, linking up databases — as mentioned by Francis Ferrer — accelerating the implementation of mutual recognition arrangements for electrical and electronic equipment, harmonizing technical regulations, and facilitating cooperation in testing and accreditation.

The Cebu summit and the next ASEAN Leaders' Summit in Singapore next year will see more action in checking actions taken and refining other measures to ensure that we're all geared towards turning the region's diversities into opportunities for complementation.

Aside from stressing on the socio-cultural community, especially through our theme of 'One Caring and Sharing Community; we also want the Cebu summit to be a different summit as far as the business summit is concerned. We want to have more interaction with the business summit And we... I would for one want the leaders to be more involved in the efforts to integrate our eleven economic sectors which make up the bulk of the trade among our economies.

I have noticed in the past that when the leaders speak of ASEAN integration, they talk more about the free trade area. They don't talk as much about the integration of our eleven sectors. And I would like that to be somehow corrected, but we need the private sector to push the government sector to do what has to be done. Therefore, let me invite the electronics companies in ASEAN to take a stronger stand in urging your governments along the following lines:

- the elimination of tariff barriers for all electronic products in the region;
- working towards a wider supplier base and lowering production costs for foreign investors; and
- acting with dispatch on the creation of a single home market and production platform that's friendly to global investors.

For starters, companies can remind their respective governments of the commitment to set up green lanes and single window call systems, the 24/7 customs operations, and to adopt e-business compatible standards.

Indeed, it is important because it's the electronics industry that does the actual production. The government is only supposed to do the environment that will make your production efficient, competitive and conducive to integration.

Therefore, I ask everyone to support integration, liberalization and cooperation among ASEAN countries especially in electronics.

Let us all support the vision of outward-looking ASEAN nations. Let's not look at one another as rivals but as countries that can complement each other. Electronics is a big export for the Philippines; it's also a big import. That's because we don't produce the whole product by ourselves. We produce it among ourselves in ASEAN and that's the way it should be.

We should be nations that complement each other, that live in peace, stability and prosperity. We should be nations bonded together as one dynamic community, one caring and sharing society.

Mabuhay ang ASEAN! Welcome once again to all of you!

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2006. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Official Banquet in Honor of Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and Madame Akie Abe of Japan

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Official Banquet in Honor of Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and Madame Akie Abe of Japan

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, December 9, 2006]

His Excellency Prime Minister Abe and Madame Abe; officials of the Philippine government; members of the Japanese delegation; members of the diplomatic corps; guests; ladies and gentlemen:

In behalf of the Filipino people, in behalf of our government, I congratulate and welcome the new Prime Minister of Japan, His Excellency Prime Minister Abe and his lovely wife Madame Abe.

His Excellency's visits celebrates a very important jubilee — the 50th anniversary of the normalization of our diplomatic relations. But although our present diplomatic relations are only 50 years old, even before the Spaniards came, trade between Filipinos and Japanese was regular and robust. And today, 50 years after the normalization of our diplomatic relations, our trade, our investment relations, our economic relations are stronger than ever. Today, Japan is by far our biggest source of official development assistance and our second largest trading partner. Japanese companies are at the vanguard of Philippine industrial growth particularly in electronics and automobiles.

The Philippines continues to be one of the favored destinations of Japanese tourists. Filipino seafarers man Japanese ships and Filipino caregivers will soon be taking care of Japan's aging population under the historic Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement.

This morning, we were able to sign the exchange of notes on the Pasig-Marikina River Channel Improvement Project. This is the only latest of many Japanese assistance agreements which cuts across all sectors from giant projects like the Agno river project to grassroots projects in Muslim communities of Mindanao.

Now, we welcome Japan's new initiatives in economic cooperation such as energy efficiency and capability building in disaster management. In addition to economic assistance, in addition to trade and investment, in addition to tourism, security is coming into sharper focus in our bilateral relations.

We welcome an important role from Japan in the fight against terrorism in our region. And we support Japan's leadership on the U.N. Security Council Resolution 1718 on the North Korean issue, these matters or some of the agenda for the forthcoming summit in Cebu which is supposed to start tomorrow but which we have postponed.

As chair of the ASEAN, the Philippines is responsible for the safety and well-being of summit participants in the face of inclement weather. Our responsibility to the Filipino people also lies in preparing to the best we can for the onslaught of another typhoon. This is a two-way process, we are concerned for the leaders and they are concerned for our people. Truly in the spirit of one caring and sharing community.

I thank Prime Minister Abe and the other leaders for their understanding and support. At the same time the Philippines gives its firm assurances that there has been no setback in the progress of the ASEAN agenda and process. The ministerial meetings pushed through to sharpen the declarations and agreements that will be approved by the summit in January of 2007.

All the leaders are geared up to speed up regional economic integration and to forge a strong stance for regional peace and security backed by detailed road maps and action plans. There is a consensus to postpone the meeting because of the typhoon but a strong impetus to return to the summit at the soonest possible time. The aspirations of more than three billion people in East Asia — one-half of the world — cannot be put on hold.

I thank all our people and all those from ASEAN and Japan and our other dialogue partners who worked hard on the summit preparations. Let us continue to work together for the January meeting under clearer skies.

On this note, I invite Your Excellency and Madame Abe, distinguished members of the diplomatic corps, friends, ladies and gentlemen, to join me in a toast to the continued good health of His Majesty the Emperor of Japan, to the continued peace and prosperity of Japan, and to the enduring friendship between the Filipino and Japanese peoples.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Official Banquet in Honor of Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and Madame Akie Abe of Japan. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141851/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3056&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 40th Anniversary of the Asian Development Bank (ADB)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 40th Anniversary of the Asian Development Bank (ADB)

[Delivered at the ADB Auditorium, ADB Ave. Ortigas Center, Pasig City, December 19, 2006]

Thank you very much, Miss Quon.

President Kuroda and all the officers and staff of the Asian Development Bank; Secretary Teves; Governor Tetangco; Governor Lerias and all the officials of the Philippine government who are here with us today; ladies and gentlemen:

Happy 40th anniversary to the Asian Development Bank!

We welcome the foreign staff and visitors who are here. Please enjoy the beauty of the Philippines.

We are indeed proud to host Asia's premier development institution. And this jubilee is especially personally important for me because I vividly remember my father, President Diosdado Macapagal, working very hard for ADB to be located in the Philippines.

And today, as he predicted, ADB plays a key role in the growth of the Asian region, and also in boosting the quality of Filipino lives.

Thank you ADB for agreeing that "The Philippines is back" during the media briefing of the 650 million-dollar power sector development program loan. This is the largest ADB assistance to the Philippines in eight years. Thank you so much for that.

Thank you also for the financial reform loan and thank you for your untiring effort in working for poverty alleviation in the Philippines. Thank you especially in behalf of Governor Lerias and the people of Southern Leyte for the Southern Leyte landslide assistance project and, as you mentioned President Kuroda, ADB's sympathy for all the victims of all the other disasters in the Philippines. Thank you for the assistance in the study of the vulnerable areas in the Philippines which strengthens our hand in overall disaster management.

Thank you also for helping BIMP-EAGA. And thank you — because I've mentioned other countries in BIMP-EAGA — thank you for your positive response on the appeal of the Philippines and other developing member countries to lower commitment fees.

We also hope that ADB will act positively on the request of the Philippines and other DMCS to ease the bank's conditionalities. Because that will provide developing countries better opportunities to enjoy the benefits of ADB's development assistance.

In 2003, we were bracing ourselves for an economic slowdown brought about by the upward spiral of oil prices, complicated by political intrigue. Since then, we adopted draconian fiscal measures: more selective and judicious spending, revenue collection efficiency, and most of all and most painful of all — new taxes. But as a result, creditor and investor confidence have come back.

And that's why we thank you for your latest public statements for support for the reforms of the Philippine government. We are working to continue on reforms beyond our tax reforms. We have adopted, for instance, measures to curb corruption such as our Executive Order 564 on the infrastructure monitoring pro-performance system. Also the use of the 20 million dollars assistance from the U.S. Millennium Challenge Account to curb corruption.

We hope that the donor community appreciates the efforts of our government for the needed reforms even with the difficulties that they face. We assure you that all our reforms go through democratic procedures including our political reforms.

Let me therefore take this opportunity to say a few things on Charter Change. Actually, three realities that we face as a nation:

One, that the people accept the need for charter change to overhaul the system; two, that there is a need for a unified consensus on the means and the timetable; and three, that this is a platform commitment of our administration that will be pursued with urgency and fervor.

These realities will continue to shape our actions for the better future of the Philippines, working closely and inclusively with all stakeholders and institutions, observing transparency, and backing up the entire process with a strong economy, social payback and values programs. This is a matter of paramount national interest and our leaders must all rise to the challenge.

I thank you ADB for your support in all the reforms that we have tried to do across the broad spectrum of our needed reforms — fiscal reforms, financial reforms, power sector reforms, governance reforms.

And, of course, thank you ADB for more than a thousand local professional Filipino staff. We're proud of all of you, our Filipinos in ADB. We're proud that the ADB has been vocal in your appreciation of your local staff. Thank you for taking care of the Filipino staff. And we urge you to continue this and we trust that ADB practices the well-acclaimed equal opportunity system.

We also propose that ADB, like any other large organization, will embark on social responsibility projects in the Philippines, being its headquarters. This could be in the form of a special social fund for social responsibility projects. For indeed, ADB has helped pull many Filipinos out of poverty.

I'm happy that as we celebrate today, 40 years of ADB's existence, 40 years of ADB being in the Philippines that both our statistically measured poverty rate, 23 percent, and self-rated poverty rate, 51 percent last September compared to 63 percent in 1986, that both the statistically measured poverty rate and the self-rated poverty rate are at their lowest averages in our administration compared to other times since the statistics began.

But we have miles to go before we can achieve our goal and vision of being first world in 20 years. And just as ADB has been with us in the last 40 years of our journey, we hope that as we go on our journey in the next 20 years, ADB will stay with us in the Philippines in our quest and that beyond that ADB will stay with us as the headquarters for making life better in the entire great continent of Asia.

Congratulations! And happy ruby anniversary once again to all of you!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141731/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3050&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 71st anniversary of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 71st anniversary of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP)

[Delivered at the Tejeros Hall, AFP Commissioned Officers' Country, Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, December 21, 2006]

Thank you very much, General Esperon.

President Ramos — former president, former Commander-in-Chief and former AFP Chief of Staff — and other former AFP chiefs of staff; the board of generals and other officers and soldiers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines and their ladies; defense officials; police officials; other government officials; members of the defense diplomatic corps; awardees who are so well-deserving; ladies and gentlemen.

Una sa lahat, binabati ko ang buong AFP sa pagdaraos ngayon ng isang simple ngunit makabuluhang anibersaryo. Ito ay patunay lamang na ang AFP ay nakikinig sa pangangailangan ng sambayanang Pilipino at nakalaang magsakripisyo para sa mga kababayan nating nangangailangan.

I remember this tradition started in late 2004, when our eastern provinces, the Reina area — Real, Infanta, Nakar, especially — were hard hit by a series of typhoons. I clearly recall then that while the armed forces was already making its presence felt in the rescue, relief and rehabilitation operations, we went the extra mile by forging the usual large anniversary celebration and allocating our available resources for disaster relief. Thank you for such heroism.

At ngayon muli, tulad ng dati, ang AFP ay muling pumagitna sa pagtulong sa mga biktima ng sunod-sunod na kalamidad na binasa at binanggit ni General Esperon mula sa umpisa ng taon hanggang sa katapusan ng taon.

Indeed, you have shown that the uniform is not only a symbol of vigilance but a symbol of caring and sharing in a world of calamity and strife. You have kept all threat groups at bay, you have contained the tide of terrorism.

You have pushed back vested interests, you have upheld military justice, you have maintained command discipline and rallied around the flag.

We heard the details of the report of your accomplishment, not only this year or in the last five years from General Esperon, and I thank you all for the successes that you have gained in all the fields in which you have been involved.

This year also marks a unique celebration because the President of the Philippines also happens to be the Acting Secretary of National Defense. I felt it was best for me to remain at the Department of National Defense for at least 60 days, to restate the vision for the AFP and to put it in motion before handing the DND over to a permanent secretary.

We especially want to harness the younger generation of AFP officers represented by the young officers who received their awards today by sharing with them a vision and the hardware to achieve it. We want to inspire our officers in the field by vision and hardware rather than by patronage.

The path that I am undertaking as acting Secretary of National Defense is the following:

First, working with the AFP chief of staff and the major service chiefs, we have defined, as General Esperon said, each services medium-term mission. A mission that I trust will inspire the service. General Esperon has already mentioned that mission in terms of his description of Bantay Laya II.

Each major service shall organize, train, equip, deploy and sustain its forces to achieve a strategic defeat of the communist terrorist movement by 2010; to destroy the Abu Sayaff and other terrorist groups; and to contain the secessionist groups in order to establish a physically and psychologically secure environment conducive to national development.

After we worked in a session to restate this mission, we have now been working with the AFP chief of staff and the operations, logistics and planning staff, now tweaking the material procurement process to align it to the procurement modernization law and also to the mission and to generate quick impact.

I am preparing the revised implementing guidelines, rules and procedures for the AFP modernization law to put it in line with the procurement modernization law. And after I have signed and issued these amended guidelines, we will jump start the process, being careful to be transparent, and overtly discouraging the involvement of brokers and middlemen.

Transparency is crucial. Thus, we will follow what the procurement modernization law says that we should have at least two observers. So we shall have at least two observers, two from the business... One from the business community, one from the NGO community, and then also by members of the National Security Council of which the DND is a member.

In fact, in observing the procurement process, the NSC as observer shall be assisted by a task force of respected personalities most of whom you are familiar with: Admiral Mateo Mayuga, who has just retired, who has just been appointed as Presidential Assistant and seconded to the DND as undersecretary for this purpose. Also, General Pedro Cabuay, now retired to represent the National Security Council. And Undersecretary Roberto Tan of the Department of Finance because we have many procurements that are to be done government-to-government.

Itong repormang ito, ito ang tinatawag nating Philippine Defense Reforms. And the procurement of hardware to make it more expeditious but also transparent is the backbone of the defense reform. Itong defense reform na ito ay kasing importante sa mga economic reforms na ginawa natin tungkol sa mga buwis na tumutulong ngayon sa ekonomiya.

Going back to the restated mission, we are doing all that we are doing because we want to have an environment conducive to national development. And indeed, you have been doing much in order to provide that environment.

Nang dahil sa inyong pangangalaga sa kapayapaan, matagumpay nating naipatupad ang mga reporma sa pananalapi na naging dahilan ng pagiging masigla ng ating ekonomiya.

The growth of our economy is a clear manifestation of national resiliency. Our rebound despite the four storms that hit the country in the last quarter shows the stability of our drivers in propelling the economy forward. Growth will surely be boosted by the heavy upload of consumer spending as we end the year.

Punong-puno yung ating mga malls ngayon sa Christmas shopping. Sabi ng mga tindahan, ang daming bumibili sa kanila. At yung mga OFWs, mas marami pang pinapadala sa ating ngayon kaysa sa mga nakaraang taon. At ang dami nilang dumadating magbakasyon. That is our new middle class. That is the source of our consumer spending. That is one of the major drivers of our economy.

And if we are enjoying now a strong peso, reduced interest rates, mild inflation, a sustainable growth rate, we only have the Filipino people to thank for their hard work and perseverance inspite of the tragedies, as well as the political noise, that plagued the country in the last three months. There is no other way but up for the Philippines.

We shall continue to implement programs that would propel growth and its social payback of jobs, food, health, education firmly felt at the grassroots.

And as we proceed to work on that social payback, the armed forces will be, as you have been right there at the center of it all — heroes serving the country and serving the people.

Mabuhay kayong lahat! And Happy 71st Anniversary to the Armed Forces of the Philippines!

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the 71st Anniversary of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141719/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3049&Itemid=38

Christmas Message of President Arroyo

Christmas Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines

[Released on December 24, 2006]

Dahil sa biyaya ng Diyos, ang kalagayan ng ating bansa ay nagiging maganda at matatag.

The dawning of the year, it will all come together in the Mighty Grace of the Lord.

Ang mga ipinatutupad nating reporma ay magbubunga na — lalong mapapabuti ang mga serbisyo sa mamamayan. Asahan nating darami pa ang mga puhunan at trabaho sa mga darating na araw sa patuloy nating paglaban sa kahirapan.

This is our mission: to build prosperity for the greatest number of our people.

Tulungan natin ang mga biktima ng kalamidad with heartfelt compassion and generosity, sharing and caring for those in direst need.

At sa pagsapit ng Bagong Taon, nawa'y lalo tayong pagpalain ng Poong Maykapal.

Merry Christmas at Mabuhay ang Pilipinas.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Christmas Message. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141712/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3048&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening of the Microsoft Southern Philippines Office

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening of the Microsoft Southern Philippines Office

[Delivered at Skyrise IT Bldg., Asiatown IT Park, Lahug District, Cebu City, Cebu, December 26, 2006]

Mr. Tony Javier, congratulations! And thank you for bringing Microsoft to Cebu.

Governor Garcia; Deputy Speaker Del Mar; Congressman Cuenco and Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the House of Representatives; Mayor Radaza, who is here as a guest because he's mayor of Lapu-Lapu City; and to all of you, to Mr. Bawal and all of the officers of Microsoft here in Cebu for Visayas and Mindanao; all the other partners of Microsoft; our officials of DepEd for Cebu, congratulations! Sa inyo hang premyo.

Congratulations! And thank you for bringing Microsoft to Cebu. Thank you for this expansion of Microsoft not only geographically to Cebu but the expansion of your products, your OFW service and your half-priced starter set.

And I would like to take this advantage... Advantage of this occasion also to say what I would have said if I had been in Ginsaigon, Leyte this morning, Southern Leyte, but we were not been able to go there because of the inclement weather in Southern Leyte. But I wanted to say there in Southern Leyte that that today because of the... Anyway, they push through without us, we turnover the houses, the relocation houses to the victims of the landslide in Ginsaigon, Leyte... Southern Leyte and in Liloan. And the Ginsaigon event happened only nine months ago. So nine months after is the closure to that tragic incident which they are now celebrating today.

It's an inspiration for those who are suffering now in Bicol as well because a very similar event happened in Southern Leyte and now they are back on their feet. But it's not only in terms of recovering from calamity that we celebrate what is happening there and what is happening here. It's also because this augurs well for the coming year and what we can look forward to the coming year.

We will surely greet the new year with another strong start for the economy as we share optimism and hope for united Philippines moving ahead.

More foreign investors — remember, Microsoft is a foreign company — and financial institutions are now appreciating the aggressive reforms carried out by our people.

The government will continue to match the reforms with redoubled efforts, redoubled efforts to sustain the momentum we have gained and achieving more gains in confidence, investments, jobs and more penetrating reforms and services.

Well, this is really bringing hi-tech to the grassroots, to the schools and to those who cannot afford the original software. And that is what the government will be doing next year too. Next year will be the time to drive our economic gains deeper into the grassroots. Next year will be the time to make more strategic headway against terrorism and insurgency, and improve the climate of law and order in the cities and the countryside. Next year will be the time when we can rehabilitate our calamity-stricken communities. We have a few of them now in addition in Bicol. Next year is the time when we can get our people back on the platform of enterprise. We have started to do this this year but we hope and we look forward to next year as being the year when it could all come together.

The season of optimism and hope sends a clear message that the best is yet to come for our people.

And I am happy that as they are right now celebrating the closure of the tragic events of Ginsaigon and Liloan over there in Southern Leyte, here we are celebrating the beginning of a new chapter in the information age for the people of the Visayas and Mindanao through Microsoft in Cebu.

Kaninyong tanan, daghan salamat. Congratulations! For the good performance.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Opening of the Microsoft Southern Philippines Office. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141704/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3047&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the necrological rites for National Artist Ramon Obusan Speech
of

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines

During the necrological rites for National Artist Ramon Obusan

[Read by NCCA Chairman Ambeth R. Ocampo, December 28, 2006]

Distinguished guests, friends, Ladies and Gentlemen, Good Morning. I am honored to read the message of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo.

We join the whole nation in mourning the loss of National Artist Ramon Arevalo Obusan. Less than seven months from the time we honored him with the conferment of the Order of National Artist in Malacanang, we are gathered yet again today, to pay homage to someone who has accomplished phenomenal work in Philippine dance, a man who has broadened and deepened our understanding of our cultural life and expressions.

Ramon Obusan has touched our hearts, our lives, and our spirits and his greatness will be remembered by generations of Filipinos. Among them the countless ethnic groups whom he took in, in the course of his researches, the dance scholars who studied his volumes of video documentaries detailing the unique and rich heritage of indigenous Filipino dance, and the foreign community across continents, whom he entranced in his world tours, securing the place of the Filipino performer in the world stage. He has thus been a shining example of how far the Filipino artist can go, following his passion and caring for his nation through the arts.

He shall be missed by all of us who have all been witness to his daring and innovativeness on stage, bringing to life the moving image, truth, and diversity of our race.

Today, even as we bid him our final goodbye, we know that death cannot diminish the light of National Artist Ramon Obusan. His legacy of greatness, compassion, and grace will live on in the minds and hearts of all Filipinos.

Thank you, Ramon Obusan, for your work which shall remain a living reflection of ourselves, showing us who we are.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Speech during the Necrological Rites for National Artist Ramon Obusan (To be read by NCCA Chairman Ambeth R. Ocampo). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141649/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3046&Itemid=38

New Year's Message of President Arroyo [Filipino] Mensahe
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa Bagong Taon

[Ipinahayag sa Mansion House, Lungsod ng Baguio, ika 29 ng Disyembre, 2006]

Happy New Year sa inyong lahat!

Gusto kong magbigay ng espesyal na pagbati sa ating mga nagtrabaho sa pamahalaan.

Binuksan natin ang taong 2006 sa dagdag-bayad para sa mga kawani ng pamahalaan, at pagwakas ng taon, may pag-asa na naman ng bagong umento. Pagbalik ng Kongreso mula sa bakasyon, magpapadala ako ng panukalang batas upang itaas ng mga sampung porsiyento ang sahod ng mga empleyado ng gobyerno mula Hulyo.

Itakda ng panukalang batas kung paano gagamitin ang mahigit sampung bilyong pisong natipid natin. Ito ang unang bahagi ng reporma sa sweldo ayon sa husay ng trabaho at kakayahan ng mga kawani. Hinihiling ko sa Kongreso na ipasa itong panukala bilang katapusang gawain sa kanilang kapuri-puring pagbabalangkas ng mga laye.

At pagbukas ng bagong Kongreso sa Hulyo, haharap ako sa ating mga kongresista upang ipakiusap ang mabilis na pagsasabatas ng pangatlong yugto ng salary standardization. Ilalapit nito sa pribadong sektor ang mga sahod ng karaniwang kawani ng pamahalaan at itataas ang dami at galing ng trabaho nila.

Isasalang ng kalihim ng budget sa Kongreso ang mga panukalang batas, at kasama sa umento ang mga kawal, pulis at iba pang sandatahang pangkat.

Nagsasanib sa panukalang ito ang mithiin ng mga kawani, ang magagaling na patakaran sa pamamahala, ang mga panuntunan ng mahusay na trabaho, at ang inaasahang kita ng pamahalaan. Sa lahat ng ito, laging isinasa-isip ang kapakanan ng taumbayan.

Nang simulan natin ang paghahangad isa-ayos ang kaban ng bayan, hiniling natin sa mga kawani ng pamahalaan na makiisa sa mabigat na pasanin ng sambayanan. Ngayong malapit na nating matamo ang ating layunin, panahon na upang makuha ng mga manggagawang nasa gobyerno ang kanilang parte sa mga biyaya ng mga reporma sa ekonomiya.

Muli, Happy New Year sa ating government workers at ang taong-bayan na pinaglilingkuran nila.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's New Year's Message (Tagalog). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141628/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3045&Itemid=38

New Year's Message of President Arroyo

New Year's Message of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines

[Released on December 29, 2006]

We started 2006 with a pay hike for government workers and we will end it with a vow to do it again next year.

As soon as Congress comes back from its holiday furlough, I will be sending up a bill that will seek to grant an average 10-percent increase in the base pay of government employees effective July 2007.

This bill governs the usage of the P10.3 billion which we have set aside as the first installment of a merit-based, performance-driven compensation reform package for public sector workers. I am asking Congress to cap its impressive run of legislation with the passage of this important bill.

And come July, when the next legislature convenes, I will stand before our legislators to plead for the speedy passage of the third edition of the Salary Standardization Law, one that will not only increase the pay of state workers but boost the productivity of government as well.

The Secretary of Budget and Management will submit these bills to Congress, which will include our uniformed men and women in these pay increases.

These measures distill inputs from the field, best managerial practices, performance benchmarks and projected revenue streams of the government, all with the interest of the public in mind.

When we embarked on our mission to put our fiscal house in order, we asked government workers to share the burden of the people. Now that we have turned the corner, it is time for their share of the social payback of economic reforms.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's New Year message. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141635/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3044&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Financial Executives Institute of the Philippines (FINEX) and FINEX Foundation Induction of Officers and Directors/Trustees

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Financial Executives Institute of the Philippines (FINEX) and FINEX Foundation Induction of Officers and Directors/Trustees

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Intercontinental Manila, Makati City, January 17, 2007]

Thank you, Peter for your introduction and congratulations! On your very valuable role in making the ASEAN and East Asia summits a success.

President Billy Cortez, other new officials of FINEX, other former officials of FINEX, members of the Cabinet and government, leaders of the business community, ladies and gentlemen.

Once again, congratulations! To the new board of FINEX.

Your board comes to office at a time, as Billy said, of great hopes and expectations. And we have set 2007 as the boom year for the economy. The sentiments of optimism and hope, as Billy said, are rising among the people. I thank you for saying that Billy. Your steady faith in our economy mirrors the confidence of the global financial community. The entire region and the world behold the valiant excellence of the great Filipino worker including the great Filipino workers in our financial field.

The Philippines reaps high marks in terms of fiscal freedom, trade freedom and freedom from government. We are going past the restrictive hurdles in the economy. This would have been speeded up by charter reforms, but the direction is clear — a strong and vibrant Philippine democracy under the blessings of economic freedom and free enterprise.

The Cebu summits have paved the way for one caring and sharing regional community in East Asia. We had a most productive summit held in the confluence of challenging events: the nuclear test in North Korea, the political situation in Myanmar, the continuing threat of terror, the energy crunch last year, the disasters that struck the region, and many more socioeconomic and political issues emerging in the early limelight of this millennium, or as Billy said, this Asian century.

We are determined to build a band of nations committed to democracy, security, and prosperity in every community large or small. The summit meetings tied hopes and aspirations for regional integration in 2015, or five years ahead of schedule. The wave of the future, therefore, is an open trade system focused on the viability of all its components — governments, business and most of all, human resources. Billy said FINEX is made up of human resources of so many movers and shakers, corporations in this country — you must pitch in with your talents and energies.

We know that the future of the world and the region lies in the enlightened solidarity of leaders and peoples. On our part, I am instructing the department of labor to produce the detailed Philippine position on the protection and promotion of the rights of migrant workers. The Philippine detailed position will be an input to a regional plan of action. And for Peter, his great and important job will be to hammer out a refurbished plan to give more force and teeth to the ASEAN leaders' statement on the Doha development agenda of the WTO, in consultation with his counterparts in the region.

I thank Peter for his great role in the ASEAN and East Asian summits because in the ASEAN summits the leadership is really a troika. There is the head of government, there is the foreign minister, and there is the trade minister. And the acceleration to a regional integration to 2015 is largely the work of the trade ministers. Also, what concrete measures we can do to produce at last a viable package and practicable package for the Doha round will also be in the hands of the trade ministers.

The Department of Transportation will work out the details of the Memorandum of Understanding of the Brunei-Indonesia-Malaysia-Philippines East ASEAN Growth Area on the expansion of air linkages. You know what's important about this agreement between the Brunei-Indonesia-Malaysia-Philippines East Asean Growth Area — which for us means Mindanao — we will be granting fifth freedom rights to one another. In other words, a Bruneian airline... Or let's put it this way, a Philippine airline can travel from Brunei to Sulawesi, and that will ease travel among our countries especially the regions that composed BIMP-EAGA. And I am directing the energy department to dovetail all our pertinent programs with the Cebu Declaration on East Asian Energy Security so that we can participate actively in pursuing the common ends defined by the leaders.

Just this morning before coming here, I did the ceremonial signing of the biofuels law. Biofuels was on everybody's tongue in the East Asian Summit on energy security. Because of the energy crunch last year, I insisted that in the East Asian Summit we would have one session just on energy security. It was indeed very fruitful and all of us thanked the new government of Japan under Prime Minister Shinzo Abe for pledging two billion dollars to promote energy security in our region. And that's why it's important for the Department of Energy to work out our own part of that regional plan because Japan is there to help us with the funding. But that is the part of government. There is of course the important part of the business community. Everybody said we can do policy but the ones who will create the wealth will be the business community. And that is why it is important for you, the leaders of the financial community, the financial professionals of the Philippines to keep up the action.

You and I must tap the same collective determination as we forge ahead, again as Billy said, with the rest of the economic and financial reforms that enabled us to avert a fiscal crisis and beyond that get the economy rolling.

Judicious spending shall continue to be observed. Our priorities lie in programs that have the greatest impact on the most number of our people. For instance, the use of ADB's 650 million-dollar loan for power sector development. Because I know that when you talk infrastructure, I've asked you, I've asked the business community about what are your particular requirements, additional requirements for infrastructure. They say... Well, they've seen the north expressway, they see the construction on the south expressway, power infrastructure is so essential to make us power competitive.

I've also been calling the attention of our power-intensive industries like electronics, that in areas like Oriental Negros, Leyte and Misamis Oriental especially the PHIVIDEC Industrial Estate in Villanueva enjoy royalties from the power companies, from the power generators that operate in their jurisdiction. And this royalties can be used 80 percent for electricity and only 20 percent for other development projects. So where do they usually spend their 80 percent? It is to subsidize the power rates of their constituents. And therefore I hope that the electronic companies will find their way into doing their investments in these areas.

In fact when I pointed this out to the leaders of Oriental Negros, they said, "yes, we will welcome the electronics companies and we will give them at least 50 percent subsidy on their power rates if they locate in the Palimpinon geothermal area of Valencia." Help us though to improve our airport so that their air freights can also or that the air facilities, air travel facilities, cargo facilities can also be world competitive. And we are doing that, part of our Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan.

To go back to our spending patterns and also our revenue generating patterns, efforts will be increased to sell off government assets earmarked for privatization.

Collection efficiency is up. I was... You know the Prime Minister of Singapore is also going to do a tax reform this year, immediately after the ASEAN summit. He says he's copying the Philippines. And I told him about the efficiency of our VAT collection. That we have collected more in VAT revenues than we had projected. I told him that when we were defending and we were advocating the Value-Added Tax before our legislators, we did not want to be so overly optimistic as to assume revenues are related to a one hundred percent tax collection efficiency. We assumed an 80 percent tax collection efficiency in projecting revenues to match expenditures. But we have surpassed that, which means that we have achieved more than 80 percent tax efficiency only in the first year of implementation when there were supposed to be still so many kinks to iron out. So, congratulations, Gary for you good work there.

As I said collection efficiency is up alongside the overall efficiency of all government agencies. For instance, for the first time in ten years, NAPOCOR gave a multibillion-peso dividend to the national government. And to think that barely two years ago, NAPOCOR was the main culprit for our consolidated public sector deficit. Of course, related to the tax collection efficiency, the hunt for the corrupt will continue without let up. And the United States has recognized this effort by giving us a 20 million-dollar grant to improve our revenue and anti-corruption efforts under the Millennium Challenge Account. And with their support and with our own spending, we are moving forward in the administrative and judicial aspects.

Also — maybe that's why Omar Cruz is not here. He's very busy — we have paid forward some of our debts. I hope that makes our central bank governor happy. And so therefore... What did we save in interest in debt service 2006? Thirty seven billion pesos. And that's why the social payback has begun to emerge.

I thank Congress, Girlie, and the Senate for finally agreeing to pass our budget and that will certainly increase the social payback to our people in terms of more important infrastructure projects that will entice more investments to come in as well as direct social payback expenditures on education, health, microfinance.

But even before that, over the last six years, almost six years of our administration, our average self-rated poverty score is now at its lowest since 1986. Our ultimate goal — Billy, talked about the ultimate goal of FINEX — the ultimate goal of our country is to remove the yoke of poverty which has pinned us down for centuries and to join the ranks of first world economies by 2020. But to be able to attain that and move towards that, we must strengthen our unity now that we are able to see palpable signs of progress. We must remain united and fixed on the rising star of the future. And that is the work of the new officers and board of FINEX.

Congratulations!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Financial Executives Institute of the Philippines (FINEX) and FINEX Foundation Induction of Officers and Directors/Trustees. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152725/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1805&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the First National Convention of the League of Cities of the Philippines (LCP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the First National Convention of the League of Cities of the Philippines (LCP)

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, Manila, January 18, 2007]

Damo gid nga salamat, Mayor Treñas.

Mayor Sarmiento, all the other city mayors, your vice mayors and your councils and your barangay officials. Congratulations! To the first ever National Convention of the League of Cities of the Philippines.

This convention is a long-overdue recognition that our cities and your league have become a force to reckon with in our country's march to a better future. If you remember before I delivered our State of the Nation Address, we went around the country and consulted with you on our super regions which became the focus of our State of the Nation Address.

Our super regions approach to national development is founded on the concept of a strategy that leverages the best out of local leadership and resources, and projects them to a national and regional plane. And I am very happy and I look forward to the day when the league of cities would indeed be able to submit legislation to the national government in order to strengthen the local governments and the cities in the challenges that face your cities.

Your cities are the hubs whose spokes extend along all points of the compass to other cities and hubs of prosperity within the region. With hardworking and dedicated city mayors like you, we will continue to move forward in the global arena of competitiveness and excellence.

We thank you because your economic activities have helped our economy go on this extended bull run that it is enjoying higher than ever OFW remittances, a strong peso, surging stocks, tamed inflation, stable interest rates, and increasing investment inflows.

We have regained our place in the international landscape as a strong player in the fight against terror. This morning before I came here, I was at the Department of National Defense for we had a meeting with the U.S. officials who are supporting us in our Philippine defense reforms. And I took the opportunity to congratulate everyone involved because the highest Abu Sayyaf leader, Abu Sulaiman, has been slain.

I commended the Armed Forces for another milestone in the campaign against terror. This milestone caps with glory the signing of the ASEAN Convention on Counter-terrorism. We are resolved to work with our strategic partners in the region and with the United States to tighten the dragnet and stop the movement of terrorists, their finances and their deadly materiel across the seas and borders.

We mark every high point in the campaign against the Abu Sayyaf and the JI with greater resolve to move forward in strengthening domestic, regional and global security. The Philippines has a stake in a safer world where eight million Filipinos work and reside. We have a stake in an East Asian region that builds on prosperity and stability and peace. The relentless pressure we have applied in the field is taking its toll. We will keep it up until all the terrorists and their clandestine cells are accounted for.

This government is determined to finish the job with a hand of steel against evil. And I call on all the city mayors, let us all be determined to usher in a durable peace through economic development, interfaith dialogue and international cooperation. As I was coming in I saw City Mayor Jun Acharon of General Santos City which was the victim of the latest bomb terroristic activity. And I hope Jun that with the killing of the top Abu Sayyaf leader and with the continued support of the United States, as they have again reiterated to us today, we will be able to put an end not only to the violence in Sulu — which has really become very peaceful — but to the violence in the great cities like General Santos City.

We have championed a social agenda that weaves the spirit of one caring and sharing community that's given a tangible share in the 2007 budget. And I thank the city mayors, because you have also put so much of a caring and sharing community in your own city budgets.

Social services is now the biggest component in the national budget, pulling away from debt services for the first time in many years. For the first time in many years our social budget is bigger than our debt service budget. And that is excluding the IRA, and your IRA after all is supposed to be devoted to agriculture, health, social welfare. In other words, the social budget would even be bigger if we were to include the social expenditures of our local government. While you are primarily responsible for social expenditures, the national government stands ready to help those who are already devoting much of the resources to social services.

For example, 700 million has been added to funds for job training scholarships under the TESDA, and part of this is that we are providing at least one scholarship for everyone of your barangays. Please give us your list of beneficiaries. This will broaden the wellspring of Filipino talent and excellence for a well-paid employment. You know we look for well-paid employment. And so TESDA is concentrating its training on those things that give us well-paid employment. For example, call center agents like Iloilo, what is your hiring rate? For every 100 that the call center companies interview in Iloilo, they hire forty. The highest in the country, congratulations! And we want more of your cities — because your children already have the basic English — we want more of your cities to study what we call the call center English.

Another very important, very popular livelihood for a living is seafarers. We have a great demand for seafarers all over the world. The Filipino is considered the best seafarers, so we want to train more seafarers. And then sometimes when I go to some of these cities or even the provinces, some of the older men... Well, middle-aged — not, not, not older, very old — but the middle-aged say, how can we become a call center agent. We're already way past high school, or we didn't go to high school, we don't speak English well enough, we can't even train for call center English. Well, another huge opportunity available, we have tens of thousands of demand for welders, high-income paying jobs. So, we are also promoting training in that activity.

And finally, you will be surprised, I think Marides, Marikina is one of the sources of demand. We have a very very big demand for butchers. So for those who didn't study high school, isn't it Marides, you have a big demand for butchers in Marikina? But not only in Marikina, in Australia, all over the world, there're thousands, tens of thousands also of job orders for butchers. So, we want to concentrate our training on this high-paying occupations. And we invite you, as I said, to submit the names of your nominees to TESDA so that they can give them the scholarship certificates.

Another very important activity where we want to help our cities is half-priced medicine. The target for half-priced medicine outlets has been doubled to 30,000 nationwide. This is one of our success stories that we have been able to bring half-priced medicine to the people, but we want to bring it even more. Please, also nominate to us the locations in your cities where we need to put an outlet for half-priced medicines.

All of these and more, we shall pursue as we meet head-on the challenges of a new Philippines in the context of highly-invigorated ASEAN and East Asia communities.

And as Jerry said, I am a strong advocate for local autonomy. As always, let me renew my pledge that I will stand as your partner for development, security and good governance. Let's remain focused on the task at hand.

I shall continue to wait upon your leadership to serve the people. The ideas come from you, in the end, the ideas will be implemented by you. And so I salute the cities for your great work and may you continue to achieve greater height in the years to come.

Thank you. More power. Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the First National Convention of the League of Cities of the Philippines (LCP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152636/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1797&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Luzon Urban Beltway Anti-Poverty Summit

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Luzon Urban Beltway Anti-Poverty Summit

[Delivered at the Clark Museum, Clark Special Economic Zone, Clarkfield, Angeles City, Pampanga, January 19, 2007]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Ding Panganiban at congratulations! Sa iyo at kay Secretary Ed Pamintuan sa pag-convene nitong napakahalagang pagpupulong natin.

Ako'y nasisiyahan na narito ang iba't-ibang mga importanteng mga lider ng Luzon Urban Beltway. Narito si Governor Reyes ng Marinduque; narito si Presidential Assistant for Central Luzon, si Rene Diaz; narito ang ating host mayor, pero makiki-host na rin ako sa kanya dahil ang Angeles City bahagi dati ng distrito ng aking ama, ni President Diosdado Macapagal. So, welcome! From Taisan Lazatin and myself, welcome to Angeles City and Clark! Narito rin si Libby Laus, ang pangulo ng Development Corporation; at narito rin si Governor Josie Dela Cruz ng lalawigan ng Bulacan; at narito rin si Mayor Oca Rodriguez ng City of San Fernando. At sa inyong lahat, salamat sa mga kinatawan ng mga batayang sektor, mga negosyante, mga opisyal ng pamahalaan sa inyong pagdalo dito.

Salamat dito sa binigay niyong output, binasa ko, at ito ngang output na ito ay talagang sang-ayon doon sa ating gustong gawin para sa ating bansa. Kasi ngayon maganda ito dahil mapapahigpit na natin ngayon ang laban sa kahirapan dahil bumabalik na ang sigla ng ating ekonomiya. Kasi kung bagsak ang ekonomiya saan tayo kukuha ng pangastos para labanan ang kahirapan.

Itong sigla naman ng ekonomiya ay nagsimula nang maitupad natin ang mga reporma sa buwis at kaban ng bayan. Ngayon pagkatapos noon, lumakas ang piso, lumakas ang exports, bumabalik ang mga investor, lumakas ang tiwala ng mundo sa kakayahan ng ating ekonomiya.

Global approval of and confidence in the Philippine track is firm. It will stay that way for as long as we keep our sights on the economy and not on political partisanship. Confidence is fueled by the unity of the people, by the spirit of enterprise and the force of regional integration. On these three counts, the Philippines is on the ball. It's playing the game with solid teamwork and sound strategy. As we mop up the terror cells in Mindanao and usher in peace, as we consolidate open trade in ASEAN and East Asia, as we drive domestic enterprise to the grassroots and rally all Filipinos behind the fight against poverty, we will be on the way to winning the grand prize — first world status in twenty years. Every department and every agency of the national government, every local government unit, every sector and component of civil society must row in one direction of a strong Philippine democracy that can compete in all fronts.

Kahapon, marami nagbigay ng presentasyon. Ako rin meron akong presentasyon. Kasi lahat nitong mga ito ay masasabi nating nagbunga kung walang nagugutom. Yan ang pinakasukat ng kahirapan. Pero kung may nagugutom, ibig sabihin may hindi umuubra dito sa mga programang ito. Kaya ang gagawin ko ngayon ay iipresenta sa inyo ang pinagkasunduan ng gabinete na sana pagkasunduan natin lahat ang ating anti-hunger masterplan.

Kaya ang NEDA... O, ayon, eto. Eto ang ating hunger mitigation program framework. Kasi kung lalabanan natin ang kagutuman hindi lamang dole out ang kailangan. Ang kailangan kakayahan ng mga taong kumain, kakayahan din ng mga nagpapa-produce ng pagkain. Kaya eto, saan nanggagaling ang kagutuman? Sa kaliwa, kasi kulang ang pagkain, hindi kulang ang produksyon o hindi nakaabot sa consumer. Sa kanan naman walang pera para bumili ng pagkain. Kaya yung ating paglaban sa kagutuman dapat may supply side, yung pagkakulang ng pagkain ayusin natin. At may demand side, yung pagkakulang ng pera, ayusin din natin.

On the supply side, ano ang kailangang gawin? Dalawa yon, yung produksyon at yung papano aabot sa consumers, ang tawag doon efficiency of logistics and food delivery. Ano ang gagawin natin sa produksyon? Importante ang productivity programs, kasama dito yung livestock, mga tanim, yung pagbuhay muli ng mga isda, at ibig sabihin nito yung mangrove ayusin natin, yung Coastal Fishery Development ayusin natin, at saka gusto natin magkaroon ng mga sakahan sa pamilya, yung tinatawag nating 'Gulayan ng Masa' mismo sa kapaligiran ng bahay. At irigasyon. At ang irigasyon ay magiging responsibilidad ng Department of Agriculture, ng Department of Natural Resources...— hindi lang irigasyon, itong buong supply side — Department of Agriculture siyempre dahil agricultural products ito. Department of Environment and Natural Resources, bakit? Kasi yung mga mangrove, yung mga pangangalaga kanila yon. Yung mga upland na gusto nating buksan, we want to open two million hectares of land for agri-business in the whole Philippines, DENR din ang may-ari ng mga upland.

At yung NIA. siyempre para sa irigasyon. Pero yung local governments din meron silang communal irrigation system. So lahat noon ay kailangan magsama-sama para tumaas ang produksyon ng ating pagkain. Ngayon taas ang produksyon ng ating pagkain eh kung minsan masyadong mahal naman yung pag-abot sa consumer kasi yung post-harvest losses na kasama doon yung logistics which means transportation and warehousing and food delivery. Kaya anong ginagawa natin?

Meron tayong tinatawag na barangay food terminal. Ano ito? Ito ay bagsakan, hindi ba Ding? Bagsakan mismo na ang D.A. ang namamahala mula sa mga producers dinadala na sa bagsakan, at meron na yata tayong dalawampung bagsakan kagaya nito sa metro manila gusto natin dalhin ito sa lahat ng urban beltway.

Ngayon itong 'Tindahan Natin.' ano itong 'Tindahan Natin'? Ito yung tindahan para bang 7-11 specialty store kanya lamang dalawa ang kanyang specialty, rice and noodles. Kasi yon ang pinaka-kinakain ng karaniwang Pilipino. At nalagay na natin itong tindahan natin doon sa tinatawag na 17 — 17 ba yung hotspots sa Metro... Ilan, Seya? — 21 hotspots ng Metro Manila. Ibig sabihin nito ito yung mga squatter areas na maraming-marami ang mahirap. So at least bibilhin nila doon yung kanilang bigas na... Magkano? 17 pesos, 18 pesos tapos noon bibilhin nila yung noodles na mas mura rin keysa sa labas, so at least meron na silang murang pagkain. Pero gusto rin natin na iabot ito sa buong Luzon urban beltway.

At kailangan yung mga pantalan kasi transportasyon sa barko ay mahal kaya gusto natin yung roll-on/roll-off ferry na yung truck siya na ang sasakay mismo sa barko, hindi niya ia-unload yung pagkain. Eh meron tayong napakagandang roll-on/roll-off ferry, halimbawa, mula mindoro — yung probinsiya ni Vice President De Castro — patungong Batangas ay gusto natin ayusin din yung roll-on/roll-off ferry ng Marinduque patungo rin sa mainland Luzon. At ang mamamahala diyan ay yung Department of Transportation at yung Philippine Ports Authority na may sariling pondo.

Tapos para dalhin yung mga produkto ng sakahan sa palengke kailangan ng farm-to-market road, lalo na kung magbubukas tayo ng mga bagong lupa doon sa upland. Kailangan gumawa tayo ng mga kalsada at ang gagawa nito ay yung public works, yung Department of Agriculture farm-to-market road, yung DAR at kailangan din yung local governments sa mga barangay roads are local governments.

Tapos noon yung local transport... Eto ano ba itong pinag-uusapan na efficient local transport kasi ito ang sinasabi nung ibang mga nagdadala ng mga produkto from one province to another kapag dumadaan daw sa isang probinsiya kinukubra raw ng local government yung tax passing thru. Actually, that's not within the powers of local governments. So, Governor Reyes doesn't do it and Governor Josie Dela Cruz doesn't do it. Thank you for being model local governments, pero may iba, may iba. At ngayon na-specify na ng mga truckers kung sino yung mga local governments na gumaganun, gawa nuon. Kaya ito ang gusto nating dalhin sa League of Governors para maintindihan nila na hindi kasama yon sa mga powers ng local government. Kung yung trucking company ang headquarters ay nasa probinsiya niyo pwede yon, pero kung dumadaan lang hindi dapat. At malaki ang mababawas sa gastos ng transportasyon kung maunawaan yon ng lahat ng local governments.

Pagkatapos yung dinadala yung pagkain sa mga eskwelahan. Bakit natin doon sa eskwelahan, nung araw ang ating main thrust ay nagbibigay tayo ng milk and pandesal sa mga maliliit na bata. Kaya lamang ang gastos sa milk at pandesal sa maliliit na bata ay 20 pesos per. Sa 20 pesos makakabigay tayo ng isang kilo ng bigas na pwede namang iuwi at buong pamilya pwede nang kumain. Kaya mas gusto ko talaga na yung food-for-school ang binibigay natin. Eto ang isang malaking debate natin sa mga ilang senador dyaan. Gusto nilang yung milk — eh kung minsan yung milk, nangyari na yon dito sa Pampanga — yung milk nung isang pork barrel ng isang senador nabulok, marami tuloy nasira ang tiyan. Yun din and isang problema sa milk, pero yung bigas hindi masisira yun.

Tapos noon yung... Tapos sabi nila kasi ang problema kasi yung food-for-school baka nagkakaran ng leakage. Sabi ko depende anong ibig sabihin ng leakage? Kung yung leakage ay hindi binigay ng teacher, hindi maganda yun, imbestigahan dapat yun. Pero kung leakage ay imbes na kinain ng pamilya binenta, okay naman yun, kasi baka meron na silang bigas. At least kung binenta nila makakabili sila ng ibang bagay. So that is not a real leakage, that is helping them to afford more food or whatever else they need.

So ang gumagawa nito ay yung DepEd at DSWD, at pinipili natin yung mga lugar kung saan malaki ang incidence ng kagutuman. Kaya kailangang gagawa tayo ng survey dito sa Luzon urban beltway. Kasi in terms of provinces, walang talagang kung buong probinsiya ang pag-uusapan walang talagang nagugutom na probinsya pero baka may mga nagugutom na barangay. At doon natin gagawin itong food-for- school na ito. Ang Department of Education sa higher grades, and DSWD naman sa daycare, sila ang mamamahagi nito.

Tapos kailangan natin yung mga... Kasi nga sinasabi leakage-leakage, siguraduihn natin na walang leakage, kailangan mga NGO kasama dito, mga simbahan. Kaya sana yung mga NGO na nandito makatulong maka-identify sino yung mahihirap na barangay at pag napili na yun at nagdi-distribute na tayo kailangan din bantayan ng NGO na wala yung sinasabing leakage. Pero gaya nang sabi ko kung yung nanay binenta, okay lang yun. Kaya lang dapat aabot man lang sa bata na iuwi niya.

Tapos noon yung community tradable rice certificates. Ito ay bagong programa ng nfa at isa sa mga darating na panahon ito ay papaliwanag ng NFA dahil ito ay binubuo pa nating programa. Pero dahil ito ay framework binibigay ko na lahat sa inyo. So yan ang supply side — itaas ang produksyon at gawing mas mabisa at mas mura yung pagdala ng pagkain sa kumakain.

Sa kanan naman yung demand side, yung walang pera para bumili ng pagkain. Ano ang kailangan? Number one, maglagay tayo ng pera sa bulsa ng tao; tapos pangalawa, dapat ilagay nayin sa kaisipan kung saan igagastos yung pera. Dapat gumastos sa mabuting nutrisyon at yung isa naman ay dapat rin kung kulang ang pera dapat maging responsible ang pamilya na maalala na kung masyadong mabilis ang pag-aanak, kung masyadong sunod-sunod mahirap para sa kalusugan ng pamilya, kalusugan ng nanay at kalusugan ng bata.

So, yung papano tayo maglalagay ng higit na pera sa bulsa ng mahihirap? Yung dito sa Luzon urban beltway kahit na karamihan ay urban meron pa rin tayong mga lugar ng niyugan like Marinduque niyog. In fact, nung nasira yung Marinduque, yung mga niyugan ng Marinduque nung bagyo ay parang nawala na ng hanapbuhay ang taumbayan doon. So, importante na magkaroon tayo ng produktibidad doon sa coconut areas. Una sa lahat pag nasira ibalik uli yung coconut.

Tapos noon... Alam niyo nung unang umupo ako bilang pangulo ang presyo ng coconut two pesos. Ngayon ang presyo ng coconut 20 pesos kasi maraming gamit ng coconut na nahanap natin. Kaya dapat idevelop natin yung dami ng gamit ng coconut. Halimbawa, yung coconut quire, itong coconut quire ito yung nilalagay sa mga... Yon sa mga upholstery, noong araw kapok, noong araw foam, ngayon quire. Tapos noon yung virgin coconut oil, napakaganda noon at kung sana talaga ma-develop natin ang virgin coconut oil sa coconut producing areas natin talagang magandang-magandang produkto yun. Kaya D.A. ang namamahala ng PCA at inatasan ko na na ang pondo ng CIIF hindi basta-basta kung saan pupunta, kailangan pupunta kung saan sinabi ng D.A. pupunta. Kasama ba ang CIIF sa ating workshop? Dapat kasama sila. Anyway, tayo-tayo naman pwede nating sabihin sa kanila.

At yung isa rin, microfinance, yan ang pinakaimportanteng pantawid kaya narito yung ating mga microfinance. Nandiyan sila Egay Generoso nandiyan ng Peoples Credit and Finance corporation. Yung Land Bank of the Philippines, nagbibigay din ng microfinance at saka yung DSWD, lalo na yung DSWD isang malaking microfinance project nila yon sa 'Tindahan Natin.' doon sa mga gustong magtayo ng 'Tindahan Natin,' yung mga specialty stores for rice and noodles, pwedeng pondohan ng seed capital — 20,000 pesos initial seed capital — ng DSWD. Tapos siyempre gusto natin na dumami ang trabaho, construction and maintenance of farm-to-market roads, irrigation, roadside maintenance. So gusto natin dapat maalala — nandito ba yung DPWH Regional Director natin dito at saka yung...? Okay.

Yun, oh congratulations! To our new Assistant Secretary, Director Aquino, about to leave Region III for a promotion. Pero in the meantime, pwede ba total pupunta ka na rin sa national kailangan paalala mo na dapat labor-intensive ang ginagamit na method hindi capital-intensive para maraming nagtrabaho. Halimbawa doon sa yung tinatawag natin nung araw na oyster at saka yung — ano ang tawag noon ang in-charge pa si Danny Suarez? — ‘Kalsada Natin, Alagaan Natin.’ that was labor-intensive at yon ang dapat nating gawing teknolohiya para sa farm-to-market road kasi hindi naman maselan ang farm-to-market road. So pwedeng dapat yon ang gagamitin. Pati sa irrigation ganun din, yung roadside maintenance ganun din.

At para magkaron ng magandang hanapbuhay, yung mataas ang sweldo, malaki ang pondong binibigay natin sa TESDA ngayon mostly for scholarships. Kung mag-aaral ang mga mahihirap sa training center at ang binibigyan nating diin seafarer, kasi maraming humahanap at mataas ang sweldo. Call center agents, tignan niyo dito mismo sa Clark, dalawang libo na ang call center agents sa isang taon lamang. Tapos noon yung caregiving, sabi nga ni Governor Reyes, marami rin lalo na at nagkaron tayo ng economic partnership agreement sa Japan kasi maraming matatanda sa japan kailangan nila yang caregivers. At isa pang importanteng binibigyan natin ng pansin ay yung welding. Diyan lang sa hanjin sa Subic 15,000 welders na noong araw ay marginal fishermen, kaya tini-training... At marami pa mag-e-expand pa ang Subic at marami pang ibang mga shipyard ang gustong magtayo sa Pilipinas. In fact, we will become the number four shipyard in the world kaya maghanda tayo doon.

At isa pa, kasi noon yung welding nangyari yun dahil sabi nila sa akin, papano naman kami hindi marunong mag-ingles, ma-high school ingles man lang, saka hindi kami maka-call center. Kaya ayun, welding. Sabi naman nung iba... Pero isa pa, aside from that, believe it or not, butchering. Ang laki ng job order sa butchering whether in the Philippines or outside the Philippines. Kaya ito ang binibigyan nating pansin para sa TESDA. So ‘Wag na muna yung Pastillas-making kasi Pastillas-making mahirap makahanap ng buyers. Pero itong training na ito meron talagang hirers. So yun ang aggressive training.

And then upland land distribution. Si Janet, yung ating NCIP, ang pinakamalaking trabaho niya ay distribution of ancestral domain. At gusto natin talaga ito, marami tayong... Dito sa Porac lang ang dami, di ba? Sa Zambales andami ancestral domain for land distribution because we want to have four... In fact, scientifically established may four million hectares available upland and yet our goal is only two million hectares of land for agri-business, new hectares of land kasi gusto natin magtanim ng jathropa at saka ng rubber sa upland dahil magbibigay ng mataas na income yon.

Ngayon magkaroon ng pera ang taumbayan turuan na dapat igastusin sa mabuting pagkain. Kaya ang DOH at National Nutrition Council ay dapat lilibot kasama ng ating mga ngo dahil NGOs ay kasapi ng National Nutrition Council para ituro kung ano ang dapat gagawing kakainin, bibilhin ng taumbayan sa kanilang salapi. And of course, we count on the local government units to be very strong in this social marketing. At gusto natin yung breastfeeding, kasi alam niyo we only produce one percent of our milk consumption, so kung magbe-breastfeeding hanggang two years old ang bata ang laki ng ating maiwasan sa foreign exchange. At hindi lamang yun, yung kalusugan ng bata at kalusugan ng nanay ay mas magaling at saka ito ay isang magandang family planning method. Kasi kung two years na magbe-breastfeeding, two years rin hindi magkakaroon ng bagong anak. So ito ang importante, we really want to promote breastfeeding and the DOH is promoting this and we hope the local government units will also be promoting this.

Tapos sa eskwelahan. Sa eskwelahan din dapat tinuturo yung nutrition education. And I mentioned about responsible parenthood, breastfeeding is the most efficient way of responsible parenthood, at the same time though, yung ating Department of Health, yung ating mga NGO kagaya ng mga Couples for Christ, kagaya nung grupo ni Lito Sandejas, they are promoting natural family planning, and of course the local governments are free to promote whatever kind of family planning they want to promote. So yan ang ating programa para sa hunger mitigation. At inaasahan ko, although the others made presentations of other programs, sabi ko ako ang magpe-present nitong hunger framework dahil para sa akin ito ang pinaka-landmark project dapat ng ating Anti-Poverty Program. O ayun! Si Mayor Boking Morales, the other host mayor of Clark. Hello! Boking, good morning.

Anyway, bakit natin pinepresenta ito ngayon, kasi noong araw hindi natin mapresenta wala tayong pera eh, pero ngayon kaya na natin. Bago pa man natapos ang nakaraang taon nasiguro nating malaki ang natipid natin mula sa mga reporma, ini-utos na natin na itong taon dagdagan natin ng dalawampung dalawang bilyong piso upang ibalik sa mamamayan ang mga serbisyong panlipunan. Alam niyo kung bakit sinabi kong 22 billion for this year's budget ang prinopose? Kasi last year nung hinahanda yung budget for this year, na-estimate na na, "Uy! Lumakas ang piso, lumiit ang interest rate natin. We're going to save 22 billion pesos, so let's add 16 billion to education, let's add five billion to health and let's add one billion to DSWD." So all the savings of interest goes to social services. Eh ngayon ang saving pala natin ay 37 billion.

Kaya naman ginagawa rin natin yung Luzon Urban Beltway Super Region upang masigurong mapabilis ang mga imprastrukturang kailangan agad ng mga mamumuhunan at ng sambayanan. Halimbawa binanggit ko yung hanjin, ba't sila narito? Ba't sila naglalagay ng isang billion dollars na investment? Bakit sila nagha-hire so far 15,000 and still counting? Dahil sa pag-ayos ng subic port, yan ang dahilan kung bakit nagtayo sila dito. Kaya malaking bagay ang imprastruktura. Ang imprastruktura dito sa Clark, nandito ang Sutherland call center, yun ang nagbibigay ng first 2,000 jobs for call center agents dahil meron tayong North Expressway na mabilis magbiyahe mula Maynila hanggang dito sa Clark. Pero hindi lamang sa serbisyong panlipunan at imprastruktura nakikinabang ang mga mamamayan.

Dahil sa patuloy na paglakas ng piso, nagawa ng jeepney operators dito sa Region III, IV and NCR, na ibaba ng singkwenta sentimos ang pasahe. Nararamdaman na ba ninyo ito? Yon ay dahil malakas ang piso kahit na mataas ang presyo ng gasolina sa mundo ay bababa ang ibinabayad natin sa piso. Yung mga taxi naman ay hindi na tinuloy ang hihilingin sana nilang itaas na singil ng boundary.

At ang Meralco ay nangako na hindi na papatawan ng Cera or Currency Adjustment ang kanilang sinisingil na kuryente. At binanggit ko ito... At binanggit ko itong kontribusyon ng pribadong sektor maging malaking kompanya na gaya ng Meralco o maliliit gaya ng mga taxi operator at saka jeepney operator dahil ang leksiyon dito, ang mensahe dito ay sama-samang pagkilos ang nararapat upang makamit ang kaunlaran. Kaya maraming salamat sa mga pangako. Ituloy natin at labanan natin ang kahirapan.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Luzon Urban Beltway Anti-Poverty Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152608/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1790&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Recognition and Awarding Ceremonies of Military Personnel involved in the Anti-Terrorist Campaign and other Operations

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Recognition and Awarding Ceremonies of Military Personnel involved in the Anti-Terrorist Campaign and other Operations

[Delivered at the Heroes' Hall, Malacañang, January 24, 2007]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, General Esperon.

Members of the Cabinet; Ambassador Kenney; Undersecretary Hughes and the members of the American delegation — thank you for coming here to congratulate our Filipino soldiers — bereaved families of our soldiers killed in action; our gallant men of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, congratulations!

I salute you for your courage and devotion to duty. You are the soldiers of the people in the finest tradition of the uniform. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

I also commend the leadership of the Chief of Staff, General Esperon and all our field commanders. Congratulations to all of you!

As we weaken the terrorist cells and bandit hordes and drive the revolutionary left to strategic defeat, we will continue to consolidate the Filipino people in the greater fight against poverty, disease, ignorance and injustice.

Kaya yung ginagawa ninyo, nilalaban ang kalaban para mapayapa tayo, malaking bagay yon para sa ating laban kontra sa kahirapan. Kaya maraming salamat din doon.

With the all-out support and vigilance of every Filipino, we can add on to our victories and ride the tide of the people's confidence and hope, shore up the economy and work with our neighbors and allies for a safer world.

At magagawa nating lahat ito dahil sa inyo.

You have laid and secured the road to peace and prosperity. You have repulsed the armed tormentors of the people by the gallant shield of the Filipino soldier.

And I'm very happy that tonight, we have a personal representative from President Bush, to join us in this celebration.

Our joint military training exercises with the United States constitute a spearhead against the spread of terror in the region. At the same time, we are closely coordinating with our neighbors in stepping up vigilance along our common borders to close the dragnet on the Abu Sayyaf remnants on the run. Remnants na lang sila. Retaso na lang sila dahil sa inyo. Nakuha ninyo yung mga ulo nila.

At itong ginawa ninyo, itong ginagawa ninyo, lahat itong mga inyong tagumpay na binigyan natin ng mga promotion ay malaking bagay hindi lamang sa Pilipinas kung hindi sa buong mundo.

The security of the Asia-Pacific lies in a terror-free Southeast Asia. It lies in stability in the Korean peninsula. It lies in a stable environment in the South China Sea. That is your role not only in the country but in the region and in the world.

And in the recent ASEAN meeting, we tackled these issues to provide a comprehensive umbrella of peace and security to facilitate trade and development in the region.

The Philippines is committed its share of the work.

Marami sa inyo na binigyan natin ng promotion — mga bata, mga platoon, mga bata. I want to give a special message to our young soldiers spearheading the fight against terror, because you are spearheading the fight against terror, in the same way that our young professionals and young entrepreneurs are leading the fight against poverty while helping build excellence in the entire region. Your generation will wrap up the fight against terror and poverty in no time at all and lead our nation to the ranks of the first world in the coming decades.

Pag kayo ay edad na namin sana nga nasa first world na tayó. Pero hindi natin magagawa yon kung hindi mapayapa ang ating bansa. Kaya ang unang-unang pangangailangan ay yung ginagawa ninyo. Kaya tayó'y nagkakaroon nitong pagdiriwang kasi gusto ko sa ngalan ng buong sambayanang Pilipino, magpasalamat sa inyong pagkabayani.

Kaya ginawa natin itong pagdiriwang sa Heroes' Hall kasi kayo mga heroes kayo lahat.

To all of you, once again, congratulations! And carry on.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Recognition and Awarding Ceremonies of Military Personnel involved in the Anti-Terrorist Campaign and other Operations. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151832/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1781&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on the ASEAN Economic Roadmap, January 26, 2007

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On the ASEAN Economic Roadmap

[Delivered at the Hotel Meierhof and Restaurant, Davos, Switzerland, January 26, 2007]

The ASEAN economic roadmap

At a time of uncertainty in the world, ASEAN is taking a bold step forward rather than a timid step back by committing to establish an ASEAN charter. At a time when the Doha round is faltering, ASEAN wants to stand up and proclaim its support for keeping the doors of global trade open. And ASEAN is committed to expanding its trade area to create one of the world's great economic blocs. This is what the ASEAN roadmap is all about.

An ASEAN charter will help achieve "One vision, One identity, One community" and hopefully, someday "one union" by providing an enhanced institutional framework as well as conferring a legal personality to ASEAN.

ASEAN's first attempt to integrate began with the implementation of our free trade area in 1992. Since then, intra-ASEAN trade has grown fourfold. Now, we have decided to accelerate the establishment of an ASEAN community by 2015 rather than the original ASEAN 2020 vision. ASEAN envisions a single market and production base in which there is a free movement of goods, services, skilled labor and investments, equitable economic development, reduced poverty incidence and narrowed socio-economic development gaps among our members.

To facilitate the free movement of goods, ASEAN integration is now underway in 12 priority sectors that make up the bulk of our trade with one another. ASEAN is not only eliminating or minimizing tariffs on priority sectors, it's also enhancing trade facilitation to reduce transaction costs and to reduce the cost of doing business in our region. This involves simplification and harmonization of our customs regimes through an ASEAN single window.

As to the free flow of skilled labor, one example of integration is the mutual recognition arrangement for nursing services that was signed in Cebu, Philippines a few weeks ago.

The challenge is to create a stronger, more united and cohesive ASEAN while further expanding our engagement with our dialogue partners and other parties. ASEAN is integrating with all the major economic players in the region—China, India, Japan, Korea—by forging individual 10+1 economic partnership agreements and negotiating free trade areas with each of them. The signing of the ASEAN -China agreement on trade in services at the Cebu Summit inched us closer to free trade in the region, cutting barriers on services such as telecommunications, transportation and tourism. Within the broader forum of East Asia summit made up of ASEAN + 6 dialogue partners, with whom we're integrating, we gave our community the means to fuel its growth with the declaration on the East Asian Energy Security in Cebu.

And realizing the grave danger posed by terrorism to trade and development and therefore to our economic roadmap, in Cebu, the heads of government signed the ASEAN convention on counter-terrorism, Asia's first legally binding counter-terror instrument.

In sum, ASEAN is moving forward with firm accords on its own charter, security, overseas workers, and trade. It's moving forward on its economic roadmap.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the Vin D' Honneur

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Vin D' Honneur

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, January 31, 2007]

Archbishop Feloni and the other members of the diplomatic corps; Vice President de Castro; Speaker de Venecia; Chief Justice Puno; other officials of the Philippine government; Secretary Romulo; their ladies; ladies and gentlemen.

Happy New Year to all of you!

There's no better audience than this distinguished group to recount the extraordinary run of international events that have transpired the last few months that I hope will change the face of Asia and the Philippines in the years to come. I'm referring to the series of Asian leader events that began in Nanning in November with a celebration of China's 15th anniversary as a partner with ASEAN.

As chair of ASEAN this year, I am perhaps not surprisingly bullish about the advances we have made as an organization. That includes our pride at having played a role in helping to spur China to new heights as an economic force.

After a successful APEC meeting in Hanoi where Vietnam took the spot and rightfully received praise for its economic advances, the momentum carried us to Cebu for the ASEAN and East Asian summits. India, China, Japan, Korea, New Zealand, Australia and East Timor joined the ASEAN 10 to celebrate the beginning of a new day in Asia.

The most notable achievement was the united ASEAN vote to move forward our goal for an ASEAN trading zone by 2015, and our bold step forward to embrace a blueprint for establishing an ASEAN charter. At a time when the WTO is buckling under the strain of discontent, ASEAN is standing tall in its common embrace of open markets, social justice and security.

And having just come from Davos, I can tell you that the world is taking notice of an invigorated ASEAN.

I can also attest to another idea whose time has come: the model for peace and stability we have achieved thus far in Mindanao. The arc of progress is discernable, the hope palpable. Most importantly, we have a new paradigm for peace that's built on interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness, investments in economic development and basic infrastructure, and mutual security cooperation.

These measures have allowed us to expand the territory of peace and narrow the lair of the terrorists. That is precisely how we closed in and eliminated key members of the Abu Sayyaf and J.I. just a few weeks ago. Our fight against terrorism remains unabated and our resolve has been strengthened with new binding treaties in ASEAN and on a bilateral basis with our key allies.

And it has all been made possible by standing by strong principles that embrace soft power at the center, hard power at the edge. And most importantly, it's our alliance of domestic and international partners who have kept the Mindanao peace process so vital.

In Davos, I shared the stage with Prime Minister Badawi and praised his leadership in forging a peace that includes partners such as Sweden, Japan, the E.U., the U.S., Libya, the ASEAN nations, the OIC nations.

Peace in Mindanao is every bit as important to our economic security as our physical security. If we can cut off the flow of money for arms and defense and turn on the spigot of development for peace, the nation will make a major leap forward.

And closer to home, I'm once again in the proud position this year to announce strong economic numbers: our stock market has never been higher in a decade nor delivered better return for investors; the peso is at the highest point in recent years; exports have grown by double digit; direct foreign investment has soared to two billion u.s. dollars; almost one million jobs were created; and our credit outlook has come up.

Our national budget is being passed and we are now investing for the second complete year in a row of long overdue infrastructure investments. This includes billions for education, health care and start up capital for social infrastructure. Billions more for new roads, bridges, ports and physical infrastructure.

And let me be clear: we continue to pay down our deficit. And our economic managers are determined to meet their goal of balancing our budget in 2008. And lest anyone falsely declare that we will spend beyond our means before the upcoming election, I've something to say — no way. We have a budget in place and the discipline and political will to stick to it.

I see 2007 as the year we start to bring home the fruits of reform to those who need the nourishment the most — the poor here in the Philippines. Through the painful but necessary battles to raise new revenue, crackdown on tax cheats and prosecute corrupt government officials, we are now finally a nation ready to do right by our poorest citizens.

We want to create high-paying jobs here at home so that Filipinos no longer need to go abroad for a job. We want overseas work to be a career choice, not the only option for a talented man or woman in search of a better life. Our overseas workers are heroes who contribute much to our nation. But it is time to plan for the day when our heroes can come home, be with family, buy a home and live in comfort and dignity right here in the Philippines.

And part of a bright new future for our nation is to take control over our reliance on energy, to become free from dependence on foreign oil and become self-sufficient through the use of sustainable, alternative forms of energy. This will enhance our national security, lift up our economy and preserve our environment.

To that end, no nation can aspire to become modern without thinking of our environment. I want to press ahead with a massive green Philippines environmental plan that is comprehensive in scope and thorough in execution. A plan that includes reforestation, preservation of our reefs and waterways and scrubs the land and air of pollutants that endanger the health of our citizens.

Yet with all of our dreams come the day-to-day realities that change and reform never move fast enough. Disparities exist that are hard to witness; there are too many poor, too many sick, too many without a job. I wish I could just make the process move forward to slow down and eventually halt the inequalities.

And one reality that must be resolved is our sad history of political violence. We have just received the first Melo report on the assassination of political activists and journalists. I had asked justice Melo last August to take a hard look at what's behind our nation's dangerous predilection to want to subvert democracy through the barrel of a gun.

I have reached out to those who share my deep concern for the victims in order to press them into service to help solve this never-ending pattern of violence. I met with amnesty international in London over the summer, with friends from the European union, local religious and civic leaders and our enforcement community to try and get to the bottom of these killings once and for all.

Investigations suggest links to both right and left — to communists, communist rebels as well as possibly elements of our own military. The investigations of the national police's Task Force "Usig" have unearthed some interesting facts such as 23 cases of killings perpetrated by the NPA against their own men, the discrepancy between the number of cases reported by the front organizations of the communists and the numbers in the police files, and two cases where the supposed victims were confirmed to be alive. It's disheartening to contemplate that anyone upholding people's rights could engage in such deeds. I need to absorb fully what it means.

Yesterday, we came out with a response to the first Melo report. There is much to ponder and much to be done. We are not stopping in our crusade for human rights. We want a wider, deeper understanding that will involve more cooperation from all concerned parties and sectors. We're calling on the relatives, the witnesses and even the militant groups to speak out, lay the evidence and serve the high cause of justice. The government shall consolidate its agencies and resources for this effort, invite international cooperation, protect witnesses, field special prosecutors and ask for the installation of special courts to move forward. The AFP itself is deeply involved in this effort to check its ranks and protect the name and prestige of the military organization and the majority of our soldiers from the stigma of this issue.

I do know this: I believe 99.9 percent of our military are good, hard working and patriotic Filipinos. They do heroic things, like killing terrorists in battle, putting their lives on the line every day to protect the nation and make our homeland safer.

In order to address the recommendations of the Melo Commission, we will work with the church, activists, the journalist community, government officials, the international community and justice Melo to strengthen any findings and put teeth in the recommendations.

But I can tell you today that we will not stand for a one particular thing — we will not stand for an election in may disrupted by violence or political intimidation. We will do everything in our power to crackdown on political violence leading up to this may election so that our citizens can vote free from fear. So that our candidates can campaign without the shadow of assassination. And so that our journalist comrades can cover the election, not their head, in pursuit of press freedom.

So to move beyond the imponderable to the hopeful, let me say to everyone in this room and everyone in this nation: I welcome you to 2007 with a keen sense of hope and optimism about the future. I do so fully aware of the challenges that beset the nation. We have it in our power to stop complaining and finger pointing and just get the job done.

Let's move this nation forward through collective action. Yes, let's debate our differences, but let us do so in peace and respect. We have much to be thankful for. I know I do. And much is a result of the people in this room and outside who care about the Philippines and the world.

On this note, please join me in a toast to the hope that 2007 will be the year it will all come together for the Philippines and the world.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Vin D' Honneur. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151822/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1774&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 16th Anniversary of the Philippine National Police (PNP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 16th Anniversary of the Philippine National Police (PNP)

[Delivered at the Multi-Purpose Center, Camp Crame, Quezon City, January 31, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Puno.

Director General Calderon and all the officers and men and women of the Philippine National Police; Secretary Ebdane and all the previous heads of the Philippine National Police; Governor Singson and all elective officials who are here; Don Emilio Yap and all the benefactors of the PNP; members of the diplomatic corps; guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Binabati ko ang buong puwersa ng ating kapulisan sa inyong anibersaryo, anibersaryo ng Philippine National Police. Sabi nga ni Secretary Puno, “you’re at your highest morale ever.” thank you very much for such morale.

Malugod ko ring binabati ang lahat ng tumanggap ng karangalan dito bilang katangi-tanging miyembro ng PNP. Iginawad ang medalya at parangal na ito bilang pagkilala sa inyong mahusay at matapat na paglilingkod. Pinupuri ko rin ang daan-daang mga pulis na nakibahagi sa pagsiguro na maging ligtas at matagumpay ang pagdaos ng 12th ASEAN at 2nd East Asian Summit sa Cebu kamakailan lang.

Maraming-maraming salamat sa inyong mga sakripisyo para sa summit.

As chair of ASEAN, I am perhaps not surprisingly bullish about the advances we have made as an organization. At Cebu, under your care, the leaders of 17 nations comprised of over half of the world’s population met and agreed on issues, on a range of issues to build closer economic, political and security relations. Naroon yung pinuno ng India, pinuno ng Tsina, pinuno ng Hapon, pinuno ng Korea, pinuno ng New Zealand, pinuno ng Australia, pati pinuno ng East Timor — they joined the ASEAN 10 to celebrate the beginning of a new day in Asia.

The most notable achievement of that affair that you secured so well was the united ASEAN vote to move forward our goal for an ASEAN trading zone by 2015. Also our bold step forward to embrace a blueprint for establishing an ASEAN charter.

We realize it’s time for Asia to stand up and be counted.

At ASEAN — and you are very much involved in this — people are looking at the unique model we have developed in Mindanao as a blueprint that can be applied to other flashpoints around the globe.

We have a new paradigm for peace that is built on interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness, investments in economic development and basic infrastructure, and mutual security cooperation. These measures have allowed us — you and me and the armed forces represented here by General Esperon and the other heads of the top brass — to expand the territory of peace and narrow the lair of the terrorists.

You and the Armed Forces have been valiant partners in the fight against terror interdicting the movements of the enemy, interdicting its funds, interdicting its materiel. Thank you for your vigilance beside the people.

I also note the achievements of 'Task Force Usig.' Although created only eight months ago to investigate the killings of media personalities, and members of militant groups, 'Task Force Usig' of the Philippine National Police has made inroads in investigating cases as far back as 2001.

Yesterday, we received the first Melo Commission report on the assassination of political activists and journalists, and it used some of the findings of 'Task Force Usig.'

I had asked Justice Melo last August to take a hard look at what's behind our nation's dangerous predilection to subvert democracy through the barrel of the gun. 'Task Force Usig's' investigations, your investigations have unearthed some interesting facts such as 23 cases of killings perpetrated by the NPA against their own; the discrepancy between the number of cases reported by left-leaning groups; and the numbers in the police files; and two cases where the supposed victims were confirmed to be alive.

The investigation track on slain journalists shows that for 26 media people slain since 2001 for work-related reasons, 21 cases have been filed in court against suspects that include local leaders such as a mayor and barangay chairmen. But indeed, having said this, one reality that must be resolved is our sad history of political violence. And here once again, my dear policemen and women, the Filipino people are counting on you once again to safeguard the ballot and clamp down on guns and violence in the run up to the elections in may.

You and I can tell the people today that one thing will not stand — an election in May disrupted by violence or political intimidation. We must do everything in our power to crack down on political violence leading up to this May election to ensure that our citizens can vote free from fear. That our candidates can campaign free from the shadow of assassination. And our journalist comrades can cover the election rather than their head in pursuit of press freedom.

The fruits of economic reform are being plowed back to the Filipino people in the form of improved education, food productivity and distribution, clean water, micro loans to the unemployed, and a better transport and telecommunications infrastructure to bridge the entire nation.

Part of the savings gained from our economic measures will be used to modernize the Philippine National Police and improve the living conditions of our policemen and policewomen through housing and such programs.

I congratulate everyone involved for putting up the 200 houses in Tarlac. But let me remind you there are 400 hectares waiting for the policemen and their families in San Miguel, Bulacan. Please start developing it and building your houses there.

I'm also announcing that henceforth, every policeman or policewoman injured while on duty will receive 50,000 pesos for major injuries and 20,000 pesos for minor injuries. And families of those killed in action will receive a hundred thousand pesos from the president's social fund.

We hope that with housing — and the fact that you have been participating — and all the bonuses that we give the civilian employees of the government since my administration started, and the increase in pay that you got way back in 2001 after 10 years that it was legislated and not yet implemented. And we hope that with all these benefits, you will continue to have your morale go higher and higher and higher every year.

Happy anniversary and mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 16th Anniversary of the Philippine National Police (PNP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151811/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1775&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on peace and stability in Mindanao, January 31, 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On peace and stability in Mindanao

[Delivered at Rizal Hall, Malacañang, January 31, 2007]

Peace and stability in Mindanao

I can also attest to another idea whose time has come: the model for peace and stability we have achieved thus far in Mindanao. The arc of progress is discernable, the hope palpable. Most importantly, we have a new paradigm for peace that's built on interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness, investments in economic development and basic infrastructure, and mutual security cooperation.

These measures have allowed us to expand the territory of peace and narrow the lair of the terrorists. That is precisely how we closed in and eliminated key members of the Abu Sayyaf and J.I. just a few weeks ago. Our fight against terrorism remains unabated and our resolve has been strengthened with new binding treaties in ASEAN and on a bilateral basis with our key allies.

And it has all been made possible by standing by strong principles that embrace soft power at the center, hard power at the edge. And most importantly, it's our alliance of domestic and international partners who have kept the Mindanao peace process so vital.

Peace in Mindanao is every bit as important to our economic security as our physical security. If we can cut off the flow of money for arms and defense and turn on the spigot of development for peace, the nation will make a major leap forward.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Speech of President Arroyo on the 2007 Reformation, January 31, 2007

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines On the 2007 Reformation

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, January 31, 2007]

Bringing home the fruits of reform in 2007

And closer to home, I'm once again in the proud position this year to announce strong economic numbers: our stock market has never been higher in a decade nor delivered better return for investors; the peso is at the highest point in recent years; exports have grown by double digit; direct foreign investment has soared to two billion U.S. dollars; almost one million jobs were created; our credit outlook has come up.

Our national budget is being passed and we are now investing for the second complete year in a row of long overdue infrastructure investments. This deludes billions for education, health care and start up capital for social infrastructure. Billions more for new roads, bridges, ports and physical infrastructure.

And let me be clear we continue to pay down our deficit. And our economic managers are determined to meet their goal of balancing our budget in 2008. And lest anyone falsely declare that we will spend beyond our means before the upcoming election, I've something to say—no way. We have a budget in place and the discipline and political will to stick to it.

We want to create high-paying jobs here at home so that Filipinos no longer need to go abroad for a job. We want overseas work to be a career choice, not the only option for a talented man or woman in search of a better life. Our overseas workers are heroes who contribute much to our nation. But it is time to plan for the day when our heroes can come home, be with family, buy a home and live in comfort and dignity right here in the Philippines.

And part of a bright new future for our nation is to take control over our reliance on energy, to become free from dependence on foreign oil and become self-sufficient through the use of sustainable, alternative forms of energy. This will enhance our national security, lift up our economy and preserve our environment.

To that end, no nation can aspire to become modern without thinking of our environment. I want to press ahead with a massive green Philippines environmental plan that is comprehensive in scope and thorough in execution. A plan that includes reforestation, preservation of our reefs and waterways and scrubs the land and air of pollutants that endanger the health of our citizens.

Yet with all of our dreams come the day-to-day realities that change and reform never move fast enough. Disparities exist that are hard to witness; there are too many poor, too many sick, too many without a job. I wish I could just make the process move forward to slow down and eventually halt the inequalities.

Goodbye to political violence

And one reality that must be resolved is our sad history of political violence. We have just received the first Melo report on the assassination of political activists and journalists. I had asked justice Melo last August to take a hard look at what's behind our nation's dangerous predilection to want to subvert democracy through the barrel of a gun.

I have reached out to those who share my deep concern for the victims in order to press them into service to help solve this never-ending pattern of violence. I met with amnesty international in London over the summer, with friends from the European Union, local religious and civic leaders and our enforcement community to try and get to the bottom of these killings once and for all.

Investigations suggest links to both right and left — to communists, communist rebels as well as possibly elements of our own military. The investigations of the national police's Task Force "Usig" have unearthed some interesting facts such as 23 cases of killings perpetrated by the NPA against their own men, the discrepancy between the number of cases reported by the front organizations of the communists and the numbers in the police files, and two cases where the supposed victims were confirmed to be alive. It's disheartening to contemplate that anyone upholding people's rights could engage in such deeds. I need to absorb fully what it means.

Yesterday, we came out with a response to the first Melo report. There is much to ponder and much to be done. We are not stopping in our crusade for human rights. We want a wider, deeper understanding that will involve more cooperation from all concerned parties and sectors. We're calling on the relatives, the witnesses and even the militant groups to speak out, lay the evidence and serve the high cause of justice. The government shall consolidate its agencies and resources for this effort, invite international cooperation, protect witnesses, field special prosecutors and ask for the installation of special courts to move forward. The AFP itself is deeply involved in this effort to check its ranks and protect the name and prestige of the military organization and the majority of our soldiers from the stigma of this issue.

I do know this: I believe 99.9 percent of our military are good, hard working and patriotic Filipinos. They do heroic things, like killing terrorists in battle, putting their lives on the line every day to protect the nation and make our homeland safer.

In order to address the recommendations of the Melo Commission, we will work with the Church, activists, the journalist community, government officials, the international community and justice Melo to strengthen any findings and put teeth in the recommendations.

We will do everything in our power to crackdown on political violence leading up to this may election so that our citizens can vote free from fear. So that our candidates can campaign without the shadow of assassination. And so that our journalist comrades can cover the election, not their head, in pursuit of press freedom.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the Commissioning Ceremony of the PNOC-EDC 49-MW Northern Negros Geothermal Power Plant (NNGPP) Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Commissioning Ceremony of the PNOC-EDC 49-MW Northern Negros Geothermal Power Plant
(NNGPP)

[Delivered at the NNGPP, Brgy. Mailum Bago City, Negros Occidental, February 02, 2007]

Damo gid nga salamat kay Secretary Lotilla, ang isa sa aton damo nga mga Cabinet members halin sa Western Visayas.

Ambassador Yamazaki; the officials of PNOC-EDC headed by Paul Aquino and Tony Cailao; the officials of Negros Occidental headed by Governor Marañon; our host Congressman Charlie Cojuangco; our various congressmen who are here today like my brother-in-law Iggy Arroyo and Monico Puentevella; our Presidential Adviser for Western Visayas Lito Coscolluela, and according to Paul Aquino it is not illegal to acknowledge the future of the Philippines: Senator Migs Zubiri and Senator Mike Defensor. Migs Zubiri from Kabankalan and Bacolod City and Mike Defensor from Mina, Iloilo and Victorias, Negros Occidental; our host mayors, Mayor Janet Torres and Mayor Coscolluela; mga iban nga mga mayors and our Plant Manager Dino De La Cruz and all of the ones who are helping right here in the Bago Plant, sa inyo nga tanan maayong ugto mga kasimanwa.

First of all, congratulations! Once again to Paul Aquino and the PNOC-EDC. I say once again because we recently congratulated them for one of the most successful I.P.O.S in the history of our country and now for the corporation's latest geothermal production field. And as Paul Aquino said, this has been long, long in the making — 30 years in the making — but finally it gathered the momentum that we're able to complete today because during our administration aside from having a great CEO like Paul, we were able to at last complete the loan agreement with Japan that finally enabled this project to be completed.

Thus, we thank the Japanese government represented here by Ambassador Yamazaki and Floro Aviento, thank you for all that you've done. And ambassador, not only to thank you for this particular plant, for financing this particular plant but I want to thank once again through you Prime Minister Shinzo Abe of Japan because during our ASEAN Summit and East-Asian Summit, when we all talked about what should be done for energy security, Japan immediately put its money where its mouth is and Prime Minister Abe promised two billion U.S. dollars to finance energy security projects all over the east-Asian region. And that is something that EDC can continue to pursue.

Gina-abi-abi ko naman ang katawhan sang Bago City kag Murcia, kag ang tanan nga taga-Negros Occidental. May bag-o kamo nga 49-megawatt sang kuryente para sa Visayas kag kamo pa gid ang mangin una nga benepisyaryo sang mga kaayuhan nga ihatag sang planta tulad sang mga royalties. And I want to tell the whole investor community, the royalties from this power plant that will go to Bago City of Mayor Torres and the town of Murcia of Mayor Coscolluela — according to the law, right Popo? — 80 percent must go to electricity. And therefore as this plant is operating and now earning revenue streams, they have to spend 80 percent and to share the experience of other areas like Valencia in Oriental Negros and Kananga in Leyte, what they do is they subsidize the electric bills of their constituents, agod makaabot sa katawhan ang benepisyo sining atong proyekto diri. But not only that, this is our way of telling the investors if you are power- intensive, if your power cost is very high locate in Bago City and in Murcia. And after all, if you are an electronics firm and you have to speed up the delivery of your raw materials and your products, after all we have a new airport in Silay City coming up. So, you have all the infrastructure here you need to become competitive. So, come to Bago City, come to Murcia, come to Negros Occidental!

Isa pa nga dako nga benepisyo ang reforestation. Kag subong nga ginagusod na ang pag-andar sining planta, amo nga may matipid nga 15 million dollars nga langis kada tuig para sa atong pungsod. And I'm very happy that we are here in this very very modern plant, compact, as Paul said, but modern. And this is in accordance with our vision to take our place alongside other first-world nations by 2020. But to that end, no nation can aspire to become modern without thinking of our environment. I want to take this opportunity to share with you that we want to press ahead with a massive green Philippines environmental plan that is comprehensive in scope and thorough in execution. A plan that includes: number one, reforestation. And so this reforestation of this beautiful mountains is part of our green Philippines master plan; second, preservation of our reefs and waterways; and third, scrub the land and air of pollutants that endanger the health of our citizens; and finally, number four, energy independence.

Part of a bright new future for our nation is to take control over our reliance on energy to become free from dependence on foreign oil and become self-sufficient to the use of sustainable alternative forms of energy. We can harness our sun, wind and geothermal resources, as we are doing today. And we can produce our own clean fuels through biofuels. Thanks to Migs Zubiri who sponsored the biofuels law. Bata sang kabankalan kag Bacolod City, ayaw malipatan. But I also want to say that helping Migs in Congress were Monico and Iggy, who were his co-authors. So with this bill... No, law, ang layi sponsored by Migs Zubiri, we don't have to rely on foreign suppliers anymore.

Some are asking how can biofuels, the biofuels act help our people. Well, one of the biofuels is ethanol which is produced very greatly here in Negros Occidental. And right now — correct me if O'm wrong Popo Lotilla, but isn't it many gasoline stations are already selling ethanol blends? — but right now the ethanol is imported. But even the imported ethanol blended into gasoline is cheaper than the 100 percent gasoline. How much more when we produce our own biofuels right here in the Philippines. Salamat gid sa liwat Senator Migs Zubiri.

Ang mga una nga tuyo naton para sa sektor sang enerhiya amo ang pagsiguro nga indi magkulang ang supply sang kuryente, paghimo sang kuryente nga indi mahal, kag ang produksiyon sang clean energy halin sa aton mga natural resources like what we are doing here today.

Ang biofuels law isa ka dako nga pagkadto sa aton tuyo nga padamuon ang clean energy diri sa pungsod naton. Labi pa naton nga ginapadali ang programa sa paghimo sang mga alternatibo nga fuel. Ginadoble naton ang pagtrabaho para padakuon ang kapasidad sang aton enerhiya kag doble man ang aton ginahimo para indi magmahal ang presyo sang kuryente, labi na gid ang kuryente para sa mga imbestor. And that's why I repeat, investors with a big power... Electric bill, come to places like Bago City and Murcia where the local governments will subsidize your electric bill. Tuod, mayors?

Ang aton makusog nga buot kag ang todo nga suporta sang mga tawo amo ang rason nga nahuman ang aton mga reporma sa ekonomiya. May natipid kita nga 37 billion pesos last year halin sa mga reporma kag subong ginabalik naton ini sa katawhan bilang mas madamo nga oportunidad para sa edukasyon, mas maayo nga health services, mas madamo nga produksiyon para sa mga uma, mas moderno nga pasilidad sa transportasyon, mas madamo nga oportunidad para makapangita sang maayo nga trabaho, kag mas damo nga balay, more housing projects. And why have we've been successful in so many housing projects all over the country? Because of our first HUDCC chairman, none other than Mike Defensor of Victorias, Negros Occidental.

Ang aton natipid nga badyet nakadto naman sa mas maayo nga peace and order. And although we are here in Negros Occidental, I want to congratulate our law enforcement and military operatives for all that they have been doing for fusing their intelligence and tactical resources. And I want to congratulate General Ding Luna and all his men, because they have been keeping the peace in this mountainous areas like Bago City, Murcia and Southern Negros Occidental.

Kag dira naman sa Manila, I also want to congratulate our soldiers and policemen for fusing the intelligence resources to crack a terror ring threatening the national capital metropolis and preventing evil from taking more innocent lives. We aim for the peak of readiness to secure our people — indi lang sa Manila kon indi sa kabilugang Pilipinas — from harm every minute of the day. We will never put down our guard until terror is defeated, whether homegrown or spawned beyond our shores. And so because we have just preempted an attack on the metropolis in Metro Manila, I am directing the authorities to dig deeper into this latest conspiracy, expose the conspirators and their plans, and work with our communities to obtain effectively networked and synergized public vigilance.

Kini tanan ang aton mga gastos sa edukasyon, sa mga housing, (as what Mike Defensor has started) sa mga developments sa renewable and clean air and energy, (as what Migs Zubiri is spearheading) together with our appointive officials nagsugod na ang aton pag-uswag.

Padayon kita nga ituon ang atensyon agod nga magpadayon ang pag-uswag sang pungsod naton. Padayon naton ang paghiliusa sang katawhan. Padayon kita nga magbinuligay agod malambot naton ang aton mga damgo.

And so, to all of you, thank you for your continuing support. And thank you, PNOC-EDC for being such an important engine of national growth.

Mabuhi kita tanan!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Commissioning Ceremony of the PNOC-EDC 49-MW Northern Negros Geothermal Power Plant (NNGPP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151804/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1952&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 2007 Pamulinawen Festival and Laoag City Annual Fiesta

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 2007 Pamulinawen Festival and Laoag City Annual Fiesta

[Delivered at the Centennial Arena, Laoag City, Ilocos Norte, February 10, 2007]

Dios ti angina unay, apo Mayor Fariñas.

Apo Governor Bongbong Marcos ken amin nga opisyaales ti probinsiya ti Ilocos Norte; apo Congressman Roquito Ablan ken Mrs. Vicky Ablan; amin nga opisyaales ti ili ti Laoag ken amin nga members ti pamilya Fariñas; dagiti mayores ti probinsiya; dagiti barangay captain; addadtoy met ni karruba tayo, ni congressman apo nib baterina gapo Ilocos Sur.

Gagayyem ken kailyan. Kailyan kunak ta siyak met ni mamang ko, ti bangir ni mamang ko, siyak met anak ti amyanan. Ta ni mamang ko, naggapo ti Binalonan, Pangasinan. Ken ti lolo ko naggapo ti Bacarra, Ilocos Norte.

Iso nga kablawaan kayo amin iti naragsak nga kapiestaan yo ken nagbaleigi nga “2007 Pamulinawen Festival.” Maysa nga panagdayaw iti iawat ko kadagiti balikbayan. Ayan dagiti balikbayan tayo? Nga adda idtoy nga naggapu iti sab-sabali nga lugar tapno makikaysa iti selebrasyon tayo. Welcome to all of you!

Milyun-milyon nga Flipino nangruna dagidiay taga Ilocos Norte iti embahador tayo ti mundo.

Kayat ko met, iso nga kayat ko met nga usarin daytoy nga gundaway tapno agyamanak kadakayo iti inpakita yo nga kapigsaan. Saan laeng dagiti balikbayan, no di ket amin nga anak ti Ilocos Norte.

Kayat ko nga ibaga kanya yo iti pinagyaman ko iti ayat yo, thank you for your warm welcome when I came in tonight. Ken para iti nalalaing nga tulong yo tapno pasayaaten iti pagilian, papigsaen iti ekonomiya ken mangited iti peace and order iti tunggal purok ti probinsiya yo ken ti city ti Laoag.

Importante iti biag tayo nga Ilokano, kunak garud nga ni mamang ko, ket Ilocano met, iso nga siak met Ilokana ti bangir ni mamang ko, ken ti bangir ni lolok nga naggapo ti Bacarra, Ilocos Norte, importante haan laeng para dagiti naggapo iti Bacarra, importante ti biag tayo iti kapiyesta. Daytoy ket panagdawat kenni apo diyos ken iti ay-ayaten nga patron iti bendisyon da ken panangiturong kadagiti kayat tayo nga maaramid.

And what do I want to do? I want to create high-paying jobs here at home, here in the north, here in Ilocos, here in Laoag so that Filipinos no longer need to go abroad for a job. I want overseas work to be a career choice, and not the only option for a talented man or woman in search of a better life. You our balikbayans, our overseas Filipinos are heroes, you contribute much to our nation. But it is time to plan for the day when our heroes can come home, be with family, buy a home and live in comfort and dignity right here in the Philippines, right here in Ilocos, right here in Laoag.

Itattay garud, when we were going around the province, I learned that one of the priorities of Ilocos Norte is to have retirement homes for balikbayan Filipinos so that you can come home in your old age or in your senior years, and have the best medical care, the best nursing care right here rather than have to pay such expensive fees for a nursing home in America. So we thank God for our talented doctors, nurses, care givers.

Nakaad-adu iti masapul nga ipagyaman tayo kenni apo dios.

Para ti gobyerno tayo, adda malpas ti 22 billion pesos gapu iti naurnong tayo nga kuarta idi napalabas nga tawen ket usaren tayo tapno palaingen dagiti serbisyo publiko, kas iti makan, health, pagadalan, trabaho ken puonan iti babassit nga negosyo.

And the money that we saved last year, because our peso is so strong and our interest payments are so low, will also go to the release of the first six months' worth of Republic Act 7171 for the year 2007 for the province and the different cities and towns of Ilocos Norte. And I got a text message before I came here from the secretary of the budget, he will release this amount this coming Monday. One-half year's worth will come on Monday.

Ken kasla iti tunggal nga ilocano nga familia, ip-ippa tayo iti tunggal peso sadinno nga mangaramid iti naragsak, edukado, malusog ken nagbaleigi nga cabbalay.

Maysa nga nasayaatan nga pangarigan daytoy nga proyekto ket iti umay nga wind power project diay Burgos, Ilocos Norte. Malpas ti kaunaan nga wind power iti ili iti Bangui, Ilocos Norte. Adu benepisyo nga maited dagiti proyekto nga windmills of Bangui ken ti umay nga windmills of Burgos. Sapay kuma nga umay ti mura nga kuryente kadagiti consumer. Mangted pay dagitoy iti pondo para dagidiay host community ken maka-aramid iti trabaho para dagiti taga-bangui ken taga-Burgos ken dagidiay naduma-duma nga asideg nga ili, kadwan ti siyudad ti Laoag.

Because according to the law, 80 percent of Bangui's royalty and the upcoming royalty of Burgos for the power plants must go to electricity. Therefore, the local government of Bangui and Burgos can subsidize the electric bills of its residents including the companies that will locate in those two towns. And because of that, we should be able to attract electronics companies and call centers and hospitals, and old age care facilities which use a lot of electric power but which also hire a lot of people. And if that happens, no Agbalin, not only Bangui and Burgos, but the whole Ilocos Norte including Laoag can benefit from the increased employment.

Amin daytoy ket ar-aramiden tayo para iti maymaysa nga kayat tayo nga umay ti progreso.

Ken tatta nga nangrugina nga nagbunga dagitoy trabaho tayo — nga makitkita iti panagpigsa ti piso, panagpigsa ti stock market, pagngato iti exports, panag-adu iti foreign investments kasla ti windmills of Bangui that we visited earlier, ken panangdakkell ti overseas remittances — thanks dios ti agngina kadagiti balikbayan tayo — tatta nga makitkita amin datoy, sapay kuma lallalo tayo nga agmamaysa tapno matuloy dagiti napipintas nga nagbalin iti ay-ayat tayo nga amianan, ay-ayat tayo nga Ilocos Norte, ay-ayat tayo nga laoag, ay-ayat tayo nga ti intero nga pagilyan Pilipinas.

And that is my message to all of you. Have a wonderful fiesta. Congratulations! To our beautiful queens and princesses tonight. Have a wonderful fiesta to all of you.

Dios ti agngina kadakayo amin, apo.

*Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 2007 Pamulinawen Festival and Laoag City Annual Fiesta. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151722/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1935&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 1st National Convention of Kabalikat ng Malayang Pilipino (KAMPI) Party

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 1st National Convention of Kabalikat ng Malayang Pilipino (KAMPI) Party

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, City of Manila, February 12, 2007]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat Kalihim Ronnie puno sa iyong magandang pagpapakilala sa inyong lingkod.

Congressman Villafuerte, pangulo ng KAMPI; chair ng KAMPI, si Tingting Cojuangco; Sec. Gen. Ng KAMPI, si Ding Tanjuatco; ang ating mga senador — Angara ng Pilipinas dahil kay Ed Angara, pero itanim natin ang Pichay sa Senado, Butch Pichay, at si ‘Tol Mike Defensor.

Sa inyong lahat, iba’t-ibang mga opisyal at kasapi ng KAMPI, napaka-importante at makabuluhan na ginagawa n’yo itong kumbensyon, itong unang araw ng kampanya para sa ating kandidato sa nasyonal.

On this first day of the national elections, ako’y nagpapasalamat sa mensahe ni Louie Villafuerte that you are here to rally behind our agenda of nation-building. At inaasahan ko rin dahil itong araw ay simula ng kampanya pang senador, inaasahan ko kayo’y narito rin para ipayahag that you are rallying behind each and everyone of our candidates for senator.

Nabanggit ko na si Angara, na gaya nang sabi ko, Angara ng kanyang siyam na puntong programa na kadikit-dikit at kapareho-pareho ng ating buong Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan. Nabanggit ko na si ‘Tol, si Mike Defensor, kinabukasan ng ating pabahay at palupa. Nabanggit ko na ang gulay ng ating buhay, si Butch Pichay, na magtatrabaho para ipairal ang mga kagandahang-yaman ng Mindanao, ang ating food basket ng ating bansa.

Yung ibang mga kandidato ay nandoon pa sa Comelec, nagpa-file pa ng kanilang Certificate of Candidacy. Sila ay si Tessie Aquino-Oreta, ang kampeon ng ating edukasyon. Nariyan din ang kontra-abuso, si Joker Arroyo. Nabanggit ko na si ‘Tol, si Mike Defensor. Ang isang magtataguyod ng kalakasan ng ating local governments, Magsaysay is our guy, Vic Magsaysay. At isa pang kinatawan ng ating kinabukasan, kinabukasan ng Visayas, ang ating sentro ng turismo, ang kasalukuyang gobernador ng Leyte, si Jericho Petilla. Nabanggit ko na si Pichay. Isa pang gobernador, ipaglalaban din ang karapatan ng mga local governments at ng mga magsasaka natin doon sa amianan, tawag nila, si Chavit Singson. At yung dati nang isang original ng KAMPI at pinaglalaban ang kalusugan ng mga kabataan at sinisiguradong maiwas sila sa banta ng droga, si Senator Tito Sotto. Mukhang nakita ko, ang gusto kong makilala n’yong lahat, ang ating kinatawan ng mga Muslim, ang Sultan of Sulu, si Jamalul Kiram. Dapat Senator Sulu ilagay n’yo ang pangalan doon sa certificate, Sulu kasi kinakatawan mo ang unang-unang pinaka-matandang sultanate sa buong bansang Pilipinas. At kung tayo ay narito at pinag-uusapan ang kagandahan ng ating ekonomiya dahil korekto ang mga reporma ni Ralph Recto. At sa kinabukasan din, kinabukasan kampeon ng ating kasarinlan, sa napakamahal na gasolina at enerhiya ngayon pero siya ay nagbibigay sa atin ng sagot doon, ang ating bio-fuels champion, sabi nga nila “Boom-tarararat! boom-tarat-tarat! Zubiri! Zubiri! Boom! Boom! Boom!”

Sa kanilang kamay, sa inyong kamay, malaki ang aking tiwala sa kinabukasan ng bansa at sa kagalingan ng sambayanan. Ang ating pambansang hangarin o national agenda ay naglalayong isulong ang bansa tungo sa higit na katatagang pulitikal, kasagaanan at katiwasayan.

The national agenda is focused on creating good paying jobs, stable prices, bringing the benefits of a strong economy to every single Filipino. Our national agenda is pro-poor, pro-growth and pro-modernization. We have moved the nation forward on the strength of our partnership with barangay leaders, mayors, provincial governors who form the backbone of our government.

I trust the local officials to work with me, with us to continue on the path to reform, social justice and economic development. Our local leaders form the centerpiece of Philippine democracy. Our local leaders are on the frontline of change.

Ibinubuhos natin ang ating mga pagsisikap sa pagtatayo ng isang makabagong bansa na balang araw ay makikihanay sa mauunlad na bansa ng mundo. Ang ating pangarap ay darating ang panahon na ang mga Pilipino ay gugustuhing manirahan at magtrabaho dito sa Pilipinas, malapit sa pamilya at mga kaibigan, may-ari ng isang tahanan at may maginhawang pamumuhay.

We hope for the day when enough good jobs are created in the Philippines so the hardworking Filipinos don't have to go abroad to work. We see a day when going abroad for a job is a career choice, not the only option for work.

Nakagawa tayo ng mahihirap ngunit kailangang mga desisyon upang palakasin ang ating ekonomiya. Ang mga mahahapding hakbang na ito ay nagbubunga na — may salapi na tayong magagamit sa paglikha ng trabaho, mga bagong kalye, tulay, pantalan, dagdag para sa edukasyon at pangangalaga sa kalusugan.

Sa kauna-unahang pagkakataon sa napakaraming panahon, ang pamahalaan ay ginagawa kung ano ang ginagawa ng ordinaryong kabahayan sa Pilipinas — balansehin ang badyet at nang hindi magkautang. Ito ay magandang balita para sa bansa, lalung-lalo na sa ating mga kabataan na maka-aasa na ang kanilang gobyerno ay naglalaan para sa kanilang kinabukasan, hindi hiram ng hiram upang iwanan sila ng pagkakautang tulad ng mga ginawa sa nakaraan.

Sa pamamagitan ng malalakas na pandaigdigang kasunduan, nakalikha tayo ng mga bagong ugnayan na nakapagdulot ng bilyones sa pamumuhunan. Ang record in the entire history of our country, more than two billion dollars in foreign investment nangyari noong 2006. At itong mga puhunan na pumapasok noong nakaraang anim na taon ng ating administrasyon ay nakatulong lumikha ng limang milyong bagong trabaho. At pinalakas natin ang ating mga kasunduang militar at pang-seguridad sa rehiyon at sa mundo. Nakapaghatid ito ng malaking pakinabang tungo sa kapayapaan sa Mindanao, paghiwalay at pagtugis sa mga kilalang terorista, at pagbaba ng mararahas na krimen.

Our neighborhoods, barangays and nation are more secure, more peaceful and more stable as a result of our administration's leadership. But there is much to do if the nation is to work toward a more just, modern and prosperous nation.

And I am hopeful that with your support the may elections are about the future, not the past. The election should be about new ideas, not old complaints. And it should be about fighting for a stronger nation, not just about fighting. On my part, I will focus on the national agenda that includes more jobs, stable prices and peace and order. I will leave the politicking to the candidates whom we must all support especially our senatorial candidates.

Meanwhile, through all the noise of the political campaign, we will work to expand education and health care. We will take action to develop a green Philippines agenda to improve our environment and beautify our communities. And we will do so by working with our local and provincial leaders to see that the benefits of the new economy are spread to every corner of the Philippines and not just here in Metro Manila.

As I said earlier, I believe in the Philippines and its hardworking people. And with your support I will work hard until my term ends in 2010 to make economic prosperity, social justice, and peace and security a reality for a new modernizing Philippines.

Kaya dito, sa araw ng KAMPI convention, dito sa unang araw ng kampanya para sa ating mga senador, ang aking hiling, makipagtulungan tayong lahat, lahat ng mga partido sa ating koalisyong tungo sa ating tagumpay, tagumpay ng ating bansa.

Mabuhay! Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 1st National Convention of Kabalikat ng Malayang Pilipino (KAMPI) Party. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151643/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1928&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during a State Dinner in Honor of Visiting President and Mrs. S. R. Nathan of the Republic of Singapore

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a State Dinner in Honor of Visiting President and Mrs. S. R. Nathan of the Republic of Singapore

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, February 13, 2007]

His Excellency President S. R. Nathan and Madame; President Ramos; Excellencies of the Diplomatic Corps; Honorable Members of the Singaporean delegation; Speaker De Venecia; Honorable Members of the House of Representatives; Members of the Cabinet; Members of the Singaporean Business Delegation; Members of the Philippine business community; distinguished guests; Ladies and Gentlemen.

I'm honored to welcome to the Philippines an esteemed colleague, President S. R. Nathan, along with a very distinguished members of the Singapore delegation.

Our discussions earlier in the evening attest to the multi-faceted ties between Singapore and the Philippines. Your excellency will see how Singapore investments are flourishing in the Philippines when he visits the Carmelpav Industrial Park this Thursday and Fort Bonifacio this Friday.

We're likewise bringing our peoples closer to each other. The advent of budget airlines has significantly reduce the barriers to travel between our countries. Singapore's first world economy presents viable opportunities for thousands of Filipinos to further hone their experience and expertise. We see a significant demographic group contributing to the continued social, cultural and economic development of both Singapore and the Philippines.

Beyond bilateral relations, Singapore and the Philippines also share a valued partnership particularly in ASEAN. And tonight, we are honored to have in his excellency one of the moving forces in the establishment of the ASEAN four decades ago in Bangkok.

The Philippines and Singapore, as incumbent chair and incoming chair of ASEAN, now have the singular opportunity to move forward our common goal of an integrated ASEAN community.

Excellency, thank you very much for the honor to be able to return the gracious hospitality you showed us when I made my state visit to Singapore in 2001. We're happy to have you here with us and we hope you will have a very fruitful stay.

And now ladies and gentlemen, may I ask all of you to join me in a toast to the health and happiness of President and Madame Nathan, and to the friendship between our two countries.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during a State Dinner in Honor of Visiting President and Mrs. S. R. Nathan of the Republic of Singapore. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151634/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1924&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Inaugural Meeting and Induction of Directors and Officers of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI) Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Inaugural Meeting and Induction of Directors and Officers of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI)

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Intercontinental, Makati City, February 14, 2007]

Thank you very much Donald. And thank you... As chairman, congratulations! As Chairman of PCCI.

Congratulations! To Sammy and to all of the other officers and directors of the PCCI for this year.

Peter Favila and the other officials of the Philippine government; excellencies of the diplomatic corps; movers and shakers of trade and commerce and industry; ladies and gentlemen.

Your changing of the guards comes at a high point in our national life. And I would like to thank you because you kept the flame of growth burning brightly and steadily through challenging times.

I acknowledged your loyalty to the Filipino people about the fall of partisanship. And because there are businessmen like you, I'm optimistic about the future of the nation and the well-being of our people.

Our national agenda is designed to move the nation forward toward greater political stability, economic prosperity and peace and order. The national agenda is focused on creating good paying jobs, stable prices, and bringing the benefits of a strong economy to every single Filipino.

You, of course, are the movers and shakers who will create jobs. Between my Pasig river ferry trip and my appointment here with you, I went to signal hills in Taguig and inaugurated one of the — signal village, I mean — one of the what we call barangay food terminal, where the people of the village — and that's a big village, a hundred thousand population — the people of the barangay are enjoying prices of their vegetables and pork and other meat products about maybe some of them ten pesos average below what the market outside sells. And that is because we have reduced the cost of delivery from farm to market.

This is an example of payback to the people of our national agenda. Our national agenda is a pro-poor, pro-growth, pro-modernization agenda.

And I thank the PCCI. We've done so much together. Together, we have been working tirelessly to build a modern nation that will one day take its rightful place beside the first world countries.

Sammy said earlier, we want to dream of a seven percent growth rate. That is indeed in our Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan. Except that Sammy said, except for the usual five percent. It's usual in my administration but not before.

Lest you forget — before you and I were working together — it used to be four or three or two or one, and sometimes negative. And in fact, it is the first time for six years, every quarter experienced a growth rate. And that is around five percent, once even six percent.

You and I have a vision for the day when all Filipinos can choose to live and work here in the Philippines, close to family and friends, owning a home with a high quality of life. Through strong international alliances which you helped developed. You've gone with me on many of my trips abroad. You have helped me to dialogue with many of our visitors here. You forged so many partnerships with chambers from different parts of the world. You have forged partnerships, we have forged partnerships that have led to billions of investments and help create five million new jobs.

The president of Singapore is here bringing two major investments: one, in an industrial estate; and one in a condominium hotel right here in Taguig.

And we have strengthen, you and I again, our military and security alliances in the region and the world. This has led to major gains for peace in Mindanao; the isolation and tracking down of known terrorists like number one and number two Abu Sayyaf; and a reduction in violent crime.

And indeed, what you have helped me do strengthen our ties internationally has, as I said earlier, led to investments and jobs, led to peace and development in Mindanao.

And that is why today, I take the opportunity once again for us to extol two auspicious developments in the international front: one is the release of our kidnapped workers in Nigeria; and the other is the advent of the first major breakthrough in the six-party talks on North Korea.

On our 24 rescued workers in Nigeria, I would like to personally thank, Nigerian President Obasanjo for taking a direct hand in the release of our nationals even as we pray for the eventual release of the lady and the sub-contractor who are still held.

From the start, we never doubted the capability of the Nigerian government to rescue our workers. And I also wish to commend our diplomatic personnel for being focused and faithful to their task. As soon as the crisis erupted, we sent Ambassador Roy Cimatu to the area, and Ambassador Umpa, our resident ambassador there who has been working very hard. And just yesterday, Undersecretary Conejos arrived to put the finishing touches to the talks with the Nigerian government for the release of our workers.

At the same time, I wish to convey my congratulations to the nations that negotiated the landmark agreement leading to the de-escalation of nuclear arms development in North Korea. This is a good start to pull this armament and the full stabilization of the Korean peninsula which have been in the priority agenda of ASEAN and East-Asia for sometime. The Philippines and ASEAN — and may I convey again the thanks of our ASEAN neighbors, because the president of Singapore was just here, especially to the people of Cebu for the warm welcome and great hospitality you gave them during the summit — the Philippines and ASEAN will continue to extend all support to achieve the aims of peace in the Korean peninsula and stability in the Korean peninsula through peaceful and constructive means. We are for a safer world for Filipinos, many of whom are in Korea, and a more secure and stable region.

The Philippines is a strong player in world security, stability and harmony.

But I hope for the day when you, the business community, of course with government, working to provide the environment in which you can expand your investments; when you the business community create enough good jobs in the Philippines so that hardworking Filipinos do not have to go abroad for work. I see a day when going abroad for a job is a career choice not the only option for work.

With your support, our administration and I have made a tough but necessary decisions to strengthen our economy. And again, I thank the PCCI because you were there through all those difficult times on our tax reforms. As a result of your support which helped us to pass such difficult legislation for the first time in a long time, the government is doing what average Filipino household should be doing — balancing the budget and avoiding going into debt.

In order to balance the budget in 2008, our economic managers were projecting that we should have a deficit in 2007 of only 64 billion pesos, while our deficit last year was 63 billion pesos.

Do we want to advance the balancing of the budget to this year? Well, let me say that's already been advanced for 2010. So I would rather, rather than balancing the budget for this year, I would rather spend that extra 64 billion pesos to more infrastructure and more social services for the people. Social services to include education, health care, microfinance and also expenditures to modernize our military, for the first time since the soldiers cannot remember, we're going to buy brand new helicopters.

As a result of what we have been doing in fact to modernize and professionalize our military and our police, you are the ones who tell me that our neighborhoods, barangays and the nation are more secure, more peaceful, more stable. And that is all a result of our working together to fight crime. Because during the dark days of kidnapping, you, the PCCI and the federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of commerce, were the ones who helped me, who begin the advisory council of our police in order to fight this and other heinous crimes.

And indeed, your support has enabled the government to increase the payback to the people. Your work on developing small and medium enterprise has of course increased the payback to the people. And our record lows in interest rates, I hope will further increase that payback so that jobs will be created, not only by the big magnates who composed your council of advisers now — and congratulations! To you for getting them — but even by the small and medium enterprises, many of whom are members in your various chapters all over the country.

I'm very proud of our fruitful and rewarding partnership. And I guess it's a good time to have your induction today, Valentine's day, because indeed, you have been a very, very good partner.

Maraming salamat. Congratulations!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Inaugural Meeting and Induction of Directors and Officers of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PCCI). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151626/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1919&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 58th Birthday Celebration of Mrs. Gina De Venecia and Groundbreaking Ceremony/MOA Signing for a Day Care Center and Multi-purpose Hall

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 58th Birthday Celebration of Mrs. Gina De Venecia and Groundbreaking Ceremony/MOA
Signing for a Day Care Center and Multi-purpose Hall

[Delivered at Ceylon St., Better Living Subdivision Don Bosco Complex, Parañaque City, February 15, 2007]

Maraming salamat, Joe.

Marami nang nagsalita kaya siguro ang sabihin ko, maghilingi ako ng paumanhin sa ngalan ni Congressman and Mrs. Zialcita; sa ngalan ni Mayor and Mrs. Jun Bernabe at lahat ng opisyal ng lungsod ng Parañaque; sa ngalan ni Kapitan Jun Virata at lahat ng mga opisyal at ating mga nanay at saka mga anak sa Barangay Don Bosco. Gusto nating batiin si Gina De Venecia ng happy! Happy birthday! Gusto nating batiin ang Class 1966 ng congratulation at maraming salamat sa magandang day care center na itatayo rito, plus College '70 rin.

At ang susunod nating batiin ang kakatapos lamang na pangulo pagkatapos ng labing-anim na taon, si Celina Bautista sa kanyang magandang trabaho. Si Celine Bautista ay nag-turn over kay Gina pagkatapos ng labing-anim na taon ng buhay ng Class '66 and Class '70 foundation. Eh, si KC ay sumakabilang buhay ng 16 years old din kaya may bagong anak si Gina, yung mga alaga ng Class '66 at Class '70. At gusto rin nating batiin sa ngalan ng lahat ng naririto ang mga ina dahil kayo rin, mga ina na rin ng ating mga batang mag-aaral dito sa magandang bagong day care center. Gusto rin nating batiin si Claudine at yung ibang mga Congressional Spouses. Tatlo ang grupo ni Ginang pinagsama-sama — Class '66 and '70, INA at saka Congressional Spouses — at lahat sila keysa nagsososyalan lamang ay gumagawa ng mga social services sa mga nangangailangan.

Si Gina sana ay patatakbohin nating senador pero siguro ang masasabi ni Gina ngayon sa halip ng siya ang tumatakbo huwag na lamang kalimutan ang kanyang mga kandidato at kasama rito ang Sultan of Sulu. Sana kung gusto natin na may mga sektor pa — mga naiwan, yung mga naulilang mga ina, yung mga batang sa mahihirap na lugar na kailangan ng day care — huwag rin nating kalilimutan yung mga Muslim na dapat alagaan, at yun ang kinakatawan ng ating kandidato na Sultan of Brunei... ay, Sultan of Sulu.

Ang day care ay trabaho ng local government pero binabati natin ang mga local government dahil nakakakuha ng dagdag na tulong, kasi sa dami ng mga bata na nangangailangan ng kalinga at maagang edukasyon talagang ang ganda-ganda pag mga ngo kagaya ng Class '66 at '70 ay nakakatulong.

So Gina, sa halip na nagbibigay sa iyo ng birthday gift, ikaw ang nagbibigay ng birthday gift. Kaya maraming salamat. May you have many more birthdays and many more birthday gifts to the Filipino people to come.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 58th Birthday Celebration of Mrs. Gina De Venecia and Groundbreaking Ceremony/MOA Signing for a Day Care Center and Multi-purpose Hall. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151600/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1915&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the E-Services Philippines: 7th Global Sourcing Conference and Exhibition

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the E-Services Philippines: 7th Global Sourcing Conference and Exhibition

[Delivered at the Isla Ballroom, EDSA Shangri-La Hotel, Mandaluyong City, February 15, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Favila.

Leaders of the BPO and E-services industries; ladies and gentlemen.

I'm pleased to have... to welcome our business delegation from different parts of the world, from the U.S., Europe, Japan, India and other parts of Asia. And your being here is an affirmation of international confidence in the Philippines, and I thank you very much for that.

The recent international business report of Grant Thornton ranks the Philippines second among thirty world economies in terms of optimism on the economy over the next twelve months. And this event should further convince our potential investors that we're ready and here to stay after taking a growing slice of the global BPO business.

The industry now employs 250,000 Filipinos, and to think that only six years ago, there are only 2,000 workers in that industry. And through BPO, we care and share our talents with the world. And BPO players who are pushing for higher-end products to create a million jobs in our industry to generate 12 billion dollars in revenues by 2010. We started out with call centers, now we're moving to other kinds of higher value services.

Indeed, we're committed to go up the value chain, and the influx of multinationals puts us several notches higher. We have editors, medical diagnosis. We have accounting, all kinds of higher value services, e-services. And we're all happy that you're here to look some more on how we can help.

One of the reasons why our industry has grown so much over the last six years is that in 2001, we committed and we complied to improve the telecommunications infrastructure so as to lower the cost of connectivity. We've done that. Indeed, infrastructure is a main driver of investor confidence in the same way that a balanced budget has the same effect on our creditors and the capital markets — both must be at the top rung of priorities.

In our country, in our administration, over the last six years, especially the last three years, we've struck a healthy balance among all aspects of the economy to maximize confidence, credibility and payback to the people. Because if I may share with you, we want BPO, we want e-services because they bring so many jobs, not only here in metro manila, but all throughout our country, and therefore so many benefit.

You know sometimes, in some of our focus group discussions, when there is the acknowledgment that the industry has grown from 2,000 to 250,000, and then some will say, "yes, but that's for those who speak english well. What about the rest of us — the great unwashed — so to speak?"

But the e-services industry has spawned such a big multiplier. It has spawned the night economy for instance. And all around the e-services centers, you have restaurants, coffee shops working 24 hours a day. You have jeepneys having new and additional trips at night. And so it's not only the young, educated, english-speaking or good writer or good doctor or good accountant that gets a job. It's somebody who has the kindness and good manners to be a waiter. Or somebody who's willing to work through the night to be a driver. So it is part of the social payback to the people.

And we're able to do this because we've made tough decisions. To be able to improve our telecommunications infrastructure, we've had to work on deregulating the telecommunications industry. And to be able to do other infrastructure so that you can find it convenient to invest all over the country, we've had to raise taxes to fund that infrastructure.

The long-term effect of our tough decisions to raise revenues and move towards a balanced budget is evident in the stream of positive developments in the economy, among them your presence here.

I'm also happy that the biggest pension fund in the world — Calpers or the California Pension and Retirement System — has raised the rating of the Philippines, making it a more desirable investment destination for their giant funds than china or even India, Malaysia, Thailand and Indonesia.

And in our water system here in Metro Manila, German and Singaporean firms are staking their interest in the water utilities firm called Maynilad, in a bid to be our partners to deliver clean water to the people of metro manila.

Our option of spending on infrastructure and social services for the year will spur growth in the countryside, notch up grassroots enterprises and build wealth in communities. More infrastructure and more schools will make it convenient for e-services to be located along our cyber... All along our cyber corridor, which stretches along the length of the Philippines from Baguio City in the north through Clark, just north of here, and Metro Manila — Clark and Metro Manila are in the urban beltway — to Central Visayas and Davao in the south. Infrastructure will also connect, aside from connecting you, they will also connect farms to markets; they will also bridge knowledge and they will unify the country aside from making it easier for you to go all over the countryside.

Next week, I'm going to open a Teletech Center in Dumaguete City. And I really have a great time every time I open an e-service or BPO center outside Manila.

And we can do all these and at the same time achieve a balanced budget in no time at all. That is why we can say that our growth today is sustainable.

Our strengths in e-services lie in our extensive digital infrastructure, our trusted business environment, our Class 'A' office spaces, and of course most important, the skills of the Filipino workforce.

The outsourcing boom in the Philippines continues to drive the property market. An example, in the sprawling Mall of Asia — that's the biggest shopping mall outside China — it houses Dell's Customer Service Operations.

We continue to sharpen our workforce by enhancing the english curriculum. English is back as the medium of instruction in our country. aside from that, we also have our bridging courses and skills. In our technical and skills development training system, we give out scholarships. For now a very limited number of skills because these are the ones where jobs are so readily available. And they are for call center english, for seafarers, for welders, and for butchers. For those who can't, you know who say, "what about us, we can't become a call center agent?" So they can become butchers because these are the ones where we have maybe like 30,000 jobs available.

So that is how... Though it's varied, it's limited in number because we want to make sure that when they get out of our training system, they have a job available. And you are providing jobs.

What we're doing is for the near hires, for the near hires, we're reaching out especially to them to give them scholarships, so that the next time around when they apply, they are no longer near hires, they're ready to start.

We're also honing the curriculum for medical editors. And I'm very glad that we've gone beyond just transcription — although transcription is not just, it's high value — but we've gone beyond that to medical diagnosis online. And we're building more I.T. hubs in our regions. Like as I said, what I'm going to inaugurate next week and that I also inaugurated last week in Bacolod, in Negros Occidental.

Our telecom infrastructure is stable and firm. During the great typhoons of the 'Milenyo' and the 'Reming,' you might have heard about the great typhoons we've had in the Philippines that torn down houses and sent roofs to the sky, our BPO industry continued to work, no interruption in telecommunications service. When the Taiwan quake affected international connections online, our telecom providers quickly deployed resources to make sure that our BPO services will not be interrupted.

I remember going to one of the BPO inauguration... No, not inauguration, anniversary or an extension... Yes, an expansion celebration and I asked the manager, "so, what happened during the typhoon?" This was three days after the typhoon. "oh," she said, "the only... The only casualty was me. My house... My roof blew off, but work was going on 24 hours a day in our BPO center."

We have a highly-skilled multicultural workforce who have a keen understanding of international business processes. We have a lot of our agents working with American customers. We have those working with Spanish speaking customers and many other cultural... Culturally diversified markets.

And so I'm very happy that once again you are all here.

I want to thank you for your confidence. And on my part, I want to let you know that we shall keep the economic ship on course and our political stability steady in a sea of optimism and hope.

Thank you for coming to the Philippines. And I hope your business will stay and expand.

Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the E-Services Philippines: 7th Global Sourcing Conference and Exhibition. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151611/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1911&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 27th Annual Meeting and the 2007 International Science Conference of the Philippine-American Academy of Science and Engineering (PAASE)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 27th Annual Meeting and the 2007 International Science Conference of the Philippine-American Academy of Science and Engineering (PAASE)

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Century Park Hotel, Malate, Manila, February 16, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Alabastro for your introduction.

Dr. Cullaba, thank you and congratulations! On this very important conference of PAASE and welcome to the many important Filipino scientists from the different parts of the world, especially from America.

Congressman Villafuerte, other officials of PAASE, other officials of the Philippine government, ladies and gentlemen.

First of all, thank you to PAASE, the Philippine-American Academy of Science and Engineering for dovetailing this conference with the economy. And this is so fitting. I'm proud to say that not only did I talk about science and technology in my last State of the Nation Address, but in my first State of the Nation Address in 2001, I declared that technology is the foundation of future economic development.

Therefore, in our medium-term Philippine development plan, among the strategic measures contained therein is to mobilize and disseminate knowledge. In that same medium-term Philippine development plan, we identified as the key challenges in science and technology the following:

Make science and technology policies supportive of national development goals and policies. And this conference dovetailing S & T in the economy fits into that challenge.

Enhance competitiveness of the country's human capital.

Develop a critical mass of scientists and R & D personnel.

Speed up knowledge creation and dissemination for greater productivity and job creation especially to the rural areas, and improve the mechanism and programs to promote and encourage technology-based entrepreneurship.

That was in our medium-term plan and it is still there.

At first, the Philippines had little of the huge funds required to meet these challenges. The first order of the day for us was to put our economic house in order and find the funds to meet those challenges.

Thanks to congressmen like Louie Villafuerte, we had our fiscal reforms, our peso strengthen, therefore, our interest spreads went down and we saved 30 billion pesos last year. Because of our savings and because of our increased funds from revenues and taxes, more funds are now being earmarked to strengthen our educational system including in the basic grades and years strengthening math and science in our basic education.

And because of these reforms, the Philippines today basked in glowing reviews of our fiscal and economic reforms. Just today, I just came from a groundbreaking of a pharmaceutical company and nutritional company in CALABARZON worth 80 million U.S dollars, and they said that they did this expansion because of our economic reforms.

The record breaking high set by the stock market, the peak in overseas remittances, the raging performance of the peso are clear manifestations that our economic homerun is in play. Not even the intense politicking brought about by the forthcoming elections can spoil the larger gain of the economy.

Our eye is on the ball as we aim our ballish on better paying jobs, improve infrastructure including technology, enhance social services, the alleviation of poverty and hunger, fighting terror, and nurturing the environment. All of which will benefit from technology.

The Filipino people are shrugging off the past and looking forward to the fruits of steady growth, trade and investment. We must all seize the moment to reach the summit through our unity and hardwork brandishing the Filipino team spirit that has gained renowned worldwide.

The Philippines is a team to beat when it comes to excellence, resiliency and staying power in a competitive world. But there are specific challenges we have to contend with. And if I may digress momentarily from science and technology, I'd like to take this opportunity to express that I'm saddened by the fact that the visa hold has been employed on the deployment of our Filipino nurses as a result of the nursing exams of last year.

I'm instructing the secretary of labor to immediately look into the findings of the Commission on Graduates of Foreign Nursing Schools and seek all forms of relief from the visa hold and appeal for reconsideration of the decision. The government shall provide financial assistance to 2006 nursing board passers for the retake of the exams as called for by the CGFNS with the proper body to oversee the project including having a common review center. We shall uphold the prestige and excellence of the Philippine nursing profession as we also promote the prestige and excellence of the Filipino scientist all over the world with the plans that we can now have the funds to carry out.

In my State of the Nation Address, the portion that was drafted by Congressman Louie Villafrute, I said that the country that wants to be a player in the global economy needs bold and well-funded research and development initiatives of its own for in today's global economy knowledge is the greatest creator of wealth.

And last year, I met with some of you. I met with members of PAASE along with Secretary Alabastro, I.C.T. and education agencies and Congressman Villafrute. We agreed on five action plans.

First, a review of policies by a presidential coordinating body. So today, I will issue an executive order creating — there I have signed it — creating the Presidential Coordinating Council on R and D.

Our second agreed on action plan was to expand the number of Filipino science and technology experts. This morning, I had a telephone conversation with the Secretary of the Budget Nonoy Andaya. I instructed him to release 200 million pesos for science and engineering masters and PHD scholarship programs.

Our third agreement was to establish a science complex. Our supplemental budget for 2006 provides 500 million pesos for a U.P. science complex. And as we were walking in, I asked president Roman, "how's our science complex coming along?" And she said. "it's coming along fine."

The fourth agreement that we made during that meeting was to strengthen linkages between and among the stakeholders of S & T development to speed up technology transfer to micro, small and medium enterprises. And I am glad that Nina Alabastro and the DOST will establish this year four business incubators.

I've asked Nina to make one of those four business incubators an incubator for virgin coconut oil. We would like virgin coconut oil to be as famous all over the world as Italian olive oil is. And Nina said, indeed, that's one of her major programs. And one of the incubators will be in Camarines Sur, which is coconut country. And so indeed I hope to see these four come into fruition this year.

Our fifth agreement was to increase public awareness and advocacy for S & T. I think what you're doing here this next two days is in accordance with that. And aside from this important conference attended by some of our Filipino superstars in the science and technology field in the United States, I count on the PAASE members to regularly provide science and technology information materials to print media.

This is one of the paybacks of our fiscal reforms that we can now move towards tripling private and public sector spending on R & D.

And now that we are closer to the goal to give a bigger share of the budget for science and technology, I am optimistic that together we can fully tap the wonders of science and technology to achieve growth, preserve peace and improve lives on the longer term.

Mabuhay ang Filipino-American scientists!

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 27th Annual Meeting and the 2007 International Science Conference of the Philippine-American Academy of Science and Engineering (PAASE). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151537/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1885&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 27th Annual Meeting and the 2007 International Science Conference of the Philippine-American Academy of Science

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 27th Annual Meeting and the 2007 International Science Conference of the Philippine-American Academy of Science

[Delivered at the Century Park Hotel, Malate, Manila, February 16, 2007]

First of all, thank you to PAASE, the Philippine-American Academy of Science and Engineering for dovetailing this conference with the economy. And this is so fitting. I'm proud to say that not only did I talk about science and technology in my last State of the Nation Address, but in my first State of the Nation Address in 2001, I declared that technology is the foundation of future economic development. Dr. Cullaba, thank you and congratulations on this very important conference of PAASE and welcome to the many important Filipino scientists from the different parts of the world, especially from America.

Therefore, in our medium-term Philippine development plan, among the strategic measures contained therein is to mobilize and disseminate knowledge. In that same medium-term Philippine development plan, we identified as the key challenges in science and technology the following:

Make science and technology policies supportive of national development goals and policies. And this conference dovetailing S & T in the economy fits into that challenge.

Enhance competitiveness of the country's human capital. Develop a critical mass of scientists and R&D personnel.

Speed up knowledge creation and dissemination for greater productivity and job creation especially to the rural areas, and improve the mechanism and programs to promote and encourage technology-based entrepreneurship.

That was in our medium-term plan and it is still there.

At first, the Philippines had little of the huge funds required to meet these challenges. The first order of the day for us was to put our economic house in order and find the funds to meet those challenges.

Thanks to congressmen like Louie Villafrute, we had our fiscal reforms, our peso strengthened, therefore, our interest spreads went down and we saved 30 billion pesos last year. Because of our savings and because of our increased funds from revenues and taxes, more funds are now being earmarked to strengthen our educational system including the basic grades and years strengthening math and science in our basic education.

And because of these reforms, the Philippines today basked in glowing reviews of our fiscal and economic reforms. Just today, I just came from a groundbreaking of a pharmaceutical company and nutritional company in CALABARZON worth 80 million U.S dollars, and they said that they did this expansion because of our economic reforms.

The record breaking high set by the stock market, the peak in overseas remittances, the raging performance of the peso are clear manifestations that our economic homerun is in play. Not even the intense politicking brought about by the forthcoming elections can spoil the larger gain of the economy.

Our eye is on the ball as we aim our ballish on better paying jobs, improve infrastructure including technology, enhance social services, the alleviation of poverty and hunger, fighting terror, and nurturing the environment. All of which will benefit from technology.

The Filipino people are shrugging off the past and looking forward to the fruits of steady growth, trade and investment. We must all seize the moment to reach the summit through our unity and hardwork brandishing the Filipino team spirit that has gained renowned worldwide.

The Philippines is a team to beat when it comes to excellence, resiliency and staying power in a competitive world. But there are specific challenges we have to contend with. And if I may digress momentarily from science and technology, I'd like to take this opportunity to express that I'm saddened by the fact that the visa hold has been employed on the deployment of our Filipino nurses as a result of the nursing exams of last year.

I'm instructing the secretary of labor to immediately look into the findings of the Commission on Graduates of Foreign Nursing Schools and seek all forms of relief from the visa hold and appeal for reconsideration of the decision. The government shall provide financial assistance to 2006 nursing board passers for the retake of the exams as called for by the CGFNS with the proper body to oversee the project including having a common review center. We shall uphold the prestige and excellence of the Philippine nursing profession as we also promote the prestige and excellence of Filipino scientists all over the world with the plans that we can now have the funds to carry out.

In my State of the Nation Address, the portion that was drafted by Congressman Louie Villafrute, I said that the country that wants to be a player in the global economy needs bold and well-funded research and development initiatives of its own for in today's global economy knowledge is the greatest creator of wealth.

And last year, I met with some of you. I met with members of PAASE along with Secretary Alabastro, I.C.T. and education agencies and Congressman Villafrute. We agreed on five action plans.

First, a review of policies by a presidential coordinating body. So today, I will issue an executive order creating – there I have signed it – creating the Presidential Coordinating Council on R and D.

Our second agreed action plan was to expand the number of Filipino science and technology experts. This morning, I had a telephone conversation with the Secretary of the Budget Nonoy Andaya. I instructed him to release 200 million pesos for science and engineering masters and PHD scholarship programs.

Our third agreement was to establish a science complex. Our supplemental budget for 2006 provides 500 million pesos for a U.P. science complex. And as we were walking in, I asked President Roman, "how's our science complex coming along?" And she said. "It's coming along fine."

The fourth agreement that we made during that meeting was to strengthen linkages between and among the stakeholders of S & T development to speed up technology transfer to micro, small and medium enterprises. And I am glad that Nina Alabastro and the DOST will establish this year four business incubators.

I've asked Nina to make one of those four business incubators an incubator for virgin coconut oil. We would like virgin coconut oil to be as famous all over the world as Italian olive oil is. And Nina said, indeed, that's one of her major programs. And one of the incubators will be in Camarines Sur, which is a coconut country. And so indeed, I hope to see these four come into fruition this year

Our fifth agreement was to increase public awareness and advocacy for S & T. I think what you're doing here this next two days is in accordance with that. And aside from this important conference attended by some of our Filipino superstars in the science and technology field in the United States, I count on the PAASE members on regularly provide science and technology information materials to print media.

This is one of the paybacks of our fiscal reforms that we can now move towards tripling private and public sector spending on R & D.

And now that we are closer to the goal to give a bigger share of the budget for science and technology, I am optimistic that together we can fully tap the wonders of science and technology to achieve growth, preserve peace and improve lives on the longer term.

Mabuhay ang Filipino-American scientists!

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the ‘Team Unity’ Kick-off Proclamation Rally for Senatorial Candidates

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the ‘Team Unity’ Kick-off Proclamation Rally for Senatorial Candidates

[Delivered at the Cebu Coliseum, Sanciango St. Cebu City, Cebu, February 17, 2007]

Daghan salamat, Mayor Tony Osmeña sa imo mga maayo nga gisulti karon ug salamat sa pag host diri sa Cebu City kining atong proclamation rally sa Team Unity.

Salamat sab kan Governor Gwen Garcia, tanan-tanan aton mga kaigsuonan, mga opisyaes sa Sugbo, ang aton mga laing-laing congressmen na anhi karon aron makahatag sa ilang suporta sa atong Team Unity diri sa siyudad sa Sugbo, si Raul Del Mar ug si Tony Cuenco. Gikan sa probinsya aniya si Neri Soon Ruiz, aniya si Sim Kintanar, aniya si Eddie Gullas, si Red Durano ug aton mga naa pa sab mga laing-laing mga bisita from the other areas of the Philippines. We have Congressman Mitos Magsaysay from Zambales, the daughter- in-law of Vic Magsaysay; and we have Governor Jericho Petilla of Leyte; aton mga opisyal sa City of Cebu, anya si Vice Mayor Rama ug tanan atong mga konsehales, aton mga lider sa mga barangay, tanan-tanang mga igsuonan, una sa lahat murag ingon ni Tony Osmeña, daghan salamat sa landslide nga gihatag ninyo kanako niadtong niaging eleksiyon.

Unya daghan salamat sab kay kamo ang nagsilbing host sa akong inagurasyon. Daghan salamat sab sa inyong pag host sa Malacañang sa Sugbo. Ug daghan salamat sa inyong daghang nahimo aron successful ug importante kaayo ang mga nahitabo sa ASEAN Summit diri sa Sugbo.

Karon sa gihapon sa inyong suporta, gatuo ko nga kining aton eleksiyon sa mayo alang sa kaugmaon ug dili ra sa kagahapon.

Ang eleksiyon angay gyud sa mga bag-ong panan-aw ug dili mahitungod sa mga daang complaints. Ug angay nga mahitungod kini sa atong paglaban alang sa papapakusog sa nasod ug dili lamang mahitungod sa pakig-away. I thank you all not only the governor and other... The congressmen, the mayor, the city mayors, kan municipal mayors, tanan opisyaes and everybody. And I ask you this time again help us. We will focus on the national agenda that includes more jobs, stable prices, peace and order.

We will work to expand education and health care.

We will take action to develop a green Philippines agenda to improve our environment and beautify our communities.

Ug nagala-um kita nga sa inyo padayon nga suporta aron siguraduhon nga ang mga benepisyo sa bag-ong ekonomiya maka-abot sa tanan lugar sa tibuok Pilipinas ug dili lang sa Metro Manila. Busa City Mayor sa City of Cebu, city mayor sa ating laing-laing na siyudad sa Sugbo, ang atong Campaign Spokesman si Ace Durano, ang aton mga municipal mayors ug ang aton mga congressmen, ang aton mga barangay officials, tanan-tanang opisyaes ug aton mga katawhan sa tibuok Sugbo, city ug probinsya, ang atong mga kandidato:

Una, dating Senate President, Ang Gara ng Buhay sa Nine-point Agenda ni Ed Angara;

Unya, haligi sa hustisya sa katawhan, haligi sa demokrasya, kaya ang tawag natin sa kanya ang People’s Dragon, Kung Bad Ka, Lagot Ka! Si Joker Arroyo;

Ang pagla-um sa kabataan, kampeon sa pabalay kauban na diri sa Cebu City mismo, si ‘Tol’ Mike Defensor;

Ang masunod, gobernador, mutindo alang sa pagpakusog sa mga local government, Magsaysay is our Guy;

Ang Cebuano that we will rely on nga mahimo ang promodor sa kaugmaon sa atong kultura ug turismo, si Cesar Montano;

Ang kampeon sa kababaihan, dili lang kampeon sa kababaihan, kampeon sa mga magtutudlo ug mga estudyante, si Senadora Tessie ‘TAO’ Oreta;

Cebuano gihapon, karon na Cebuano gikan sa Mindanao, mohimo kampeon sa agri-business tungod kay itanom nato ang Pichay sa Senado;

Dili ta niabot sa fiscal crisis tungod sa iya mga balaod nga korekto, si Ralph Recto;

Ang kampeon sab dili lang sa local government kundili sab sa mga mang-uuma, si Chavit Singson;

Kinsa naman ang Cebuano nga dili pa nakasulod sa ospital nga gin ngalan sa iyang lolo, Vicente Tito Sotto III;

Kinahanglan nato ang kalinaw sa tibuok Pilipinas alang sa kalinaw ug kauswagan sa Muslim Mindanao, si Kiram, ang Sultan of Sulu at sa pamilya sa atong royalty;

Ug ang kaugmaon kay bata pa siya apan daghan na ang nahimo, ang kaugmahon sa atong enerhiya, Mr. Biofuels, Zubiri! Zubiri! Boom! Boom! Boom!

Mga kaigsuonan, pro-poor, pro-growth, pro-modernization ang atong Team Unity nagahangyo sa inyong tabang ug suporta.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA’s Speech during the ‘Team Unity’ Kick-off Proclamation Rally for Senatorial Candidates. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151509/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1884&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Opening Ceremonies of the 2nd International Rondalla Festival

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening Ceremonies of the 2nd International Rondalla Festival

[Delivered at the Oriental Negros Provincial Convention Center, Capitol area, Dumaguete City, Oriental Negros,
February 19, 2007]

Thank you very much, Governor Jojo Arnaiz, Mrs Arnaiz, congratulations! For this beautiful convention center and for hosting this important rondalla festival.

Vice President Noli De Castro; Mayor Toting Perdices; vice governor and other officials of the province of Oriental Negros; our Cabinet members and other national officials who are here with us today; delegates; participants of the Second International Rondalla Festival of Oriental Negros, mga kaigsoonan.

Makit-an nato ang paspas nga kauswagan dinhi sa Dumaguete ug sa tibuok Oriental Negros. Kining inyong convention center nga ga bili ug 140 ka milyon pesos gikan lang gyud sa inisyatibo sa gobyerno probinsiyal. Mo-apas pang mahuman ingon ni Governor Arnaiz karong hunyo ang pagbutang sa rubberized oval didto sa Perdices coliseum. Congratulations! For a coliseum like this.

Angay gyud kining convention center sa inyong tuyo nga mahimong paboritong destinasyon alang sa mga tourism activities, convention tourism, nature adventures ug sa inyong tuyo nga titulong convention and sports destination. Ang angay ni-ini sa atong tourism super region diri sa Central Philippines.

Kagangina niadto kami sa inagurasyon sa bag-ong Teletech ug sa pagsugod sa Dumaguete business park nga naa kauban nga Robinson's Mall gasunod sab sa pagkab-ot sa inyong katuyuan.

And in order for Oriental Negros progress to continue as well as the rest of the Philippines, we are avowed not to let politics get in the way of the economy. We are avowed to reinforce the economy with firm political stability. We see the political campaign taking its course in a manner reflecting a full fledged Philippine democracy. This should convince one and all that freedom reigns beside a free market in our country.

The resiliency of our economy as well as our political system has been tried and tested through several crises and storms. The Filipino always rises from controversy to shine in excellence and hard work. We shall prove it once more this year. We call on the opposition not to hurt, but to help grow the economy.

Ang atong nasudnong agenda gipa-focus sa paghimo daghang trabaho, pag-istable sa mga presyo ug sa pagdala sa benepisyo sa kauswagan ngadto sa tanang Pilipino.

Naga-anhi ang kauswagan sa nasod pinaagi sa atong pakighi-usa sa mga lider sa barangay, sa mga mayor ug sa mga gobernador.

Kining inyong kapital nga dumaguete nga da-an nga gitawag nga university town ug adunay nindot nga Rizal Boulevard usa sab sa labing malinaw nga siyudad sa tibuok nasod. Congratulations!

And since you are the host of this international event today, tungod kay kamo mag-host sa mga international nga okasyon, sama ni-ining 2nd International Rondalla Festival nga gasugod karong adlaw, gipakita sab ninyo ang pagpangga sa mga Oriental Negros ang kultura ug mga arte.

Oriental Negros is a university town, but today you have shown beyond being a university town, you are a town of great culture, love for culture.

Ang pagdu-aw dinhi sa Visayas, sa cuerdas usa ka maayo nga oportunidad alang sa panagkauban sa interfaith, inter-culture ug inter-sibilisasyon agi sa musika. What we are doing today, our guests, is an example of interfaith, inter-culture, inter-civilization togetherness.

Labaw pang mikusog ang aton pagsalig sa mga lokal nga opisyal sa Oriental Negros tungod nining provincial convention center. Nahibalo nato nga kini ang “crowning glory” sa daghan ninyo mga nahimo ngano midaog kanunay kamo ug upat ka “Galing Pook” awards. Congratulations sa probinsiya!

Apan dili lang mga proyekto sa gobyerno, mga proyekto sab gikan sa atong mga private sector, ang bag-ong Teletech simbolo sa dakong uswag dili lang diri sa Oriental Negros kundili sab sa atong nasod sa industriya sa information and communications technology ug sa pag-ayo sa atong ekonomiya.

Tungod ni-ining mga bag-ong pag-uswag, ang dumaguete ug ang tibuok probinsiya sa oriental negros apil sa mga ga-una sa pagbag-o ug pag-uswag nga nahitabo sa atong nasod. Congratulations!

And so on this day, it’s a very rare occasion, that the president and the vice president are together in one place. Not because we don’t like each other, we like each other very much. But anywhere in the world, the president and the vice president are supposed to avoid being together, but today we are together. That’s how important Oriental Negros is. That’s how important Dumaguete is. That’s how important this international Rondalla festival is to the cultural life of our country.

Daghan salamat ug congratulations! Sa inyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA’s Speech during the Opening Ceremonies of the 2nd International Rondalla Festival. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151454/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1882&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Economic Briefing and Lunch with the Economic Journalists Association of the Philippines (EJAP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Economic Briefing and Lunch with the Economic Journalists Association of the Philippines
(EJAP)

[Delivered at Rooms A & B, Makati Shangri-La, Makati City, February 20, 2007]

Thank you Joey, my new presidential chief of staff, one of my star students, a student who became better than his teacher.

When Tony said that I have the right staff. I said, “is it s-t-u-f-f or s-t-a-f-f?” ’cause look at our economic managers here: Peter Favila, Gary Teves, Popo Lotilla, Arty Yap, Fe Barin, Lilia De Lima — great! Great! Economic team.

And I’d like to thank the Lopez brothers for hosting this. You remind us of the President of Marubeni and the President of Tokyo Electric because they’re brothers. Also, the Prime Minister and the President of Poland. So that’s how important are the Lopez brothers to our economic journalism.

Thank you also Tony for the kind words — not just words — kind words and the kind numbers that you pointed out in your opening remarks.

And to all of you, good noon, ladies and gentlemen.

Thank you for being in this economic conference or conference on economic growth hosted by EJAP and MOPC. And I asked for this occasion so that we could celebrate six years of uninterrupted growth. And why did we ask the Lopez brothers to host it? Because it was Tony Lopez who pointed out about the 24 quarters of uninterrupted economic growth. Thank you, Tony.

And so as Tony has started to do, we’re all here to review the economic progress that has made our nation stronger and that’s working to improve the quality of life of Filipinos throughout our great nation.

Reforming the economy is one of the most difficult tasks any administration can undertake. Especially the Philippines, as Tony said, it’s very difficult to manage the Philippine economy.

It’s not easy to raise revenue by raising taxes and making people angry. But it’s necessary if we are to invest new money in vital infrastructure.

It’s not easy to crack down on tax cheats, be they rich or famous, as Gary Teves knows, but it’s necessary if we are to invest in education and health care.

It’s not easy to balance a budget so that we can save billions in interest payments, but it’s necessary if we are to modernize our nation and lift up the poor.

From the start, we set a course to reform the fundamentals of our economy. The seas were often rough and the wind was in our face. (Ronnie, please take your seat — our Consumer Oil Price Watch) The wind was often in our face but we sailed on because the choices were stark — sail against the wind and change our economic fortunes or perish.

No, economic reform is not easy. No one said it would be when I got into this job. But together with our economic managers and the people who supported us through these tough decisions, the Filipino nation is better off today than it was six years ago.

And there is no turning back. We will balance the budget, create new jobs, and lift this nation up. As Tony has pointed out — and I wish that we would all remember — for once, we have traveled the path of 24 quarters of uninterrupted growth.

We have demonstrated to ourselves and to the world that we can sustain our economic growth and not be derailed by political sideshows. We aim to stay on this course and to continue to prove to ourselves and to the world that the Philippines has arrived at a new place, where issues, policies and ideas trump personalities and politics.

Yes, we have made the tough but necessary decisions to strengthen our economy. (oh, we have several gentlemen, please. We have several of our business leaders. Dave.) And these painful steps are paying off: we now have the money to invest in job creation, new roads, bridges and ports, and more for education and health care. And while we were able to spend more on our country and our people, for the first time in a long time, the government is doing what average Filipino households do: move towards balancing the budget and not borrowing more and more.

Through strong international alliances, we have forged new partnerships that have led to billions in investments that helped create five million new jobs. We have strengthened our military and security alliances in the region and the world. That has led to major gains for peace in Mindanao, the isolation and tracking down of known terrorists and a reduction in violent crime.

Our neighborhoods, barangays and nation are more secure, more peaceful, more stable as a result of these efforts.

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank the house for ratifying the anti-terror bill and other measures of national interest. And I urge both houses to strike while the iron is hot and join hands to send out the enrolled bill so that I can sign it, and so that we can have uninterrupted momentum in our fight against terror — with all the legal teeth we need to curtail the clandestine movement of funds, material and persons who are out to sow evil.

It's somewhat saddening that the day of statesmanship was clouded by the death of Congressman Serapio on his way to join his colleagues on the house floor. As we sympathize with his loved ones and constituents, we dedicate our relentless efforts to work for the peace and safety of all Filipinos wherever they are. With the passage of the anti-terror bill, our nation would have a potent weapon and armor to shield not only the people but our economy as well from this global scourge. So I urge our congress on as I extol our troops who are in the thick of this fight to finish off the Abu Sayyaf and keep our national perimeters clean of terror.

In the next three and a half years remaining in our administration, we will invest about a trillion pesos to build much needed infrastructure that will support our economy and attract further investments.

This year in 2007, we will continue on our path towards a balanced budget, which our medium-term plan set... Had set for 2010, but which our economic managers insists they want to achieve it by next year.

This is great news for the nation and particularly our young people who can rest assured that their government is investing in their future, not borrowing more and more to leave them with the debt as has been done in the past.

Because of our successes, I'm optimistic about the future of the nation and the well-being of the people.

We have worked tirelessly to build a modern nation that will one day take its rightful place beside first-world countries.

We have a national agenda designed to move the nation forward toward greater political stability, economic prosperity and peace and order. It is a pro-poor, pro-growth, pro-modernization agenda. (Chito, please)

We're working hard to create an environment conducive to businesses and economic growth. This is clearly visible in our improved fiscal performance, widespread positive market sentiment and upbeat economic forecast for 2007, all of which were mentioned by Tony earlier, and will probably be amplified by Joey later with a six-year perspective, as well as the briefing that will be done hosted by the Central Bank in the other room today.

Our administration will focus on the national agenda that includes more jobs, stable prices and peace and order. We will work to expand education and health care. We will take action to develop a green Philippine agenda to improve our environment and beautify our communities. We will do so by working with our local and provincial leaders to see that the benefits of the new economy are spread to every corner of the Philippines, not just Metro Manila.

The next wave of reforms focuses on enhancing infrastructure and national competitiveness.

Our infrastructure program is focused on enhancing the competitive advantage of the natural "Super Regions" of the Philippines: farm-to-market roads and irrigation in the North Luzon agri-business quadrangle — oh, yeah and including also no frills airports — expressways and ports in the Metro Luzon urban beltway; roads and airports for Central Philippines tourism; farm-to-market roads and roll-on/roll-off ports for Mindanao agri-business; and connectivity and technology in the cyber corridor.

We need to improve our infrastructure and our regulatory regime so that goods and people move cheaply and freely by road, rail, sea or air and have access to cheap power and world-class telecommunications.

With our expressways, ports and airports visibly under construction, the biggest infrastructure challenge now is electric power. That is the next area of major economic reform.

To be world-class we invest in five comprehensive strategies for global competitiveness:

One, make food plentiful and affordable to keep our labor cost globally competitive. That's Arty Yap's job. And human resources must be on the frontline of our competitive comeback, aside from having access to food that's affordable, nothing is more important than the health of our children and quality education.

Second source of competitiveness, reduce the cost of electricity to make our factories regionally competitive.

Oh, Lilia De Lima is here. Can I already announce it, Lilia? The... With the... May I? Okay. With due respect to Chairman Albano of the ERC, the Department of Justice has said that there is a specific law that says that the economic zones have regulatory power over the factory operating in their areas. And therefore that should help to reduce the cost of electricity in the economic zones.

Third source of productivity and competitiveness, modernize infrastructure at least cost to efficiently transport goods and people.

And fourth major area of competitiveness, mobilize, upgrade and disseminate knowledge and technologies for productivity. I said it in 2001, but I can say it with more fervor now that we have the money to make it come true, technology is the foundation of future economic development. And for starters, I have asked Nonoy Andaya, our Secretary of the Budget, to release 200 million pesos for scholarships for masters and PHd in science and engineering.

Fifth, reduce red tape in all agencies to cut business costs. And that is the great work of Peter Favila today. And to help Peter do that, we have appointed Pita Flores as the — what do you call it? — investment ombudsman.

There is much to do if we are to work toward a more just, modern and prosperous nation. The government cannot do this alone.

In fact, that will be the theme of this year's economic briefing later today. Ensuring the country's sustainability is a shared responsibility between the public and private sectors. And through you, our economic journalists, members of the oldest press club in the region in Asia, we challenge the business community — although some of the movers and shakers are already here today — through you, the leaders of the associations, we challenge the business community to take a bigger stake in the country's development.

This partnership between the government and the private sector should focus on the exchange of new ideas to propel our economy forward and not on old complaints that will only hold us back. It should be about fighting for a stronger nation.

We have a vision for the day when all Filipinos can choose to live and work here in the Philippines, close to family and friends, owning a home with a high quality of life.

We hope for the day when enough jobs are created in the Philippines so that hardworking Filipinos don't have to go abroad for work. We see a day when going abroad for a job is a career choice, not the only option for work.

And we call on the private sector to make national interest a top priority and to take advantage of the positive economic momentum and make investments that will contribute to the long-term sustainability of the nation.

I believe in the Philippines and its hardworking people. I believe our people want their elected leaders to stay on the part of economic reform, social justice, and peace and security. The people want a future they can count on and leaders who have a vision and a plan.

We will continue to work hard to make these aspirations a reality for a new, modernizing Philippines. And we hope you, the economic journalists, the founding fathers of Philippine media, the business leaders, we hope you will join us in realizing our nation's goals.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Economic Briefing and Lunch with the Economic Journalists Association of the Philippines (EJAP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151441/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1879&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Economic Briefing and Lunch with the Economic Journalist Association of the Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Economic Briefing and Lunch with the Economic Journalist Association of the Philippines

[Delivered at the Makati Shangri-La, Makati City, February 20, 2007]

When Tony said that I have the right staff. I said, “is it s-t-u-f-f or s-t-a-f-f?” because look at our economic managers here: Peter Favila, Gary Teves, Popo Lotilla, Arty Yap, Fe Barin, Lilia De Lima — great! Great economic team.

And I’d like to thank the Lopez brothers for hosting this. You remind us of the President of Marubeni and the President of Tokyo Electric because they’re brothers. Also, the Prime Minister and the President of Poland. So that’s how important are the Lopez brothers to our economic journalism. Thank you also Tony for the kind words — not just words — kind words and the kind numbers that you pointed out in your opening remarks. And to all of you good day.

Thank you for being in this economic conference or conference on economic growth hosted by EJAP and MOPC. And I asked for this occasion so that we could celebrate six years of uninterrupted growth. And why did we ask the Lopez brothers to host it? Because it was Tony Lopez who pointed out about the 24 quarters of uninterrupted economic growth. Thank you, Tony.

And so as Tony has started to do, we’re all here to review the economic progress that has made our nation stronger and that’s working to improve the quality of life of Filipinos throughout our great nation.

Reforming the economy is one of the most difficult tasks any administration can undertake. Especially the Philippines, as Tony said, it’s very difficult to manage the Philippine economy. It’s not easy to raise revenue by raising taxes and making people angry. But it is necessary, if we are to invest new money in vital infrastructures.

It is not easy to crack down on tax cheats, be they rich or famous, as Gary Teves knows, but it’s necessary if we are to invest in education and health care.

It is not easy to balance a budget so that we can save billions in interest payments, but it’s necessary if we are to modernize our nation and lift up the poor.

From the start, we set a course to reform the fundamentals of our economy. The seas were often rough and the wind was in our face. The wind was often in our face but we sailed on because the choices were stark — sail against the wind and change our economic fortunes or perish.

No, economic reform is not easy. No one said it would be when I got into this job. But together with our economic managers and the people who supported us through these tough decisions, the Filipino nation is better off today than it was six years ago.

And there is no turning back. We will balance the budget, create new jobs, and lift this nation up. As Tony has pointed out and I wish that we would all remember — for once, we have traveled the path of 24 quarters of uninterrupted growth.

We have demonstrated to ourselves and to the world that we can sustain our economic growth and not be derailed by political sideshows. We aim to stay on this course and to continue to prove to ourselves and to the world that the Philippines has arrived at a new place, where issues, policies and ideas trump personalities and politics.

Yes, we have made the tough but necessary decisions to strengthen our economy. And these painful steps are paying off: we now have the money to invest in job creation, new roads, bridges, and ports, and more for education and health care. And while we were able to spend more on our country and our people, for the first time in a long time the government is doing what average Filipino households do: move towards balancing the budget and not borrowing more and more.

Through strong international alliances, we have forged new partnerships that have led to billions in investments that helped create five million new jobs. We have strengthened our military and security alliances in the region and the world. That has led to major gains for peace in Mindanao, the isolation and tracking down of known terrorists and a reduction in violent crimes. Our neighborhoods, barangays and nation are more secure, more peaceful, more stable as a result of these efforts.

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank the House for ratifying the Anti-Terror Bill and other measures of national interest. And I urge both houses to strike while the iron is hot and join hands to send out the enrolled bill so that I can sign it, and so that we can have uninterrupted momentum in our fight against terror — with all the legal teeth we need to curtail the clandestine movement of funds, materiel and persons who are out to sow evil.

It's somewhat saddening that the day of statesmanship was clouded by the death of Congressman Serapio on his way to join his colleagues on the House floor. As we sympathize with his loved ones and constituents, we dedicate our relentless efforts to work for the peace and safety of all Filipinos wherever they are. With the passage of the anti-terror bill, our nation would have a potent weapon and armor to shield not only the people but our economy as well from this global scourge. So I urge our Congress on, as I extol our troops who are in the thick of this fight to finish off the Abu Sayyaf and keep our national perimeters clean of terror.

In the next three and a half years remaining in our administration, we will invest about a trillion pesos to build much needed infrastructure that will support our economy and attract further investments.

This year in 2007, we will continue on our path towards a balanced budget, which our medium-term plan had set for 2010, but which our economic managers insists they want to achieve it by next year.

This is great news for the nation and particularly our young people who can rest assured that their government is investing in their future, not borrowing more and more to leave them with the debt as has been done in the past.

Because of our successes, I'm optimistic about the future of the nation and the well-being of the people. We have worked tirelessly to build a modern nation that will one day take its rightful place beside first-world countries.

We have a national agenda designed to move the nation forward toward greater political stability, economic prosperity and peace and order. It is a pro-poor, pro-growth, pro-modernization agenda.

We're working hard to create an environment conducive to businesses and economic growth. This is clearly visible in our improved fiscal performance, widespread positive market sentiment and upbeat economic forecast for 2007, all of which were mentioned by Tony earlier, and will probably be amplified by Joey later with a six-year perspective, as well as the briefing that will be done hosted by the Central Bank in the other room today.

Our administration will focus on the national agenda that includes more jobs, stable prices and peace and order. We will work to expand education and health care. We will do so by working with our local and provincial leaders to see that the benefits of the new economy are spread to every corner of the Philippines, not just Metro Manila.

The next wave of reforms focuses on enhancing infrastructure and national competitiveness.

Our infrastructure program is focused on enhancing the competitive advantage of the natural “Super Regions” of the Philippines: farm-to-market roads and irrigation in the North Luzon agri-business quadrangle and including also no frills airports, expressways and ports in the Metro Luzon urban beltway; roads and airports for Central Philippines tourism; farm-to-market roads and roll-on/roll-off ports for Mindanao agri-business; and connectivity and technology in the cyber corridor.

We need to improve our infrastructure and our regulatory regime so that goods and people move cheaply and freely by road, rail, sea or air and have access to cheap power and world-class telecommunications. With our expressways, ports and airports visibly under construction, the biggest infrastructure challenge now is electric power. That is the next area of major economic reform.

To be world-class we invest in five comprehensive strategies for global competitiveness:

One, make food plentiful and affordable to keep our labor cost globally competitive. That’s Arty Yap’s job. And human resources must be on the frontline of our competitive comeback, aside from having access to food that’s affordable, nothing is more important than the health of our children and quality education.

Second source of competitiveness, reduce the cost of electricity to make our factories regionally competitive. Oh, Lilia De Lima is here. Can I already announce it, Lilia? May I? Okay. With due respect to Chairman Albano of the ERC, the Department of Justice has said that there is a specific law that says that the economic zones have regulatory power over the factory operating in their areas. And therefore that should help to reduce the cost of electricity in the economic zones.

Third source of productivity and competitiveness, modernize infrastructure at least cost to efficiently transport goods and people.

And fourth major area of competitiveness, mobilize, upgrade and disseminate knowledge and technologies for productivity. I said it in 2001, but I can say it with more fervor now that we have the money to make it come true, technology is the foundation of future economic development. And for starters, I have asked Nonoy Andaya, our Secretary of the Budget, to release 200 million pesos for scholarships for masters and PhD in science and engineering.

Fifth, reduce red tape in all agencies to cut business costs. And that is the great work of Secretary Peter Favila today. And to help Peter do that, we have appointed Pita Flores as the — what do you call it? — Investment Ombudsman.

There is much to do if we are to work toward a more just, modern and prosperous nation. The government cannot do this alone. In fact, that will be the theme of this year’s economic briefing later today. Ensuring the country’s sustainability is a shared responsibility between the public and private sectors. And through you, our economic journalists, members of the oldest press club in the region in Asia, we challenge the business community — although some of the movers and shakers are already here today — through you, the leaders of the associations, we challenge the business community to take a bigger stake in the country’s development.

This partnership between the government and the private sector should focus on the exchange of new ideas to propel our economy forward and not on old complaints that will only hold us back. It should be about fighting for a stronger nation.

We have a vision for the day when all Filipinos can choose to live and work here in the Philippines, close to family and friends, owning a home with a high quality of life.

We hope for the day when enough jobs are created in the Philippines so that hardworking Filipinos don’t have to go abroad for work. We see a day when going abroad for a job is a career choice, not the only option for work.

And we call on the private sector to make national interest a top priority and to take advantage of the positive economic momentum and make investments that will contribute to the long-term sustainability of the nation.

I believe in the Philippines and its hardworking people. I believe our people want their elected leaders to stay on the part of economic reform, social justice, and peace and security. The people want a future they can count on and leaders who have a vision and a plan.

We will continue to work hard to make these aspirations a reality for a new, modernizing Philippines. And we hope you, the economic journalists, the founding fathers of Philippine media, the business leaders, we hope you will join us in realizing our nation's goals.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of the “Perlas ng Pangkabuhayan Pinoy” and Entrepreneur’s Congress

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the launching ceremony of the “Perlas ng Pangkabuhayan Pinoy” and Entrepreneur’s Congress on the occasion of the Technology and Livelihood Resource Center (TLRC) 30th anniversary

[Delivered at the Mega Trade Hall 2, 5th Level, Building B Megamall, EDSA, Mandaluyong City, February 21, 2007]

Maraming salamat TLRC Director General Antonio Ortiz sa iyong pagpakilala, sa iyong pagpaliwanag, sa iyong imbitasyon.

Batiin rin natin si Mayor Neptali Gonzales, si Boyet. Sabi nga ni Boyet kanina sa akin, ang ganda na ng ating ekonomiya. Oo, pero ang ganda-ganda lalo na ng ekonomiya ng Mandaluyong sa liderato ni Mayor Boyet Gonzales. Magaling na mayor at nung araw magaling na majority leader kaya tayo ay nasisiyahan na kasama siya ngayon.

Secretary Angelo Reyes; Mr. Sy; yung ating host, si Mayor Gonzales at saka si... Ang ating landlord naman ay si Mr. Sy; mga iba’t-ibang mga opisyal ng TLRC; iba’t-ibang mga entrepreneur na nagtatanggap ng benepisyo kabalikat ng TLRC, Happy 30th Anniversary sa inyong lahat!

Thirty years, yan ay napaka-importanteng anibersaryo kaya minarapat kong pumunta rito ngayon.

Sa nakaraang tatlung taon ang TLRC ay kabalikat natin sa pagbibigay kapangyarihan sa taumbayang pilipino sa pamamagitan ng mga programang pangkabuhayan at serbisyo. Pero naalala ko na 30 years ago, ang pangalan ng TLRC ay TRC (Technology Resource Center). Nadagdagan na lamang yung livelihood nung si Hermie Aquino ang naging head. Pero sana ‘wag n’yong kalilimutan ang original mandate ninyo ay technology.

At sabi nga ni Director General Antonio Ortiz, tatlong taon nakaraan, eh, halos hindi niyo akalaing makakapag-abot kayo, makaka-abot kayo ng 30 years, kasi ang laki-laki ng lugi ng TLRC noon — 400 million pesos. Pero sa mabuting palad, ang TLRC ay ang unang-unang ahensiya sa buong pamahalaan na gumawa ng rationalization. Congratulations sa inyo!

Kaya pagkatapos ng dalawang taon... Ng dalawang taon ng streamlining ay nakayanan ng center na ibaba ng malaki ang gastos, gaya nang sabi ni Director General, 66 million at three-fourths doon ay dahil sa inyong savings sa rationalization. Congratulations din doon!

Kaya mula sa isang... Sa mga luring korporasyon ng pamahalaan, nakatindig ito ngayon ang TLRC bilang isang catalyst para sa masisipag na entrepreneur para sa kakayahan ng pangkabuhayang Pilipino.

Alam n’yo malaki ang ating pinupuri doon sa... Doon sa ano, sa NAPOCOR dahil nung araw ang laki-laki ng kanyang lugi at ngayon ay kumikita na. Pero hindi lamang ang NAPOCOR ang dapat nating purihin, pinupuri rin natin ngayon ang TLRC.

Ngayon ang mga gawain ng TLRC ay ginagawa sa pamahalaang lokal gaya nang sabi ni Director General Ortiz. Meron tayong nakitang mga mayor dito dahil may apatnapu’t-isang technology and livelihood development center sa buong bansa. Maraming kurso ang pagsasanay gaya nang sabi ni Director General Ortiz ay nailagay na sa tape at mga disc para mapanood sa tahanan. Kaya nagiging... Dapat naman dahil technology center kayo eh kaya dapat talaga nagke-keep up kayo sa technology.

At nasisiyahan kong banggitin, ako'y kapampangan galing ako sa Pampanga, yung Mabalacat Techno Center, yung malaking... Ang tawag doon nung araw ay technology center, eto ngayon tinawag na Mabalacat Techno Center, ito ay magiging isang magandang industrial estate sa tinatawag nating Metro Luzon Urban Beltway. Kasi ang damidaming mga investors na pumapasok. Last year record foreign investments, two billion U.S. dollars record sa buong kasaysayan ng Pilipinas, so naghahanap ng industrial center.

Sana mga Pilipino rin ay pumasok sa mga investment. Sana gayahin ng mga ibang mga Pilipino yung pamilya ng Henry Sy dahil tuluy-tuloy ang investment ng SM.

Yung Mabalacat at yung ibang mga TLRC techno center ay naglikha ng walong libong trabaho in the recent years. Kaya talagang ginagawa ang lahat ng gagawin para sa ganun ay makatulong sa ekonomiya sa sariling sikap at hindi parating sina-subsidize ng national government.

Upang pabilisin ang pagbalik mula sa pagkalugi ng TLRC, tinutulak din natin ang technology business incubation. Actually, ito ang talagang unang mandato ng TLRC. Ito ay isang programang naglalayong pa-ibayo ang survival rate ng mga bagong negosyo at pinapayagan silang umunlad. Kaya ang inaatas ko sa TLRC na maging kabalikat ng DOST sa business incubation.

Kasi nung isang araw, nagkaroon kami ng meeting, yung Philippine-American Society of Scientists, at nilabas natin doon yung ating science and technology plan. At isa nga doon ay maglalagay... Kasi gusto natin yung science and technology, ang technology ay dapat maging basehan ng ating kaunlaran. At yung science ng DOST ay ginagawa niya yuon kaya maglalagay siya ng mga business incubation center dito sa taong ito. At sana ang TLRC ay maging kabalikat doon.

In fact, tamang-tama nandiyan si Danny Coronacion nung CIIF, at ang gusto nga natin na marami sa incubation center ay tungkol sa virgin coconut oil, kasi marami sa ating mahihirap ay nasa coconut areas — ay, nandito pala si Tessie Sy, one of the most powerful businesswomen in the whole world kaya tuluy-tuloy ang investment ng SM — at yung virgin coconut oil ay napakalaki ang demand sa buong mundo. At gusto natin na ang virgin coconut oil ay kasing kilala ng olive oil ng Italy. Kaya yan sana isang maging technology resource na nililibot ng TLRC sa buong bansa at tulungan ang DOST gumawa ng incubation center para magkaroon ng mga planta ng virgin coconut oil yung iba't-ibang mga mang-nuniyog sa ating mga lugar, lalung-lalo na yung mga natamaan ng bagyo, yung Bicol at saka Marinduque, panay coconut country yuon. At sa ganitong paraan lalong makiki-ugnay ang TLRC sa ating pambansang agenda.

Ang ating pambansang agenda ay nananatiling nakatukoy sa paglikha ng trabahong magaganda ang kita, mas matatag na presyo, at pagdala ng mga biyaya na malakas na ekonomiya sa karaniwang pamilyang Pilipino.

Itong eleksiyon ngayon sa Mayo, una sa lahat ito ay tungkol sa ekonomiya. Ang taumbayan ay pipili sa pamamagitan ng mga may plano sa pangkabuhayan at doon sa mga walang plano. Sa mga nakakapagpatuloy ng momentum sa paglalago sa trabaho, sa ekonomiya, or those who will set back the clock. Dalawa ang pagpipilian sa kampanya: ang isa ay yung pagtayo ng bansa; the other one is for breaking down the walls of the nation. The dividing line becomes sharper every passing day. Nagiging klaro ang pagpipilian. At naniniwala tayo, una sa lahat, dahil nga gaya nang sabi ni Boyet, ang ekonomiya ay maganda at meron tayong mga matatatag na mga kabalikat kagaya ni Boyet. Sa wakas boboto ang taumbayan para sa ekonomiya kaysa sa pamumulitika. Sa wakas boboto ang taumbayan para sa kinabukasan kaysa sa nakaraan. Boboto ang taumbayan para sa pagkakaisa kaysa sa pambansang pagwawatak-watak.

And I'm happy to see that the programs and services of TLRC are becoming more and more aligned with our agenda of generating jobs and alleviating poverty through the principle of technology — the foundation of future development.

This is the agenda in which I expect TLRC to contribute meaningfully in the coming years. We expect TLRC to be a leading center of entrepreneurial technology-based resources, a virtual one-stop shop for entrepreneurs with strengthened and modernized services in technology and business information, hands-on training, organizing and linking.

And with your keen commitment to the public welfare, I trust that TLRC will continue developing more entrepreneurs, more productive entrepreneurs, creating more jobs that give good income and better opportunities for each and every Filipino family.

Congratulations once again on your 30th or pearl anniversary!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Launching Ceremony of the "Perlas ng Pangkabuhayan Pinoy" and Entrepreneur's Congress on the Occasion of the Technology and Livelihood Resource Center (TLRC) 30th Anniversary. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151421/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1875&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 1st National Coconut Farmers Convention

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 1st National Coconut Farmers Convention sponsored by the Bishops, Ulama, Priests, Pastors, Farmers, Lumads Conference (BUPPFALUC)

[Delivered at the University of Mindanao Gymnasium, Matina District, Davao City, Davao del Sur, February 23, 2007]

Daghan salamat Mayor Rudy Duterte sa imong pagpapaila ug sa pag-host sa city nining importante nga okasyon.

Archbishop Capalla; the bishops, ulama, priests, pastors, farmers, Lumad conference; si Congresswoman sa Davao Oriental, ang labi daku nga coconut province diri sa Mindanao; Bishop Gomez ug uban mga bishops ug Ulama; Secretary Teves; Secretary Gonzalez; Secretary Dureza; PCGG Chair Sabio; our regional directors of agriculture and coconut; tanan aton mga opisyal; Danny Coronacion of the Coconut Industry Investment Fund; officials of the Solicitor General's Office; and President Torres who is hosting us in his beautiful campus.

This conference of bishops, ulama, priests, pastors, farmers and lumads is our way of consolidating the fight against poverty.

Interfaith dialogue has been working for peace in Mindanao and now in this event, interfaith dialogue is also getting the various sectors together to help achieve development by helping the fortunate. Congratulations! Sa atong interfaith dialogue bishops-ulamas.

Binabati ko ang lahat ng mga mangnuniyog sa buong Pilipinas, ug siyempre aton mga mang-uuma sa Visayas ug sa Mindanao pati na rin sa Luzon.

Sa araw na ito sisimulan ang pagtupad sa pangarap ng mga mangnuniyog na mapasakanila na ang mas makatarungan at mas malaking bahagi ng mga benepisyo mula sa coco levy funds. Dugay na kaayo kanihulat ang atong coconut farmers, matagal na ang paghihintay ng ating mga mangnuniyog. Dalawampung taon ng pagsasaayos ng mga masalimuot na legal issues at marami nito ay bibigyan pa lang ng desisyon sa mga korte.

Unang una, kinahanglan na maupod ug Sandiganbayan ug Korte Suprema kining agreement. Unya ang pagbibigay sa pagsang-ayon isusunod na ang public bidding na gagawin ng Department of Finance. Ibebenta yung mga San Miguel shares.

Kasama sa isinaad sa agreement ang pagtatag ng isang foundation na mamamahala, mangangasiwa at maglalagay ng kontrol sa paggamit ng pondo mula sa pagpapabili ng shares nito at sisiguraduhin na ang foundation na ang mga gagastusin ay makakabigay ng higit na benepisyo sa mga mangnuniyog.

Sa una ang gobyerno ang mokontrol sa foundation. Apan unya sa pag-ingon sa Korte Suprema ug sa Sandigan, it will eventually transfer control to the farmers groups. If that will be the Supreme Court and the Sandiganbayan decisions.

Ang Department of Finance ubos kan Secretary Teves nagatrabaho kauban ang PCGG ug ang Solicitor General. Talagang nagsisipag ang lahat upang magkaroon ng solusyon na katanggap-tanggap sa lahat. At inaanyayahan ko na madayon pa ang konsultasyon aron makuyog ang tanan mga mang-uuma sa niyog.

Kining agreement importante kaayo. Mahalagang hakbang aron mubalik kaninyo kung unsay kinahanglan maadto kaninyo at padayon kitang mugtrabaho para kaninyo gyud. Daghan pa sa mga uban nga mga prinsipyo gobyerno alang gyud sa pagtabang sa atong mga mang-uuma sa niyog. For instance, ang bag-o nga biofuels act, good news alang sa atong mangunguma sa niyog. Ug ubos sa atong administrasyon ang presyo sa coco na saka naga-benefit sa atong mga mang-uuma.

Nahumduman ko na sa akong una nga maglingkod bise presidente, ang kopra six pesos per kilo. Ang coconut husk, ang husk nuts mill gate price, 1.75 kada piyesa. Apan sa atong niaging miting niadtong agosto ang kopra prices nasa 18 pesos per kilo, labaw pa ug ang husk coconut five pesos kada usa. Kining atong nahimo karon labaw pa ang mahimo alang sa atong mga mang-uuma sa niyog. Kay guapo kaayo ang presyo naa pa mga bag-o nga demand sama sa biofuels sukun makatabang gyud kining pondo sa San Miguel sa inyong productivity, sa inyong delivery ug transport labaw pa ang net income sa atong mga mang-uuma sa niyog.

And why are we able to do this? Our steady growth has kept our peso at its strongest in many many years. Nibalik na ang kumpiyansa ug mga investor ug ang atong nasod sa niaging tuig naka-realized sa savings sa 37 billion pesos. And this 37 billion pesos mabalik nato sa tibuok nasod Pilipino isip labaw pa nga mga eskuwela, mga health insurance, mga tindahan sa bayan na nakabaligya ug rice and noodles at a lower price, ug capital microfinance alang sa mga gagmay nga negosyante unta kauban diri ang aton mga coconut farmers, agri-business farmers.

Ug sa mga programa alang sa imprastraktura daghan pa nga mga farm-to market roads, irigasyon, koneksiyon sa roll-on/roll-off ferry, mga kalsada, mga cargo airport naipatindog nato aron labaw pa ang pagdaghan sa produksyon at mahimo mas maayo ang pagtransport sa mga produkto kauban ang produkto sa niyog ug kopra.

We are charging a future that will bring stability and peace, justice to the oppressed, comfort to the disaster-stricken and the sick, labaw nga pagkaon sa mga kabos, mabababa nga presyo nga enerhiya and a safer environment for our children.

Ang importante that the collective will of our people will support a determined government and this will enable our nation na mabilin sa kalsada alang sa kalinaw ug sa kauswagan.

Gina abi-abi ko ang aton mga mangnuniyog ug ang BUPPFALUC and I'm also greeting the Department of Finance, the PCGG, the OSG and all the agencies, tanang... Lahat ng ahensiyang kasali sa industriya ng niyog — CIIF, PCA — sa pagbuo sa agreement na binibigyan natin ng pagdiriwang itong araw na ito.

Kaninyong tanan mga mang-uuma sa niyog, congratulations! Sa bag-o nga kaugmaon. And to our beloved Archbishop Capalla, thank you very much. You have worked so hard for peace and now you are working... You are achieving something so significant for development.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 1st National Coconut Farmers Convention sponsored by the Bishops, Ulama, Priests, Pastors, Farmers, Lumads Conference (BUPPFALUC). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151400/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1872&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Special Joint Meeting of the Rotary International (R.I.) District 3830, Metro Manila Rotary Clubs

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Special Joint Meeting of the Rotary International (R.I.) District 3830, Metro Manila Rotary Clubs

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Inter-Continental Manila, Makati City, February 23, 2007]

Thank you very much Mike for introducing me, and with Mike Varela introducing me, I'm sure this is gonna get into the front pages of the Manila Bulletin.

Conrad Marty, President; Joe Alejandro, Past President; Butch Francisco, District Governor and my fellow in Makati Central; members of the various rotary clubs of the Makati district; ladies and gentlemen.

It's always been a pleasure for me to speak before my fellow Rotarians. For one thing, you lead the way in community service. For another, especially Butch and the other members of Makati Central, you were my first campaigners way back in 1992.

The last six years was a subject matter of my economic conference just a few days ago, and Mike was there, Mike Varela. And what I can say is that the last six years have not been easy for us, but our determination to implement hard-to-swallow yet necessary economic and fiscal reforms under the leadership of Gary Teves, our Secretary of Finance, these reforms gave us a winning streak of 24 quarters, uninterrupted quarters of growth, the longest in our history. The meaning of this is that our reforms have brought our economy to a sustainable level, no longer subjected to the boom-and-bust cycles that used to affect us in the years past.

Our credit outlook upgrades; our stable interest rate – I wouldn't even say stable. In fact it is going down, and today is the lowest ever in history — our strong peso; our bullish stock market; our increased OFW remittances. In fact, may I say our OFWs sort of remain stable at eight million Filipinos outside the Philippines. But from about seven billion dollars before I became president, it's gone up to almost 13 billion dollars today, because our OFWs now have higher paying jobs. And because their income has been increasing, the remittances have grown so much, their families now represent the new middle-class that make up the market in our economy. They drive our spending in the malls. They drive our real estate market. Ten years ago, the OFWs would send money home to buy a tricycle or a jeepney. Today they send money home to buy a condominium on a single-detached housing unit.

I mentioned this because when I was in Singapore, just a few months ago, after the ASEAN-China Summit in Nanning, I went by Singapore because we had not been in the radar screen of Singapore for a long time. And I could see, talking with Mrs... Madame Ho Ching, who is the wife of Prime Minister Lee Shien Loong, but at the same time she's also the head of their National Development Corporation or Temasek. She's so excited about India, about China, because they have a very big new middle-class. The unspoken word there is that in the Philippines you have a small upper class and you have a very large lower class. But the middle-class is not there that represents the market. And I explained to them about our OFW phenomenon.

And I was just reading an analysis of one of the most important stock analysts in the wall street. He said that these OFW remittances, and I might add that make up the new middle-class among their workers, is one of the factors that makes our boom this time sustainable.

We have soaring tourism and great hotels coming up. Like Marriott is already under construction in... Right in front of NAIA. And then Shangri-la is putting up its best ever hotel in Boracay. I say best ever because right now Mactan Shangri-la, where we hosted the ASEAN Summit, is considered the best hotel in Asia, but Shangri-la is gonna put up an even better one in Boracay. And several others. Banyan tree is choosing between Bohol and Busuanga, Palawan on where to put their airport... Their hotel.

Because tourism is soaring, and there we have increasing investment inflows, two billion dollars of direct investment, a record in history, and I'm sure many of you here have made millions of pesos in the stock market this past year.

All of these are signs of an economy getting bullish by the day. Some of you were in the economic briefings of our economic managers. Some of you because you're businessmen, you read the business pages, you read about them. But among the many statistics they gave, let me just say that last December, we kept our fiscal deficit down to 3.9 billion pesos, the lowest we've seen in years.

And our whole year deficit last year was what we were hoping would be our deficit for this year. So we're one year ahead of our deficit management schedule. That's already the advance schedule made by Gary Teves. Actually, what we achieved last year was my schedule for 2009. But Gary moved that to... last year's schedule to 2007 but we got it last year.

Now we can say that our children... Or we can say to our children that indeed, the government is investing in their future, not borrowing more and more to leave them in debt.

And I think, you know, I gave this date today for this big meeting. Actually, Mike was inviting me for February 20th, but that was the proclamation rally of the senatorial candidates in Pampanga, so I moved it to this day. And then I got an emergency — not really. Yeah, a frantic call — that I must be in Davao in order to witness the signing of finally the agreement of the farmers on how to use the Coco levy funds. And that was such an important event because they've been meeting 20 years for this. So I said, "Mike, can we move this rotary date again?" And he said, "no, because all the district governors have already cancelled their own meetings. We've made a reservation such that..." So, I said, "Okay, Mike. I'll just move that affair to 10:00 o' clock in the morning, and go on with your activities and I'll arrive at 1:00 o' clock to make my speech." Fortunately, I arrived at quarter to one.

And I think it's good that the proclamation rally in Pampanga moved it to today and that Mike insisted it stay today because today's newspapers give us very good news from you, the business community. Today's newspapers all report that business optimism is the highest in 11 years.

The bullish outlook across the business sector speaks not only of the strength of our economy but of our political stability. Despite the political noise, enterprise is rising above the babble and moving our nation into an era of optimism and confidence not seen in the recent past. By intensely and firmly focusing on our economy, our administration is signaling to the whole world that we are in the race for the gold and we intend to stay there. For each day that confidence rises, the Filipino people move up the ladder of competitiveness, backed up by government programs to grow the economy, expand the infrastructure, and plow back the gains for social benefit.

I believe that soon we will be able to close the elementary school classroom gap. I'm not talking about high schools because we'd rather send the children to private high schools by giving them high school vouchers and assisting the private high schools.

This is an era of strong profit for enterprise. That's what the message I'd like to give to you, the business community. But it's also an era for strong payback to the people in terms of better education, cheaper medicine. You know they say that our macro-economic gains don't get to the poor. Well, 50 percent of the people in the surveys say that they have been able to experience low-priced medicines.

In 2001, when I started a program for half-priced medicines, only seven percent experienced it. What's the difference between 2001 and today? 2001 we had all of the determination and the political will but we didn't have the money. So in 2001, we had a hundred million pesos to provide PITC to trade in these half-priced medicines coming from India. And even at that they encountered difficulty getting the release. Today after our tax reforms, we've been able to allocate one billion pesos rather than one hundred million pesos. And that's why the number of Filipinos feeling the benefits of half-priced medicines has going up from seven percent to one-half of the population.

That's one of the things that contribute to a stable cost of living which is one of the things we want to achieve and we want to be felt by the year 2008.

Another factor that goes into the stable cost of living is our gasoline prices. We were ahead of other countries to bring down gasoline prices because we didn't have to wait for the oil prices in the world to go down. Our peso was becoming strong, so even when the oil prices were still going up, we were bringing the oil... The gasoline prices down. And I thank the jeepney drivers because... And the bus operators because they have passed on their savings to the consumers by bringing down the passenger rates.

And even food has gone down in price. The other day, I was talking to a housewife, she said that the beef that used to... That she would buy for 150 pesos, she now buys for a 130 pesos. And all of these examples are what we mean by that macro-economic indicator called a low inflation. And as we strike up the momentum of economic confidence, we continue to drive good governance, law and order, and clean, orderly and peaceful elections.

I'm grateful to the local officials, who've been working with us, to continue on the path of reform, social justice and economic development. And not only... On the one hand, we have the local officials who've been helping us through this in the countryside. On the other hand, we have the strong international alliances, which have allowed us to forged new partnerships that have led to billions in investments, as I said two billion dollars, an unprecedented amount. And REZA is here allowing us to pay our IMF debt in full.

One of the things we were scared of was that now that we've paid the IMF debt in full, maybe REZA... That means REZA has to go home. But no, there's still work for IMF to do here to advise us as a friend and as a stockholder of the IMF.

But I can only point the direction and I cannot do it alone. And that's why I'm here speaking before all the Rotary Clubs of Makati to be able to challenge the business community, to where most the Rotarians belong, to take a bigger stake in the country's future.

The partnership between the government and the private sector should focus on new ideas to propel our economy forward, not basking on old complaints that only hold us back. And as I said, while direct foreign investment and capital market investment have been increasing, we need more domestic investment.

The stock market at a ten-year high, foreign direct investments at all-time high but we cannot say the same. I mean even if foreign investments are the highest in history, in contrast domestic investment is not growing as fast. And therefore... In fact, it managed to grow two percent in 2006.

So we must step up the vote of confidence in our economy from domestic businesses, and we need you to put a bigger stake in our nation's fortunes. A future based on more jobs, stable prices and peace and order.

As I said, the time is ripe. Interest rates are at an all-time low so it's time for you to go to the bank and get your funds to start a business or expand the business you're in.

The peso is strong which means your capital inputs and your raw materials are cheaper. It's really time to have a... It's really a great time to start a business and you have the market with you, the strong, sustainable middle-class represented by the families of our overseas Filipinos.

So my fellow Rotarians, my message to you is "lead the way."

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Special Joint Meeting of the Rotary International (R.I.) District 3830, Metro Manila Rotary Clubs. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151415/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1869&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the flag-raising ceremony in commemoration of the 21st anniversary of the EDSA People Power Revolution

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the flag-raising ceremony in commemoration of the 21st anniversary of the EDSA People Power Revolution

[Delivered at the People Power Monument, EDSA, Quezon City, February 25, 2007]

Thank you very much Secretary Ermita, Chairman of the EDSA People Power Commission.

President Fidel Ramos, who started EDSA; Excellencies of the diplomatic corps; Secretary Romulo and other members of the Cabinet; Mayor Sonny Belmonte, our host here in Quezon City; the heroes of the people power revolution of 1986; the heroes of the continuing people power revolution that received the awards today, mga kababayan.

Nagagalak ang inyong lingkod na makasama ang lahat ng mga Pilipinong mapagmahal sa demokrasya at kalayaan sa pagdiriwang na naman natin ng anibersaryo ng people power revolution.

Peaceful revolution is a hallmark of the Filipino struggle. It is also part of the great anointment of His Eminence Jaime Cardinal Sin whom we miss and whom we recognize today in a posthumous award.

Nagtitipon-tipon tayo ngayon dahil tayo ay naniniwala na kailangang manatiling buhay ang diwa ng EDSA. Subalit kailangan bigyan natin ang diwang ito ng mas angkop na kahulugan sa ating panahon kung nais nating ito ay pahalagahan ng darating na mga henerasyon.

Ang people power ay hindi dapat mangahulugan lamang ng pagkakaisa ng sambayanan upang patalsikin ang isang pamahalaan. Sa halip, gaya ng mga awardees natin ngayon dapat nating gamitin ang people power upang magkaisa ang mga responsableng mamamayan sa pagtatayo ng isang matatag at makabagong bansa.

Nitong mga nakaraang taon sa ilalim ng ating administrasyon, merong isa pang people power na naganap. Eto yung suporta ng taumbayan at pagsasakripisyo sa ating mahihirap ngunit kailangang mga desisyon upang palakasin ang ating ekonomiya. Ngayon, nagbubunga itong ating mga masasakit na hakbang. Meron na tayong salaping magagamit sa paglikha ng trabaho, bagong mga kalsada, bagong mga tulay at pantalan, at higit pa para sa edukasyon at kalusugan.

Through strong international alliance — and we are happy that the diplomatic corps are here today — we have forged new partnerships that have led to billions in investments, a record for our country, that helped create five million new jobs, another record for our country. And I'm also glad that the soldiers, the police are here. And we have strengthened our military and security alliances in the Philippines, in the region, and the world. This has led to major gains for peace in Mindanao. This has led to the isolation and tracking down of known terrorists. This has led to a reduction in violent crime.

I'm glad that Mayor Belmonte is here in representation of the local governments. We trust the local officials to work with us to continue on the path of reform, social justice and economic development. They form the centerpiece of Philippine democracy and are on the frontline of change. Our officials from the center of the metropolis to the farthest barangays also form people power.

Ang ating pambansang hangarin ay naglalayong isulong ang Pilipinas tungo sa higit na katatagang pulitikal, kasaganaan at katiwasayan. Ito ang ating adhikain na higit na nangangailangan ng people power at hindi ang ingay ng protesta at hidwaang pulitikal.

When President Ramos came to EDSA on the first day of EDSA in 1986 and throughout those four days especially when Cardinal Sin called upon the people to come and the people responded, the world embraced EDSA in 1986. In 2001, the world tolerated EDSA. The world will not, however, forgive another EDSA but would instead condemn the Philippines as a country whose political system is hopelessly unstable, and the Filipinos as among the finest people in the world, but who always shoot themselves in the foot. Under those circumstances, who would invest in the Philippines? How would we finally bring the gains of the economy to the average Filipino which at the end of the day it was as truly meant by people power.

And so today I am glad that aside from having President Ramos as our honored guest, aside from the posthumous citation given to His Eminence Jaime Cardinal Sin, we are also honoring today's people power heroes. The many who have responded to the call of Cardinal Rosales to contribute a little bit of their hard-earned modest earnings so that microfinance can spread throughout the archdiocese. To those who contribute their work and who partner with the government, who equal every contribution of the government and even more to build houses, 700,000 in seven years starting from 2003 — Gawad Kalinga. That we have honored today our overseas Filipino workers who though their number has more or less remained at eight million all these years had increased their remittances to the Philippines from seven million dollars before 2001 to almost 13 billion dollars or almost double today.

People power is about the future, not just the past. And I am glad that today we honor those from the past but also those from the present working for the future. People power should be about new ideas, like Gawad Kalinga is a new idea, Pondong Pinoy is a new idea, not old complaints. People power should be about fighting for a stronger nation, not just fighting.

And people power is about the heroism of the many who in their daily labors and trust in the almighty which was a very important characteristic of 1986. People power is about all of them who bear faith in a new Philippines.

Kaya itong araw na ito, sabihin natin, mabuhay ang 1986 EDSA! Mabuhay naman ang people power para sa pagkakaisa!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA'S Speech during the Flag-raising Ceremony in Commemoration of the 21st Anniversary of the EDSA People Power Revolution. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151349/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1866&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the awarding ceremonies for the Ten Most Inspiring Tourism Entrepreneurs

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the awarding ceremonies for the Ten Most Inspiring Tourism Entrepreneurs

[Delivered at the Music Hall, SM Mall of Asia, Pasay City, March 3, 2007]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Cerge Remonde.

Noong si Cerge ay ilinagay natin bilang coordinator ng Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises, ang tanong niya, ano ang aking marching order sa kanya. Sabi ko, basta suportahan mo ang ‘Go Negosyo,’ you won’t go wrong.

The inspiration and moving spirit of Go Negosyo, Presidential Consultant on Entrepreneurship, Joey Concepcion; Vivienne Tan, who’s also a great leader of Go Negosyo; our Cabinet members Peter Favila, Secretary of Trade and Industry under whom we have the Small and Medium Enterprises Department and Secretary Arty Yap of Agriculture promoting entrepreneurs and agri-business; and representing Secretary Ace Durano who is based in Central Philippines, in Cebu, so here in Manila representing him is Oscar Palabyab.

I would like to congratulate and acknowledge Lray Villafrute who was recognized today for his wakeboard tourism attraction in Bicol. And we have two other governors here from Central Philippines, which includes Bicol, Gwen Garcia of Cebu and Sally Perez of Antique. And we have the governor of peace and development from arms to farms — I think now he wants to include Patikul beach among our attractions — Governor Ben Loong. I hear that Governor Evardone is here. There you are, governor, who of course the landlord or the overseer of the Guian surfing tourism; our inspiring tourism awardees; ladies and gentlemen.

Talagang nasa diwa ng pagiging entrepreneur ang positibong pananaw sa kinabukasan, gaya ng magandang hinaharap ng ating ekonomiya. Sa ganito ring paningin, binabati ko itong ating mga inspiring tourism entrepreneur na pinarangalan natin ngayon sa kanilang mga nagawa.

Siyempre, diyaan sa mga yan merong mga malalaking puhunan ang kailangan. Yung mga mega resorts like Villa Escudero, yung mga airlines like Asian Spirit, yung mga hotel chains like Microtel. Pero meron ring maliliit na negosyo, yung adventure tourism ni Tony Carag raw nagsimula sa 50,000 pesos, yung souvenirs in Mr. Aldegue ay nagsimula sa 20,000 pesos, at yung gumagawa ng ating map halos walang puhunan, nakihiram lang muna ng printer nung kanyang kapitbahay. Kaya marami talagang paraan kung papano maging entrepreneur, maging milyonaryo ka, marami kang minana o maging nagsisimula ka lamang. Kaya pinupuri ko rin yung ating mga teenpreneur awardee bilang sagisag ng maagang pagsisimula sa negosyo na marapat palaganapin.

Palakpakan din natin ang Philippine Center for Entrepreneurship, si Joey, si Vivienne at lahat ng ating mga young entrepreneurs, sa pagsulong nitong Tourism Negosyo Exposition.

The strength of the Philippine economy goes beyond transient political events like the forthcoming May elections. We have already laid the fundamentals of growth — a sturdy fiscal house, a solid program of good governance, a robust social payback to the people, mounting gains in the security front, and a democratic system in full bloom. The business community is on the right track in placing their bets on this nation and government, the excellence of the Filipino and the spirit of enterprise that lives in our society.

And let me say that as soon as the sun rises, we shall have clean, credible and peaceful elections in May. There should be no doubt that the Filipino will make this happen. We are a nation that cherishes democracy and freedom as deeply as we cherish enterprise and competition. Investors should go for the gold in the midst of the Philippine bull run.

Itong taong ito, gusto natin magkaroon ng higit tatlong milyong turista. Ang dami na ngang pumupunta dito, ang kulang natin mga kwarto. Kaya doon sa nanalo sa Bohol na masarap na restaurant, sabi ko, maglagay ka nga ng bed and breakfast. Yun nga ang kanyang ginagawa. Sa kabuuan ng ating ekonomiya, itong ating adhikain itong taon — mag-invest sa taong-bayan upang makamit ang walong biyaya sa 2008. Investing in the people so that we can achieve 8 by 08: job creation o hahapbuhay; cost of living o abot-kayang bilingin; strong peso o matatag na piso; more investment, maraming investment; Pro-poor education, edukasyon para sa mahihirap; pro-poor health care, housing, anti-hunger, paggamot, pabahay at pagkain para sa mahihirap; green Philippines, makakalikasan at berdeng Pilipinas. Binanggit nga ni Oca Palabyab, sabi niya, bakit berde ang uniporme ni Joey. Maliban sa siya ay tiga-La Salle, ang berde ay pag-asa, hope at ang berde ay eco-tourism for green Philippines; isa pang adhikain nating strong anti-terror, malakas na kampanya kontra-terorismo para sa ganun yung beach ng Patikul ay maraming pupunta doon, magbibisita kay Governor Ben Loong.

At para makatulong sa mga entrepreneur gaya ng sabi ko siyempre may malalaking negosyong malaki ang puhunan pero may maliliit na negosyo sa tourism. Doon sa Philippine Tourism Authority meron sampung milyong piso na microfinance fund ang Philippine Tourism Authority ng DOT para sa microfinance para sa programang Grassroots Entrepreneurs for Eco-Tourism or G.R.E.E.T. — greet.

Kaya inaanyayahan ko ang GO Negosyo makipagpartner sa PTA para itong nahahanap ninyong ating mga nagsisimulang maliliit na negosyante sa eco-tourism ay makahanap ng pansimulang pondo sa Philippine Tourism Authority. Sana makatulong ito sa Go Negosyo. Sabi nga ni Ace Durano, bawat isang turista makakalikha ng isang trabaho kaya kung malalampasan natin ng three million plus ang ating tourism itong taong ito — kasi kahit na halos three million umabot noong isang taon — ay dadami ang trabaho sa tourism lalung-lalo na sa ating mga entrepreneurs.

Sa inyong lahat, congratulations! Go Negosyo!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA'S Speech during the Awarding Ceremonies for the Ten Most Inspiring Tourism Entrepreneurs. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151317/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1991&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 15th National Convention of the Provincial Board Members League of the Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 15th National Convention of the Provincial Board Members League of the Philippines

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Century Park Hotel, F. B. Harrison, Manila, March 6, 2007]

Maraming salamat Secretary Ronnie Puno sa iyong pagpakilala at pagpaliwanag kung ano ang ginagawa natin dito itong araw na ito.

Ibig kong batiin ang chairman ng liga, si Board Member Alan Zulueta; pati na rin ang mga pangulo ng liga, si Board Member Vincent Piccio saka si Board Member Edward Joson, at lahat ng mga board members na narito. At gusto kong batiin ang inyong kapwa opisyal ng local government, mga susunod na senador, si ‘Magsaysay is my guy,’ Vic Magsaysay at saka si Chavit Singson, ang laki-laki ng Ilocos Sur delegation diyan. Batiin rin natin yung gumawa ng maraming batas tungkol sa local government, kapangyarihan ng local government, dahil siya ay galing din sa local government, dating vice mayor ng Quezon City bago naging senador, ang kampeon ng pamilyang Pilipino, tito natin sa senado, Tito Sotto; at yung tataguyod ng ating kapayapaan, pagkakaisa, pagkakaunawaan, ang sultan of Sulu, si Sultan Kiram.

Sa gitna ng tumitinding kampanya sa pulitika, magandang pagkakataon ito upang lalong palakasin ang ating kasunduan sa paglago ng ekonomiya at pagtatag ng pulitika sa ibabaw ng mga usaping partidista. Nakikita ko yata yung gumawa ng ating batas para lumaki ang inyong ira dahil lumaki ang value-added tax, Senator Ralph Recto. korekto ang kanyang patakaran kaya lumalaki ang inyong IRA.

At dahil sa mga ganitong klaseng reporma puno ako ng pag-asa para sa kinabukasan ng bansa at kabutihan ng taong-bayan. Naglalayon ang ating pambansang agenda na isulong ang bansa tungo sa mas matatag na pulitika, mas masaganang ekonomiya, kapayapaan at katiwasayan ng bansa.

At isinulong natin ang bansa sa ating malakas na pakikipagbalik at sa mga lokal na opisyal gaya ninyong mga board member ng probinsya, mga lokal opisyal gaya ninyo na kayo ang backbone ng pamahalaan. Dahil kayo ang backbone ng pamahalaan kayo ang dahilan kung bakit higit na ligtas, mapayapa at matatag ang ating pamayanan, lalawigan at bansa dahil sa inyong tulong sa ating liderato.

Ngayong hapon pinag-usapan natin katiwasayan at kapayapaan. Ngayong hapon pag-uwi ko pipirmahan ko ang Anti-terror Law. The Anti-terror Law is a landmark in the battle against evil waged by all freedom loving Filipinos and allies in the world. It upgrades our preemptive capability to check the conspiracies of harm and murder, and contain the movement of arms and funds to sow mayhem. This brings to a higher level our successful campaign against the Abu Sayyaf, J.I. and Al Qaeda cells now being carried out in a broader front of national and regional vigilance.

We will keep bombers at bay as we drive up confidence in the Philippines, grow jobs, increase incomes and lift the people from poverty. Ngayon meron kasalukuyang Anti-Terror Conference sa Indonesia at pinupuri ang Pilipinas sa ating mga nagawa lalo na kontra sa mga leader ng Abu Sayyaf, si Janjalani at si Abu Sulayman. At dahil itong araw na ito mabubuo na itong batas kontra sa terorismo.

Our message to the world is to have no safe haven for terror in our country, and to have a strong democratic society driven by freedom under the rule of law. Law abiding Filipinos have nothing to fear in this law for it is a weapon that shall be wielded against bombers and not protesters. Let us all unite behind a renewed campaign against terror and drive out this scourge to a modern Philippines.

Dito sa ating maiibayong pakibaka nagtitiwala ako sa inyo na naman mga board member, na patuloy tayong magkapit-bisig sa landas tungo sa reporma, katarungang panlipunan at kaunlaran ng ekonomiya. Hinubog ninyong mga lokal na opisyal ang centerpiece ng demokrasyang Pilipino. Nasa harapan kayo ng dakilang pagbabago.

Isinagawa natin sa pamahalaan ang mahihirap ngunit kailangang mga desisyon upang palakasin ang ating ekonomiya. Ngayon nagbubunga na ang mga sakripisyong ito.

Part of the social payback of our efficient fiscal management and good fiscal reforms in the law is the 15 billion pesos additional Internal Revenue Allotment intended to all local government units. Kasi meron kayong bahagi, 40 percent ng VAT ay pumupunta sa local governments.

At mula nang umupo tayo noong 2001, ibinibigay na rin natin nang buo sa mga LGU ang inyong IRA kahit na hindi napapasa ang bagong budget. Kumuha tayo ng DOJ ruling na ito ay automatically appropriated, na maging merong budget o wala yung computation ng inyong IRA ay binibigay sa inyo.

Ngayon halalan na naman umaasa tayo na nakatutok ang halalan sa mayo sa masaganang bukas, hindi sa mga ligalig at hirap na nagdaan. On my part, I will focus on the national agenda that includes more jobs, stable prices, and peace and order. Sa gayon, ipapaubaya ko na sa inyo ang ating team unity. Kayo na lang ang bahala sa kanila.

Magsisikap tayo upang palaganapin ang edukasyon at kalinga sa kalusugan. Magsusulong tayo ng green Philippines agenda upang alagaan ang ating kapaligiran at pagandahin ang ating mga pamayanan. At gagawin natin ito sa pakikipagbalikat sa inyo, mga opisyal natin sa probinsiya, upang masiguro na umabot ang mga biyaya ng bagong ekonomiya sa bawat sulok ng Pilipinas hindi lamang sa Metro Manila.

And we will not stop in seeking the support of our local leaders like you, the board members, and the Filipino people to gather around the nation's brighter future.

I'm confident that the strong partnership between the national government and the provincial officials, between you and me, is the key to achieving our common vision.

Maraming salamat at congratulations! Sa inyong 15th national convention.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA'S Speech during the 15th National Convention of the Provincial Board Members League of the Philippines. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151307/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1989&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremonies of the Philippines Councilors League (PCL) 2007 End-Term National Assembly

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremonies of the Philippines Councilors League (PCL) 2007 End-Term National Assembly

[Delivered at the Cebu International Convention Center, Mandaue City, Cebu, March 8, 2007]

Thank you very much, PCL President Fortuna for your beautiful introduction, and thank you for hosting all of us in your great industrial and now convention city.

Let me also greet Governor Gwen Garcia and all the women councilors here. To all of us — Happy Women's Day. And of course, our host mayor, Mayor Teddy Ouano, aside from our congratulations to Mandaue's hosting this very important convention, our sympathies also to you and to the fire victims of yesterday's accident.

I would also like to greet the different members and officers of the council, of course, from Baguio — but he had a beautiful Cebuano accent when he spoke Cebuano — National Chairman of PCL Elmer Datuin.

And we have Victor Ferrer, auditor; Joseph Ortiz, treasurer; Arcio Rendor, national executive vice president; my cabinet member from Cebu, Cerge Remonde; and our emcees, my inaanak Jack Jakosalem. You know one reason why I'm very close to the people of Cebu is that my mother spent her teenage years in Cebu. And during those days, her boyfriend was Jack's father. He would have been brother and sister; and Shirley Belleza of Talisay City. Thank you also for emceeding this program.

And to all the participants of the councilors league this 2007, welcome to Cebu! Congratulations on your opening! I hope we will have a very good assembly.

This assembly is most timely especially to re-electionist councilors, of which there are many, and councilors vying for higher positions, of which there are many. And Councilor Fortuna told us about some of the good things happening in our economy. I hope they will serve you well as well. Because when the economy is doing well, it will be easier for you to get the continued support of the people.

Our fiscal position is stable. There's growing confidence among businessmen that our growth will continue this year and in the coming years. And this positive perception is borne out of political will not only of me but also of you, of all of us in government, both at the local and national levels, in implementing needed fiscal and economic reforms. It took sometime for the national government to be close to wiping out its budget deficit. Before the national government could do it, which is scheduled still for next year, the local governments were already in fiscal surplus. Congratulations to you!

Surging confidence in the Philippine economy across the board rides alongside growing investments, strong remittances of our workers and peak international reserves, which is why our peso is so strong. These in turn are driving the track of excellence and productivity among the people, the people that you deal with because you are on the frontline driving the political noise to the background and increasing the flow down of economic benefits to the social level.

You know this morning, I had a meeting with 8,000 women in Manila mostly government employees. And one thing I learned one thing earlier, we've been spreading microfinance — I think among your communities, you're aware of them, aren't you? — and yet I realized that the government employees themselves do not have the benefit of microfinance. I don't know how your employees are in your council offices, but I said today, that the People's Credit and Finance Corporation — incidentally headed by a Cebuano, Edgar Generoso — should use as conduits also the employees cooperatives of the government agencies including government enterprises like the local government units, your units. I hope that can help you, and I hope you as councilors will be able to organize your employees in your municipal halls and your city halls so that they can have a second livelihood and that they will benefit from the microfinance that we are now able to give the people.

And I thank you also because you know when investors come to invest, they not only deal with the BOI, they deal with the local governments. And I thank you that the entire bureaucracy including the local government bureaucracy is being streamlined, cleaned up and prepped to move forward with better training and clear measurements of performance aimed at serving our people with less red tape, less corrupt practices and greater overall efficiency. After all, you the councilors are the ones who do the ordinances of your cities and municipalities. You are the ones who do the ordinances that can reduce red tape. You are the ones that can do the ordinances that entice the businessmen to invest in your localities. And because we have all worked in order to make the climate good for our fiscal position and for investment, payback time for the people is at hand. And it's being realized through more jobs, infrastructure, better education and services.

We have laid the fundamentals of growth — a sturdy fiscal house at the national level and at your municipal and city levels; a solid performance of good governance, much of which comes from the ordinances that you enact in your councils; a robust social payback to the people, mounting gains in the security front; and a democratic system in full bloom.

For once — and I think Carlos sort of alluded to this — for the first time in our economic history as recorded, we have traveled a clean path of 24 quarters of uninterrupted growth. It's payback time for our people, and more than ever, I will be needing the support of you, our councilors and local officials in bringing the blessings to the people in every nook and corner of the country. And I'm glad that in this hall and outside this hall watching on the big screens, we have councilors from every nook and corner of the country.

Part of the social payback from our prudent spending — as Carlo talked about our... And also Councilor Datuin about our internal revenue allotment, part of what you have said — part of our fiscal reform is now we have an additional 15 billion pesos for internal revenue allotment or IRA for all local government units. Because every time we have an increase in taxes like value-added taxes, the local governments get a share in the internal revenue allotment.

But even before this happened, as our speakers earlier also said, long time ago — no, not so long ago. Before my time — we could not release funds for the local government units if the budget was not passed. But because in my administration — we have three years of budget not being passed — we had to go through some legal procedures to make sure that you get your IRA in full even on a reenacted budget. So we got a DOJ opinion that starting from the time that the Supreme Court made a ruling that the internal revenue allotment cannot be reduced by the budget, the way it used to be done before my time, the DOJ put an additional opinion that therefore we must consider the internal revenue allotment as automatically appropriated whether we have a new budget or not.

That is why while in the last three years, it's only now for the first time that we will have a new budget, you still got your budgetary allocations in full. And that is to me, I would like to be proud to say, one of the most important support that I could give to our councilors and our local government officials.

In the past — they used to say, a president that retains part of the IRA and then puts it into what they call the local government, ano, LGSEF? Social Equalization Fund — if a president retains 10 percent of the IRA and then redistributed 10 percent to supposedly to those who need it more, that's additional power because that's in the hands of the president to decide where it will go. I gave up that power from the beginning of my term and I gave it all to you. You have the full power.

Why did I do this, why do I do this? This is because I trust you, the councilors and the local officials to work with me as you do your own budgets to continue on the path to reform, social justice and economic development. You, the local officials; you, the councilors together with your mayors, your vice mayors, your governors, your vice governors, your board members form the centerpiece of Philippine democracy in our system of local economy. You are on the frontline of change.

As councilors, you meet your constituents everyday. You're right there in town, that's why you are the frontline, you are the grassroots. And you and I, our government, we have made tough but necessary decisions to strengthen our economy. These painful steps are now paying off. We now have the money to invest in job creation, new roads especially farm-to-market roads which local governments are supposed to allocate, bridges and ports, and more for education, your school board fund, and health care. Because of your increased IRA, now you are also in a position to carry out the Philhealth law, that says that local government should allocate a part of your revenues to paying the premium of the poorest among your poor. So the more IRA you have — in other words the more taxes we collect at the national government — the more IRA you have, the more your poorest of the poor can have health care.

This year, we want to invest in our people in order to gain eight blessings by the year 2008. So we call this investing in people for 8 by 2008:

First, job creation. And that is why I said earlier, I hope that even in your own municipal halls or in your own city halls, you can organize your employees into credit cooperatives that can avail of microfinance.

Second, a stable cost of living. I hope that you will be able to work with the Department of Agriculture, for instance, to send products straight from the farm to the market with not too many middlemen in between. For instance, in Cordillera, they can send products straight to the markets of — let me say... Where have I been? — Taguig, and the price becomes much lower for the consumer and higher for the farmer.

We also want to have a strong peso. I don't mean that the peso should go down to 44.10, but what I mean is, it's better to have the peso where it is now than it were to go up to 56.60 or 100 because then we pay less in interest, we import cheaper oil, we import cheaper food.

We also want more investments. Of course, because they create jobs.

And we want pro-poor education. And your school board are so important here.

We want pro-poor health, hunger mitigation, and housing.

We want a green Philippines where you will beautify your communities and plant trees and flowers because the world is suffering from global warming, typhoons, floods, landslides, that's because we are exhaling more carbon dioxide than the plants right now can inhale. So we have to have more plants and make your towns and cities more beautiful.

And finally, strong anti-terror. You know, in this very hall was presented to the world the historic, legally binding ASEAN convention against terrorism. And it is in response to that legally binding convention that we finally passed the anti-terror bill and signed it into law. And we will now need all your assistance after elections when we will implement the anti-terror law to finally drive the terrorists out of the Philippines.

This represent this year's national agenda of our one-inch thick Medium-Term Philippine Development plan that is summarized into the 'Beat the Odds' that our councilor mentioned earlier.

On my part as president, I will focus on this 8 by 08 to achieve these blessings by 2008. I will leave the campaigning to the candidates among you. And that's why because you will be campaigning, most of you will be candidates again come end of March, into your hands, I commend the fate of team unity.

You can make it clear by pointing out examples to your own constituents that the blessings that we are enjoying are the fruits of our people's industry and sacrifices supported by our joint leadership wholly committed to their welfare.

Our leadership that certainly includes in the mainstream, in the frontline, in the grassroots, the councilors and cities of our cities and towns.

Let us not allow our surging economy to be derailed. Let us all work hard until our respective terms end to make economic prosperity, social justice, and peace and security a reality for a new and modernizing Philippines as you the councilors continue for another term or move on to a new phase in your career in leadership.

Daghan salamat.

Welcome once again to all of you!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Opening Ceremonies of the Philippines Councilors League (PCL) 2007 End-Term National Assembly. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151226/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1982&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 2007 National Women's Day celebration

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 2007 National Women's Day celebration

[Delivered at the Ninoy Aquino Stadium, Rizal Memorial Sports Complex, M. Adriatico St., Manila, March 8, 2007]

Maraming salamat Chairperson Myrna Yao.

Ambassador Sutherland, the benefactor of Women's Empowerment in the Philippines; ang mga kaibigan ng ating mga kababaihan, ang mga maybahay ng mga senador ng Team Unity: Narito ang maybahay ng dating Senate president. Ang kanyang initials ay GMA rin. Ang first name niya ay Gloria rin, Gloria Manalang Angara; yung katabi niya ay huwaran ng pamilyang Pilipino kasama ng ating tito sa Senado, si Helen Gamboa; at aking kababayan, tiga-pampanga pero siya ang kapit kasing-kasing ng itanim nating Pichay sa Senado, si Claire; at eto isa ring napakaganda at napakabata, yung maybahay ni Migs Zubiri; at narito rin isang prinsesa ng Sulu, ang anak ni Sultan of Sulu, ang pangalan niya ay si Princess Jasel; at yung anak ni Chavit, si Gina Singson. Napakilala ko na ba lahat?

Sa inyong lahat, maligayang pagdiriwang sa lahat ng mga Pilipina!

First of all, let us thank the government of Canada, through Ambassador Peter Sutherland for the 315 million pesos grant for our Gender Responsive Economic Actions for the Transformation of women. Ang tawag doon, G-R-E-A-T — Great Women Project. Thank you very much and mabuhay Ambassador Sutherland! at gusto ko rin batiin ang ating mga kababaihan, mga leader, si Myrna, si Espie Cabral wala pa rito. Kinikilala sa United Nations na ang Pilipinas ang nakakamit ng pinakamalaking asenso sa pagtanggali ng diskriminasyon kontra sa kababaihan. Congratulations sa ating mga leader! Kaya congratulations sa pangkat Pilipinang nagtrabaho para dito. At dumadami ang mga Pilipinang namumulat gaya ninyo at handang naninindigan para sa kapangyarihan ng kababaihan.

Twenty eight years ago, nagkaron tayo ng U.N. Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women, C-E-D-A-W (CEDAW). Kaya ngayon dahil pinapatupad natin yon, ang sigaw ng ating bayan — “Cedaw ng bayan: kabuhayan ng kababaihan.” bakit kabuhayan? Kabuhayan nga ang inatas ko kay Myrna Yao. Naalala mo, Myrna? Nung ginawa ko siyang pinuno ng National Commission on the Role of Filipino Women. Sabi ko, “Myrna, pinili ko ikaw dahil ikaw ay isang successful businesswoman. Gusto ko ring gawin mong successful businesswoman ang karaniwang kababaihang pilipina dahil ang giyera ko sa kahirapan ay giyera rin kontra sa diskriminasyon.”

Matipuno ang aking pag-asa para sa kinabukasan ng bansa at kabutihan ng taong-bayan. Naglalayon ang ating pambansang agenda na isulong ang bansa tungo sa mas matatag na pulitika, mas masaganang ekonomiya, kapayapaan at katiwasayan ng bansa.

Nakatukoy ang ating pambansang agenda sa paglikha ng mga trabahong maganda ang kita, matatag ang mga presyo ng bilihan dahil kayong mga kababaihan kayo ang mga namimili, at pagdala ng biyaya ng malakas na ekonomiya sa bawat pamilya ninyong mga kababaihan. Eto ang ating agenda — makamahirap, makakaunlaran, makamodernisasyon.

Walang pagod tayong nagtrabaho upang magtayo ng modernong bansa na balang araw kukunin ang kanyang lugar katabi ng mga bansang first world. Meron tayong layunin para sa araw kung kailan lahat ng mga Pilipina at Pilipino ay maaring piliing matira at nagtrabaho dito sa Pilipinas, malapit sa pamilya, malapit sa kaibigan, may-ari ng tahanan na may mataas na kalidad ng buhay.

Umaasa tayo para sa araw kung kailan sapat na mabubuting trabaho ang nalilikha sa Pilipinas upang hindi na kailangan mag-ibayong dagat pa para sa trabaho ng mga masisipag na Pilipino at Pilipina. Sabihin sa ingles: “We see a day when going abroad for a job is a career choice, not the only option for work.”

Isinagawa natin sa pamahalaan ang mahirap ngunit kinailangang mga gawain para palakasin ang ating ekonomiya. Nagbubunga na ang mga sakripisyong ito: mayroon na tayong salapi para mamuhunan sa paglikha ng trabaho, gaya ng microfinance para sa kababaihan. Kayo mga kababaihan, sino sa inyo na ang nakinabang sa microfinance? O Myrna, ano’ng nangyari? Ano? Kasi sabi ni Myrna hindi raw inimbata yung mga nagbiyaya ng microfinance, ang inimbata raw niya yung mga NGO pero hindi ba marami sa mga NGO mga conduit ng microfinance? O sino sa inyo ang mga conduit ng microfinance? O, Myrna? Para sa inyo mabuti na rin, siguro first time kayo nag-attend ng Women’s Day dahil bago si Myrna... Ha? Kasi nung isang taon halos lahat may microfinance. Ayan, si Ms. Nieto. Okey? Ayan, mga DepEd. Ang microfinance ay nasa 97 percent na ng ating bayan. At yung three percent na walang bayan... Na walang microfinance ay nandoon ang DSWD.

Kaya siguro panahon para ipaabot sa inyo na makipag-ugnay kayo sa DSWD kung kailangan niyong tulungan ang inyong mga miyembro sa microfinance. Sino ang nakipag-ugnay na sa DSWD para malaman ito? Mukhang kailangan Myrna ay mas kasama natin itong mga NGO na inimbata mo rito ngayon. Ano, Myrna?

NCRFW Chairperson Myrna Yao: sa ating mga kababaihan, alam niyo ho, ito ay programa natin kaya inila-launch po natin ang Great Women Project kasi po dito tayo mag-uumpisa. Dahil ito po ay itrinabaho namin last year na magkaroon ng isang programa and it will already start the Great Women Project.

Iba pa yang Great Women Project na yan. Etong microfinance ay nandiyaan na yan. In fact, nandito ba yung... oh, meron nag-o-oo dito sa harap. DSWD, halika! Alice. Si Alice Bala. Ano Alice, walong libong kababaihan dito hindi nila alam yung microfinance natin.

DSWD Alice Bala: Ang ating mga conduits, ma’am, nandoon po tayo sa mga mahihirap na lugar sa ibat-ibang parte ng Pilipinas. At doon sa mga nandito, yung mga wala pa, kung hindi pa kayo nikipag-ugnayan sa DSWD kami po ay bukas para sa inyo.

Ano, pwede ba natin pagkasunduan yon, pupuntahan ba ng mga NGO ang DSWD? O kaya Myrna, ilan bang mga NGO ang nandito ngayon? Hindi yung number, ilan ang mga organisasyon? NORFIL, nakatulong ba ang microfinance sa NORFIL? Ayun. NORFIL may natulungan. Yung mga Local Council of Women, saan dito ang mga Local Council of Women? Yung Go Negosyo? Pero ang microfinance ang pinag-uusapan natin. Ang kaibahan ng microfinance at itong great, itong project ngayon ng Canada, merong pondong binibigay ang microfinance, pinapahiram. Pero para doon sa kailangan mag-ensayo para magtayo ng negosyo at saka mag-training ng mga kakayahan, yan ang itutulong ng Canadian government sa atin, 300 million pesos. pero itong mga NGO, ano’ng pwedeng papel ng mga NGO? Kaya natin sila inimbata dito kasi kabalikat natin supposed to be, di ba?

DSWD Alice Bala: Kaya ang sabi nga namin yung mga NGOs na nandito makipagtulungan po tayo sa ating gobyerno at gusto po naming sabihin sa inyo na marami po kaming mga kababaihan na binigyan ng puhunan sa buong Metro Manila lamang. Pero hindi lang po Metro Manila, buong Pilipinas. At kung gusto po niyong makipag-ugnayan po sa amin, handa po ang DSWD para sa mga NGOs na maging conduit. Salamat po.

Nandito rin yung Vice President ng People’s Credit and Finance Corporation. Saan si Noel Poso? Eto ang nagpapahiram sa mga NGO na magpapahiram din sa microfinance. Kayo ba ay nagpapahiram na sa inyong mga beneficiary, kayo mismo? Meron ba, meron? So wala pa kayong track record. Kasi ang PCFC magpapahiram sa marunong nang magpahiram. Pero kung hindi pa marunong, ang DSWD ang uumpisahan. Meron ba tayong listahan ng mga NGO dito? Ito ba yon?

Saan yung National Council of Women of the Philippines dito? Kayo nagmi-microfinance ba kayo? Halikayo, ikuwento niyo kung sino ang mga beneficiary ninyo. Saan yung National Council of Women? Maikuwento mo nga kung papano makipag-ugnay sa iyo.

Local Councils of Women Representative: Madame President, ang mga kababaihan, ang Local Councils of Women po, we have 1,765 local councils of women in 1,765 cities and municipalities all over the country.

Hindi niyo kilala ang Local Council of Women? Kilala ninyo? sino ang nagsabing “yes”? Sino ang nagsabing “yes”? Marami raw nagsabing yes. Sinong may kilala ng Local Council of Women dito?

Local Councils of Women Representative: Ang Local Council of Women po, Madame President, is the umbrella for all NGOs in every municipality and city.

Hindi. Pero kung hindi sila member, papano naging umbrella?

Local Councils of Women Representative: Ah, ito po titignan po natin kung naimbita dito, yung mga NGOs.

NCRFW Chairperson Myrna Yao: Actually, marami din po dito ang from government. Kaya nga po sila ay mga career women kaya ho siguro yung mga ibang NGO na mas nakakarami po ang mga government career dito.

Ah, mas nakakarami dito mga government employees. ah...!

NCRFW Chairperson Myrna Yao: Opo. Kaya po ganun. Kaya ho sinasabi ho nilang wala kasi karamihan ho sa kanila government employees. Pero ang mga NGO ho nandito sa harap, ganun.

Kayong mga government employees hindi ba meron kayong mga employee cooperative? ang mga employee cooperative ninyo ay hindi nagmi-microfinance? Hindi? Oh, yun. Papano natin matutulungan ang government employee sa microfinance? Gusto niyo? Gusto niyo maki... Gusto niyo o hindi makinabang sa microfinance? Ang yes, oo. Yes, okay. Sino ang magiging conduit natin sa multi-purpose cooperative... ‘Di ba bawat government office may multi-purpose cooperative? Wala pa sa inyong naaabutan ng microfinance ng PCFCO, saan si Noel Poso?

PCFC official: Kami po sa PCFC, sa People’s Credit and Finance Corporation, handang tumulong sa lahat ng mga cooperatives.

Teka muna, tatanungin ko sa inyo dahil kayo ay multi-purpose cooperative. Yung mga multi-purpose cooperative nagpapahiram na di ba? So may track record na. magka-qualify na na maging conduit ng People’s Credit and Finance Corporation. meron na ba kayong mga People’s Credit and Finance... Meron na ba kayong mga conduit na microfinance?

PCFC official: May mga cooperatives po, mayron.

No, employees cooperative.

PCFC official: Employees cooperatives po.

Sinu-sino ang mga employees cooperatives na kasapi na ninyo?

PCFC official: Hindi po kami masyado sa employees cooperative, ma’am.

Yan ang gagawin natin. yan ang gagawin nating proyekto ngayon. Payag ba kayo? Dagdag na ito sa dagdag na sahod na nakuha niyo last year, di ba yung 1,000? wala kayong 1,000 na allowance per month? Ano ba naman? Hindi kayo nakakuha ng 1,000 allowance, last year? Saan ba ang DBM? Pwede ba naman... Sino ba ang taga dswd halimbawa dito? Empleyado ng... Hindi ka nakakuha ng 1,000 a month allowance? O, meron, meron. Ngayon... O, di ba 1,000 a month? Correct.

So ibabaw nung nakuha niyo nung isang taon dadagdagan natin... Meron... Pag pasok ng bagong kongreso, inanunsiyo ko na, magpapasok din tayo ng batas para dagdag na sweldo. Pero sa ibabaw nuon pwede bang gawin nating proyekto between now and March 8 of 2008, microfinance para sa mga empleyado ng pamahalaan? So siguro next year, pag tanong ko, meron ng makapag... May microfinance na, meron nang sasagot nang marami. Okay.

Maraming salamat at Happy Women's Day sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA'S Speech during the 2007 National Women's Day Celebration. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151241/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1980&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Bohol Youth Day celebration Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Bohol Youth Day celebration

[Delivered at the Pres. Carlos P. Garcia Sports Complex, Tagbilaran City, Bohol, March 10, 2007]

Daghan salamat.

Daghan salamat, Governor Aumentado sa imong pagpa-ila kanako.

Ipaabot ko sab ang akong pag-abi-abi sa atong mga kongresista diri sa Bohol: si Edgar Chatto ang akong estudyante; si Congressman Cajes, ang amahan sa inyong SK president; si Congressman Jala; si Vice Governor Julius Herrera; si Mayor Lim; siyempre ang anak ni Congressman Cajes, si President Frances Bobbith Cajes-Auza.

Ug i-welcome nato ang atong senador, mahimo senador gihapon, ang atong tito sa Senado, Senator Tito Sotto; oh! No problem. Nag-abi-abi na ako sa atong senatorial candidates so I will also greet the other candidates aron dili sila makalimot ang ila mga ngalan. Aniya karon starting from left, from Tito Sotto, itanom ang Pichay sa Senado; ang kampiyon sa mga kababainan, mga manunudlo ug mga gagmay nga estudyante sa pre-school, Tesis Aquino-Oreta; usa nga batan-on nga ma-represent sa atong mga batan-on, ang batan-on sa akong gabinete, ang batan-on sa Senado, Mike Defensor; usa pa ka batan-on, ang atong kampiyon sa Green Philippines, Migs Zubiri; ayaw kalimti kon gusto nato ang kalinaw ug kauswagan sa tibuok Pilipinas, importante sab ayaw nato malimot ang Sultan of Sulu gikan sa Muslim provinces, Sultan Kiram of Sulu; ang personal nga gi-nominate ni Governor Rico Aumentado sa line-up sa Team Unity kay iyang kapwa nga gobernador, Governor Chavit Singson; usa pa nga gobernador, nga sa tabang sa mga taga-Bohol mahimo senador, mu-represent sa mga local governments, Vic Magsaysay is our guy; kamo mga batan-on murag naa kamo saying, “bad... Kung bad ka, ang mga batan-on, lagot ka,” ang kampiyon, ang people’s dragon, Joker Arroyo; ang usa ka lider, dugay na nga lider sa aton mga reporma sa edukasyon busa Angara ng buhay, Ed Angara; ug usa pa nga matinee idol sa atong mga batan-on. Let us welcome — he was not acknowledged earlier — ang korekto sa Senado, Ralph Recto; ug siyempre tingali... Actually, actually unta siya ang ni-welcome kanako apan anhi na ko karon sa entablado ako na ang mu-welcome gihapon sa anak sa Bohol, kinsa? Cesar Montano.

Ang atong mga youth leaders nga kauban ni Bobbith Cajes; ang atong mga cabinet members ug mga laing-laing appointees na dili ko name-mention aron dili niyo sila ma-mistake isip kandidato sa senador, ang aton mga outstanding young boholanos nga nakadawat sa award kaganina, kaninyong tanan mga batan-on sa Bohol, maayon hapon ug congratulations nining inyong Bohol Youth Day.

Ang inyong pagtambong nagpa-ila nga ready gyud kamo manguna aron muayo ang kinabuhi sa atong nasod. Aduna kamoy vision. Ug bisan pa nga batan-on lang kamo, aduna kamoy buot ug panghuna-huna nga gigamit ninyo aron maka-apil sa pagsolbad sa atong mga kritikal nga isyu.

Nakuha na nato ang kumpiyansa sa kalibutan tungod sa pag-usdaw sa atong ekonomiya ug pulitika, busa karon, mas dako ang pag-agi aron muabot sa katawhan sama sa mga batan-on ang mga bunga sa kauswagan — mas daghang trabaho; mas makab-ot nga presyo sa palit-on; kusog nga piso; mas daghang investments; edukasyon alang sa mga kabos; serbisyo alang sa health care ug pabalay ug anti-hunger alang sab sa mga kabos; ang aton mga kontra sa terorismo; ug ang programang Green Philippines. Busa daghan salamat nga apil sa inyong Bohol Youth Celebration ang launching sa Green Philippines.

Sa pagka-matuod, batan-on pa kining atong nasod — kamo ang atong katawhan batan-on pa; kamo 65 percent sa populasyon ang ga-edad lang ug 35 paubos. Batan-on gyud ang atong nasod, ang atong independence seseinta ka tuig pa lang, ug ang mga growing pains gibabaw pa gihapon nato.

Batan-on ang atong nasod tungod kay pinangga nato ang kinabuhi: ganahan ta mokanta, mosayaw, mo-apil sa mga sports, sama sa atong mga kampiyon sa boxing ug sa chess, ug ganahan kita sa inobasyon ug teknolohiya.

Batan-on kita tungod kay kita nga matuod nga katawhan sa kalibutan, apil sa pagpas nga pagbag-o nga nahitabo sa tibuok kalibutan. Anaa kita sa unahan sa global workforce.

And if I may say a little something in english, not only to you our Bohol youth but to the Filipino people, Philippine resiliency is given across all sectors. The surge of exports to the highest point since 1999, despite the continuing strength of the peso and the relative volatility of overseas markets, marks the productivity and excellence of the Filipino. While we leave the determination of the true value of the peso to the signals of the market, our exporters can be assured that the economic team is on top of balancing out the situation and forging a business environment that would give them a fighting chance moving forward in the global game. "Made in the Philippines" has become a tag of quality, consistency and excellence. This comes with growth and stability in all economic and political fronts, and the surge of optimism and national pride among our people, kauban na ang mga kabatan-unan sama kaninyong tanan.

Karong adlaw, gi-awat ko ang mga batan-on boholano nga motabang sa paghimo sa usa ka bag-ong bisyon alang sa atong batan-ong nasod. Pahuna kini aron mo-apil ang sunod nga henerasyon sa civic life, ipangungod ang inyong tingod, mo-kilos ug kamo ang mag-buot sa inyong kaugalingon fortune.

Gamita ang mga instrumentong gihatag kaninyo sang gobyerno sa inyong mga pamilya ug sa nasod aron mahimo kamo mga doctor, abogado, mang-uuma, health care worker, ug manguna sa high-tech ug clean technology, ug sa uban pang mga halandong propesyon.

Pinangga nato ang atong mga OFW ug dako ang paghalandon sa ila mga sakripisyo ug serbisyo. Apan kinahanglan motrabaho ta alang sa adlaw nga ang atong kabataan, kamo, maoy manag-iyu ug enerhiya aron moabot ang adlaw kon diin a job abroad is a career choice and hopefully not the only option available for a hardworking young Filipino.

Kauban sa pagdaghan sa trabaho dinhi sa nasod, kinahanglan mopatindog ta sa bag-o nga kalidad sa kinabuhi dinhi aron mapadayon ang batan-on, kamo ug matahom ang atong nasod sama sa aton mga katawhan nga batan-on ug mga gwapa ug gwapo.

Kinahanglan bawi-on nato ang atong mga forest. Kini, we have narra seedlings aron mao gyud mabalik ang aton mga forest. Ang forest sa bilar usa ka maayo nga ehemplo tingali unta sa tibuok Bohol. Ay! Bilar. Mga taga-bilar kamo? Congratulations! Sa inyong mga forests unta tibuok Bohol naa mga forest tungod nining atong maumpisa karong adlaw ang atong reforestation. Ug ilison ang mga natumbang kahoy ug mga bag-o, protektado nga forest alang sa proteksyon sa atong nasod ug katawhan.

Ug gusto ko unta mogamit ang enthusiasm sa mga batan-on ug mga tiguwang aron molimpyo ang atong environment. Apil sa atong Green Philippines ang tuyo nga himuon nasod nga energy-efficient ug dili na kita merely sa mga sakyanan nga mahal ug makapagawas pa ug exhaust ug sa mga smokestacks ng pabrika. Pwede nato mogamit ang adlaw, ang hangin ug ang geothermal resources ug makahimo kita sa aton kaugalingon limpiyo nga fuel sama sa biofuel.

Kinahanglan nato ang kusog nga buot sa katawhan aron maminaw ang mga pulitiko ni-ining bag-o ug limpiyong Green Philippines. Gusto nato nga ang aton mga coral reefs ug mga baybayon, the wonder of the world, nga daghan kaayo dinhi sa bohol mahimo mga national park ug international sanctuaries alang sa eco-tourism ug research sa siyensiya.

I wonder Ace if I can announce...? May I announce the Kingdom Holdings? Tungod kay gwapo kaayo ang inyong mga baybay, inyong mga coral reefs, inyong hospitality, mga katawhan, I would like to announce that as a result of my state visit to Saudi Arabia last year, when I had a talk with the fourth richest man in the world, Prince Al Waleed of Saudi Arabia who invest the money of the royal family. Kingdom holdings headed by Prince Al Waleed has entered into a partnership with Ayala land and they would like to buy the whole Fonacier property in Panglao to put up a six-star resort, Raffles family. Ang ilang investment 150 million dollars diri sa Pilipinas ug sa Bohol.

Aduna pa kita'y panahon aron mopa-usbaw ang atong nasod sa angay na pa-agi sukad sa pagsugod: limpiyo, healthy, produktibo ug matahom. Gusto nato unta nga ang mga batan-on karon dinhi sa Bohol apil sa bag-o nga Green Philippines. So I issue a call to you, the Bohol youth aron himu-on nato, himu-on nato sa umaabot nga lima ka tuig ang atong Green Philippines.

Pipila lang kini ang sa mga gihuna-huna. Daghan kaayo inyong mga programa nga gi-ingon ni President Bobbith Cajes-Auza kaganina. Gitawagan ko ang atong kabataan nga tubagon kining call to action aron makadala ug bag-o, innovative nga panghuna-huna alang sa land management, care for our environment, ug mga paagi aron makahimo kita ug mga clean, socially responsible nga environment policy.

Kinahanglan molampas ta sa panahon sa panghuna-huna sa “either/or” bahin sa atin environment. Dawaton nato ang pagbag-o ug maisog ta sa makahimo ug Green Philippines nga berde ug makahatag ug kausbaw sa ekonomiya.

Gatuo gyud ako nga sa sulod sa pulo ka tuig, ang Pilipinas pwede mahimo usa ka model sa environmental stewardship. Apan mga batan-on sa Bohol kinahanglan ko ang inyong tabang aron mahimo nato kanang bisyon. Sugdan nato kining vision diri mismo sa Bohol — Green Bohol. And so therefore, atong bat-anon we count on you, Green Bohol. Keep Bohol beautiful like the young people of Bohol diri sa atong miting.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA'S Speech during the Bohol Youth Day Celebration. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151201/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1974&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 25th Anniversary of the Philippine Council for Industry and Energy Research Development

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 25th Anniversary of the Philippine Council for Industry and Energy Research Development

[Delivered at the PHIVOLCS Auditorium, U.P. Diliman, Quezon City, March 15, 2007]

I am very happy to be here with you on the 25th or silver anniversary of PCIERD, an organization that I used to be a part of in the past. And using this day, I thought that instead of honoring these distinguished gentlemen in Malacañang, I thought that we should honor them as part of our 25th anniversary celebrating research and so today therefore we celebrate part of our celebration of scientific research to honor the pillars of Philippine science both natural science and social science in the modern age.

Earlier when we were sitting down, Undersecretary Yumul said, “you made so many people happy/” I said, “what, by coming today?” I said, but of course, because it is a reality and it is a chance for me to reaffirm what I said in my very first State of the Nation Address in 2001, that technology is the foundation of future economic development. And having been a part of PCIERD in the past, I know the role of PCIERD. It is the link between research and applications in industry and energy. In my time, it was only industry that was on the focus, but today energy is just as important.

But being the link, it dramatizes when we celebrate the 25th anniversary of PCIERD that if we want technology indeed to be the foundation of future economic development, the investment sector must lead in the creation of a science and technology-based Philippine model. And that is the mission of PCIERD. And if we want indeed the technology will be the foundation of future economic development, it is also important that a good science education must be within the reach of every Filipino, which is the reason why among the reforms in Education that I also stated in my very first State of the Nation Address, one of the things I said is that we must strengthen math and science in basic education.

We are resolved to review all policies to forge broader coordination among public and private institutions and moving the S & T public and private budget allocation closer to the UNESCO-prescribed one percent of GDI. And PCIERD is what can put all of those efforts together, both private and public sectors.

On the part of the public sector, among the things we have done in order to increase and make more efficacious the spending on S & T, in our last meeting with the scientists – that was with the Philippine-American Association of Scientists – I announced that I have authorized the Department of Budget and Management to release 200 million pesos for masteral and doctoral-level scholarships in science and engineering. This is in addition to having put in the 2006 supplemental budget of 500 million pesos to build a science complex in U.P. Diliman. Actually, Nina it’s already ongoing, isn’t it? The construction?

Well, I could mention other things we are doing to spend on S & T, but I suppose Nina will let you know about that in the different technical meetings that she is conducting. But I can say that our spending on science and technology, these kind of spending as an example, the strengthening of basic education in Science and Math, the masteral and doctoral scholarship and research programs, the science complex that we are putting up, all of these are funded by the savings from our economic reforms.

Through hard-fought economic reform battles, the Philippine economy has finally broken loose of its lethargic economic legacy. New revenues, better collection and a crackdown on tax cheats, along with fiscal discipline has put the Philippines on a path to permanent economic growth and stability.

For the first time in a long time, the budget is under control. We are lowering our deficit and raising unprecedented amounts of revenue. And I do not want to, and will not go back to the days of large deficit spending.

Our commitment to economic reforms has proven effective. There has been a surge in investments. Just now, I came from Calabarzon where I ground broke a 100 million-dollar Toyota investment in a transmission plant. There has also been therefore a surge in job creation that I believe is permanent and must be sustained. And I am committed and I hope you are committed with me to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human infrastructure, including the human science infrastructure and physical infrastructure including physical infrastructure in science and technology like what we are putting up here in the U.P. campus.

These kinds of investments in human and physical infrastructure includes billions of pesos in education, health care and training along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines.

And I am optimistic that we will balance the budget within my term while also cutting our debt ratio and investing in this vital social and economic needs, including science and technology. I'm a prudent, disciplined economic leader. And they say, how come people were not spending so much before on math and science education, on science complex, on scholarships in the upper levels, maybe because they did not give about immediate results that could be seen right away. But precisely that's the meaning of being a disciplined, economic leader. I will not sacrifice long-term gains on short-term political expediency.

And now that we are beginning to have the wherewithal to go into research, science and to technology research or industry and energy as we are celebrating today, Undersecretary Yumul has talked about some of our research agenda. We must spend to develop indigenous and clean energy sources to reduce our dependence on price-vulnerability to costly fossil fuels, and rid the air of carbon emissions and other pollutants.

We have the Biofuels Act, authored and sponsored by Migz Zubiri. We still need to obtain public acceptance for a 10 percent bioethanol blend in 2010 and ensuring an adequate source of biofuels as mandated by that Biofuels Act. And getting public acceptance for this is more daunting a challenge than we might at first imagine. There are those who say, for instance, that ethanol will make my car go slower. Or there are those who say, why are we pushing so much for ethanol and biofuels when we are going to end up with less food on our table which is going to go into fuels? I have heard those kinds of arguments and that's why that sort of slow down the Biofuels Act.

But it is you, the scientists and those who will adopt scientific findings to production that can answer these challenges, like meet the needs of energy through biofuel at the same time meet the continuing and growing needs for food of our population. And we are hopeful that this group, the scientist and private sector in industry and energy together with the Department of Energy and the Department of Agriculture and of course the Department of Science and Technology and other agencies, will push that horizon forward.

Undersecretary Yumul talked about disaster management. And last year, again, a fruit of our tax reforms, we were able to release 236 million to purchase doppler radars for Subic, Tagaytay and Cebu. So it is not a coincidence that our weather forecasting is much more accurate today. And on top of that now, here in 2007, PAGASA's budget has another 200 million for two more doppler radar stations in Mindanao as well as the upgrade of equipment for natural hazard monitoring.

And of course, I've talked about carbon emissions earlier when I talked about energy, we do need more work on climate change which has become a keen global concern. Related to all of these, I have already ordered the DENR to finish the mapping of the hazardous areas. I remember I gave that instruction for the mapping of hazardous areas in a meeting that I presided on right here in this building a couple of years ago. Bibeth Gozun was still then the secretary of DENR. And now I am rushing the DENR because we need that hazard mapping as soon as we can have it. We already have some aspects but we'd like to complete it as soon as we can because global warming has really produced a lot of hazards more frequently.

And I look forward to your own findings on how to carry our vigilance forward and avoid loss of lives and property.

Industry. I saw the exhibits on virgin coconut oil, and I had just told Nina Alabastro, she was so surprised when I said Nina, I have just signed an Executive Order putting the Technology Resource and Livelihood Center under the Department of Science and Technology. Because the last time we met with the scientific community we talked about business incubation.

When I went to the TLRC and I took the occasion to examine their mandate, they were originally organized as TRC (Technology Resource Center). We already have other livelihood institutions: we have the PCFC, we have the NLSF So what makes TLRC unique should be the technology. So the livelihood should be incidental. So I put the name back to TRC and I'm putting it with DOST so they can be Nina's arm in business incubation.

Maybe that way we can really see to it that Philippine food processing and packaging can be span into the global market on the back of small and medium-scale entrepreneurs. And now that you have TRC with you, I ask you to develop more technologies applicable to micro entrepreneurs with limited capital.

We are both comfortable and confident that our discipline will allow us to continue on a balanced path of targeted investment and overall restraint. Our medium-term plan budget is to balance the budget by 2010, although our economic managers have moved it forward to 2008, because they believe we can do so. And that is their plan, they believe if s a realistic goal.

Our fiscal performance in 2006 is a reflection of the significant progress that we have made over the past two years in putting our fiscal house in order. Our commitment to making the difficult decisions to reform our economy has been a major contributor to these achievements. We will continue to demonstrate that this is a government that delivers on its commitments, including its commitment to make technology the foundation of future economic development.

And so on this 25th anniversary of PCIARD, let us unite for Philippine S & T. Let us support those who believe in our reforms.

Mabuhay ang science and technology!

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the 25th anniversary of the Philippine Council for Health Research and Development (PCHRD)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 25th anniversary of the Philippine Council for Health Research and Development (PCHRD)

[Delivered at the Crowne Plaza Galleria Manila, Ortigas Ave., Quezon City, March 16, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Nina Alabastro. It's very good to see you again for the second straight day.

Ched Chairman Carlito Puno, Executive Director Dr. Montoya, Assistant Secretary Villaverde; PCHRD officials and scholars, members of the scientific research and education community, ladies and gentlemen.

Happy silver anniversary to PCHRD! It's a good time for us to celebrate the 25th anniversary. May I take this opportunity to pay tribute to all the men and women of the Philippine Council for Health Research and Development for your contributions to a strong and healthy nation.

In the words of former director general of the World Health Organization, Dr. Gro Harlem Brundtland, "at the core of knowledge lies good research," including knowledge about health.

I'm pleased to know that PCHRD has banded together with the DOH, the CHED, and U.P. Manila's national institutes of health to establish the Philippine National Health Research System, and that was one of the prominent items in your exhibit.

You're celebrating your silver anniversary at a time when we want to invest in our people in order to gain 8 blessings by the year 2008. Or what we call in our mantra — investing in people for 8 by '08:

First, job creation;

Second, stable cost of living;

Third, strong, steady peso;

Fourth, more investments;

Fifth, pro-poor education;

Sixth, green Philippines;

Seventh, strong anti-terror;

And finally last but not the least, eighth, pro-poor hunger mitigation, housing, and health.

Let me talk about the first and the last: job creation and health.

On job creation. The jobless rate is down, and I'm very happy that more than one million jobs were created in the last 12 months. In fact, that's three times what was created in the entire previous administration.

Every tough decision made and every policy laid down to strengthen the economy is geared towards the foremost aim of creating jobs. This administration has been attacked on various fronts and issues, but let it not be said that we did nothing to give Juan De la Cruz a chance to land a good job and bring home the bacon to a healthy and adequately schooled family.

The social payback of economic reforms consists of a double boost on jobs and basic services, including health services, so that the Filipino family is lifted not only from abject poverty but insulated from disease and ignorance. As more and more investors lay their premiums on the Philippine economy, the window of opportunity will open wider to accommodate the excellence and productivity of the Filipino. I shall remain unswerving in the task of creating, topping the more than five million jobs we've generated in six years with even more as we push economic growth and social justice to the limit. This is good governance at work. We affirm it as strongly as we vow to enforce criminal justice and human rights for the freedom and prosperity of the people.

Now let me talk about health. So that Juan De la Cruz can bring home the bacon to a healthy family, we want to increase the reach of health insurance to 85 percent of the population. We want to reduce by half the price of medicines commonly bought by the poor. We want to help local governments convert their primary hospitals to secondary hospitals capable of delivering childbirth and simple surgery.

One of the most important tasks of the Philippine Council for Health Research and Development is to help bring down the cost of medicine bought by the poor to one-half of what it was in 2001. That is why the DOST is pushing research and development on herbal-based pharmaceuticals. While the Department of Health has already identified the ten medicinal plants on the top of the list such as lagundi, sambong, akapulko, yerba buena, and ampalaya tablets. And I saw earlier in the exhibit that through your work, you have even discovered the medicinal use of virgin coconut oil against sepsis, a disease that plagues premature babies. I also understand that we are looking at virgin coconut oil in order to treat skin infections, fungus. I say that because virgin coconut oil is one of the things that I asked Nina Alabastro to develop. I told her that I want virgin coconut oil to be as famous someday, a part of our medicine cabinet or kitchen cabinet as Italian olive oil. And a lot of that will help me done by the Philippine Council for Health Research and Development.

The government is committed to increase expenditures for research and development, develop our domestic capability for basic drug research. I saw in the exhibit also that for several years now, in recent years, you've developed a partnership with laboratories like Pascual laboratories. And earlier while you were waiting for me while I was in Quirino, in Cagayan Valley, incidentally, I saw also an exhibit that you have a very, very strong research agenda in Cagayan Valley. Well, anyway, while I was there, you were here witnessing the signing of yet another memorandum of agreement with Pascual laboratories.

And just a few days ago, I inaugurated the first 1.7 billion-peso phase of a 7.5 billion-peso laboratory facility of Unilab producing prescription drugs. And that is going to be... They hope, the first domestic laboratory that will be FDA accredited. So much research is going on, so much research must go on for the health of our people.

The 7.5 expansion of Unilab is for prescription drugs that are commonly chemical-based. Pascual laboratories I supposed is doing on... Is that the one that you signed for... Based on our herbal medicines? But I think that Unilab would have invested even more in the Philippines if we were developed in biotech and biomedicine. Because much as they would have like to do it here, their biotech laboratory is in china because that's where the research output is very rich. So that shows that we also need additional expenditures to go into biotech and biomedical research.

I am very happy that you have institutionalized during our administration the Philippine National Health Research System. This should help manage the health, social and economic consequences of natural and man-made disasters. It should safeguard the health of our farmers who must be adequately protected from noxious substances while at work. It should increase the people's capacity to meet the specter of new infectious diseases such as SARS.

We should congratulate our health, agriculture, and our DOST research agencies. Because through these years when our neighboring countries were plague with SARS, and even more when our neighboring countries were plague with avian flu, we have had hardly any SARS and certainly no avian flu.

Nonetheless, the Philippines is also still being set back by traditional infectious diseases that continue to exact a heavy toll. Tuberculosis, for instance.

These are foreboding challenges. Yet, we have to deal with the continuing loss of our S & T professionals, including scientists, engineers, researchers and technicians to the careers in other parts of the world. That is why I want to create so many jobs in our country, good jobs that for a hardworking and talented Filipino, a job abroad will be a career choice and not the only choice left. I've been asked what are the examples of jobs you've created to keep them at home or bring them back home. Well, for one thing a lot of young people have told me, "thank you, Madame President, for promoting the contact centers because we don't have to go abroad for a job. We're quite happy working in the call centers and still being with our families and friends."

And a few years ago, when I went to the Malampaya plant of shell in the South China Sea, I saw about four engineers who had come back from the Middle East to work there with expat salaries. Well, we hope someday we can do that with our scientists and our health scientists.

We must continue to fill the gap in the meantime by developing world-class health researchers and personnel by strengthening the curriculum — that is why Doctor Puno is here especially in the graduate level — and providing continuing training to health researchers and personnel.

Yesterday at PCIERD, we recognized the international award given in London to Doctor Rolando Dela Cruz, a health researcher for having developed a natural cure for skin cancer, probably so far the only known cure in the world. And he is practicing that here, he has many patients coming over. That is an example of an output of health research that has become useful not only to the Philippines but to the world.

And so I congratulate the PCHRD, the Philippine National Health Research System and its partners including private researchers like Doctor Dela Cruz and Unilab, that is a very big health research community we have, and with our newfound budget, with our newfound resources coming from our tax reforms, we hope that in the next 25 years, health research would even be more vigorous and truly become part of the mainstream of our society.

To all of you once again, happy silver anniversary!

Mabuhay ang health research!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 25th Anniversary of the Philippine Council for Health Research and Development (PCHRD). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151132/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1972&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the inauguration of the new Sulipan Bridge

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the inauguration of the new Sulipan Bridge

[Delivered in Brgy. Sulipan, Apalit, Pampanga, March 17, 2007]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Manny Bonoan. At congratulations! Sa iyo at sa lahat ng mga DPWH na nagtrabaho rito dahil technically napakahirap gawin itong tulay na ito pero nagawa niyong maganda at matatag.

Ambassador Yamazaki, we thank you and the Japanese government for giving us the loan that we used to fund the construction of this very, very important infrastructure; Congresswoman Anna York Bondoc queng caring kegana-ganang Congressmen Naning fourth district ning Pampanga, peka maragul a proyektong dinalang keti quing distrito na; kaya ara caring nga tao keti qing fourth district keting qing Pampanga iyana kanu ing eldest child ku aleya Mikee. Anyway, I greet also my biological eldest child, Mikey.

And I would like to greet board member Dong Gonzales; our various mayors who are here headed by Apalit Mayor Tirso Lacanilao; the two mayor Floreses of Macabebe and Masantol; Mayor Sagum, also the first gentleman of the district.

And I would like to greet also our Cabinet officers for regional development here in Central Luzon: our chairman of the Clark-Subic alliance, Ed Pamintuan; our Presidential Assistant for Central Luzon, Rene Diaz; let me also greet Hanjin, our principal contractor here, not only because you have built this beautiful bridge, Mr. Shim, but also because you opt your investment on the shipbuilding in Subic which is about already over 250 million dollars and going up to one billion U.S. dollars; caring kabalen kung kapampangan, mayap a oras kekayu uling iko ing.. Iko ing mag-benefit kaniting Sulipan bridge.

And Ambassador Yamazaki, may I tell you something about Sulipan. Pampanga is very well known for its cuisine. But Sulipan has a very special cuisine, it's called Sulipan cuisine. And why do we have a special cuisine here in Sulipan. You see this beautiful river which incidentally used to be dirty but it's very clean now, maayap a-oras qing kekatang Mayor Lacanilao. This river goes out into Manila bay. And in the olden times, the galleon ships between Mexico and the Philippines used to enter this river from manila bay and have their drydock and shipyard here in Sulipan. And so therefore in the many months that the galleon ships will be undergoing repair, rehabilitation, maintenance, the chefs, the Spanish and Mexican chefs of the galleon ships would be here and exchange in culinary culture with our own Filipino Kapampangan cooks. And so we have a unique blend of Sulipan cooking made up a combination of Kapampangan, Spanish and Mexican cuisine, in fact, propagated in some of the fine restaurants in Metro Manila by the most famous Filipino chef coming from Sulipan, his name is Gene Gonzalez.

So, just as Sulipan was a very important infrastructure area in the Spanish period. Today, Sulipan is very important infrastructure area in today's economy. At alimo kaning... It's not only the Kkapampangans who are benefiting from this bridge. It is from everybody who will have to travel from Manila to the provinces in the north, yung mga magbabiyahe na hindi kaya magbayad doon sa toll road. Mas mura ito pero maganda, at yung mga truck, sabi nga ni Manny Bonoan, kayang-kaya yung mga mabibigat na karga. Kaya nung araw hindi sila makasakay dito diyan sa yung tulay na yan na maliit, hindi yan kaya nung malalaking truck kaya lahat dadaan sa toll road. Ngayon malalaking truck kaya na ito, hindi na magbabayad ng toll, magiging mas mura tuloy ang mga produktong at pagkain na dumadaan dito.

Kaya congratulations! Sa DPWH dahil nilalagay niyo ang mga mahahalagang imprastraktura naging bunga ng ating mga reporma sa buwis. Itong inagurasyon nating ito ay kasunod ng groundbreaking kahapon lamang doon sa isabela, sa isang malayong barangay para matulungan yung ating mga magsasaka. Itong groundbreaking na ito kasunod din... This also follows the groundbreaking the other day when Ambassador Yamazaki and I presided over a five billion-peso groundbreaking of a Toyota transmission plant. Na ang kanyang mga produkto ibebenta hindi lamang sa Pilipinas kung hindi na rin sa ibang mga bansa kasama ang Japan mismo. At yung groundbreaking na yun kasunod naman doon sa inagurasyon nung isang araw naman ng isang... Yung pinakamodernong pagawaan ng gamot. Yung pagpalawak ng Unilab na magiging pinakamodernong pagawaan ng gamot sa buong rehiyon. Hindi lang yon, yun ang unang magiging pabrika ng gamot na magiging FDA accredited. Ibig sabihin nuon ang Pilipinas makakabenta na ng gamot sa Amerika mismo.

Lahat itong mga investments na ito — Toyota, foreign investment; Hanjin, foreign investment; Unilab, giant Filipino investment — ay dahil sa kumpiyansa sa ating ekonomiya dahil sa ating pagmaneho ng ating budget. The closing budget gap is fueling the confidence that creates jobs. We are speaking of well-paying jobs gaya ng mga welders doon sa Hanjin shipyard. Noong araw mangingisda, subsistence fishermen, ngayon highly-paid welders. Gaya ng mga trabaho sa Toyota transmission, ang daming mga enhinyero, mga technical engineers at iba pang mga technical factory workers. Sa Unilab ang daming mga chemist. All of that is evident... All these high-paying jobs are evident in the finding, na loob ng peryodiko today, that Philippine salaries growth is the third fastest in the Asia-Pacific. And we are proving that good salaries basta nanggagaling sa desisyon ng management at employee, good salaries are not a bar to investment but a guarantee of more profits to the firms that are putting a stake in our country.

No one can beat the Philippines when it comes to fiscal discipline. And the Filipino people are world-class when it comes to productivity and excellence. But economic strength is more than fiscal stability and a good payback to our human resources. We have to pump prime the system. Ano'ng ibig sabihin ng pump priming the system? Hindi ba yung mga lugar kung saan mahina yung pressure ng tubig naglalagay tayo ng pump, binobomba natin. Yun ang ibig sabihin ng pump priming. And we have to pump prime the system and guarantee that its returns are felt in the countryside and grassroots level through better infrastructure gaya ng tulay para sa magsasaka sa isabela at gaya nitong tulay na ito sa sulipan na nasa Mac Arthur highway na nagdadala ng ating mga kababayan mula sa Manila hanggang probinsiya, ating mga produkto mula probinsiya hanggang Maynila.

We also have to provide payback in quality education and a healthier people gaya nga ng mga gamot na ginagawa ngayon sa world class, most modern laboratory in the region doon sa Unilab. At yung kahapon naman may apat na kasunduan tungkol sa herbal medicine na binuo sa silver anniversary ng Health Research Council.

At the same time this flow of economic gains must be reinforced by plugging revenue leaks, prosecuting tax cheats and smugglers, and nipping graft in the bud through less red tape and stricter controls on wayward spending. We are keeping pace with the world in all aspects of economic and social stability, shoring up the welfare of the people, expanding democratic space, and hitting hard on the threat of terror.

Itong tulay na ito hindi lang halimbawa ng ating importanteng imprastraktura para sa ekonomiya, halimbawa rin ito ng pagkakalinga sa mahihirap at saka sa demokrasya. Kasi isang dahilan kung bakit matagal na matagal hindi natin mapalitan yang tulay na yan ay maraming mga squaters dito. Eh hindi naman pwede nating basta tabuyin lamang sila. Pero sa ilang mga nakaraang taon nagkaroon tayo ng pera dahil sa ating tax reforms na natulungan silang lumipat. Kaya nung nakalipat sila dahil sa tulong na rin ng ating budget nasimulaan natin itong construction nitong tulay na ito.

Kaya... Kaya, mayap a oras pasibayu caring mahal kung kabalen. At congratulations! Muli sa lahat ng gumawa at lahat ng pilipinong makikinabang sa Sulipan bridge at MacArthur highway.

Dacal a salamat. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Inauguration of the New Sulipan Bridge. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151114/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1969&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 102nd Commencement Exercises of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA) 'Maragtas' Class 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 102nd Commencement Exercises of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA) 'Maragtas' Class
2007

[Delivered at the Borromeo Field, Philippine Military Academy (PMA), March 19, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Ebdane.

Vice President Noli De Castro, Major General Maligalig and the administration faculty and staff of the Philippine Military Academy, General Esperon and the other officers and members of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, Congressman Domogan, Governor Melchor and the other officials of the Philippine government, Cabinet members, foreign diplomatic military and defense officials, proud parents lalung-lalo na ang ina ni Andrelee Mojica.

Nalaman ko ang kasaysayan ni Andrelee na nung siya ay high school pa nagkasakit yung kanyang tatay at dahil yung tuition sa college ay kailangan ibayad doon sa paggamot ng kanyang ama, tumigil muna siya mag-aral hanggang sa hindi kaalaman ng kanyang mga magulang, kinuha niya ang examination sa Philippine Military Academy at pumasa.

And I have learned that many of our graduates today have a very similar kind of success story as Andrelee. Congratulations! To their parents for bringing them up that way. Congratulations! Also to the proud friends and family, and I must especially congratulate the vigorous participation of the Cagayan province delegation.

And before I forget, at the end of my speech which I shall do at the beginning, in honor of the graduates of the Philippine Military Academy today, as your going away present to your underclassmen, I hereby pardon the outstanding punishments of the cadet corps of the PMA as may be prescribed by the superintendent of the PMA effective today.

Sa inyong lahat, congratulations! Maragtas class of 2007.

Gaya nang sabi ni General Maligalig, your class proudly derives its name from the 13th century epic poem 'Maragtas'. Para sa kaalaman ng iba, this legend narrates the tale of ten Bornean datus who fled persecution and sought freedom through uncharted seas and shores.

Today, eight centuries later, through you, Maragtas class 2007, government will reach the farthest communities of the land and assure their security and freedom. Because you, Maragtas class 2007, will be enablers of a peaceful and productive life among our people.

Indeed, as General Maligalig pointed out when he talked about the multi-faceted expectations of your class, the armed forces must be the vanguard of a strong economy.

Speaking of the economy, the strength of the peso is boosting social amelioration by denting the price of water, gasoline, LPG and food. We're making headway in the social payback of economic growth — this is the real story taking place in the lives of the people. The combined potency of a robust economic blueprint and the productivity of Filipinos here and abroad has caught the eye of investors and political observers who are now seeing a permanent projectory of economic and political stability.

The focus of the world is not only on the Philippine economic recovery, but the way we are making democracy work while keeping the threat of terror at bay. We are consolidating the political, economic, social and security ramparts of nation-building in a manner and pace that has never been done. And this is a tribute, the resiliency, excellence, spirit of enterprise and courage of the Filipino people, the same resiliency, excellence and spirit that we have seen in the personal histories of many of the members of Maragtas class 2007. Congratulations! To you for that.

For every ounce of vigilance we invest in keeping the economy strong, the people reap tenfold — internal jobs, better schools, more health services, roads and bridges — all working to drive their hopes for the future.

Maragtas class 2007, you are the first, as General Naligalig said, to graduate under the enhanced mission of the Philippine Military Academy. And this enhanced mission in turn is anchored on the Philippine defense reform program which we have started to implement last year. We are determined under this Philippine defense program to modernize the AFP in order to deliver the best equipment and supplies to our soldiers in the field.

And you, my dear graduating class, you will be able to experience during your career something that many since the class of cavalier Ronald Patugalan probably have not seen in a long time, you will eventually one of these days be able to use brand new helicopters in your machines. You are also the first to graduate since the passage of the anti-terrorism law formally known as the human security act which gives us a potent piece of armor to shield not only the people but our economy as well from the scourge of evil.

I am glad that in his remarks, General Maligalig also talked about human security, the many facets of human security. Of those many facets, we can somehow recognize and classify them into two major components of human security — freedom from fear and freedom from want. This is our formula for enduring peace.

You, our young soldiers, will spearhead the fight against terror in the same way that our young professionals and entrepreneurs are leading the fight against poverty while helping build excellence for our people everywhere in our nation and in the world.

Therefore, let me take advantage of this gathering to share the paradigm for peace we have developed in dealing with Mindanao at a time when hard power has fallen short in proving its value to the world. The Philippine model for dealing with the flashpoint area of Mindanao has focused on a unique combination of soft and hard power. To promote peace, we have been able to meld together confidence-building measures grounded on strong interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness, investments in economic and basic infrastructure development, and mutual security arrangements to keep the peace in Mindanao.

And that is what you will do, young soldiers.

I have read in the papers that many of you are excited to go to Jolo. Yes, you will go and you will fight, but you will also build schools, you will build roads, you will teach the children to read, and you will understand one another's religions.

The force of political stability must be seen in all other facets of our national life rather than just anti-terrorism and anti-insurgency. Safe streets, inviolable homes, public mobility free from crime, workers, public servants, farmers, professionals and investors must enjoy equal protection and freedom from fear. And this is what you, Maragtas class 2007, will provide for the people.

Therefore in ending, to the Maragtas class, my marching orders are — have a leader's heart. What is a leader's heart? I don't have to describe a leader's heart, because in her valedictory address, we heard Andrelee Mojica talk about it. She has a leader's heart. I know you all have a leader's heart in Maragtas class 2007. Have a leader's heart and love the people you serve. Become legends in your own time, not only in your success stories as you have gone through the Philippine Military Academy, but in the successes that you will share with the people in the communities that you will serve.

And in going forth to your mission to serve the people, step forth with courage, integrity and loyalty.

Congratulations!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 102nd Commencement Exercises of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA) 'Maragtas' Class 2007. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151059/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1967&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 28th National Conference of Employers 2007

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 28th National Conference of Employers 2007

[Delivered at the Centennial Hall, Manila Hotel, Manila City, Cavite, March 21, 2007]

Thank you very much.

Thank you very much, Secretary Brion for your introduction. And thank you for all that you have been doing for industrial peace.

Chairman of ECOP, Mike Varela; President of ECOP, Jun Ortiz-Luis; Donald Dee; Freddie Yao, chairperson of the organizing committee; Francis Chua and the members of the federation who are hosting this lunch; chairmen, presidents and leaders of the business industry attending this conference; and of course, congratulations! To our new Lakan ng Kalakalan, Don Emilio Yap, a pillar of Philippine business and media.

Congratulations! Also to the Kapatid awardees headed by Unilab. And thank you Unilab for your ongoing 7.5 billion-peso expansion.

I'd like to also acknowledge our special citation to Buena Mano. And to thank everybody that are participating in what Serge Ortiz-Luis told me that you will be spreading your technology transfer to some of the areas recently liberated from the NPA. Thank you very much for that.

Last year, your theme was "Survive, Compete, Excel." Today, it is "Reaching Out: Competitiveness, Partnerships and Reforms." And this conference is a great opportunity for partnership, partnership between business and labor. And those are what we gave out as awards today. Reaching out small entrepreneurs to micro entrepreneurs; big entrepreneurs to small entrepreneurs. And partnership between business and government to renew our partnership and continue our close cooperation to meet vital issues such as infrastructure development, labor-related concerns, drumming up the optimistic outlook of economic zones such as the bill I signed into law yesterday restoring lost incentives to investors, liberalizing the cement industry, and maintaining confidence in reaching a balanced budget.

We should really get together, labor and business, large business and small business and micro business, business and government on infrastructure development. And that's why I'm happy to share with you a piece of good news, a report that I received from the PNCC president today that tomorrow the PNCC board will ratify the joint investment proposal with Citra for the continuation of the skyway project called stage 2.

This will certainly make it more convenient to travel to Unilab and other areas in Calabarzon. And it will make our city prettier because you see all those unsightly post when you are passing through the skyway, now they will begin to be completed.

But of course, ECOP is primarily concerned with labor management partnership. And speaking of labor-related concerns, let me affirm our belief in the regional tripartite system of wage setting. I am happy to hear that representatives of the regional wage board are here, I think first time you become part of this conference. And I want to congratulate you that through the tripartite setting, you have accomplished the third highest wage increase in the Asia-Pacific region.

Meanwhile, our search for more non-wage benefits for our workers continues without let-up.

Our partnership, business and government and labor, has gone through many economic reforms. Through hard-fought economy reform battles we have led together, the Philippine economy has finally broken loose of its lethargic economic legacy. New revenues — as mentioned by Francis Chua — better collection and a crackdown on tax cheats along with fiscal discipline has put the Philippines on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. And the world is taking notice. We thank, of course, Unilab — that's a Filipino investor. But aside from Filipino investors, just last night, I got a call from Secretary Peter Favila — he was with the Shanghai world trade group — and they gave me the good news of a forthcoming two billion-dollar tourism investment in the BCDA. And that was confirmed to me this morning in a visit by the Chinese ambassador.

Indeed, I believe, and I think we believe, the Philippines is one of the best values for money in Asia for investors.

There has been a surge in investments, exports — notwithstanding the strong peso — our export growth in January was 27 percent. Congratulations! To Ford and other exporters. And of course, job creation. Where aside from having the third largest increase in wages in Asia-Pacific, we also together created 1.16 million jobs January last year to January this year.

We are working to ensure this will be sustained. We are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, health care and training along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines. And that's why I'm glad your theme says, "Reaching Out: Competitiveness, Partnership and Reforms."

I take great pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. I'm personally proud of the fact that external debt is declining at a rapid clip, optimistic that we will balance the budget on schedule, and that we are making sure to use the gains to invest in vital social and economic needs.

The new freeport zones, particularly Clark, will continue to spur investments in our super regions in Luzon, level the playing field in business, and most of all, create well-paying, modern jobs for our people. In Clark economic zone, I have visited, of course, contact centers and BPO for we all know the jobs are well-paid. But I have also visited, for instance, a very modern toy factory where the artisan in the Kapampangan has come out so beautifully and they're well-paid as well.

As more infrastructure is being laid and political stability dawns on the Philippines, we continue to liberalize the investment climate, including liberalizing the cement industry, so that when you build your factories and we build our roads cement will not be so expensive. So we liberalize the economy in a way that further energizes the economy, revs the engine of local enterprise — as many of you who received the awards are local enterprises — and fuels hope and optimism all around.

On the forefront of social returns, we've been building more than 6,000 school buildings per year during my administration; giving out 50,000 high school scholarships per year since we started the scholarship voucher system for high school; 400,000 housing units will be built between this year and 2008; we will send potable water to 300,000 households — and I thank Manila water for reducing your water rates — we will also be providing millions of free insurance premiums and more Botika ng Barangays distributing low-cost medicine; and 2,000 new Tindahan Natin outlets selling low-cost food items. These are what we call non-wage benefits or wage goods for our workers.

We're prepared to invest one trillion pesos for transport, agricultural and ICT infrastructure to move our infrastructure-to-GDP ratio closer to the Asian norm of 4.5 percent. As an example of transport infrastructure, yesterday and the day before, I was attending to the infrastructure for upland vegetables, 70 percent of which come from the cordilleras. In the cordilleras, the bulk of the vegetables come from Buguias and Kibungan. Buguias is on the Halsema highway and so we have rebuilt and modernized the Halsema highway. It used to take a whole day to travel from Buguias to Baguio. Now it only takes a couple of hours.

Now, we are working on the other side the secondary road where Kibungan is. The other day, I went on that road which they usually call the cordillera massage. And now that we have built the Halsema highway, we are building that cordillera massage, rebuilding it. It's been so rugged for so long. When I was going through the road, I came across a gasoline station and the gasoline station was named rugged road refilling station. And when I was going back to Baguio, I met a jeepney. And you know, where they put the destination on the side of the jeepney window it said, destination dusty road. So, that's where the vegetables have to pass from Kibungan. So now we are also repairing that road the way we have modernized the Halsema highway.

After that, I went to La Trinidad. And I want to thank DOLE for putting up a plantation in Benguet. And the DOLE officials were in La Trinidad because the government has put up a pre-processing center where they can pack the vegetables and refrigerate it so that during the peak harvest time when all the vegetables are coming out and there's danger of perishing or selling it at bargain basement prices, now they can store their vegetables there and sell them to the lowlands throughout the year.

In the La Trinidad center, we sent off a refrigerated van so that the vegetables can travel refrigerated and this van traveled — again, provided by the government — traveled to Capas, Tarlac where it was unloaded and distributed to Central Luzon saving about 20 pesos in transport cost.

That is what we mean by agricultural infrastructure, because a lot of the cost in agriculture is in post-harvest losses. Now the farmers have more income and they can also pass on the price, the savings to the consumers. There's about a 20-peso difference all in all. But we are talking about farmers, we are talking about labor and management, salaried workers. Earlier, as I came in and I saw in the signatures, informal sector representatives of the business sector. Indeed, in our country, there are many informal workers or family workers or self-made entrepreneurs, and we have to serve them as well. Almost 2.5 million new micro entrepreneurs have been served by the escalation of microfinancing, and 93 percent of them are women borrowers.

And I want to take this opportunity to congratulate ECOP for your big enterprise-small enterprise program. It's a worthy break for guiding your small brothers and sisters in business, and for institutionalizing good business practices through partnerships, which are the basis for the yearly Kapatid awards and now the Lakan sa Kalakaan award of Don Emilio, the very first awardee of Lakan sa Kalakalan.

We want to partner with you on our pro-poor programs: the Tindahan Natin, which specializes in selling low-cost rice and noodles; the Botika ng Barangay, which specializes in selling half-priced medicines; the price reductions in LPG; the price reductions in water rates — again, thanks to Manila water — the price reductions now in electric power rates, to name a few. We have been accelerating these with the private sector, with our workers and the ordinary Filipino in mind.

And I'm very happy to say that many of our partners are here in this ECOP conference today. Indeed, ECOP has led industry well in this task. And I am sure ECOP will continue to lead the country to new horizons of competitiveness, partnerships and reforms.

I believe nothing is impossible with ECOP by the side of this government.

Thank you ECOP for being a true partner for growth.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 28th National Conference of Employers 2007. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151047/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1963&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 28th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA) 'Sansinirangan' Class 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 28th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA)
'Sansinirangan' Class 2007

[Delivered at the Camp Gen. Mariano Castañeda Parade Grounds, Silang, Cavite, March 22, 2007]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Secretary Ronnie Puno.

Vice President de Castro; I would also like to acknowledge the presence and greet Congressman Boying Remulla; Dr. Cojuangco; Senior Superintendent Tira; may I also congratulate, now Inspector Basiya, for your very, very impressive and substantive valedictory address; PNP Chief Calderon; Fire Director Collado; Jail Director Cruz; other government officials; staff; uniformed and non-uniformed officers; personnel; corps of cadet; mga magulang na talagang pwede ninyo ipagmalaki ang inyong mga graduating sons and daughters today; other guests:

Binabati ko ang Sansinirangan Class 2007 sa inyong pagtatapos.

Nung una binasa ko yung pangalan ng inyong class, Sansinirangan, sabi ko sasabihin ko na lang congratulations class 2007. Kasi baka mabulol ang aking pagsasalita. kaya lang nung nalaman ko nga, lalo na binanggit din ni Senior Superintendent Tira ang ibig sabihin ng inyong pangalan, napaka mabuluhan. Sansinirangan, pinaghalong salitang waray-waray nang pinagdugtong ng san, kasi yung san gaya ng sambayanan, sanduguan, ang ibig sabihin pagkakaisa o unity. Ang sinirangan naman ibig sabihin sa waray-waray bagong panimula, kaya new beginning. United for new beginning. Kaya napaka-importante ang pangalan ng inyong klase, 'Sansinirangan' Class 2007.

Ibig sabihin ang inyong grupo ay nagkakaisa, yun na yung san, na pasimulan, yung sinirangan, ang inyong pagbabago sa pagbibigay seguridad sa ating mga mamamayan. Unity for a new beginning, that is what I understand is meant by sansinirangan.

And this is the mandate addressed to you and to the rest of the Filipino people as we cross the high curve of economic growth and look forward to the triumph of democracy especially in the elections this coming may.

Bakit ko pinag-uusapan ang eleksiyon itong Mayo? Hindi dahil kayo ay dapat mamulitika kung hindi dahil meron kayong importanteng papel sa kapayapaan ng ating halalan. I don't wish nor expect violence to increase as we move closer to the elections, but you and I and Secretary Puno and General Calderon must take a number of actions — and we are taking a number of actions — through increased police presence. To protect candidates, to protect the public, to protect the right to the ballot box. The political process is just as important as the political outcome. We will have fair elections. But to you today I would like to say our efforts are also equally directed at ensuring that the elections are also free from violence. Yan ang inyong magiging unang mga assignment bilang bagong inspector.

As you enter a new phase in your career as law enforcers, whether it is police, jail management or fire protection, so is our nation entering a durable future of growth and prosperity, solidarity and reform, peace and hope. The Philippine peso continues to register record highs against the dollar. Well, this may be due to a number of factors, the biggest single act that we believe is mainly responsible for the good performance of the Philippine economy was the passage of our value-added tax, which in one bold stroke raised serious revenue to send an unmistakable signal that we are serious about moving the nation forward.

That isn't all though. Our complete focus on the economy, fiscal discipline, a balanced budget and the need for long overdue human and physical infrastructure improvements have round out the economic surge. And I am glad that your valedictorian, Inspector Basiya, among the many impressive things he said to show how he's internalized our mission and vision very aptly connected public safety to the success of our economy.

(by the way, naka at ease na ba sila? Hindi pa sila at ease? Mukhang hindi pa kayo naka at ease. At ease.)

And our focus on the economy is paying off in a strong peso, low inflation, a robust stock market, rapid inflows of foreign investment, and over five million new jobs in the last six years. Our unemployment is the lowest in a long time and our poverty rate is the lowest as well. The surge of investment is coming from all points of the compass. It doubled in the first two months of 2007 at a time when doomsayers were expressing a lag due to the forthcoming elections. The trend is now clear that investors are putting their stake in our vision for the future. This is most of all a tribute to Filipinos here and abroad who have kept faith in the great potentials of our nation, a faith that has spread far and wide across the Asia-Pacific. At the same time this government and all the institutions including the police, the fire department, the jail management bureau are closing ranks to clean up the mess of the past and forge ahead with integrity, excellence and productivity.

The political noise has largely been bypassed by the investment community. We have crossed the sound barrier. We have entered the frontier of peace, development, security and prosperity. The growing efficiency, competence and professionalism of the men and women in the Philippine National Police, the Jail Management, the Fire Bureau ride beside our overall gains in the economy and the political stability.

I would like the PNPA, the Police, the Fire Department, the Jail Management, and indeed all our national public servants to share in the social payback of our economic reforms. That is why for the benefit of our cadets in the Philippine National Academy, I'm instructing Secretary Puno to allocate five million pesos for new barracks for our PNP cadets.

And for our new policemen, new fire inspectors, new jail inspectors, as well as the rest of the police fire fighting and jail management force that you are joining, I am asking Vice President Noli De Castro, as chairman of HUDCC, and Secretary Puno to work together so that they can prepare a proclamation whereby with regard to the property right behind this campus, 50 hectares all in all, we will be proclaiming that property for off-base and on-base housing for police, firemen and jail managers and personnel.

And for you and for the rest of our national public servants, I have just signed an executive order, soon to be made publish adding yet another compensation increase for all national government employees.

Lifted by a sturdy fiscal house, a solid program of good governance, a robust payback to the poor as well as the ordinary Filipinos — one million of which are national government employees. Now including you, our young graduates — and mounting gains on the security front where you, our young graduates will also participate, we have arrived at the gates of permanent political stability under the rule of law and criminal justice.

For every criminal brought to the bar of justice, for every case resolved under due process, the good credit goes to the police officer on the beat and on patrol. And so for the sake of our economy, for the sake of our future, as Inspector Basiya has said is your role, be guardians of our streets and homes. Keep the people from harm's way. That will be your great contribution and investment in the future of our country.

Maraming salamat.

Congratulations sa inyong lahat mga graduating students!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 28th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA) 'Sansinirangan' Class 2007. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151024/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1959&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremony of the 7th Annual Publish Asia 2007 Conference

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremony of the 7th Annual Publish Asia 2007 Conference

[Delivered at the Polkabal Ballroom, Manila Hotel, Manila City, March 27, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Bunye

Mr. Mittelbach; Mr. Pichay; Don Emilio; the newspaper and magazine executives; movers and shakers of the publishing industry; participants in this Publish Asia; ladies and gentlemen:

Good morning and welcome to the Philippines!

I'm very happy to have the chance to open this conference and welcome you to the Philippines. But your conference is so important, you're going to see me twice today, here in the welcome ceremonies and also at dinner tonight. And this is our way of saying that we thank you for your role in broadening our regional frontiers in trade, security and political consolidation.

And we also commend the major Philippine newspapers: Manila Bulletin, Philippine Star, Inquirer and Manila Times that comprise the Philippine team hosting this event. Congratulations to all of you!

Why is Publish Asia so important that the head of the country would be with you twice in one day? It is our message, it is our way of saying that we Filipinos believe in the freedom of the press. We embrace the central role of the media in a free society. And we believe that responsible media bridges the gap between the public and the government.

Not that we always agree with members of the media. Many times we don't agree with the members of the media and what they report. But that is just part of the give and take of politics, and that is just part of our job.

Let me take this opportunity to say that I am optimistic about the future of the Philippines and the well-being of the Filipino people. Our national agenda is designed to move the nation forward toward greater political stability, economic prosperity and peace and order. The national agenda is focused on creating good paying jobs, stable prices and bringing the benefits of a strong economy to every single Filipino.

Our government has made the tough but necessary decisions to strengthen our economy. These painful steps are paying off: we now have the money to invest in job creation, new roads, bridges and ports, and more for education and health care.

For the first time in a long time, the government is doing what average households do: working to balance the budget and not keep going into debt.

We are concerned with real, everyday challenges that confront the people— alleviating hunger, creating jobs, and checking prices of essential items.

This conference of yours shows how you consider it important to have strong international and regional alliances, so also with governments. Through strong international alliances, we have forged new partnerships that have led to billions in investments that helped create five million new jobs. And we have strengthened our military and security alliances in the region and the world. This has led to major gains for peace in Mindanao, the isolation and tracking down of known terrorists, and a reduction in violent crime.

Speaking of crime, let me take this opportunity to once again deplore extra-judicial killings whether they be from left or right, especially against journalists. We have a sorry history in our nation of political violence. We aim to break this cycle of violence once and for all.

We welcome the fielding of a team from the European union, as in the headline of the manila times today, to help our law enforcers get to the roots of these crimes. We are prepared to work with legitimate institutions and well-meaning allies in the international community on this issue. We welcome the U.S. government to help the Philippines in a fight versus wrong and the quest for impartial justice. And it must be said that the communist party and their armed insurgents must also put down their arms and cease their mindless murders.

The Philippines is the most democratic country in the region. I have no tolerance for human rights violations. But let me make several points very clear. I have personally advanced the process of peace in Mindanao to a new level of engagement — focused on interfaith dialogue, economic development and mutual security. We have done so with the largest possible international involvement. Peace there is very much an issue of human rights, just as alleviating poverty is, which is our number one agenda.

Indeed, there is much to do if our nation is to work toward a more modern, just and prosperous nation. And the press has its share of the task.

You come from different countries in Asia, with different kinds of political systems, different levels of development, different social organizations, different histories, but in all the countries in which you do your business, the press has the power to change the nation through information and persuasion.

A free, dynamic and responsible press can set the people moving towards the right direction of national renewal and reform.

And even as we dish out the raw and hard truth, in different degrees, in the different countries, depending on the norms in a particular country, all of us, all of you, would serve your country well by having good news that unite and inspire.

It is in this spirit that we, the Filipino people, welcome all the participants to this great and important conference.

Mabuhay!

Welcome to the Philippines!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Opening Ceremony of the 7th Annual Publish Asia 2007 Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151008/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1958&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 26th Biennial Convention of the Federation of the Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce and Industry

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 26th Biennial Convention of the Federation of the Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce and Industry

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, Manila City, March 30, 2007]

Well, let me begin by thanking you, thanking you Francis, thanking you the Federation for all the support. And I'd like to thank Francis' personal support and as president of the federation extended to me as president and to our people.

Well, we had a very good audio/visual presentation of that support. You were there for us when things seemed uneasy for business and politics. And like many leaders of the federation, you brought hope and optimism when others were inclined to paint a canvas of gray skies.

We saw the many audio/visual presentations of the many projects the federation was involved in. I think more than a hundred undertakings, initiatives, programs and projects ranging from promoting trade, investments and tourism, and improving fiscal discipline to the forging of new partnerships and alliances with Filipinos and Chinese business groups. And I thank you for being optimistic about... Thank you for being optimistic about the future of the nation and the well-being of the people.

Before I came to Manila Hotel this morning, I passed by my monitor of the stock exchange and I was very happy to see that as of that time the stock market had gone up over 50 points. And that reflects also the sharp increase of the country's ranking in Grant Thornton's international business report. That report is a firm indication that growing political and economic security is driving investments up in an unprecedented scale. We have found our niche in the world through the faith and excellence of Filipinos all over.

Planning, productivity and good governance have combined to place the Philippines among the top ten destinations for booming economies growing at a faster rate than average, measured against turnover and employment. Business process outsourcing, high-tech initiatives and tourism potentials lead the road forward. We're in the right place, we're in the right time to receive supersonic investments for a supersonic journey to the ranks of the first world by the next generation.

I have no doubt that the Filipino will prevail against all odds and against the politics of tearing down and destruction. That the Filipino will prevail building on the foundations of a new economy keyed to the needs of the world and to the skills of the people as we shape a secure democratic future for peace, unity and prosperity.

As many of you know, because you have been sharing with me, you have been doing policy together with me, you have been helping me form the national agenda, the national agenda is focused on creating good paying jobs, stable prices and bringing the benefits of a strong economy to every Filipino.

And I thank you for sharing with me the vision for the day when all Filipinos can choose to live and work here in the Philippines, close to family and friends, owning a home with a high quality of life.

I thank you for joining me in seeing the day when going abroad for a job is a career choice, not the only option for work.

And I'd like to think that for the first time in a long time, the government is doing what mini-medium scale Filipino-Chinese businessmen do: you balance the budget, you avoid going into debt.

And through strong international alliances, we have forged new partnerships that have led to billions in investments that helped create five million new jobs.

And through all these, Francis and the Federation, was there with me. In our trips – how many trips did you say? Twenty-three trips? – I remember very clearly Busan, South Korea, Saudi Arabia, China where we forged millions of dollars worth of agreements and credit arrangements. And we have strengthened our military and security alliances in the region and the world. The Filipino-Chinese community, which you the federation represent, has been instrumental in the realization of these unprecedented and historic gains, you had been instrumental in these gains that have strengthened our fight against poverty, ignorance, disease and injustice; in our fight for freedom, peace and prosperity.

You have poured in civic conscience in times of crisis and need. I saw in the presentation reminders of your support for the value-added taxation when you as businessmen knew that you would have to make sacrifices.

It indeed shows that you realize that there is much to do if the nation is to work towards a more just, modern and prosperous nation. We must not only hold on tightly to our gains, but push them forward with the tools of national unity and solidarity as mandated by your theme: "Shared Responsibility to Sustain the Growth Momentum." Shared responsibility — responsibility of the government, responsibility of the business community especially the most dynamic part of the business community, the Filipino-Chinese business community.

I seek your help for clean and peaceful elections in May.

We're hopeful that with your support the May elections will be about the future, not the past; about new ideas, not old complaints. And it should be about fighting or a stronger nation, and not just fighting. Business and national prosperity live and thrive on bridges of unity and teamwork – that's what shared responsibility is all about. Business does not thrive on tearing down or rending our cherished institutions.

With your continued support, I can focused on the national agenda that includes more jobs, stable prices and peace and order. And because you are there, I can leave the politicking to the candidates.

With your continued support, we will work to expand education and health care. Thank you for continuing to build school buildings. With your support, we are taking action to develop a green Philippines agenda to improve our environment and beautify our communities. Thank you Francis and the other leaders of the federation for being part of the green Philippines army.

All of these examples of carrying out shared responsibility to sustain the growth momentum show that you and I share the belief in the Philippines and its hardworking people.

Let's continue to share responsibility. Let's continue to work hard together to make economic prosperity, social justice and peace and security a reality for a new, modernizing Philippines.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Message of President Arroyo during the Lenten Season [Filipino] Mensahe
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa panahon ng Kuwaresma

[Ipinahayag sa Heroes Hall, Malacañang, ika 2 ng Abril, 2007]

Wala nang mas hihigit pa kaysa pag-alay ng Panginoon ng kanyang sariling buhay matubos lamang tayo sa kasalanan.

Tayo man ay dapat ding maghandog ng sarili nating sakripisyo para sa kabutihan ng ating sambayanan at bansa, at laging magsikap na maging mapagbigay sa paglilingkod sa mga mamamayan.

Tulad ni Kristo, dapat nating pasanin ang ating krus upang maligtas ang ating bayan mula sa kahirapan at alitan.

Alisin ang galit sa ating mga puso upang wakasan na ang di-pagkakasundo at hidwaan; maliwanagan ang isipan upang matanto ang katotohanan mula sa mga bulaang pangako.

Gamitin ang ating pananalig upang palakasin ang ating pagkakaisa at pagmamahal sa kapwa.

Idalangin natin ang kagalingan ng lahat ng Pilipino, purihin ang kadakilaan ng kanyang pasakit at humingi ng kapatawaran mula sa ating mga kahinaan at kasalanan.

Ang pagkamatay ni Hesus ay nagbadya ng isang bagong buhay sa sanlibutan. Sundan natin ang kanyang mga bakas upang makita ang sinag ng isang magandang bukas sa isang bansa na tigib ng sampalataya, pagkakaisa at tibay ng loob.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Lenten Message. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150943/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2004&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Lakas-CMD National Convention, April 2, 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Lakas-CMD National Convention

[Delivered at the Tanghalang Francisco Balagtas, Folk Arts Theater CCP Complex, Roxas Blvd., Pasay City, April 2, 2007]

Maraming salamat. Maraming salamat.

Thank you. Thank you. Thank you.

Maraming salamat, Speaker De Venecia, pangulo ng ating partido.

Maraming salamat, Chairman Emeritus, Dating Pangulong Ramos sa iyong mga inspiring words.

Binabati ko rin ang iba't-ibang mga star-studded officials ng ating lapian: narito ang ating DVP, si Mayor Sonny Belmonte; narito ang ating Secretary General, si Nonoy Libanan; narito ang iba't-ibang kasapi sa partido na nanggagaling sa ating lapian: nandiyan si Ed Ermita, si Gabby Claudio, si Sonny Alvarez, si Raul Gonzalez; nariyan ang ating Majority Leader Boy Nograles at lahat ng ating mga congressmen; nariyan ang ating senador at susunod na punong-lungsod ng Makati, si Lito Lapid; nariyan si Rico Aumentado at lahat ng mga ating mga gobernador at provincial candidates; nariyan si Jerry Treñas at lahat ng ating mga city mayors at city candidates; nandiyan si Monching Guico at lahat ng ating mga municipal mayors and municipal candidates; at nariyan kayong lahat ang ating mga kasangga at pinagtitiyagan ng kalakasan ng Lakas-CMD, magandang tanghali at maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Malakas ang pag-asa ng lakas para sa kinabukasan ng bansa at kapakanan ng taumbayan. Ang ating mga senatorial candidates hindi ko pa binati. Mamaya pag-uusapan natin sila isang-isa. Pero sa ngayon pag-uusapan natin ang plataporma. Binalangkas ang plataporma ng lakas upang isulong ang bansa tungo sa higit pang katatagan sa pulitika, kasaganaan sa ekonomiya, kapayapaan at katiwasayan.

Nakatutok ang ating plataporma sa paglikha ng mga magandang trabaho at kita, matatag na presyo, paghatid ng mga biyaya ng malakas na ekonomiya sa bawat isang Pilipino. Ito ay platapormang maka-maralita, maka-kaunlaran, maka-modernisasyon. At sabi nga ni Pangulong Ramos, “ang prinsipyo ng Lakas-CMD ay subsidiarity.” Kaya dito sa ating plataporma, we have moved the nation forward on the strength of our phalanx of our local stalwarts like Vic Magsaysay and Chavit Singson.

Tiwala tayo sa mga opisyal sa ating partido at ng ating koalisyon na tinawag ‘Team Unity,’ na sama-sama tayong magtatrabaho upang mapagpatuloy sa landas ng reporma, social justice at pag-unlad ng ekonomiya. Kayo ang bumubuo ng sentro ng demokrasyang Pilipino, ang demokrasyang Pilipino na laging ipinaglalaban ni joker arroyo. Kayo ang mga nasa frontline ng pagbabago.

Lakas partymates, congratulations! For coming out as the most trusted political party in the country. Congratulations! For being the party perceived to be the most capable of addressing the nation’s concerns, whether the economy or security. We must internalize this distinction and embrace it as a solemn responsibility to pursue the fight for the rightful economic and social deliverance of our countrymen. This challenge is most timely and urgent because at no other time than now in the last decade do we have real opportunity for an economic takeoff.

The grand agenda of the administration — fighting poverty and terror and building peace is the foundation of political victory in the elections. Today, the administration coalition has the most comprehensive, doable and ongoing platform of nation-building that has brought six years of continuous growth to the Philippines on top of a strong campaign for law and order, democracy and human rights. Your numbers, the numbers of Lakas push the momentum of victory for the administration at all levels mula sa senador, sa pangulo, sa senador sa congress, sa probinsya, lungsod, bayan. The campaign has still a long way to go but the air of victory rides on the tide of the optimism of the people.

Lakas is the dominant majority party, and therefore, we have the extraordinary capacity to help forge unity, stability and a united front in support of our country's progress. In achieving victory and advancing of our country's goals and visions, let us be in synergy rather than in combat with the five other parties within the 'team unity' coalition, as well as with the essential sectors of the national community.

The victory of our unity team coalition in your respective districts and localities is as crucial as your own individual victory to our nation's stability and the ability to secure the present momentum of growth and progress. And so I ask you, Lakas partymate, let each vote you gather for yourself be a vote for every senatorial candidate of team unity.

Ibig nating mawakas ang gridlock. Ibig nating magpatuloy sa landas ng paglikha ng trabaho, kapital at kapayapaan at seguridad. Gusto nating magtrabaho kasama ng lahat ng mga lapian sa ating koalisyon at kahit na sa labas kung may papasok pa upang ipasulong ang bansa at hindi ipaurong.

We have worked tirelessly to build a modern nation that will one day take its rightful place beside first-world countries.

We hope for the day when enough good jobs are created in the Philippines so that hardworking Filipinos don't have to go abroad for work. We see a day when going abroad for a job is a career choice, not the only option for work.

You and I, our administration have made the tough but necessary decisions to strengthen our economy. These painful steps are paying off. Now, we have the money — thanks to Ralph Recto — to invest in job creation, new roads, bridges and ports; and thanks also to Ed Angara, more on education and healthcare.

Through strong international alliances, we have forged new partnerships that have helped to create five million new jobs. And we have strengthened our military and security alliances in the region and the world. This has led to major gains for peace in Mindanao, from the Caraga of Butch Pichay to the Sulu of Sultan Kiram, this has led to the isolation and tracking down of known terrorists and a reduction in violent crime.

For the first time in a long time, the government is doing what average Filipino families do, yung mga Filipino families na kinakampiyon ni Tito Sotto, kaya tawag natin tito sa senado. Like the average Filipino families, the government is working to balance the budget and reduce our debt. And rather than borrowing to leave our nation in debt as has happened in the past, our administration is investing in the nation and particularly our young people. Ibig sabihin, ang ating ginagawa — MAS PARA SA KIDZ MO. Bakit ko sinabi yung "MAS PARA SA KIDZ MO." Paalala ang ating hangarin, paalala rin ang mga pangalan ng ating kandidato.

"MAS PARA SA KIDZ MO" — MAS, M-A-S: M-A for Magsaysay, S for Singson. Kaya yung mas yung dalawang gobernador. PARA, P-A-R-A: P for Pichay, A for Angara, R for Recto, A for Arroyo, sila ay mga mambabatas. Mas para SA, S-A: S is for Sotto, A is for Aquino-Oreta, yung dalawang dating senador. Mas para sa KIDZ, K-I-D-Z: K-I, Kiram; D, Defensor; Z, Zubiri. Yung...so yung si Mike Defensor at Migz Zubiri ay yung mga kabataan, si Kiram naman ay elder statesman ng Sulu. At mas para sa KIDZ MO, MO for Montano, a class of his own.

There is much to do if the nation is to work towards a more just, modern and prosperous nation.

We will work to expand education, as Tessie Aquino-Oreta has been doing and will continue to do. We will work to expand healthcare, as Cesar Montano has pledged to do ever since he came across the poisoned children in Bohol. We will take action to develop a green Philippine agenda to improve our environment, as Migz Zubiri has legislated, and through green Philippines we will beautify and put order in our communities, as Mike Defensor has implemented. And we will do all these by working with you, our local party stalwarts, to see that the benefits of the new economy are spread to every corner of the Philippines and not just Metro Manila.

Much of the stability and harmony. Thank you, thank you. Much of the stability and harmony that we wish to have in society will also depend on how politicians undertake the campaign and endeavor to attain victory with honor and dignity. Let us keep these elections peaceful and credible.

And let us join the call of the church for all candidates to spare the Lenten days of Holy Thursday and Good Friday from political noise. Let us all respect the solemnity of the height of the Lenten season and use it as a time for moral rearmament, healing and solidarity.

Pinagsisikapan nating masiguro ang katatagan ng pulitika at ekonomiya upang mabigyan ng pag-asa at inspirasyon ang milyun-milyong masisipag na Pilipino na karapat-dapat magtamo ng mas magandang kalidad ng buhay. Ang tagumpay nitong layunin ay tagumpay ng lakas.

Ang ating koalisyon ay ‘Team Unity’ — suportahan ang pangkat ng pagkakaisa.

Ang ating partido ay Lakas — palakasin pa natin ang ating samahan upang makamit ang ating pambansang mithiin. Gaya nang sinabi ni President Ramos, “kaya natin ito!” ‘di ba?

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat.

Mabuhay ang Lakas!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA’s Speech during the Lakas-CMD National Convention. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150933/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2005&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Message of President Arroyo during Easter [Filipino]

Mensahe
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa Pasko ng Pagkabuhay

[Ipinahayag sa Malacañang Palace Grounds, Malacañang, ika 8 ng Abril, 2007]

Ang muling pagkabuhay ni Kristo ay matibay na patunay ng ginhawa pagkatapos ng paghihirap, at panibagong lakas pagkatubos sa kasalanan.

Ganyan din ang ating pambansang hangarin, ang maibalik sa tao ang mga biyaya ng isang lumalagong ekonomiya, mas higit na kaligtasan, kapayapaan at pagkalinga.

Nawa’y bigyang-sigla ng Linggo ng pagkabuhay ang pamilyang Pilipino upang magsama na puno ng pagsamba at tibay ng loob, nagsisikap makamit ang pangarap ng magandang bukas, sumasabay sa agos ng pag-asa at paniniwalang magiging mabuti ang lahat, nagtataguyod ng makabuluhang pagbabago sa ating pamumuhay.

Nawa’y itaas ng saya ng pasko ng pagkabuhay ang ating diwa upang ipagbunyi ang kahusayan ng pilipino sa lahat ng sulok ng mundo.

At nawa’y patnubayan tayo ng Poong Maykapal sa maluwalhati nating paglalakbay tungo sa isang makabago at maunlad na Pilipinas.

Mabuhay tayong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo’s Easter Message. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150917/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2003&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Araw ng Kagitingan

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Araw ng Kagitingan

[Read by Executive Secretary Eduardo R. Ermita at the Dambana ng Kagitingan, Mt. Samat, Pilar Bataan, April 9, 2007]

Her Excellency Christy Kenney of the United States of America, His Excellency Ambassador Uichiro Yamasaki of Japan, Excellencies of the Diplomatic Corps, the Honorable Governor Enrique Garcia, Congressman Carlos Garcia, ang Kagalang-galang na Arch-Obispo Socrates, the officials of the Veterans Federation of the Philippines, local officials, the Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces, General Hermogenes Esperon and the Commanders of the Major Services, General Romeo Tolentino of the Philippine Army, Admiral Calusag of the Navy and the General Horacio Tolentino of the Philippine Air Force and the officials of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, the officials of the Philippine National Police, ang mga kasapi ng Couples for Christ, mga mahal nating mga Beterano at ang kanilang mga mahal na pamilya, members of media, our foreign guests, other special guests, friends, Ladies and Gentlemen.

Ako po ay tumatayong kinatawan ng ating Mahal na Pangulong Gloria Macapagal Arroyo na nagpapahatid ng kanyang pagbati sa inyong lahat na mga Beterano at mga pamilya ng mga Beterano. Ikinalulungkot po ni Pangulong Arroyo na siya ay hindi makakarating ngayong araw na ito dahil sa hindi inaasahang pangyayari kaya ako ay naatasan ni Pangulong Arroyo na basahin ang kanyang mensahe sa inyo ngayong umaga.

With great awe and reverence, we are gathered here today to honor the Filipino soldiers who give life and treasure that we may all leave in peace and freedom. This is just after we have commemorated the death and resurrection of the greatest martyr of all time, Jesus Christ in days of prayer and sacrifice. We pay homage to the fighters of Bataan, Corrigidor and the other battlegrounds of the Philippines in the second world war and their compatriots in other campaigns, Korea, Vietnam, in an unbroken tradition of valor that stretches to today's war on terror and insurgency. Today, we are proud to be gathered with allies in the field of peace and development, in the fight against terror and poverty, in the liberation of peoples not only from tyranny but from ignorance, disease and injustice. The three nations that were the combatants of yesteryears, the Philippines, the United States and Japan are today's partner standing shoulder to shoulders in the field of common dreams and aspirations in a region fraught with challenges and opportunities.

And for the Veterans, who are still with us today, here in front of us, I shall continue to serve you and your love ones with full understanding and a deep sympathy for your needs.

For years 2006 and 2007, the National Government has released a total of P19.57 Billion for regular pension and P1.6 Billion for pension arrears for the remaining months of this year, the Department of Budget and Management will release P9 Billion for regular pension.

I am instructing the Secretary of Budget to release another P1.8 Billion for pension arrears by 2008, next year we will be up to date in our pension's payments.

In United States, the Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs is scheduled to conduct a hearing on Veterans issues and depending Veterans Equity Bill on April 11, a few days from now. This is the closest the United States Legislature has come towards the possible passage of the Equity Bill for the Veterans, given their contributions to preserving the democracy and given that our historic and strategic cooperation continues in fighting challenges to the values and ideals that we all share and hold dear. We hope that all the US officials will support all these efforts to past legislation that would allow our Filipino Veterans to obtain the benefits they have long sought for and truly deserve. And we pray, that the future of this region will continue to be defined by the same ideals that we fought for the end of war and conflict. The dawn of liberty and the ascendancy of free and fair trade across borders. For our region, this means that holding on to the fights against terror and poverty, building alliances for vigilance and developments preserving the environment and protecting human rights. Our national agenda, is focused on creating good paying jobs, stable prices, bringing the benefits of a strong economy to every single Filipino. It is a pro-poor pro-growth and pro-modernization agenda.

We have worked tirelessly to build a modern nation that will one day take his rightful place besides first world economies. We see a day, when going abroad for a job is a career choice, not the only option for work.

Our government has made the tough but necessary decision strengthen our economy, this painful steps are paying off, now we have the money to invest in job creation, new roads, bridges and ports and more for education and health care and veterans pension and with the helps of our friends in the United States Congress and the US Government, we have a vision for the day when all Filipino Veterans can choose to live in the Philippines, close to family and friends, enjoying the veterans benefits that will give them a high quality of life.

Mabuhay ang ating mga Beterano!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Araw ng Kagitingan. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150903/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2002&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 2nd National Convention of the Account Officers of the Social Security System (SSS)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 2nd National Convention of the Account Officers of the Social Security System (SSS)

[Delivered at the Quezon Ballroom, Great Easter Hotel, Quezon City, April 18, 2007]

Thank you. Thank you.

Thank you very much, Chairman Cunanan. And I'd like to especially thank you because when last September I asked you to propose and work for the ten percent increase in benefits for the SSS members, right after that the SSS board approved it. Thank you very much for that.

Thank you also and congratulations! To Cora Dela Paz. Because under your very, very disciplined financial reforms in the SSS and making sure that investments of SSS are all sound, objective, rational, no behest investments, the actuarial life of SSS has improved from 2015 to 2038. Congratulations!

Vice Mayor Herbert Bautista, maraming salamat for welcoming us here in behalf of the big city of Quezon City which is one-half of Metro Manila and I'm sure many SSS members are residents of your city.

Gusto kong batiin ang ating mga commissioners, members of the board, yung kayong lahat mga account officers ng Social Security System. Congratulations! On your second national convention and congratulations! On the 50th anniversary of SSS.

Kanina tinatanong ko kay Cora yung specific job functions ng account officers. Of course, we are all aware of what account officers do. There are account officers in banks. There are account officers in insurance companies, real estate companies, sales companies, and I wanted to see how the general function of an account officer is translated into what SSS account officers do. And from her description and her answers to my probing questions about what you do, I can gather that this is a gathering of the best and brightest in the SSS. You are the committed and dedicated foot soldiers of the institution. You spearhead collections. You spearhead good governance. Thank you for your sterling services to the people.

Bakit sabi nating good collection and good governance. Kasi dahil sa pag-collect n'yo ng magaling even if we don't have to increase contributions by 10 percent we can have increase contribution... Increase benefits by 10 percent dahil sa magandang koleksyon ninyo gumaganda ang fiscal position ng SSS. And therefore that translates into good governance.

Pag kailangan ng konting increase ng kontribusyon during our administration dahil gusto pa natin mag-recover ang ating working class sa mga nakaraang kahirapan ang nagsasagot sa employees contribution ay yung ating mga employer. Kaya maraming salamat sa ating Employers Confederation of the Philippines, the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry. Sila ay may kinatawan sa Board of Commissioners ng SSS and these patriotic organizations spearheaded the move of the employers to shoulder whatever increase in contribution rates occurred in 2003 and this year. Thank you too to the employers.

Kung titignan natin kung ano na ang nangyari sa SSS in the past six years — and now that I have a chance to speak with you — I can't help but remember baseline situation in 2001, Sus! SSS was faced by the threat of collapse by 2015. Steep challenges that took a heavy toll on its actuarial standing. Yun na nga hindi n'yo kasalanan, nagko-collect kayo ng magaling, ang problema yung collections napupunta sa mga investments na hindi karapat-dapat.

But Cora changed that. We embarked on a radical reform program and after six years your institution is more than back to its feet. It is stronger and more resilient than ever. What a great gift for the 50th anniversary of SSS.

And if we look at the world around us, your accomplishments are even more deserving of praise in the face of emergent global crisis in social security programs that are in dire straits in other countries, while ours, yours, and our peoples is sailing steady on an even keel.

The reform of the SSS that started greatly with Cora's administration and added on in a couple of years by the policy leadership of Thelmo Cunanan and our board, these were part of the hard-fought economic reform battles through which the Philippines has finally broken loose from its historic legacy of lethargy. Everybody talks about the tax reforms. It's time that everybody knows also about the SSS reforms. When we talk about new revenues, we include increases in contributions for SSS. But not only from those small increases in contribution rates that the employers have agreed to shoulder in behalf of the workers, but your better collection and overall in our country a crackdown on tax cheats, but in your case also a crackdown on those who are cheating on their remittances. And these together with the fiscal discipline, fiscal discipline in our national budget where the money goes to where it should be in a very directed focus, but also fiscal discipline on the part of SSS making sure that the investments of SSS are sound and rational. All these have put the Philippines on a path to permanent, sustainable economic growth and stability. Yun naman ang kaibahan ng kaunlaran sa ilalim ng ating administrasyon. Six years, 24 quarters of uninterrupted growth. Nung araw kasi boom and bust. Yung boom and bust every three years akyat-baba. Ngayon tayo akyat-akyat-akyat. At ang laki ng papel ng SSS, ang reforms at yung inyong mga collection. And the world is taking notice. The Philippines offers one of the best values in Asia for investors.

There has been a significant increase in investments, exports. Sa kabila na ang lakas ng piso natin tuloy pa rin tumataas ang ating exports and job creation. Our unemployment rate has gone down. And so I ask you, let's continue to work to ensure that this positive momentum will be sustained. As part of that effort, we are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos for education, health care and training — at marami dito ay tinutulungan yung mga beneficiaries ng SSS — along with additional billions of pesos for new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines.

I really take great pride in the discipline of the stalwarts and the soldiers, including yourselves, of our administration. We are very disciplined in our focus on the economy and our overall economic health. And I'm proud of the fact that because of the improving finances of our national government and our financial institutions like SSS, external debt is declining at a rapid clip. We have repaid... Prepaid so many of our loans. We're committed to making sure we use the new resources these developments are generating to invest in vital social and economic needs. At kayo ang dami niyong ginagawa para doon. It's been a tough road — I'm sure Cora had a hard time turning around the finances of SSS and lengthening its actuarial life from 2015 to 2038 — but together, all of us, I and the members of our administration long ago made a decision not to sacrifice long-term gains for short-term political expediency.

Yung nalalabi pang mga kahirapan eh kasama yun — nagka-opera nga ang aking asawa — kasama na yun sa pag malubha ang sakit ng isang katawan pag kailangan operahan siyempre magkakaran ng sakit. Halimbawa ngayon nilalagat pa siya, bahagi yun sa post-operative complications. Nguni't sa katagalan ang mangyayari ay sustained recovery. And that is what has been done with SSS, that is what has been done with the national government.

As a result of the SSS reform program, we're really very happy and we must be proud that the actuarial life has been extended from 2015 to 2038. Malaking bagay yung inyong collections at I hope, inaasahan ko, na yung condonation program na dineklara natin nung May 1 nung isang taon ay nakatulong. I hope it enabled you to collect even more. In fact you've collected 1.7 billion pesos in delinquent accounts. Congratulations! To you for that. And because you were able to collect all of these together with our incentive that they would have some condonation or penalties, you have brought back, I understand, 200,000 SSS members to good standing. That is congratulations! To our account officers. And because of that the SSS last year, last September, was able to grant a 10 percent increase in pensions benefiting more than one million members.

Ngayon 50th anniversary ninyo. Kaya ang aking instructions muli, ang aking request sa ating board, ay maybe let's gift the Filipino people with another 10 percent increase in benefits this year. This is social payback. Gaya nang sabi ni cora kanina, you the SSS are a fulcrum for social justice.

You are also the medium of industrial peace. Narito ang ating kinatawan ng mga manggagawa. SSS is a part of a mechanism that mitigates the financial burden of workers — basta in good standing, nakakahiram, SSS salary loans — encourages the overall productivity in the workplace and forges harmony in the economy.

But even as we celebrate our 50 years and the six years of hard-fought reforms within the institution that are now paying off for our people, we still realize that new social security schemes are imperative as we modernize our economy.

As we enter the 20th century, as SSS enters its second 50 years and so I ask SSS, the account officers, the different market developers to focus on the coverage for instance of our OFWs. Kaya sabi sa akin kanina ni Chairman Thelmo Cunanan, we are now going to focus on our overseas Filipinos in America as a trial or a pilot so that we can increase the coverage of SSS. Isa pa yung mga self-employed workers. Yun din kasi hindi naman automatic. Hindi kagaya ng korporasyon na ilalim sa batas kailangan kasama sa SSS. Self-employed workers are a very, very big source also for coverage. And we were discussing that with Cora while we were here, that's one way by which you can increase the market when you go to the community, when you talk to people, when you do your collections you can also identify new SMEs or even micro-enterprises that may want to cover themselves with SSS, self-employed workers and those who belong to the underground economy. Parang talagang insurance salesman naghahanap ng mga bagong kliyente.

And SSS also must broaden its involvement in programs that have a direct impact on the lives and welfare of the poor, such as housing kasi yung housing loans napakalaking bagay yun para sa ating SSS members. And we are doing our best in order to finance the construction of housing, so that the SSS members can also finance their own amortizations and interest payments. Kaya yun naman isang tulong para sa housing sector ay... Yung housing industry they are now... And the economy, the whole economy is now enjoying the lowest interest rates in history, 'di ba, single digit. Meron pa ngang mga prime accounts diyan three percent lang ang kinukubra sa kanila. And so you have the real estate firms putting up housing and you have SSS financing the servicing or the take out of the members of the SSS.

And therefore we have these continuing challenges. But if you have gone through the challenge of improving collections and improving the investments — those were great challenges that were almost for awhile seemingly insurmountable — I'm sure these challenges now of widening your market, improving the benefits and getting into additional investment areas or more investment areas like microfinance that should be much easier than what we have done, what you have done over the last six years. So kung ano pa itong mga hamon ay hamon ng kung paano mas gumaling pa ang SSS. Hindi na hamon kung papaano mabubuhay ang SSS, buhay na buhay na ang SSS dahil sa inyo.

And so as far as the remaining challenges are concerned which are challenges of modernization and getting into the new century and spreading the benefits to a bigger population of our people, I am confident that you are up to the challenge because you have been up to even more difficult challenges in the last six years. And so on this your second national convention, on this year your 50th anniversary my message is: let us sustain our gains, the gains that you brought about in the last six years. And let us build on them in the next many years for the brighter future of the Filipino.

Mabuhay ang account officers ng SSS!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 2nd National Convention of the Account Officers of the Social Security System (SSS). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150849/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2001&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Official Opening and Welcome of the Boao Forum for Asia Annual Conference 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Official Opening and Welcome of the Boao Forum for Asia Annual Conference 2007

[Delivered at the Boao, Hainan Island, People's Republic of China, April 21, 2007]

First of all, I would like to congratulate my predecessor President Ramos for being reelected as chairman of the Boao Conference. And I would like to thank President Ramos and his two counterparts from Australia and Japan for having initiated this very important Forum nine years ago. Today's plenary raises a number of compelling points.

First point: To what extent will the current approaches to driving economic growth in Asia be able to sustain the social and environmental fabric in a responsible manner?

In other words to use the jargon of Boao, how do we have win-win? Rapid economic growth on one hand and a sustainable, social and environmental fabric on the other.

As our economic engines drive us to first-world status, we must not do so on the backs of the poor nor at the expense of our environment.

I am optimistic about the current approaches. I believe they can transform our economies and lift up the poor.

As a region we have a chance to get it right. We can emulate the best practices of development while avoiding the mistakes of modernization that have plagued many nations.

We must use every tool available – education, technology, microfinance – to lift up our poor, if we are to achieve equitable, sustainable growth.

In the Philippines we are investing aggressively in the IT. backbone. We are bringing the internet to every high school and spending more pesos for education. We are bringing incentives to start small and micro businesses to build an entrepreneurial class. And I would like to say that in doing this, we have learned from the participants of this Forum.

We have learned from Doctor Yunus the power of microfinance. And we have applied doctor Yunus' your trailblazing experience to millions of entrepreneurs, mostly women in the Philippines who have been able to lift their families out of poverty. Thank you for your contribution to the fight against poverty.

And the global success of Microsoft under your visionary leadership, Mr. Gates, has reminded us of the power of innovation to change the world for the better. We agree with you that technology is a powerful tool to liberate the potential of individuals and nations to grow and prosper. And learning from your wisdom and your achievements Mr. Gates, I'm happy to say that in the Philippines, the I.T. sector is the fastest growing sector in our economy today.

The second point raised in this Forum is: How crucial is it for the region to have an approach with sustainable development as a priority and what is the role of innovation in this context? Our answer is: it is essential for the region to have sustainable development as a priority.

The role of innovation in this context is vital along with political will. The Philippines is a case in point: We need to continue to develop a larger manufacturing base along with our booming service economy to create good jobs. At the same time, to have a win-win solution, we must also become more self-sufficient and cost effective in our energy consumption. There is no reason we cannot do both and have a win-win through innovation, proper policy planning and united political and civic leadership.

For instance, we have launched a biofuels program. It will rely on investment and innovation to create jobs, skills and self-reliance while keeping our environment clean. In this case, our model is Brazil which has pioneered in biofuels. We must continue to learn around the world and in our region.

We have the opportunity in Asia to learn from other nations and create our own sustained path to development.

We must think outside the box, harness technology and use innovation to break the cycle of energy dependence and environmental degradation.

Third point: As growth in Asia transitions from being export-driven to domestically-driven, what impact will this shift bring to Asia's leading lights – China, India and Japan?

The impact will likely be profound on all economies but particularly India and China, less so Japan because it is already an advanced industrial economy. We in ASEAN are delighted with the growth of China and India to add to the power of Japan in the region. In the Philippines, we benefit from this growth. It can only help lift up our nation as it lifts up the others, too. This is a good, positive, healthy development, but we must work together to add to, not subtract from, our quality of life.

Chairman Wu, China is a strong partner of ASEAN and a reliable friend of the Philippines, so let me spend a minute focusing on the implications of your surge. China's remarkable rise reflects the promise and challenge of the world in which we live in. We see your dramatic growth lifting millions out of poverty and springing your nation squarely onto the world stage as a new global power. And you also understand the need to balance growth with concerns for the environment and quality of life.

China has unleashed the human potential of its vast citizenry by the effective use of technology, science and entering. It will be these same elements that will help China bring balance to a new model of sustainable development. We are all eager for China to succeed. And Chairman Wu, we will watch closely as you manage the desires for growth, equity and environmental solidarity.

As China and India become true political and economic giants, their obligations to their neighbors will increase; separate from their obligations to their own citizens. Ascendance onto the world stage carries implications not just for economic development, but for management of our environment on a sustainable basis, and for maintaining broader peace and stability in the region and the world.

And speaking of stability for the region and the world, the relationship between China and Japan also has important implications for regional stability in Asia. And we are very happy to hear all the news all over the world about the increasingly cordial relationship between China and Japan. And I am happy to read even from the editorials of the newspapers in China that one of the reasons for the increasing relationship of trust between President Wu and Premier Wen and Prime Minister Abe of Japan has been your meeting in the Philippine island of Cebu last January.

Fourth point: What are the implications of this shift to each of these countries, to the businesses that operate within them, and their Asian neighbors vis-à-vis their political, economic and environmental relationships with these giants?

While it would be inappropriate for me to comment on how these changes would impact the internal fabric of China and India, I can begin to address how their growth and dynamism impact the rest of us.

As chair of ASEAN, we hope for greater economic integration between ASEAN and the robust economies of China, Japan and India. Last January in Cebu, we led ASEAN to make a declaration on the ASEAN charter, which is a milestone in our region's history.

And I am very happy also to acknowledge President Ramos as one of the eminent persons putting together the concept of the ASEAN charter.

As part of this charter, we are pledging to become an integrated trading bloc by 2015. We are proud that ASEAN took a bold step forward by agreeing to move toward an E.U. style institution. This is the first step toward even closer political, security, and economic engagement. It will strengthen ASEAN and the ties with our special partners such as Japan, China and India.

From the strictly Philippine point of view, we welcome the surge in economic growth and development as a healthy development for our nation and our region. Japan and China are investing billions in the Philippines, and hopefully India will one day do the same.

The internal market demands and domestic consumption of these nations are having a direct and positive impact on our nation in terms of job creation, investment and balance of trade. We hope it continues.

Let me conclude with these final thoughts. I am bullish on Asia and our ability to help drive positive change in the world – win-win.

The Boao Forum has once again brought together some of the world's leading lights to engage in meaningful conversation about the world and Asia's role in it. We must continue to build and strengthen institutions be they powerful NGO foundations like for instance the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation or empowered entities like ASEAN and East Asia summit.

I am optimistic about our ability to work together as a region and to solve our own problems and in the process, create a new Asian paradigm for progress that will be a model for the rest of the world as other regions and other nations continue on their own path to progress.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services]

Speech of President Arroyo during the International Earth Day Celebration 2007

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the International Earth Day Celebration 2007

[Delivered at the Bulwagang Rizal, Malacañang, April 23, 2007]

Happy Earth Day!

Kahapon ang Earth Day pero ngayon ang working day, kaya natin ipinagdiriwang ang Earth Day dito sa ating pamahalaan. Itong Earth Day na ito, ano ang kanyang konteksto? Ang konteksto ng ating Earth Day ay iyong ating pagsisikap na walang tigil upang magtayo ng modernong bansa na lalahok balang araw sa hanay ng mga bansang mayaman at maunlad. Iyon bang first world in 20 years. Matipuno ang aking pag-asa sa hinaharap ng sambayanan at sa pag-angat ng mamamayan. Our national agenda can transform our economy and lift up the poor.

Ngunit, dapat nating gamitin ang bawat kasangkapang hawak natin; edukasyon, teknolohiya, pautang sa maralita o microfinance upang makaahon ang ating mga kababayang mahihirap at matamo natin ang pag-unlad ng para sa lahat at para sa kalikasan.

Kaya ako ay nasisiyahan dahil narito si Secretary Ding Panganiban, namumuno ng NAPC, narito si Ed Pamintuan ang ating kampeon ng Luzon Urban Beltway, nandito ba ang Flying V? Yes, Flying V. Nandito ang Rotary District 3800, yes, di ba? Nandito kayo pati iyong Rotary Club ng Cosmopolitan San Juan, nandito rin iyong Philippine Confederation of Grains Association. Gusto kong magpasalamat sa inyo sa inyong kasunduang magtutulungan upang maibsan ang kahirapan sa pamamagitan ng pagkakaloob ng feeding and skills and values training sa mahihirap na benepisyaryo sa ilang prayoridad na lugar sa Luzon Urban Beltway, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

They are part of the economic engine to drive us to first world status in 20 years. But even as they do so, even as we do so, we must not do so at the back of the poor, nor at the expense of the environment.

No nation can aspire to become modern without thinking of our environment. Napakahalagang tutukan natin ang kaunlarang makakalikasan. Kaya bawat April 22 ng bawat taon, we have marked this every year as Earth Day in the Philippines.

Mayroon tayong isa pang Cabinet member na napakaimportante sa ating programa para sa kalikasan. Bukod kay Secretary Reyes, kay Secretary Ding Panganiban at saka kay Secretary Pamintuan, malamang sa susunod na taon kasama na natin ang Department of Education dahil itong araw na ito, I am directing the Department of Education to incorporate subjects dealing with global warming and climate change into the public school Science curriculum subjects. We want our young to be aware of global warming and other climate change phenomena.

Because we want to press ahead up to their generation with a massive Green Philippines Environmental Plan, that is comprehensive in scope and thorough in execution. Well, our officials from the DENR are here, I would just like to make it clear to them and to all what is this Green Philippines Plan, although I've been saying it over and over again it's time to say it again this time. This plan includes; first, reforestation; second, preservation of our reefs and waterways; third, scrubbing the land and air of pollutants that dangers the health of our citizens and fourth, energy independence.

On reforestation, we must take back our forest and replenish fallen trees with new protected forest to protect our land and our people. We must reforest that land and bring back the beauty of the Philippines, we all loved and want.

Itong darating na Mayo, ang inyong lingkod ay pupunta sa New Zealand. Kung naalaala ninyo many years ago, ang New Zealand ay tumutulong sa ating forestation sa Bukidnon. Naalaala ko noong ako ay bagong Senador noong 1992 nagtanim ako ng puno doon. Noong bumalik ako bilang Presidente ang laki-laki na ng puno. And this is New Zealand's continuing support for the Philippines, as to have expanded it to eco-tourism.

Kaya noon pumunta si Prime Minister Helen Clark dito sa Pilipinas ang kanyang attending secretary si Secretary Reyes, dib a Angie? Dahil kalikasan ang aming pinag-usapan at bumisita siya doon sa kanilang proyekto ng New Zealand doon sa Bohol, iyong mga dolphins and whales sa Pamalican Island.

Ngayon, sa pagpunta ng inyong lingkod sa New Zealand, isa sa mga tulong na ihahandog ng New Zealand kaya pupunta rin si Leonard Gibb at Narda Camacho doon ay tulong muli sa ating reforestation's program, number one program ng ating Green Philippines.

On the second program, item mode of program, first of the environmental plan, preservation of our reefs and waterways and designation of national parks and wildlife refuges. I want to turn our coral reefs and beaches after all the other wonder of the world. I want to turn them into national parks and international sanctuaries for eco-tourism and scientific research. And so as part of this, today, I thank the DENR, Angie and his officials for working very quickly so that we can have this proclamation signed today. What is this proclamation? It is a proclamation establishing a critical habitat and eco-tourism area within the coastal lagoon of Las Piñas and Parañaque and ensuring the maintenance of necessary ecological services from peripheral areas. Ito ang ating proclamation bilang pagdiriwang sa araw ng Earth Day at pipirmahan ko ngayon.

Iyong pangatlo, iyong anti-pollution. We want to tap the enthusiasm of young ang old alike, to clean up our environment. We need to rid our barangays and cities of trash. We need to build up more urban parks, and recreation areas, we need to purify our water and we need to clean up industrial sites that is an eye sore and are unhealthy. Unilever, thank you very much.

Kaya itong araw na ito ako ay nagagalak dahil kasama ng ating pagdinwang iyong ilang mga barangay na namumuno sa pangangalaga ng kapaligiran at kalikasan sa kani-kanilang lugar. Saan dito iyong mga outstanding barangays sa ating paglinis ngkalikasan? Nandito ba sila, Narda? Okay.

Narito rin iyong ilang negosyante, iyong mga nag-oath taking kanina. Kabilang na iyong mga junk shop owners, nasaan iyong mga junk shop owners natin? Na ginagawa ang lahat para matiyak na ang kanilang negosyo ay nakakatulong sa kapaligiran at kalusugan ng mamamayan.

At kasama rin natin ang green army ng DENR, Angie? At iyong ating mga eco-aide, na matamang nagbabantay laban sa mga umaabuso ng ating kapaligiran at kalikasan.

And finally, energy independence, ito naman ay trabaho ng Secretary of Energy. The role of innovation in this context is vital along with political will. We need to develop a larger manufacturing base along with our booming service economy to create jobs. Pero kasabay nito, kailangan tayong mas umasa sa sarili at maging matipid sa paggamit ng enerhiya. There is no reason we cannot do so through, we cannot do both manufacturing and energy independence. There is no reason we cannot do both through innovation, proper quality planning and united political and civic leadership such as what we have in today's hall.

Halimbawa, naglunsad tayo ng programa sa mga bio-fuel, iyong punong batas ni Congressman Migz Zubiri, para maging Senador. Bio-fuels gaya ng ethanol at coco-biodiesel sa gawa ng pananim. Our bio-fuels program will rely on investment and innovation to create jobs, skills and self-reliance while keeping our environment clean. Dito hindi lang Secretary of Energy ang kailangan, pati Secretary of Agriculture because of the raw materials. Sa pagsisikap nating ito huwaran natin ang bansang Brazil na siyang nanguna sa bio-fuel, because we must continue to learn around the world and in our region.

May pagkakataon tayong matuto sa karanasan ng ibang bansa at magbukas ng mga bagong landas tungo sa kaunlarang maka-kalikasan.

We must think outside the box. Gagamitin natin ang teknolohiya at innovation upang wakasan ang taung-taong pagdepende sa dayuhang langis at paglabag sa kalikasan.

Nagmula ang ating kabuhatan sa Inang Kalikasan. Kaya sa inyong lahat na nag-aalaga sa kalikasan maraming salamat sapangangalaga ninyo at paglilingkod bilang huwaran ng paglingap sa ating kalikasan at kapaligiran.

Mabuhay ang lahat ng nagmamahal at nag-aalaga sa kalikasan!

Happy Earth Day muli sa inyong lahat!

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo on Bringing Benefits down to Every Filipino Worker, May 1, 2007

Speech

of

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo

President of the Philippines

On Bringing Benefits down to every Filipino Worker

[Delivered at the Folk Arts Theater, CCP Compound, Pasay City, May 1, 2007]

That is why I'm saying our national agenda is focused on creating good paying jobs, stable prices and bringing the benefits of a strong economy to every single worker.

At gaya nang sinabi ni Ginoong Tupaz nung binasa niya yung manifesto, inaasahan natin ang araw na meron ng sapat na magagandnag trabaho na nakalikha sa Pilipinas para yung mga masisipag na Pilipino ay hindi na kailangan mag-abroad para mag-trabaho. Gaya nang sinabi ni Vladi Tupaz, ang tinitignan nating araw ay yung araw when going abroad for a job is a career choice, not the only option for work.

Kaya itong nakaraang anim na taon ginawa natin yung mga mahihirap ngunit mga kailangang desisyon para palakasin ang ating ekonomiya. And now these steps are beginning to pay off. Ngayon meron na tayong salapi para mapuhunan sa mga dibidendo ng ating social partnership.

Halimbawa, nandito si Vice President Noli De Castro, ang ating masasabi yung PAG-IBIG ay mamamahagi ng six billion pesos worth of dividends to the members. Ilan kayo dito ang PAG-IBIG members? Makakatanggap kayo ng dibidendo, total six billion. At maglalagay ng pondo... Dagdag na pondong 30 billion pesos para sa mga pautang sa mga members na kasama, pwede kayong pautangin para sa tuition at saka sa medical emergency ninyo.

Kung naalala ninyo sa nakaraan, pinatawaran natin yung mga penalty ng utang sa pag-ibig. Itutuloy natin itong condonation na ito. At ang pag-ibig ay maglalagay ng bagong 25 billion pesos para sa pabahay, six percent lamang ang interest at mababayad pa sa tatlung taon.

Yung GSIS naman, ibubuo yung programang 10-month salary loan, lalakihin yung scholarship grant, ibababa ang interes, at ire-structure yung mga housing loan. Lalawakin ang hospitalization support at aayusin ang serbisyo sa pamamagitan ng computerization — PGEA, mga hiling ninyo.

Yung SSS, ipapaibayo yung flexi fund para sa overseas Filipino workers at isasama ang informal workers sa ating SSS coverage.

Para sa mga sugar workers, magtatayo tayo ng 25 million pesos worth ng sugar livelihood centers sa Regions III, VI and X. At maglalagay tayo ng 12.6 million para sa sugar workers' socio-economic program.

Yung POEA naman ay gagamitin sampung porsiyento ng kanyang kita para labanan pang mas magaling ang illegal recruiters.

Kanina sa manifesto na binasa ni Vladimir Tupaz, sabi niya may mga nilolokong manggagawa ng Internet. Kunyari may job available, babayad kayo yun pala Hindi pala available yung job. Kaya ang gagawin ng DOLE ay titignan itong internet na ito, eeksaminin kung totoo ba iyung mga trabahong yon para ma-expose yung mga nag-i-scam sa ating mga manggagawa.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the 105th Labor Day Celebration

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the the 105th Labor Day Celebration

[Delivered at the Folk Arts Theater, CCP compound, Pasay City, May 1, 2007]

Sa inyong lahat, mga manggagawa, isang makabuluhang Labor Day sa ating lahat

Kanina sinabi ni Mang Mocring Mendoza ang panawagan ng manggagawa ay trabahong magandang sweldo at pabahay. At yun din ang ating agenda sa ating pamahalaan. Kasi sabi nga marami pang mga walang trabaho. Totoo po yon. Pero doon sa mga bumabatikos sa mga nakaraang administrasyon, sino sa kanila ang nakalikha ng one million jobs a year? Tayo lamang sa ating administrasyon.

Yung sinundan kong administrasyon, maging meron pang iba, ang average ay 500,000 jobs sa dalawang taon. Tayo from January 2006 to January 2007, nakalikha ng 1.5 million jobs. Kaya ipinagtatrabaho natin yung magkaroon ng trabaho ang walang trabaho.

That is why I'm saying our national agenda is focused on creating good paying jobs, stable prices and bringing the benefits of a strong economy to every single worker.

At gaya nang sinabi ni Ginoong Tupaz nung binasa niya yung manifesto, inaasahan natin ang araw na meron ng sapat na magagandang trabaho na nalikha sa Pilipinas para yung mga masisipag na Pilipino ay hindi na kailangan mag-abroad para mag-trabaho. Gaya nang sinabi ni Vladi Tupaz, ang tinitingnan nating araw ay yung araw when going abroad for a job is a career choice, not the only option for work.

Kaya itong nakaraang anim na taon ginawa natin yung mga mahihirap ngunit mga kinakailangang desisyon para palakasin ang ating ekonomiya. And now these steps are beginning to pay off. Ngayon meron na tayong salapi para mapuhunan sa mga dididendo ng ating social partnership.

Halimbawa, nandito si Vice President Noli De Castro, ang ating masasabi yung Pag-IBIG mamamahagi ng six billion pesos worth of dividends to the members. Ilan kayo ditong mga Pag-IBIG members? Makakatanggap kayo ng dididendo, total six billion. At maglalagay ng dagdag na pondong 30 billion pesos para sa mga pautang sa mga members na kasama, pwede kayong pautangin para sa tuition at saka sa medical emergency ninyo.

Kung naaalala ninyo sa nakaraan, pinatawaran natin yung mga penalty ng utang sa Pag-IBIG. Itutuloy natin itong condonation na ito. At ang Pag-IBIG ay maglalagay ng bagong 25 billion pesos para sa pabahay, six percent lamang ang interest at mababayaran pa sa tatlung taon.

Yung mga bumabatikos sa atin, sino sa kanila nung panahon nila ang nakapagpababa sa interes ng six percent? Yung namana kong interes nung ako'y umupo ng 2001, 14 percent. Ngayon, napababa natin sa six percent. At dagdag pa ni Noli, yung mga nagbabayad ng dating matataas na interes, kung babayaran n'yo yung utang n'yo in advance, magkakaroon kayo ng bonus, yung early birds, bibigyan kayo ng diskwento ng two percent sa dating interest na binabayaran ninyo.

At saka marami na tayong... Kasi yung mga nakaraan na namana – hindi tayo gumawa ng kamahal-mahal na mga pabahay, hindi naman kaya ng manggagawa bayaran yung installment na yon. Ang ginagawa natin ay finor-closed natin yung mga proyektong yon at sinusubasta natin para mura kayong bumili nitong mga bahay na ito. So special discount dahil nga ang tagal-tagal nang nakabinbin hindi maibenta dahil masyadong malaki ang ginastos para sa construction. Minana lang natin itong white elephants na ito. Gumawa tayo ng paraan para masubasta at mabenta sa inyo ng murang-mura, abot-kaya ng manggagawa.

Yung GSIS naman, ibubuo yung programang 10-month salary loan, lalakihin yung scholarship grant, ibababa ang interes, at ire-structure yung mga housing loan. Lalawakan ang hospitalization support at aayusin ang mga serbisyo sa pamamagitan ng computerization – PGEA, mga hiling ninyo.

Yung SSS, pagiibayuhin yung flexi fund para sa overseas Filipino workers at isasama ang informal workers sa ating SSS coverage.

Para sa mga sugar workers, magtatayo tayo ng 25 million pesos worth ng sugar livelihood centers sa Regions III, VI and X. At maglalagay tayo ng 12.6 million para sa sugar workers' socio economic program.

Yung POEA naman ay gagamitin ang sampung porsiyento ng kanyang kita para labanan pang mas magaling ang illegal recruiters.

Kanina sa manifesto na binasa ni Vladimir Tupaz, sabi niya may mga nilolokong manggagawa ng internet. Kunyari may jobs available, babayad kayo yun pala hindi pala available yung job. Kaya ang gagawin ng DOLE ay titignan itong internet na ito, eeksaminin kung totoo ba iyung mga trabahong yon para ma-expose yung mga nag-I-scam sa ating mga manggagawa.

Para makatulong sa re-integration program, yung ating mga OFW na nagtapos ng education, accounting at iba pa, para bumalik sila at maging professional teacher, maging professional accountant, na ang dami-daming kailangan ng accountant ngayon sa mga business process outsourcing natin. Ang Professional Regulation Commission ay gagawa ng mga examination sa Middle East, sa Hongkong at iba pang mga bansa.

At kahapon sa Malacañang, sinimulan natin at saka ng TESDA, yung 'FAST' (Free Assessment from TESDA). Kung kailangan ninyo ng certification, kasi may mga trabahong kailangan ng certification I-aassess kayo ng TESDA hindi na kayo kukobrahin ng assessment fee.

Kailan lamang ang dami nating inuwing mga manggagawa, kasalukuyan pang inuuwi natin sila mula sa mga lugar kung saan nagka-problema sila. Eto ay dahil meron na tayong standby revolving fund para bayaran yung pasahe ng pag-uwi ng ating mga manggagawa at hindi na kailangan hintayin kung yung employer ay magbabayad nung inyong pasahe.

At isa pa, OFW pension system, gagawa tayo noon. Yung Bangko Sentral naman ay binababa yung gastos ng pagpadala ng pera sa Pilipinas at yung OWWA ay naglalagay ng 50 million pesos para iangat yung skills, upgrading and bridging programs para yung ating mga seafarers ay pwedeng maging mga engineers and deck officers.

Yung PCSO ay magbibigay ng pera sa Migrant Workers Scholarship Fund at isa pang daing ng mga manggagawa, pag umaalis may escort service. Kung hindi ka babayaran... Kung hindi mo babayaran, hindi maganda ang serbisyo, pahihirapan ka. Kaya yung bagong B.I.D. Commissioner, si Nonoy Libanan ay tutulungan ang manager ng airport ni Al Cusi para tanggalin na itong escort services sa airport at mga seaport.

Yung mga informal sector naman, ang DOLE ay magdadagdag ng 50 million pesos para sa livelihood, kasama na sector yung mga magulang at pamilya ng mga child laborers dahil ito ang prinsipyo ng ILO child labor program.

Yung mga bumabatikos sa atin, ano ba ang nagawa nila nung panahon nila? Yung mga nandoon na nakatira sa riles ilang taon, walang kasilyas sa kanilang lugar. Ngayon binigyan natin sila ng maaliwalas na lugar doon sa Cavite, sa Laguna, sa Bulacan, sariling bahay, magandang bahay, maaliwalas na lugar, may trabaho at may livelihood pero yung mga tuloy na nagtatrabaho pa ecto ang ating programa ay – o, sige na nga hanggang makahanap kayo ng trabaho doon, ituloy n'yo yung trabaho n'yo sa Recto sa Maynila, libre yung train, di ba? At saka kanina nanggaling ako doon sa unang Workers' Inn or Gwapotel para weekday nandito kayo nagtatrabaho, isang ligo-isang tulog, 25 pesos. At uuwi kayo uli sa weekend doon sa inyong mga tahanan. At yan ay for one thousand workers sa ngayon. Pero kung successful ito, magtatayo tayo ng marami pang mga Gwapotel para sa ganun, yung mga na-relocate sa labas, imbes na pumupunta ecto yung manggagawa at natutulog sa kalye during weekdays, meron kayong Workers' Inn kung saan, halimbawa, kung kayo'y nagtatrabaho sa pamahalaan, five days long kayo nagtatrabaho, four nights lang kayo maninirahan, 100 pesos a week lang, 400 pesos a month lang ang inyong gastos.

Noong Women's Day, naunawaan ko, naalaman ko, napag-alaman ko, na yung mga manggagawa ng pamahalaan ay hindi pala naaabutan ng microfinance. Kaya bukas sisimulan natin yung microfinance program kung saan ang bawat empleyado ng pamahalaan na humiram sa microfinance ay magkakaroon ng five thousand pesos pautang na walang collateral. Gagawin natin yun bukas.

At para rin sa mga manggagawa ng pamahalaan, gaya nung inanunsiyo ko doon sa Women's Day, sisimulan natin yung inyong 10 percent increase compensation for government workers itong darating na Hulyo.

Yung minimum wage. Yung minimum wage, by executive order – kasi yun ang kaya kong gawin, executive order – gumawa na tayo ng executive order na yung minimum wage-earners ay hindi babayad ng...hindi magkakaroon ng withholding tax deduction. Ngayon, eto naman ang masasabi ko para sa ating mga Team Unity congressmen at senador, kung silang mananalò, pwede rin I-commit sa inyo na itong darating na Congress magpapasa tayo – gaya ng hiling ni Vladi Tupaz – ng batas na exempted ang minimum wage-earner sa pagbayad ng income tax.

Yung minimum wage-earners naman ay sa administrasyon natin tumaas na on the average ang sweldo ng 100 pesos a day. Ngayon sa pandagdag na pagtaas ng sweldo, inaatasan ko, I'm urging the Regional Tripartite Wage Boards to speed up the resolution of pending wage issues.

Ito ay nagagawa nating lahat, pati yung paglikha ng isang milyong trabaho bawat taon, because of strong alliances. We have forged new partnerships that have led to billions in investments kaya umabot nung Enero 1.515 million ang bilang ng mga bagong trabahong nalikha, at ang ating wage and salary employment ay lumago ng 11.4 percent. At isang mahalagang patunay na epektibo ang ating social partnership, although siyempre marami pang kailangang tayong gawin para tayo ay talagang umangat pa ang kapakanan ng ating manggagawa. Pero right now, masasabi natin isang senyas na epektibo ay bumababa yung bilang ng mga strikes. In fact, from the beginning of this year, up to today, ang number of strikes na natuloy ay isa. Iisang strike lamang. Lahat ng iba naayos ang problema bago umabot sa strike.

Tayo ay naniniwala sa Pilipinas. Tayo ay naniniwala sa mga masisipag na taong-bayan ng Pilipinas. Kaya sama-sama tayong magtrabaho para maging katotohanan ang prosperidad para sa ating bansa.

Muli, mga kasama kong manggagawang Pilipino, mga umangat ang ekonomiya at ang bansa, mga hindi ipabagsak ang ekonomiya at bansa, sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat at mabuhay ang manggagawang Pilipino!

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo on the Reintegration Program of OFWs, May 1, 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the Reintegration Program of OFWs

[Delivered at the Folk Arts Theater, CCP Compound, Pasay City, May 1, 2007]

Minding OFWs' welfare

Para makatulong sa reintegration program, yung ating mga OFW na nagtapos ng education, accounting at iba pa, para bumalik sila at maging professional teacher, maging professional accountant, na ang dami-daming kailangan ng accountant ngayon sa mga business process outsourcing natin. Ang Professional Regulation Commission ay gagawa ng mga examination sa Middle East, sa Hongkong at iba pang mga bansa.

At kahapon sa Malacañang, sinimulan natin yung TESDA, yung 'FAST' (Free Assessment from TESDA). Kung kailangan ninyo ng certification — may mga trabahong kailangan ng certification — i-a-assess kayo ng TESDA hindi na kayo kukobrahin ng assessment fee.

Kailan lamang ang dami nating inuwing mga manggagawa, kasalukuyan pang inuuwi natin sila mula sa mga lugar kung saan nagka-problema sila. Eto ay dahil meron na tayong standby revolving fund para bayaran yung pasahe ng pag-uwi ng ating mga manggagawa at hindi na kailangan hintayin kung yung employer ay magbabayad nung inyong pasahe.

At isa pa, OFW pension system, gagawa tayo noon. Yung Bangko Sentral naman ay binababa yung gastos ng pagpadala ng pera sa Pilipinas at yung owwa ay naglalagay ng 50 million pesos para ipa-angat yung skills upgrading and bridging programs para yung ating mga seafarer ay pwedeng maging mga engineer and deck officers.

Yung PCSO ay magbibigay ng pera sa migrant workers scholarship fund at isa pang daing ng mga manggagawa, pag umaalis may escort service. Kung hindi ka babayaran... Kung hindi mo babayaran, hindi maganda ang serbisyo, pahihirapan ka. Kayayung bagong B.I.D. commissioner, si Nonoy Libanan ay tutulungan ang manager ng airport ni Al Cusi para tanggalin na itong escort services dito sa airport at mga seaport.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the Launching Ceremony of the Livelihood Lending Facility for Government Employees

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Launching Ceremony of the Livelihood Lending Facility for Government Employees

[Delivered at the Philippine Trade Training Center, Pasay City, May 2, 2007]

Thank you for putting this program very quickly together with our NGO partner 'Go Negosyo'.

Secretary Peter Favila, Secretary of Trade and Industry, and therefore the boss of the SB Corporation and all of the agencies that deal with small business enterprise. And Egay Generoso and all of the other microfinance sources from government who are here today.

Sa inyong lahat mga empleyado ng pamahalaan, government employees, government workers belated happy Labor Day to all of you!

Kahapon, kami ni Espie Ocampo, ang pangulo ng Government Employees Association, ay naroon sa Folk Arts Theater dahil ipinagdiwang ang labor Day doon. At sinabi ko kahapon na bahagi ng ating Labor Day celebration – kasi three days itong celebration – the day before we had a special service for job training for workers, yung accreditation, fast and free accreditation of workers who need to have certification of skills. And we also launched the electronic training of TESDA. Tapos kahapon yung main event or yung unifying event. At ngayon araw naman para sa mga manggagawa ng pamahalaan.

Ang ating mga manggagawa sa pamahalaan ay ang mga bagong haligi ng kapangyarihan ng taong-bayan. At ito ay inyong bagong pillar of power 'Go Negosyo, Go Gobyerno'. Alam ko sa pamahalaan, sabi nila yung entry point ng pamahalaan at saka yung entry point ng private sector pare-pareho lang ang sweldo. In fact, yung mga public school teacher mas mataas pa kaysa sa sweldo ng private school teacher. Pero sa pagtas natin sa hierarchy humahabol yung private sector, nagti-take over. Kaya when we go already to the specialist level, mga division chief, at pataas ng pataas naiiwanan na ng private sector. Kaya ang sinasabi nila noong araw nung ako'y nag-aaral ng economics, sabi nila kasi may psychic income daw yung public sector, and that explains the difference. Pero lumalawak na lumalawak kulang naman yung psychic income din ninyo sa paglilingkod sa taumbayan. Kaya natural lang na inaasahan ninyo magkaroon kayo ng pangalawang hanapbuhay. O kaya mga maybahay ninyo, mga panganay na anak ninyo para makatulong sa hanapbuhay ng pamilya. Kabuhayan ang ating hangarin upang itindig ang seguridad at dangal ng bawat Pilipino.

Ito ang matibay na pagkakapit-bisig ng pamahalaan at ng NGO sector, pribadong ektor upang magbunsod ng pagpapakitang-gilas at pagsasarili. At kayo mga kawani ng gobyerno ay maaring maging huwaran at inspirasyon ng mga ibig magnegosyo.

Inspirasyon nga ang marami sa inyo dahil nanggagaling sa inyo yung microfinance funds o kaya nanggagaling sa inyo yung training para gumawa ng mga project study na mga simple. Pero dapat kayo rin ay kasama sa makikinabang dahil kayo rin ay mamamayan ng Pilipinas.

Matapos ang pagdiriwang ng Labor Day kahapon, isa pang pagsulong ang mga sandaling ito para sa ating mga ector-bayangnagsisipag. Nagsisipag kayo upang mapalago ang ekonomiya. Nagsisipag kayo upang ihatid ang mga biyaya sa ating taong-bayan. Nandiyan yung mga DAR employees na naghahatid ng biyaya sa ating mga magsasaka. At nagsisipag kayo para lalong mapatatag ang ating mga demokratikong institusyon. Nandiyan yung mga NBI, nandiyan yung mga maraming ahensiyagaya ng DTI, NEA para lumago ang ating ekonomiya.

At nandito si Myrna Yao, siya yung nag-host sa akin, sa atin. Ilan sa inyo siguro ang nandoon mga female employees. Nung ipinagdiriwang natin yung araw ng kababaihan noong Marso, sinabi ko na bibigyan ang ating mga kawani ng pamahalaan ng pagkakataong makinabang din sa ating mga lumalawak na programang microfinance. At ngayon, buong pagmamalaki nating ilulunsad ang puhunang pang-negosyo para sa mga kawani ng gobyerno o 'Go Negosyo, Go Gobyerno'. Sabi nga ni Cerge Remonde, "A promise fulfilled". Yun ba ang sinabi mo kanina?

Sa programang ito makakahiram nang walang kolateral. Kasi yung microfinance talaga naman walang kolateral. Yung mga small and medium loans meron, yung mga humihiram sa bangko, pero yung microfinance wala. At maaaring bayaran ang utang, ito naman ang kaibahan ninyo doon sa mga micro-entrepreneurs na iba, kayo ay... yung iba ang ginagawa kesa istilo ng mga ektor, every week or every month may pumupunta sa inyo para kubrahin yung bahagi ng utang kasi hindi ba kung hindi para masigurado na ginagamit ninyo talaga para sa negosyong pinaghiraman ninyo. Pero iba sa pamahalaan kasi meron kayong sweldo lalo na kung kayo ay civil servant mahirap kayong tanggalin sa pwesto unless may kaso kayo. Kaya ang kaibahan ninyo sa karaniwang microentrepreneur ay pwedeng bayaran ang utang ninyo ng kaltas ng sahod. So yun ay isang bentaha ng mga government employees. Kung gusto ninyo, depende sa inyo yun. O kaya pwedeng gawin na yung kooperatiba ninyo ang magbabayad tapos sila na lang ang magkukubra sa inyo. O kaya pwede rin kayong gumawa ng mga kagaya ng mga ordinaryong microfinance, microentrepreneurs gumawa ng inyong sariling mga association. Ganun ang ginagawa ng mga karaniwang microentrepreneur na humihiram sa microfinance. Halimbawa, limang kababaihan o dalawampung kababaihan, sila mismo ay nagsasama-sama, ang utang ng isa ay utang ng lahat. Yan ang pinaka-essence ng microfinance na nanggaling sa Pakistan, si Dr. Yunus na nanalo ng Nobel Prize.

Kaya gusto kong atasan ang Philippine Government Employees Association, si Espie Ocampo, na mag-organize nitong mga microfinance associations of five women or 20 women para yung utang ng isa ay utang ng lahat. You are therefore... you are guaranteeing one another, yan ang essence ng microfinance. So may choice kayo: kunin sa sweldo ninyo yung kooperatiba ang magbabayad muna para sa inyo, o kaya gagawa kayo ng association, self-employment association.

At ang microfinance ay usually maliit. Makaka-utang ng limanlibong piso nang walang kolateral na babayaran sa loob ng tatlo hanggang anim na buwan. Yan ang usual microfinance.

Subalit kayo, dahil may sweldo kayo, parang yun ang garantiya na mababayaran ang microfinance, pwedeng higit ang ibigay sa inyo ng pamahalaan. Maaaring mapaghiram kayo ng inyong mga kooperatiba at samahan nang hanggang sandaan limampung libong piso. 'diba, tama yun? Kasi nga ang diperensya, ang kaibahan, meron kayong sweldo na pwedeng gamiting pambayad. At naka-record yun sa gobyerno. Yung ibang mga microfinance usually wala silang ibang hanapbuhay kung hindi yun. Kaya yan... At hindi lang yun, hindi three to six months binabayaran, pwede n'yong bayaran hanggang dalawang taon. Kasi gaya nang sabi ko most of you are civil servants. So inaasahan natin na unless may kaso kayo, na konti lang naman sa mga civil servants ang kinakasuhan, ay nandiyan pa kayo hanggang dalawang taon at makakasiguradong makakabayad. Kaya meron kayong mga biyaya na hindi maibibigay sa mga karaniwang mga microentrepreneurs.

Ngunit kayo alam ko na matagal na marami sa inyo talagang ang trabaho ninyo ay opisina. Ngayon ang mga nag-oopisina ba ay kayang magnegosyo? Yan ang isang tanong. At yan ang isang parating pini-preach nila Joey Concepcion, nila Mon Lopez – pwede, pwede yun basta magtuturan tayo. Kaya ngayon bahagi ng 'Go Negosyo' program... Alam ho niyo itong NGO 'Go Negosyo' ang dami-daming mga sikat na entrepreneur na sila ay kasapi ecto, mga big names. Halimbawa, first of all, sila Joey Concepcion yung may-ari nang RFM; yung may-ari ng National Bookstore; yung may ari ng Jollibee; yung may-ari ng SM; yung mga anak ni Lucio Tan. At marami ecto mga malalaki na ngayon nagsimula silang maliliit one or two generations ago. Kaya bahagi rin ng 'Go Negosyo' ay ipahayag, ikuwento sa inyo ang kanilang karanasan para matuto rin ang ating mga bagong negosyante kung ano ang mga ginawa nila para magtagumpay sa negosyo.

Kaya bahagi nitong programang ito magkakaroon ng pagkakataon ang ating manggagawa sa gobyernona matuto sa mga matatagumpay na entrepreneurs na ektor isalaysay ang kanilang mga karanasan sa paglulunsad at pagpapalaki ng negosyo. Pero hindi lang yung malalaking negosyante ngayon ang magtuturo sa inyo. Meron ding mga recent entrepreneurs, mga siguro mga limang taon nakaraan o dalawang taon nakaraan, nakahiram ng

limang libong piso. Ano ang nagawa nila sa limang libong piso nila. Yun din ay pwedeng magkuwento sa inyo ng kanilang kasaysayan.

Kanina nga nung ako ay dumadaan sa corridor may nagpa-autograph sa akin ng libro. At itong librong ito nga ay collection talaga nung iba't-ibang mga karanasan – big companies, medium-sized companies, small companies, successful micro companies.

At sana sa puhunan na available sa inyo, tapos ang mga leksyon na natutuhan ninyo doon sa mga sector matagumpay na ay magtatagumpay kayo sa second income ng inyong pamilya.

Magkakaroon din tayo, gaya nang sabi ni Cerge Remonde, ng ganito ring paglulunsad sa Cebu at sa Davao sa susunod na dalawang Linggo. Sa Cebu siguro next week, then Davao the week after.

At sa sector ng microfinance, nadadagdagan sa buong Pilipinas ang kapangyarihan ng mga pamilya na maiangat ang sarili at umahon sa kahirapan. Nagdadagdag ito sa kita, naglalagay ng pagkain sa mesa, nagpapaaral ng isa o dalawa pang anak in addition to the others.

This is part of the pay off of the hard-fought economic battles that we have led with some courageous members of Congress. Because of these hard fought battles, the Philippine economy has finally broken loose from its historic legacy of lethargy. In fact, ngayon lang nagkakaroon ng mababang interest yung mga utang sa bangko. Yung mga utang sa bangko, uutang sa pabahay hanggang six percent. Noong araw, 14 percent, mababa na yun. Ngayon, hanggang six percent. Talagang nakikinabang ang karaniwang mamamayan, karaniwang negosyante.

Ang dahilan kung bakit sa microfinance ay mas mataas ang interest ay may gastos yung nagpapahiram na pumupunta sa inyong lugar. Kasi halos home service ito, 'di ba gaya nang sabi ko yung istilong ector, yung istilong 5-6 pero mas mababa kaysa doon at walang kolateral Yun ang mga dahilan kung bakit mas mataas ang interest ng microfinance. Ganun pa man sinasabi natin na while kailangan market-oriented yung interest ng microfinance ang sinasabi natin I-benchmark more or less yung kinukubra ng Quedancor na interes, yun din ang kinukubra ng DSWD ng interes. Kasi gusto natin na pipili kayo ng negosyo kung saan yung kita ninyo ay mababayaran yung interest. Kaya ito ay hindi dole-out in that sense. It is subsidized in the sense na walang collateral at malaki ang pwedeng ipautang at mahaba ang panahon ng bayaran ng utang. But it is not a dole-out, it is meant for you to pay back with market interest para sa ganun merong dignidad ang inyong pangalawang hanapbuhay.

Gawin nating gabay sa ating pagsusulong ang bukambibig ni Joe Concepcion. Itong PICC nandito tayo ngayon. Naalala ko ito ay tinayo nung panahon... Ay, no, PTTC, panahon ni Joe Concepcion. At nung panahon niya merong malaking senyas sa labas – “Yes, the Filipino can.” At ito ang mensahe ng ‘Go Negosyo’ – “Yes, the Filipino can be a successful entrepreneur.”

Kaya kayong lahat, “Yes, the government worker can be a successful entrepreneur.” Kaya kayong lahat, mga government workers, talagang kayang-kaya n'yo ito. When we say the Filipino can, kaya ng Pilipino!

Good luck to your second income. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo at the launching of the capital for ‘Go Negosyo, Go Gobyerno’ Program, May 2, 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the launching of the capital for ‘Go Negosyo, Go Gobyerno’ Program

[Delivered at the Philippine Trade Training Center, Pasay City, May 2, 2007]

Microfinance for state workers

Inspirasyon nga ang marami sa inyo dahil nanggagaling sa inyo yung microfinance funds o kaya nanggagaling sa inyo yung training para gumawa ng mga project study na mga simple. Pero dapat kayo rin ay kasama sa makikinabang dahil kayo rin ay mamamayan ng Pilipinas.

At nandito si Myrna Yao, siya yung nag-host sa akin, sa atin. Ilan sa inyo siguro ang nandoon mga female employees. Nung ipinagdiriwang natin yung araw ng kababaihan noong Marso, sinabi ko na bibigyan ang ating mga kawani ng pamahalaan ng pagkakataong makinabang din sa ating mga lumalawak na programa ng microfinance. At ngayon, buong pagmamalaki nating ilulunsad ang puhunang pangnegosyo para sa kawani ng gobyerno o ‘Go Negosyo, Go Gobyerno’. Sabi nga ni Cerge Remonde, “A promise fulfilled”.

Sa programang ito makakahiram nang walang kolateral. Kasi yung microfinance talaga naman walang kolateral. Yung mga small and medium loans meron, yung mga humihiram sa bangko, pero yung microfinance wala. At maaaring bayaran ang utang, ito naman ang kaibahan ninyo doon sa mga microentrepreneurs na iba, kayo ay... Yung iba ang ginagawa doon ay istilo ng mga bombay, every week or every month may pumupunta sa inyo para kubrahin yung mga bahagi ng utang kasi hind ba kung hindi para masigurado na ginagamit ninyo talaga para sa negosyong pinaghiraman ninyo. Pero iba sa pamahalaan kasi meron kayong sweldo lalo na kung kayo ay civil servant mahirap kayong tanggalin sa pwesto unless may kaso kayo. Kaya ang kaibahan ninyo sa karaniwang microentrepreneur ay pwedeng bayaran ang utang ninyo ng kaltas ng sahod. So yun ay isang bentaha ng mga government employees. Kung gusto ninyo, depende sa inyo yun. O kaya pwedeng gawin na yung kooperatiba ninyo ang magbabayad tapos sila na lang ang magkukubra sa inyo. O kaya pwede rin kayong gumawa ng mga kagaya ng mga ordinaryong microfinance, microentrepreneurs gumawa ng inyong sariling mga association. Ganun ang ginagawa ng mga karaniwang microentrepreneur na humihiram sa microfinance. Halimbawa, limang kababaihan o dalawampung kababaihan, sila mismo ay nagsasama-sama, ang utang ng isa ay utang ng lahat. Yan ang pinak essence ng microfinance na nanggaling sa Pakistan, si Dr. Yunus na nanalo ng Nobel prize dito.

Kaya gusto kong atasan ang Philippine Government Employees Association, si Espie Ocampo, na mag-organize nitong mga microfinance associations of five women or 20 women para yung utang ng isa ay utang ng lahat. You are therefore... You are guaranteeing one another, yan ang essence ng microfinance. So may choice kayo: kunin sa sweldo ninyo, yung kooperatiba ang magbabayad muna para sa inyo, o kaya gagawa kayo ng association, self-employment association.

At ang microfinance ay usually maliliit. Makaka-utang ng limanlibong piso nang walang kolateral na babayaran sa loob ng tatlo hanggang anim na buwan. Yan ang usual microfinance.

Subalit kayo, dahil may sweldo kayo, parang yun ang garantiya na mababayaran ang microfinance, pwedeng higit ang ibigay sa inyo ng pamahalaan. Maaaring mapaghiram kayo ng inyong mga kooperatiba at samahan nang hanggang sandaan limampung libong piso. 'di ba, tama yun? Kasi nga ang diperensya, ang kaibahan, meron kayong sweldo na pwedeng gamiting pambayad. At naka record yun sa gobyerno. Yung ibang mga microfinance usually wala silang ibang hanapbuhay kung hindi yun. Kaya yan... At hindi lang yun, hindi three to six months binabayaran, pwede n'yong babayaran hanggang dalawang taon. Kasi gaya nang sabi ko most of you are civil servants. So inaasahan natin na unless may kaso kayo, na konti lang naman sa mga civil servants ang kinakasuhan, ay nandiyan pa kayo hanggang dalawang taon at makasiguradong makakabayad. Kaya meron kayong mga biyaya na hindi maibibigay sa mga karaniwang mga microentrepreneurs.

Kaya bahagi nitong programang ito magkakaroon ng pagkakataon ang ating manggagawa sa gobyerno na matuto sa mga matatagumpay na entrepreneur na handang isalaysay ang kaniyang mga karanasan sa paglulunsad at pagpapalaki ng negosyo. Pero hindi lang yung malalaking negosyante ngayon ang magtuturo sa inyo. Meron ding mga recent entrepreneurs, mga siguro mga limang taon nakaraan o dalawang taon nakaraan, nakahiram ng limang libong piso. Ano ang nagawa nila sa limang libong piso nila. Yun din ay pwedeng magkuwento sa inyo ng kanilang kasaysayan.

At sa bisa ng microfinance, nadadagdagan sa buong Pilipinas ang kapangyarihan ng mga pamilya na iangat ang sarili at umahon sa kahirapan. Nagdadagdag ito sa lata, naglalagay ng pagkain sa mesa, nagpapaaral ng isa o dalawa pang anak in addition to the others.

Ang dahilan kung bakit sa microfinance ay mas mataas ang interest ay may gastos yung nagpapahiram na pumupunta sa inyong lugar. Kasi halos home service ito eh. 'di ba gaya nang sabi ko yung istilong bombay, yung istilong 5-6 pero mas mababa kaysa doon at walang kolateral. Yun ang mga dahilan kung bakit mas mataas ang interest ng microfinance. Ganun pa man sinasabi natin na while kailangan market-oriented yung interest ng microfinance, ang sinasabi natin i-benchmark more or less yung kinukubra ng Quedancor na interes, yun din ang kinukubra ng DSWD ng interes. Kasi gusto natin na pipili kayo ng negosyo kung saan yung kita ninyo ay mababayaran yung interest. Kaya ito ay hindi dole-out in that sense. It is subsidized in the sense na walang collateral at malaki ang pwedeng ipautang at mahaba ang panahon ng bayaran ng utang. But it is not a dole-out, it is meant for you to pay back with market interest para sa ganun merong dignidad ang inyong pangalawang hanapbuhay.

Kaya kayong lahat, "Yes, the government worker can be a successful entrepreneur." Kaya kayong lahat, mga government workers, talagang kayang-kaya n'yo ito. When we say the Filipino can, kaya ng Pilipino!

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the General Body Membership Meeting of the Indian Chamber of Commerce Philippines, Inc.

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the General Body Membership Meeting of the Indian Chamber of Commerce Philippines, Inc.

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Hotel Intercontinental Manila, May 4, 2007]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Secretary Peter Favila. And thank you for leading the competitiveness task force that led to these reforms that Mr. Sitaldas talks about that have made life easier for our Filipino-Indian businessmen.

Mr. Sitaldas and the other officials of the Philippine-Indian Chamber of Commerce; Ambassador Mitter, very nice to have you here; immediate past president, Mr. Vishnu Hathiramani; members of the Indian Chamber of Commerce to the Philippines and leaders of the other important Philippine business organizations who are all here tonight; and I think we should also welcome the new commissioner of the Bureau of Immigration, former Congressman Nonoy Libanan; and other representatives from government agencies who may be here tonight.

I'm very happy to be here with you tonight. And when Ram was talking about how the importance I gave to your chamber because I came at a very... Even if I have a very busy time. You know, I'd like to let you know that the first date that this was set was during the week when my husband had surgery. And I had told my appointments' secretary, "cancel everything except the Indian chamber." But the Lord was very good and you were very good. I got the message saying that you moved your meeting to this date, tonight. So, I'm very thankful for your thoughtfulness, whether it was a coincidence or providential, thank you that you're all here together tonight. And thank you for your prayers for my husband.

I've been with the Indian chamber many times in the past. Because, of course, India is very important. Has been important for many, many years, for centuries. And by history and trade, India has been a partner of the Philippines in building a world of freedom and prosperity. In fact, Ram talked about the free press. I remember when my father was president of the Philippines, he was telling me that the acknowledged leaders of the democratic world, in other words, leaders in democracy in Asia at that time were already at that time India, the Philippines and Japan. So India's democracy is very old, very mature, and that is something we share together.

Though I've been with you many times, my being with you tonight is important, especially important. First of all because we want to support India's "look east policy." We want to take advantage of India's "look east policy." We want to take advantage of India's plans to integrate with both South Asia and Southeast Asia.

We have a big Indian community here in the Philippines. But I know that until the recent years, the Philippines as a whole, as an economy was not very much on India's radar screen. If it look east, it look to the peninsular ASEAN. In other words, it look to Malaysia, Singapore where there are very, very huge Indian populations.

But I am very happy that with the visit of President Kalam and with the participation of Prime Minister Singh in the ASEAN and Southeast Asian Summit, India has seen the Philippines and we are back on the radar screen. And that's one very important reason why this meeting between us is especially important tonight.

Another very important reason why this meeting is truly essential is our recognition and the world's recognition that within the next quarter century India will be one of the world's top economies. And India will become an undeniable driving force behind global economic growth.

So at this point in time, the integrative policies of India are indispensable also to our plans and the plans of our neighbors to build a complete Asian community.

In the past when our neighbors and Southeast Asia were growing — that was in the 1970s — they grew because of a large export market that they were able to penetrate U.S. and Europe. But now because of the growing market of India and China, Asia's growth is no longer export-driven. It is transitioning from being export-driven to being domestically-driven. In other words, Asians producing for Asians because the demand in India, China and Japan now makes up the bulk of the market for our production.

In India itself, of course, the impact will be profound. And we are delighted with the growth of India along with China to add to the power of Japan in the region. In the Philippines, we benefit from this growth. India's awakening can only lift up our nation. This is a positive, healthy development. And it is also clear that there will be political, economic and strategic implications for India and the entire region as a result of India's newfound economic power.

We welcome the economic growth of India. We hope for greater integration between the Philippines and India. And we hope the Philippine-Indian business community will be active in promoting that integration.

Last January in Cebu, the Prime Minister of India joined us, as you know, in the East Asian Summit. That plus the state visit of the president of India last year are the first steps toward closer political, security and economic engagement that will only strengthen the Philippines and strengthen our ties with our new special partner — India.

We're now receiving billions of investments from the U.S., for instance, Texas Instruments has just announced a one billion-dollar investments in the Philippines. From Europe, Shell, for instance, has put in more than five billion dollars so far. From Japan, we have Japanese companies all over Calabarzon. From Korea, in Subic alone, Korea's Hanjin is putting a billion dollars over the next ten years. It has already put about 300 million dollars so far. Hopefully, one day, we will also receive such kinds of investments from India.

And as far as trade is concerned, the internal market demand and domestic consumption of India is having a direct and positive impact on our nation in terms of job creation, investment and balance of trade. Though we are not talking yet about billions of dollars, we are already happy that Indian investors have created jobs in our business process outsourcing, in textile, and in steel. We hope it continues. And once again, we hope the Philippine-Indian business community will be active in tapping the market demand and the domestic consumption of India.

As India becomes a true political and economic giant, its obligations to its neighbors will also increase — it's already increasing — separate from its obligations to its own citizens. Ascendancy on the world stage — as what is happening to India now — carries implications not just for economic development, but for management of our environment on a sustainable basis, and for maintaining broader peace and stability in the region. These are big responsibilities of India now which will be accommodated, which will have to be accommodated in our Philippine bilateral relations with India.

Well, speaking of economic development, we've already talked about the Indian investments here — BPO, steel, textiles and others, retail trade. When the president of India made a state visit to the Philippines, one of his main agenda items was energy. He was here among many other missions to share with us India's Jatropha technology for energy independence. And when I go to India for a state visit sometime late this year, not only will we be talking about economics, not only about energy, but also we will discuss how to cooperate on peace and stability in the region. I hope that when I make that state visit, the leaders of the Indian chamber will join me on the trip.

And India's positive contribution to peace and stability is also behind the policies that we have made to make the visa rules, residence and visitors much easier for the Indian citizens.

Indeed, there is great potential for more collaboration and cooperation between our two countries — your two countries — in both trade, investments and even tourism.

I'm very happy that India has reiterated its unilateral air rights for Philippine aircrafts. It is our Philippine aircraft companies that are now having to purchase their planes that can travel a long distance from the Philippines to India. Right now their long distance planes are going to the United States, so they're buying new ones just to be able to accommodate... Not accommodate, take advantage of the air rights that India is giving the aircrafts in the Philippines.

And as travel becomes easier, not only because of the reduction in red tape on the visas, but also because of more flights, flights on Philippine aircrafts, there is a large role for the Philippine business community to play in the regard of increasing our economic relations. You can contact your counterparts in the Indian business community and they can be the distributors of Philippine exports to India, or you can be the distributors of Indian exports to the Philippines. You can also be the Philippine partners of Indian investments in the Philippines.

Ram talked about pharmaceuticals. Yes, we are buying a lot of pharmaceuticals from India as an important, essential part of our program to provide half-priced medicines for ordinary Filipinos. Most of it is traded by the Philippine International Trading Corporation. But I want to let you know that it is not our policy that PITC will be an exclusive agent. Private companies can also engage in the trade. So I urge Indian businessmen here in the Philippines to go into that trade also and bring in half-priced — half-priced from the point of view of the Philippines — pharmaceuticals from India. Indeed, I hope the Indian chamber will take advantage of that market opportunity.

So there are so many things that we can do especially now with India's economic awakening.

So let me conclude on these final thoughts. I'm bullish on India. I'm bullish on India's ability to help drive positive change in the world. And we here in the Philippines have the unique opportunity to learn from India and create our own path to development. Through our bilateral, political and business relations, and business relations with India and other parts of the world, especially with India, we have the chance, we can learn from India, how India use technology, innovation and change to the advantage of India's economy. We can do that too.

India jumped to what it is today among other things because of technology and innovation. We're also good at technology. In fact, that's why there are many good partnerships between the Indian business community and the Philippine business community on business process outsourcing because we're the two countries who are very good in that today.

And so I count on the Philippine-Indian business community to stand by our side in meeting our common challenges and taking advantage of our common opportunities.

Mabuhay ang Indian Chamber of Commerce in the Philippines!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the General Body Membership Meeting of the Indian Chamber of Commerce Philippines, Inc. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150703/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2017&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremony of the 1st Tripartite National Security Convention
Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremony of the 1st Tripartite National Security Convention

[Organized by the Philippine Association of Detective and Protective Agency Operators (PADPAO), Inc., The Philippine Association of Recognized Security Training Schools (PARSTS), Inc. and the government represented by the Department of Interior and Local Government (DILG) at the Sofitel Philippine Plaza Hotel, CCP Complex, Roxas Blvd., Pasay City, May 5, 2007]

Thank you.

Maraming salamat, Undersecretary Marius Corpus.

Gusto kong batiin din ang ating mga kapulisan sa pamumuno ni Director General Oscar Calderon. At siyempre gusto kong batiin ang lahat ng mga padpao sa pamumuno ni Mr. Ramon Bergado, pangulo, pati na rin ang mga nagtuturo, nag-eensayo sa mga security guards sa pamumuno ni Pangulong Pelegria Tablang. Maaari na kayong makaupo.

Ako ay nasisiyahan na magkasama tayo muli. Naalala ko nagsalita na ako sa harap ng PADPAO noong araw. Hindi kasing-dami ngayon ang nag-a-attend, at kahit na sabado na hindi working day ay narito ako dahil napakahalagang bahagi kayo ng ating sistema ng pambansang seguridad. At itong sistemang ito ang nagpapatupad ng batas at nagpapairal ng kapayapaan at katahimikan sa ating mga pamayanan. Kaya maganda ang inyong partnership sa ating PNP.

At dahil sa inyong pamumuno, mas matiwasay, mas mapayapa, mas panatag ang ating mga lansangan, barangay at sambayanan.

Kaya itong panahon ngayon, panahon ng halalan, nananalangin tayo that violence will not increase. Na hindi lalago nang higit pa ang karahasan pagsapit ng halalan. Kaya nagsusulong tayo — at itong parating nasa likod ako, parati kong nina-nag si General Calderon — sinisikap natin, nagsusulong tayo ng mga masigasig na hakbang upang ipagtanggol ang mga kandidato, ang taong-bayan, at ang mga boto sa mamamayan. At kasama sa mga kandidatong ipinagtatanggol natin ang kanilang... Yung kanilang safety ay yung ‘AGAP,’ ‘di ba?

The political process is just as important as the political outcome. Magiging tunay na... At masisigurado natin na magiging tunay na demokratiko ang halalan at makikita, lilitaw ang niloloob ng sambayanan. Tayong lahat gawin natin ang lahat ng makakaya upang malampasan ng ating demokrasya ang pagsubok nating hinaharap. Tuwing halalan yon ay pagsubok sa demokrasya. Sa ganun lalong patitibayin natin ang pundasyon para sa magandang hinaharap ng ating bansa, ekonomiya at lipunan. Together, we can show the world that Filipinos thrive in a democratic system based on free choice. Hindi matatawaran ang halaga ng matatag na demokrasya upang lumakas ang ekonomiya at sumagana ang mamamayan.

Together, our efforts must be directed at reducing the violence. Kaya naman hinihiling ko sa mga kalahok sa kapulungang ito na pag-ukulan ng pansin kung paano makakatulong ang mga security agency sa pagtiyak ng kaayusan ng darating na halalan.

Nakataya... Ako’y nagpapasalamat din sa sinabi ni Pangulong Bergado na ang inyong institusyon, yung dalawang institusyon, ay suportado ang team unity. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Sana maikuwento n'yo sa lahat ng mga security guards na kasama sa inyong organisasyon at lahat ng mga nag-eensayo sa mga security guards na nakataya sa susunod na halalan ang kinabukasan natin. Ang nakataya at kasama rin sa nakataya ang patuloy na reporma ng ating ekonomiya, ang paglinis ng kapaligiran, ang paghusay ng mga pagamutan, pamumuhunan sa edukasyon, at paglikha ng magandang trabaho.

Sana ipaalam ninyo or ipahayag ninyo o iulit ninyo na that “reforms build; revolt destroys.” And because reforms build kaya naman ako hindi ako nawawalaan ng tutok sa aking trabaho.

Through hard-fought economic reform battles that we have led with the help of some courageous members of Congress, the Philippine economy has finally broken loose from its historic legacy of lethargy.

New revenues, better collection, and a crackdown on tax cheats along with fiscal discipline has put the Philippines on a path to sustainable economic growth and stability. Binibigyang-pansin na ito ng mundo. Kamakailan, nag-annunsiyo ang Texas Instruments ng isang bilyong dolyar na investment upang lalong palakihin ang kanilang operasyon sa Pilipinas.

The Philippines today offers one of the best values in Asia for domestic and foreign investors.

At lalong nagkakaroon ng investments maging mula sa dayuhan o maging pilipino, siyempre mga planta at opisina nila ay mangangailangan ng serbisyo ng security guard agency.

Ang ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya ay nasa bungad ng ating kampanya laban sa kahirapan. Pagsugpo ng kahirapan ang ating pangunahing layunin. Siya ang mananatiling tutok ng aking nalalabing mga taon sa panunungkulan.

Bringing down the budget deficit, which we have been able to do, is just the first step. Sa darating na tatlong taon ihahatid natin sa sambayanan ang mga mararamdamang biyaya mula sa ating mga reporma.

Mabubuo lamang ang reporma kapag nagawa nating mamuhunan sa ating taong-bayan at imprastruktura. Yung puhunan sa ating taong-bayan kasama na nga yung pagtulong upang maging madali para sa mga training schools na magpa-training ng ating security guard. Kasama yan sa puhunan natin sa taong-bayan. At katabi noon, palalakasin pa natin ang pamumuhunan sa ating bansa at sambayanan upang:

Number one. Mapaganda ang imprastruktura upang mahikayat ang mga negosyo na lumago at mag-employo nang higit pa, because more jobs means less poverty. Halimbawa, yung inaayos nating kalsada, yung north expressway patungo doon sa Central Luzon, tuloy ang dami-daming nagtatayo ng negosyo sa Clark. Doon maglalagay ang Texas Instruments ng one billion dollars, pero yung Hanjin nauna pa. Nasimula na yung kanilang one billion dollars, mga 300 million dollars of their one billion dollars nandoon na sa Subic. Naalala ko doon sa Subic nung nagpunta ako sa Hanjin, aba, siguro mga sampung libong mga welders na ang kanilang na-employo. At hindi pa tapos yon dahil hindi pa tapos yung one billion dollars investment nila. Tinanong ko doon sa mga welders, “ano ba yung hanapbuhay niyo dati?” Dati-dati marginal fishermen. Yun bang halos yung iniisda nila, pagkain lang nila, konti lang ang nabebenta sa labas. At as welders, ang laki-laki ng kanilang trabaho, ang laki-laki ng kanilang sweldo. More jobs means less poverty.

Our second program for the next three years is to improve social services such as health insurance subsidies for indigent families and food-for-school programs. Ewan ko kung yung mga security guards ay may Philhealth. Kasi iba-iba kasi ang... ‘di ba iba-iba ang employment arrangements? Merong salaried employment. Pag salaried meron yung... Kasama yun yung sss, kasama na doon ang health insurance. Meron namang iba, it’s contractual. So pagka yun not necessarily may sss. Eh yun ang hinahangad natin lalo na yung mga mahihirap na security guard. At marami akong nakikilalang mahihirap na security guard doon sa mga lugar kung saan maraming mahihirap. Pag tinatanong ko, ano’ng hanapbuhay ng asawa, ng mister niyo, halimbawa, marami doon ang nagsasabing security guard. Yung mga ganung mahihirap na security guard na usually mga extra lang yon ay yun gusto rin natin mabigyan ng Philhealth o health insurance kung hindi sila sakop ng SSS.

At ilan sa mga security guard din natin yung mga anak nila ay nag-aaral sa public school. At ewan ko kung napaalam sa kanila na ngayon sa ating mga public school sa buong NCR ay nagbibigay tayo ng food-for-school. Yung mga bata, isang bata bawat pamilya ay tumatanggap ng isang kilong bigas bawat araw na siya ay pumapasok para makakain yung mga mahihirap na pamilya.

Pangatlong programa natin. Pag-ibayuhin ang suporta sa edukasyon bilang panlaban sa kahirapan sa pamamagitan ng mga mas mahusay na gusali, mga bagong libro at materyales sa pagtuturo, at mga kursong pangkabuhayan gaya nung sinabi ng ating batang security guard, yung ladderized training for security guards na makaaabot sa diplomang Bachelor of Science in Criminology.

Biro niyo ilang... Ilan ba ang kailangan na units para magturo ng Bachelor of Science in Criminology? Kasi... Pero nalaman ko ngayon — alam ko na talagang may ladderized — pero nalaman ko ngayon, 39 units pala ang make-credit sa Bachelor of Science in Criminology. Di ang laki na nang natanggal sa kailangang idagdag na pag-aaralan. At pag kayo ay meron ng degree sa criminology, aba, pwede pa kayong pumasok sa Philippine National Police.

Dahil yung batas ng Philippine National Police kailangan college graduate. At ang Philippine National Police dahil malaki... Lumaki na ang ating budget dahil sa ating mga tax reforms ay nagha-hire ng mga bagong policemen. Kaya tuluy-tuloy ang training dapat para tuluy-tuloy as a security agency o pag natapos sila ng... Ng college graduate sa criminology dahil nagkaroon ng ladderized training ay sa ganun marami pang papasok na handang-handa sa trabaho ng pulis.

Itong ladderized training ay nagpunta nga si Mrs. Tablang sa Malakanyang nung May.. No, April 30, kasi nga ay ipinagdidiriwang natin yung ladderized training, ladderized education. At merong kasunduan ang Philippine National Police at ang Angeles University. So yung mga natututo ng ating mga trainees sa inyong mga training schools, 39 hours of that ay tatanggapin ng Angeles university para sa kanyang kurso ng Bachelor of Science in Criminology. At inaasahan natin na pag yan ay matagumpay ay marami pang ibang mga unibersidad ang gagawa ng kasunduan sa Philippine National Police.

Pang-apat nating programa. Cutting red tape and continuing to reduce production in the system.

At siyempre patuloy tayong makikibaka sa terorismo at magpupunyagi para sa kapayapaan at kasaganaan sa Mindanao. At dito rin sa paglaban ng terorismo, may malaking papel kayo upang ipagtanggol sa krimen at terorismo ang mga sentro ng ating ekonomiya.

Sa ating Human Security Act — eto yung ating bagong anti-terrorism law na hindi pa umiiral ngayon dahil it will be effective after elections — dito may matibay na panangga kayo, kayong mga private security guards at kayong mga pulis, may panangga kayo hindi lamang para sa taong-bayan kung hindi para sa ekonomiya, laban para sa mga laban sa mga puwersa ng kasamaan.

And so there is so much for us to do together. And I suppose if you are supporting team unity, it must be because during this administration, we've been able to work so closely together for the peace and order of our country.

As you close your two-day convention, therefore, my message to you is: “continue to be strong advocates and committed leaders in our campaign for peace and order.”

Mabuhay kayong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Opening Ceremony of the 1st Tripartite National Security Convention. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150649/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2016&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on Vying for Violence-less Elections, May 5, 2007 Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Vying for Violence-less Elections

[Delivered at the Sofitel Philippine Plaza Hotel, Pasay City, May 5, 2007]

The political process is just as important as the political outcome. Magiging tunay na... At masisigurado natin na magiging tunay na demokratiko ang halalan at makikita, lilitaw ang niloloob ng sambayanan. Tayong lahat gawin natin ang lahat ng makakaya upang malampasan ng ating demokrasya ang pagsubok nating hinaharap. Tuwing halalan yon ay pagsubok sa demokrasya. Sa ganun lalong patitibayin natin ang pundasyon para sa magandang hinaharap ng ating bansa, ekonomiya at lipunan. Together, we can show the world that Filipinos thrive in a democratic system based on free choice. Hindi matatawaran ang halaga ng matatag na demokrasya upang lumakas ang ekonomiya at sumagana ang mamamayan.

Together, our efforts must be directed at reducing the violence. Kaya naman hinihiling ko sa mga kalahok sa kapulungang ito na pag-ukulan ng pansin kung paano makakatulong ang mga security agency sa pagtiyak ng kaayusan ng darating na halalan.

Sana maikuwento n'yo sa lahat ng mga security guards na kasama sa inyong organisasyon at lahat ng mga nageensayo sa mga security guards na nakataya sa susunod na halalan ang kinabukasan natin. Ang nakataya at kasama rin sa nakataya ang patuloy na reporma ng ating ekonomiya, ang paglinis ng kapaligiran, ang paghusay ng mga pagamutan, pamumuhunan sa edukasyon, at paglikha ng magandang trabaho.

Sana ipaalam ninyo or ipahayag ninyo o iulit ninyo na that “reforms build; revolt destroys.” And because reforms build kaya naman ako hindi ako nawawalaan ng tutok sa aking trabaho.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Arroyo on Investing on the People and Infrastructure
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Investing on the People and Infrastructure

[Delivered at Sofitel Philippine Plaza Hotel, Pasay City, May 5, 2007]

Investing on the people & infrastructure

Mabubuo lamang ang reporma kapag nagawa nating mamuhunan sa ating taong-bayan at imprastruktura. Yung puhunan sa ating taong-bayan kasama na nga yung pagtulong upang maging madali para sa mga training schools na magpa-training ng ating security guard. Kasama yan sa puhunan natin sa taong-bayan. At katabi noon, palalakasin pa natin ang pamumuhunan sa ating bansa at sambayanan upang:

Number one. Mapaganda ang imprastruktura upang mahikayat ang mga negosyo na lumago at mag-empleyo nang higit pa, because more jobs means less poverty. Halimbawa, yung inaayos nating kalsada, yung North Expressway patungo doon sa Central Luzon, tuloy ang dami-daming nagtatayo ng negosyo sa Clark. Doon maglalagay ang Texas Instruments ng one billion dollars, pero yung Hanjin nauna pa. Nasimula na yung kanilang one billion dollars, mga 300 million dollars of their one billion dollars nandoon na sa Subic. Naalala ko doon sa Subic nung nagpunta ako sa Hanjin, aba, siguro mga sampung libong mga welders na ang kanilang na-empleyo. At hindi pa tapos yon dahil hindi pa tapos yung one billion dollars investment nila. Tinanong ko doon sa mga welders, “ano ba yung hanapbuhay niyo dati?” Dati-dati marginal fishermen. Yun bang halos yung iniisda nila, pagkain lang nila, konti lang ang nabebenta sa labas. At as welders, ang laki-laki ng kanilang trabaho, ang laki-laki ng kanilang sweldo. More jobs means less poverty.

Our second program for the next three years is to improve social services such as health insurance subsidies for indigent families and food-for-school programs. Ewan ko kung yung mga security guards ay may Philhealth. Kasi iba-iba kasi ang... 'di ba iba-iba ang employment arrangements? Merong salaried employment. Pag salaried meron yung... Kasama yun yung sss, kasama na doon ang health insurance. Meron naming iba, it's contractual. So pagka yun not necessarily may SSS. Eh yun ang hinahangad natin lalo na yung mga mahihirap na security guard. At marami akong nakikilalang mahihirap na security guard doon sa mga lugar kung saan maraming mahihirap. Pag tinatanong ko, ano 'ng hanapbuhay ng asawa, ng mister niyo, halimbawa, marami doon ang nagsasabing security guard. Yung mga ganung mahihirap na security guard na usually mga extra lang yon ay yun gusto rin natin mabigyan ng Philhealth o health insurance kung hindi sila sakop ng SSS.

At ilan sa mga security guard din natin yung mga anak nila ay nag-aaral sa public school. At ewan ko kung napaalam sa kanila na ngayon sa ating mga public school sa buong NCR ay nagbibigay tayo ng food-for-school. Yung mga bata, isang batas bawat pamilya ay tumatanggap ng isang kilong bigas bawat araw na siya ay pumapasok para makakain yung mga mahihirap na pamilya.

Pangatlong programa natin. Pag-ibayuhin ang suporta sa edukasyon bilang panlaban sa kahirapan sa pamamagitan ng mga mas mahusay na gusali, mga bagong libro at materyales sa pagtuturo, at mga kursong pangkabuhayan gaya nung sinabi ng ating batang security guard, yung ladderized training for security guards na makaaabot sa diplomang Bachelor of Science in Criminology.

Pang-apat nating programa. Cutting red tape and continuing to reduce production in the system.

At siyempre patuloy tayong makikibaka sa terorismo at magpupunyagi para sa kapayapaan at kasaganaan sa Mindanao. At dito rin sa paglaban ng terorismo, may malaking papel kayo upang ipagtanggol sa krimen at terorismo ang mga sentro ng ating ekonomiya.

Sa ating Human Security Act — eto yung ating bagong anti-terrorism law na hindi pa umiiral ngayon dahil it will be effective after elections — dito may matibay na panangga kayo, kayong mga private security guards at kayong mga pulis, may panangga kayo hindi lamang para sa taong-bayan kung hindi para sa ekonomiya, laban para sa mga laban sa mga puwersa ng kasamaan.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremonies of the 37th Annual Convention of the Philippine College of Physicians

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening Ceremonies of the 37th Annual Convention of the Philippine College of Physicians [Delivered at the Plenary Hall, PICC, Pasay City, May 11, 2007]

Thank you very much.

Thank you very much, Dr. Espie Cabral, Secretary of Social Welfare and Development.

Secretary Alabastro, Chairman Puno, President Juaneza, the other officials of the College of Physicians, physicians, ladies and gentlemen.

I was really looking forward to coming to this convention. It's a special convention for me because it is an opportunity for me and for us to celebrate the excellence, compassion and heroism of our physicians. And more personally for me it is an opportunity to acknowledge once again the admirable proficiency of our doctors such as those doctors who saved the life of my husband. That night when he was undergoing surgery and I was in the chapel, I didn't know whether in a few hour's time I might be a widow. But that trial has reinforced my deep pride, and not only my deep pride because my husband... Because his case was very well-covered in the media, it has reinforced the deep pride of all Filipinos in the Filipino physician.

It has proven and it showed once again how world class our Filipino doctors are. Congratulations to all of you! World class in all fields of medicine and also in caring.

And as I thank the doctors who saved my husband's life, I also thank the doctors who saved the life of so many Filipinos and even foreigners all over the country, all over the world for that matter. And I thank you all for your commitment, not only for your commitment, for your initiating the Health Education Reform Order or HERO which through your support, not only through your support, but through your recommendation was launched through the Executive Order 595.

I was looking at this memorandum of agreement on HERO and it says here that the PCP and PMA help commit to orient teaching personnel of public schools all over the country on preventive health care based on current morbidity and mortality trends, help implement a yearly nationwide medical and dental check up for elementary and high school students as well as teaching and non-teaching personnel of public schools all over the country.

Through this program, we will be able to reach out or continue to reach out to thousands, not thousands, we have half a million teachers and millions of schoolchildren who will hopefully make preventive medicine a way of life for all. And if we are successful in preventive medicine this will spare the government from the burden of dealing with common ailments clogging up our secondary and tertiary health facilities. In fact, if we talk about primary, secondary and tertiary hospitals, one of the reforms we have to make in our country is to really make the division of labor proper between primary, secondary and tertiary.

My understanding is primary health care you do more of the preventive medical attention and primary health care. And then for secondary then you have the simple surgery and delivery and things like that. And then of course the tertiary will be the more specialized services. But what has been happening is that secondary hospitals or the national hospitals continue to deal with primary cases simply because of the demand and the need.

So, what we are doing is we are allocating a very big portion of our budget, DOH budget, to assist the provincial hospitals — who should be primary hospitals — to become secondary hospitals to be able to perform ordinary surgery, to be able to perform deliveries so that tertiary hospitals or national hospitals will take care of the more specialized cases. And then also in these cases the provincial hospitals become more of secondary hospitals then we should really have the community take care of preventive medicine. And HERO is going to do that with the help of our physicians.

By refocusing on prevention rather than cure, by moving from “sick” care to “health” care, by managing illness by actually avoiding it, we can dramatically improve well-being indices across all sectors. The prevention of sickness is a hallmark of our vigilance against deadly diseases.

And I trust in the leadership of our College of Physicians, and I trust in the leadership of our DepEd, our DOH, our CHED, our DOST, our DSWD to help achieve the objective of HERO within the remaining three years of my administration.

We have 19 million students. We have half a million teachers so for us to be able to do what PCP and PMA says that you will do in this memorandum of agreement, we will be needing every willing pair of hands to ensure success and to institutionalize our goals. Thousands of lives continue to be at risk because of ignorance. And it is you who can help make them aware of what they need to do in order to avoid illness.

Health means wealth for a nation aspiring to be economically strong, politically stable and socially responsive. And that is what we are trying to say in this coming election. This coming election is about our future and whether we want to continue on a path of economic reform; clean up our environment so that our people won't get sick; invest in education so that they will be more aware of what they should do with their own bodies and their health; create good jobs so that they will have the wherewithal to avoid sickness; and of course provide better health care.

But in any case, on my part, I will stay focused on my job.

I'm optimistic about the future of the nation and the well-being of our people. Our national agenda is designed to move the nation forward toward greater political stability, economic prosperity and peace and order.

Our economic reforms are in the frontline in our campaign to reduce poverty, because poverty reduction is our overarching goal. And we will continue to focus on it in the remainder of my term.

We worked hard in this first part of my term to reduce the budget deficit but that's just the first step. Over the next three years, we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people. We will increase investment in our country and our people to:

First, improve our infrastructure in order to create an environment in which businesses feel confident to expand and employ more people, because more jobs means less poverty including I hope investing in more private hospitals and health care clinics;

Second, improve social services such as not only the primary, secondary and tertiary hospitals but also health insurance subsidies for indigent families and food-for-school programs so that our children won't go hungry and their families won't go hungry either when we give them a kilo of rice whenever they go to school;

Third, boost educational support in our efforts to reduce poverty by investing in better school buildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators including health educators, doctors and nurses;

And fourth, cutting red tape and continuing to eliminate corruption from the system.

And, of course, we will continue to fight against terrorism and work to bring peace and prosperity to Mindanao. And may I give a special thanks to the doctors who do public health services and even private health services in the far reaches of Mindanao.

In short, I believe in the Philippines. I believe in its hardworking people. And I believe in the physicians of the Philippines.

And I ask you, physicians, let's work hard together until my term ends to make economic prosperity, social justice, and peace and security a reality for a new modernizing Philippines.

HERO is one way by which we can do it. Working to improve the services of our provincial hospitals is another way to do it. Working together to make health insurance more efficient and cover more services is still another way to do it, and the way to do that is to be able to use our taxes properly.

And so, there are so many things that we can do together. But you are such world class physicians, I have no doubt you will also be world class citizens and servants of the people.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Opening Ceremonies of the 37th Annual Convention of the Philippine College of Physicians. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150631/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2015&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on a new paradigm for peace, May 17, 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On a new paradigm for peace

[Delivered at the Makati Shangri-La Hotel, Makati City, May 17, 2007]

A new paradigm for peace

And in the southern part of our country, which I'm sure investors are looking at as well, we have developed a new paradigm for peace. Our Philippine model for dealing with the flashpoint area of Mindanao has focused on a unique combination of soft and hard power to promote peace. We have been able to weld together confidence-building measures grounded on strong interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness; investments in economics and basic infrastructure development; and mutual security arrangements to keep the peace in Mindanao.

The U.S. has worked side by side with our military on a number of community public works projects. The positive impact of these projects cannot be overstated: from health care to building schools, the outreach has built more than buildings, it has built trust, which is the basis for effective and lasting diplomacy.

Besides the U.S., we are also working with a broad range of international organizations and nations from across the spectrum including Sweden, the European Union, Japan, Malaysia, Libya and other OIC countries. This broad-based coalition is working to keep the peace, isolate genuine security threats, and promote the economic well-being of Muslim and Christian residents of Mindanao. This is a model setting a positive example. It is something we all wish to share with the rest of the world. It will lead to a permanent peace in Mindanao.

Yesterday, I was speaking with a foreign reporter and he was telling me that he had been talking with some American generals and they are studying our model in Mindanao hoping to apply it somewhat to Iraq as well.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the revival of the Philippine Corporate Access Days of JP Morgan
Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the revival of the Philippine Corporate Access Days of JP Morgan

[Delivered at the Rizal Ballroom, Makati Shangri-La Hotel, Makati City, May 17, 2007]

Thank very much, Justice Vitug.

Mr. Dybuncio, investors, participants in this conference, ladies and gentlemen:

First of all, thank you to JP Morgan for reviving the Philippine Corporate Access Days after eight years. Welcome back to the Philippines!

It's a good time for you to be back in the Philippines. Last Monday, Filipinos demonstrated our political stability in peaceful, fair and free elections. The national elections are just starting their count, but in the congressional and local elections, the victory of the overwhelming majority of candidates sympathetic to the administration shows a vote for political stability and economic reform.

And the results will be a focus by our administration on continued economic reform — pro-growth, pro-trade and pro-investment strategies — that help lift up our people from poverty and help bring the Philippines, finally, into contention as a real investment destination. I think we are the best value in Asia today.

Mr. Dybuncio has said many things about why we are and I won't have to repeat all of them. I would just like to say in summing up what he said, that our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in a decade. Politics will not alter the course of our economic comeback. It won't undo our economic progress. The recent decision by Texas Instruments to invest an additional one billion U.S. dollars in the Philippines is a strong endorsement of our economic program.

Through hard-fought economic reform battles that we have led with some courageous members of Congress, the Philippine economy has finally broken loose of its historic legacy of lethargy. New revenues, better collection of revenue and a crackdown on tax cheats along with fiscal discipline has put the Philippines on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. And your coming back here shows that the world is taking notice. And I will repeat, I believe the Philippines offers one of the best values in Asia for domestic and foreign investors.

The biggest single act that led to the surge in our economy was the passage of our value-added tax. In one bold stroke it raised enormous revenue. It also sent an unmistakable signal that we are serious about moving the nation forward. That isn't all, though. Our complete focus on the economy — fiscal discipline, a balanced budget and the need for long overdue human and physical infrastructure improvements, investments — help round out our economic gain. Our efforts are paying off in a strong peso, low inflation, a robust stock market — which we are relying on you to continue — rapid inflows of foreign investment and almost six million new jobs in the last six years. Our average unemployment rate is the lowest among several administrations. Our poverty rate is the lowest as well.

And I don't want to keep, I mean, don't think I should stop stressing that there has been a strong increase in investments. Not just Texas instruments but this is happening across the board in a number of industries. We are working to ensure this will be sustained. There had been notable successes, indeed, but much more can and will be done. We are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by, as I said earlier, making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, health care and training along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines.

We take great pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. We are proud of the fact that we are prepaying external debts, optimistic that we will soon balance the budget, and we are making sure to use the gains, as I said, to invest in vital social and economic needs. And let me be very clear: I will not sacrifice long-term gains for short-term political expediency.

And in the southern part of our country, which I'm sure investors are looking at as well, we have developed a new paradigm for peace. Our Philippine model for dealing with the flashpoint area of Mindanao has focused on a unique combination of soft and hard power to promote peace. We have been able to weld together confidence-building measures grounded on strong interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness; investments in economics and basic infrastructure development; and mutual security arrangements to keep the peace in Mindanao.

The U.S. has worked side by side with our military on a number of community public works projects. The positive impact of these projects cannot be overstated: from health care to building schools, the outreach has built more than buildings, it has built trust, which is the basis for effective and lasting diplomacy.

Besides the U.S., we are also working with a broad range of international organizations and nations from across the spectrum including Sweden, the European union, Japan, Malaysia, Libya and other OIC countries. This broad-based coalition is working to keep the peace and isolate genuine security threats and promote the economic well-being of Muslim and Christian residents of Mindanao. This is a model setting a positive example. It is something we all wish to share with the rest of the world. It will lead to a permanent peace in Mindanao.

Yesterday, I was speaking with a foreign reporter and he was telling me that he had been talking with some American generals and they are studying our model in Mindanao hoping to apply it somewhat to Iraq as well.

But, to come back to the Philippines as you are I hope doing, in Mindanao and in the whole Philippines the short answer to continuing the economic growth is summed in three words: invest, invest, invest.

And that is why I would like to end by repeating your theme, "welcome back to the Philippines!"

Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Revival of the Philippine Corporate Access Days of JP Morgan. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150606/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2013&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Japan Business Seminar

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Japan Business Seminar

[Delivered at the Kaikan Tokyo Hotel, Tokyo, Japan, May 23, 2007]

Thank you. Thank you Ambassador Siazon.

Other officials of the Philippine government; Chairman (Tohru) Tsuji; Chairman of the Marubeni and Chairman of the JPECC; Chairman Laurel of PHILJECC; ladies and gentlemen.

First of all, I'd like to begin by thanking and congratulating the organizers and co-organizers of this event. And to say that we are elated to see all of you in this business seminar.

Japanese-Philippine relations have never been stronger: there has been a welcome influx in Japanese tourists, an impressive upswing in Japanese direct investment, and in another notable area, Japan has made a major contribution to peace and stability in Mindanao in Southern Philippines.

The strengthening of economic ties between our two nations has been based in part on the growing strength of the Philippine economy which our two speakers have already discussed. It is providing more and better investment opportunities for Japanese companies.

The Philippines is a competitive location for all companies looking to establish or expand their operations in the Asia-Pacific region. We are right in the middle of this region. We offer a strategic location in a fast-growing region. Our workforce is well educated, productive and English speaking. Our strength lies in education and training of our people and the package of reforms that we have done.

Through hard-fought economic reform battles we have led, the Philippine economy has finally broken loose of its lethargic economic legacy. New revenues, better collection and a crackdown on tax evaders along with fiscal discipline has put the Philippines on a path to permanent economic growth and stability.

There has been a sea change in the Philippines in the past few years. We have broken the back of fiscal irresponsibility. With our revenue, fiscal and investment policies we are charting a new economic course. Our fiscal performance in the past few years is a reflection of the significant progress we have made in putting our fiscal house in order. We have lowered our budget deficit. We have raised unprecedented amounts of revenue. We demonstrated that we have the ability to keep our budget under control. We have delivered 25 consecutive quarters of economic growth. And if you will remember, some of the quarters of this years 2001 to 2007, some of our neighbors experience recession during that period but our economic growth was consistent quarter after quarter. Our commitment to make the difficult decisions to reform our economy has been a major contributor to these achievements.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in more of a decade. UBS recently said in a research report that the Philippines is one of the few countries that will experience stronger growth this year than in 2006.

To instill permanent change because we want this growth and development to be permanent, we will continue the reforms. The short answer to continuing the economic growth is summed in three words: invest, invest, invest. We are committed to raising the revenues needed to balance our budget and to invest in our country and our people. We are following up the pain of tax raising measures with the gain that come from significant investments in people and projects. We are continuing a balanced path of targeted investment and overall restraint while enhancing our revenues. That way we will truly ensure that the progress cannot be reversed.

We are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in human capital like education, health care, social services and training along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines. This, we hope in turn, will in turn will attract more foreign investments such as yours and create more jobs, ultimately improving the lives of our people.

Our strategy for the Philippines is to improve and strengthen global competitiveness. That's why we emphasize investment in physical infrastructure and in human capital, also in efficient access to financing, and in lower transaction flows and cost of doing business by cutting down red tape and minimizing corruption.

We have undertaken a strong and steady effort to curb graft and corruption through criminal justice, administrative controls and procedural reforms. This effort is focused on the tax and customs collection agencies, which as a result have improved their performance in recent years; also agencies that are in the frontline of day-to-day public services; and of day-to-day dealings with businessmen; and local governments. We take this issue very seriously. And we are pleased that progress is being made.

We take great pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. We are proud of the fact that external debt is being prepaid. We are attempting to balance the budget in 2008, two years ahead of schedule based on our Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan. And we are making sure as I've said earlier to use the gains to invest in vital social and economic needs. We will not sacrifice long term gains for short term political expediency.

Chairman (Tohru) Tsuji said that about ten days ago, Filipinos demonstrated our political stability through peaceful, fair and free elections. The message of our elections was that the Philippine economy is stable and strong. And as Chairman (Tohru) Tsuji said, even as the national elections are still being canvassed, in the congressional and local elections, the results are already very clear, an overwhelming majority of candidates sympathetic to the administration has emerged victorious. Some of them are here with us today the justly elected congressman from Batangas, Congressman Mandanas; the justly elected congressman from Bicol, Congressman Lagman and in fact, the wife of our chairman of the Technical and Education Skills Development Authority who's also here today has just been reelected in her constituency and our foreign minister has given us a new member of Congress in his son. And they are here, I suppose as a way of demonstrating, the path we have set for economic reform has not been upset by partisan politics. Politics will not undo our economic progress.

We can continue on the path we have set for putting people ahead of politics by focusing relentlessly on the economy. Our administration will focus on pro-growth, pro-trade and pro-investment strategies that help lift up our people from poverty and help the Philippines be in contention as a real investment destination. We are a good business environment getting even better.

The world is taking notice; we know that our Japanese friends and investors are. In fact, late last year, the company of Chairman Suji, Marubeni and Tokyo Electric Power purchased power plants in the Philippines for some $3.5 billion and announced another $500 million dollars expansion, the biggest single investment package by a Japanese group in the Philippines. Earlier this year, as mentioned by our chairman of PHILJEC, Mr. Francis Laurel, we attended the groundbreaking of a new Toyota transmission production facility in south of Manila.

The strong increase in investment has also recently been anchored by the announcement of an American company Texas Instruments to invest $1 billion to build a chip plant in the Philippines, which they chose over other locations including china. Korea's Hanjin is constructing a billion dollar shipyard north of Manila similar to Tsuneishi's $600 million shipyard in the Philippine island of Cebu. This is happening across the board in a number of industries. We are working to ensure that this will be sustained.

The Philippines has arrived. It is one of the best values for money in Asia for investors. The Marubeni-Tokyo electric investment, the Texas Instruments investment, the Hanjin investment, the Tsuneishi investment, the Toyota investment and many more across the board in a number of industries are the validation that our strategy is working.

We also like to think that the Texas Instruments investment is a validation of the quality of the Filipino worker and the quality of the infrastructure and facilities at the Clark Freeport Zone in my home province where the new plant will be located. And we worked hard to present them and other investors like you with an incentive package that is very competitive.

The Japanese businesses and the Japanese government through aid, trade and investment, have been longstanding partners of the Philippines.

Japan is indeed an important partner. And as mentioned by Chairman Suji, the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement is a milestone in our relationship. And we have here also in our delegation the Chairman of the foreign relations committee of the Senate, Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago, who will shepherd and sponsor the ratification of the agreement in the Senate. The Japan-Philippine Economic Partnership Agreement is about bringing advantages to both nations while eliminating disadvantages. The implementation of any free trade agreement requires adjustment for both parties, but this agreement will benefit both of our economies.

The agreement will bring about liberalization of trade and services between our two countries, facilitation and greater liberalization of investment, and enhanced technical cooperation and capacity building. It will promote an increased flow of resources and help create a bigger market that will provide greater opportunities and larger economies of scale for both Philippine and Japanese businesses.

It will improve access of Philippine products and services for the Japanese market. It will immediately have a positive impact on Filipino farmers, fishermen and food processors because bananas, pineapples, crabs, shrimps, and chicken and tuna from the Philippines will have better access in Japan. Japanese industries on the other hand will be able to supply the Philippine manufacturing sector with critical inputs like Japanese specialty steel products, auto and auto parts, and electrical and electronic appliances and parts. Textiles and apparel will enjoy market access mutually in both countries, and with limited exceptions, the agreement enhances Philippine service providers' access to the Japanese market and guarantees non-discriminatory treatment. And for the first time, a historic first, Japan will accept foreign health workers — Filipino nurses and caregivers who are in great demand all over the world. On top of this, we hope to see more trade in business outsourcing which was mentioned by Mr. Laurel, and tourism, in maritime and air transport, in banking and telecommunications.

In sum, Japan is a valued development, trade and investment partner of the Philippines. And we Filipinos would like to see a further intensification and deepening of these cooperative links. More investment, more trade and trade agreements, more cooperation on peace in Mindanao, more visits and exchanges are all welcome.

And so we urge you, participants in this business seminar and leaders of the Japanese business community to come to the Philippines and explore all that the country has to offer you and your business.

Once again we thank the organizers and participants of this event for showing your interest in our country. Hope to see you there in the Philippines.

Arigato, thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Japan Business Seminar. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150551/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2011&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the conference dinner with Asian leaders

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the conference dinner with Asian leaders

[Delivered at the Peacock Room, Imperial Hotel Tokyo, Japan, May 24, 2007]

Thank you very much.

Prime Minister Abe; Chairman Sugita; Prime Minister Badawi; Vice President Kalla of Indonesia; Deputy Prime Minister Kim of Vietnam; Minister of Commerce Nath of India; Former Prime Minister of Korea, Madame Han; Excellency, Former Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore; Mitarai San, Chairman of Keidanren; other officials of Japan and other leaders from all over the world; ladies and gentlemen:

We thank Nikkei Shimbun for the hospitality extended to all of us and we pay tribute to its abiding vision in the future of Asia.

We are also glad for the opportunity tonight to hear such an important and comprehensive message from Prime Minister Abe about global warming. As the new generation of leadership of the second largest economy in the world and the largest in Asia, Prime Minister Abe is a valued partner of the developing ASEAN community and major leader of the broader East Asian community. And now, following his initiatives in the Cebu Summit last January and its all important pronouncement tonight, a leader of sustainable development in the entire world.

The concept of an East Asian community, which has been the subject matter of our talks today, has become exciting because of the success of the launching of the East Asian Summit in Kuala Lumpur two years ago under the leadership of our first chairman, Prime Minister Abdullah Badawi.

Thus, it is our great honor tonight to have both Prime Minister Abe and Prime Minister Abdullah here with us. For us in the Philippines, these two gentlemen and the countries they lead are valuable allies in our quest for permanent peace in Mindanao.

In Mindanao, Japan has joined the international monitoring team led by Malaysia to help nurture the peace talks there to a successful conclusion. Malaysia has been facilitating the peace talks — and I thank Prime Minister Badawi for that — while Japan has been making significant economic investments to build up the economy of Mindanao — and I thank Prime Minister Abe for that.

Through the valuable support of our two friends, Malaysia and Japan, the role of “soft power” — that is non-military activities — has been the most significant development in the Mindanao peace process. The Philippines with their help and with the help of other very important countries like Indonesia who heads the committee of the 8 of the OICs to monitor the peace agreement with the MNLF, we have truly been able to forge a new paradigm for peace in Mindanao. This paradigm offers more soft than hard power. It relies on interfaith dialogue and an expanding cast of international players to keep the peace.

Japan’s involvement in keeping the peace in Mindanao inspires the Philippines to strongly encourage Japan to expand the present concept of collective security. We would like to see Japan playing a leading role in contributing to community building in the region, in leading us in the fight against global warming, and in maintaining and pursuing international peace and security as we try to forge the East Asia community of our dreams, a dream that gained momentum with the first East Asian Summit in Kuala Lumpur.

Japan's values of peace with strength, innovative enterprise, green energy and enviro-technology can help save the world from a scenario of strife and hunger, ignorance and disease. And that is the framework and the vision and the strategy that Prime Minister Abe has shared with us tonight.

Japan has the political, economic and cultural power to help the region and the world choose the right path in the crossroad of the 21st century. It has the power to help the region and the world stick to that path for the harmony and prosperity of mankind especially Asia as well as its sustainable development.

Ladies and gentlemen, there is much work ahead for all of us in Asia. Events such as the Nikkei forum play an important role in bringing us even closer to the goal of "deepening cooperation towards a true community." I thank Nikkei and all of the attendees of this forum for your valuable contribution towards meeting this goal of deepening integration and deepening integration towards sustainable development.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Conference Dinner with Asian Leaders. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150153/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2009&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during a Meeting with the Filipino Community Leaders in Japan

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During a Meeting with the Filipino Community Leaders in Japan

[Delivered at the Botan Room, Imperial Hotel Tokyo, Japan, May 24, 2007]

Maraming salamat Maraming salamat, Ambassador Jun Siazon.

Mga mimamahala kong lider ng Filipino community, maraming salamat at kayo'y pumunta sa kabila ng ito ay working day. Talagang alam ko ilan diyan sa inyo ay nagsakripisyo nag-bus mula sa Osaka, nag-eroplano mula sa Hokaido. Kaya maraming salamat kahit na ito ay mahirap na araw para magkita-kita tayo. Talagang nagpapasalamat ako dito sa pagkakataong magkasama na naman tayo.

Una sa lahat, ibig kong muling ipahayag ang malaking respeto sa inyo at sa inyong sakripisyo at malasakit, malasakit sa inyong trabaho, malasakit sa inyong pamilya, malasakit sa ating bansa.

Ilang beses na akong napunta rito, at ilang beses na tayong nagkita. Naalala ko noong 2001, walong milyong Pilipino ang nasa ibayong dagat. Ngayon 2007, walong milyong Pilipino pa rin dahil habang may lumalabas, mayroon ding umuwi. Ngunit kung ang pag-uusapan natin ang remittances, noong 2001, ang remittances ng mga Pilipino sa ibayong dagat ay seven billion dollars habang ngayon ay halos nagdoble na at naging 13 billion U.S. dollars kahit na pareho ang numero.

Balita ng mga nagsusubaybay sa ekonomiya na kayong mga OFW ay nagsisimula nang mag-invest ng inyong kita sa ating bansa, sa halip na ginagamit lamang itong mga remittances para suportahan ang inyong mga pamilya. Kaya gaya nang sabi ko noon at natutupad na yata ngayon, dapat ang tawag sa inyo ay hindi na Overseas Filipino Workers o OFW kung hindi OFI or Overseas Filipino Investors. Maraming salamat sa inyong pamumuhunan sa ating bansa.

Salamat din sa ating mga Pilipinong marino sa Hapon na nagsusuporta sa ating mga marino sa Pilipinas. At sana nga sa inyong pagsusuporta, gaya nang sabi ni Captain Baes, itong ating mga marinerong Pilipino ay magiging mga marinerong opisyal o managers ng mga barko ng sa ganun ay lalong aangat pa ang lata para sa pamilya.

Itong ginagawa ngayon ng ating mga Pilipino sa ibayong dagat na dumoble ang ipinapauwi sa ating bansa, ito ang tinatawag na financial freedom. Ibig sabihin noon hindi tumitigil sa nagpapadala ng sapat na pondo para isustento ang batayang mga pangangailangan ng isang pamilya.

Nakikita natin na tinatanaw ninyo na kasing importante ang nagkakaipon ng sapat na savings at ginagamit itong salaping katas ng inyong sikap bilang solid working capital. At ito na nga ang financial freedom ng OFW na maging OFI at gamitin ang inyong iniipon bilang puhunan sa paghahanda sa kinabukasan ninyo at inyong mga pamilya.

Napag-alaman ko, na ngayon, lumalaki ang remittances na ginagamit patungo sa human resource capital sa pamamagitan ng edukasyon, at kasama na dito yung mga kontribusyon ninyo sa programang classroom galing sa mamamayan abroad. Maraming salamat doon sa mga nagbibigay ng classroom.

Yung remittances din ninyo ay namumuhunan sa health care. Ito ay bahagi ng human capital, health care ng inyong mga alaga. Pero isang malaking pagbabago, ginagamit din ninyo ang remittances, ayon sa mga sumusubaybay, sa pamumuhunan sa real estate kasama ang pagbili ng lupa at pagtayo ng tahanan. Alam ba ninyo na ang ating real estate market na napakamasigasig ngayon, kwarenta porsiyento ay nanggagaling sa ating overseas Filipino workers or overseas Filipino investors. Kayo ang nagpabuhay muli ng ating housing at real estate industry.

Nasubaybayan din ng mga tumitingin kung saan ninyo dinadala yung inyong mga remittances na kayo rin ang naglalagay ng financial at capital investments. Meron nga akong mga nakilalang mga overseas Filipinos na naglalagay ng pera sa stock market, meron ding mga bumibili ng government bonds at treasury bills. Ano pa yun, Governor Tetangco ng Central Bank, saan pa sila naglalagay? Mutual funds.

Kaya ito ay isang malaking ginagawa ninyo at sabi nga ni Captain Baes, sana makahanap pa ng mga magandang paglalagyan ninyo ng financial instruments.

Kahapon ay nagpunta sa akin yung isang securities company, yung Aizawa, at siya ay nagtayo ng Philippine Fund para yung mga may puhunan — of course, yung kanyang main market yata ay yung mga matatandang mga Hapon na meron silang savings, meron silang pension or lump sum at hindi na sila puwedeng magtrabaho, hindi na sila puwedeng magnegosyo dahil matanda na sila — passive investment. Ito ay puwedeng ilagay sa pondong ito.

At isa pang nakikita natin na humihigit ang mga remittances na pinapadala sa mga business ventures gaya ng mga maliliit or medium-scale enterprises. Kay a dumodoble ang remittances kahit na hindi nagpapalit ang bilang ng mga Overseas Filipino, nakikita na nagpapalit ang kultura ng mga remittances.

Ngunit dito sa Hapon, habang binabati at ipinagdidiriwang natin na dumodoble ang pinadadala ng karaniwang Filipino sa Pilipinas, alam natin naman na maraming nawalan ng trabaho noong naghigpit ang Hapon sa mga entertainers. Kaya naman, gaya nang sabi ni Captain Baes, binuksan ng pamahalaan noong Marso doon sa Intramuros iyong National Reintegration Center para sa mga OFW, at nilagay natin ito sa Intramuros. Sana kayo dahil kayo ay mga lidars, kung meron kayong mga kilala na i-stranded tuloy at umuwi, sana ipaabot ninyo at kung meron pa kayong contact sa kanila, yung mga kaibigan nawalan ng trabaho na gamitin itong Re-integration Center sa Intramuros, upang mapadali ang pagsisimula ng panibagong buhay pagbalik sa Pilipinas.

Kung tutuusin natin, ang ninanais natin naman talaga ay yung araw when going abroad for a job is a career option, not the only choice for a hardworking Filipino.

Kaya naman ang ating mga plano sa ekonomiya ay nakatukoy na payagan ang Pilipinas na lumaya na dito sa sistemang kailangan pang mag-abroad upang magkaroon ng disentang hanapbuhay. Kaya nakatutok tayo sa ekonomiya at pinapaasenso ang mga rehiyon ng ating bansa. Doon sa Luzon Urban Beltway mula sa Subic hanggang Metro Manila hanggang Batangas Port, doon natin inaalok na pumunta yung mga industriya.

Doon naman sa North Luzon, dagidiay anak ti amyanan, dagidiay kakailyan ni Ambassador Siazon ken kailyan ni mamang ko nga Ilokano — doon naman ay nilalagay natin ang puhunan para magkaroon ng magandang agribusiness, ganun din sa Mindanao.

At doon naman sa Central Philippines, doon sa lugar ni Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago ay doon naman natin dini-develop yung turismo ng ating bansa. Kaya naman tuloy doon sa lugar ni Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago, doon sa Iloilo ay naglagay tayo — nakabukas na, ready to operate anytime ang isang bagong international airport. Ganun ang ating mga ginawang puhunan. Dahil kailangang ipamudmod natin ang kayamanan upang makahanap ng trabaho ang ating taumbayan sa sariling bayan. Naglilikha tayo ng mga trabaho sa pamamagitan ng pagtukoy sa mga prayoridad na sektor.

Siyanga pala, meron pang isang rehiyon, ito naman yung cuts along the length of all these four Super Regions I talked about. Mula Baguio hanggang Clark-Subic, hanggang Metro Manila, hanggang Cebu, hanggang Davao, yan ang ating cyber corridor kung saan nagkakaroon tayo ng napakaraming mga call centers at business process outsourcing. Yung mga kabataan nga na nagtrabaho na doon, sinasabi nila sa akin, salamat at lumawak ang ating business process outsourcing industry dahil hindi na sila kailangan mag-abroad.

Noong 2001, noong ako ay bagong Pangulo, dalawang libo pa lamang ang mga nagtrabaho sa BPO. Ngayon 250,000 na sa loob ng anim na taon at naging two billion-dollar industry na.

Nabanggit ni Captain Baes yung halalan. Doon sa halalan noong isang linggo ipinakita ng mga Pilipino ang katatagan ng ating pulitika sa pamamagitan ng mapayapa, patas at malayang halalan. Ang mensahe ay matatag at malakas ang ekonomiya. Hindi nasisira ng pulitika ang landas na itinakda natin para sa reporma sa ekonomiya. Hindi mabubura ang progreso ng ating ekonomiya. Mukhang nakaabot na ang ating ekonomiya sa bagong antas ng maturity at katatagan. Pinakamaganda nga ang sukat ng ating ekonomiya sa loob ng ilang dekada, ngunitkailangan ipagpatuloy natin ito. At gaya nang sinasabi ni Captain Baes, isang paraan kung papano natin ipagpapatuloy ito ay pagkakaisa. Sa ibabaw ng pagkakaisa, ang maikling sagot sa kung papano natin ipagpapatuloy ang paglago ng ekonomiya ay nasusuma sa tatlong salita: invest, invest, invest. Kayo, nag-iinvest na. Maraming salamat doon.

Itong mga ginagawa naman ng gobyerno ay kahit maraming nagalit, naglagay tayo ng mga bagong buwis. Kasi noong araw panay utang ang pinanggagalingan ng ating imprastruktura. Ngayon naglagay tayo ng mga bagong buwis, kailangang sundan natin ang sakit ng pagtaas ng buwis sa pakinabang na nanggagaling lamang sa makabuluhang investment sa tao at sa mga proyekto. Sa ganoong paraan lamang natin masisiguro na ang kaunlaran ay hindi na mababaliktad.

Kaya habang ang ating ekonomiya ay nakaabot sa bagong antas ng maturity at katatagan na pinakamalalakas ang ating growth rate, ang ating interest rate, ang ating iba't-ibang mga measures sa loob ng ilang dekada, Hindi tayo dapat magpahinga, kung Hindi sumulong at isustento ang momentum. At upang maging permanente ang pagbabago, gagawa tayo ng matagal nang dapat ginawang investment sa human at physical infrastructure, gaya nang ginagawa ng ating mga overseas Filipino investors, kasama dito naman sa panig ngpamahalaan ang bilyung-bilyong pisong ginagastos na natin ngayon sa edukasyon, kalusugan at training. Kasama ng bilyung-bilyon sa mga bagong iulay, kalsada, pantalan upang i-angat ang kakayahan ng Pilipinas sa kumpetensiya.

Pag sinasabi natin na naglalagay tayo ng bilyon sa training, hindi ibig sabihin na tayo ang nagti-train, na gobyerno ang nagti-train kasi maraming private sector training centers or maraming private sector vocational and technical schools, maraming private sector na marine academies. Ang ginagawa natin ay mga scholarship para mas lalong makapasok ang ating karaniwang Pilipinong naghahanap ng mas magandang trabaho at mas magandang kita.

Ito namang ating ginagawang investments sa tao at saka sa imprastruktura ay nag-aaliw naman ng mga investments ng private sector, foreign investments, Filipino investment at naglilikha ng higit na trabaho.

Yaong halalan, hindi pa tapos ang bilangan para sa mga senador, ngunit sa mga kongresista at mga LGU, nakararaming di hamak sa mga nanalo ay kaalyado ng administrasyon. Kaya puwede talaga tayong manawagan ng pagkakaisa, at kaya rin makakapagpatuloy tayo sa landas kung saan inuuna natin ang taumbayan kaysa sa pulitika, yan yata ang mensahe ni Captain Baes, sa pamamagitan ng pagtukoy sa estratehiyang maka-kaunlaran, maka-kalakal atmaka-investment na nakakatulong i-ahon ang ating taumbayan mula sa kahirapan, at, tinutulungan ang Pilipinas na sa wakas maging isang tunay na pinupuntahan ng investments.

Hong mga investments na kailangan natin para magkaroon ng trabaho. Kamakailan lamang, nagdesisyon ang Marubeni at Tokyo Electric na mamuhunan sa Pilipinas ngfour billion U.S. dollars sa ating bansa. Ito ay ang pinakamalaking investment ng Hapon sa buong kasaysayan ng Pilipinas. Ito ay malakas na endorso sa ating programang pang-ekonomiya.

Kapag naipasa na ang Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement sa ating Senado, at si Senator Miriam Defensor-Santiago ang magiging sponsor noon, higitpang luluwag ang pintuan ng Hapon sa mga manggagawang Pilipino, lalo na yung mga nurse at caregivers, hihigit rin ang kalakal at serhisyo sa dalawang bansa, hihigit din maging mas madali at bukas ang investments, at dadagdagan ang tulong ng Hapon sa technical cooperation at capability-building.

Kaya sinasabi mo Captain Baes na sana makipag-ugnay dito sa mga host countries, yung kultura, yung lengguwahe kasama iyon doon sa ating Japan-Philipping Economic Partnership Agreement. Lalong makakakilos ang puhunang Hapon, lalong makakakilos ang manggagawang Pilipino. Lalaki ang merkado, lalaki ang oportunidad para sa mga negosyante maging Pilipino o Hapon.

At para sa ating bansa, lalong bubukas ang pintuan ng Hapon sa mga produkto at serbisyo ng Pilipinas. Agad-agad magkakaroon ng positibong epekto sa ating mga magsasaka, mangingisda at food processors dahil ang mga saging, pinya, alimango, hipon, asukal, manok at tuna ay higit na makakaabot dahil ang customs duties ng Hapon ay tatanggalin pagpasok noong mga produktong yun dito. tama ba, Peter? Tama ba iyon, kasi si Secretary Favila ang nag-negotiate noon.

Magkakaroon naman ng agaran at pang-matagalang benepisyo sa ating mga industriya sa Pilipinas, dahil ang Pilipinas ay makakasiguro sa regular na supply ng mga importanteng materyal gay a ng mga espesyal na steel products ng Hapon, sasakyan at auto parts, at mga gamit at parts na electrical at electronics sa sektor ng mga pabrika. Kaya kung mas madali sa kanilang mag-angat nitong mga raw materials na ito, mas din silang makaka-produce, mas makapagbigay ng trabaho sa mga pabrika.

At yung mga tela at damit ay kapwa tatanggalin ang customs duties sa isa't-isa. Di ba ang mamahal ng mga damit dito sa Hapon? Eh, puwede nang makapasok ng malaya at walang buwis din ano, Peter, – pag na-ratify ng Senado – ang mga damit na manggagaling sa Pilipinas.

Sinisiguro rin na maliban sa Hang mga hindi sinaling sektor, halimbawa, nga yung mga entertainers dati na nahigpitant mananatiling mahigpit. Pero sa ibang mga sektor ay walang diskriminasyon sa mga serbisyonag nagmumula sa Pilipinas. Inaasahang lalawak ang turismo, biyahe sa barko, biyahe sa eroplano, information technology at banking.

Sa anumang sukat, kasalukuyang pinakamalakas na relasyon sa pagitan ng Pilipinas at Hapon ngayon. Maraming turistang Hapong bumibisita sa Pilipinas. Kahanga-hanga ang pag-angat ng investments sa Pilipinas mula sa Hapon. Ah, binanggit ko nga yung Marubeni and Tokyo Electric, four billion dollars; yung Sumitomo maglalagay ng one billion dollars sa ating mining, at iba pa.

At sa isa pang kapansin-pansin na larangan, nakagawa ang Hapon ng importanteng kontribusyon sa kapayapaan at katatagan sa Mindanao. Kinsa taga-Mindanao diri? Okay. Ang Hapon, tuladng Pilipinas, ay maka-kapayapaan, demokratiko, at may paggalang sa karapatang-tao. Kaya inaasahan ko na maganda ang pagtrato ng batas ng Hapon sa mga Pilipinong pinapayagan magtrabaho dito pati na rin sa mga barkong Hapon.

Magkasama tayong tumindig at makipagbalikat, upang maitaguyod ang Pilipinas bilang maunlad na bansa para sa lahat ng Pilipino. Ako ay nasisiyahan na makita kayong muli. Ito ay working day kaya hindi natin naimbita ang mas maraming Pilipino. Pero kayo ang mga lidere, kayo na lamang ang magpadala ng ating patuloy na respeto sa mga manggagawa dito sa Hapon.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat at mabuhay ang Pilipinas.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the 13th Nikkei International Conference on the “Future of Asia”
Deepening Cooperation Toward a True Community Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 13th Nikkei International Conference on the “Future of Asia” Deepening Cooperation Toward a True Community

[Delivered at the Imperial Hotel, Tokyo, Japan, May 24, 2007]

I thank Nikkei for inviting me once again to this prestigious forum. It's my honor to be able to speak for the third time. I was here as our moderator said in 2002 and 2003. At that time, on those two times, the topics were: Emerging China and then ASEAN's Role in the Genesis of a New Asian Order. Now I return as current chair of ASEAN and I'm very happy to hear that the theme Deepening Cooperation Toward a True Community was inspired by the events in the ASEAN Summit and East Asian Summit in Cebu that we hosted last January.

It is not only the 10 years after the ASEAN financial crisis that we are commemorating this year. We are also commemorating 40 years of ASEAN.

ASEAN had a vital first 40 years of existence. We are proud of what ASEAN has contributed to world peace, security and economic growth. ASEAN has kept the peace, expanded our economies and drawn closer together through trade, diplomacy and cultural exchange. Last January at the summit in Cebu, we put down a marker to draft an ASEAN charter – this is a down payment on an EU style union.

We took a bold step forward in forging a more unified ASEAN. Bold because of times and bold because we are a very diverse, multi-ethnic, multi-religious region at different levels of social and economic development. It is remarkable that ASEAN has resisted the temptation to drift apart. Instead, we remain on a steady arc of community, of comity, of cooperation.

Yet for all that ASEAN has accomplished, this latest bold step doesn't mean we have won the race. We are in a marathon, not a sprint. Our eye is not just on ASEAN at age 40 Our eye is also on ASEAN at age 80, 40 years from now We must ask: Because we're talking about the future of Asia, we must ask: What will ASEAN look like 40 years from today? If today, we are a market of 500 million people, 40 years from today, we will be a billion people in ASEAN. If today, we are the fastest growing region, in 40 years, we will likely be a more mature, modest growth region. And if today, we are unsure of global security and the threat of upstart nations getting nuclear weapons – what will we face in 40 years?

Each question begs an answer. We need to make sure our answer is consistent with our social needs, we made to make sure our answer embraces a sustainable economic model, we made to make sure our answer ensures regional and global peace.

When we think ahead and ponder the next 40 years, we see increasing prosperity and the possibility of greater income disparity. We see a more peaceful world and nations, more nations with nuclear capability. We see a cleaner environment and the challenge of global warming affecting government policies and our economic model and having a decisive impact on our lives.

All of the hope and anxiety about the future leads us to one conclusion: We must all press for ever closer cooperation in ASEAN and indeed, in all of Asia, if we are to collectively benefit from the good and collectively tackle the big challenges together.

The number of truly globe-size issues we will face in the 21st century will require truly globe-size cooperation. The place to start is building stronger regional entities like ASEAN and expanding their political, economic and security influence to other partners around the world.

This is also true of other pacts, other arrangements, other organizations, other associations. The WTO comes to mind, particularly at this time when the Doha Round is on the ropes. We hope the Doha Round is successful, because it was designed to be the round that would focus on development, to be the round that would bring the benefits of the global trading system to less developed nations.

As an economist and leader of a nation of 85 million, I believe in the value of trade to alleviate poverty and free people to live a better life. Our policy to aggressively engage the regional and global marketplace is perhaps part of the reason why our Philippine economy now has achieved 25 successive quarters of economic growth. And if we are to remember what those 25 quarters were, starting from 2001 up to now 2007, we should recall that some of those years, some of the neighboring countries of the Philippines, some of the neighboring economies, were experiencing recession but not in the Philippines.

Today, exports and imports are booming even as the Peso strengthens; we had our best year ever in foreign direct investment and with our stock market; not only two days ago, not only did our stock market surpass, the free financial crisis levels, it was the highest in the entire 80-year history of our stock exchange. And we have created 6 million new jobs under our administration.

But that doesn't mean we believe trade is pain free; it is not free from pain, not for many people, not for certain industries not for a number of nations. But in the main, it is the wave of the future.

Yet on this road to globalization, the developed nations have let many of the developing nations down. When trade served their interests, it was a green light; now that they might have to give up certain subsidies or markets, the yellow light of caution is up. And there are fears that light may turn to red before this is over.

So while we want a successful trade round, we will not just wait around: We aim to go full speed ahead in the Philippines and in ASEAN to strengthen our economic ties, regardless of what Doha does or does not bring.

As President of the Philippines, I have been aggressive in seeking multilateral and bilateral trade relationships. As current chair of ASEAN, we helped lead the call for the revival of the Doha Round. We helped in our decision to move forward with free trade negotiations. The Free Trade Agreement between ASEAN and China, as well as the FTA between ASEAN and South Korea, are moving into their final stages. It is now up to the ASEAN member countries to individually ratify these two FTAs. We are moving forward with our plans to pursue an ASEAN-EU FTA. Negotiations on the FTA with Japan also hold out a lot of promise. We hope that those involved in the negotiations would find the resolve to agree on the finer points of the draft FTA. For instance, on the rules of origin. So that by the November meeting, we could have a signing of that agreement.

These agreements demonstrate our collective voice in the ASEAN. But more importantly, they reflect our commitment to expanding global trade and investment for the benefit of all.

Because the future will belong to those nations that seek common ground to resolve common problems. This is true in virtually every aspect of our lives: economy, social justice, energy diversification, security. ASEAN is the most tested viable and mature entity at our disposal to propel our relatively smaller ASEAN nations to compete with China, India, the European Union and the US.

At the same time, for ASEAN to become a true expanding union, it must continue to nurture its relations with key partners: Japan, China and South Korea.

President Sugita was talking about our East Asian Summit in Cebu with 16 nations, at a time when the world is experiencing strains on alliances from the WTO to Iraq, vital alliances must be forged new ones to keep the world stable and strong. Some sort of Asian community will be a bold step in that direction.

We look at the experience of the EU, historically, the EU has shown how a region beset by conflict can become a force for peace and security. The same way in our region that has faced many of the same historic divisions, a more united region will also achieve the same.

But also we must recognize that community building is a long process. The EU took 50 years to reach its present stage of integration. So even if they say that we are very diverse, too much has been made of our region's diversity as a barrier. We believe our diversity is a strength not a barrier to an Asian Union. And we learned that from ASEAN.

Over the 40 years, ASEAN has proven that it can make a difference for peace and prosperity in Asia. Despite the diversity of the nations in ASEAN, and it will continue to do more as we build toward an ASEAN community by 2015.

To go back to the ASEAN community, for the East Asian Community that had the second East Asian Summit in Cebu, there is general consensus that the idea of an East Asian community has a more political, rather than geographical definition. In the process of establishing the East Asian community, we look to the engagement of all parties that have a stake in East Asia especially a stake in ASEAN because it is in the framework of ASEAN that we have developed the concept of the East Asian community. For instance, geographically India is not part of East Asia, it's part of South Asia but it is participating in our East Asian Summit. Russia is on the Pacific Ocean but it is still as of now not part of the East Asian Summit that is because economic engagement is a more compelling factor in the minds of our ASEAN brothers than a geographic location.

The East Asian community, we cannot deny is made especially important because of the emergence of China. We view the rise of China as an opportunity, not a threat.

ASEAN's relations, the Philippines's relations with China are now more confident, mature and comprehensive. They are punctuated with substantial and important projects aimed at deepening exchanges on a number of areas, especially trade and investment.

Because the region, certainly comprises at least China, South Korea and Japan, aside from ASEAN and perhaps Australia, New Zealand, cordial and stable relations between China, South Korea and Japan are essential elements of a stable and prosperous East Asia community. And we have faith that relations among them will continue to warm. We are very pleased that ASEAN is able to provide in the plus three summits regular opportunities for Japan, China and South Korea to engage each other in dialogue and consultation. We in the Philippines are pleased to have hosted such a plus three meeting on the margins of the summit in Cebu in January this year.

The relationship between Japan and China is especially important implications. It has especially important implications for regional stability in Asia. And we are happy, very happy to hear all the news all over the world about the increasingly cordial relationship between the two Asian economic giants. We are happy to read even from the editorials of the newspapers in China that one of the reasons for the increasing relationship of trust between Prime Minister Abe and Premier Wen Jiabao of China was their meeting in Cebu last January.

In East Asia, we must forge deeper international cooperation on the initial ideas for a regional security framework and we hope that the forthcoming ASEAN regional forum hosted by the Philippines in Manila this coming August will be a venue for that. We must also forge some kind of cooperation on the mobility of human resources and we must forge understanding on a regional cooperation framework on environment and energy security. This will make the ASEAN community "one caring and sharing community". The ASEAN Region must be committed to the role innovation will play if we are to succeed in a truly sustainable economic model of development. In doing this, innovation, led by countries like Japan which is still the leader in technology is as valuable as political will.

Speaking of Japan, where the population is aging, we must also rationalize age and demography within the ASEAN region to increase the flow of services, talent and knowledge.

And in accordance with the principle of rationalizing, within the ASEAN region, more Filipino nurses and caregivers will come to Japan when our economic partnership agreement – the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement will enter into force.

The Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement or JEPEPA as we call it, will bring about greater liberalization of trade and services between our two countries, it will bring about facilitation and liberalization of investment, it will bring about enhanced technical cooperation and capacity-building. All these will promote an increased flow of resources not just capital resources but human resources and all these will create a bigger market that will provide greater opportunities and larger economies of scale for both Japanese and Philippine and businesses.

Japan is the second largest economy in the world, let's not forget that. Japan is the largest in Asia, let's not forget that. Therefore, Japan is a valued partner of the developing ASEAN community and it is a major member of the broader East Asian community.

Japan has the political, economic and cultural power to help the world choose the right path in the crossroad of the 21st century in the future of Asia. It has the power to help the world stick to that path for the harmony and prosperity of mankind especially in Asia.

Japan's values of peace with strength, innovative enterprise, green energy and enviro-technology can help save the world especially Asia from a scenario of strife and hunger, ignorance and disease.

We in ASEAN, we in the Philippines are proud of the fact that Japan has become such an economic powerhouse these last 40 years. The last 40 years of ASEAN existence. So we in ASEAN like to think we helped play a nurturing role in Japan's becoming such an economic powerhouse.

Japan has been our economic anchor for a generation now. I would like to be a little personal at this point. I of course, I was not born yet during the war, World War II. But although Japan and the Philippines established diplomatic relations in 1956, the people to people relationship was not yet so cordial in the beginning. But when my father, Diosdado Macapagal invited then, the then Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Japan who are now their imperial majesties to visit the Philippines, they charmed the Filipino so much that our relationship became warm, the ice was broken and ever since then, Japan has played an important role in the Philippines.

Japan plays an important role not only in the Philippines, it's a partner of ASEAN, it plays an important role in regional diplomacy, and it is by far our largest source of official development assistance. With these role that Japan has been playing over the last 40 years, with the rise of China and with the influence of India, Japan's role will become even more central to maintaining stability and balance in the regio

For instance, in the southern Philippine island of Mindanao, Japan has joined the International Monitoring Team to help nurture the peace talks there to a successful conclusion. Perhaps more important, Japan has been making significant economic investments to build up the economy of that southern region of Mindanao. The role of "soft" power – that is, none military activities – has been the most significant development in the Mindanao peace process and Japan has been leading in that. Therefore, I would like to thank Japan for helping the Philippines forged a new paradigm for peace in Mindanao. This new paradigm offers more soft than hard power. It relies on interfaith dialogue and an expanding cast of international players to keep the peace.

Aside from Japan, aside from the OIC countries, aside from our ASEAN brothers, we now have European Union, Sweden, US and other countries joining us in this peace process. The Philippines therefore joins well meaning allies in strongly encouraging Japan to expand her present concept of exercise of collective security.

We would like to see Japan playing a leading role in contributing to community building in the region, and that means also, including maintaining and pursuing international peace and security as we try to forge the East Asia community of our dreams.

Indeed, on every other major front, we see Japan being an integral player if not an outright catalyst for change and progress. Japan will provide in the years to come the necessary leadership to the important arena of sustainable development.

For the Philippines we can say that Japan-Philippines relations have never been stronger: There has been a welcome influx of Japanese tourists. There has been impressive upswing in Japanese direct investment.

Late last year, Marubeni and Tokyo electric power purchased power plants in the Philippines for $3.5 billion and announced a $500-million additional expansion. A few months later, the American electronics giant Texas instruments awarded the Philippines an investment of one billion US dollars to build a world-class manufacturing facility. For this Texas Instruments investment, we beat out China and a number of other nations for the privilege to be the investment destination. For us in the Philippines, greater economic integration leads to improved competition and performance that helps our people. Combined with our tight fiscal policies and our investments in infrastructure, the Philippines has finally arrived as a premier investment destination in Asia. And we thank ASEAN, we thank Japan, we thank the entire robust economy of the region in aiding our comeback.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in decades.

Last week, Filipinos demonstrated our political stability through peaceful, fair and free elections. Our elections have sent investors the message of political stability which ensures continuing economic reform. The message was that the Philippine economy is stable and strong. And even as the senatorial elections are still being canvassed, in the congressional and local elections, Filipinos have voted overwhelmingly for administration allies. Therefore, the path we have set for economic reforms has not been upset by partisan elections. The election will not undo our economic progress.

Earlier this month, in another expression of confidence, the Philippines won reelection as a member of the United Nations Human Rights Council. This important development underscores the fundamental commitment of the Philippine government to uphold human rights.

The result of all this political development will be a focus by our administration on continued economic reform, pro-growth, pro-trade and pro-investment strategies that will help lift up our people out of poverty.

We are investing aggressively in our I.T. backbone. We are bringing the internet to every high school and spending more pesos for education. This is because we have found a niche in a business process outsourcing and I.T. sector. When I was a new president in 2001, there are only 2,000 employed in the business process outsourcing industry. Today, there are over 250,000 and we have a two billion dollar industry. We are bringing incentives to start micro and small businesses to build entrepreneurial class.

And we continue to develop a larger manufacturing base along with our booming service economy to create good jobs. At the same time, we realize, we must also become more self-sufficient and cost effective in our energy consumption. There is no reason we cannot do both, develop our manufacturing and be energy efficient. There is no reason why we cannot have a win-win through innovation, proper policy planning and united political and civic leadership.

For instance, we have launched a biofuels program. This program will rely on investment and innovation to create jobs, skills and self-reliance while keeping our environment clean. In this case, our model is Brazil which has pioneered in biofuels. Indeed, we must continue to learn around the world and in our region.

In conclusion, as our economic engines drive us to first-world status, and we hope to achieve that for the Philippines in the next 20 years, we must not do so on the backs of the poor nor at the expense of our environment. I am optimistic about the current approaches to economic growth. The approaches mentioned by President Sugita, were with the rise of China, the awakening of India and the re-emergence of Japan, growth is now more domestically driven within Asia rather than export oriented. I believe these approach to growth can transform our economies and lift up the poor.

As a region, as an ASEAN region, as an Asian region, we have a chance to get it right. We can emulate the best practices of development while avoiding the mistakes of modernization that have plagued many nations before. We must use every tool available – education, technology, microfinance – to lift up our poor, if we are to achieve equitable, sustainable growth.

In sum, I am optimistic about our ability to work together as a region – ASEAN and East Asia and to solve our own problems and in the process, create a new Asian paradigm for progress that will be a model for the rest of the world as other regions and other nations continue on their own path to progress. I firmly believe that comity, cooperation and community will define our collective future.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo at the Pontificio Collegio Filipino, June 3, 2007

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa Pontificio Collegio Filipino

[Ipinahayag sa Roma, Italya, ika 3 ng Hunyo, 2007]

“Ako ay Pilipino, Taos Noo”

Karangalan at pribilehiyo kong makipagkita na naman sa inyo. Una sa lahat, siyempre para ipaabot muli sa inyo ang pagkilala at pagpasalamat ng ating mga kababayan sa inyong kabutihang loob. At salamat sa inyo na nagbibigay kayo ng magandang pangalan sa lahat ng mga Pilipino dito sa Italya sa inyong kagandahang loob. Halos tuwing may italyano tayong kausap, bukap-bibig pagpuri sa mga Pilipino.

Noong isang taon, ang inyong lingkod ay narito at merong ilan sa atin nagkita rin at isang pinag-usapan natin nung isang taon, yung hiniling natin sa Pangulo at Prime Minister, dahil nakipag-ugnayan ang inyong lingkod sa kanila, ng italya yung importanteng kasunduan sana ukol sa pagkilala sa Italya ng Filipino driver's license. Naalala niyo yung pinag-usapan natin? Eh salamat sa Panginoon, congratulations! Ambassador, natupad na ito ngayon. Hindi ba ambassador, automatic nang nako-convert ang Filipino driver's license sa Italian driver's license. Kaya magiging mas madali para sa Pilipino na tumira at magtrabaho dito sa Italya at magbubukas din ito ng mga bagong pagkakataon sa serbisyo sa transportasyon.

Bukod sa mga ito, mayroon pa tayong isa pang magandang balita para sa ating mga Filipino rito. Dahil na rin sa rekomendasyon ni Ambassador, inaatasan natin ngayon ang Department of Foreign Affairs — at alam na ito, inaprub na ito ni Secretary Romulo — ibababa ang passport fee. Ibababa ang passport fee ng 65 Euro para maging 50 Euros na lang. At yung mga fee naman para sa mga affidavit, certification, notariats mula 32.50 Euros ay magiging 25 Euros na lang.

At bakit naman hindi? Dakilang mga bayani kayong mga ating mga overseas Filipinos sa inyong mga sakripisyo at malasakit sa inyong trabaho, inyong pamilya, at inyong bansa. Sampung porsiyento ng ating bansa ay overseas Filipinos. Eto ay hindi katangi-tangi. Yung mas mayamang bayan Portugal sampung porsiyento rin ng kanilang mga Portuguese ay nagtatrabaho sa ibang bansa. At daig pa tayo ng New Zealand na first world na first world na bansa. Ang New Zealand 25 percent sa kanila ay nagtatrabaho sa labas ngunit may iba't-ibang asal. Doon sa New Zealand, kung saan ang inyong lingkod ay nanggaling kasama ni Secretary Romulo, ang kuwento nila sa akin kahit na nagtrahaho sa ibang bansa yung anak, yung nanay at tatay na nasa New Zealand, sila pa ang nagpapadala ng pera sa kanilang anak na nagtatrabaho sa ibang bansa. Pero ang ating mga Pilipino sa labas, sa Italya, kayo ang nagpapadala sa inyong mga magulang at pamilya.

Salamat at 600 million dollars a year ang pinapadala ninyo sa ating minamahal na bansa. Alam niyo nung 2001 nung ako ay unang umupo bilang pangulo, walong milyong Pilipino ang naabutan ko sa labas. Ngayon, walong milyon pa rin dahil habang may lumalabas, may umuuwi. Ngunit ang mga overseas Filipino bagamat hindi lumaki ang total number dinoble ang pinapauwi. Yung naabutan kong seven billion bago 2001 ay naging 13 billion dollars na ngayon. Kaya maraming salamat. Sabi nga nila ito ay dahil namumuhunan na ang ating mga overseas Filipino sa ating bansa kaysa nagpapadala lamang para sa batayang pangangailangan ng mga pamilya. Kaya talaga ang dapat ibansag sa inyo ay hindi lang OFW o Overseas Filipino Worker kung hindi OFI or Overseas Filipino Investor.

Ngunit, panaginip ko ang araw na hindi na kailangan sana na mag-abroad ang Pilipino. Panaginip natin that overseas work will be just another career option and not the only choice you often have to earn a living. Gaya ng mga New Zealand, mayaman sila. Kung nag-aabroad sila, it's a career choice. May magandang trabaho nahanap, mas maganda o na-pirate sila, hindi dahil kung hindi sila mag-aabroad hindi sila makakabuhay. Sana ganun ang ating ekonomiya. Kaya nakatutok tayo sa ekonomiya, pinapaasenso natin ang mga rehiyon ng ating bansa, sinisikap na imudmod ang kayamanan upang makahanap ng trabaho ang ating taumbayan sa sariling bayan.

Yung ating mga call center, business process outsourcing, yun naman ay mula Baguio hanggang Clark-Subic, Maynila, Cebu, Davao. Eh nung nagsimula ako sa aking pagka-pangulo, dalawang libo ang nagtrabaho doon. Ngayon, 250,000 na, two billion-dollar industry na. Kaya naniniwala akong nabibiyak na natin yung cycle unti-unti kung saan kailangan pang lumabas para makahanap ng trabaho. I like to think that as the years will come increasingly we will be keeping our best and brightest right in the Philippines, masmalapit sa mga kaibigan at kaanak, tumutulong sa ating patnayan, at nagbibigay ng susunod na liderato ng pamunuan.

Ang mga ito ay mga hindi natatawarang senyas kung gaano kalalim ang inyong malasakit sa ating inang bayan at sa kaniyang kinabukasan. Pinapakita ninyo sa inyong mga gawain ang inyong kagustuhan na manatiling bahagi ng ating dakilang trabahong nation-building kahit napakalayo sa inyong tahanan. At bagamat malayo kayo sa inyong tahanan, gaya nang sabi ko, mukhang at home na at home na tayo rito. Congratulations! Doon sa ating mga kababayang nabigyan ng pambihirang pribilehiyong umupo sa mga town council bilang Consiglieri Aggiunte, congratulations! Yes, kasi ayon sa batas ng Italya kayo ay nakakasalita doon sa mga town council sa mga bagay at isyung may epekto sa mga kapwa-Pilipino. Kaya mas lalo na ipagtatanggol ang karapatan ng Filipino dito.

Talagang inspirasyon para sa ating lahat ang inyong walang-sawang pagmamahal sa ating bansa. Your deep pride — sabi nga nung ating singer kanina, “Ako ay Pilipino, Taas Noo ” — your deep pride in being Filipino lifts up Filipinos everywhere. At inaasahan kong tidoy-tuloy nating sasamahan lahat ng ating kababayan sa Pilipinas at sa buong mundo sa pagsikikap at panalangin dahil sa ating pananampalataya ang kinabubuti ng ating bansang minamahal.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during a Meeting with the Filipino Community in Italy

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a Meeting with the Filipino Community in Italy

[Delivered at the Pontificio Collegio Filipino, Via Amel Aurelia 490, Rome, Italy, June 3, 2007]

Karangalan at pribilehiyo kong makipagkita na naman sa inyo. Una sa lahat, siyempre para ipaabot muli sa inyo ang pagkilala at pagpapasalamat ng ating mga kababayan sa inyong kabutihang loob. At salamat sa inyo na nagbibigay ng magandang pangalan sa lahat ng mga Pilipino dito sa Italya dahil sa inyong kagandahang loob. Halos tuwing may Italyano tayong kausap, buwang-bibig na pagpuri sa mga Pilipino.

Saka sa nakita ko kanina na yung ating mga next generation of Filipinos, pati yung ating former seminarians, pati si Mr. Concepcion na dalubhasa na artist dito sa lugarkung saan napakaraming mga artists. Siyanga pala mga taga Pyrennes, thank you for coming here, taga Naples. Talagang mukhang at home na at home kayo dito sa lipunan ng Italya. Well, bakit naman hindi, magkatulad ang ating pananaw, kultura at paniniwala. Gaya nang sabi ni Cardinal Sanchez, ang ating pananampalataya dito ang pinaka kapitolyo ng ating pananampalataya. Tayo ang pangatlong pinakamalaking Katolikong populasyon sa buong mundo, perosa tingin ko bagamat siyempre maraming kakulangan sa bawat lipunan, gaya nang sabi ni Cardinal, number three tayo sa Catholic population pero number one sa devoutness ng ating pagka Catholic.

Tingnan ninyo yung mga patakaran ng ating bansa, wala tayong divorce, hindi ba? Family is very important. Ang ating patakaran sa family planning ay natural family planning, wala tayong death penalty, tayo ay pro-life. At kaya yon ang isang dahilan palagay ko, kung bakit napakaganda ang tingin ng mga Italyano sa ating mga Pilipino. Hinahangaan ng mga Italyano ng iba't-ibang antas ng buhay, maging kausap ko noong isang taon yung Pangulo at Prime Minister o kaya kausap ko yung mga karaniwang mga Italyano diyan, maganda ang kanilang sinasabi sa inyong mga magagandang asal. Hindi nakakapagtaka na sa lahat ng mga overseas workers na narito, kayo ang pinakagusto ng mga Italyano, pinakagusto nila ang mga Pilipino.

Kaya ayon na rin sa pagtrabaho ni Ambassador Lhuillier, taun-taon tatlong libong Pilipino ay nakakapasok at nakakapagtrabaho sa Italya at kaunting bansa lamang ang binibigyan ng ganitong pribilehiyo. Kagaya noong kumanta kanina taas noo tayo na tayo ay Pilipino kapag naririnig nating lahat ang magandang sinasabi tungkol sa inyo dito.

Noong isang taon, ang inyong lingkod ay narito at merong ilan sa atin nagkita rin at isang pinag-usapan natin nung isang taon, yung hiniling natin sa Pangulo at Prime Minister, dahil nakipag-ugnayan ang inyong lingkod sa kanila, ng Italya iyong importanteng kasunduan sana ukol sa pagkilala sa Italya ng Filipino driver's license. Naalala ninyo yung pinag-usapan natin? Salamat sa Panginoon, congratulations! Ambassador, natupad na ito ngayon. Hindi ba Ambassador, automatic nang nako-convert ang Filipino driver's license sa Italian driver's license kung kaya, magiging mas madali para sa Pilipino na tumira at magtrabaho dito sa Italya at magbubukas din ito ng mga bagong pagkakataon sa serbisyo sa transportasyon.

Bukod sa mga ito, mayroon pa tayong isa pang magandang balita para sa ating mga Filipino rito. Dahil na rin sa rekomendasyon ni Ambassador, inaatasan natin ngayon ang Department of Foreign Affairs, at alam na ito, inaprubahan na ito ni Secretary Romulo, na ibababa ang passport fee. Ibababa ang passport fee ng 65 Euro para maging 50 Euros na lang. At yung mgafees naman para sa mga affidavit, certification, notarials mula 32.50 Euros ay maging 25 Euros na lang.

At bakit naman hindi? Dakilang mga bayani kayong ating mga overseas Filipinos sa inyong mga sakripisyo at malasakit sa inyong trabaho, inyong pamilya, at inyong bansa. Sampung porsiyento ng ating bansa ay overseas Filipinos. Ito ay katangi-tangi. Yung mas mayamang bayan Portugal sampung porsiyento rin ng kanilang mga Portuguese na nagtatrabaho sa ibang bansa. At daig pa tayo ng New Zealand na first world na first world na bansa. Ang New Zealand 25 percent sa kanila ay nagtatrabaho sa labas ngunit may iba't-ibang asal. Doon sa New Zealand, kung saan ang inyong lingkod ay nanggaling kasama ni Secretary Romulo, ang kuwento nila sa akin kahit na nagtatrabaho sa ibang bansa yung anak, yung nanay at tatay na nasa New Zealand, sila pa ang nagpapadala ng pera sa kanilang anak na nagtatrabaho sa ibang bansa. Pero ang ating mga Pilipino sa labas, sa Italya, kayo ang nagpapadala sa inyong mga magulang at pamilya.

Salamat at 600 million dollars a year ang pinapadala ninyo sa ating minamahal na bansa. Alam ninyo noong 2001, noong ako ay unang umupo bilang Pangulo, walong milyong Pilipino ang naabutan ko sa labas. Ngayon, walong milyon pa rin dahil habang may lumalabas, may umuwi. Ngunit ang mga overseas Pilipino bagamat hindi lumaki ang total number dinoble ang pinapauwi. Yung naabutankong seven billion bago 2001 ay naging 13 billion dollars na ngayon. Kaya maraming salamat. Sabi nga nila ito ay dahil namumuhunan na ang ating mga overseas Pilipino sa ating bansa kaysa nagpapadala lamang para sa batayang pangangailangan ng mga pamilya. Kaya talaga ang dapat ibansag sa inyo ay hindi lang OFW o Overseas Filipino Worker kung hindi OFI or Overseas Filipino Investor.

Namumuhan kayo sa edukasyon at kalusugan, meron pang nagdo-donate ng mga classroom. Namumuhan kayo sa real estate, bumibili ng lupa, bumibili ng bahay, bumibili ng condominium. Alam ba ninyo ngayon at talagang namumulaklak ang real estate sa ating bansa. Ito ay 40 percent ang kanilang market ay overseas Pilipinos. Kaya maraming salamat na pinalaki niyo ang ating housing market dahil ang housing ang pinakamalaking multiplier sa lahat ng mga industriya, pinakamaraming nagagawang bagong industriya at trabaho. At meron din akong mga nakilalang namumuhunan sa financial capital gaya ng stock exchange at mutual funds at marami sa mga overseas Pilipino ay nagpopondo ng small and medium enterprises ng mga kamag-anak. Kaya maraming salamat doon.

Ngunit, panaginip ko ang araw na hindi na kailangan sana na mag-abroad ang Pilipino. Panaginip natin that overseas work will be just another career option and not the only choice you often have to earn a living. Gaya ng New Zealand, mayaman sila. Kung nag-aabroad sila, it's a career choice. May magandang trabahong nahanap, mas maganda o na-pxrate sila, hindi dahil kung hindi sila mag-aabroad hindi sila mabubuhay. Sana ganun ang ating ekonomiya. Kaya nakatutok tayo sa ekonomiya, pinapaasenso natin ang mga rehiyon ng ating bansa, sinisikap na imudmod ang kayamanan upang makahanap ng trabaho ang ating taumbayan sa sariling bayan.

Doon sa North Luzon at saka sa Mindanao pinapalago natin ang agri-business. Doon naman sa Urban Beltway ay yung mula Subic, Clark, Manila hanggang Calabarzon, Batangasport, industriya ang pinapalagay natin doon at saka mga call centers at iba pang mga services. At lately nga, yung Texas Instruments ng America ay inanunsyo na magdadagdag sila ng investments sa atin ng one billion U.S. dollars doon sa Clark. At ito ay pinili nila ang Filipinos bagamat ibang mga lugar, dalawang malaking probinsiya ng China at Thailand, ay lumiligaw sa kanila pero pinili nila na ilagay ang kanilang puhunan sa ating bansang Pilipinas.

Yung ating mga call center, business process outsourcing, yun naman ay mula Baguio hanggang Clark-Subic, Maynila, Cebu, Davao. Noong nagsimula ako sa aking pagka Pangulo, dalawang libo ang nagtatrabaho doon. Ngayon, 250,000 na, two billion-dollar industry na. Kaya naniniwala akong nabibiyak na natin yung cycle unti-unti, kung saan kailangan pang lumabas para makahanap ng trabaho. I like to think that as the years will come increasingly we will be keeping our best and brightest right in the Philippines, mas malapit sa mga kaibigan at kaanak, tumutulong sa ating pamayanan, at nagbibigay ng susunod na liderato ng pamunuan.

Mabuti nga dito sa Italya nandito yung mga anak ninyo. Ang Italya ay maluwanag sa pamilya ng mga manggagawang Pilipino. Ang Italya kasama ng Hong Kong ang may pinakamagandang mga batas para sa mga manggagawang Pilipino. At ngayon gumaganda na rin ang batas doon sa England dahil gusto natin na pupunta kayo dahil mas gusto nino, hindi dahil kailangan kayong pumunta uti. Kaya sa ating pagsisikap, itong first quarter ng 2007, lumago ang Pilipinas, ang ating ekonomiya ng halos seven percent. Ito ang pinakamataas sa halos dalawang dekada at bahagi nito ang galing, pagkabayani at kasipagan ng dakilang manggagawang Pilipino na namumuhunan sa ating bansa.

Yun ngang housing ang laking kinontribute sa ating GDP. At yung housing one-fourth noon ay kontribusyon, hindi pala one-fourth, 40 percent ay kontribusyon ng ating mga Filipino mula sa ibang bansa. Noong 2004, noong unang makaboto ang overseas Pilipino, pinakamataas na porsiyentong bumoto sa Europe ang mga Pinoy ng Italya, 62 percent sa inyo ay bumoto. At kung titingnan natin yung top ten sa buong mundo kasama kayo sa top ten sa buong mundo. Siyanga pala, Presidential Election yun, nanalo ako dito sa Italya, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. Ngayong 2007 muli, ganun din karami ang bumoto sa inyo, at pinatunayan sa mundo na buhay at magaling ang demokrasya sa Pilipinas.

Ang mga ito ay mga hindi natatawarang senyas kung gaano kalalim ang inyong malasakit sa ating Inang Bayan at sa kaniyang kinabukasan. Ipinapakita ninyo sa inyong mga gawain ang inyong kagustuhan na manatiling bahagi ng ating dakilang trabahong nation-building, kahit napakalayo sa inyong tahanan. At bagamat malayo kayo sa inyong tahanan, gaya nang sabi ko, mukhang at home na at home na tayo rito. Congratulations! Doon sa ating mga kababayang nabigyan ng pambihirang pribilehiyong umupo sa mga town council bilang Consiglieri Aggiunte, congratulations! Yes, kasi ayon sa batas ng Italya kayo ay nakakasalita doon sa mga town councils tungkol sa mga bagay at isyung may epekto sa mga kapwa-Pilipino. Kaya mas lalo na ipagtatangol ang karapatan ng Pilipino dito.

Talagang inspirasyon para sa ating lahat ang inyong walang-sawang pagmamahal sa ating bansa. Your deep pride – sabi nga noong ating singer kanina, “Ako ay Pilipino, Taas Noo” – your deep pride in being Filipino lifts up Filipinos everywhere. At inaasahan kong tuloy-tuloy nating sasamahan lahat ng ating kababayan sa Pilipinas at sa buong mundo, sa pagsikikap at panalangin dahil sa ating pananampalataya ang kinabubuti ng ating bansang minamahal.

Muli, maraming salamat sa pagkakataong makipag-ugnay sa inyo.

Mabuhay ang Pilipino dito sa Italya!

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Message of President Arroyo on the smooth opening of classes for School Year 2006-2007

Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the smooth opening of classes for School Year 2006-2007

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, June 6, 2006]

Ibig kong purihin ang lahat ng mga kagawaran at ahensiya at mga pamahalaang lokal na nagsama-sama upang siguraduhin ang maayos at mapayapang pagbukas ng mga klase itong taon.

Ang edukasyon ay pangunahing pinag-aabalahan nitong administrasyon at hindi tayo titigil hanggang madala natin ang lahat ng kakayahan upang magtayo ng mga dagdag na silid-aralan na pinamumunuan ng mga magagaling na guro at higit na mabuting libro, pasilidad at modernong gamit ng pag-aaral. Ang edukasyon ay importanteng inaasahan ng ating layuning umabot sa ranggo ng first world sa loob ng dalawampung taon at siguraduhin natin na ang mga Pilipino ay makakapantay sa mga sukat ng bagong milenyo pagdating sa kagalingan sa anumang larangan.

Nananawagan ako sa lahat ng ating mga institusyon, publiko o pribado, na gawing mangyari ito.

Samantala, inatasan ko ang DPWH at ang AFP, sa pamamagitan ng kaniyang engineering brigades na makipag-ugnay sa mga opisyal ng DepEd para magtayo ng pansamantalang silid-aralan sa mga eskwelang lubos ang populasyon at iyung mga apektado ng kasalukuyang mga retrofitting ng mga gusaling-aralan. Kinikilala natin ang mga problema ng ating sistema ng edukasyon at inaasahan nating harapin ito sa abot ng ating kakayahan.

Samantala, ang DepEd ay dapat tuloy-tuloy ang pagsubaybay ng lahat ng pinaka-importanteng pinag-aabalahan sa edukasyon sa buong taon at harapin ito sa tulong ng Gabinete at mga LGU.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Message on the smooth opening of classes for School Year 2006-2007. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213037/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2809&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during a Business Forum

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During a Business Forum

[Delivered at the Brocade City Room, Jinjiang Hotel, Chengdu, Sichuan Province, People's Republic of China, June 6, 2007]

Good morning to all of you. Thank you for your warm welcome.

Open dialogue and trust between peoples and nations have never been more important than in today's world. We welcome this opportunity to communicate with the people of Chengdu and Sichuan in order to help forge stronger ties.

China is the fastest growing developing country in the world, also the most populous. China has unleashed the human potential of your vast citizenry by effective use of technology, science and engineering.

Your remarkable rise reflects the promise and challenge of the world in which we live. We see your dramatic growth lifting millions out of poverty and shaping the nation squarely onto the world stage as a new global power.

From the Philippine point of view, we welcome the surge in economic growth and development as a healthy development for our nation. The internal market demand and domestic consumption of China has a direct and positive impact on the Philippines in terms of job creation and balance of trade. Because of your consumption and your market demand, growth in Asia is transitioning from being export-driven to domestically-driven. And we hope it continues.

As China becomes a true political and economic giant, your obligations to your neighbors also increase, separate from your obligations to your own citizens. China has an important and strategic role to play in the economic development and security situation of the Asian region. We are hopeful that China will continue to pursue your foreign policy based on maintaining world peace and promoting common development. We also look towards China to lead in promoting good neighborly relations and regional cooperation.

In the Philippines, as I said, we benefit from the growth of China. China is now one of our top three trading partners. Our relationship with China is among the most important ties of our country. It can only lift up our nation as it lifts up other nations, too.

Philippines-China relations are at an all-time high, as President Hu Jintao called it, "A Golden Age." Philippine relations with China are now more confident, mature, comprehensive, punctuated with substantial and important projects aimed at deepening exchanges in many areas including economics, trade and investment, and even defense. Our relations are based on mutual respect.

Major landmarks of our relations include the Philippines-China Comprehensive Economic Cooperation Partnership framework, also the Northrail from Manila to my home province of Pampanga, the national broadband network projects in the Philippines, and continued regular exchanges of high-level visits between our two countries. We are happy with China financing our Northrail and our national broadband network because transport and communication infrastructure development is crucial to our economic development plan for our nation.

We have visited many parts of China. We come here very frequently. And now we are honored to visit Chengdu, the capital of Sichuan province, China's biggest province, the heartland of China and gateway to Western China.

When I was young, I used to hear of Chengdu from those who are visiting Tibet. This was the gateway to Tibet. But now Chengdu is known for itself. It has attracted investment from many leading multinational firms. You're successful in consumer electronics, steel, alcohol, animal feeds, hydropower, metallurgy, machinery, information technology, tourism, pharmaceuticals and chemicals, to name a few. And the country's largest color TV producer Changhong Electric sells a lot of its products to the Philippines.

So today, we have high-powered Filipino businessmen joining us because here in Chengdu, Filipino businessmen have joined the others in appreciating what Chengdu has to offer. Shoemart, the icon of Philippine retailing, has opened an 80 million-dollar mall in Chengdu, its third mall in China. One of our leading banks, Metro Bank, is hopefully establishing a presence in Chengdu, also the third in China. And Oishi, represented here by one of our special envoy, Mr. Carlos Chan is also contemplating an investment here in Chengdu.

Going in the other direction, the Sichuan new hope group has invested so far 11 million dollars in the Philippines to build feed factories, both have been coming in during my administration. And I'm happy to tell the president of new hope that the two places where you have put your feedmill are both in my home province of Pampanga. And the seven million dollars next coming up will be in San Simon, which is also in my home province of Pampanga. In fact, my great grandfather comes from that town.

But we all are here, the businessmen of the Philippines and the officials of the Philippines, to cooperate in various aspects – trade, investment, tourism and people-to-people exchanges.

We welcome the signing of the sister-province agreement between Sichuan and Cebu, which is one of our main tourist destinations in the Philippines.

Last year, one thousand tourists from Chengdu visited the Philippines. We invite more tourists from Chengdu. As an archipelago with beautiful beaches, the Philippines presents an attractive destination to the people of landlocked Chengdu and Sichuan, particularly during the summer and winter months. And we look forward to the day when Sichuan and Chengdu will substantially raise the level of investments in the Philippines.

The Philippines is the perfect regional partner to aid as a logistics partner. We have heard that Chengdu is a logistics center of central and western China. Third country logistics services are important for China because you need to source and import many of your raw materials and intermediate inputs from other countries.

The Philippines could help enhance the competitiveness of Chinese inland industries by doing procurement and pre-processing of the low value-to-weight product components in the Philippines. The Philippines could provide logistics services to Chengdu in terms of forwarding networks and procedures, supply chain services, and even local warehousing. It is especially positioned to be a supplier of logistics services to China because of its strategic position in ASEAN; because of its high-value skilled labor well-versed in international logistics; because of its existing economic zones; because of its ready supply of raw materials and intermediate products especially semi-conductors, agricultural products and mineral resources. In fact, the Philippines is already a major semi-conductor supplier to China.

Chengdu is also an important market for fresh fruit such as the famous Philippine mangoes but also bananas, pineapples, young coconut. Also for processed food such as dried nuts, dried fruits, I mean, nuts, fruit juices and puree, coconut products, canned fruits and frozen seafood like abalone.

And so to push the bilateral economic and trade relations to a higher stage, we hope that both the Philippines and Chengdu and Sichuan should push to further deepen existing cooperation between our two economies. We envision a day when the businessmen from Chengdu, when the Sichuanese and the Filipinos are trading more with each other, investing more in each other, and visiting each other more.

The Philippines offers one of the best values for China investors in Southeast Asia. As I said earlier, we offer a strategic location in a fast growing region. Our workforce is well-educated, productive, English-speaking. And we are cutting red tape to simplify the requirements for investing in the Philippines.

The Philippines is in a fight to turn around the economy to lift up its poor. You know what that fight is like because you have succeeded here in China. You have succeeded here in central and western China. And the Philippines is winning the fight. Slowly but surely, we're investing in our people and creating new hope and opportunities.

Our administration has succeeded in breaking the back of our lethargic economic legacy by a combination of tough fiscal measures and equally politically difficult decisions to raise more revenue. In one legislative stroke – and I thank our congressmen here for helping us do the important legislation – we were able to stop the backsliding and move forward to drastically reduce our budget deficit and more importantly make long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure.

The biggest single act I was talking about, mainly responsible for the good performance of the Philippine economy, was the passage of our value-added tax which in one bold stroke raised serious revenue to send an unmistakable signal that we're serious about moving the nation forward.

New revenues, better collection, a crackdown on tax cheats, prosecution of corrupt officials along with fiscal discipline has put the Philippines on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. New taxes are not easy, they are not pretty, they are not politically popular, but they have broken the cynical cycle of our political and economic life.

That's not all, though. Our complete focus on the economy, on fiscal discipline, on balancing the budget and the need for long overdue human and physical infrastructure requirements help round out the economic surge.

And it is paying off in a strong peso, low inflation, low budget deficits, low interest rates, a robust stock market – in fact, the highest index in our country's entire history is what we're enjoying today – rapid inflows of foreign investment, tripling of investments in economic zones and priority sectors, and we created almost six million new jobs in the last six years. Our unemployment rate – well, not as low as Chengdu – is the lowest in a long time. Our poverty rate is the lowest as well in a long time.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity with some of these strongest fundamentals, I was mentioning, and we have strong growth. Of course, we cannot compare to China's growth rates. No other country can compare to China's growth rates. But at least to comparing to other countries in our region or even in the world outside of China's phenomenal growth, our economy in this first quarter of 2007 expanded at the rate of 6.9 percent

We're proud of the fact that our external debt is being prepaid. But we are not resting, rather we're forging ahead to sustain the momentum.

We're committed to consolidating our gains in new revenue, as I said earlier, by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, health care and training, we thank China for participating in our distance learning project along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines. And we thank China for participating in these infrastructure projects.

Because of these investments and our strategic location, your companies from Chengdu will also become more competitive if you do business in the Philippines. By investing in one another, trading with one another, and visiting one another, we show that we have confidence in a shared future together.

And so in conclusion, we hope that the friendship we will forge here today will bring our lands and our peoples ever nearer to each other in the days to come.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo upon her visit to China, June 6, 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Upon her visit to China

[Delivered at Sichuan Province, Peoples' Republic of China, June 6, 2007]

What RP can do for China

China is the fastest growing developing country in the world, also the most populous. China has unleashed the human potential of your vast citizenry by effective use of technology, science and engineering.

Your remarkable rise reflects the promise and challenge of the world in which we live. We see your dramatic growth lifting millions out of poverty and shaping the nation squarely onto the world stage as a new global power.

From the Philippine point of view, we welcome the surge in economic growth and development as a healthy development for our nation. The internal market demand and domestic consumption of China has a direct and positive impact on the Philippines in terms of job creation and balance of trade. Because of your consumption and your market demand, growth in Asia is transitioning from being export driven to domestically driven. And we hope it continues.

As China becomes a true political and economic giant, your obligations to your neighbors also increase, separate from your obligations to your own citizens. China has an important and strategic role to play in the economic development and security situation of the Asian region. We are hopeful that China will continue to pursue your foreign policy based on maintaining world peace and promoting common development. We also look towards China to lead in promoting good neighborly relations and regional cooperation.

In the Philippines, as I said, we benefit from the growth of China. China is now one of our top three trading partners. Our relationship with China is among the most important ties of our country. It can only lift up our nation as it lifts up other nations, too.

Major landmarks of our relations include the Philippines-China comprehensive economic cooperation partnership framework, also the Northrail from Manila to my home province of Pampanga, the national broadband network projects in the Philippines, and continued regular exchanges of high-level visits between our two countries. We are happy with China financing our Northrail and our national broadband network because transport and communication infrastructure development is crucial to our economic development plan for our nation.

So today, we have high-powered Filipino businessmen joining us because here in Chengdu, Filipino businessmen have joined the others in appreciating what Chengdu has to offer. Shoemart, the icon of Philippine retailing, has opened an 80 million-dollar mall in Chengdu, its third mall in China. One of our leading banks, Metro Bank, is hopefully establishing a presence in Chengdu, also the third in China. And Oishi, represented here by one of our special envoy, Mr. Carlos Chan is also contemplating an investment here in Chengdu.

But we all are here, the businessmen of the Philippines and the officials of the Philippines, to cooperate in various aspects — trade, investment, tourism and people-to-people exchanges.

We welcome the signing of the sister-province agreement between Sichuan and Cebu, which is one of our main tourist destinations in the Philippines.

Last year, one thousand tourists from Chengdu visited the Philippines. We invite more tourists from Chengdu. As an archipelago with beautiful beaches, the Philippines presents an attractive destination to the people of landlocked Chengdu and Sichuan, particularly during the summer and winter months. And we look forward to the day when Sichuan and Chengdu will substantially raise the level of investments in the Philippines.

The Philippines could help enhance the competitiveness of Chinese inland industries by doing procurement and pre-processing of the low value-to-weight product components in the Philippines. The Philippines could provide logistics services to Chengdu in terms of forwarding networks and procedures, supply chain services, and even local warehousing. It is especially positioned to be a supplier of logistics services to China because of its strategic position in ASEAN; because of its high-value skilled labor well-versed in international logistics, because of its existing economic zones, because of its ready supply of raw materials and intermediate products especially semiconductors, agricultural products and mineral resources. In fact, the Philippines is already a major semi-conductor supplier to China.

And so to push the bilateral economic and trade relations to a higher stage, we hope that both the Philippines and Chengdu and Sichuan should push to further deepen existing cooperation between our two economies. We envision a day when the businessmen from Chengdu, when the Sichuanese and the Filipinos are trading more with each other, investing more in each other, and visiting each other more.

We're committed to consolidating our gains in new revenue, as I said earlier, by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, health care and training — and we thank China for participating in our distance-learning project — along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines. And we thank China for participating in these infrastructure projects.

Because of these investments and our strategic location, your companies from Chengdu will also become more competitive if you do business in the Philippines. By investing in one another, trading with one another, and visiting one another, we show that we have confidence in a shared future together.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo on the 14th Congress, June 7, 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On the 14th Congress

[Delivered at the House of Representatives, Batasan Pambansa, Quezon City, June 7, 2007]

Hello 14th Congress!

We are glad that the elections are over and most of the winners proclaimed. On this occasion of the centennial of the Philippine Congress, we affirm the unity and forward course of the nation. The Filipino people have united behind democracy.

We congratulate all the winners in the election, and all those who are still to be proclaimed. We thank all the candidates of whatever party or political persuasion who fought hard and well to win the vote. The campaign has had its contentious moments, but it's time to be magnanimous, win or lose. The interest of the people dictates that we must close all chapters of strife and recrimination.

We close the chapter of electoral battles and open the chapter of national consolidation and solidarity. We call upon the nation to close the contest of the ballot and step up the contest of excellence in all fields all for one and one for all.

The overwhelming victory of our coalition in the House of Representatives and in the local governments is a continuing mandate of reform, unity, more work and less politics.

We all have a mandate to look forward and leave behind the contentious past. We look forward to the continuing support of Congress, and thank you for your prayers for our safe journey. It's good to be home among allies resolved to work together to lift everyone up and make sure no one is left behind.

Our work must be a national enterprise where no one loses and everybody wins. The sun never sets from the work of a president nor of Congress in the modern world. We all must do our part in honing the competitiveness of the nation. We must make sure we maintain the momentum. We're totally focused on the economy because only a strong economy will lift our people out of poverty and expand our middle-class.

We thank the 13th Congress for passing the tough reforms to move this nation forward. That was the first phase of our turnaround plan to stabilize our budget and spending and then secure increased revenue through better tax and customs collection and through an increase in taxes especially the value-added tax which you accomplished. And I thank you for that.

You accomplished what a painful but necessary steps. And you achieved that goal. And therefore because of you, the budget is under control for the first time in a very long time. And the people took the cue. With all their might, energy and will, they are rewriting our recent history.

Investments are pouring in, not only foreign investments but also investment in small, medium and micro-enterprises. And because of you, there is enough money in our budget to expand our investments in infrastructure and social welfare. Thus, because of you, we are poised to break the back of poverty.

The vision outlined in our State of the Nation Address is one that many of you in Congress share, and many of you want to see fulfilled. And I thank you because you found the resources to make these important investments possible.

After elections as a new Congress comes in, it is a season, it is a time of hope and unity. And we pray that this will be the advent of a new Filipino nation in the palm of the lord. This 14th Congress looks like it will be the most powerful Philippine legislature in terms of number, talent, and with God's grace, unity. We are confident that Congress will use the power bestowed upon you to take us a significant step forward everyday in the next three years embracing a future of peace, solidarity, stability and prosperity.

Let the ideas that this Congress has stood for in a century... Over a century—freedom, liberty and equality — like our path forward. Congress, the Executive and even the Judiciary, let us all be together in order to give a good future for our people.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Special Plenary Session for the Centennial Celebration of the Philippine Congress

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Special Plenary Session for the Centennial Celebration of the Philippine Congress

[Delivered at the Plenary Hall House of Representatives, Batasan Pambansa, Quezon City, June 7, 2007]

Happy Centennial Anniversary to the Philippine Congress.

One hundred years ago, I'd like to greet Justice Quisumbing representing the Supreme Court, one hundred years ago, the hope of a nation first took form from the roots of freedom, liberty and equality. One hundred years later it is racing to a horizon full of promise, the shaping of an environment that is conducive to wealth creation with the end goal of being first-world in twenty years.

For one hundred years the legislature in various forms was the collective voice of the Filipino people. The first cry for independence rang out in the Philippine assembly – colonial Asia's first awakening to democracy.

We were a leader in Asia and we are proud of our history as a free nation. And today, the Philippines remains the most democratic country in the region.

Today, in addition to the philosophy of democracy, the prospect of greater trade and security forged in the goodwill of our global allies and combined with the blessings of the Almighty arrived with me in Manila.

Well, yes, we've just arrived from the airport. I'm very thankful to the governments of Sichuan Province, Chengdu City and Chongqing City because they adjusted their schedule to allow me to make it here in time for your session.

We are glad that the elections are over and most of the winners proclaimed. On this occasion of the centennial the Philippine Congress, we affirm the unity and forward course of the nation. The Filipino people have united behind democracy.

Once again, let me take this opportunity to extol the voters who trooped to the polls to cast their ballots. Once again, let me commend the Commission on Elections and its deputized agencies. And our commendation especially extend particularly to our teachers, some of whom gave up their lives. And even those who didn't have to give up their lives, their dedication are renowned in times like this.

Let me thank also the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the Philippine National Police, as well as all the institutions that helped the people safeguard the vote – the religious, the civic and the professional – they likewise deserve the gratitude of our nation.

We congratulate all the winners in the election, and all those who are still to be proclaimed. We thank all the candidates of whatever party or political persuasion who fought hard and well to win the vote. The campaign has had its contentious moments, but it's time to be magnanimous, win or lose. The interest of the people dictates that we must close all chapters of strifes and recriminations. We close the chapter of electoral battles and open the chapter of national consolidation and solidarity. We call upon the nation to close the contest of the ballot and step up the contest of excellence in all fields all for one and one for all.

At a time when many places in the world are still aflame with struggles for freedom, we thank the lord for giving us the gift of democracy that has found sanctuary in our generations past and present for one hundred years, as we continue to count our blessings of economic growth and political stability.

In our trip, three times, in our audience with the Holy Father, during the canonization of Saint Marie Eugenie and before our Lady of Fatima, we immersed ourselves in communion of the Filipino people with the Almighty. And reflecting on our Filipino people, we find, we are reminded that we are a strong and resilient nation guided by the moral compass of our faith. We are reborn everyday in the fountain of spiritual renewal and ardent hopes for peace and prosperity. And our ardent hopes are being answered by the Almighty. The trend of our economy goes up and steadily as our faith deepens both in the Lord and in ourselves.

Across the continent, we flew to Central China, to Chengdu, the capital of Sichuan Province and to Chongqing City, the largest city in the world. They are two of the most promising trade capitals where Philippine scales and investment mixed with others in the region to push forward the frontiers of East Asia integration.

China and Europe seek to tie up with the hub of the Southeast Asian region in terms of trade, security, investments, tourism and people-to-people kinship. Portugal is entering the E.U. presidency next month while the Philippines is still the chair of ASEAN.

There is affinity between Europe and ASEAN that we must consolidate through our ongoing negotiations on the ASEAN-E.U. treaty of amity and cooperation in the interest of the economy, the environment, human rights and the fight against terror. And we come home straight to congress with the plan to consolidate the nation in the postelection period.

The overwhelming victory of our coalition in the House of Representatives and in the local governments is a continuing mandate of reform, unity, more work and less politics.

We all have a mandate to look forward and leave behind the contentious past. We look forward to the continuing support of Congress, and thank you for your prayers for our safe journey. It's good to be home among allies resolved to work together to lift everyone up and make sure no one is left behind.

Our work must be a national enterprise where no one loses and everybody wins. The sun never sets from the work of a President nor of Congress in the modern world. We all must do our part in honing the competitiveness of the nation. We must make sure we maintain the momentum. We're totally focused on the economy because only a strong economy will lift our people out of poverty and expand our middle-class.

The nation is moving in the right direction. The economy is strong and growing. We have a 26 consecutive quarters of growth. Our imports and exports are both up. Revenue collection is way up. But we dedicate the 6.9 percent growth of the first quarter to the Filipino people and to you, their elected representatives.

We thank the 13th Congress for passing the tough reforms to move this nation forward. That was the first phase of our turnaround plan to stabilize our budget and spending and then secure increased revenue through better tax and customs collection and through an increase in taxes especially the value-added tax which you accomplished. And I thank you for that.

You accomplished what a painful but necessary steps. And you achieved that goal. And therefore because of you, the budget is under control for the first time in a very long time. And the people took the cue. With all their might, energy and will, they are rewriting our recent history.

Investments are pouring in, not only foreign investments but investment in small, medium and micro-enterprises. And because of you, there is enough money in our budget to expand our investments in infrastructure and social welfare. Thus, because of you, we are poised to break the back of poverty.

The vision outlined in our State of the Nation Addresses is one that many of you in Congress share, and many of you want to see fulfilled. And I thank you because you found the resources to make these important investments possible.

The economic indicators underscore the success of your economic legislation. Not only is our growth at its best in almost two decades, our peso is at its strongest in years. Our stock market is the strongest ever. Job creation is on target for creating the six million jobs that we want to create before you and I leave office in 2010.

And for the first time in a long time, we are paying less in interest on our debt. We are even prepaying our debt. This allows us to pump that money into the long overdue investments I was talking about earlier. And that is what phase two has been all about also with your support.

Phase two was to take advantage of our improved economic picture to finally make the long overdue investments in infrastructure, education and health care, to name a few areas, and because of you, we are well into that phase. Because of you, the payback to the people continues at an earnest phase. In fact, because of you and the legislation you made on revenues which brought so much confidence in our economy, we were able to pose billions of sayings last year and we plowed the savings back to the villages and barangays in terms of more schools, health insurance, housing and loans for micro-enterprises.

We reinvested the savings in infrastructure projects to stretch economic opportunities farther across the archipelago. And because we have done the enabling environment in terms of infrastructure and direct services to the people, the Filipino masses are carving the way out of the social margins through the vision and will of patriotic political leaders such as the leaders in this great hall of Congress. And now, we welcome the 14th Congress during this deliberation. And as we do so, let us write another chapter of the proud history of Congress by writing away gridlock, by writing away terror, by writing away destitution.

After elections as a new Congress comes in, it is a season, it is a time of hope and unity. And we pray that this will be the advent of a new Filipino nation in the palm of the Lord. This 14th Congress looks like it will be the most powerful Philippine legislature in terms of number, talent, and with God's grace, unity. We are confident that Congress will use the power bestowed upon you to take us a significant step forward everyday in the next three years embracing a future of peace, solidarity, stability and prosperity.

Let the ideas that this Congress has stood for in a century... Over a century – freedom, liberty and equality -like our path forward. Congress, the executive and even the judiciary, let us all be together in order to give a good future for our people.

Congratulations! On your 100th Anniversary, beloved members of Congress.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo on putting people ahead of politics, June 12, 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On putting people ahead of politics

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, June 12, 2007]

Putting people ahead of politics

One hundred and nine years ago, a nation in Southeast Asia pushed the threshold of freedom to the limit for the first time, bravely and boldly defying nearly four centuries of colonial rule.

One hundred and nine years later, the struggle for freedom still rolls forward — freedom from want and freedom from fear — as we March together in the fight against poverty and terror.

But freedom and independence in the borderless world of the 21st century are no longer a struggle against colonialism but a closer, principled and mutually rewarding engagement with other nations.

With the help of sincere allies like you, we shall continue to break free from the shackles that pin us down — poverty, divisiveness, terrorism, despondency—until one day, perhaps twenty years from now, we shall join the ranks of the first world nations among you.

Last month, Filipinos demonstrated our political stability through the mid-term elections.

The Philippine economy is strong and stable. Our economy has reached a new level of maturity with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in a generation. And we offer one of the best values and best places to invest in Asia today.

We broke the back of our lethargic economic legacy by a combination of tough fiscal measures and equally politically difficult decisions to raise more revenue. In one bold stroke, we were able to stop our backsliding and move forward towards balancing our budget and more importantly towards making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure.

We will continue on the path we have set for putting people ahead of politics by focusing relentlessly on the economy. Our administration will focus on pro-growth, pro-trade and pro-investment strategies that help lift up our people from poverty and help the Philippines finally in contention as a real investment destination.

To keep reform growing, we are determined to engage all parties to move forward in a unified way to stay on the path of economic reform and discipline. It is our deepest hope that the various parties will set aside politics for now that elections are over and continue to vote for programs that have made our nation a new destination in Asia for business and investment.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Vin D’ Honneur on the occasion of the 109th anniversary of the proclamation of Philippine Independence

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Vin D’ Honneur on the occasion of the 109th anniversary of the proclamation of Philippine Independence

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, June 12, 2007]

Vice President Noli de Castro, Archbishop Filoni and other members of the diplomatic corps and representatives of international organizations, Foreign Affairs Secretary Romulo and the other Cabinet members, leaders of the business community, other guests, ladies and gentlemen.

One hundred and nine years ago, a nation in Southeast Asia pushed the threshold of freedom to the limit for the first time, bravely and boldly defying nearly four centuries of colonial rule.

One hundred and nine years later, the struggle for freedom still rolls forward — freedom from want and freedom from fear — as we march together in the fight against poverty and terror.

But freedom and independence in the borderless world of the 21st century are no longer a struggle against colonialism but a closer, principled and mutually rewarding engagement with other nations.

With the help of sincere allies like you, we shall continue to break free from the shackles that pin us down — poverty, divisiveness, terrorism, despondency — until one day, perhaps twenty years from now, we shall join the ranks of the first world nations among you.

Last month, Filipinos demonstrated our political stability through the mid-term elections.

The Philippine economy is strong and stable. Our economy has reached a new level of maturity with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in a generation. And we offer one of the best values and best places to invest in Asia today.

We broke the back of our lethargic economic legacy by a combination of tough fiscal measures and equally politically difficult decisions to raise more revenue. In one bold stroke, we were able to stop our backsliding and move forward towards balancing our budget and more importantly towards making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure.

We will continue on the path we have set for putting people ahead of politics by focusing relentlessly on the economy. Our administration will focus on pro-growth, pro-trade and pro-investment strategies that help lift up our people from poverty and help the Philippines finally in contention as a real investment destination.

To keep reform growing, we are determined to engage all parties to move forward in a unified way to stay on the path of economic reform and discipline. It is our deepest hope that the various parties will set aside politics for now that elections are over and continue to vote for programs that have made our nation a new destination in Asia for business and investment.

The security situation has improved substantially, both in our fight against domestic terrorism and in our coordinated hunt for regional terrorists seeking refuge in some of our most remote islands in the south.

In Mindanao, with your support, your active support and participation, we are proving the value of a new paradigm for peace through the use of both soft and hard power. And perhaps most notable, we have worked with a broad range of international organizations and nations from across the spectrum particularly Malaysia and including U.S., Japan, Sweden, the European Union, Indonesia, Libya, Brunei, other OIC countries, Australia. So many countries in the growing cast of international allies. And I cannot mention all of them today, but many of them are represented here, and I thank you all.

It is now more important than ever to build alliances on a bilateral and multilateral basis to ensure greater political, economic and military security.

As current chair of ASEAN, we are optimistic about the unity of our region and our prospects for peace, stability and economic growth.

I thank you excellencies, all those who voted for us, so that we could be reelected with a very big vote to the U.N. Human Rights Council. And I hope that this is a recognition of the fact that the Philippines as a country, as a people value human rights and do not condone any violation of human rights.

On this note, Excellencies, please join me in a toast to international solidarity and the future of the Philippines.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Vin D' Honneur on the Occasion of the 109th Anniversary of the Proclamation of Philippine Independence. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150030/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2030&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo before the Filipino community in Equatorial Guinea Speech
of

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Before the Filipino community in Equatorial Guinea

[Delivered on June 26, 2007]

Mga mahal kong kababayan, maraming salamat sa mainit na pagsalubong sa inyong lingkod.

I have come here to build on our commitment to enhance the bilateral relations between the Philippines and Equatorial Guinea.

President Obiang undertook a state visit to the Philippines in May last year to enhance Philippine-Equatorial Guinea bilateral ties, seek avenues for cooperation and greater interaction between the two countries' peoples.

Given our shared history and common past, dahil kapwa tayong dumaan sa pamamahala ng Espana, Equatoguineans and Filipinos can learn from each others' experiences and build on these for greater peace and prosperity.

We agreed that it would be of strategic importance for the Philippines and Equatorial Guinea to strengthen ties and increase cooperation in all forms, despite the geographical distance between our two countries. All of this is for the benefit of our people, including you, those of you who live and work here.

We are proud of the contribution of Filipino workers to the development of this country, particularly the 2,500 Filipinos employed in the banking, finance and oil sectors of Equatorial Guinea.

Sinisikap nating lalo pang mapabuti ang inyong kalagayan.

Pinararangalan ng pamahalaan at taumbayan ang mga Pilipinong manggagawa sa ibayong dagat sa inyong sakripisyo at malasakit sa inyong trabaho, inyong pamilya at inyong bansa. Tinatanggap nang buong loob ang inyong kontribusyon. Nguni't karangalan din nating sabihin na ang mga ganansya sa ekonomiya na nakikita natin ngayon sa Pilipinas ay inihahanda ang araw kung kailan hindi na kailangang mag-abroad pa ang mga Pilipino para sa trabaho, and the day when overseas work is just another option and not the only choice you have to earn a living.

Nasa landas ng permanenteng pagsulong at katatagan ng ekonomiya ang Pilipinas.

Ang pagpasa ng ating value added tax ang siyang pinakamalaking kilos na naghatid ng pag-angat ng ating ekonomiya. Sa isang matapang na kilos, nakaangat ito ng napakalaking kita ng bansa. Nagpadala rin siya ng di-mapag-kakamaliang senyas na seryoso tayo tungkol sa pagsulong ng ekonomiya. Nguni't hindi lamang iyon. Tumutulong ito na mabuo ang mga ganansya ng ating ekonomiya ng buo nating pagtukoy sa ekonomiya, sa disiplina ng kaban ng bansa, sa pagbalanse ng budget at sa pangangailangan ng napakatagal nang dapat ginawang pag-ibayo ng human at physical infrastructure. Nagbubunga ang ating mga pagsisikap.

Bumubuhos ang investments, pinakamataas sa buong kasaysayan ang ating stock market. Nakalikha tayo ng anim na milyong bagong trabaho sa nakaraang anim na taon.

Pinakamababa ang ating unemployment rate sa loob ng isang henerasyon. Pinakamababa rin ang ating poverty rate.

Nakakahalata ang mundo: Isa sa mga best values sa Asia ang Pilipinas para sa mga Pilipino at dahuyang namumuhunan.

Naka-angkla ang pag-angat ng mga pamumuhunan sa pag-ulat ng Texas Instruments na ito ay mamumuhunan ng isang bilyong dolyar upang magtayo ng electronic chip plant sa Pilipinas.

Namumuhunan rin ang Hanjin ng Korea ng $1.65 billion upang magtayo sa Pilipinas ng pang-apat na pinakamalaking shipyard sa buong mundo. Noong isang linggo, bumili ang Marubeni at Tokyo Electric ng mga power plant sa Pilipinas sa halagang $3.4 billion at magdadagdag pa ng half a billion dollars.

Ito ay nangyayari sa iba't ibang industriya. Nagtatrabaho tayo upang masostento ito. Tumutulong ang ating mga ambisyosong reporma na mabuwag na iyong offshore cycle. Sa pagtutuloy sa landas na ito, we will increasingly be keeping our best and brightest right in the Philippines, higit na malapit sa mga kaibigan at mga pamilya, tumutulong sa pagtayo ng ating mga pamayanan, at binibigay ang susunod na henerasyon ng liderato.

Desidido tayong ibuo ang mga ganansya ng mga bagong kita ng pamahalaan sa matagal nang dapat ginawang pamumuhunan sa human at physical infrastructure. Kasama dito ang bilyon-bilyon piso para sa edukasyon, kalinga sa kalusugan at training kasama ng bilyun-bilyon sa mga bagong tulay, kalsada at pantalan upang umangat ang kakayahang makipag- kumpetensya ang Pilipinas.

Ipinagmamalaki natin ang disiplina ng ating administrasyong tukuyin ang ekonomiya at ang ating pangkalahatang kalusugan sa pangkabuhatan. Ipinagmamalaki natin na binabayaran natin ang ating mga utang kahit na hindi pa nagkokobra ang nagpautang sa atin. Malaki ang ating pag-asa na mababalanse natin ang budget sa 2008. Sinisigurado nating gamitin ang mga ganansya upang mamuhunan sa mga napaka-importanteng social and economic needs. Hindi natin isasakripisyo ang pangmatagalang biyaya para sa pansamantalang political expediency.

Ipinakita ng nakaraang halalan ang buhay na buhay na system ng demokrasya ng bansa. Pinayagang sumali ang lahat na may iba-ibang paniniwala nguni't nagkakaisa sa mga parehong aspirasyon ng kapayapaan at kaunlaran para sa buong bansa. Tagumpay siya para sa reporma sa ekonomiya, katatagan ng pulitika at kapayapaan at katiwasayan.

Inaasahan natin na magtatrabaho ang Senado at Kamara ng Pilipinas kasama nating siguraduhing isosostento natin ang ating mga biyaya sa ekonomiya. Nakaligon tayo sa makabuluhang pag-uusap at pagtutulungan sa ating mga gumagawa ng mga patakarang masiguradong tuloy tayong sumulong sa reporma sa ekonomiya.

We have turned the corner on our economy.

Mayroon nang mga kapansin-pansin na tagumpay. Nguni't di-hamak na may higit pang magagawa at gagawin.

Sa unang pagkakataon sa isang henerasyon, binibigyan tayo ng kakayahan ng ating mga biyaya sa ekonomiya at kaban ng bayang gumawa ng malalakas na pamumuhunan sa ating bayan at ating taumbayan. Patungo doon, naglikha tayo ng estratehiyang pamumuhunang nakatukoy sa apat na pinaka-inisyatibo: 1) pag-ibayuhin ang ating imprastraktura upang lumikha ng kapaligiran kung saan may kumpanya ang mga negosyong mag-expand at mag-employ ng higit pang tao, dahil kahulugan ng higit na trabaho ay bawas sa kahirapan; 2) pag-ibayuhin ang social services gaya ng health insurance subsidies para sa mga dukhang pamilya at nutrition programs para sa mga mag-aaral at kanilang mga pamilya; 3) pagpapalakas ng suporta sa edukasyon sa ating pagsisikap na bawasan ang kahirapan sa pamamagitan ng pamumuhunan sa mas mabuting school buildings, mga bagong libro at teaching materials, at training programs para sa mga guro at school administrators; at 4) pagputol ng red tape at pagpapatuloy na tanggalin ang katiwalian sa sistema.

Ito ang mga paraan upang mai-ahon ang mga mahihirap. Ginagawa natin ito sa unang pagkakataon sa isang henerasyon.

Kaakibat kayo at ang buong pamilyang Pilipino, maisusulong natin ang ating layunin.

Together, we will push forward and fulfill our common dreams of peace and prosperity.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech before the Filipino Community in Equatorial Guinea. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145933/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2025&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the opening session of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea's Camara de Representantes del Pueblo

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the opening session of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea's Camara de Representantes del Pueblo during her state visit to the West African nation

[Delivered on June 26, 2007]

DISCURSO ANTE LA CAMARA DE REPRESENTANTES DEL PUEBLO

Su Excelencia Salomon Nguema Owono

Distinguidos miembros de la Camara de Representantes del Pueblo

Colleagues in the Philippine delegation,

Señoras y señores,

Buenos días.

Muchas gracias a la Camara de Representantes del Pueblo de Guinea Ecuatorial por esta sesion especial en mi honor.

La legislatura es la voz del pueblo, en Africa asi mismo en Asia. We are proud to say that in Asia, the Philippine Congress has been a beacon of freedom for one hundred years now.

Our two countries share a legacy and a similar culture though we are located far away from each other, you in the western edge of Africa and we in the eastern edge of Asia, and the color of our skin is different from each other. Equatorial Guinea is the only hispanic country in Africa and the Philippines is the only hispanic country in Asia.

At the Asia-Africa Summit held in Bandung, Indonesia in April 2005, the leaders of Asian and African countries signed a Declaration on the New Asian-African Strategic Partnership, which identified concrete measures for partnership. Asimismo, los lederes trataron de fortalecer los lazos tanto multilaterales como bilaterales.

Por eso nos alegramos much cuando el Presidente Obiang realiz una visita de estado en Filipinas en Mayo del año pasado. Se fue el para realizar los lazos bilaterales entre Filipinas y Guinea Ecuatorial, y explorar las maneras para la cooperacion y una mayor interaccion entre los pueblos de los dos pases.

Exploramos las nuevas areas de cooperacion y hablamos de las oportunidades que cada pais ofrece.

Durante su visita, el Presidente Obiang expres interes en las oportunidades para la formacion y un mayor conocimiento tecnico, en particular en los sectores agricola, pesquero, financiero, mientras que nosotros por nuestra parte expresamos interes en las concesiones en el petroleo.

Nosotros presenciamos la firma del Acuerdo General en la Cooperacion Economica, Cultura, Ciencia y Tecnologia, y un Acuerdo sobre la Promocion y Proteccion Reciproca de Inversiones – los dos primeros acuerdos bilaterales entre Filipinas y Guinea Ecuatorial.

Agredecemos la oportunidad de reunirse de Nuevo con el Presidente Obiang para renovar las relaciones bilaterales entre Filipinas y Guinea Ecuatorial.

Esta es mi primera visita de estado a un pais Africano desde que asumi la presidencia en 2001.

He venido a Guinea Ecuatorial para fortalecer aun mas los lazos entre nuestros dos pases y continuar las iniciativas que nuestros pases han empezado durante la visita a Filipinas de su Presidente el año pasado.

Nuestra visita de estado aqui es una buena ocasion para fomentar estas formas de cooperacion y fortalecer aun mas los lazos bilaterales y, basandonos en nuestros lazos historicos, a un mayor desarrollo y progreso.

We are proud of the contribution of Filipino workers to the development of this country, particularly the 2,500 Filipino professionals employed in the banking, finance and oil sectors of Equatorial Guinea.

Estamos muy dispuestos a ayudar a Guinea Ecuatorial en el desarrollo de su capacitacion humana y la infraestructura.

El Gobierno Filipino esta dispuesto a forjar colaboraciones con Guinea Ecuatorial.

We reiterate the Philippines' readiness to enter into arrangements for joint ventures in petroleum upstream activities on the basis of equitable sharing and mutual benefit.

Distinguidos miembros de la Camara, trabajemos juntos para cerrar la brecha entre Asia y Africa y para acercar aun mas a nuestros pueblos.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech at the opening session of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea's Camara de Reprerentantes del Pueblo during her state visit to the West African nation. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150004/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2022&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 60th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Air Force

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 60th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Air Force

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Grandstand, Villamor Air Base, Pasay City, July 3, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Bert Gonzales.

Troop commander give “Tikas Pahinga.”

AFP Chief of Staff General Esperon; PAF Commanding General Lieutenant General Tolentino; other officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; the ASEAN Air Force chiefs; former commanding generals of the Armed Forces; AFP wives; other government officials; ladies and gentlemen.

To the Air Force, happy 60th anniversary! and welcome to our special guests on this special anniversary — the Air Force Chiefs of ASEAN!

I thanked Lieutenant General Tolentino for reminding us of my father, the late President Diosdado Macapagal. I remember that he sent an air force plane in 1963 carrying a medical team to help the victims of a volcanic eruption in Bali, Indonesia. That initial act planted a seed of friendship among the air forces of the Southeast Asian region. And today, especially today on this anniversary celebration, we are all together as our motto says: “Bridging Gaps, Overcoming Obstacles, Enhancing Cooperation for a Secured, Progressive and United ASEAN Region.” Mabuhay to the ASEAN air forces!

Today also, we are in a period of bold transition in the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

In the next three years, we shall deal a strategic defeat to the insurgency; modernized the military in its twin roles of defense and development; advance the protection of human rights; push terrorism back and build peace in Mindanao; and expand our alliances for regional and global security.

The human security act signed last march which shall be effective this July 15 shall be the basis of more effective anti-terrorism measures that will not only crush the terrorist movement in the country, but also keep it away from our shores and also make us more effective in fighting terrorism together with our ASEAN brothers.

Ladies and gentlemen of the Philippine Air Force, we each have a stone to lay in the foundation of a modern Philippines.

And in the 60 years since the creation of the air force, never has a year passed without an outstanding contribution from the air force for the national cause, exemplified by this year’s awardees, and we congratulate them.

Some achievements were much heralded like those of Captain Villamor after whom this base is named or the blue diamonds who were the very glamorous heroes when my father was president of the Philippines. But many have achieved much as well without fanfare such as the combatants in the field, the brave pilots who fly the troops or deliver the might of our armed forces to the terrorists lairs, the personnel in countless rescue and mercy missions during natural calamities, or the technicians and airmen who keep the planes airworthy.

When I became president of the Philippines in 2001, I inherited what General Tolentino calls an aging air force, not the men and women, but the equipment. And I remember that we were then beginning the Balikatan exercises and the commanding general of the PACOM would come and inspect and see how our troops were. And they felt that the most important thing we needed was to be able to maintain our air assets. But they had nothing but praises for the men and women and our pilots. I remember what they said watching them in Mindanao, riding those old, old helicopters or flying them. They said they can practically land a helicopter on top of a coconut tree. That's how good our air force pilots are. Congratulations! And I know that for a fact because the pilots who fly me and my official and personal family to various provinces deserved special mention and I want to take this opportunity to thank them as well.

Lieutenant General Tolentino mentioned that my father made an air force officer, Pelagio Cruz, Chief of Staff of the armed forces. I also made an air force General, Benjie Defensor, Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces. at that time, the highest ranking officer in Malacañang from the armed forces was the senior military assistant because the presidential guard was a battalion then. And the senior military assistant was also an air force man — General Victor Dizon.

In my time now, the highest ranking is the head of the PSG and the head of my PSG is also an Air Force man — General Romy Prestoza.

So I am very grateful to the air force for the loyalty and competence that I have been able to observe at close hand.

Our Philippine Defense Reform Program moves forward under the teamwork of our major services and the leading beacon of the defense department. And as I inherited an aging air force — not the men and women, but the equipment — when we had success in our fiscal reforms no sooner did we achieve success then we started to implement once again our Philippine defense reforms.

Over the last two years, we authorized the allocation of 17.5 billion pesos for the capability upgrade plan which is a crucial part of our defense reforms. Most of these are for equipment, but a part of it is for benefits for our soldiers such as housing. The part for the air force was just groundbroken a few days ago.

On the other hand, lest our critics once again criticized us for overmilitarization, let me point out that what we have spent or allocated — we have not spent it all yet because it's a multi-year program — what we have allocated for armed forces modernization is much less than what we have allocated for agricultural modernization in these last two years of almost 30 billion pesos.

Agricultural modernization and armed forces modernization going hand and hand is a message. We are proving the value of a new paradigm for peace through the use of both hard and soft power. What we are doing is quite unique particularly against the backdrop of troubled spots in the world where hard power alone has been struggling.

In the Southern Philippines, we have been able to meld together confidence-building measures grounded on strong interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness, investments in economic and basic infrastructure development, and mutual security arrangements to keep the peace in Mindanao.

This is a model setting a positive example. It is something we wish, all wish, to share with the rest of the world. By continuing with this new paradigm for peace, we will be able to achieve permanent peace in Mindanao. And permanent peace in Mindanao therefore is to be gained both by modernizing our development efforts and modernizing our armed forces.

As Lieutenant General Tolentino has said, we've already begun once again the first phase of our Air Force Modernization Program. We acquired 20 UH-1H helicopters from the United States. This was a result of my state visit to the United States. I remember, as I told you earlier, in the beginning in 2001, what the U.S. PACOM wanted to do was to concentrate their assistance on inventory of spare parts and maintenance. But I insisted that we need a new squadron. And I thanked president bush that he complied with my insistence.

Part of our modernization also was the service life extension of OV-10s. And I would like to take advantage today to help... To also to thank the Kingdom of Thailand for having provided us with ten OV-10s during our administration.

We have also refurbished six UH-1H from the United States. But all that refurbishing while we need to do it — and by the way, I think General Santillan is in the audience. I'd like to thank him for giving me the hint about those available OV-10s in Thailand so that we were able to acquire that for the Philippines — but all these refurbishing and all these goodwill that we are able to mobilize in order to expand our fleet still left me quite uncomfortable. So I instructed General Esperon and Lieutenant General Tolentino that before we buy more second-hand helicopters or almost first-hand helicopters, I want to see a bidding for first-hand helicopters.

And that is why part of the 17.5 billion pesos that we have allocated in the last two years is five billion pesos for brand-new helicopters. And I hope that our young men and women in the air force will feel safer and braver when they fly these brand-new helicopters.

But we will not only improve the equipment, we will also improve the benefits of the men and women who put their lives on the line for the security of the Filipino people. We talked about what we just groundbroke the other day. So we want to provide more on-base and off-base housing facilities. We want to provide more scholarships and livelihood opportunities for families of military personnel. And I am happy to announce that the members of the AFP will receive increases in their hazard pay and subsistence allowance starting this month.

These are parts of the first benefits of development. And now that they are at hand, let us work harder to lift the wings of the nation.

We will remain focused on growing the economy. But we will also remain focused on the course of nation-building which needs a strong armed forces for a strong republic. We will leave no stone unturned to realize the Philippine defense reform program and support the major service commands in the combined pursuit of your mission.

And so on the 60th anniversary of the armed forces, the rejuvenating armed forces, let us advance the fight for national and regional security.

Fly higher Philippine Air Force on to the next 60 years!

Mabuhay! Mabuhay kayong lahat!

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 60th Anniversary Celebration of the Philippine Air Force. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145921/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2063&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the Launching of the Human Security Act of 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Launching of the Human Security Act of 2007

[Delivered at the Malacañang Palace, July 20, 2007]

Today we raise the bar on our campaign against terrorists who kill, bomb and maim to enforce an ideology of evil.

We have the legal muscle to help end the paralysis of fear, empowered with a law that identifies terrorism and penalizes it, a law that preserves and protects freedom.

Our resolve to criminalize and penalize terrorism through this law is not an offshoot of 9/11, for we had come face to face with this scourge ahead of the rest of the world.

The first Philippine anti-terrorism bill was filed by Senator Juan Ponce Enrile in January 1996, three years after the first bombing of the World Trade Center, five years before the Rizal Day bombing in 2000, six and a half years before the tragedy of 9/11 and eight years after the bombing of Super Ferry 14.

One can imagine the possibilities had we passed this law earlier. Perhaps, the Dos Palmas incident would not have happened, and Gracia Burnham would not have lost her husband, Martin. Many Filipino lives could have been spared had the State been equipped with the legal arsenal to flush out evil before it could do harm.

We must invest in peace and order.

The next three years will see record levels of well thought out and generous funding for investments in crushing terrorism wherever it threatens, regardless of ideology; and in putting a stop to human rights abuses whatever the excuse.

We fight terrorism for it threatens our sovereign, democratic, compassionate and decent way of life.

Therefore, in the fight against lawless violence, we must uphold these values. It is never right and always wrong to fight terrorism with terror.

Crime is down in the nation because we have made investments to put more police on the street. Our military must continue on its path to reform, becoming even more professional every day at the same time they fight to eliminate the armed terrorist threats to the nation from religious extremists or communist terrorists. Whatever ideology is being pursued that undermines our stability must be defeated.

If you are armed and kill innocent civilians, you will be tracked down and prosecuted. If you are a communist terrorist, we will stop you. If you are a religious terrorist, we will stop you. If you are a rogue element of your own police or military, we will stop you.

I have the deepest respect for our military and police institutions as do most Filipinos. We want our nation safe. We trust our men and women who put their lives on the line every day to protect our nation and our communities. As high as 99% of these hard working and patriotic men and women love this nation and abide by the rule of law.

The political terrorists who reside outside the boundaries of human justice and who have marked the stability of our nation and the rule of law for extinction live by no moral code. They lack all humanity and concern for the people. Yet for our public servants in uniform, fidelity to the Constitution is a sacred duty. These public servants have a moral obligation to uphold the Constitution to protect the innocent. For this very reason, any violent crime that a member of the law enforcement or military community may commit against innocent people is even more wrong and must stop. No one is above the law.

There is a fundamental difference between those who take up arms and wish the violent overthrow of the state and those who take to the ballot box for political change. Our government will protect the political rights of any person who wishes to participate in our democracy, however, we might disagree on philosophy and approach. We cannot stand idly by, however, and let the purveyors of violence cloak their agenda behind the innocent men and women they hold hostage to their failed ideology. We will wrestle these failed terrorists to the ground and free the nation to live in peace and harmony.

Subalit, pangunahin pakikibaka pa rin para sa karapatan ang pagpapalaya ng masa sa gutom at hirap.

Economic and social development is still the best guarantee of achieving human security. Only equitable and sustainable growth can free us from want and fear. Poverty, though not the cause, abets terrorism.

We pay tribute to the fearless fourteen who sacrificed their lives in Tipo-Tipo and to their equally valiant comrades in arms. We mourn with their families. Our marines who were victims of a decades long conflict that can and will end. The tragic encounter will not deter us from our mission, which is to bring long-lasting peace to Mindanao.

Talk is cheap. It is action that counts. I ask the public to give the Human Security Act a chance.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the National Multi-Stakeholder's Dialogue on Disaster Risk Reduction

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the National Multi-Stakeholder's Dialogue on Disaster Risk Reduction

[Delivered at the New World Renaissance Hotel, Makati City, July 25, 2007]

Thank you for being here today, and thank you Bert for this initiative of getting all the stakeholders together.

Indeed, disaster mitigation should be everyone's business, and I'm glad that you are all here. All of us have a stake in saving lives and keeping private and public property away from harm's way. And although everybody has that obligation, there are some who suffer more than others when there is a disaster especially the poor.

And yet, many of the risks that communities undergo and individuals undergo can really be prevented, if we all get together and decide and plan on how we will do disaster mitigation.

I remember that sometime ago, I gave Glenn Rabonza that assignment. Let's not just talk about reacting to disasters, let's have a masterplan for disaster mitigation. Of course, when we look at the world around us, we thank God that we were spared from the great crisis that have been happening around us. For instance, the tsunami. Thank God! We were spared from that great tsunami; and then the mega-earthquakes. Thank God! We have been spared from the mega-earthquakes; and our own preparedness, we were also spared from a SARS outbreak; and again thank God, in our preparedness we were spared from the avian flu and have been spared so far.

In other words, we have shown that there are things we can do, as in the case of SARS, we were able to contain it; and in the case of the avian flu, we have been able to prevent it altogether. There is something we can do, especially when we consider our own country, our own disasters. Although we have been spared from the great tsunami, the SARS, the avian flu, we have our typhoons, our floods, our landslides, our mudslides, our volcano eruptions and our man-made disasters. And if we were able to do something about SARS, then we will be able to do something about preventing avian flu so far, then there's something that we can do also about these disasters.

For one thing, it is important that our people remains strong in coping with and overcoming disasters. And it is really up to many of the agencies – national and local – to help them cope. Then it is important that the agencies of the government pool resources and manpower and team up with local government units and the private sector, to lift the beleaguered communities back to their feet and restore normalcy at the soonest possible time after a disaster strikes.

The NDCC is a council, it is not an implementing agency. Why? Because according to the local government code, disaster response is devolved. There is the Barangay Disaster Coordinating Council, there is the Municipal Disaster Coordinating Council, there is a Provincial Disaster Coordinating Council and then it is in the Regional Disaster Coordinating Council where the national government comes in. In other words, under the principle of subsidiarity, the response must come from the community itself in the beginning. And when it becomes a bigger disaster, then what the community can afford to cope with, that is when the higher level of authority comes in.

Nonetheless, government of any level must always be at the forefront of compassion and social action in times of dire need. We are fortunate that our national character is such that when something bad happens to someone, we pour our hearts and contributions to the victims and their families, and the whole nation prays for those who die, and the nation prays for the speedy recovery of those who are injured in the devastated communities. And that is one good thing about our society.

In fact, one good thing about our society is that we are a very expanded social security system in itself. In other societies, when the old people grow old, they put them away in a home. In our society, when people grow old, someone a child or one grandchild takes in the person. That is what happens too when there is a disaster. Somebody will always come. Now the question is whether they will come in and spontaneous and if it's big, becomes half hazard way, or whether they will come with a lot of feeling but also a lot of organization and efficiency.

Lessons from previous disasters should guide us in further improving our strategies and work plans. We remember recent disasters — the M/T Solar 1 oil spill — and everybody came to help. Congress gave almost 900 million pesos and now Guimaras is back on its feet.

Of long ago, relatively long ago, the Payatas tragedy. And then very recently, the M/V Blue Water Princess sinking. These underscore the fragile nature of our environment, even if these are not mega-disasters such as what our neighbors have experienced especially in the Indian Ocean. But they also show, and we must as a people seek to do more to preserve our precious natural resources because at the end of the day, many of these great calamities are coming because of climate change. So if we are going to talk about disaster mitigation, we have to talk about addressing climate change. A year ago, we revealed a comprehensive blueprint called “Berdeng Pilipinas” or “Green Philippines” initiative. That is our entire environmental program.

We as a nation must move aggressively not only towards a Green Philippines, but remember that Green Philippines includes energy independence and protecting our land, air and sea. This is ambitious but it is achievable. Planting trees is certainly achievable. Your new boss, Secretary Reyes, has started planting trees. I'm looking for a way to justify the tree planting should transfer to the Department of Energy as well.

For environmental protection, we have to take care because the environmental protection is very, very much related to how big or how small the disaster will be when it strike. And this is very consistent with our values as a nation.

A good response necessitates coordinated information management and contingency planning. One thing that I have seen in our disaster response is that right away — we have now because we have invested in our technology. And Nina has taken care to choose very, very good leaders of our scientific agencies related to the weather and to volcanic disturbances, we have had a good system of information. And we've been able to also send out these information very quickly to the local governments. So let us put these altogether in a comprehensive framework on disaster risk reduction, that will bring together the necessary institutions and players to bear upon the task. And I understand that is the subject matter of today's meeting. Right, Glenn?

And this framework must include international — that's why Nileema is here — regional and national cooperation and coordination. Because not all disasters are national. As we have seen, the disasters really are beyond boundaries. And even if a disaster is national, sometimes in the same way that it's too much for a barangay to cope with, sometimes it becomes too much for a country to cope with. Just to give an extreme example, the 100,000 people who died in Aceh during that great tsunami. So I'm very grateful that in our own disasters where for instance we lost a thousand people in Southern Leyte, although compared to the hundred thousand people that Aceh lost just a few weeks later, still in our disaster big for us but relatively small when you compare to the events of that month. I'm grateful for the swift international assistance extended by the United Nations and other governments to augment our resources during times of disaster.

And just last year, we had those series of typhoons that hit Bicol. Again, I thank Congress for the ten billion-peso Calamity Fund that they provided of which we have already released seven billion pesos, the largest one-time release for calamity in our history.

But, because a lot of funds are coming — national government, local government, international assistance, non-NGOs — each agency of our government must be accountable in specific terms, even as we drive community participation to mitigate, endure and survive disasters.

In terms of mitigation, the DENR has a very big role to play, because it must fast-track its work in providing useful maps and geo-hazard information. Already, we have geo-hazard information for 700 municipalities and cities, but we have almost 2,000, 1,500 plus municipalities and cities. In other words, we're about almost half of the work done. So we have to find a way to fast-track that work. Of course, the DENR was quite practical about it, they started with the eastern seaboard because most of the disasters come from the Pacific Ocean.

And then the schools, we have to build schools that will withstand earthquakes. We have to build schools that double up as evacuation centers. Gina, as our consultant, has a very nice idea of having this collapsible modules that can be set up anywhere that there is a disaster. That is something that the NDCC should be thinking of. And so earthquake-resistant schools, other infrastructures, and then we have to keep people away from landslide-prone areas. We have to take land-use planning seriously.

I remember that at the time when we had a disaster in Quezon, there was also a disaster around that time in Taiwan. And some of the agencies – foreign donors – were impatient that what they donated in Taiwan, they already saw houses being put out; what they donated in the Philippines was taking forever. Actually, part of the problem was maybe lack of organization, but also part of the problem was that that area is so geo-hazardous that we could hardly find any place near the original homes where the new homes could be built. So these are all the things that we have to do and start to systematize and all national and local governments must incorporate.

And therefore, every year, we must incorporate in all our budget at every level the annual budget we must have substantial funding allocations to support the thrust of the NDCC.

Of course, every local government has a five percent disaster fund. And sometimes... Of course, there are times when the disaster is obviously big, so we come in right away. But sometimes there's a disaster that, well, we don't know how big it is. And when the local government comes and ask for support from the NDCC, what Glenn should say is, first, have you spent your five percent? And if it's beyond their five percent, then we have to come in. So, I enjoin everyone to continue supporting us in this collective effort to keep our communities, our homes and our families safe and sound.

To all of you, thank you for having a stake in disaster mitigation.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the Opening Ceremony of the 40th ASEAN Ministerial Meeting Speech
of

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines

During the Opening Ceremony of the 40th ASEAN Ministerial Meeting

[Delivered at the Plenary Hall, PICC, Pasay City, July 30, 2007]

A warm Filipino welcome to our ASEAN partners and allies from all over the world. Mabuhay!

Once more, we are gathered to set the course for our region. You come at a time in our history when we have made international relations a centerpiece of our economic agenda.

Our relations have never been stronger, from bilateral to multilateral relations, in our never-ending saga of cooperation, solidarity, fighting poverty and winning collective security.

During the ASEAN Summit in January, which we hosted in Cebu, we took several important steps that put us squarely on the path to create a regional community by 2015. Most notably we issued the Declaration on the ASEAN Charter.

At a time of uncertainty in the world, ASEAN took a bold step forward by endorsing an ASEAN Charter that will expand and strengthen ASEAN. As chair of ASEAN, we were delighted that our fellow leaders seized the moment in history to do the right thing. That ASEAN brought so many nations and leaders together to discuss peace, security and social justice and economic growth is a testament to the desire of leaders and their people for greater collaboration between nations.

In behalf of the Filipino people, I thank you for the privilege to lead the organization in search of one caring and sharing community, a regional community in the full sense of the word by 2015.

Building the ASEAN community and voice is a long-term endeavor. There are no short cuts or quick fixes. But we are determined and will persevere to build a community that will provide a more secure, stable and prosperous life for all people.

Our collective desire to bring social justice, economic opportunity and integrated security to the region is our common ground. The declaration on the ASEAN Charter is testament to our commitment to become one, single united front.

I commend to you the important task of following through on the commitments we made at the summit in Cebu and I express my full confidence in our capacity to carry on.

An ASEAN community is clearly going to be anchored, first and foremost, on economic integration with a focus on social justice and raising the standard of living of the poor in the region. To that end, developing ASEAN is more than creating a regional community, it is about creating a dynamic force in Asia to maximize the benefits of globalization. We are actively strengthening our economic linkages not only within the region, but also with our dialogue partners including Japan, China, South Korea, India, Australia and New Zealand.

For ASEAN to become a true expanding union, it must continue to nurture its relations especially with key partners China, Japan and South Korea. Deepening integration on this level would mean completing and eventually forging the individual free trade agreements ASEAN is currently working out with these “Plus Three” countries.

We are happy to note that the Free Trade Agreements between ASEAN and China, as well as that between ASEAN and Korea, are moving into their final stages. It is now up to the ASEAN member countries to individually ratify the two FTAs. Negotiations on the FTA with Japan also hold a lot of promise. We hope that those involved in the negotiations would find the resolve to agree on the finer points of the draft FTA.

The rise of China and of India as major economic powers provides us with fresh competition as well as cooperation.

On the other hand, the WTO's Doha Development Round has stalled, making it more difficult to agree on new global trade rule, but also underscoring the importance of regional arrangements to maintain the pace of our trading growth.

We have demonstrated our collective voice through our call in support of reviving and revising the Doha Round. We have called for the round to expand global trade and investment for the benefit of all.

At a time in the world when there are strains on alliances from Iraq to WTO, it is essential that new, vital alliances will be forged to keep the world stable and strong. Some sort of East Asia community will be a bold step in that direction.

The question isn't whether an East Asia community is necessary. The question is will we be stronger with a more united region? I believe the answer to that is clear: each member nation and the entire region will benefit. An East Asia community will strengthen our economy, security and prosperity.

There is general consensus that the idea of an East Asian community has a more political, rather than geographic definition. In the process of establishing the East Asia community, we look to the engagement of all the parties that have a stake in East Asia.

Community building is a long process. The E.U. took 50 years to reach its present stage of integration. Too much has been made of our diversity as a barrier. Our diversity is strength and not a barrier to an East Asian union.

Historically, the European Union has shown how a region beset by conflict can become a force for peace and prosperity. So too in our region that has faced many of the same historic divisions, a more united region will aid in the same. ASEAN has proven that it can make a difference for peace and security in Asia and will continue to do more as it builds toward an ASEAN community by 2015.

The meeting of the 14th ASEAN Regional Forum three days from now will be equally important. ARF has been successful in establishing confidence building measures among its 27 participating countries. The challenge before the ARF right now is to move to preventive diplomacy to be able to "nip the bud" in any potential conflicts arising and causing disputes among its members.

ASEAN is just but part of a larger regional community and the global community. Therefore, our community must contribute to the transformation of our region and the world. However, even while we pursue this task, ASEAN should also be at the heart of developments in Asia.

Asia has the brightest potential for progressing economically. And as I said earlier, the rise of China and India – the two most populated countries in the world – as global economic powerhouse has opened a lot of opportunities and challenges for all the countries in the region. Japan, of course, remains to be the second largest economy in the world and will also significantly influence the course of development in Asia.

If we are to turn this century as an Asian century, we must be able to capitalize on opportunities and strengths of Asia. It must allow other countries that have substantial stake in the region to participate in its development. Therefore, our six dialogue partners: India, Australia, New Zealand included in the concept of a larger East Asia. Even Russia, which has an Asian side, can be part of it when the right time comes and should eventually lead to this Asian community. It is, therefore, in our interest to sustain their momentum, nurture them and widen their areas of cooperation. We must, however, complement these processes with a regional security framework that will allow us to pursue our regional economic agenda.

ASEAN must also continue to point the way ahead in regional security cooperation. From Cambodia to East Timor, and from the South China Sea to the Korean peninsula. The ASEAN Regional Forum remains the only all-inclusive conclave for addressing regional security issues in the Asia-Pacific.

As ASEAN and ARF Chair, we convey the hope of ASEAN members and other countries for the continued stability, peace and prosperity of the region.

During the ASEAN Summit in Cebu, we as a region expressed grave concern over developments on the Korean peninsula. We support a diplomatic and peaceful solution to the nuclear issue.

I am sure I speak for all of the ASEAN states in expressing that we are encouraged that the six party talks aimed at resolving the ASEAN peninsula nuclear issue have resumed.

We welcome the confirmed shutdown of the Yongbyun Nuclear Reactor and the return of U.N. inspectors to Pyongyang. These developments are historic milestones in the six-party talks process. The series of positive developments inspire confidence that the six countries and major world players are exerting all they can to bring lasting stability and peace to the region.

We commend the parties for their progress so far and for their commitment and dedication. But while the talks have been moving forward, much remains to be done.

The ARF this week is a forum where all members of the six party talks will gather. It offers them a venue to promote and advance negotiations. We in ASEAN stand ready to do whatever we can to advance regional security and stability. And on the part of the Philippines, until our last day as chair of ASEAN, we will continue to strengthen our collective stake in a stable Korean Peninsula.

We did not, however, let these potential conflicts and transnational problems divide us. Our strong adherence to the spirits of the treaty of amity and cooperation in Southeast Asia, to which we all have acceded to, has enabled us to settle our disputes through peaceful means.

We are now reaping the dividends of regional peace. It has allowed member countries to devote time and allocate resources to pursue the path of economic growth during the last four decades. And I'm very glad indeed as we are in here now that fifteen years ago, we established the ASEAN free trade area which began the integration of our economies. Today, we are well on our way to creating ASEAN into a single market and production base.

ASEAN is now faced with more complex challenges than those that our founding fathers had to deal with. What started out as a simple association is now trying to evolve into an ASEAN community that is politically cohesive, economically integrated and socially responsible.

Building an ASEAN community is no easy task. ASEAN is fortunate to have its dialogue partners in this effort.

We have realized the imperative of having an ASEAN community if we are to stay relevant in this age of globalization. For this reason, this is the reason, we decided at the 12th ASEAN Summit in Cebu to accelerate the establishment of the ASEAN community to 2015 from 2020. Our goal is to realize our resources and potentials to turn our region into one of the most dynamic in the world.

ASEAN has been a force for regional peace and progress for forty years. The task ahead is how sustain this role for the next forty years in an era of growing regionalism and deepening globalization.

The 12th ASEAN Summit to today's 40th ASEAN Ministerial Meeting have been all geared towards this end. In a region that is getting deeper into integration, there is danger of losing sight of the very essence of a community helping each other. This is not a race of who gets richer first. A community is about growing and prospering together.

If we will be able to succeed in building such a caring and sharing community, our future generations will look back to this 40th year of ASEAN, the 12th ASEAN Summit, the 40th ASEAN Ministerial Meeting as the start of it all having worked together for the past 40 years.

For the past 40 years, ASEAN member countries have created our own shared history, in the same manner that we are keenly aware of our common destiny. It is this awareness that has led us to make a conscious decision to create a community, where there is unity in diversity, and which we envision to be one caring and sharing community.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Message of President Arroyo during the ceremonial ringing of the bell for the Philippine National Bank's Listing Ceremony

Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the ceremonial ringing of the bell for the Philippine National Bank's Listing Ceremony

[Delivered at the Trading Hall, Philippine Stock Exchange, Ayala Ave., Makati City, August 1, 2007]

Thank you, Secretary Favila.

PNB Chairwoman Flor Tarriela; PNB Director Dr. Tan; PNB President Omar Mier; PNB Director Domingo Chua; Central Bank Governor Tetangco; PSE Chair Vitug; PSE President Francis Lim; and do we have S.E.C. Commissioner Fe Barin? Welcome! To all of you, congratulations!

This is a great day for the Philippine National Bank, the economy and the nation. It is also a milestone for the Philippine bourse and the government's privatization and revenue build-up program.

For the Philippine bourse: PNB shares traded at 40 pesos each in 2002 when BSP and PDIC started the rehabilitation of the bank. They rose to P43.77 per share when government sold a 186 million shares in 2005. Now it is being sold at 59 pesos per share, congratulations!

Congratulations are especially in order for PNB and its global coordinator and bookrunner, the UBS Investment Bank. They have both done an excellent job. As our speaker said earlier, they generated demand worth 295 million dollars after only two days of bookbuilding with the book ending over two times covered.

The major subscribers came from all over the world: Asia, the U.S.A., Europe, the Middle East and Australia.

For the government's privatization program: 45 percent of the public offer are shares of the national government through the Philippine deposit insurance corporation and the department of finance. The total offer size is a 160.8 million shares consisting of 89 million primary shares and 71 million secondary shares owned by the national government. The 71.8 million shares make up 12.5 percent ownership in PNB. And as our speakers have said earlier, this is a successful and complete exit by the national government.

This exit affirms the soundness of government's policy to uphold the private sector as the primary engine of national growth.

PNB's successful rehabilitation and full privatization overturn the cynics' view that privatized companies are white elephants. Several other privatized firms are now turning in neat profits while providing crucial services such as Manila Water, Maynilad and PNOC-EDC.

For the government's revenue build-up: this event will earn 4.2 billion pesos for the national government with its share price 48 percent higher.

I take this opportunity to affirm that we are committed to our budget balancing milestone.

While we faced some challenges in generating revenues from the BIR and the BOC, we have taken major steps to address these early revenue shortfalls and we expect collections to be back on track in the second half of the year. These steps include reorganization while tapping career officials to bypass the learning curve, and more aggressive pursuit of tax evasion and corruption cases.

To cover the fiscal gap while the tax collection efficiency is being addressed, we're accelerating privatization. And our strategy is working — from EDC to PNB, we are among the best values in Asia.

Mabuhay ang Stock Exchange!

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Remarks during the Ceremonial Ringing of the Bell for the Philippine National Bank's Listing Ceremony. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145429/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2141&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening program of the 21st anniversary Celebration of the St. Luke's Heart Institute Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening program of the 21st anniversary Celebration of the St. Luke's Heart Institute

[Delivered at Auditorium 1, Cathedral Heights Bldg. Complex, St. Luke's Medical Center, E. Rodriguez Blvd., Quezon City, August 6, 2007]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Joe, for your kind introduction and congratulations for you and to Chairman Kuan for leading the team that has made St. Luke's a world power in health care. Congratulations!

Secretary Pingkoy Duque; Tony Sibulo, Director of the St. Luke's Heart Institute; the Board of Trustees of St. Luke's; the Executive Committee of the Heart Institute; the directors and department heads of this great institution; Congressman Monico Puentevella, who is not the Chairman of the Committee on Health but, are you the outstanding patient? And to all of you ladies and gentlemen, Happy Anniversary! You truly honor the memory of Bill Quasha with your excellent health care.

You're better equipped than 95 percent of American hospitals. I know for one thing you have the first pet scanner in Asia and the only one in the Philippines. And I understand from my friends who have their check-ups abroad that typically six American hospitals share one pet scan that goes around among them during the week. But you have your own exclusive machine, which I had the privilege of using during my own executive check-up. Congratulations!

And of course, your doctors and medical personnel are second to none, including and especially the institute that we are celebrating today — the heart institute which takes care of the hearts of people. So, congratulations! To Dr. Sibulo and the St. Luke's Heart Institute. to Dr. Calleja, the first head of the institute, on the occasion of your 21st anniversary.

And as a family, we know how world class heart care is in the Philippines because Dr. Rommel Cariño, our Philippine-educated heart surgeon and your team from the institute brought back my husband from the brink of death.

Now four months later, he can play 18 round holes of golf. And when I left Malacañang this morning, he was on his treadmill. So he has already put together his own healthy lifestyle as a result of all of the advice that Joe and the rest of the doctors have been giving him including Juliet Cervantes. Juliet is not a heart doctor but we first thought that mike was coming here because of his gastric problems but Juliet after observing him for so many hours said, it's too painful for it to be a gastric problem. So we had the test done all over again and sure enough then it was the aorta. So, thank you so much for saving the life of my husband.

We can only repay you by ensuring that our administration cares for the health and well-being of our people.

So while our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in a decade. We are not resting, rather forging ahead to sustain the momentum. To instill permanent change, we're making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in health care.

We're following up the pain of raising tax measures including the tax on doctors. With the gain that only comes from significant investment in people and projects, only then will we truly ensure that progress cannot be reversed.

With our improved economic conditions and fiscal situation, we're increasing investment in our country, in our people to improve social services, for instance, health insurance for indigent families.

We've enrolled four million indigent families or 20 million poor Filipinos in Philhealth, compared to 1,500 families — I think, in 2001 — in the hope that all these Filipinos who now have Philhealth cards can have greater access to world-class hospitalization like what St. Luke's has to offer.

As I said in my State of the Nation Address last time, sa unang pagkakataon, gumastos ang Philhealth ng higit three billion pesos para paospital ng maralita. And with that, Philhealth pays a portion of their bills when they are confined in great first class hospitals like St. Luke's.

And today, Pingkoy Duque's team is studying the introduction of outpatient Philhealth screening packages for cardiovascular and related diseases. If this study indicates that the program is feasible, it will empower even more Filipinos to consult and take their tests at world-class facilities like the heart institute even if they don't have to be hospitalized at the end of the test.

Our long-term goal extends beyond keeping stress and blood pressure down. Ours is a battle to save lives, to promote a good quality of life for every ordinary Filipino, and to ensure the health of the heart and the future of this nation.

Speaking of battle, we're doing all this during a time for war and welfare.

On the war track, I have sent a group of doctors and medical personnel from the V. Luna Medical Center for the military to augment the field hospital in Zamboanga. The field hospital for the West Mindanao command. The doctors will conduct free clinics in the areas affected by hostilities in Basilan, Lamitan, Isabela and even Tipo-Tipo, thereby adding a civic action dimension to their mission. As we dispatch them, I take this opportunity of national television carrying us, to issue this stern warning to the terrorists: "these medical professionals are on a mission of compassion. They will treat people whose lot you have worsened by your belligerence when the peace we have pursued would have allowed them to join the rest of the nation in productive pursuits. Harm them and Hades will come to you."

On the welfare track, we are expanding the menu of our social payback offerings, to initially include — and I was talking to Pingkoy this morning — fast tracking the creation of regional heart, kidney and lung centers in key cities. Especially for those patients who cannot physically travel to Manila not only because they can't afford it maybe but also because their health condition, their medical condition will not allow them. For instance, patients in the provinces with a torn aorta like what my husband was operated on here in St. Luke's will be more exposed to risk from the high altitude if they try to fly to Manila.

Therefore, we need little St. Luke's institutes in the different main regional centers. The regional heart, lung and kidney centers shall be piloted initially in the Vicente Sotto Hospital in Cebu, the Davao Medical Center in Davao, the Northern Mindanao Regional Center in Cagayan De Oro and the Bicol Regional Center in Legaspi. Actually, the beginnings of this is the Japanese supported project. But this morning, I instructed Secretary Duque to increase government equity and thereby expand coverage and expedite implementation.

How can we afford this? Because I got a report the other day from Secretary Nonoy Andaya that we are able to save 20 billion pesos in debt servicing from the lower interest at present we have to pay and also from the stronger peso. Debt servicing resulting from a stronger peso can be funneled to this. So it's from debt service to health service. And as I had a message for terrorists earlier, I had a message to our people. And the message is: "better fiscal health of the country results in health care closer to your home."

The regional heart, lung and kidney centers is the next logical step after we upgraded 35 local government hospitals. Thirty two primary care hospitals are being promoted to secondary care hospitals with national government support, and three secondary care hospitals are being promoted, upgraded to tertiary hospitals, again, with subsidy on the equipment from the national government.

And because health care is not only the care of the doctors and the tests but also medicines, we now have 10,000 Botika ng Barangay selling half-priced medicines. And I called on our Congress to pass legislation to bring cheaper medicines to our people. But also I called on Congress to have improved long-term care for our senior citizens.

Here in St. Luke's, I know that aside from heart care, one of the many excellent world class services St. Luke's is famous for is geriatric care. In fact, I had the honor to be your guest when the geriatric care unit was opened. So, I hope that the great doctors of St. Luke's who organized the geriatric care program of St. Luke's can also help us craft the legislation for long-term geriatric care as a public health service for the country.

But I don't know if simple old age is the largest cause of death because I understand that the number one killer of Filipinos today is cardiovascular disease, claiming more lives each year than the next three leading causes of death combined.

And I hear from the word health organization that we can cut deaths and disability from cardiovascular disease by half simply by targeting the major risk factors. This calls for the Department of Health and its allies — the Philippine Heart Association and all other professional groups who are part of the healthy lifestyles coalition — to wage an all-out campaign to educate Filipinos in their homes and communities where the real battle must be fought.

So I hope that St. Luke's Heart Institute can also help us to be advocates in our families, workplaces, schools, civic organizations, and all local and national constituencies to promote heart-healthy lifestyles.

To help us make sure that all Filipinos are aware of the dangers of hypertension and obesity, as well as other risk factors like smoking and physical inactivity; and that they learn to live and work in wholesome environments, and that they have access to affordable and quality healthcare.

This is one thing we can do together. We can advocate together a complete smoking ban in all public places for one thing.

The concerted action of the government, professional societies, advocacy groups, patients and communities are needed to win this fight.

Indeed, building healthy hearts builds a strong nation. And the St. Luke's Heart Institute has been at the heart of this vital challenge for 21 years now.

Once again, congratulations!

Mabuhay! And thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Opening Program of the 21st Anniversary Celebration of the St. Luke's Heart Institute. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145341/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2139&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 16th Annual General Assembly of the Federation of Philippine Industries, Inc.

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 16th Annual General Assembly of the Federation of Philippine Industries, Inc.

[Delivered at the Hotel Intercontinental, Makati City, August 13, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Peter Favila and Chairman Ito Carlos for reminding me about the G11 that we used to have every Thursday when I was Undersecretary of Trade and Industry. I understand after I left it hasn't been continued so I'm asking Secretary Favila to revive the G11.

I am glad to address the champions of Philippine industry. Ito addressed you as captains but I prefer to address you as champions because you work very hard to make sure that Philippine industry is not left behind. And as Jess Arranza said in his speech, you are indispensable partners in development as well as in security. So let me begin by giving you a report on our security situation. Even as I speak, our government forces are in a full offensive against terrorist cells in Sulu.

I have ordered the Commanding General of the Philippine Army Romeo Tolentino to pitch camp in Zamboanga. Tolentino will oversee that theatre of operations. I am sending my army chief to the frontlines so he can be near my soldiers. The Army Headquarters is temporarily set up now in the Western Mindanao Command in Zamboanga until the situation normalizes. Tolentino is about to retire but he has been a soldier's soldier, so this soldier's soldier will not just orchestrate punitive actions against those who maim and kill but study the peaceful overtures of those who will demonstrate remorse. As I said he is about to retire and usually at this stage of the Philippine armed forces career, retiring three-star generals do their farewell tour. Well, this will be Tolentino's farewell tour but not his last assignment. Because he will spend his last days in service in the place and the way it began: in Mindanao as the defender of the flag in a mission of peace.

In addition, this morning I issued the following security directives:

First, keep Basilan and Sulu operations firmly controlled to minimize civilian casualties, with NDCC help in evacuating them, and respect ceasefire guidelines in close consultation with the International Monitoring Team, whose mandate we should seek to be extended before it expires next month, and with the GRP-MILF ceasefire committee.

Second, hold urgent talks with the MILF under the Malaysian auspices to contain and resolve the Basilan/Sulu situation, making it clear that the government has to secure its forces and areas as part of peace efforts and law enforcement, but will not overrun MILF areas.

Third, brief the OIC Committee of Eight on Mindanao developments, underlining both the limited military operations and the continuing peace and development efforts, including huge outlays in the 2007 and 2008 budgets for Mindanao, including Basilan and Sulu.

Next, harness the Bishops-Ulama Conference and other religious and civil society groups for peace efforts, and the other civil society groups which include your federation with myself and other national leaders joining them in prayers and peace rally in Mindanao, and meeting with them on the need to work together for peace and against forces and ideologies promoting violence.

Next, accelerate the development initiatives in ARRM, especially high-profile public works and social programs, including health, housing, livelihood and Muslim education. If it would not adversely affect the Philippine negotiating position and provoke alarm among Christians, a pilot implementation of the envisioned Muslim ancestral domain regime shall be undertaken, to demonstrate our sincerity to achieve peace. We have declared many ancestral domains among indigenous peoples, I really don't see why anybody should be scared if there is an ancestral domain declared for the Muslim people. Then also, hold the first peace and security assembly in Bohol. This should happen on the 23rd and 24th of August. And elsewhere, to wind down insurgency in other areas, further demonstrating the government's peace resolve while freeing up troops in case they would be needed in Mindanao. I give you this report because national security and political stability are the foundations of a strong economy.

So, today I am here to ask you first, to help me appeal to all not to exploit the peace and security issues and initiatives for politicking. After all many of the champions of industry here are very important political supporters as well. And second, to harness private sector support for revenue and anti-smuggling efforts.

I have been looking forward to meeting with major business chambers to call on you to work with government in boosting tax collection and fighting smuggling, which is a major complaint of top business leaders. And it's a good time to start with you because your federation, that's why I call you champions of industry. Your federation has especially been active in anti-smuggling advocacy to protect Philippine industry and Philippine labor.

We take the shortfall in revenue collection by the BIR and the BOC seriously. We have taken immediate steps to address this. We remain committed to the implementation of our economic reform agenda. The measures we are taking to improve the efficiency of the revenue-enhancing agencies are enabling us to increase revenue collection and get our collection efforts back on track. We also remain committed to doing everything necessary to maintain the economic delivery (recovery) that has delivered 26 consecutive quarters of economic growth and that is enabling us to invest in modern infrastructure and much needed social services.

Let us put the shortfall into context. We were not on target or the first half of this year but we have met our target for July. This shows that we knew what has to be done to get back on target. This shows that we have been taking the required actions. And if you remember in 2006 our dedication and discipline to raise revenues led to 20-percent growth in revenues from the previous year. Revenues from collection efficiency and tax administration reforms alone reached 41 billion pesos in 2006 about seven-tenths percent (0.7%) of GDP – higher than the conservative plan of one-third percent (0.3%). We have demonstrated our ability to meet the challenges of revenue generation. And we are confident that we will succeed again in this instance.

Let me describe some of the actions we have taken and will take to address this situation. We have asked our senior team to take responsibility for the actions of their agencies. We have made tough decisions regarding organization and leadership. We're vigorously implementing Actions Plans with the BIR and the BOC with the support from our development partners and our industry partners like you to improve tax collection efficiency. Some of these measures include holding separate command conferences in the BIR, which I will hold after coming from here and the BOC which we held last Friday, reviewing performance and transferring or at least warning poor performers among revenue district officers and port collectors.

To get the complete Customs picture, last Friday we did a section-by-section dissection of the revenue output of two major ports, the Port of Manila and the Manila International Container Port. Fifty-five centavos for every peso raised by the BOC come from these ports. The transaction value (volume) in these ports is so huge that a mere section of the Port of Manila has the collection equivalent of most ports outside the National Capital Region. If that is the case, I found it more productive for us to scrutinize the performance of the 15 sections in each of the two ports rather than waste time evaluating the yield of, say, the port of Surigao. Port of Manila and MICP section officials are more vital than a collector of a backwater port. To pinpoint responsibility in collection slippage it does us well to go beyond port-level performance and dissect how each of the sections fare.

I am forming a Revenue Enhancement Task Force under Secretary Gary Teves and an Anti-Smuggling Task Force under the Presidential Anti-Smuggling Group under the National Competitiveness Council. This will be similar to the Anti-Red Tape Task Force under Secretary Peter Favila.

I invite the Federation of Philippine Industries to join the Anti-Smuggling Task Force. Together, let us continue to pursue peace and explore new horizons of Filipino competitiveness, more partnerships and reforms.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo at the 5th Global Filipino Networking Convention

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 5th Global Filipino Networking Convention

[Delivered at the Sydney, Australia, September 7, 2007]

Mga kababayan sa Australia at sa iba't ibang bahagi ng mundo!

Ikinagagalak ng ating delegasyon, bahagi dito ay APEC delegation at bahagi rin dito ay business delegation bilateral mula Pilipinas. Meron pa tayong isang kasama pero siya ay talagang ang pinuntahan niya ay kayo, ang Chairman ng ating Philippine Retirement Authority, si Egay Aglipay. Nasisiyahan kaming lahat mula sa Pilipinas na makita kayo dito sa 5th Global Filipino Networking Convention. Salamat at nagkaroon tayo ng ganitong pagkakataon.

Congratulations to the Filipino-Australian convenors for this year's convention, as well as the community leaders who made this event a success. Congratulations to Malyn who is the president of the Filipino Communities Council of Australia, and to Lolita Farmer, head of the Global Filipinos Australia and the Convention's Organizing Committee, and one of the 2006 recipients of the Presidential Award for Overseas Filipinos.

Yaong mga hindi taga-Australia ay nagugulat, ang galing-galing raw magsalita ni Lolita. Well, what she gets her award for is because she's a very successful practicing lawyer here in Sydney.

So to all of you who are not from Australia, welcome to this part of the world and especially to the original convenors of this convention, Loida and the other leaders of NAFFA. I'm sure you're so proud that NAFFA has gone such a long way and also other community leaders from around the world.

Indeed, this is a first, it maybe your fifth convention, but it's a first because it's the first time that this Global Filipino Networking Convention is held outside the U.S. and the Philippines. Mabuhay kayong lahat!

And congratulations for holding this event in time for the 15th Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) Leaders' Summit.

Noong ikinukuwento ko nung Mayo because I made a state visit here, na babalik ako rito one day ahead of the summit because I will speak to the Filipino communities, nagulat sila, how can you swing another convention when the APEC convention is taking place? But you are all here and that is again Mabuhay to your organizational abilities.

But it's also good for the Filipinos from all over the world to be here at a time of the APEC Conference, so that we can also keep up with what's happening in APEC.

At a time of uncertainty in the world, APEC remains a central pillar of global engagement and dialogue. We Filipinos believe in strong global engagement for our country and our people – lalo na kayo, you know that, you're practicing it, to grow our economy, ensure peace and security and lift our nation out of poverty.

Figuratively speaking, the more bridges we build, the more people can cross to new lands and new ideas. You, the overseas Filipinos, have demonstrated that we must be open to the world and peoples and places other than our own. That is what the 21st century will be about.

You know, it's not so much a function of poverty, you are professionals, you didn't go all over the world because you are poor. In New Zealand which is very rich, 25 percent of their population are overseas, a lot of them are here in Australia.

And in Portugal which is not a poor country either, it's like us, 10 percent of the population are abroad.

So that really means that the 21st century is about going to new places and being with peoples other than our own.

That is why APEC plays such a large role for the Philippines – it is one of the most important bridges we can build and cross together. We want the Philippines actively engaged in local, regional and global affairs because that is the future.

In the summit, we hope to see greater regional economic integration made possible with all 21 APEC economies agreeing to pursue the path of trade liberalization and a discussion on how the APEC can work together to address the global challenges of climate change through a framework for cooperation following up the Kyoto Protocol.

Prime Minister Howard in fact, has decided to make climate change the major topic at the Summit.

So let me also tell you about us and what we're doing adapting to climate change. In the Philippines, we embrace sustainable development. We've moved forward with an aggressive effort to create a Green Philippines, including reducing reliance on fossil fuels with our biofuels, wind and solar efforts and geothermal programs. It is good for our economy and good for the health and well-being of our people to have a strong economy and clean environment. That is why we welcome Australia's initiative to discuss climate change at the APEC because there's need for concerted international action to address the global challenges of climate change. We have a clean development mechanism under the Kyoto Protocol. This has allowed developing countries like the Philippines to voluntarily reduce its greenhouse gas emissions through private sector initiatives.

But there is a need for expansion. There's a need for greater levels of international cooperation and financial support to promote strategies to adapt to climate change, capacity development and technology transfer to avert security implications of the adverse effects of climate change.

Security implications, you know, for instance, Australia is a very big exporter of milk to the Philippines. Australia is already suffering from climate change. Milk production has gone down by 10 percent. Therefore, the price of milk in the Philippines has gone up. So we have adverse affects of climate change and we have to deal with them. So that's what we call adaptation strategies.

Countries like the Philippines contribute less than 1% of the world's greenhouse gas emissions. So we are not a villain as far as climate change is concerned. They call our kind of country a climate taker rather than a climate maker. So domestically for us more than working to reduce greenhouse gas, what's important for us is how to adapt to the climate change. And that is adaptation strategies, and that is what we need. It's more important than reduction. Still, reduction is important to the extent that we can contribute.

On our part, for instance, we must learn and adapt from our neighbors the technology, policies and economic tools that will help reduce greenhouse gas emissions. At the same time we are the second largest producer of geothermal energy in the world after the U.S., therefore we can also contribute by sharing our experience in developing clean alternative energy sources like geothermal power.

And APEC presents an opportunity to engage our allies in all of these things – in various economic, political and security issues at a time when the world needs closer cooperation.

This lunchtime, for instance, President Bush had lunch with five ASEAN leaders and the foreign and trade ministers of the seven ASEAN nations who are members of APEC. Tomorrow, I will meet Malaysian Prime Minister Badawi, so we can discuss the peace process in Southern Philippines which is being facilitated by Malaysia. That's one of the usefulness of an APEC summit.

The APEC, along with the ASEAN and other trading agreements, provides the opportunity for nations to work together to lift up our poor, not just in the Philippines but all over the world. We believe in the power of the global trading system to alleviate poverty and modernize nations through market forces. That does not mean we believe that countries like the Philippines are ready to compete head-to-head today in every sector, but it does mean that because that is what the 21st century is all about, we cannot afford to be afraid of globalization. I guess, just as we say that we are a climate taker rather than a climate maker, we're a globalization taker rather than a globalization maker, it's there. Let us use it to fight poverty.

Poverty alleviation is the number one most important part of our agenda in the Philippines and our vision to lift the Philippines into modernized country status in 20 years.

Iyong ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya ay nasa harapan ng ating kampanyang bawasan ang kahirapan. Ito ang ating pangkalahatang layunin.

Mula nang ang inyong lingkod ay umupo bilang Pangulo hanggang ngayon, mataas ang ating hinangad para sa ating bansa. Hinarap natin ang hamon: walang nakaakalang makakakuha tayo ng mas malaking buwis and cut down on tax cheats And no one thought we could bring our budget deficit under control, pre-pay our debts and raise employment, ngunit nagawa natin ito.

And I must acknowledge our congressmen and women, including our former congressmen, because the biggest single act that led to the surge in our economy, was the passage of our Value Added Tax, which in one bold stroke raised enormous amounts of revenue. Binigyang daan na mapabilis ang ating pag-angat ng bago nating nahanap na salapi para sa pamumuhunan.

Ang pagbalansyado ng kaban ng bayan ay unang hakbang lamang. Ngayon, namumuhunan tayo sa matagal nang dapat nagawang pamumuhunan sa human at physical infrastructure. Kasama dito ang bilyun-bilyong piso sa edukasyon, kalinga sa kalusugan, training kasama ng bilyun-bilyon sa mga bagong tulay, kalsada, pantalan to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines. This in turn attracts more investments at lumilikha ng mga dagdag na trabaho. Mas maraming trabaho, mas kaunting kahirapan.

And we not only want to have infrastructure, human and physical infrastructure, we also want to make the environment friendly to business by reducing red tape and corruption.

Our anti-corruption advisor, Mr. Tony Kwok, who was the former anti-corruption czar in Hong Kong, who was a key player in efforts to clean up corruption there, believes that perceptions cloud the reality of our progress in reducing corruption and red tape in the Philippines. The fact is that we have undertaken the effort to curb graft through criminal justice, through administrative controls and through procedural reforms. This effort is focused on the revenue agencies, that's why they have improved their performance in recent years and agencies that are in the frontline of day-to-day public services. One of them would be the retirement authority, di ba Egay? I think Loida knows that very well, and now you're happy, because that's a frontline service that deals with overseas Filipinos.

We take this issue very seriously. And we believe perception will match reality in a few years. However, this is a problem that has plagued the Philippines and other countries for generations and, as experience has shown, it won't necessarily be eliminated overnight but progress is being made.

Mabisa ang ating plano sa ekonomiya. Itong second quarter nitong taong ito mula Abril hanggang Hunyo, umangat ang produksyon sa loob ng ating bansa o Gross Domestic Product (GDP) by 7.5 percent. That brings the first semester GDP growth to 7.3 percent. Umangat naman ang mga produksyon ng mga Pilipino kasama iyong mga overseas Filipinos o Gross National Product ng 8.3 percent. Thank you.

Ang overseas remittances mula sa mga Pilipino katulad ninyo na nasa labas ng bansa ay umaabot na ng P13 billion o 11% ng ating GDP.

Ang ating Bangko Sentral ay masipag na nagtatrabaho upang iangat ang tinatawag nilang financial literacy lalo na ng mga overseas Filipino workers at kanilang mga pamilya. Nagkakampanya ang Central Bank at ang kanyang mensahe: ang financial freedom hindi tumigil sa may sapat na pondo para i-sustento ang mga batayang pangangailangan ng isang pamilya. Nag-iipon, nag-iimpok and turning this hard-earned money into solid working capital is equally important. Sa mga financial literacy campaigns ng Bangko Sentral, pinaiiral ang kultura ng pag-iimpok. OFWs and your families are encouraged to channel these savings into investments.

In the Wall Street Journal the other day, they wrote a very beautiful article about the Philippines, our harsh measures are paying off with our growth rate. And that article by James Hookway also said that a lot of the overseas Filipinos are not just sending things for basic necessities but also investing.

Ngayon, parami nang parami ang mga remittances na ginagamit sa pamumuhunan sa Human Resource Capital sa pamamagitan ng edukasyon at kalinga sa kalusugan ng mga benepisyaryo; physical capital sa pamamagitan ng real properties, kasama ang pagbili ng lupa at pagtayo ng tahanan; and also in your case our prosperous overseas Filipinos, you support Gawad Kalinga and so many other projects that are really real property investments. And also pati na rin yung sa retirement homes na binebenta ni Egay Aglipay sa ating mga overseas Filipinos; and financial and capital investment sa pamamagitan ng financial instruments gaya ng stocks, mutual funds, at mga negosyo gaya ng mga Small and Medium Enterprises (SMEs). At yung mga microfinance gaya ng Opportunity International, we also thank our prosperous overseas Filipinos because you have supported a lot of microfinance NGOs, kaya nagpapalit ang kultura ng mga remittance. At sana tuluy-tuloy ito.

Iginagalang ng ating bansa, ng ating mga mamamayan ang mga overseas Filipinos dahil sa inyong sakripisyo at malasakit sa inyong trabaho, inyong pamilya at ating bansa, buong loob na tinatanggap iyong mga kontribusyon whether it is as remittances to your families which, I said not just of basic needs but of investments or your contributions to classrooms, contributions to Gawad Kalinga homes, contributions to microfinance.

But we are working towards the day when the ordinary Filipino no longer needs to go abroad for a job; that overseas work is just another career option and not the only choice a hardworking Filipino has to earn for a living. Our ambitious economic reforms will help break the offshore cycle. It will increasingly be keeping our best and brightest right in the Philippines, closer to families and friends, helping to build our communities and providing the next generation of leadership.

In fact in my visits to other countries and also in my visits to our investments from abroad coming to the Philippines, more and more former Filipinos have availed of, I believe the Dual Citizenship Act of 2003, which Lolita talked about. And as far as the overseas voting is concerned, we are open to ideas for further improving the implementation of the Overseas Absentee Voting Act of 2003 to encourage more Filipinos overseas to register and vote. I'm sure the congressmen and congresswomen who are here will be happy to listen to your suggestions on how that law can be improved.

We have also strengthened the Balik-Scientist Program by increasing the incentives for Filipinos to share their scientific and technological expertise for nation-building in the Philippines. One of our Filipino-Americans, Dado Banatao, is helping us put up, not just put up but now implement a science and technology-based development. And because of the masterplan that they have put together, we are now spending more than a billion pesos a year on new expenditures on science and technology, including scholarships for masters and doctoral degrees and research development.

And for OFWs coming home, we have the National Reintegration Center that has been established to assist returning Filipino overseas workers to develop skills they will need when they decide to return to the Philippines permanently.

Maraming mga overseas Filipinos ay umuuwi na para magtrabaho sa mga bagong investments and I have seen them. For instance, Texas Instruments in Clark, there are Filipinos who have come home to work there. When I went to Hanjin in Subic, it's a one billion-dollar investment in Subic and they're gonna put 700 million dollars in another facility coming up soon. When I interviewed those who were there, I asked them, ano'ng ginagawa n'yo dati? iyong iba fishermen dati, iyong iba housewife, iyong iba nagbabanda doon sa mga disco ng Olongapo. But some of them were overseas workers who found that their job in Hanjin is comparable to the job they had abroad.

Doon sa mga minahan, the mining companies also. In fact, speaking of mining, ilan sa mga minahan ay pinamumuhunan ng mga kompanyang Australyano. Kaya nandito si Secretary Lito Atienza, makikipag-usap sa kanila.

Kaya inaasahan kong lahat tayo ay tuluy-tuloy na magtutulongan para sa ikabubuti ng ating bayan. At inaasahan kong tayo'y magsisikap at sama-samang abutin ang ating layunin para sa ikauunlad ng Pilipinas.

You, the Filipino communities in Australia and around the world, have a role to play in the Philippines' participation in the international community. Whatever your profession, wherever you reside, you willingly carry the indelible mark of the Filipino. I am glad that you are confident of your competence, your brilliance and your standing in both your motherland and in your host country.

Indeed, the Filipino is a true global citizen. Ang Pilipino ay isang tunay na mamamayang global.

Kaya, mga minamahal kong kababayan: Naniniwala ako sa pangitain ng isang mamamayan, maunlad at progresibong Pilipinas. At alam ko na kayo ay naniniwala rin doon kaya taun-taon gumagawa kayo ng networking convention. What is the commonality even if you come from all over the world, you are Filipinos and you love your country.

Ito ang tanda ng progreso ng Pilipinas, imagine your 11 percent contribution to our GDP, lahat ng ito ay kaugnay ng hangarin na isulong ang progreso ng Pilipinas sa tulong ninyo. Kasi yung mga halimbawa sa mga taga-New Zealand, kinu-kwento sa akin, pag pumupunta yung 25 percent nila sa ibang bansa gaya dito, tinutulungan pa ng mga nanay at tatay nila na galing sa New Zealand. Kayo, the opposite, kayo ang tumutulong. Imagine kung ang ating bansa hindi ganoon ang kultura ninyo, kung hindi kayo tumutulong ay di yung 11 percent ng GDP, wala sana yon. So talagang napakalaking bagay na ang mga Pilipino kahit saan sa buong mundo, mahal pa rin ang Pilipinas, kaya hindi brain-drain dahil binabalik n'yo sa inyong investments, not only for the future when you go home but even while you are abroad at tinutulungan ninyo ang ating bansa.

Sa pagkakaisa at bayanihan, walang makakahadlang sa pag-usbong ng bagong Pilipinas dahil ganoon ang Pilipino, kahit na saan sa buong mundo, Pilipino pa rin.

Ako'y nasisiyahan sa inyo.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the Launching Ceremony of the BUC-AFP-PNP Forum for Peace

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Launching Ceremony of the Bishops-Ulama Conference – Armed Forces of the Philippines –
Philippine National Police (BUC-AFP-PNP) Forum for Peace

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, September 12, 2007]

Thank you, Secretary Gilbert Teodoro for your introduction.

His Grace Archbishop Capalla and the other Catholic bishops; Dr. Mahid Mutilan and the other Muslim Ulamas; His Grace Bishop Gomez and the other Christian bishops; Bishop Tumalak; Secretary Gonzales and Dureza and the other government officials; General Esperon and our other officers of the Armed Forces; General Calderon and our other officers of the Philippine National Police; members of the Bishop-Ulama Conference Tripartite Commission, ladies and gentlemen.

In these sensitive times, we thank God that we have strong groups committed to God, country and the flag.

We have the Bishop-Ulama Conference, you are the bastion of collective faith in our nation. In Mindanao, we have been able to meld together confidence-building measures grounded on strong interfaith dialogue under the leadership of the Bishop-Ulama Conference. You're 11 years old now and so you preceded all these fashionable advocacy for interfaith dialogue. And I was very honored that during the 60th Anniversary of the United Nations when the Philippines presided over the interfaith dialogue, I could have a story to tell of the Bishops-Ulama conference and what you have been doing all these years.

And through your leadership therefore as I said, our soft power, our confidence-building measures in Mindanao are first of all spearheaded by interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness; investments and basic infrastructure development; and mutual security arrangements to keep the peace.

We have the armed forces and the police representing our fighting faith in the war between good and evil. Our men and women in uniform are good, upstanding and loyal patriots, fighting to protect our country everyday. We must respect their command structure and disclosure rules, which are indispensable for our security.

Today, we are gathered here in the cause of peace, justice and national reconciliation. We all live under one national flag and under one banner of heaven, under one God. I call on our leaders in public and private positions of responsibility, in civilian life and military life to join, to continue joining, to continue to chart a course of investment in our people and economic growth. On my part, I am bound and determined to captain a steady ship.

We live by the rule of law. We abide by what the courts of the land decide. We must be a government that honors contracts and agreements that go through the required processes despite media attacks. And we must be a government that abides by what the courts of the land decide on matters of dispute.

The government has stayed focused on what the Filipinos yearn for most. Tired of political drama and social instability, we are entering a new era where the vast majority wants a predictable future, a steady job and a calm political climate.

We are moving on as a nation. The people are concerned about maintaining peace, order and stability. We have been through many upheavals. The people deserve a stable government and economic progress. That is what they are getting now.

The Philippine economy holds great promise for every single Filipino, if only we can come together as a nation and put the nation's interests ahead of individual desires. So, we call on all leaders to rally around our country, our economy so that it can truly lift up all boats. And we ask the whole world to support the Philippines on the road to national consolidation.

The state of our economy brings hope and excitement. Our growth is the highest in a generation, revenue is now on track, and job creation is strong. Our deficit is down, consumer confidence is up, and inflation is holding steady. The foundation of our economic comeback is wide, deep and solid. Across the board, the nation's economy is pointed in the right direction and for the right reasons.

We are close to a peace agreement with the MILF — thanks once again to the Bishops-Ulama Conference — we remain optimistic because of you that we can overcome the final barriers on ancestral domain so that we can give finality to the peace. However, even now we have already achieved a great deal. The region is vastly improved in terms of safety, security and economic growth. So the current agreements that we have are making things better even as we await the final peace agreement. And it will really take off if we achieve lasting peace and the millions of foreign aid promised comes pouring in.

Kasama ng balangkas pangkapayapaan ang amnestiya at kabuhayan sa mga rebeldeng ibig bumalik sa panig ng batas. Kalahating bilyong piso ang paunang pondo rito, upang mabilis na itanim ang matibay na kapayapaan at seguridad sa mga rehiyon, sa pangunguna ng mga pinunong lokal at relihiyoso kagaya ninyo, at katulong ang buong gobyerno ng bansa.

We guarantee the leftist insurgents willing to turn their guns into plowshares and respect the rule of law another opportunity to regain normal life under proclamation 1377 issued last week. But we must emphasize that amnesty shall not apply to terrorist groups, whose violence and treacherous deeds can never be countenanced as arising from legitimate political struggle. The communist rebels have spent years as a low-level threat. It's time for their disruption and violation of human rights to be put to rest so that the nation can move ahead. They impede the progress and development of a number of rural areas. They're responsible for a wide range of human rights abuses. If we are to become a modernized country, we have to put a stop to their ideological nonsense and their criminal acts once and for all. It's either amnesty or military solution. Whichever way, communist rebellion must be stopped.

The military solution is our last option, but we must be prepared to wield this option when peace is broken, when non-combatants cower in fear and development initiatives are halted. Tulad ng sinabi ko na sa ating mga sundalo ilang beses: hindi tayo aatras ng pakibaka upang mabigyan ng kapayapaan at kaunlaran ang bayan.

The Abu Sayyaf stand in the way of bringing peace, stability and order to Southern Philippines. We must wipe them out once and for all. They are a menace to peace and a beacon for international thugs who wish to join their ranks.

And so, I thank the members of the Bishop-Ulama Conference and the leaders of the AFP and the PNP for the peace covenant that you have just handed to me which we shall transform into action, on the premise that peace and development are twinned, one cannot exist for long without the other.

We reach out to all who are willing to talk peace with an olive branch. We have authorized the holding of local peace and security assemblies, the first of which was held in Bohol late last month, to bring the local government units and the civil society especially including the religious sector into the locus of peace-making and peace-keeping. Our next local assembly will be in Butuan in Agusan Del Sur. And we are looking forward to the clergy playing a major role in the peace efforts there.

The way to peace isn't through the barrel of a gun. That's why the military solution is the last option. Rather the way to peace begins with providing a person a job, food on the table and human dignity. Central to that success is to invest in the people, in education, health care, roads, bridges and schools. In Western Mindanao, we have worked closely with the U.S. military and other O.D.A. partners on an amazing number of community public works projects. The positive impact of these projects cannot be overstated, from health care to building schools, the outreach has built more than buildings, it has built trust.

We will replicate this paradigm in other poor and remote areas of our country through the KALAHI barangays and the Kalayaan barangays. The state of our economy today as I said brings hope and excitement and we will be able to afford this KALAHI barangays and Kalayaan barangays in the next few years to come. It is because revenue is now on track. For the last two months the B.I.R. and the B.O.C. have been able to achieve their targets and that is why we can spend on peace.

Our deficit is down and therefore we don't borrow so much. Our interest rates are down and that is good for our entrepreneurs. And because the interest rate is down, businessmen don't have to add interest cost so much to their goods, and that is why inflation is holding steady. So, all of these are related to the economy and we'll talk about peace.

Our economy has created six million jobs in six years. It has helped raise wages, lower the rate of poverty, even the World Bank and the ADB say that. Invest in education and health care and invest heavily in roads, bridges and vital services. This is what the people of the nation deserve. And I would like to report to our good Bishops-Uamas that to ensure transparency and good governance in our massive public investments, we are creating under the government procurement policy board, a procurement transparency group chaired by the department of budget and management, and including the justice, interior and local government, and economic planning departments, plus representatives of civil society organization for procurement reform, which trains and fields external observers in government bids and awards committees nationwide. This group which the cabinet approved yesterday shall monitor procurement bidding and report anomalies to agency heads as well as governance bodies like the ombudsman and the commission on audit.

Yesterday, the cabinet also approved the pro-performance infrastructure monitoring group which shall also harness civil society and the private sector in ensuring that public works projects serve the needs and objectives for which they are undertaken and contract terms and timetables are complied with.

We are writing a new chapter in Philippine economic history through the use of tight fiscal reforms complemented by targeted investments in our people and infrastructure. And cost-cutting measures and elimination of red tape to allow our small entrepreneurs and foreign investors alike to move more rapidly to create new businesses. And I hope that this new chapter in economic history will also bring about a new chapter in our social history.

To the extent allowed by the constitutional restriction of separation of church and state, we support the activities of religious groups to provide livelihood opportunities together with spiritual guidance to the members. We are all like-minded in our desire for peace.

And we have high hopes that the BUC-Military-Police Forum, which you have promised will happen every three months, will play a key role in the nation's peace and stability in the future.

Let us continue on this day of prayer and reconciliation to pray for peace even as we work harder to sustain it.

Mabuhay ang kapayapaan at kaunlaran! Mabuhay tayong lahat!

Maraming salamat.

*Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Launching Ceremony of the Bishops-Ulama Conference – Armed Forces of the Philippines – Philippine National Police (BUC-AFP-PNP) Forum for Peace. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412143250/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2179&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Signing of the Memorandum of Understanding among the Conservation International Foundation, Toyota Motor Corporation, Department of Environment and Natural Resources and the Municipal Government of Peñablanca, Cagayan

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Signing of the Memorandum of Understanding among the Conservation International Foundation, Toyota Motor Corporation, Department of Environment and Natural Resources and the Municipal Government of Peñablanca, Cagayan

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, September 13, 2007]

Maraming salamat sa ating bagong Secretary of Environment and Natural Resources, Secretary Lito Atienza.

Congressman Manny Bamba, the congressman of the 3rd District of Cagayan where Peñablanca is located; Doctor George Ty, Chairman of Toyota Motor Corporation; Okabe San, Managing Director; Mr. Prickett and Mr. Hess of Conservation International; Mayor Julia of Peñablanca; other local government officials of Peñablanca; other officers of Toyota; ladies and gentlemen.

Today, we move forward with all the stakeholders of the Peñablanca protected landscape and seascape — with the full support of the people. This is another milestone towards Green Philippines.

Toyota Motor, the biggest automaker in the world, as Mr. Okabe said, is funding this six-year project with a grant of 350 million yen. Thank you, Toyota.

Conservation International — a very well-known and prestigious team dedicated to conserving the earth's living heritage in global diversity — will lead the implementation of the project. I understand that Conservation International has long been a partner of the Filipino people in protecting vast conservation corridors in the Sierra Madre mountain range, in Palawan and Eastern Mindanao. Thank you, Conservation International.

The Department of Environment shall identify the 2,500 hectares of forest land for the two phases of this project. And it shall facilitate project implementation to make sure there are no hindrances to full success. Good luck and congratulations, DENR!

A key partner, the local government of Peñablanca, which is located at the northern tip of Sierra Madre — that's where Sierra Madre ends to the north — will lead the people, particularly the forest dwellers, to win the future with us. Kablawan dakayo amin tiga-Peñablanca ken congressman.

It's a great time to have this meeting, this launching because last Tuesday, we also launched the updating our Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan. And there is no better audience than this distinguished group with which to restate our environment agenda for the year 2007 and beyond — the main skeletal structure of what will be the chapter on the environment.

We are a young nation: our people are young; those under 30 years old make up 65 percent of the population. We are a young nation because our democracy, our functioning democracy is just 60 years old even though we declared a republic more than a hundred years ago. The growing pains are still with us. We are a young nation because our spirit is young. We love life: we sing, we dance, we love sports, we love innovation and technology. So we are a young nation because we are modernizing. We are young because we are true citizens of the world, part of the rapid pace of change that is taking place around the globe. We are young because we are on the cutting edge of the global workforce. Toyota knows this, and so we thank Toyota for your new expansion. Thank you.

We have a vision for a young nation, and that is what we will have in the vision paragraph of our updated medium-term plan. Our vision is that we will take our place alongside other modernized nations in 20 years. To that end, no nation can aspire to be modern without thinking of our environment. We want to press ahead with our massive Green Philippines environmental plan that is comprehensive in scope and thorough in execution. A plan that includes first, reforestation; and second, scrubs the land and air of pollutants that endanger the health of our citizens; third, energy independence; and fourth preservation of our reefs and waterways and wildlife.

On reforestation: we must take back our forests and replenish fallen trees with new, protected forests to protect our land and our people. We must reforest that land and bring back the beauty of the Philippines we all love and want. And we thank Toyota and conservation international for this task of replenishing the forest of the Sierra Madre in the northern tip in Peñablanca.

On anti-pollution: we want to tap the enthusiasm of young and old alike to clean up our environment. We need to beautify our villages and cities of trash; build more urban parks and recreation areas; purify our water; and clean up industrial sites that are an eyesore and are unhealthy.

On energy independence: as part of our Green Philippines, we want an energy- efficient nation, free from reliance on costly and exhaust-spewing cars and smokestacks. We thank Toyota for producing clean cars and providing Malacañang several years ago with the sample of that car. Part of a bright new future for our nation is to control our over reliance on energy, to become free from overdependence on foreign oil and become more self sufficient through the use of sustainable, alternative forms of energy. We can harness our sun, wind and geothermal resource, and produce our own clean fuels through biofuels and not overly rely on foreign suppliers.

And finally, conservation: preservation of our reefs and waterways, and designation of nature parks and wildlife refuges. We want to turn our coral reefs and beaches, the wonder of the world, and other wildlife refuges into national parks and international sanctuaries for eco-tourism and scientific research.

In 2002, I signed Proclamation 484 expanding the Peñablanca protected landscape in the Sierra Madres from 4,130 hectares to the Peñablanca protected landscape and seascape covering a 118,782 hectares of terrestrial, freshwater and marine ecosystems.

We are determined to conserve the Sierra Madre mountain range. It constitutes the largest remaining block of natural rainforest in the Philippines. We will protect the refuge of some 50 percent of threatened animals in our country, including the Philippine eagle, the Philippine crocodile, and other known species.

We have the chance to develop our nation right from the start: clean, healthy, productive and beautiful.

Investing in vital infrastructure — which is what I have largely discussed and presented in my State of the Nation Addresses for the last two years now — includes not just building up new steel structure that will endure, but to tear down those old and unreliable buildings and bridges that are no longer safe and operational. And we must also build up our environment as a reflection of our commitment to our quality of life. People need to breathe clean air and swim in clean water while we also build manufacturing and bridges to span our waters.

This will enhance our national security, lift up our economy and preserve our environment.

All the leaders and the ordinary folk who join us today have their face to the sun and feel the rays of a new day.

I want to congratulate the 3rd District of Cagayan and the municipality of Peñablanca, and thank Toyota and Conservation International for being an important part of the new Philippines.

We hope that other global citizens will invest in our environment, following the lead of Toyota Motors Corporation and Conservation International.

As the people of Peñablanca would say, ” Dios ti agngina kadakayo amin apo.”

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA’s Speech during the Signing of the Memorandum of Understanding among the Conservation International Foundation, Toyota Motor Corporation, Department of Environment and Natural Resources and the Municipal Government of Peñablanca, Cagayan. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412143126/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2176&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Women's National Electoral Assembly 2007

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Women's National Electoral Assembly 2007

[Delivered at the Reception Hall, Philippine International Convention Center, Pasay City, September 14, 2007]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Secretary Cabral for your introduction.

Ambassador Kenney, our very outstanding American woman, who's representing her country in the Philippines; our leaders of the women's movements here in the Philippines, Myrna Yao who is the chairman of our... Chairwoman of our National Council on the Role of Filipino Women; and our hosts: Mrs. Benedicto and Mrs. Villar; ladies and gentlemen.

What an honor to be here to join hands with you to celebrate 70 years of Filipino women suffrage and to extol its champions.

Seven decades ago, it was a conservative era in Philippine politics. Well, we thank Lulu Casas Quezon's father-in-law for working to give us the right of suffrage. But many male legislators who are against women suffrage at that time said that "women belonged only to the home and that women themselves did not want to have the right to vote." but they wrong. Quezon was right. And more than 400,000 Filipino women said yes.

Today, 70 years later, we can say that we are proud that women in the Philippines got the right to vote ahead of women in many other parts of the world. And women in the Philippines rose to the very top of political and corporate world ahead of women in many other developed parts... In many developed parts of the world.

Filipino women are champions in the home. We hold the purse strings unlike many other parts of the world. We are champions in political leadership. Now, aside from having a woman president, we have twenty-five percent of the Philippine congress made up of women. And we are champions in the corporate world. The statistics all over the world show what a large number of female CEOs we have in our corporate world.

But I believe that the suffrages of seventy years ago — and as we extolled them, we mentioned some of them: Sofia De Veyra, Josefa Llanes Escoda, Pura Villanueva Kalaw, Trinidad Legarda, Pilar Hidalgo Lim, Concepcion Felix Rodriguez, and many others whose memory today still inspires respect and admiration — I believe they will be able to truly rest in peace when not only can we say that women occupy top roles in politics and business. But also when we can say that every Filipina is liberated, not only electorally but in every other way to fulfill their hopes and dreams, free from fear and full of opportunity.

It often falls to the women of our nation — in fact, almost all the women of our nation are obligated, they're the ones obligated — to feed and clothe our children, and see that they go to school, ready to learn. Very, very few households are liberated enough to have a househusband and then a woman being charged of working outside. When a woman works outside, she is still the housewife ahead... On top of it. And that is why it is so important for her, for the Filipino woman that her burdens are made lighter by an economy that is moving forward.

And this is what our steadily improving economy is all about. The state of our economy today, 70 years after women won the right to vote brings hope and excitement. Our growth is the highest in a generation. Revenue is now on track, and I have to congratulate our female B.I.R. Commissioner Lilian Hefti. You know, Customs and B.I.R. are both achieving their targets for two months now. In customs, there are some underperforming units, there are some overperforming units. So the overperforming units make up for the underperformance of the underperforming units, so customs is performing overall. In the B.I.R., every single unit is now making its targets. So we should congratulate Lilian for that.

Job creation is strong. Our deficit is down because our B.I.R. and customs are able to meet their targets. Consumer confidence is up. And that's very important because consumers are mostly women. In fact, Mrs. Benedicto has always been famous as a consumer advocate. And I asked Mrs. Benedicto, "how's your consumer group?" she said, "it's still there." so, I said, "I think we should work very closely with the Department of Trade and Industry in order to work together to promote consumers' rights."

I guess, one reason why consumer confidence is up is that inflation is holding steady. When I was in APEC in Australia, I was very proudly saying that our inflation rate is 2.5 percent. I was wrong, it's 2.4 percent.

The foundation of our economic comeback is wide, deep and solid. Across the board, the nation's economy is pointed in the right direction and for all the right reasons. The elements of this broad-based success are built on many things. And with the help of many people, institutions and economic contributors — notable among this is the Filipino woman.

The Filipino woman as homemaker or policy maker; the Filipino woman as worker, executive or entrepreneur; or as I said earlier, the Filipino woman in a combination of several of these roles.

The woman suffrages of 70 years ago, taught us a thing or two about balancing their family lives and political preoccupations. We know some of their offspring and some of their daughters are also equally very valuable and responsible members of our society. So that means they brought them up very well as well.

Whatever is our career outside the home, there is an irreplaceable value of the women's' work at home. Strong, stable families contribute to a stable nation, a culture of peace, and it promotes dialogue among diversified groups, because if you know how to deal with other members of your family, you'll know how to deal with other people in the community,

So let us exercise our right of suffrage to achieve the right of women to have more economic choice, to determine the future of their lives and the lives of their families. And to be able to exercise our right of suffrage to its fullest, let us crusade for electoral reforms.

Our administration has long provided funds for computerization of elections. Let's campaign for modernization of voting, counting and canvassing starting with the forthcoming barangay elections.

We can disagree on political goals but not on the conduct of democratic elections. And let us lobby for a law to fund poll watch dogs. And a stronger law against election-related violence.

To be able to lobby for all of these, as women, we count on organizations like the women's organizations represented here in this federation's gathering to empower women to organize at the grassroots level with training on leadership, communication, negotiation, assertiveness.

Indeed, we have come far in the fight by women for rights and participation in the political and economic process.

Women's rights are human rights.

Our society must do everything in its power to ensure that these rights are respected and protected.

So let us use the right of suffrage that our mothers and grandmothers gained for us 70 years ago to work for the day that no woman in the Philippines has to live a life of poverty or exploitation.

Let's use our right of suffrage to modernize the Philippines to make the life of our sisters a better one with more economic opportunity, greater social justice and a better future for our children.

Once again, Happy 70th Jubilee on our Celebration of Women's Suffrage!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Women's National Electoral Assembly 2007. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412143119/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2173&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the Electronics Industry Forum

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines At the Electronics Industry Forum

[Delivered at the Rizal Ballroom, Makati Shangri-La Hotel, September 18, 2007]

Congratulations for organizing this strategic forum. We all know how strategic the electronics industry is to our economy. It accounts for 2/3 of our exports, employing half a million people in well-paying jobs. In the creation of jobs, nothing beats the information technology industry: call centers, business process outsourcing, and electronics.

I understand that the Philippines supplies 50% of the world's requirements for 2.5-inch hard disk drives and 10% of the 3.5-inch hard disk drives produced by the top three global suppliers Fujitsu, Toshiba and Hitachi. And that for mobile phones, 100% of the Nokia digital signal processors and 80% of Siemens' and Ericsson's are manufactured by Texas Instruments.

Texas Instruments is expanding its factory in Baguio and, more significantly, it has started constructing a new $1 billion wafer fab facility at the Clark Freeport Zone, which they chose over other locations including China.

I like to think that the Texas Instruments investment is also a validation of the Filipino worker and the quality of the infrastructure and facilities at Clark. It is a good deal for the thousands of workers who will be employed in that new plant. I have often said that the Philippines is the best value for investment in Asia.

There has been a sea change in the Philippines in the past few years. We have broken the back of fiscal irresponsibility and with our revenue, fiscal and investment policies we are charting a new economic course.

Aside from Texas Instruments, a number of international companies have recently invested heavily in our country in electronics and other industries. Electronics investments for the first eight months of 2007 posted more than 100 percent growth compared to the same period last year – from $360 million to $763 million. As to other industries, Korea's Hanjin has built a billion dollar shipyard in Subic and is already making expansion plans. Last year, Marubeni and Tokyo Electric Power purchased power plants in the Philippines for some $3.5 billion and announced another $350 million to expand its facilities in Pagbilao. The American power company AES recently won the bid for the Calaca power plant at $930 million and has informed me of another $1 billion expansion in that plant. These are validation that our strategy is working.

The Philippines has become an increasingly competitive location for manufacturing, services and high-skill jobs along with the booming call center business.

The Texas Instruments wafer fab shows that we are moving up the industry in the value chain. We also hope to increase the industry's export earnings through wireless applications (such as mobile phones, MP3s and IPODs), personal computers, and consumer electronics (such as plasma TVs).

We offer a strategic location in a fast-growing region, our workforce is well educated, productive and English-speaking. This is a quality we are working hard to maintain through investments in human capital to ensure the competitiveness of our workforce.

We are writing a new chapter in Philippine economic history through the use of tight fiscal control/ complemented by targeted investments in our people and infrastructure. Because revenue is now on track and our deficit is down – in fact, Gary Teves just reported to me the good news that we posted a budget surplus for the month of August – for the first time in decades, less of our revenue is being used to service debt and more towards investment in our country's infrastructure and social services, including education and healthcare.

In our national competitiveness summit last year, we resolved that by 2010, the proficiency level of Math, Science and English in our schools shall have improved by 30 percent. We are on the way there, but I hereby instruct the Department of Education to fast track English training among our grade school teachers, including principals.

We are investing P3 billion in science and engineering research and development technology, including scholarships for masters and doctoral degrees in engineering in seven universities. Upgrade know-how and learning, and Filipino talent is unbeatable.

We are focused on raising our competitiveness by improving the quality of the country's human resources, lowering transaction flows and the cost of doing business, developing efficient access to financing, and building a seamless infrastructure network. We are cutting red tape to simplify the requirements for investments. Cost-cutting measures and elimination of red tape will allow our Filipino entrepreneurs and foreign investors alike to move more rapidly to create new businesses.

May pondo na tayo para gumastos ng dagdag na sandaang bilyon piso bawat taon, or P1 trillion for our Medium Term Public Investment Program to enhance the natural competitive advantages of the natural sub-economies or "super regions" of the Philippines. We are determined to raise our infrastructure spending to GDP ratio to 4.5 percent which is the ASEAN average.

Imprastraktura ang haliging nagtitindig hindi lamang ng ating makabagong ekonomiya: mga kalsada, tulay, paliparan, and power plants.

Last week I signed an Executive Order to launch GIGA – G-I-G-A – the Generating Investments in Geothermal Sites project.

That Executive Order instructs the local governments to set up economic zones in the jurisdictions near seven geothermal projects sites of the PNOC, so that industries can benefit from the local governments' use of their geothermal project royalties. In these areas local governments have large bank accounts from royalties that they use to subsidize the electric bills of their constituents.

We urge electronics investors to take advantage of subsidized electric bills power in communities hosting geothermal plants. A lower electric bill is already a powerful draw but we will make it more irresistible by throwing in other fiscal incentives which an ecozone is allowed to grant. The synergy of geothermal power and ecozones will power up progress.

The Executive Order instructs the Philippine Economic Zone Authority, whom you are all familiar with, to guide the local governments in setting up these economic zones in geothermal areas.

In the region, we will follow the roadmap for the ASEAN integration of the electronics sector, of which the Philippines is the country coordinator.

Our strengths are working to sustain our competitiveness for investment.

The state of our economy at this mid point in the year brings hope and excitement – our growth is the highest in a generation. The 7.5% GDP increase in the second quarter/ and the 10% gain in capital investment are in line with what the Asian Development Bank says the country needs in order to replicate the poverty-eradicating growth of Asia's economic success stories.

Job creation is strong. Our economy has created six million new jobs in six years and helped lower the rate of poverty, Total employment was 33.3 million last July, 1.2 percent higher than in July 2006. The unemployment rate improved to 7.8 percent from 8.1 percent of the same quarter a year ago.

Consumer confidence is up and inflation is holding steady. This slowed the clamor of higher wages, which likewise secured more employment.

The foundation of our economic comeback is wide, deep and solid. Across the board, the nation's economy is pointed in the right direction, and for all the right reasons. The elements of this broad-based success are built on many things and with the help of many people-institutions-and-economic contributors. Notable among these is the electronics industry.

We are partners for better technology, regional integration and jobs for Filipinos along the entire value chain. Thank you for your contribution to our economy.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech at the Electronics Industry Forum. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412143031/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2170&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

Speech of President Arroyo at the Electronics Industry Forum

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines At the Electronics Industry Forum

[Delivered at the Rizal Ballroom, Makati Shangri-La Hotel, September 18, 2007]

Congratulations for organizing this strategic forum. We all know how strategic the electronics industry is to our economy. It accounts for 2/3 of our exports, employing half a million people in well-paying jobs. In the creation of jobs, nothing beats the information technology industry: call centers, business process outsourcing, and electronics.

I understand that the Philippines supplies 50% of the world's requirements for 2.5-inch hard disk drives and 10% of the 3.5-inch hard disk drives produced by the top three global suppliers Fujitsu, Toshiba and Hitachi. And that for mobile phones, 100% of the Nokia digital signal processors and 80% of Siemens' and Ericsson's are manufactured by Texas Instruments.

Texas Instruments is expanding its factory in Baguio and, more significantly, it has started constructing a new $1 billion wafer fab facility at the Clark Freeport Zone, which they chose over other locations including China.

I like to think that the Texas Instruments investment is also a validation of the Filipino worker and the quality of the infrastructure and facilities at Clark. It is a good deal for the thousands of workers who will be employed in that new plant. I have often said that the Philippines is the best value for investment in Asia.

There has been a sea change in the Philippines in the past few years. We have broken the back of fiscal irresponsibility and with our revenue, fiscal and investment policies we are charting a new economic course.

Aside from Texas Instruments, a number of international companies have recently invested heavily in our country in electronics and other industries. Electronics investments for the first eight months of 2007 posted more than 100 percent growth compared to the same period last year – from $360 million to $763 million. As to other industries, Korea's Hanjin has built a billion dollar shipyard in Subic and is already making expansion plans. Last year, Marubeni and Tokyo Electric Power purchased power plants in the Philippines for some $3.5 billion and announced another $350 million to expand its facilities in Pagbilao. The American power company AES recently won the bid for the Calaca Power Plant at $930 million and has informed me of another $1 billion expansion in that plant. These are validation that our strategy is working.

The Philippines has become an increasingly competitive location for manufacturing, services and high-skill jobs along with the booming call center business.

The Texas Instruments wafer fab shows that we are moving up the industry in the value chain. We also hope to increase the industry's export earnings through wireless applications (such as mobile phones, MP3s and IPODs), personal computers, and consumer electronics (such as plasma TVs).

We offer a strategic location in a fast-growing region, our workforce is well educated, productive and English-speaking. This is a quality we are working hard to maintain through investments in human capital to ensure the competitiveness of our workforce.

We are writing a new chapter in Philippine economic history through the use of tight fiscal control/complemented by targeted investments in our people and infrastructure.

Because revenue is now on track and our deficit is down – in fact, Gary Teves just reported to me the good news that we posted a budget surplus for the month of August – for the first time in decades, less of our revenue is being used to service debt and more towards investment in our country’s infrastructure and social services, including education and healthcare.

In our national competitiveness summit last year, we resolved that by 2010, the proficiency level of Math, Science and English in our schools shall have improved by 30 percent. We are on the way there, but I hereby instruct the Department of Education to fast track English training among our grade school teachers, including principals.

We are investing P3 billion in science and engineering research and development technology, including scholarships for masters and doctoral degrees in engineering in seven universities. Upgrade know-how and learning, and Filipino talent is unbeatable.

We are focused on raising our competitiveness by improving the quality of the country’s human resources, lowering transaction flows and the cost of doing business, developing efficient access to financing, and building a seamless infrastructure network. We are cutting red tape to simplify the requirements for investments. Cost-cutting measures and elimination of red tape will allow our Filipino entrepreneurs and foreign investors alike to move more rapidly to create new businesses.

May pondo na tayo para gumastos ng dagdag na sandaang bilyon piso bawat taon, or P1 trillion for our Medium Term Public Investment Program to enhance the natural competitive advantages of the natural sub-economies or “super regions” of the Philippines. We are determined to raise our infrastructure spending to GDP ratio to 4.5 percent which is the ASEAN average.

Imprastraktura ang haliging nagtitindig hindi lamang ng ating makabagong ekonomiya: mga kalsada, tulay, paliparan, and power plants.

Last week I signed an Executive Order to launch GIGA – G-I-G-A – the Generating Investments in Geothermal Sites project.

That Executive Order instructs the local governments to set up economic zones in the Jurisdictions near seven geothermal projects sites of the PNOC, so that industries can benefit from the local governments use of their geothermal project royalties. In these areas local governments have large bank accounts from royalties that they use to subsidize the electric bills of their constituents.

We urge electronics investors to take advantage of subsidized electric bills power in communities hosting geothermal plants. A lower electric bill is already a powerful draw but we will make it more irresistible by throwing in other fiscal incentives which an ecozone is allowed to grant. The synergy of geothermal power and ecozones will power up progress.

The Executive Order instructs the Philippine Economic Zone Authority, whom you are all familiar with, to guide the local governments in setting up these economic zones in geothermal areas.

In the region, we will follow the roadmap for the ASEAN integration of the electronics sector, of which the Philippines is the country coordinator.

Our strengths are working to sustain our competitiveness for investments.

The state of our economy at this mid point in the year brings hope and excitement – our growth is the highest in a generation. The 7.5% GDP increase in the second quarter/and the 10% gain in capital investment are in line with what the Asian Development Bank says the country need in order to replicate the poverty-eradicating growth of Asia's economic success stories.

Job creation is strong. Our economy has created six million new jobs in six years and helped lower the rate of poverty Total employment was 33.3 million last July, 1.2 percent higher than in July 2006. The unemployment rate improved to 7.8 percent from 8.1 percent of the same quarter a year ago.

Consumer confidence is up and inflation is holding steady. This slowed the clamor of higher wages, which likewise secured more employment.

The foundation of our economic comeback is wide, deep and solid. Across the board, the nation's economy is pointed in the right direction, and for all the right reasons. The elements of this broad-based success are built on many things and with the help of many people, institutions and economic contributors. Notable among these is the electronics industry.

We are partners for better technology, regional integration and jobs for Filipinos along the entire value chain. Thank you for your contribution to our economy.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo at the High-level Dialogue on Mobilizing Aid for Trade: Focusing on Asia-Pacific

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the High-level Dialogue on Mobilizing Aid for Trade: Focusing on Asia-Pacific

[Delivered at the Asian Development Bank Headquarters, Mandaluyong City, September 20, 2007]

Welcome to the Philippines.

We are glad to witness this follow-through of Aid for Trade from its genesis in the Hong Kong WTO Ministerial Conference in 2005.

Congratulations to the Task Force that was set up after Hong Kong for its valuable recommendations of October 2006.

We are also glad to be made aware of the continuing discussions on Aid for Trade in the WTO Committee on Trade and Development in Geneva.

We continue the saga of this worthy program as we take great pleasure in having this high level Asia-Pacific Review of Aid for Trade.

Aid for Trade has rightfully brought together, and for the first time, the trade and finance communities.

This conference highlights the Asian dimension of Aid for Trade. This dimension is significant because the world is bullish on Asia and our ability to help drive positive change in the world.

In this conference governments, donors and the private sector address specific challenges and dialogue about what is working in the region and what is not. They prioritize needs and move towards shared solutions. The discussions will result in proposals and recommendations on how Aid for Trade should proceed within Asia and the Pacific. We look forward to beneficiary countries making trade a greater priority, and aid donors scaling up trade-related official development assistance and offering their expertise. We also look forward to stronger partnerships with the private sector to develop increased private-public financing. This conference helps create an impetus for collective action.

This meeting comes at a time when the state of the Philippine economy brings hope and excitement – our growth is the highest in a generation, revenue is now on track and job creation is strong. Our deficit is down, consumer confidence is up and inflation is holding steady.

The 7.5% GDP increase in the second quarter and the 10% gain in capital investment are in line with what the Asian Development Bank says the country needs in order to replicate the poverty-eradicating growth of Asia's economic success stories.

Poverty alleviation is the number one most important part of our agenda and our vision to lift the Philippines into the ranks of the modernized nations in twenty years.

The foundation of our economic comeback is wide, deep and solid. Across the board, the nation's economy is pointed in the right direction, and for all the right reasons.

According to Biz News Asia, there are three reasons why the economy grew so strongly in the first half – spending by consumers and the government, the expansion of services, (which means telecommunications, business process outsourcing and banking), and more industrial production.

There was plenty of money in the economy; that is why consumers and government were able to spend a lot.

Overseas workers remitted dollars, which were converted into pesos, and which were funneled into the banks and used to buy housing from developers and cellular phones and e-load from stores or retailers.

The biggest single act that led to the surge in our economy was the passage of our value added tax which in one bold stroke raised enormous amounts of new revenue. We followed up the pain of tax raising measures with the gain that comes from significant investment in people and progress.

We believe in strong global engagement for our country and our people to grow our economy, ensure peace and security and lift our nation out of poverty. Figuratively speaking, the more bridges we build, the more people can cross to new lands and new ideas. We must be open to the world and peoples and places other than our own. That is what the 21st century will be about.

We believe in the power of the global trading system to alleviate poverty and modernize nations through market forces. That does not mean we believe that countries like the Philippines are ready to compete head-to-head today in every sector, but it does mean that we cannot afford to be afraid of globalization.

The multilateral trading system, through the Doha Round, remains the best option to address poverty and improve standards of living around the world through an agreed set of international trade rules. It offers a major opportunity to put in place internationally significant reforms and reductions in trade-distorting domestic support, create meaningful and substantial market access in agriculture, industrial goods and services, and introduce improved WTO rules and trade facilitation arrangements.

This conference shows that we do not overlook the fact that the Doha Development Agenda was launched with an emphasis on integrating a developmental dimension into all elements of the negotiations. WTO acknowledges the need to provide special and differential treatment for developing members who require maximum flexibility under the international trade rules.

To make the Doha Round truly a Development Round as it is being billed: (1) there must be greater coherence or convergence of policies among international development institutions (e.g. World Bank, IMF, ADB, WTO) so that trade is mainstreamed in the development agenda and therefore capacity building can be focused and targeted and (2) we must review special and differential treatment beyond just the phasing of commitments but also capacity building and sufficient flexibility to pursue domestic development goals. Thus this conference contributes to making the Doha Round truly a Development Round.

This meeting is well timed as a global event, coming at the heels of the APEC leaders meeting in Sydney that signaled the need for breakthroughs in the WTO negotiations alongside more focused and more strategic capacity building among member economies.

The developed nations were the prime movers behind global trade when it suited them; now some countries are slowing things down. That is not right nor good for our respective economies.

There has been a ray of hope in APEC with the developed WTO members declaring that they are willing to fully adhere to the Doha mandate, in particular domestic subsidy cuts and disciplines, but they also ask to gain access to the developing world's markets.

We appreciate Pascal Lamy's visit to the Philippines last February. I told him then and I say it again: I believe it is in his hands to find the right formula of subsidy cuts and market access that will finally break the impasse.

But let me be clear: even as we work tirelessly to move the talks forward, we are not going to stand by and do nothing. For us, it is full speed ahead, preferably with Doha, but full speed nevertheless.

We recognize that fragmentation of the multilateral trading system into trading blocs will result in a more complex set of trade rules incompatible and detrimental to the interests of developing country members. But meanwhile, with a hope that there will be a successful conclusion to the Doha Round, we are maximizing the economic opportunities provided under bilateral and regional free trade agreements if only to complement efforts under the multilateral trading system.

I hope this Asia-Pacific conference ensures that WTO does not become a sideshow in global affairs. Asia and the Pacific are too important and the WTO has too much promise for that to happen.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech at the High-level Dialogue on Mobilizing Aid for Trade: Focusing on Asia-Pacific. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412143023/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2163&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the High-level Dialogue on Mobilizing Aid for Trade: Focusing on Asia-Pacific

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the High-level Dialogue on Mobilizing Aid for Trade: Focusing on Asia-Pacific

[Delivered at the Asian Development Bank Headquarters, Mandaluyong City, September 20, 2007]

Welcome to the Philippines.

We are glad to witness this follow through of Aid for Trade from its genesis in the Hong Kong WTO Ministerial Conference in 2005.

Congratulations to the Task Force that was set up after Hong Kong for its valuable recommendations of October 2006.

We are also glad to be made aware of the continuing discussions on Aid for Trade in the WTO Committee on Trade and Development in Geneva. We continue the saga of this worthy program as we take great pleasure in having this high level Asia-Pacific Review of Aid for Trade.

Aid for Trade has rightfully brought together, and for the first time, the trade and finance communities.

This conference highlights the Asian dimension of Aid for Trade. This dimension is significant because the world is bullish on Asia and our ability to help drive positive change in the world.

In this conference governments, donors and the private sector address specific challenges and dialogue about what is working in the region and what is not. They prioritize needs and move towards shared solutions. The discussions will result in proposals and recommendations on how Aid for Trade should proceed within Asia and the Pacific. We look forward to beneficiary countries making trade a greater priority, and aid donors scaling up trade-related official development assistance and offering expertise. We also look forward to stronger partnerships with the private sector to develop increased private-public financing. This conference helps create an impetus for collective action.

This meeting comes at a time when the state of the Philippine economy brings hope and excitement, our growth is the highest in a generation, revenue is now on track and job creation is strong. Our deficit is down, consumer confidence is up and inflation is holding steady.

The 7.5% GDP increase in the second quarter and the 10% gain in capital investment are in line with what the Asian Development Bank says the country needs in order to replicate the poverty-eradicating growth of Asia's economic success stories.

Poverty alleviation is the number one most important part of our agenda and our vision to lift the Philippines into the ranks of the modernized nations in twenty years.

The foundation of our economic comeback is wide, deep and solid. Across the board, the nation's economy is pointed in the right direction, and for all the right reasons.

According to Biz News Asia, there are three reasons why the economy grew so strongly in the first half – spending by consumers and the government, the expansion of services, (which means telecommunications, business process outsourcing and banking), and more industrial production.

There was plenty of money in the economy; that is why consumers and government were able to spend a lot.

Overseas workers remitted dollars, which were converted into pesos, and which were funneled into the banks and used to buy housing from developers and cellular phones and e-load from stores or retailers.

The biggest single act that led to the surge in our economy was the passage of our value added tax which in one bold stroke raised enormous amounts of new revenue. We followed up the pain of tax raising measures with the gain that comes from significant investment in people and progress.

We believe in strong global engagement for our country and our people to grow our economy, ensure peace and security and lift our nation out of poverty. Figuratively speaking, the more bridges we build, the more people can cross to new lands and new ideas. We must be open to the world and peoples and places other than our own. That is what the 21st century will be about.

We believe in the power of the global trading system to alleviate poverty and modernize nations through market forces. That does not mean we believe that countries like the Philippines are ready to compete head-to-head today in every sector, but it does mean that we cannot afford to be afraid of globalization.

The Multilateral Trading System, through the Doha Round, remains the best option to address poverty and improve standards of living around the world through an agreed set of international trade rules. It offers a major opportunity to put in place internationally significant reforms and reductions in trade-distorting domestic support, create meaningful and substantial market access in agriculture, industrial goods and services, and introduce improved WTO rules and trade facilitation arrangements.

This conference shows that we do not overlook the fact that the Doha Development Agenda was launched with an emphasis on integrating a developmental dimension into all elements of the negotiations. WTO acknowledges the need to provide special and differential treatment for developing members who require maximum flexibility under the international trade rules.

To make the Doha Round truly a Development Round as it is being billed: (1) there must be greater coherence or convergence of policies among international development institutions (e.g. World Bank, IMF, ADB, WTO) so that trade is mainstreamed in the development agenda and therefore capacity building can be focused and targeted and (2) we must review special and differential treatment beyond just the phasing of commitments but also capacity building and sufficient flexibility to pursue contributes to making the Doha Round truly a Development Round.

This meeting is well timed as a global event, coming at the heels of the APEC leaders meeting in Sydney that signaled the need for breakthroughs in the WTO negotiations alongside more focused and more strategic capacity building among member economies.

The developed nations were the prime movers behind global trade when it suited them; now some countries are slowing things down. That is not right nor good for our respective economies.

There has been a ray of hope in APEC with the developed WTO members declaring that they are willing to fully adhere to the Doha mandate, in particular domestic subsidy cuts and disciplines, but they also ask to gain access to the developing world's markets.

We appreciate Pascal Lamy's visit to the Philippines last February. I told him then and I say it again: I believe it is in his hands to find the right formula of subsidy cuts and market access that will finally break the impasse.

But let me be clear: even as we work tirelessly to move the talks forward, we are not going to stand by and do nothing. For us, it is full speed ahead, preferably with Doha, but full speed nevertheless.

We recognize that fragmentation of the multilateral trading system into trading blocs will result in a more complex set of trade rules incompatible and detrimental to the interests of developing country members. But meanwhile, with a hope that there will be a successful conclusion to the Doha Round, we are maximizing the economic opportunities provided under bilateral and regional FTA's if only to complement efforts under the multilateral trading system.

I hope this Asia-Pacific conference ensures that WTO does not become a sideshow in global affairs. Asia and the Pacific are too important and the WTO has too much promise for that to happen. Nations alongside more focused and more strategic capacity building among member economies.

The developed nations were the prime movers behind global trade when it suited them; now some countries are slowing things down. That is not right nor good for our respective economies.

There has been a ray of hope in APEC with the developed WTO members declaring that they are willing to fully adhere to the Doha mandate, in particular domestic subsidy cuts and disciplines, but they also ask to gain access to the developing world's markets.

We appreciate Pascal Lamy's visit to the Philippines last February. I told him then and I say it again: I believe it is in his hands to find the right formula of subsidy cuts and market access that will finally break the impasse.

But let me be clear: even as we work tirelessly to move the talks forward, we are not going to stand by and do nothing. For us, it is full speed ahead, preferably with Doha, but full speed nevertheless.

We recognize that fragmentation of the multilateral trading system into trading blocs will result in a more complex set of trade rules incompatible and detrimental to the interests of developing country members. But meanwhile, with a hope that there will be a successful conclusion to the Doha Round, we are maximizing the economic opportunities provided under bilateral and regional free trade agreements if only to complement efforts under the multilateral trading system.

I hope this Asia-Pacific conference ensures that WTO does not become a sideshow in global affairs. Asia and the Pacific are too important and the WTO has too much promise for that to happen.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the 13th National Crime Prevention Week Celebration and Awarding Ceremonies for Best Peace and Order Council Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 13th National Crime Prevention Week Celebration and Awarding Ceremonies for Best Peace and Order Council

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, September 21, 2007]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Puno.

Ambassador Donald Dee and the leaders of the private sector; Commissioner Leones; General Calderon and the officers and men and women of our police force; our awardees; local government officials; representatives of the five pillars of the justice system; ladies and gentlemen.

Salamat sa inyong pagdalo rito sa ating pagdiriwang ng pag-pipigil ng krimen. Kayong mga narito ay kumakatawan sa mga napakahalagang bahagi ng ating sistema ng pambansang seguridad na siyang nagpapatupad ng batas at nagpapairal ng kapayapaan at katahimikan.

Dahil sa inyong pagsisikap, mas matiwasay, mapayapa at panatag ang ating mga lansangan, pamayanan at sambayanan.

Nakatutok ang ating pagsisikap sa pagsugpo sa krimen at pagsugpo sa kahirapan.

Hindi natin nawawalan ng tutok sa ating trabaho.

That's why the state of our economy as we celebrate Crime Prevention Week brings hope and excitement — our growth is the highest in a generation, revenue is now on track and job creation is strong. Our deficit is down, consumer confidence is up and inflation is holding steady.

The 7.5 percent GDP increase in the second quarter and the 10 percent gain in capital investment are in line with what the ADB says the country needs in order to replicate the poverty-eradicating growth of Asia's economic success stories.

The foundation of our economic comeback is wide, deep and solid across the board, in all the areas represented by our winners here. The nation's economy is pointed in the right direction and for all the right reasons. The elements of these broad-based success are built on many things and with the help of many people, institutions and economic contributors. Notable among these is the community of the five pillars of criminal justice.

Emerging regional and global imperatives involving trade, security, the environment, and information technology place a high premium on the rule of law.

When political stability reinforces economic gains, we gain a quantum advantage in competitiveness. That is why we must stop political noise and sustain the momentum of our efforts.

This government has stayed focused on what Filipinos yearn for most: a good job, steady prices, and a healthy family. We're tired of political drama and social instability. We're entering an era where the vast majority can have a predictable future, a steady job and a calm political climate.

Our economy has created six million jobs in six years, helped raise wages, lower the rate of poverty, invest in education and healthcare and invest heavily in roads, bridges and vital services. This is what the people of the nation deserve, and that is what our government is working for every single day.

The world is taking notice, from the lofty heights of the prestigious Wall Street Journal, to the billion dollar investments of Texas instruments and leading Asian firms like Hanjin, Marubeni, Tokyo Electric, and others. The Philippines is on the move.

And lest we get carried away with our success, we must be humbled by what remains to be done. And while we must never take a step back in our development, we must always reach back and lift up those who have yet to live outside poverty.

Our campaign to stamp out criminality is tied up with the war against poverty. Crime prevention policies therefore have been incorporated in national economic development plans.

Under our administration, reinventing the bureaucracy and achieving the millennium development goals of the U.N. have become living priorities aimed at a more equitable distribution of the fruits of development, bridging rural-urban disparities and increasing people's participation in all aspects of governance.

May we continue to lend our respective, valuable experiences and expertise for a safer Philippines, lalung-lalo na yung mga nagwagi ng premyo. Kaya kayo pinapatindig sa entablado para matuto lahat ng iba kung papaano dalhin ang pangmatagalang kapayapaan sa ating mga pamayanan.

Once more congratulations to our winners!

Maraming salamat at mabuhay tayong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the 13th National Crime Prevention Week Celebration and Awarding Ceremonies for Best Peace and Order Council. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412142813/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2159&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the Iligan Business Forum

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Iligan Business Forum

[Delivered at the Maria Cristina Hotel, Iligan City, September 24, 2007]

Malipayong piyesta kanatong tanang mga Iliganon!

We celebrate St. Michael's Feast Day with the good news that our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. We have aimed high and have met the challenge: six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. And no one thought we could bring our budget into balance, pre-pay our debts and raise employment, but we have.

Today the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Investments are pouring in, the peso is strong, our stock market has reached historic heights and we have created six million jobs in six years. And the world is taking notice: the Philippines is one of the best values in Asia for domestic and foreign investors.

We are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, healthcare and training along with billions in new – bridges, apil na ni-ini ang Panguil Bay bridge nga mokonekta sa Misamis Occidental ug Lanao del Norte;

– airports, apil na ni-ini ang Laguindingan Airport, nga gihatagan ug pondo nga duol sa P1billion alang sa tuig 2007. Gisugdan na ang iyang civil works ni-adtong Pebrero; and – roads apil na ni-ini ang Iligan-Bukidnon Road, nga tibuok budget kinahanglan labaw sa P1 billion ug naga-schedule nga mokompleta sa 2012, apan ongoing na ug naa ta bag-o nga release nga P50 million aron aron sigi'g padayon ang trabaho, ug ang Iligan C-3 Road nga city road apan nitabang ang DPWH sa feasibility study, ug naa allocation sa 2008 budget nga P50 million isip contribution sa city government, all these infrastructure to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines.

Sa mga manguuma, gihatagan ug alokasyon nga P200 million matag bulan ang Farm to Market roads sa Mindanao. Karong tuiga, 24 ka FMR sa Lanao del Sur ug pito sa Lanao del Norte, nga gabili ug P 62 million ang humanon. Apil ini ang karsadang Tangcal-Tinago sa Linamon nga magpalambo sa agrikultura ug sa turismo.

Ang alokasyon alang sa irigasyon sa tibuok nasod P500 million matag bulan, ug ang P200 million ni-ini gihatag sa Mindanao. Apil sa gipasulabing proyekto sa irigasyon mao ang Malaig Irrigation project sa Butig, Lanao del Sur.

Sa koryente, kaugan kita sa inyong katuyuan alang sa pag-amyenda sa EPIRA aron dili na moapil ang 10% systems loss charges kaninyo tungod kay dool kamo sa gigikanan ug koryente.

On digital infrastructure, in my inaugural address last 2004 I said: Hangad kong makapasok sa eskuwela-ang-bawat bata, may sapat na lugar sa silid aralan at may computer linkage sa bawat paaralan.

I also said that by 2010 the network of digital infrastructure will have linked the entire country.

But due to political noise, we have suspended the national broadband and cyber education projects.

Meanwhile, I have instructed our Secretary of Transportation and Communication to discuss with the telephone companies the gap created by the suspension and ask them how they can help.

I assure our hardworking, competent civil servants planning and implementing projects that we appreciate their laudable work. I take great pride in the discipline of my administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health.

Dakong parte sa pag-uswag ang gihatag sa mga negosyante sa Iligan ug mga probinsiya sa Lanao ug ang ubang negosyante sa tibuok nasod .

We see signs of a wave of entrepreneurial activity in the Philippines. We need a vibrant middle class if we are to join the ranks of modernized nations in 20 years, which is my aspiration. In several key areas we have promoted a new entrepreneurial class. One is microfinance, where we have extended more than P100 billion in loans to low and middle income men and women all over the country who want to start their own businesses. In addition, our Central Bank has created a series of investment incentives and programs for foreign remittances to be invested in capital enterprises.

Gipangutana ko kan Secretary Favila kung nganong wala pa gipatuman ang BAMBE Law. Ang implementasyon naa sa level sa local officials. Unya sa dinner kauban ang local officials usa ni sa atong agenda items.

Ang inyong tema – Preserving economic gains through investments in peace and order – nagpa-ila sa inyong ka-andam aron mas aktibo kamo sa kalinaw ug kalambo-an.

Congratulations sa labing bag-ong gamit sa seguridad sa atong syudad, ang Camera Security System. Makatabang ni-ini sa trabaho sa incoming Chief PNP Avelino Razon.

A peace agreement with the MILF will bring a new era of economic development to Mindanao. Coupled with this is our new paradigm for peace in the region. At a time when hard power has not proven its value in the world, our model for dealing with the flashpoint of Mindanao has focused on a unique combination of soft and hard power to promote peace. We have been able to meld together confidence-building measures grounded on strong interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness; investment in economic and basic infrastructure development; and mutual security arrangements to keep the peace in Mindanao.

We are very close to an agreement with the MILF. With your support, I remain optimistic we can overcome the final barriers on ancestral domain so that we can bring finality to the peace. However, we have achieved a great deal. The region is vastly improved in terms of safety, security and economic growth. So the current agreements are making things better; it will really take off if we achieve lasting peace and the millions of foreign aid promised comes pouring in.

The Abu Sayyaf stand in the way of bringing peace, stability and order to the Southern Philippines. We have decided we must wipe them out once and for all. They are a menace to peace and a beacon for international thugs who wish to join their ranks.

The Communist rebels have spent years as a low-level threat. It is time for their disruption and violation of human rights to be put to rest so that the nation can move ahead. They impede the progress and development of a number of rural areas. They are responsible for a wide range of human rights abuses. If we are to become a modernized country, we have to put a stop to their ideological nonsense and their criminal acts once and for all. Gitanyag ko ang amnestiya alang sa mga rebeldeng komunista nga bu-ot nang mabuhì sa kalinaw.

Ang atong labing importanteng inisyatiba alang sa kalinaw mao ang atong human investment program aron ibalik sa katawhan ang mga bunga sa atong kalambo-an. Over the next three years, we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people. We will increase investment in our country and our people to: 1) improve social services such as health insurance subsidies for indigent families and food for school programs and 2) boost educational support in our efforts to reduce poverty by investing in better school buildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators.

Alang sa Mindanao, ang atong konsentrasyon ana-a sa pagpadaghan sa mga serbisyo alang sa health ug edukasyon para sa labing pobrang mga probinsya.

We have moved on as a nation. The people are much, much more concerned about taking advantage of our economic progress than the backsliding of political protest. People want peace, order and stability. We have been through many upheavals. Time and again, the people have indicated we want a stable government and economic progress. That is what we are getting now. That is the sentiment I believe will prevail.

Ani-a sa atong mga kamot ang pagmantene sa kalinaw ug kauswagan. Pakusgan nato ang atong panaghi-usa aron padayon nga motubo ang ekonomiya ug aron momantene ang kalinaw dinhi sa atong pinanggagang syudad.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech at the Iligan Business Forum. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412142618/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2155&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Handover Ceremony for the Leyte Optimization Geothermal Power Plants

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Handover Ceremony for the Leyte Optimization Geothermal Power Plants

[Delivered at the Gymnasium, PNOC-EDC Milagro Administration Complex, Ormoc City, Leyte, September 25, 2007]

Daghan salamat.

Daghan salamat, Congressman Codilla. Ug congratulations! Nining inyong gwapo kaayo nga mga proyekto sa geothermal.

Chairman Pete Aquino; President Paul Aquino — but they're not related to each other — Mr. Chores; our fellow guests: Congressman Romualdez, Governor Meanne Mercado of Southern Leyte, of course, Acting Governor Bagulaya who is not a fellow guest but a fellow host; ang atong fellow host sab Mayor Codilla sa Ormoc ug sa kanangga kanang usa nga beneficiary nining mga royalties diri; my members of my party: Secretary Ebdane and Secretary Favila and Presidential Assistant Vic Domingo; tanan mga local government executives; mga board members sa mga PNOC companies; mga higala; dear guests; ladies and gentlemen, maayong buntag kaninyong tanan ug congratulations! Sa tanan.

Gapasalamat na sab ako karon sa mga leyteños sa inyong pagkamahatagon kaya ang inyong geothermal resources gina-share man sa Tibuok nasud. And we laud Ormat Leyte Co. Ltd. Which built and operated, and is now turning over the four optimization plants with total capacity of 51 megawatts for many years of bringing clean energy to the Filipino people.

Gahalipay kita sa atong nasod kay naa kita ang labing dakong steam field sa kalibutan. Mayor Codilla said that this is the largest in Asia, geothermal field in Asia, but if you talk about wet fields, Paul Aquino said, this is the largest in the whole world, kining Letye geothermal fields.

Kining atong seremonya nahitabo panahuna konusaa. It comes a time when we are developing and promoting our Green Philippines agenda which puts an emphasis on a sustainable economic model that brings economic opportunity and a concern for our environment.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. We have aimed high and have met the challenge. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. And no one thought we could bring our budget into balance as we did last month, pre-pay our debts and raise employment, but we have.

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Investments are pouring in, the peso is strong, our stock market has reached historic heights, we have created six million jobs in six years. And the world is taking notice. We believe the Philippines offers one of the best values in Asia for domestic and foreign investors.

The surge of investments has been anchored over many industries. For instance, by the billion dollar investments in our country of several major international companies including Texas Instruments in electronics, Korea's Hanjin in shipbuilding, Japan's Marubeni and Tokyo Electric in electric power and America's AES which recently won the bid for the Masinloc Power Plant for 950 million dollars and will expand it by another one billion U.S. dollars as soon as they get clearance from the Philippine Reclamation Authority. These heavy investments are coming across the board in a number of industries. We're working to make sure this will be sustained. And we are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, healthcare and training along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines.

We take great pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. We're proud of the fact that external debt is being pre-paid at a rapid clip, optimistic that we will balance the budget in the year 2008, two years ahead of schedule, and that we are making sure to use the gains to invest in vital social and economic needs.

Oversubscribed kaniadtong Disyembre ang PNOC-EDC I.P.O. ug ang follow-through offering kaniadtong hulyo. Ang PNOC-EDC usa sa labing maayong pruwera nga viable ang atong privatization policy.

Privatization of the power generation and supply sector remains a top priority. It hasn't been happening fast enough for me, but now I'm glad we're making progress.

Reform of our power sector is essential for our long-term health. We will not be able to take the economy to the next step without it. We are seeing progress on this front this year.

We're always concerned about prices that consumers and industrial users alike pay. We want them much lower. This is why we're eager to move along the privatization of NAPOCOR which will free the government of its subsidy and allow us to make more investments in other infrastructure areas.

We offer excellent opportunities in a range of sectors for investment particularly, mining, technology, various forms of tourism including medical and eco-tourism, infrastructure, business process outsourcing and biofuels and energy.

In addition, we deeply believe that we must both sustain our natural environment and grow our economy at the same time. We're developing and promoting our Green Philippines agenda which puts an emphasis on a sustainable economic model that brings economic opportunity and a concern for our environment.

We have good working relationships with some of the world's leading environmental organizations such as the worldwide life fund, conservation international, and others to help us truly make the Green Philippines a reality.

We are so proud of our Green Philippines initiative to create a sustainable economic model that allows for growth, job creation and environmental stewardship. Too many nations, developing and developed, believe the environment must be sacrificed at the altar of growth. We believe otherwise. We believe that we have a unique opportunity to get it right from day one: to introduce new industries that are clean and profitable. This ranges from sustainable furniture, to eco-tourism, of which there are many, many opportunities here — Congressman Codilla was telling me about lake Danao for example — and to developing a biofuels and geothermal industry that helps our energy independence, create jobs and keeps our nation clean for future generations.

Nalipay ko na madawat ang royalty gikan sa inyong geothermal fields ang mga local governments. And the local governments are able to use the royalties to subsidize the constituents' electric bills. Busa ang gibayad sa mga constituents diri sa ilang kuryente mas kubos kumpara sa gibayad sa ubang lugar nga walay kaugalingong energy source.

So, geothermal plants need not only transform steam to power. They can also be harnessed to channel steam to jobs. And earlier, Mayor Codilla in his speech said, "Unta I can bring over those gwapo investors here." there is a way to do it. We can do this by convincing investors to take advantage of cheap power in the communities hosting geothermal plants. Cheap power by itself coming from your subsidies of electric bills is already a powerful draw but we will make it more irresistible by throwing in other fiscal incentives which an ecozone is allowed to grant. Thus, if we build these ecozones, the investors will come. The synergy of geothermal power and ecozones will power up progress.

Busa gipirmahan ko ang usa ka executive order nga ga-instruct sa mga lgus nga magpatindog ug mga economic zones sa mga lugar nga duol sa pito ka geothermal sites sa PNOC-EDC. Apil na ni. We call this program GIGA (G-I-G-A) for generating investments in geothermal areas. The acronym GIGA connotes bigness, gigabytes, which describes our geothermal fields, the biggest wet fields in the world as well as the potential in incubating businesses near them. What should lure investors to set up shop near geothermal plants is the same reason that led government and the private sectors such as the Leyte optimization investors to put in billions to build them — the availability of cheap and clean energy.

And as I said, it will be cheap, because in these areas local governments have large bank accounts from project royalties that they use to subsidize the electric bills of their constituents.

Nagasiling naman sining akong executive order nga ang Philippine Economic Zone Authority under Secretary Peter Favila amo mao ang mag-giya kaninyo paunsa maka-establish sa mga economic zones.

So, as to borrow the ending of Paul Aquino, I will also use the same ending but address it to the host communities: “to the whole host communities, I urge you: full steam ahead.”

Congratulations! Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA’s Speech during the Handover Ceremony for the Leyte Optimization Geothermal Power Plants. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412142132/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2151&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the Sixty-Second Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations
Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Sixty-Second Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations [Delivered in New York, September 28, 2007]

The Philippines in the UN: Building Bridges in the 21st Century

Mr. President,

Congratulations on your election to the UN General Assembly. Congratulations also to our Secretary-General, H.E. Ban Ki-Moon, who was such a good friend of the Philippines when he was Foreign Minister of the Republic of Korea. We embrace his vow to focus on strengthening the three pillars of the United Nations (development, security and human rights).

THE UN IS A PILLAR OF DEVELOPMENT.

It plays a major large role for the Philippines. Poverty alleviation is the most important part of our agenda and our vision to lift the Philippines into a modernized nation in twenty years. We want to be actively engaged in local, regional and global affairs because that is the future.

We believe in the power of the global trading system to alleviate poverty and modernize nations through market forces. That does not mean we believe that countries like the Philippines are ready to compete head-to-head today in every sector, but it does mean that we cannot afford to be afraid of globalization.

By being increasingly connected to the world, the Philippine economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years.

Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market.

And no one thought we could bring our budget into balance, which we did last month, pre-pay our debts and raise employment, but we have. We must both grow our economy and sustain our natural environment at the same time. We are developing and promoting our Green Philippines agenda. It emphasizes a sustainable economic model that brings economic opportunity and a concern for our environment.

At the Secretary General's High Level Meeting on Climate Change earlier this week, UN member nations focused on what the UNFCCC and Kyoto Protocol meetings in Bali this December should do.

The Clean Development Mechanism under the Kyoto Protocol has allowed developing countries like the Philippines to voluntarily reduce their greenhouse gas emissions through private sector initiatives. But there is a need to expand the carbon market and to expand international cooperation and financial support to promote strategies to adapt to climate change.

Too many nations, developed and developing, believe the environment must be sacrificed at the altar of growth.

We believe otherwise. We believe that we have a unique opportunity to get it right from day one: to introduce new industries that are clean and profitable. This includes a biofuels industry that helps our energy independence, creates jobs and keeps our nation clean for future generations.

We are further developing our geothermal power which is one of the two largest in the world.

We reiterate our commitment to the global trading system and when that fails us, to strengthening ASEAN, APEC and regional relations to bolster our economy.

The multilateral trading system, through the Doha Round, remains the best option to address poverty and improve standards of living around the world through an agreed set of international trade rules.

The Doha Development Agenda was launched with an emphasis on integrating a developmental dimension into all elements of the negotiations.

To make the Doha Round truly a Development Round, there must be greater coherence of policies among international development institutions (e.g. World Bank, IMF, UNDP and WTO) so that trade is mainstreamed in the development agenda and therefore capacity building can be focused on trade competitiveness.

As part of capacity-building, we call on the UN and our partners among developed nations to strengthen South-South cooperation wherein developing nations with specific strengths can share with other developing nations in need of their strength, funded by developed nations or multilaterals like the UNDP.

The developed nations were the prime movers behind global trade when it suited them; now some countries are slowing things down. That is not right nor good for our respective economies.

There has been a ray of hope with the developed countries declaring that they are willing to maximize flexibilities, in exchange for greater market access.

On the sidelines of the UN session, we hope the contending countries can continue consulting to find the right formula of subsidy cuts and market access that will break the Doha impasse.

But let me be clear: even as the Philippines works tirelessly to move the talks forward, we are not going to stand by and do nothing. For us, it is full speed ahead, preferably with Doha, but full speed nevertheless.

We recognize that if the multilateral trading system is fragmented into trading blocs, it will result in a more complex set of trade rules. That could be incompatible and detrimental to the interests of developing countries. In the meantime, while we are hoping for a successful conclusion to the Doha Round, we have to maximize the economic opportunities provided under bilateral and regional free trade agreements. This will complement efforts under the multilateral trading system.

At a time of uncertainty when the Doha Round is faltering, ASEAN took a bold step forward by drafting its Charter.

This is our first step to creating a permanent sense of security.

We are working towards a single market with free movement of goods, ideas and skilled talent.

In APEC, the world's largest economy, the United States, and the world's fastest growing economy, China, are active participants.

We have a strong alliance with the US, who remains our largest trading partner as well as our strongest strategic ally. We have stood shoulder to shoulder for many generations. We expect to continue building on our mature relationship with the US.

We have also forged a strong relationship with China. We see China's rise as a significant opportunity for the Philippines. Our overall relations are now more confident and comprehensive.

Relations are not just about trade. They are also about people. And this includes migration, a world-side reality.

We thank the Secretary General for supporting the Philippines' hosting of the Global Forum on Migration and Development next year, to which we invite all Member States to participate.

Overseas Filipino Workers are honored by the government and the people for their sacrifice and dedication to their work, their family and their nation. We welcome their contribution. But we are working towards the day when Filipinos no longer need to go abroad for a job, the day that overseas work is just another career option.

We believe that our ambitious economic reforms will increasingly be keeping our best and brightest right in the Philippines, closer to friends and families, helping to build our communities and provide the next generation of leadership.

THE UN IS A PILLAR OF SECURITY AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

It remains the central pillar underpinning conflict resolution.

Our country is among the largest, if not the largest, contributor of police officers to UN peacekeeping missions.

The Philippines has peacekeepers, both police and military, in Afghanistan, Cote D'Ivoire, Georgia, Haiti , Kosovo , Liberia , Sudan and Timor Leste.

We will continue our participation to safeguard communities so that they may overcome conflict and regain the peace needed to pursue development.

Closer to home, I have personally advanced the process of peace in Muslim and Christian Mindanao to a new level of engagement, focused on interfaith dialogue, economic development and mutual security. We have done so with the largest possible international involvement, including the UN. Peace there is very much an issue of human rights, just as alleviating poverty is, which is our number one issue.

The Philippines is the most democratic country in our region. We have no tolerance for human rights violations at home or abroad.

We support the effort to revitalize and refocus the work of the UN in human rights. It is for this reason that the Philippines sought and won a seat in the Human Rights Council.

The attention of the international community has been drawn, with great reason and justification, to the current situation in Myanmar.

Ladies and gentlemen:

This is the time for Myanmar to return to the path of democracy and to release Daw Aung San Suu Kyi – now – and to involve all the parties including the National League for Democracy in the democratization and the constitutional process.

IN CONCLUSION

Mr. President.

The number of globe-size issues we will face in the 21st century will require globe-size cooperation. We must build bridges of peace and prosperity. The place to start is building a stronger United Nations.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech at the Sixty-Second Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141546/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2145&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Turnover Command in the Philippine National Police

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Turnover Command in the Philippine National Police

[Delivered on October 01, 2007]

Maraming salamat, Kalihim Puno, sa iyong pagpakilala. Kagalang-galang na immediate past PNP Director General Oscar Calderon, honorable new Chief PNP incoming Director General Avelino Razon, Jr. or Sonny Razon as we all call him, Secretary Ebdane and the other appointive officials and former chiefs PNP, Excellencies of the Diplomatic Corps, Senator Zubiri and the other elective officials of the Philippine government, supporters of the Philippine National Police who are all here today, friends and family of General Calderon, friends and family of Sonny Razon, ladies and gentlemen.

Una sa lahat, batiin natin lahat ang immediate past chief PNP si Police Director General Oscar Calderon ng isang maligayang kaarawan. . Pinupugay natin siya sa tatlumpu't walong taong matatag na serbisyo. Sabi nga niya, 34 years, sabi nung iba 34 years and 8 months pero isama natin iyong 4 years sa PMA that's 39 years, congratulations for a job well done. Si Oca pati na rin si Sonny, inirekomenda ng Police Search Committee a long, long time ago. Si Oca at si Sonny bilang kasunod niya mula pa noong magre-retire si General Aglipay. Alam na natin noon kung ano ang succession upang masigurado ang katatagan ng paglipat ng liderato at iwasan ang paninira ng mga nagkakaribal sa pinakamataas na puwesto ng PNP. Kaya maganda ang paglipat kay Sonny. Naalala ko nga at naalala rin ni General Calderon noong siya ay unang umupo. Inatasan natin sa kanya na manungkulan siya noong isang taon na mamuno sa pakikibaka sa mga rebeldeng komunista gamit ang puwersa ng kapulisan, imbestigasyon at hukuman. At gayon din sa mga sindikato ng krimen na sangkot sa kidnapping, bank robbery, droga, smuggling, jueteng – lalo na ang jueteng ay talagang bilin ng mga Obispo iyon at pang-araw-araw na krimen. At sabi rin ni Oca noon ang ibig niyang gawing kanyang pamana ay ang pabahay.

And so, if we remember what he said and what I said and where we are today, I guess we can all say congratulations, Oca, for a job well done.

Iyong inatas ko kay General Calderon noon, iyon din ang inaatas ko sa kanyang karapat-dapat na kasunod our new Chief PNP, Sonny Razon. But in addition, especially because Sonny was the head of Task Force Usig, I also instruct General Razon to continue to be on top of Task Force Usig except that now he is Chief PNP his perspective must be wider now. It must not only be on police action but the entire criminal justice system. The first report I want to receive from him is an update on arrest, convictions and imprisonment of those responsible for the killings of political activist and journalist. Kung ang pamana ni Oca Calderon ay housing, inaasahan kong ang magiging pamana ni Sonny Razon ay human rights.

We deplore any and all killings of political activist and journalist. I have met personally with the journalism community and the same with the human rights activist, we share their outrage. And to stop the killings we are following the recommendations of our own Melo Commission to establish separate court and that has been done to expedite prosecutions we need to do that and we need a good investigative capability of the PNP to build a good case(?), expand victim assistance for doing that, increase funding for more investigators we have done that. And we have also told our uniformed services and I am glad that Sonny has repeated it, that if there are rogue elements, they must be brought to justice. Our nation has an unfortunate history of political violence by those from the left and the right and we hope to break that cycle, once and for all.

No one should have to die fighting for speaking out for their political beliefs. But let it also be noted that terrorists and the Abu Sayyaf and armed communists are a threat to the sovereignty of the nation and must be checked once and for all. The Abu Sayyaf stand in the way of peace of bringing peace, stability and order to Southern Philippines. As such we have decided we must wipe them out once and for all. They are a menace to peace and a beacon for international thugs who wish to join their ranks. The communist rebels have spent years of a low level threat. It's time for their disruption and violation of human rights to be put to rest so that the nation can move ahead. They impede the progress and development of a number of rural areas. They are responsible for a wide range of human right abuses. If we are to become a first world country we have to put a stop to their ideological nonsense and their criminal act, once and for all.

Kasama ng pagpigil sa rebelyon ang amnestiya at kabuhayan sa mga rebeldeng ibig bumalik sa panig ng batas. Gusto nating mabilis na itanim ang matibay na kapayapaan at seguridad sa mga rehiyon sa pangunguna ng mga pinunong lokal at relihiyoso at katulong ang buong gobyerno ng bansa kasama na doon ang ating kapulisan.

We guarantee the leftist insurgents willing to turn their guns into plow shares and respect the rule of law another opportunity to regain normal life under Proclamation 1377. The world looks upon the Philippines to continue to reinforce our economic gains with the solid foundation of law and order.

And so, Sonny Razon, should see to it that the war against criminality and terrorism is sustained at the grass root level. And that evil is kept at bay in the streets and in the countryside. I like what you said, that you want every citizen to be only within a certain distance of the nearest policeman. The Human Security Act has helped Oca Calderon in the fight against terrorism. For he has a very (unclear) a chance to test it out and have you not noticed nobody has ever filed any case of abuse against the police for abusing the Human Security Act. The proof of the pudding is in their eating, we have a Human Security Act, we have an anti-terrorism law but we have not use it to violate human rights. Instead, the new law enhances the safety and domestic security of our country by giving us more legal power to prosecute those who commit any act of terror on our people. Our message is clear, if you're armed and kill civilians you will be prosecuted; if you are a communist terrorist, a religious terrorist or even a rogue element of our own police or military we will stop you. We are empowered by the Human Security Act to crush the terrorist movement in the country and to transform our nation's response to political violence ensuring that civil right and social justice are available to all Filipinos not just a privilege few Sonny Razon must strive as ever to keep clean the good name of the police force, to good performance and organizational discipline within the rank. I like the concept of "Mamang Pulis." People's perception of government is in large partly dictated by what they experience on a daily basis. And on a daily basis people experience life with policemen, if they suffer indifference or abuse in the hands of law enforcers they're likely to harbor negative views of the whole government. But if our policemen response fast to contingencies and are honest and fair, then our citizenry will embrace them, as well as, the entire government as their protectors. Why it is important that the PNP maintains close link with citizen's groups and I am glad that the citizen's groups are here, the local government units and I'm glad we have a number of them here and other stakeholders in peace and order.

We ask the new PNP Chief to continue the transformation program of the PNP. So, I like that passing on of the torch ceremony into a better organization that lies at the foundation of our criminal justice system. And we ask him to build the PNP into a bulwark of economic development, social justice and political stability. The PNP is a partner in our war against poverty because we cannot deliver basic social services to the needy and the marginalized sectors without the mantle of peace and order. Law and order lay the ground for economic and social programs to be implemented nationwide deep into the grass roots and without any delay. We cannot have economic advancement and social progress without respect for the rule of law.

Render defective by the constant presence of policemen on the beat by the trust and faith of the community and by the sterling conduct of law enforcer.

The new chief PNP has its new job cut out for him as he himself said, by virtue of his qualifications and experience. And I hope that he will strive to make a difference during his watch. The Filipino people and the world wait upon you. Sonny, I wish you all the best and May God Almighty be with you every step of the way as you lead the PNP towards the bold start under a new leadership. And so, I guess using your own words, congratulation, good luck to you, Mamang Pulis Sonny.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). Speech of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo during the Turnover Command in the Philippine National Police. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412131722/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2248&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during a Meeting with the Confederation of Indian Industries (CII)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a Meeting with the Confederation of Indian Industries (CII)

[Delivered at the The Ballroom, The Taj Mahal Palace & Towers Mumbai, Republic of India, October 04, 2007]

Thank you very much, Mr. Agrawala.

Secretary Romulo, Secretary Favila and our other Cabinet members whom I shall individually introduce in the course of my statement.

Ambassador Berner, Ambassador Mitter, Miss Agwadi, members of the Philippine delegation, the business community, members of the Philippine government from Congress and from the local governments whom I will also acknowledge individually during the course of my remarks; members of the Indian business community, ladies and gentlemen.

We would like to thank the CII for the chance to be together today at a time when India has become one of the world's top economies and at a time when the Philippine economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability.

We cannot highlight enough the great strides that India has accomplished in recent years. Your impressive growth, largely fueled by a knowledge economy, is unique and worthy of emulation. It has made you the world's fourth largest economy.

India is becoming an undeniable force behind global economic growth. Because of the growing markets of India and China, growth in Asia is transitioning from being export-driven to other regions and continents to being domestically-driven within Asia. We are delighted with the growth of India along with China to add to the power of Japan in the Asian continent.

There are political, economic and strategic implications for India and the East Asian region as a result of your newfound economic power. As India becomes a true political and economic giant, your obligations to your neighbors also increase, separate from your obligations to your own citizens. Ascendancy into the world stage carries implications not just for economic development, but for the management of our environment on a sustainable basis, and for maintaining broader peace and stability in the region and the world.

That is why we support India's "Look East" policy and your plans to integrate with both South Asia and Southeast Asia. And we hope this policy will include greater economic integration between the Philippines and India.

This state visit to India upon the invitation of President Patil reciprocates the state visit to the Philippines of President Kalam in 2006, and the participation of Prime Minister Singh in the East Asian Summit held last January in the Philippine island of Cebu. We hope these three visits coming within a span of two years will lead us toward closer political, security and economic engagement.

We included this meeting with the dynamic business community of Mumbai in our itinerary because of your importance in India's fast growing economy and your importance to the Philippines. Mumbai is the base of most Indian companies that do business in and with the Philippines. And we are lucky that our honorary consul in the city is the very able and very respected Madame Rajashree Birla.

Traveling with us are top representatives of leading Philippine corporations engaged in pharmaceuticals, energy, mining, services, construction and other fields as well as leading Indian businessmen in the Philippines. We hope you will get acquainted with one another in the spirit of joint enterprise.

The Philippines, as acknowledged by Mr. Agrawala, is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso, move the stock market, pre-pay our debts and raise employment, but we have.

We are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes, again as acknowledged by Mr. Agrawala, billions of pesos in new bridges, roads and ports along with billions in education, training and health care to upgrade our competitiveness and also to spread the benefits of development in order to fight poverty.

Our massive spending on health care includes importing pharmaceuticals from India as part of our program to cut in half the price of medicines commonly bought by the poor. The main importer of medicines from India is the government-owned Philippine International Trading Corporation. But we want to stress that PITC need not be the exclusive trading agent. We encourage private drugstore owners, traders and local governments to do business with Indian corporations. That's why our delegation today includes local government executives and let me now introduce them: we have from the province of Camarines Sur, Governor Lray Villafuerte; we have also Mayor Rey Navarro. "good to see you, mayor"; and we have City Mayor Hector Villanueva as well as City Mayor Sherwin Gatchalian.

The private sector executives and the local government executives are interested in importing affordable medicine themselves.

Our delegation also includes members of the Philippine Congress. And let me again, now, introduce the members of the Philippine Congress: we have the Deputy Speaker of the House of Representatives Congresswoman Girlie Villarosa; we have Congresswoman Zenaida Angpin; we have a congressman who is also a member of the Philippine pharmaceutical industry, Congressman Ferjs Biron; we have Congresswoman Janette Garin and Congressman Ed Zialcita. I'd like to address our legislators briefly and tell them that we appreciate their enthusiasm in producing for legislation that would make medicines in the Philippines more affordable just like in India.

Two days ago, the Philippine senate passed their version of this bill on second reading. The final passage of the quality affordable medicines act when reconciled with the version of the House of Representatives will be a major milestone in our administration's efforts to promote better health and longer, productive lives for our people. The people have waited far too long for this measure to be enacted. We're glad that there is now light at the end of the tunnel for millions of ailing Filipinos especially those among the poor.

When enacted into law, this bill will provide the legal framework to allow the production of cheaper medicines in the Philippines instead of just buying them from abroad. We share this good news — good news for us but I hope it's also good news for the Indian business community — to encourage your pharmaceutical companies to set up production facilities in the Philippines so that you can keep your Philippine market. You will be able to keep your Philippine market by producing it there and you can even use your production facilities in the Philippines as a base to export to farther markets like northeast Asia, Australia and New Zealand.

Right now the balance of trade between India and the Philippines is lopsided in favor of India. But we believe that as India has become one of the world's top economies with a new middle-class of half a billion people, your internal market demand and your domestic consumption can have a direct impact, a positive impact on us, the Philippines, in terms of job creation, balance of trade and investment.

The current surge of international investments in the Philippines has been anchored by the billion dollar plus investments in our country of several major international companies, including America's Texas Instruments and AES, Korea's Hanjin and Japan's Marubeni. This is happening across the board in a number of industries. And we hope to receive more investments from India as well.

We appreciate that the Birla group established the Indo Phil group of textile companies in 1975, acquired an integrated fatty alcohol manufacturing facility in 2005 and inaugurated a business process outsourcing company last month. Mr. Agrawala has reminded us of the thriving garments industry in the Philippines where many Indians have invested since a long time ago.

And the list of I.T. and I.T. -enabled service companies in the Philippines owned by India is so long and getting even longer. We can't even mention all of the names now. Also in 2004, one of our sponsors Mittal's Ispat industries bought the steel corporation in Mindanao in Southern Philippines. And we hope after this visit, there will be more.

We offer a strategic location in a fast-growing region. Our workforce is well-educated, productive and English-speaking, very similar to India. This is an advantage not only for investments but also as a film location site for the largest movie industry in the world, Bollywood.

The Philippines is not only advantageous but a premier choice for film shooting because of its white sand beaches, enigmatic and mysterious rain forests, historical heritage sites, and crystalline scapes like lahar and sand dunes, so you can do your futuristic movies there. The Philippines is a fountain of creative and service talent. Production equipment, post- production houses and studios, sound stages and other technical and logistical requirements are available. Some members of the Philippine movie industry are with us today to pursue this exciting prospect.

We are cutting red tape to simplify the requirements for investing in or filming in or simply visiting the Philippines. We have a one-stop shop now in the Board of Investments where Secretary of Trade and Industry Peter Favila is the chairman of the board. And you only need to go now to one building in order to get all the permits that you need. This is the same as what we will do with filming.

And as part of cutting red tape, we have liberalized our visa policy towards Indian nationals. For too long we have had an anachronistic policy where Indians are considered as restricted nationals in the Philippines. But why would we want to restrict nationals from the fourth largest economy in the world. So, therefore, we have done the logical: we have removed Indian nationals from our list of restricted nationals.

Our liberalized visa policy, our white sand beaches combine with the beautiful smiles of our people to make tourism, especially eco-tourism, one of our growth sectors. We have with us our Secretary of Tourism, Ace Durano. He invites tourists and tourism investors to come over to the Philippines. And I am sure he will personally invite the Indian hotel chains, such as the Tata group and the Oberoi group to look at and consider the Philippines as a destination for their next projects.

From eco-tourism to developing a biofuels industry that helps our energy independence, create jobs and keep our nation clean for future generations, we are developing, as Mr. Agrawala said, and promoting our Green Philippines Agenda.

And we understand that two Maharashtra-based enterprises, Praj industries — whom I believe I'll be meeting individually later — and KBK engineering have turnkey projects in the Philippines for the production of bio-ethanol. We want to explore joint ventures between the Philippines and Indian institutions to produce biofuel from sweet sorghum and Jatropha. And we have with us our Secretary of Energy, Angelo Reyes, to follow up on this investment opportunities.

Aside from alternative energy crops for biofuel, our agricultural and fisheries modernization program presents potentials for partnerships among agricultural and bio-technology companies in cotton and food crops such as maize and rice. And therefore we have our secretary of agriculture with us, Secretary Arthur Yap, to push for those investments.

We likewise invite Indian corporations to participate in the bidding for our asset privatization and to invest in Philippine government-owned-and- controlled corporations.

Most of the Philippine exports to India are industrial inputs like electronics, phosphoric acid and newsprint. But with India's half a billion new middle- class, we hope we can do more trade in consumer products like fashion garments, fashion furniture, and the trendy virgin coconut oil. We hope that the Indian trading companies both in India and the Philippines will develop this market. And to make sure that we will be able to propagate these opportunities we also have our Press Secretary Ignacio Bunye with us today.

Native Filipinos and Hindus from India were already in contact by commerce during the age of the Indian Empires of Sri-Vijaya and Majapahit. In fact, the central islands in the Philippines are called the Visayan islands after the Sri-Vijaya empire. This was long before the Spaniards colonized the Philippines in the 16th century.

And today, here we are in the 21st century with India, as one of the drivers of the world's economy. We are bullish on 21st century India. We are bullish on your ability to drive positive change in the world. We have the unique opportunity to learn from you, from your knowledge-driven development and create our own path to development. And most of all we want to do business with you.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during a Meeting with the Confederation of Indian Industries (CII). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141144/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2243&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the FICCI/ASSOCHAM/CII

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the FICCI/ASSOCHAM/CII

[Delivered at the New Delhi, October 05, 2007]

- We thank the FICCI, ASSOCHAM and CII for the chance to be together today, at a time when India has become one of the world's top economies, and at a time when the Philippine economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability.
- We cannot highlight enough the great strides that India has accomplished in recent years. Your impressive growth, largely fueled by a knowledge economy, is unique and worthy of emulation. It has made you the world's fourth largest economy.
- There are political, economic and strategic implications for India and the East Asian region as a result of your new-found economic power. As India becomes a true political and economic giant, your obligations to your neighbors also increase, separate from your obligations to your own citizens. These are big responsibilities which we hope will be accommodated in our bilateral relations with each other.
- The highlights of the bilaterals we have struck between India and the Philippines include eight agreements: (1) a Framework of Philippines-India Bilateral Relations and (2) Agreement to Establish the Joint Commission on Bilateral Cooperation. These two agreements identify priorities, set directions and lead Philippine-India relations to a new era in various areas of cooperation such as defense and security, health and medicine, trade and investments, energy including renewable energy, agriculture, tourism, and culture.
- (3) $50 million credit line from the Export and Import Bank of India. We hope this can finance transactions that will correct the lopsided nature of our trade in favor of India. With India now one of the world's top economies with a new middle class of half a billion people, your internal market demand and domestic consumption can have a direct and positive impact on us in terms of job creation, balance of trade and investment.
- Most of the Philippine exports to India are industrial inputs like electronics, phosphoric acid and newsprint. With India's half a billion new middle class we hope we can do more trade in consumer products like fashion garments, fashion furniture, and the trendy virgin coconut oil.
- Yesterday noon at the meeting of the Confederation of Indian Industries in Mumbai, I told the business community that the current surge of investments in the Philippines has been anchored by the billion dollar plus investments in our country of several major international companies such as America's Texas Instruments and AES, Korea's Hanjin and Japan's Marubeni.
- In the afternoon Global Steel of Mittal joined our billion dollar club by informing us of their plans to set up an integrated steel plant in southern Philippines involving investments of $1.6 billion.
- In BPO, Credence Analytics signed a joint venture with a Philippine company, WNS informed us of their plan to set up in the Philippines, while Sutherland informed us of its plans to double its knowledge based employment in the Philippines.
- We believe the Philippines offers the best value for Indian investment today. We offer a strategic location in a fast-growing region, our workforce is well educated, productive and English speaking.
- This is an advantage also as a film location site for the Indian movie industry. The Philippines is not only advantageous but a premier choice for film shooting because of its white sand beaches, enigmatic and mysterious rainforests, historical heritage sites, and crystalline scapes like lahar and sand dunes. It is a fountain of creative and service talent. We have the production equipment, post production houses and studios, sound stages and other technical and logistics requirements.
- When we explained this to members of Bollywood yesterday, they agreed to visit the Philippines before the end of the year to look for film locations. The famous producer Aditya Raj Kapoor has decided to do a movie in the Philippines.
- Our white sand beaches combine with the beautiful smiles of our people to make tourism one of our growth sectors. Yesterday Taj Resorts agreed to go to the Philippines to look at possible investment sites. Our Secretary of Tourism, Ace Durano, shall also invite the Oberoi Group to look at the Philippines for their next project.

- A possible area of agricultural partnership and cooperation is in the sector of dairy and livestock meat products. The Philippines imports more than 1.7 million metric tons of milk and cream products, as well as more than 50,000 metric tons of carabao beef meat.
- The Indian Ministry of Agriculture's Animal Husbandry Division has no problem with our securing livestock strengthening Philippines livestock. We are looking for partnerships in livestock technology involving artificial insemination, grow-out farms and meat processing operations. The Philippines is foot-and-mouth disease free and bird flu free. We can supply both our growing demand and that of Asia.
- On energy, we likewise invite Indian corporations to participate in the privatization of our national power assets. Yesterday Kalpataru Power Transmission said they would join the bid for the December privatization of our national transmission grid.
- (4) Philippines-India Joint Declaration for Cooperation to Combat International Terrorism.
- (5) Memorandum of Agreement in the Field of Health and Medicine: We are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in new bridges, roads and ports along with billions in education, training and healthcare to upgrade our competitiveness and alleviate poverty.
- Our massive spending on health care includes importing pharmaceuticals from India as part of our program to cut in half the price of medicines commonly bought by the poor.
- (6) Agreement between the Philippine International Trading Corporation and the Indian State Trading Corporation for the $35 million worth of affordable medicines. But we encourage private drug store owners and local governments to do business with Indian corporations. Let me introduce the representatives of the local governments in our delegation: Governor Villafuerte of Camarines Sur, Mayor Villanueva of Bais City and Mayor Navarro of the town of Laac in Mindanao. Yesterday in Mumbai two Indian pharmaceuticals signed agreements with the Philippine private sector.
- Our delegation also includes members of the Philippine Congress. Let me introduce them: Deputy Speaker Villarosa, Congresswoman Angping, Congressman Biron, Congresswoman Garin and Congressman Zialcita. Let me also take this opportunity to thank them for their enthusiasm in pushing for legislation that would make medicines in the Philippines more affordable, just like in India. Three days ago the Philippine Senate passed their version of the bill on second reading. When combined with the version of the House of Representatives the final passage of the bill will be a major milestone in our administration's efforts to promote better health for our people. It will provide the legal framework to allow the production of cheaper medicines in the Philippines instead of just importing them.
- We share what is good news for us with the Indian business community. We want it to be good news for you, too, by encouraging your pharmaceutical companies to set up production facilities in the Philippines so that you can keep your Philippine market. You can even use it as a base to export to other markets in the Far East.
- (7) Memorandum of Agreement on Enhanced Cooperation in the Field of Renewable Energy: We are developing a bio fuels industry that helps our energy independence, create jobs and keeps our nation clean for future generations. Yesterday Praj Industries informed us that they are ready to roll out their Philippine bio-ethanol plant soon. We also want to explore joint ventures between Philippine and Indian institutions to produce biofuel from sweet sorghum and jatropha.
- (8) Memorandum of Understanding on Cooperation between the Foreign Service Institutes of the Philippines and India.
- (9) Memorandum of Agreement on the Waiver of Visa Requirements for Holders of Diplomatic Passports and Official Passports. But more important, we have liberalized our visa policy towards Indian nationals. We had an anachronistic policy considering Indians as restricted nationals. How illogical to restrict nationals of the fourth largest economy when we should be courting your instead.
- The Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso, move the stock market, pre-pay our debts and raise employment, but we have.
- We are bullish on 21st century India and on your ability to help drive positive change in the world. We have the unique opportunity to learn from you and create our own path to development. And we want to do business with you. Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech at the FICCI/ASSOCHAM/CII. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141103/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2242&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the State Banquet hosted by H.E. President Pratibha Devisingh Patil of the Republic of India

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the State Banquet hosted by H.E. President Pratibha Devisingh Patil of the Republic of the Republic of India

[Delivered at the Ashoka Hall, Rashtrapati Bhavan New Delhi, Republic of India, October 5, 2007]

Distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen.

Your Excellency, first of all, allow us to congratulate you on your election as the first female president of India.

And thank you for inviting me to make this state visit almost immediately after Your Excellency assumed office.

Thank you for reminding us on my father's visit in India in 1961 when he was vice president. At that time, relations were defined by the cold war.

Today as we visit you, relations are defined by globalization, and India has become an undeniable force behind global economic growth.

Your impressive growth, largely fueled a knowledge economy, has made you the world's fourth largest economy. Our country emulates your path to development.

As you have said, our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. And no one thought we could reduce our deficit to almost zero, pre-pay our debts and raise employment, but we have.

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Investments are pouring in — including Indian investments — the peso is strong, our stock market has reached historic heights and we've created six million jobs in six years.

We are developing and promoting our Green Philippines agenda which, like India, puts emphasis on a sustainable economic model that brings economic opportunity and a concern for the environment.

As our respective economic engines drive us to modernization, we are both resolved not to do so at the expense of our environment nor on the back of the poor. On the contrary, poverty alleviation is our common overarching goal.

It is natural for the Philippines to emulate India in creating our path to development, because as you have said, Madame President, Indian civilization profoundly affected the culture of the Filipinos long before the Christian era and certainly long before the Spaniards colonized our country in the 16th century. The early relations between the Philippines and the Indian empires of Sri-Vijaya and Majapahit were not political but rather commercial and cultural.

Up to today, 25 percent of the words in our tagalog language are Sanskrit terms. Among such words are “asawa” for spouse, “diwa” for thought, “puri” for honor, “lakambini” for princess, “wika” for language and “maganda” for beautiful.

The Brahmanistic elements in ancient Filipino religion and the names of our ancestors’ gods and also the mythological heroes were of Indian origin. The term “Bathala,” supreme god of the ancient Tagalog, originated from the Sanskrit Bhattara Guru.

Many Filipino customs are of Indian origin. Among them: (1) placing a sampaguita flower garland around the neck of a visitor upon arrival as a symbol of hospitality and friendship. We experienced that when we arrived here in India; (2) or when guests throw rice on the bride and the groom after the wedding; and (3) when a childless couple goes on a pilgrimage to a holy shrine, believing that God will grant their prayer for fertility.

The sarong skirt and the turban of pre-Spanish Filipinos and the embroidered shawls of present-day Muslim women have Indian influence.

Yet beyond these links that bind us from the past, as you have said, it is our recent history that forms a deeper bond between our countries. We are two of Asia’s most flourishing democracies. Our workforces are both well- educated, productive and English-speaking. We both honor our overseas nationals for their sacrifice and dedication to their work, their family and their nation. We are both ranked the most attractive off-shoring destinations in the world. As you have said, these commonalities should serve as the platform from which we can take our relations to an even higher level.

Madame president, sixty years ago, when India gained its independence, our two countries forged a treaty of friendship. Today, sixty years later, earlier today, our two governments signed nine agreements that will set directions and lead Philippines-India relations to a new era in various areas of cooperation such as foreign affairs, defense and security, health and medicine, trade and investments, credit, energy including renewable energy, agriculture, tourism, and culture.

Indeed, we have a new age in the relationship between India and the Philippines.

So, ladies and gentlemen, please join me in a toast to the good health and continued success of Her Excellency President Patil and to the growth of India-Philippines relations.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA’s Speech during the State Banquet hosted by H.E. President Pratibha Devisingh Patil of the Republic of the Republic of India. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141127/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2241&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the Launching of the “Go Negosyo Caravan” Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the Launching of the “Go Negosyo Caravan”

[Delivered at the Bren Guiao Convention Center, San Fernando, Pampanga, October 8, 2007]

In just over four months, “Go Negosyo” has brought this great undertaking to five major locations in the country – Cebu, Bacolod, Baguio, Manila and now in Pampanga. On behalf of my Kabalens, we thank you.

Iting caravan a ini munta munta ya naman Cagayan de Oro, Makati, Batangas ampong Pangasinan karing tutuking mapilan bulan. Atyu tamu king pamaglakbe nung nukarin pasibayu ta yang gigisingan ing entrepreneurial spirit o ing ilig king pamagnegosyo karing Pilipinu.

We extol the recipients of the Most Inspiring Entrepreneur Awards to local businessmen whose success stories continue to inspire our people.

At keti mismu king Pampanga, atin tamung sariling inspiring stories a malyaring ikuwentu. Ing kuwentu nang Jaime “Jack” Uy, Presidente at CEO ning Sentinel Development Corporation; i Dr. Emmanuel Y. Angeles, Chancellor ampong Chairman of the Board na ning Angeles University Foundation; deng Garcia brothers ning Meken Food Corporation; i Peter Nepomuceno ning Nepomuceno Group of Companies; i Lolita Hizon na ning Pampanga’s Best; i Ryan Razon ning Razon’s Restaurant; i Wilfredo Tan of Hausland Development Corporation; i Fatima del Rosario ning Sasmuan Delicacies; ampong i Teresa David-Carlos na ning Bank of Florida.

Ila ngan matapang da’lang herapan ding pagsubuk king pamanalakad negosyu king tuktuk na ning pamana’kitan ampong responsibilidad king lipunan.

We are glad that the Center for Entrepreneurship is giving them due recognition. We hope they will be role models to the rising generation of Filipino entrepreneurs. Congratulations!

We can produce more entrepreneurs of their caliber – mapanyubuk karing bayung ba’ge, mapagpursigi at masikan lub.

In my inaugural address in 2004, I said that when we step down in 2010, part of our legacy shall be that we will have supported three million entrepreneurs by giving them loans and helping them become good managers, thereby establishing a deep foundation for a broad middle class.

In my State of the Nation Address last July, I said: Hangarin kong mapabilang ang Pilipinas sa mayayamang bansa sa loob ng dalawampung taon. By then poverty shall have been marginalized; and the marginalized raised to a robust middle class. We need a vibrant middle class if we are to be on the verge of First World in 20 years, which is our aspiration.

The current benign, stable growth conditions are likely to spark a wave of entrepreneurial activity in the Philippines. We see signs of this happening already. In several key areas we have promoted a new entrepreneurial class. One is in microfinance. The microfinance system which we have empowered has extended more than P80 billion to four million low income men and women who want to start their own businesses.

Kailangan da ding keketamung memalen ing empowerment, at iti yang kekatamung panikwanan king Small and Medium Enterprise Development Plan a ni-launch tamu inyang 2004.

Since 2004 we have extended more than P100 billion worth of loans to 50,000 middle income men and women who want to start or put up their own businesses through the SME Unified Lending Opportunities for National Growth.

In addition, through the Central Bank we have created a series of investment incentives and programs for overseas remittances to be invested into capital enterprises.

And we are cutting red tape to simplify the requirements for small and medium investments.

Alang nanu mang kaingge political a malyaring makapigil kekatamu king pamapgpatupad na ning peka-important inisyatibo a magawang marakal a negosyong mana'kitan ampong milyun-milyon a trabaho para karing kekatamung memalen.

We continue empowering our people so they may be able to grab these opportunities. And Go Negosyo will not only empower them, but inspire them to get into the exciting world of entrepreneurship. Thank you, Go Negosyo, for helping bring out the entrepreneurial spirit of our people.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech at the Launching of the "Go Negosyo Caravan". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141037/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2238&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Launching of the 2007 Global Millennium Development Goals Report and the Philippine Midterm Progress Report

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Launching of the 2007 Global Millennium Development Goals Report and the Philippine Midterm Progress Report

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, October 10, 2007]

First of all, thank you to the U.N. Philippine team headed by Nileema and the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) headed by Tito Santos for the progress report. And thanks to all the other partner agencies for the progress itself on our Millennium Development Goals.

I'm happy to hear that of 15 indicators, we're doing quite well in 10, and I guess this is because we're one of the few countries where the MDGs are really internalized in the economic reforms reflected in our Medium-Term Development Plan.

This is the mid-term of the MDG period. I was getting confused because the baseline is 1990, the end point is 2010, so I said, why are we in the mid-term? That's because we started to make the commitments in year 2000. So we are in between the commitment here rather than the baseline year of 2000 and the end time of 2015.

And our goal, and I would say that in this mid-term of our commitment, our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. And I'm glad to see the rate of poverty is down, and the general poverty as well as what we have seen, extreme poverty. And we're heartened that the ratio of Filipinos living in extreme poverty has been drastically cut from 20.4 percent in 1990 to 10.2 percent in 2006. Employment is up.

Our education and healthcare services to the poor have vastly improved. Our progress report says we have a long way to go there. But only through a strong economy can we improve the plight of the poor, our education and our health.

And to that end, I am glad we have turned the corner on our economy. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues. No one thought we could cut down on tax cheats. No one thought we could strengthen the peso. No one thought we could move the stock market. No one thought we could bring down our budget deficit to almost zero. No one thought we could pre-pay our debts. No one thought we could raise our employment, but we have.

And for that first goal about getting more revenues, thanks once again to the Congress of the Philippines. All these now allow us to invest in job creation but also better healthcare and more educational opportunities.

For the first time in decades, in our budget, less of our revenue is being used for debt service and more towards investment in our country's infrastructure including education and health care. Which is why the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability and which is why investments are pouring in; which is why the peso is strong; which is why our stock market has reached historic heights and which is why we have created six million jobs in six years. The world is taking notice.

The world and the markets acknowledge our gains in economic reforms and political stability despite efforts by some quarters to project the opposite image.

The imperative now is to sustain growth by making long overdue investments in education, healthcare and training and attract investments by fast tracking billions of pesos in new bridges, roads and ports. In fact, that's part of the recommendations of the Millennium Development Goals, to upgrade infrastructure so that we can upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines undelayed by politicking. These are the keys to lifting the poor up.

Poverty alleviation is our overarching goal. It is the goal that we will continue to focus on in the remaining years of our term – raising revenue was just the first step. The short answer to continue with the economic growth and meeting all the Millennium Development Goals, not just the 10 out of the 15 is summed in three words: invest, invest, invest.

We must follow up the pain of tax raising measures with the gain that comes from significant investments in people and projects. So, over the next three years, we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people.

We will increase investments in our country, in our people too, first of all improve our infrastructure as recommended by the U.N. after assessing the MDG to create an environment in which businesses feel confident, to expand and employ more people, because more jobs means less poverty and more children can go to school and stay in school and more mothers can have healthy maternal care.

Second, directly improve social services such as health insurance subsidies for indigent patients. If we see that in our Millennium Development Goals Progress Report we are lagging behind on reducing infant mortality... maternal – we're good at infant mortality but – maternal mortality, one of the solutions that we have adapted is that we are including child birth in our coverage of health insurance. It used to be that health insurance only covered sickness and so they would say child birth is not sickness, therefore, you shouldn't include child birth. But maternal mortality is something that we must avoid so we are including child birth now in our health insurance.

Also, we are spending money to upgrade local government hospitals from primary to secondary because secondary hospitals have facilities for childbirth and caesarian delivery. So, if we have better local government hospitals – no more primary mostly secondary and some may even be tertiary – then more mothers will give birth in the hospital and that will also reduce maternal death.

And then as far as health care is concerned we're also increasing our subsidies for food-for-school programs. Now one of our problems in the Millennium Development Goals is the survival rate. Lots of children enroll in school but at the end of the day they don't stay in school, they drop out somewhere along the way.

But we have some studies that say that those who go to early education which is Day Care Centers, good Day Care Centers and pre-schools are the ones that survive up to the end of grade school. That's why we're having food-for-school programs in Day Care Centers and pre-schools in order to entice their parents to send them to school.

In other words, when the children go to pre-school or Day Care, they get a bag of rice that they can bring home to their families and the whole family can eat improving the hunger situation. But also, it is an enticement for parents to send their children to school, their little children to school because they will bring home not the bacon but the rice. And so, that will keep our children and will entice parents to send their children to early childhood education and improve the survival rate up to the end of the elementary education.

So therefore, what I'm saying is that not only are the goals of our Millennium Development Goals incorporated in our Medium-Term Plan, in the way to implement our medium-term plan, we also pay very careful attention to the areas suggested by the MDG progress reports. So, we are putting money on the areas suggested by the MDG progress report.

And third, boost educational support, of course, in our efforts to reduce poverty by investing in better schoolbuildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators.

And fourth, cutting red tape and continuing to eliminate corruption from the system.

Hindi dapat mahinto ang pagsulong ng investments sa tao at imprastraktura na makakabawas ng kahirapan dahil sa batikos. Kaya naman inatasan natin ang China Projects Oversight Panel sa ilalim ni Secretary Favila na siguruhin na walang balakid ang napakahalagang proyekto ng cyber education parasa karunungan ng milyung-milyon nating mag-aaral. Kasi kung gusto natin na huwag mag drop-out ang ating mga kabataan sa malalayong lugar dapat maganda ang paaralan nila at maganda ang pinag-aaralan nila. Maganda dapat ang course content. Dapat naniniwala ang magulang nila na yung natututunan nila ay magagamit nila pagkatapos. At yun naman ang kahalagahan ng Distance Learning at Cyber Education.

Kaya upang makasiguro na hindi na naman ito masisira o mapipigil dahil sa problema ng mga batikos hihingiin ng task force ni Secretary Favila ang tulong ng Education Task Force sa ilalim ni Father Ben Nebres ng Ateneo upang matiyak na alinsunod ang proyekto sa pangangailangan ng edukasyon. Kabalik din dito ang itinayo nating Procurement Transparency Group na kasama ang Civil Society Organizations for Procurement Reform upang maging bukas at transparent ang pagproseso ng proyekto.

And of course, we will continue to fight against terrorism and work to bring peace to Mindanao so that we can improve all those indicators in the poorest areas of our country, namely, especially as mentioned in the report of Tito Santos, the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao and CARAGA.

To bring in more investments and jobs, we must also advance peace in conflict areas in Mindanao especially but also in other areas through amnesty and local peace initiatives such as being undertaken in Agusan, which is in CARAGA, as well as in Bohol which is the model for local peace processes.

In conclusion or in summary we hear and heed the advice to strengthen our efforts in five areas of education and health to make sure our Millennium targets are met. This will raise not only living standards but also when we spend on education and health care we improve the quality of our human resources and our competitiveness and this will in turn attract more investment, create jobs, ultimately improving the lives of our people in a virtuous cycle.

Our intermediate goal is to reduce the incidence of poverty by half and to meet all the MDG commitments by 2015. And this is consistent with our vision which is a Philippines on the verge of First World status in 20 years when we will have dramatically cut, reduce poverty, created a robust middle-class and then all the hallmarks of a modern society in strong, stable institutions. But while we are still in the process of strengthening our institutions, let me assure you that politics will not distract us from our tasks.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the Launching of the 2007 Global Millennium Development Goals Report and The Philippines Midterm Progress Report

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Launching of the 2007 Global Millennium Development Goals Report and The Philippines
Midterm Progress Report

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, October 10, 2007]

Thank you, very much, Secretary Cabral. Thank you for your introduction.

Speaker De Venecia; our U.N. Representative, Nileema Noble; Congresswoman Soon-Ruiz; Acting Secretary Santos; our members of the legislature; our local government executives; our members of the Diplomatic Corps; different agencies involved in fighting poverty and our NGO's; ladies and gentlemen.

First of all, thank you to the U.N. Philippine team headed by Nileema and the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) headed by Tito Santos for the progress report. And thanks to all the other partner agencies for the progress itself on our Millennium Development Goals.

I'm happy to hear that of 15 indicators, we're doing quite well in 10, and I guess this is because we're one of the few countries where the MDGs are really internalized in the economic reforms reflected in our Medium-Term Development Plan.

This is the mid-term of the MDG period. I was getting confused because the baseline is 1990, the end point is 2010, so I said, why are we in the mid-term? That's because we started to make the commitments in year 2000. So we are in between the commitment here rather than the baseline year of 2000 and the end time of 2015.

And our goal, and I would say that in this mid-term of our commitment, our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. And I'm glad to see the rate of poverty is down, the rate of poverty is down, general poverty as well as what we have seen, extreme poverty. And we're heartened that the ratio of Filipinos living in extreme poverty has been drastically cut from 20.4 percent in 1990 to 10.2 percent in 2006. Employment is up.

Our education and health care services to the poor have vastly improved. Our progress report says we have a long way to go there. But only through a strong economy can we improve the plight of the poor, our education and our health.

And to that end, I am glad we have turned the corner on our economy. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues. No one thought we could cut down on tax cheats. No one thought we could strengthen the peso. No one thought we could move the stock market. No one thought we could bring down our budget deficit to almost zero. No one thought we could pre-pay our debts. No one thought we could raise our employment, but we have.

And for that first goal about getting more revenues, thanks once again to the Congress of the Philippines. (applause) All these now allow us to invest in job creation but also better health care and more educational opportunities.

For the first time in decades, in our budget, less of our revenue is being used for debt service and more towards investment in our country's infrastructure including education and health care. (applause) Which is why the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability and which is why investments are pouring in; which is why the peso is strong; which is why our stock market has reached historic heights and which is why we have created six million jobs in six years. The world is taking notice.

The world and the markets acknowledge our gains in economic reform and political stability despite efforts by some quarters to project the opposite image.

The imperative now is to sustain growth by making long overdue investments in education, health care and training and attract investments by fast tracking billions of pesos in new bridges, roads and ports. In fact, that's part of the recommendations of the Millennium Development Goals, to upgrade infrastructure so that we can upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines undelayed by politicking. These are the keys to lifting the poor up.

Poverty alleviation is our overarching goal. It is the goal that we will continue to focus on in the remaining years of our term — raising revenue was just the first step. The short answer to continue with the economic growth and meeting all the Millennium Development Goals, not just the 10 out of the 15 is summed in three words: invest, invest, invest.

We must follow up the pain of tax raising measures with the gain that comes from significant investment in people and projects. So, over the next three years, we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people.

We will increase investment in our country, in our people too, first of all improve our infrastructure as recommended by the U.N. after assessing the MDG to create an environment in which businesses feel confident to expand and employ more people because more jobs means less poverty and more children can go to school and stay in school and more mothers can have healthy maternal care.

Second, directly improve social services such as health insurance subsidies for indigent patients. If we see that in our Millennium Development Goals Progress Report we are lagging behind on reducing infant mortality... Maternal — we're good at infant mortality but — maternal mortality, one of the solutions that we have adapted is that we are including child birth in our coverage of health insurance. It used to be that health insurance only covered sickness and so they would say child birth is not sickness, therefore, you shouldn't include child birth. But maternal mortality is something that we must avoid so we are including child birth now in our health insurance.

Also, we are spending money to upgrade local government hospitals from primary to secondary because secondary hospitals have facilities for childbirth and cesarean delivery. So, if we have better local government hospitals — no more primary mostly secondary and some may even be tertiary — then more mothers will give birth in the hospital and that will also reduce maternal death.

And then as far as health care is concerned we're also increasing our subsidies for food-for-school programs. Now one of our problems in the Millennium Development Goals is the survival rate. Lots of children enroll in school but at the end of the day they don't stay in school, they drop out somewhere along the way.

But we have some studies that say that those who go to early education which is Day Care Centers, good Day Care Centers and pre-schools are the ones that survive up to the end of grade school. That's why we're having food-for-school programs in Day Care Centers and pre-schools in order to entice their parents to send them to school.

In other words, when the children go to pre-school or Day Care, they get a bag of rice that they can bring home to their families and the whole family can eat improving the hunger situation. But also, it is an enticement for parents to send their children to school, their little children to school because they will bring home not the bacon but the rice. And so, that will keep our children... That will entice parents to send their children to early childhood education and improve the survival rate up to the end of the elementary education.

So therefore, what I'm saying is that not only are the goals of our Millennium Development Goals incorporated in our Medium-Term Plan, in the way to implement our medium-term plan, we also pay very careful attention to the areas suggested by the MDG progress reports. So, we are putting money on the areas suggested by the MDG progress report.

And third, boost educational support, of course, in our efforts to reduce poverty by investing in better schoolbuildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators.

And fourth, cutting red tape and continuing to eliminate corruption from the system.

Hindi dapat mahinto ang pagsulong ng investment sa tao at imprastraktura na makakabawas ng kahirapan dahil sa batikos. Kaya naman inatasan natin ang China Projects Oversight Panel sa ilalim ni Secretary Favila na siguruhin na walang balakid ang napakahalagang proyekto ng cyber education para sa karunungan ng milyung-milyon nating mag-aaral. Kasi kung gusto natin na huwag mag drop-out ang ating mga kabataan sa malalayong lugar dapat maganda ang paaralan nila at maganda ang pinag-aaralan nila. Maganda dapat ang course content. Dapat naniniwala ang magulang nila na yung natututunan nila ay magagamit nila pagkatapos. At yun naman ang kahalagahan ng Distance Learning at Cyber Education.

Kaya para siguraduhin na hindi na naman ito masisira o mapipigil dahil sa problema ng mga batikos hihingiin ng task force ni Secretary Favila ang tulong ng Education Task Force sa ilalim ni Father Ben Nebres ng Ateneo upang matiyak na alinsunod ang proyekto sa pangangailangan ng edukasyon. Kabalikat din dito ang itinayo nating Procurement Transparency Group na kasama ang Civil Society Organizations for Procurement Reform upang maging bukas at transparent ang pagproseso ng proyekto.

And of course, we will continue to fight against terrorism and work to bring peace to Mindanao so that we can improve all those indicators in the poorest areas of our country, namely, especially as mentioned in the report of Tito Santos, the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao and CARAGA.

To bring in more investments and jobs, we must also advance peace in conflict areas in Mindanao especially but also in other areas through amnesty and local peace initiatives such as being undertaken in Agusan, which is in CARAGA, as well as in Bohol which is the model for local peace processes.

In conclusion or in summary we hear and heed the advice to strengthen our efforts in five areas of education and health to make sure our Millennium targets are met. This will raise not only living standards but also when we spend on education and health care we improve the quality of our human resources and our competitiveness and this will in turn attract more investment, create jobs, ultimately improving the lives of our people in a virtuous cycle.

Our intermediate goal is to reduce the incidence of poverty by half and to meet all the MDG commitments by 2015. And this is consistent with our vision which is a Philippines on the verge of First World status in 20 years when we will have dramatically cut, reduce poverty, created a robust middle-class and then all the hallmarks of a modern society in strong, stable institutions. But while we are still in the process of strengthening our institutions, let me assure you that politics will not distract us from our tasks.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

*Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Launching of the 2007 Global Millennium Development Goals Report and The Philippines Midterm Progress Report. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412140236/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2236&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the Inauguration of the Bohol irrigation Project Phase 2 [Filipino]

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines At the Inauguration of the Bohol irrigation Project Phase 2 [Filipino]

[Delivered at the San Miguel, Bohol, October 12, 2007]

Giabi-abi nato si Gobernador Erico Aumentado, ang mga opisyal sa lokal nga pamunuan dinhi ug ang katawhan sa Bohol ining pagkahuman sa Bohol Irrigation Project.

We commend NIA and the consultants for a job well done.

Gi-utang nato P3.6 billion sa Japan alang ni-ining proyekto nga naghulat ug pito ka tuig yuna nahuman. Karon mapun-an ug 5,300 ka ektarya ang mga uma nga makadawat ug irigasyon gikan sa Bayongan dam ug Capayas dam. Nagpahimo sab kita ug mga farm to market roads ug access roads nga 41 ka kilometro aron suportahon kining proyekto, ug aduna pa'y road improvement alang sa Ubay-San Jose-Cabulao road nga 16.7 ka kilometro. Tungod ni-ini, 42,500 ka toneladang palay ug uban pang produkto ang mapuno sa ani dinhi matag tuig.

Tungod ni-ini, makahamdom kita nga ang sunod nga sentro sa agrikultura ug negosyo dinhi sa Bohol ani-a sa bahin sa norte ug sa tunga-tunga sa probinsiya – gikan sa Pilar hangtod sa mga lungsod sa Ubay, Trinidad ug San Miguel.

We are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, healthcare and training along with billions in new bridges, roads, ports and irrigation to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines.

We take great pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. I am proud of the fact that we are pre-paying our external debt. We will balance the budget in 2008, two years ahead of schedule. We are making sure to use the gains to invest in vital social and economic needs. We will not sacrifice long term gains for short term political expediency.

Kaniadtong tuig 2001, ang inyong probinsiya ika-pito sa “Club 20” nga listahan sa 20 ka labing pobreng probinsiya sa nasod. Sa tuig 2002, ang inyong na-aning humay 144, 781 metric tons lang, 895 lang ang mga narehistrong negosyante sa tibuok probinsya ug 774,000 lang ka turista ang mi-anhi bisan pa ug daghan kamo ug dapit nga angay du-awon.

Niadtong panahona, mi-abot sa 30 porsyento sa katawhan ang mga rebelde o kun ga-suporta sa mga rebelde. Bohol was a classic case of a vicious cycle of poverty and hunger driving insurgency and unrest.

Gigamit ni Gob. Aumentado ang kumprehensibong istrategiya kun diin nagkuyog ang mga programang anti-poverty ug ang mga operasyon sa militar, ug miduyog sab ang mga programa sa kalinaw nga gihimo sa simbahan, mga programa sa pagpalambo nga gipasugdan sa gobyerno nasyonal kauban ang mga gi-utang sa gawas ug gi-apilan sa pagsalig ug pakig-uban sa komunidad. Ang effectiveness sa istrategiya nagmatu-od nga dako gayod ang pagtu-o sa mga Bol-anon sa bisyon ni Gobernador.

Sa tuig 2005, napildi na hapit tanang Communist fronts. Ang usa ka nabilin nga front atu-a sa mga kalayo nga bukid sa tunga-tunga sa probinsiya. Sa tuig 2005 sab, nakagawas na sa Club 20 and 40 slots away from the poorest province.

Sa tuig 2006, gi-recognize ang Bohol nga 2nd best performing province sa poverty reduction ug gi-ila kini nga usa sa nakakuha ug labing taas nga annual growth rate. Dili na insurgency hotbed, the province recorded in 2006 tourist arrivals triple that of 2001 figures; the number of business establishments doubled and the employment rate shot up to 92.3% from 87% in 2004.

Kining proyekto sa irigasyon maoy magpadaghan sa abot sa mga uma sa bahin sa central ug northern Bohol, apil na ang mga lugar dapit sa Pilar nga maoy kuta sa nabilin nga communist front niadtong 2005. Ang mga dalang gipa-ayo maoy agi-an sa mga produkto gikan sa mga uma ug mao sab ang modala sa mga turista sa nagkalain-laing dapit sa probinsiya. Modaghan na sab ang mga investment ug gipakusgan ang mga social services. Kining tanan maoy mosiguro that the Boholanos will enjoy permanent stability and growth.

Gipa-ila ko sa mga Peace Assemblies sa tibuok nasod ang maayong balita mahitungod sa Bohol ug ang inyong istrategiya sa convergence. Gitudlu-an sa Bohol ang tibuok katawhan nga: The way to peace isn't through the barrel of a gun. Rather it begins with providing a person a job, food on the table and human dignity. And central to that success is to invest in the people – in education, healthcare, irrigation, roads, bridges and schools.

Ipadayon nato kining atong panaghi-usa ug suportahan nato ang tanang katuyuan alang sa pagkab-ot sa kalinaw ug kauswagan para sa Bohol ug sa tibuok nasod.

Daghang salamat sa inyong kanunay nga pagsuporta kanako. Mabuhi kitang tanan!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech at the Inauguration of the Bohol irrigation Project Phase 2. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140245/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2230&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Regional Workshop on the Establishment of National Human Rights Institutions in Asia Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Regional Workshop on the Establishment of National Human Rights Institutions in Asia

[Delivered on October 15, 2007]

Thank you, Secretary Romulo.

Chairperson Quisumbing, congratulations for being a model for ASEAN and the whole world and the region; Secretary Ermita; Mr. Magazzeni, representing the United Nations; members of the diplomatic corps; human rights commissioners; Ms. Noble; delegates to this regional workshop on human rights, ladies and gentlemen.

This is a timely consolidation of the three powers of government and the Constitutional Commission on Human Rights, alongside the international community, for a fundamental human cause.

Over half a century ago in 1948, the nations of the world gathered together to declare their commitment to human rights.

Our respective human rights institutions are crucial to the rule of law. And we are proud that the Philippine Commission on Human Rights which has become a beacon for the dignity and well-being of every Filipino, as well as for the community welfare, peace and development.

We respect the commission's independence. We appreciate its human rights advisories and recommendations. We acknowledge its role as a watchdog of government's compliance with human rights treaty obligations.

As we welcome the scrutiny of the U.S., the U.N., the E.U., and other nations to help us move away from this part of our political discourse. We have tried to be as transparent as possible in resolving these historically difficult issues. The U.S. is an especially strong ally. We have worked shoulder to shoulder on a number of difficult issues over the years to our mutual benefit. And we are sure that will continue.

We deplore any and all killings of political activists and journalists. I have met personally with the journalism community and the same with human rights activists. We share their outrage. To stop the killings, we have followed the recommendations of my Melo Commission, to establish separate courts, expedite prosecutions, expand victim assistance and increase funding for more investigators.

We thank the Supreme Court for setting up the special courts to tighten the noose on evil.

We have ordered the national prosecution service of the department of justice to work closely with the Philippine National Police and the National Bureau of Investigation from the beginning of the criminal investigation until the termination of cases in court.

Seventy six criminal cases on political killings are under trial; 33 others are being prepared for prosecution. Six persons have been convicted, including a former police sergeant and a former soldier.

We have told our military in no uncertain terms that if there are rogue elements, they must be brought to justice. Our nation has an unfortunate history of political violence by those on the left and the right. We hope to break that cycle once and for all. No one should have to die fighting for speaking out for their political beliefs.

Let it also be noted that terrorists like the Abu Sayyaf and armed communists are a threat to the sovereignty of the nation. They must be checked once and for all.

To ensure priority development support for peace initiatives, as Commander-in-Chief, I have ordered this morning the Office of the Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process and the Commanding General of the Armed Forces of the Philippines national development service command to submit to the executive secretary a list of areas scheduled for local peace initiatives, and the priority programs and projects due to be sustained, extended and/or launched there in tandem with the peace efforts. The executive secretary shall then disseminate the list to agency heads for priority funding and implementation, based on the office of the adviser of the peace process and the armed forces' schedule of peace initiatives and subject to regular updating based on conditions and requirements of the ground.

The Philippines is the most democratic country in the region. We have championed that human rights be included in our ASEAN charter. We have no tolerance for human rights violations of any kind. But I have advanced the cause of peace in Mindanao to a new level of engagement, focused on interfaith dialogue, economic development and mutual security. We have done so with the largest international involvement possible. Peace there is very much an issue of human rights, just as alleviating poverty is, which is our number one issue.

We must address the spawning ground of terrorist recruitment — the specter of poverty.

We take pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. We are pre-paying our external debt, so that we will balance the budget in 2008, two years ahead of schedule. We are making sure to invest the gains in vital social and economic needs. We will not sacrifice long-term gains for short-term political expediency.

To prioritize the provision of jobs, livelihood and basic services to eradicate extreme poverty, I have ordered also this morning that the china projects oversight panel should earmark an initial 120 million dollars for programs and projects drawn up by local government units and agencies to uplift areas and communities suffering extreme poverty, as identified by the National Anti-Poverty Commission in consultation with the bishops and the NGOs. Top priority are local government units with a high incidence of severe hunger and/or high unemployment. The projects should be proposed by year's end for 2008 launching.

I have also ordered the Cabinet this morning to undertake preparatory work on programs and projects in 2008 as approved by the house of representatives, to ensure speedy implementation next year. Upon consultation with senators, agencies may also publicize those undertakings likely to be passed by the senate without major revisions. The aim is to earmark about five billion pesos worth. Along with china projects to be proposed under my earlier instructions, a total fund of 10 billion pesos would be mobilized to fund extreme poverty.

And to address the issue of terrorism and insurgency in Mindanao, we are hereby forming a panel, including the secretaries of the interior and local government, justice, the Presidential Management Staff and the National Economic and Development Authority, the leaders of the local government units, congress allies, and maybe even pro-federalism opposition leaders to draft a roadmap to federalism by 2012. The measures could include: super region planning and oversight bodies with officials and staff from the regional development councils and national agencies, to draw up programs and projects up to a stipulated amount, for inclusion in the 2009 budget; legislation to affirm and expand executive issuances, and eventually charter changes.

To address worries and difficulties over food prices, fares and overseas Filipino worker remittances, we are issuing the following instructions to relevant agencies:

First, the Departments of Trade and Industry and agriculture to devise measures to moderate the prices of flour and sugar, in consultation with industry and retail associations, producers, distributors and retailers. Among measures to consider are revenue-neutral tariff adjustments similar to those being applied to oil.

Second, the departments of transportation and energy to coordinate assistance measures to public utility vehicles, including more discount gas stations, revenue-neutral adjustments to oil tariffs, as calculated by the Department of Finance, and fast-tracking and/or expansion of social services and benefits for the public transport sector.

And third, the Departments of Labor and Economic Development to assess the impact of the strong peso on the remittances and families of overseas Filipino workers, and devise measures to moderate and cope with difficulties, including lower remittance fees, as the Department of Finance and the Bangko Sentral of the Philippines are working on, and supplemental income-generating activities.

We have to do all of these because the world needs us to be compassionate fighters in the war against poverty and terror, to keep the cause of human rights alive. The world expects us to preserve a universal framework of human decency and social justice. And that is the way we will be able to protect human rights in the best manner possible.

So, I congratulate once again the Philippine Commission on Human Rights for being a model. I thank our ASEAN neighbors also for having their institutional counterparts. And I hope that indeed this will be an integral part of the ASEAN charter that we will hopefully passed this November. And I hope that with all of us working together in the region for human rights, human rights will indeed be something that we can live everyday of our lives.

Thank you and good luck on this workshop.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the Regional Workshop on the Establishment of National Human Rights Institutions in Asia. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140232/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2227&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Regional Workshop on the Establishment of National Human Rights Institutions in Asia

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Regional Workshop on the Establishment of National Human Rights Institutions in Asia

[Delivered on October 15, 2007]

This is a timely consolidation of the three powers of government and the Constitutional Commission on Human Rights, alongside the international community, for a fundamental human cause.

Over half a century ago in 1948, the nations of the world gathered together to declare their commitment to human rights.

Our respective human rights institutions are crucial to the rule of law. And we are proud that the Philippine Commission on Human Rights which has become a beacon for the dignity and well-being of every Filipino, as well as for the community welfare, peace and development.

We respect the commission's independence. We appreciate its human rights advisories and recommendations. We acknowledge its role as a watchdog of government's compliance with human rights treaty obligations.

As we welcome the scrutiny of the U.S., the U.N., the E.U., and other nations to help us move away from this part of our political discourse. We have tried to be as transparent as possible in resolving these historically difficult issues. The U.S. is a especially strong ally. We have worked shoulder to shoulder on a number of difficult issues over the years to our mutual benefit. And we are sure that will continue.

We deplore any and all killings of political activists and journalists. I have met personally with the journalism community and the same with human rights activists. We share their outrage. To stop the killings, we have followed the recommendations of my Melo Commission, to establish separate courts, expedite prosecutions, expand victim assistance and increase funding for more investigators.

We thank the Supreme Court for setting up the special courts to tighten the noose on evil.

We have ordered the national prosecution service of the department of justice to work closely with the Philippine National Police and the National Bureau of Investigation from the beginning of the criminal investigation until the termination of cases in courts.

Seventy six criminal cases on political killings are under trial; 33 others are being prepared for prosecution. Six persons have been convicted, including a former police sergeant and a former soldier.

We have told our military in no uncertain terms that if there are rogue elements, they must be brought to justice. Our nation has an unfortunate history of political violence by those on the left and the right. We hope to break that cycle once and for all. No one should have to die fighting for speaking out for their political beliefs.

Let it also be noted that terrorists like the Abu Sayyaf and armed communists are a threat to the sovereignty of the nation. They must be checked once and for all.

To ensure priority development support for peace initiatives, as Commander-in-Chief, I have ordered this morning the Office of the Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process and the Commanding General of the Armed Forces of the Philippines national development service command to submit to the executive secretary a list of areas scheduled for local peace initiatives, and the priority programs and projects due to be sustained, extended and/or launched there in tandem with the peace efforts. The executive secretary shall then disseminate the list to agency heads for priority funding and implementation, based on the office of the adviser of the peace process and the armed forces' schedule of peace initiatives and subject to regular updating based on conditions and requirements of the ground.

The Philippines is the most democratic country in the region. We have championed that human rights be included in our ASEAN Charter. We have no tolerance for human rights violations of any kind. But I have advanced the cause of peace in Mindanao to a new level of engagement, focused on interfaith dialogue, economic development and mutual security. We have done so with the largest international involvement possible. Peace is very much an issue of human rights, just as alleviating poverty is, which is our number one issue.

We must address the spawning ground of terrorist recruitment — the specter of poverty.

We take pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. We are pre-paying our external debt, so that we will balance the budget in 2008, two years ahead of schedule. We are making sure to invest the gains in vital social and economic needs. We will not sacrifice long-term gains for short-term political expediency.

To prioritize the provision of jobs, livelihood and basic services to eradicate extreme poverty, I have ordered also this morning that the China Projects Oversight Panel should earmark an initial 120 million dollars for programs and projects drawn up by local government units and agencies to uplift areas and communities suffering extreme poverty, as identified by the National Anti-Poverty Commission in consultation with the bishops and the NGOs. Top priority are local government units with a high incidence of severe hunger and/or high unemployment.

The projects should be proposed by year's end for 2008 launching.

I have also ordered the Cabinet this morning to undertake preparatory work on programs and projects in 2008, as approved by the house of representatives to ensure speedy implementation next year. Upon consultation with e2s, agencies may also publicize those undertakings lately to be passed by the Senate, without major revisions.

with China projects to be proposed under my earlier instructions, a total fund of 10 billion pesos would be mobilized to fund extreme poverty.

And to address the issue of terrorism and insurgency in Mindanao, we are hereby forming a panel, including the secretaries of the Interior and Local Government Justice, the Presidential Management Staff and the National Economic and Development Authority, the leaders of the local government units, congress allies, and maybe even pro-federalism opposition leaders to draft a roadmap to federalism by 2012. The measures could include: super region planning and oversight bodies with officials and staff from the regional development councils and national agencies, to draw up programs and projects up to a stipulated amount, for inclusion in the 2009 budget; legislation to affirm and expand executive issuances, and eventually charter changes.

To address worries and difficulties over food prices, fares and overseas Filipino worker remittances, we are issuing the following instructions to relevant agencies:

First, the Departments of Trade and Industry and agriculture to devise measures to moderate the prices of flour and sugar, in consultation with industry and retail associations, producers, distributors and retailers. Among measures to consider are revenue-neutral tariff adjustments similar to those being applied to oil.

Second, the departments of transportation and energy to coordinate assistance measures to public utility vehicles, including more discount gas stations, revenue-neutral adjustments to oil tariffs, as calculated by the Department of Finance, and fast-tracking and/or expansion of social services and benefits for the public transport sector.

And third, the Departments of Labor and Economic Development to assess the impact of the strong peso on the remittances and families of overseas Filipino workers, and devise measures to moderate and cope with difficulties, including lower remittance fees, as the Department of Finance and the Bangko Sentral of the Philippines are working on, and supplemental income-generating activities.

We have to do all of these because the world needs us to be compassionate fighters in the war against poverty and terror, to keep the cause of human rights alive. The world expects us to preserve a universal framework of human decency and social justice. And that is the way we will be able to protect human rights in the best manner possible.

So, I congratulate once again the Philippine Commission on Human Rights for being a model. I thank our ASEAN neighbors also for having their institutional counterparts. And I hope that indeed this will be an integral part of the ASEAN charter that we will hopefully passed this November. And I hope that with all of us working together in the region for human rights, human rights will indeed be something that we can live everyday of our lives.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo at the 28th Lanzones Festival in Camiguin Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 28th Lanzones Festival in Camiguin

[Delivered in Mambajao, Camiguin, October 17, 2007]

Halos matag tuig sukad milingkod ako nga Presidente, ani-a ako sa inyong festival.

Sa akong pagbisita, nitanaw ko paunsa ninyo gigamit ang mga oportunidad nga gihatag kaninyo aron mo-ayo ang inyong kinabuhi.

Kaniadto kauban sa pulo ka labing pobreng probinsiya sa nasod. Apan sa kakugi sa Camiguin ug sa bisyon ni kanhing Gobernador, karon Congressman Pedro Romualdo, nawala na ang Camiguin sa gitawag nga Club 10.

Bisan pa ug ang Camiguin usa sa labing gamay natong probinsiya, ani-a dinhi ang labing tam-is nga lanzones sa Pilipinas ug ang inyong tourist spots dili lang nindot kung dili sab lain kumpara sa makit-an sa ubang bahin sa nasod. Ang gikinahanglan ninyo kaniadto mao ang tsansa aron ma-ilahan sa tibuok kalibutan kung unsay ikahatag ninyo; ug karon, na-a na kaninyo kining higayona.

Aduna sab kamo'y Lanzones Festivals ug mga perya nga nagadala ug daghang turista.

Camiguin offers excellent opportunities in a range of sectors, particularly various forms of tourism including eco-tourism.

We have a unique opportunity to get it right from day one: to introduce industries that are clean and profitable. This includes eco-tourism.

We believe in the power of the global trading system, kauban ang turismo, to alleviate poverty and modernize nations through market forces.

Ang turismo ang labing maayong istrategiya sa paglambo alang sa inyong probinsiya.

Ang pagpalambo sa inyong probinsiya ang nag-encourage kanako aron iapil kamo dayon sa Central Nautical Highway.

Kining nautical highway maoy gadala dinhi sa mga katawhan gikan sa Bohol ug Cebu, agi sa Guinsiliban, ug makadala sa inyohang mga lanzones sa mga uban ng probinsya agi sa Bohol.

Alang sa Camiguin, kining mga unang benepisyo mao ang pagpa-ayo sa RORO port dinhi sa Mambajao ug ang pagpa-ayo sa karsadang Guinsiliban-Mambajao.

Gusto nato karon nga mangita ug investor sa RORO ferry boat kan kinsa makahatag ug Development Bank of the Philippines ug concessional loan.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. And no one thought we could bring our budget deficit to almost zero, pre-pay our debts and raise employment, salamat sa mga Congressman sama kan Governor karon JayJay Romualdo.

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Investments are pouring in, the peso is strong, our stock market has reached historic heights and we have created 6 million jobs in six years. And the world is taking notice.

We take great pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. I am proud of the fact that we are pre-paying our external debt. We will balance the budget in 2008, two years ahead of schedule. We are making sure to use the gains to invest in vital social and economic needs.

Ang mosunod nga proyekto ang P10 million alang inyong cross-country road ug P10 million alang sa inyong palengke. Giabi-abi ko ang mga Camiguiningnon! Malipayong Lanzones Festival kaninyong tanan ug daghang salamat sa inyong kanunayg' suporta!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech at the 28th Lanzones Festival in Camiguin. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140213/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2219&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the CARAGA Conference for Peace And Development (CCPD)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the CARAGA Conference for Peace and Development (CCPD)

[Delivered at the Ballroom, Almont Inland Resort, Butuan City, Agusan Del Norte, October 17, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Gilbert Teodoro.

Our other Cabinet members; Bishop Pueblos, ang Moving Spirit sa Peace and Development diri sa CARAGA; may I also greet another very important Bishop who has done much for peace and development in CARAGA, the Vice-President of CBCP, Bishop Ochomao of Surigao; I'd like to, of course, greet our host, ang atong host Mayor, si Mayor Boy Plaza; ang atong host Congressman, si Congressman Joboy Aquino; ang atong host Governor sa Agusan Del Norte, Governor Amante.

Kauban sab nato mga laing-laing leaders diri sa CARAGA: Si Governor Valentina Plaza sa Agusan Del Sur, si Congressman Ompong Plaza gikan sa Agusan Del Sur sab, si Governor Ace Barbers gikan sa Surigao Del Norte; ang aton duha ka Congressman didto: Congressman Matugas ug Congressman Romarate; sa Sur Surigao, si Congressman Pichay, si Congressman Garay, ug si Governor Pimentel.

Ang aton mga Cabinet members diri aside from Secretary Teodoro who introduced me, ang atong peace process Secretary, si Secretary Jess Dureza ug ang inyong bag-o nga CORD (cabinet officer for regional development) sa CARAGA, si Secretary Ace Durano. Ngano nahimo inyong CORD si Ace Durano kay siyempre, number one: Preferably, gusto nato nga taga-diri siya. Si Ace ang iyang inahan, hedgeskies, sa Surigao Del Sur. So si Ace tunga nga Caragan, tunga nga Cebuano. Ug tungod kay... Labi na tungod kay gi-ingon ni Bishop Pueblos na gusto nato unta nga usa sa mga dako nga industriya diri ang eco-tourism, angay gyud si Ace kay siya ang atong Secretary of Tourism.

I would like to greet also our uniformed services. We have the Chief of the Police, General Razon; representing the chief of the Armed Forces who is in Africa right now visiting our Philippine troops there, so we have here vice Chief-of-Staff General Romero; and representing the National Security Council, Deputy Director General Victor Mayo.

Kaninyong tanan mga kaiguon, mga participants diri sa CARAGA Conference on Peace and Development, una sa tanan, daghang salamat sa mga resolution ug saad ninyo nga gasunod sa inyong tema, "Advancing Genuine Peace and Holistic Development for the Security of Local Communities."

Ug natan-aw nato sa liderato ni Bishop Pueblos nga ang labing epektibo sa pagtubag sa mga problema sa seguridad wala'y lain kundili ang kombinasyon sa lokal nga komunidad diri sa ubos sa liderato ni Bishop Pueblos ug kauban sa mga aktibidades ang mga pamunuan lokal.

Our regional peace and security assemblies enable stakeholders, sama kaninyong tanan, to discuss issues, share experiences, draw up plans and coordinate among yourselves. Earlier, anhi kami sa Agusan Del Sur and Secretary Dureza was recounting how important have been the inputs among the stakeholders including our Congressmen. In that case in Agusan Del Sur, he was talking about Congressman Ompong Plaza's inputs to the discussions yesterday. And we encourage the participants to learn from the best practices of other provinces and other regions.

Ang CARAGA usa sa labing malinawong rehiyon sa nasod, busa nihimo nato kining atong conference for peace and development aron mahibalo ug tibuok nasod kung unsay nahimo diri sa CARAGA busa naa ta kalinaw. And earlier, Bishop Pueblos gave an award to two important peacemakers, peacebuilders, one from the police and one from the military, and I congratulate them both. Apan dili kini katarungan aron maghinay-hinay kita sa pagbantay. Mahimo gihapon nga threats in neighboring areas can spill over. Eternal vigilance is the price of enduring freedom.

These communist rebels have spent years as a low-level threat. Low-level busa naa tsansa na maayo nato ang problema paagi sa mga peaceful ways kay low-level man ang threat. Apan members ka naa sila didto, they impede the progress and development of a number of rural areas, including the rural areas of CARAGA. And we cannot deny that they are responsible for a wide range of human rights abuses. So if we are to become a first world country, sama sa preamble sa inyohang resolution, we have to put a stop to that ideological nonsense and criminal acts once and for all. And we want that this will end by 2010.

Yes, we have to do some hard-power action. Busa the AFP, aided by the PNP, are going after hard-core combatants, but note the term hard-core. And here in CARAGA we see that if you talked about hard-core combatants their numbers continue to dwindle in the face of continuous setbacks. Dili lang gikan sa aton mga military actions kundili sab gikan tungod sa aton mga civic actions in reaching out to the poorest of the poor.

In the military portion of the fight, the maneuver battalions do the S.O.T., conduct patrols against the NPA, clear and consolidate NPA areas, then leave behind organized Cagfus as stay-behind forces and move on to clear other areas.

Angay sab naton pakusgan ang mga institusyon sa gobyerno aron makab-ot ug magpadayon ang kalinaw ug kausbawan. Kinahanglan naton siguraduhon nga molambo ang hustisya ug human rights pina-agi sa kusog nga criminal justice system.

Kauban sa pangita sa kalinaw ang amnestiya ug kinabuhi sa mga rebelde nga gusto mobalik sa bahin sa balaod. And I'm glad that part of your resolution is urging congress to affirm the amnesty proclamation that we have made. And I look forward to our Congressmen from CARAGA who are here to be the sponsors of the affirmation of this amnesty resolution.

To ensure priority development support for local peace initiatives, as Commander-in-Chief, I have ordered the office of the Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process headed by Jess Dureza and the Commanding General of the Armed forces' Philippine National Development Service Command, a newly created command. What are they doing? Their job is not to fight but rather to build. They build infrastructure, they build community projects and so on. I've asked them to submit to the Executive Secretary a list of areas scheduled for local peace initiatives such as what we are doing here in CARAGA and the priority programs and projects due to be sustained such as what Bishop Pueblos enumerated in the resolution. What should be the projects extended and/or launched in these places in tandem with the peace efforts. The Executive Secretary shall then disseminate the list to agency heads for priority funding and implementation, based on the OPAPP-AFP schedule of peace initiatives and subject to regular updating based on conditions and requirements of the ground.

Diri sa Mindanao dili lang ang npa ang atong... naa sa aton atubangan, naa sab ang milf. And we are close to an agreement with the MILF. We remain optimistic we can overcome the final barriers on ancestral domain so that we can bring finality to the peace. Tingali diri sa caraga tungod kay tunga sa populasyon diri mga lumad makasabot kamo kun unsa ang isyu sa ancestral domain. But even though we haven't come to that final peace agreement even now we have already achieved a great deal. Mindanao is vastly improved in terms of safety, security and economic growth. And I hope the world sees that. So the current agreements are making things better, but Mindanao will really take off if we achieve lasting peace and the millions of foreign aid promised comes pouring in because the world wants peace in Mindanao, and the world is ready to support peace in Mindanao moving towards irreversible development.

Duna pa ikatulo diri sa Mindanao ang Abu Sayyaf. The Abu Sayyaf stand in the way of bringing peace, stability and order to the Southern Philippines. We must wipe them out once and for all. They are a menace to peace and a beacon for international thugs who wish to join their ranks.

We commend our Armed Forces for their heroic efforts against the Abu Sayyaf. We deeply regret and mourn for the soldiers who have been caught in the line of fire. The Abu Sayyaf has been holding Mindanao hostage to their agenda of mayhem. They hold even areas like CARAGA even when they're not here because they give the whole Mindanao a bad name. The travel advisories for the prospective investors. And tourist do not say, do not go to this island, do not go that island, they say do not go to Mindanao. So they hold even other areas of Mindanao hostage. But we will not be deterred from our mission, which is to bring long-lasting peace to this island. The military offensive against the Abu Sayyaf will continue, not as an act of vengeance but as a strategy to win the peace.

But even in the areas where they are and especially here in CARAGA, the way to peace, as Bishop said, isn't mainly through the barrel of a gun. Rather it begins with providing a person a job, food on the table and human dignity. And central to that success is to invest in the people — in education, health care, roads, bridges and schools. We are making those investments — it's working. The positive impacts of these projects cannot be overstated, from health care to building schools, the outreach has built more than buildings — it has built trust.

We take great pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy so that we can invest on these things and our overall economic health. I am proud of the fact that we are pre-paying our external debt. We will balance the budget in 2008, two years ahead of schedule, so that we can save on the interests. And we make sure to use the gains to invest in vital social and economic needs. And we will not sacrifice long-term gains for short-term political expediency.

The gains of our economic growth are being reinvested in our people through increased infrastructure and social service programs.

Sama sa education: The Department of Education is making sure every grade school student has a textbook in Math, Science and English. And I have instructed them to maximize the use of distance learning in the NPA areas to make sure the content is not infiltrated. And I hope Gilbert that the National Service Command, the new command, development command will also produce soldier-teachers for this purpose.

Health care: DOH and PCSO work with the local governments to provide health insurance for indigent families and improve long-term care for our senior citizens. Nagikan mi karon sa Camiguin. Of course, Camiguin is a small province, apan sa Camiguin ang health insurance universal. One hundred percent sa mga katawhan naa health insurance. And one hundred percent sab walay insurgency didto sa Camiguin. So I instruct the DOH and the PCSO to continue to work with the local government units on health insurance. Also, I instruct them to send doctors and medical personnel to conduct free clinics in the S.O.T. Area and to upgrade primary local government hospitals to the secondary level by helping them acquire the equipment to deliver babies and do simple surgery. Kaganina nagikan mi sa agusan del sur dunay usa ka gamay nga hospital didto sa Esperanza started by Governor Eddie Bong Plaza and continued by Governor Tina Plaza. And what we said, we will contribute to them is equipment to help them deliver babies, do simple surgeries and apply anesthesia. The PITC was there also. Ang role sa PITC sa atong peace process should be to set up botikas selling half-priced medicines. Ug naa sab ang nutrition council. We had a meeting the other day with the union of local authorities together with the nutrition council of the Philippines. And one of our resolutions there was the nutrition council shall also work with the local governments on anti-hunger programs.

Labi na sa agusan del sur nga maoy diay labing dakong producer sa humay ug mais dinhi sa rehiyon, kinahanglan nga mowala na ang gutom didto. Kinahanglan mowala na ang gutom sa tibuok CARAGA, and that is what we want NNC to work with. Gisugo ko na ang gabinete nga i-focus dayon sa mga probinsyang labing daghan ang gutom.

Kalsada: Nakita nato ang inyong resolution that Bishop Pueblos read. Gi-prioritize nato ang Butuan-Davao road. Murag gwapo na karon. Ang masunod under construction ang Surigao-Davao road ug ang masunod ang Butuan-Tandag road. Aron si Bishop Ochomadi dili na kinahanglan magbiyahe ug eight hours para umabot dinhi sa butuan.

Mga taytay: Gi-inaugurate nato sa akon niaging pagbisita ang dako ug gwapo nga Diosdado Macapagal Bridge diri sa Butuan. Ug kaganina nahibalo ko sa Agusan Del Sur nga katong kalsada, katong Butuan-Davao road na hapit kitaan niadto ang kontrata tungod naa slippage but because of the... but you know, when we threaten to cancel it, they worked very fast and they even had savings so they were able to build a bridge on top of all of that.

Ang DPWH ug ang DOTC are improving our infrastructure to create an environment in which businesses feel confident to expand and employ more people, because more jobs means less poverty. And we hope that with the infrastructure sama sa usa ka airport, ang airport sa Siargao na i-improve nato maadto ang mga resource didto. When I last went to Siargao there was one five-star resort with 12 rooms. But now I heard there are two five-star resort already. Improving, ever improving. The business climate must improve in order for us to have investors but they need infrastructure. So airports alang sa mga turista ang usa nga importante nga imprastraktura.

Eskwela: The deded is building and repairing schools as needed to have a maximum grade school ratio of 50 students to one classroom for two shifts. Busa kon naa pa'y grade school classrooms nga labaw sa singkwenta'y estudyante sa duha ka shift sa usa ka classroom, pahibalo kanato aron motindog pa kita ug dagdag nga classroom.

Earlier today when I was in the plane with Secretary Dureza, he also reported to us that our peace intervention in 20 barangays in CARAGA with 8,963 household beneficiaries has a total project cost of more that 20 million pesos under our act for peace program managed by the Philippine government and the U.N. with direct support from the government of New Zealand. Ug kaganina sa inyohang resolution that Bishop Pueblos read nga unta ang ccpd mahimo full partner sa aton mga development initiatives. Jess Dureza said that is already done, CCPD is an official partner of development.

On livelihood: Sa akon mga kauban kaniadto sa DTI must help the people market your products at better prices and mobilize the private business sector. Nakita ko sa inyo nga different workshops naa business sector perspective siyempre kay ang private business sector stakeholders together with the LGUs, the religious, the academic sectors and civil society.

And of course, we must enhance civil-military relations. And that was what this new command is all about that has been created, the National Development Service Command, Support Command. Because we must wield a new paradigm of peace through the use of both hard and soft power.

We must continue to pursue the peace formula that bishop described of effective capability-building programs, dialogue, and for those who are hard-core, military might. We must meld together confidence-building measures grounded on economic and basic infrastructure development. Ang eksperyensya sa CARAGA maoy dakong pruweba na mao kini ang atong kinahanglan karon.

And so I want to thank you, I want to thank bishop pueblos, I want to thank the priests not only for singing the beautiful song about the impossible dream but also making true in CARAGA the impossible dream of peace. And with that peace unta maka-abot kita sa tibuok... Sa tinuod nga kauswagan alang sa atong rehiyon.

Daghan salamat sa maayong ehemplo nga gipakita ninyo. Gihatag namo kaninyo ang kusog nga suporta. Ipadayon ninyo kini.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech during the CARAGA Conference for Peace And Development (CCPD). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140204/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2224&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the 33rd Philippine Business Conference Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 33rd Philippine Business Conference

[Delivered at the Manila Hotel, October 26, 2007]

- I always feel gratified being with you. You are development-focused leaders who will take the Philippines to the verge of First World in two decades, when we will have dramatically reduced poverty, created a robust middle class and have all the hallmarks of a modern society in strong, stable institutions. And by 2010, together we will have launched the Philippines to be well on its way to achieving that vision. Already we have moved mountains with our macroeconomic condition through fiscal discipline, toward a balanced budget, pre-paying our debts and investing billions in human and physical infrastructure. And these fundamentals are paying off in huge increases in investment, 6 million new jobs and a strong peso and stock market.
- So I believe we will be remembered for making tough decisions on the economy, dramatically cutting poverty, making huge investments in infrastructure, instituting permanent change in the economy and improving the living conditions of our people.
- Poverty alleviation is our overarching goal. It is one that we will continue to focus on in the remainder of my term. Balancing the budget is just the first step. Over the next three years, we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people. We will increase investment in our country and our people to: 1) improve our infrastructure to create an environment in which businesses feel confident to expand and employ more people, because more jobs means less poverty, 2) improve social services such as health insurance subsidies for indigent families and food for school programs, 3) boost educational support in our efforts to reduce poverty by investing in better school buildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators, and 4) cutting red tape and continuing to eliminate corruption from the system.
- In short, we are investing in reforms for our economic, social and moral life. We want all sectors to do their bit to strengthen society's moral fiber even as we call on everyone not to be swayed by truths and partisan intrigues.
- And of course we will continue to fight against terrorism and work to bring peace and prosperity to Mindanao.
- The Human Security Act enhances the safety and domestic security of our country by giving us more legal power to prosecute those who commit any acts of terror on our people. But to strengthen it we are working with Congress on a bill to make the illegal possession of explosives nonbailable, with ample safeguards and penalties against planted evidence. Our message must be clear: if you are armed and kill civilians, you will be prosecuted. If you are a communist terrorist, religious terrorist or even a rogue element of our own police or military, we will stop you. We must be adequately empowered to crush the terrorist movement in the country and to transform our nation's response to political violence, ensuring that civil rights and social justice are available to all Filipinos, not just a privileged few.
- My faith in our military and police forces is firm and solid. I happen to believe that 99% of our military men and women are good, upstanding and loyal patriots, fighting to protect our country everyday.
- On peace and prosperity in Mindanao, the clergy of Mindanao, having the most experience in peacemaking on the ground, can best demonstrate that peace and progress are won not by intrigues but by hard work and sincere efforts.
- I thank the Catholic Bishops of Mindanao as well as the 12 bishops from the North for being the voice of reason in these times when several groups are trying to obfuscate controversial issues.
- No doubt my grant of executive clemency to former President Joseph Estrada will be debated, welcomed, criticized and given all sorts of meanings and motives.
- Part of my ten-point program is that hopefully by 2010, the divisive issues generated by EDSA 1, 2 and what some people call EDSA 3 will be just memories. Dapat wakasan na sa makatarungang paraan ang mga hidwaang bunsod ng EDSA Uno, Dos at iyong tinatawag ng iba na EDSA Tres.

- National unity and advancement, along with the rule of law, justice and accountability have guided our decisions and positions taken in the Estrada case until today. We braved a backlash from the masses when we enforced the Sandiganbayan arrest order in April 2001. We never wavered in respecting and following the edicts of the court in the past six and a half years, whatever the political cost.
- We thank the many moral and political leaders, as well as ordinary Filipinos, who enriched our decision with their perspectives, both for and against pardon.
- The Department of Justice highlighted both legal and humanitarian arguments, including the former President's age, the condition of his mother, his express willingness not to contest proceedings to recover the fruits of plunder, and not to seek public office in the future.
- For many years now this Administration has been pardoning inmates who have reached the age of 70. When that policy was announced at a forum of senior citizens many years ago, it was met with loud applause. Former President Estrada is now more than 70 years old. It is time to release him as well, and time for him to be at the bedside of his dying mother. Many of our leaders, public and private, agree.
- If I have showed concern for the personal circumstances of the former president, it is not a sign of diminished determination to see justice done.
- It is out of sensitivity to the feelings of the segments of our masa who continue to identify with his personal circumstances.
- President Nixon was pardoned before conviction. President Estrada has been in detention for six and a half years. The former Presidents of Korea were released after spending two years in detention. They were granted a special pardon by President Kim Dae-jung to help reconcile a country torn apart and enable it to focus on repairing the economy hit by the Asian financial crisis.
- Similarly, for the whole time that I have served as President, the issues surrounding former President Estrada's trial and detention constituted the single most significant cause of political noise and controversy in the national firmament. Although such noise and controversy have largely failed to derail the overall course of our administration, it has been a cause of distraction, recrimination and intrigue.
- This is a period of Constitutional healing. The wisdom of the law enables the President to exercise the power of pardon. The system of justice is working. I am using the law for what I see in my best lights as the good of the greater number.
- In the end, we had to make a decision that was bound to please and displease, impress and confound, unite and divide.
- But we must move on as a nation. The great majority of our people, including you captains of commerce and industry, are much, much more concerned about taking advantage of our economic progress than the backsliding of political protest. The great majority of our people are less interested in argumentation and more in reconciliation and what the pardon can contribute to the healing of divisions in our land.
- Let us now all pray, reflect and join hands to make the Estrada pardon a powerful force for righteousness, compassion, healing, national stability and advancement.
- The people deserve peace, order and political and economic stability. We have been through many upheavals. The people deserve a stable government and economic progress. That is what they are getting now.
- We are focused on the economy. Only a strong economy will lift our people out of poverty and expand our middle class.
- We already see signs of the current benign, stable growth conditions sparking a wave of entrepreneurial activity in the Philippines. We need a vibrant middle class if we are to reach the verge of first world in 20 years. In several key areas we have promoted a new entrepreneurial class. One is in microfinance, where the system has extended more than P80 billion in low and middle income men and women who want to start their own businesses. In addition, through our central banker, we have created a series of investment incentives and programs for foreign remittances to be invested into capital enterprises.
- It will take the private sector working together with government to create the jobs we need to build a strong middle class and a modern, first world nation.
- The high price of energy, while difficult in the near term, is actually an opportunity that we have seized in order to take our energy future into our own hands. We are resolved not to be reliant on imported oil. We aspire to be like Brazil, becoming more sufficient in bio fuels within a decade. This is the future of commerce. This is the future of our own self-reliance on alternative fuels like thermal, wind and solar.
- In the meantime, we have clamped down on price gouging. I instruct the DTI to tightly monitor supply and pricing of basic commodities. I ask PCCI to be a partner in this.

- PCCI is a true partner for development.
- Let us continue to move as one, think globally while taking pride in the Filipino.
- This partnership will not wane, it will continue to flourish through the years for it is built on the common desire to give every Filipino the decent life he deserves and claim our rightful place among the strong republics of the world.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech at the 33rd Philippine Business Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140146/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2213&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the First International Conference on Integrated Taxation (Highlights)

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines At the First International Conference on Integrated Taxation (Highlights)

[Delivered at the Negros Oriental Convention Center, October 29, 2007]

- Our economic strength is largely attributed to the various financial reforms, including strong revenue measures.
- The single biggest act that led to the surge in the economy was the passage of the Expanded Value Added Tax (EVAT) Law.
- Our complete focus on the economy, fiscal discipline, a balanced budget and the need for long overdue human and physical infrastructure improvements help round out economic gains.
- Our budget deficit so far is significantly lower than the ceiling. We are on track in achieving our target of balancing the budget by 2008, two years ahead of the target 2010.
- Our efforts are paying off— gleaned in the strong peso, low inflation, a robust stock market, more foreign investments and 6 million new jobs. Poverty is at its lowest rate; also unemployment rate is at its lowest.
- We have demonstrated that we have the ability to keep our budget under control; we have lowered our deficit and raised unprecedented amounts of revenue.
- Faced with challenges in revenue collections during the first half of the year, but we are on track by the second half as shown in the July-September revenue collection.
- Steps to address the revenue shortfall—appointment of new BIR Chief, more aggressive campaign against tax evaders and pursuance of corruption cases.
- We do not want to go back to unbridled deficit spending.
- Our commitment to economic reform has proven effective.
- There is no need for new taxes. We have plenty of room to increase revenues by enhancing tax administration.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). Highlights of President Macapagal-Arroyo's speech at the First International Conference on Integrated Taxation. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140139/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2205&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the International Conference on Integrated Taxation System (iTAX)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the International Conference on Integrated Taxation System (iTAX)

[Delivered at the Negros Oriental Convention Center, Dumaguete City, October 29, 2007]

Ipa-abot nato tanan ang pag-abi sa mga opisyal sa Oriental Negros!

Kining Integrated Taxation System usa ka dako nga kontribusyon sa atong padayon na paningkamot nga motaas ang atong koleksyon sa nasod ug sa probinsiya.

Our economic strength is largely attributed to the various financial reforms, including strong revenue measures.

The single biggest act that led to the surge in our economy was the passage of our value added tax, salamat sa atong mga congressmen sa niaging Congress, kauban si Dodong Macias ug Tio Miniong Teves. In one bold stroke it raised enormous amounts of new revenue. That act also sent an unmistakable signal that we are serious about moving the nation forward. That isn't all, though. Our complete focus on the economy, fiscal discipline, a balanced budget and the need for long overdue human and physical infrastructure improvements help round out our economic gains.

Our efforts are paying off in a strong peso, low inflation, a robust stock market, rapid inflows of foreign investment and over 6 million new jobs created in the last six years. Our unemployment rate is the lowest in a generation. So is our poverty rate.

We have confidence sa anak sa Oriental Negros, Secretary Gary Teves that we will be able to meet our targets this year. We are committed to our budget balancing milestone and we will meet it. Our budget deficit so far is significantly lower than the ceiling. We are on track to achieve our target.

We have demonstrated that we have the ability to keep our budget under control; we have lowered our deficit and raised unprecedented amounts of revenue. While we faced some challenges in generating revenues from the BIR and the BOC earlier this year, we took major steps to address the early revenue shortfalls. These steps included such things as the appointment of our new BIR Commissioner Lilian Hefti, and more aggressive pursuit of tax evasion and corruption cases that will yield additional revenues. We are committed to increasing tax revenues through a range of administrative and legal actions. These efforts are already paying off with July to September revenue collections exceeding our target for the period. We expect collections to get back on track in the second half of the year.

For the first time in a generation, our budget is under control; we are lowering our deficit and raising unprecedented amounts of revenue. We do not want to and will not go back to the days of unbridled deficit spending. Our commitment to economic reform has proven effective. We are both comfortable and confident that our discipline will allow us to continue on a balanced path of targeted investment and overall restraint. We moved the target to balance the budget from 2010 to 2008. We will do this while investing in infrastructure sama sa RORO system ug social services sa PhilHealth.

There is no need for new taxes. We have plenty of room to increase revenues by enhancing tax administration.

Atong pag-abi-abi gihapon sa gobyerno sa Oriental Negros ug ang iyang mga dakbayan ug lunsod, sa ilang liderato ni-ining proyekto.

Ang tinuod nga progreso nagikan sa mga probinisiya. Gamiton nato kining iTAX system aron modaghan ang benepisyo sa katawhan gikan sa mga reporma sa ekonomiya.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Speech at the International Conference on Integrated Taxation System (iTAX). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140131/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2208&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the Dinner Reception for Delegates to the Cities Alliance-Public Policy Forum

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines At the Dinner Reception for Delegates to the Cities Alliance-Public Policy Forum

[Delivered at the Malacañang's Rizal Hall, November 5, 2007]

This meeting comes at a time when the nation is moving and the people are more concerned about taking advantage of our economic progress, than the backsliding of political protest. People deserve peace, order and stability. We have been through many upheavals and the people deserve a stable government and economic progress. With the help of our officials here tonight, that is what they are getting now.

We like to think that even the opposition are committed to the public good and like us, that they want to find common ground to move the nation forward. We have made huge strides with our economy, including 27 quarters of growth, a surge in investments, 6 million new jobs, a strong peso and the best stock market in a generation. We are confident that politicians, especially the city officials who are here with us tonight and want to continue with the gains and not stop the progress.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. And no one thought we could bring our budget deficit down, prepay lower our debts and raise employment, but we have.

The national agenda is focused on creating good paying jobs, stable prices and bringing the benefits of a strong economy to every single Filipino. It is a pro-poor, pro-growth, pro-modernization agenda. We have moved the nation forward on the strength of our partnership with city mayors and other local government executives who form the backbone of our government.

The cities of the world are a force to reckon with in our respective countries' march to a better future.

Cities are also at the forefront of international diplomacy representing the hubs of excellence that reach out across the seas to other lands.

We are among the most rapidly urbanizing countries in East Asia. This is a double edged challenge. While rapid urbanization drives high economic growth, it can also aggravate poverty and social inequalities.

Rapid urbanization provides an opportunity to use economic of scale to fuel economic growth and thereby create the conditions for the provision of improved infrastructure, service delivery and jobs.

On the other hand, it creates the challenge of how to provide decent and secure housing, food and livelihood for the mounting numbers of poor families.

Our economic reforms are the frontline in our campaign to reduce poverty. Economic reforms have created the environment in which businesses feel confident to expand and employ more people. More jobs means less poverty. These reforms have also generated the additional revenues needed to invest in services that help poor people such as health insurance subsidies for indigent families and food for school programs. Education is also very important in our efforts to reduce poverty, which is why we are investing additional value added tax revenues in better school buildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators. It was encouraging to see the recent report released by the United Nations on our Millennium Development Goals, which recognized the progress the Philippines has made in reaching key targets on infant mortality, gender parity in education, reduction of the prevalence of tuberculosis and HIV, reducing poverty and improving urban sanitation.

In a world of rapid urbanization, cities play an indispensable role in laying the foundations of laws, ordinances and regulations; working with and coordinating stakeholders and sectors; and leveraging investments to provide jobs.

We have several local government units worth visiting who have demonstrated that a pro-active stance in improving the conditions of the urban poor can yield significant results.

The local governments and the national government, represented in the Philippines by the Housing and Urban Development Coordinating Council or HUDCC headed by our very devoted Vice President de Castro, team up to accelerate affordable and sustainable financing for local slum-upgrading programs, adopt an effective regulatory and institutional framework, and provide incentives for private sector and NGO participation.

We believe in the “Hernando de Soto” formula for property reform. We have carried out our socialized housing program, which has been commended by the United Nations, based on his principles. We aim to continue to harness the principles to expand his ideas whether it is through private market forces alone, or in combination with government initiatives. Either way, we must continue to liberate our poor to take possession of assets that they can use to gain a foothold and create genuine wealth for themselves.

Over the last six years, almost 200,000 families on more than 25,000 hectares have benefited from our more than 100 urban land reform proclamations where we proclaim a piece of land as available for security of tenure for those who are living there. The Vice President de Castro’s HUDCC and National Housing Authority have awarded certificates of lot allotment “de Soto” –style to more than 10,000 families in the first half of this year, bringing the total since the start of our administration six years ago to almost 30,000 families. During our administration, we have loaned out more than P4 billion for a community mortgage program whereby 85,000 family-beneficiaries 700 housing sites are able to buy the land from the owner of the land that they are squatting on. So, they are no longer squatters and the owner gets paid for the land that wouldn’t be used; otherwise it’s hard to eject thousands of people living on your land.

The idea of “cities without slums” is an ideal framework to address urbanization.

The success of the C% Development Strategies Program, funded by the Cities Alliances and implemented by the League of Cities strengthens our belief in the power of the global system to alleviate poverty and modernize nations. That does not mean we believe that countries like the Philippines are ready to compete head-to-head today in every sector, but it does mean that we need not be afraid of globalization.

I understand that the program has already been implemented in the majority of our cities, with measurable success, and that it is among the most successful in the world. Congratulations!

We hope that you will continue to work with us.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches [of] Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo at the National Nutrition Council Awarding Ceremony

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the National Nutrition Council Awarding Ceremony

[Delivered at the Manila Hotel, November 7, 2007]

Good morning everyone. Sabi ko kay Secretary Francisco Duque imbes na magkaroon tayo ng programa at mga diskurso gumawa na tayo talaga ng meeting ng National Nutrition Council tungkol sa ating hunger mitigation program.

Pero una sa lahat, binabati natin ang mga tumanggap ng gantimpalang crown, (applause) gayon din ang mga pinarangalan nating national outstanding barangay nutrition scholars.

Marapat lamang na purihin natin sila, purihin kayo—mga awardees ng ating taong bayan para sa masigasig at natatanging pagsisikap ninyo.

Tungo sa lubusang pagsugpo sa gutom at kahirapan. Maraming salamat sa inyo.

Patuloy tayong nakikibaka sa hamon ng kagutuman. Noong isang taon, inatasan natin ang NEDA (National Economic and Development Authority) na bumalangkas ng plano para sa layuning ito. Nakasentro ang plano sa murang pagkain, tulong sa nagugutom, patrabaho sa kalsada at kabukiran, gulayang pampamilya, microfinance, at dagdag sahod sa ilalim ng mga regional wage board.

Nakabase ang NEDA Hunger Mitigation Program Framework sa pagkikilala na nagkakaroon ng gutom. Can we have the framework now? Una, dahil kulang ang pagkaing abot-kaya, (yan from the left no?) Yung supply side. Kulang ng pagkaing abot-kaya. At pangalawa, yung sa right side yung demand side, walang pambili ng pagkain.

Sa gayon, dapat paramihin... (on the left side) ang murang pagkain– ito ang supply side strategy– (at sa right side naman) palaguin ang kita at hanapbuhay ng masa– ito ang demand side.

Mabalik tayo sa kaliwa, sa supply side, bahagi ng plano ng NEDA kung makikita niyo yung mga bahagi sa ibaba, una (yung pinaka kaliwa) palakasin ang produksiyon ng pagkain, tapos yung pangalawa doon, yung sinasabing enhance efficiency of logistics—pahusayin ang sistema ng paghatid ng pagkain.

Doon naman sa right side sa demand side, kailangan kung makikita niyo yung nasa gitna put more money in people's pockets number one, dagdagan ang kita ng tao, pangalawa, doon sa gitnang portion, ituro ang wastong pagkain or promote good nutrition at pangatlo ay palaganapin ang natural na pagplano ng pamilya, kasama ang ilang taong agwat sa pag-aanak or birth spacing.

Itong araw na ito imbes na nagkakaroon ng maraming diskurdiskursyong motherhood ibig nating itanghal ngayon ang mga programa upang palakasin ang yung left side... Produksiyon ng pagkain at pahusayin ang transportasyon ng makakain.

Yung first portion increase food production upang palakasin ang produksiyon ng pagkain, makikita ninyo doon, isinusulong natin ang mga programa sa manukan, babuyan at bakahan, pagsasaka, patubig, gulayan ng masa, at pagpapalago muli ng mga palaisdaan sa dagat. Pati na rin yung mga aquaculture.

Ito ang iniatas natin sa department of agriculture, kaya nandito si secretary art yap, ang department of natural resources at national irrigation authority. Kaya pakinggan natin ang kanilang ulat tungkol dito sa the first part yung increase food production.

(Report of Sec. Art yap)

Naalala niyo yung pangalawang bahagi doon ng supply yung paghatid, to enhance... Can we go back to the framework?

So yun there you are... So, I'm reading them now: and this is under the responsibility of the Department of Transportation, Philippine Ports Authority, that's letter b. Letter c is the farm to market roads under the responsibility of the DA, Public Works, pati DAR kaya narito si Secretary Nasser pangandaman and the Armed Forces of the Philippines dun sa mga malalayong lugar na may mga rebelde.

And then letter d is efficient local transport at hinihiling natin na ito ay under the responsibility of the local government units, the Leagues of Provinces of the Philippines, the Leagues of Cities of the Philippines, the League of Municipalities of the Philippines and the League of Barangays of The Philippines together with the Department of Interior and Local Governments and the Philippine National Police. And then letter e, ayun, ayun na.. Letter e. Is the food for school program under the responsibility of the Department of Education and the DSWD.

And then, and letter f. The creation of an NGO network to support feeding programs under the responsibility of the DSWD. Then letter g. The farmers option to buy back under the responsibility of the NFA.

Gusto ko lang malaman if we have some reports coming from the second portion halimbawa yung 'tindahan natin'. Do we have somebody who will report on the 'tindahan natin'?

Tapos nun, yung isa pang importanteng bahagi nitong programang ito, yung food-for-school program ng DepEd at saka DSWD. Meron ba tayong mag-rereport tungkol sa food-for-school program ? Yun pala si Secretary Jing Lapus ay narito. Just recently, elected as a member of the board of the UNESCO International (applause) okay, Jing.

(Sec. Jing Lapus)

(Audio cut) Mga ahensya tungkol sa mga programa dun sa supply side kasi napaka-importante na meron tayong dagdag na pagkain at mas magaling na paghatid para umabot sa mesa ng bawat pamilya. And these are the activities they're doing and to be able to improve ability to produce and deliver food more affordably to our households.

Last week, I talked to Secretary Nonoy Andaya and I instructed him to release one billion pesos to the agencies that shall continue to implement food production and delivery plans for the rest of this year.

Kaya inaasahan natin na sa pamamagitan ng DOH through the national nutrition council tuloy na susubaybayan kung saan pupunta itong one billion pesos for the rest of the year for production and distribution.

And we hope that our efforts including the efforts of our crown awardees and other LGU's who wish to emulate what they are doing and have been doing. And also with the support of our barangay nutrition scholars na napaka-importante ang papel sa nutrition education. We hope that this will yield dividends in terms of lasting food security.

So now, I will turn over the meeting to Secretary Pingkoy Duque who as supervising secretary for the national nutrition council oversees these programs, so he can have additional interaction between the participants of this meeting and those who are representing the national government agencies here.

Once again, congratulations! To our crown winners; (applause) our barangay nutrition scholars. (applause) kung lalong maraming magiging kagaya ninyo lalo nating masusugpo ang problema ng kagutuman.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech at the National Nutrition Council Awarding Ceremony. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140044/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2290&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 8th Annual Convention of the Philippine Society of Geriatric Medicine

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 8th Annual Convention of the Philippine Society of Geriatric Medicine

[Delivered at the Centennial Hall, Manila Hotel, November 8, 2007]

Thank you. Thank you very much Secretary Duque.

Our very young president of the Philippine Society Geriatric Medicine Dr. De la Vega, our convention chairman Dr. Alejandro, our friend from Okinawa Mr. Etokasu, executive director of the aim policy center Potch Macaranas, (applause) delegates to the annual convention of the Philippine Society of Geriatric Medicine.

And may I give special acknowledgement to the doctor who introduced me to the value geriatric care Dr. Emmanuel Gatchalian. (applause) he came into my mind when I got the invitation to be here with you today.

And I am glad, I'm glad to be here with you today. I see people from the Philippines. People from all over the world who have the passion to improve the quality of life of our elderly. This is so important for us Filipinos because Filipinos unlike the Japanese are a young population. And so, most of our resources are concentrated on how we can take better care of the majority of our population who are young. But I thank you for being here for being a reminder that that we must take care of the elderly even though their population is not as large as the population of our young people in the Philippines. (applause) and we officially recognized this.

In my state of the nation address last July, I expressed the conviction that we must invest in strengthening our social safety net including better access to healthcare, job training and care for our elderly. In that same state of the nation address I asked congress to pass legislation that brings improved long term care for our senior citizens. (applause) and today that we are here together, I ask you who love our elderly to help our administration draft the appropriate legislation. (applause)

It is said that the expanded senior citizens' act which is passed during our administration is one of the best in the world. But we want to make it even better.

Subject to your advice, the legislation I am thinking of is one that will increase the number of older persons who will go through a geriatric health screen, especially screening for geriatric syndromes such as urinary incontinence, memory and affective illnesses, height and weight determination, and hearing evaluation.

The legislation I am thinking of is one that will put more money in the hands of the older persons for medicine, for medical care and provide some form of pension for more of them. (applause) I'm glad that Potch is here and concerned about the elderly because even if he's not a doctor, he knows finance and he knows management. And that second part of the legislation that we need is not really healthcare itself but how to access health care. And maybe A.I.M. can help us work on that as well. (applause)

But aside from the lack of money which is a very big factor, it also seems that there's lack of knowledge about health issues in old age that prevents an elderly person from seeking a sustainable healthcare program. So I propose that the Philippine society of geriatric medicine with the help of our friends from all over the world join hands with the department of health in propagating knowledge about these issues. This convention is a very important way of doing that and let's take the momentum and continue to spread that awareness.

There's also an apparent lack of trained health professionals in the field of geriatrics and gerontology. There's inadequate research on key issues pertinent to old age.

Only four medical schools I understand, offers special geriatric content in their curriculum: the university of the Philippines, the University of Santo Tomas, St. Luke's – that's why Dr. Gatchalian was telling me all about it, St. Luke's medical school and Cebu doctor's university. In fact, upon the invitation of Dr. Gatchalian many years ago before i became president, I had the honor of being the one to inaugurate St. Luke's geriatric care center. (applause) and seeing what I saw there, I felt then I still feel now that we have to expand the field of participation.

Among state universities I am told that U.P. Manila is the lead agency for institutionalizing geriatric training. But as I said we have to expand the field. So this morning, I was talking to Secretary Duque and I think Dr. Duque that we should help U.P. Palo in Leyte, University of Northern Philippines and Mindanao State University to develop geriatric training. And I hope the society will help us to do that. (applause) tomorrow I will go to Leyte because we're going to have a conference on peace. In Leyte, they have been very successful in bringing down the insurgency but at the same time I have asked my... Those who were doing the advance work for me to include among the activities that I will be doing in Leyte a meeting with the head of U.P. Palo so that we can discuss how to develop geriatric training in U.P. Palo. And I will be bringing with me a check of one million pesos so can they do the start up of developing their curriculum. (applause)

Meanwhile as we develop this relatively stronger state universities as we help them to develop geriatric training, we ask your society and we ask our friends from around the world attending this global conference to join the DOH, in training national and regional program coordinators to cascade your knowledge to the frontline health providers among our local government units because the department of health is devolved the provincial health officer, the municipal health officer, the rural health worker – they are all reporting to their local government executives rather than to the Department of Health. Let's all work with them, cascade whatever we all know collectively so that they can help to increase life expectancy.

Earlier, I was listening to what Dr. De la Vega was talking about. And I had read about Okinawa earlier. How I wish that someday, first of all, we have to become first world like Japan but we are trying on the verge of first world in 20 years. And of course, other first world countries are not as good as Okinawa but maybe indeed someday and it's good to have a dream. I wish that someday we could be like the prefecture of Okinawa which has the most number of centenarians in the world. And the biggest percentage of centenarians in the world as well.

And I am told that in Okinawa even at a hundred or so years, they still go out to tend vegetable farms, walk to the market, and in the evenings go out for folk dances. I have seen a few of such examples in the Philippines. Some very outstanding 90-year olds who are still very active. I've seen some of them still sing in the programs of women's groups or the older person's groups. But there are very, very small percentage but the fact is this women that I've seen 93 years old, 95 years old still active, our women who have been able to have at least a comfortable middle class life. So if they are able to do that and if the institutions around us will be able to do that even for the poor then we will see more of them even if we don't necessarily reach the proportions in numbers of Okinawa.

We would like to see a significant number of our own population in this situation where at a very ripe old age of 90 at least still go to the market, still walk and still go to folk dances.

Indeed, a great deal needs to be accomplished. First of all we need to go as I said, to the verge of first world and we hope to do that in 20 years. But we need not wait 20 years before we improve our old age health care. We can begin today. The Philippines remains committed to doing this, to vigorously pursue active measures that I have mentioned earlier to create a "society for all ages".

Many of us want to live a ripe old age. So, let's all join hands to bring about the day when everyone who grows old will have a kind of care that will allow them to age gracefully and productively.

Thank you for reminding us to care for the elderly.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech during the 8th Annual Convention of the Philippine Society of Geriatric Medicine. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140037/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2288&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the 3rd Regional Peace and Security Assembly (Leyte-Samar), Tacloban City

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 3rd Regional Peace and Security Assembly (Leyte-Samar), Tacloban City

[Delivered in Tacloban, Leyte, November 9, 2007]

We hold this assembly in the midst of our continuing gains in keeping terror at bay, drastically reducing insurgency and advancing the cause of peace. In all security fronts, Region 8 has been at the vanguard. Congratulations!

The regional crime rate continues to drop. The AFP has dismantled several guerilla fronts of the Eastern Samar Regional Party Committee. Insurgents have been taken into account, including ranking operatives; and barangays have been removed from rebel control.

We are near declaring the provinces of Leyte and Southern Leyte as insurgent-free.

For over three decades, this region was the cradle of the communist movement that spread throughout the country, but not any more.

Through the end of my term, we aim to provide increased political stability, continued economic growth and sustainable peace and order. We will not let the nation slip into election year instability. We want this to be an era of peace, reassurance and hope.

The people can be assured that we lead with a steady hand to guide the nation to a new election and new leadership. We will not falter in keeping our hand on the tiller of the ship of state.

Our goal is to leave this nation stronger and more stable. To provide even more jobs and build more and better schools. And to lift up the poor through investments in infrastructure, healthcare, better housing and improved social justice.

Eradicating poverty is the central mission of this government and our society. As we enter the holiday season, it is essential that every person of means help those in need. The government is going to do everything in its power to be a catalyst for this process.

Rice is not only a staple for our people, it is symbolic of our ability to deliver on our promise to feed those less fortunate. We are committed to ensuring that the needy throughout our nation have access to affordable rice during this important holiday season.

We can't say that we have moved forward as a nation if we don't lift up the poor and hungry amongst us. Let us be a society measured by our ability to live by our faith.

Our long term vision is for the Philippines to reach the verge of first world in 20 years. To do so, we will need a robust middle class, world class infrastructure and strong institutions of government.

The Naval and Maripipi RORO ports in Biliran have been completed. Eight airports in the region are undergoing improvements, including Tacloban, Ormoc and Calbayog.

Yet in the near term, we must address the very real issues of hunger and poverty that affects us here and now.

Those living in poverty have declined.

From the 1970s through the latter part of the 1990s Region 8's provinces ranked among the poorest in the country. Only in this decade, in this administration, was a breakthrough achieved for the region's sustainable development. Your regional employment rate this year has reached 95.3%, higher than the national average. None of your provinces belong to the ten hungriest or 10 poorest provinces.

But we must accelerate the trend to eliminate poverty more aggressively. That is why, during the holiday season and beyond, we will do everything in our power to bring rice to those who need it most and work hard to protect the poor from high prices.

For the easy transport of agricultural products, farm to market roads have either been built or are being completed. Some LGUs like Ormoc City have added to the national government's assistance for agriculture and achieved a surplus in rice production. Congratulations!

I am instructing the National Food Authority to set up 100 Tindahan Natin outlets in Region 8 before Christmas.

The people want results, not rhetoric, action not political posturing. Let us get on with the people's work.

The people of the Philippines are tired of negative political rhetoric.

I thank our Congressmen here for demonstrating that when it sets aside self-interest it can produce legislation that improves the quality of life of all Filipinos. The most notable recent example is the bill that reduces the cost of life-giving medicines.

But much more needs to be done to improve human rights, secure budgets for healthcare and education, invest more in peace and order and advance our national interests with other nations on trade, economy and security issues.

Thank you all for what you have done for peace and progress in Region 8. United, we will do even more.

Maupay nga kulop and mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). 3rd Regional Peace and Security Assembly (Leyte-Samar), Tacloban City. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140014/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2287&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the 42nd Anniversary of Eastern Samar and Provincial Anti-Poverty Summit

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 42nd Anniversary of Eastern Samar and Provincial Anti-Poverty Summit

[Delivered in Borongan City, Eastern Samar, November 9, 2007]

On the 42nd anniversary of Eastern Samar, we have many things to congratulate you for.

First, your dramatic reduction in poverty. It's faster than the national average. It's the highest decrease in Region 8.

Congratulations, Gov. Evardone, and congratulations, Cong. Coquilla on your election and forthcoming achievements.

Eradicating poverty is the central mission of this government and our society. As we enter the holiday season, it is essential that every person of means helps those in need. The government is doing everything in its power to be a catalyst for this process. Rice is not only a staple for our people, it is symbolic of our ability to deliver on our promise to feed those less fortunate. We are committed to ensuring that the needy throughout our nation have access to affordable rice during this important holiday season.

Congratulations on the 125 Tindahan Natin outlets in 21 towns to sell affordable rice. Eight of them are in Borongan.

Last night, I instructed Sec. Arthur Yap to set up 50 more Tindahan Natin outlets before Christmas. Gov. Evardone and Cong. Coquilla will choose the locations.

We can't say that we have moved forward as a nation if we don't lift up the poor and hungry amongst us. Let us be a society measured by our ability to live by our faith.

Our long term vision is for the Philippines to reach the verge of first world in 20 years. To do so, we will need a robust middle class, world class infrastructure and strong institutions of government.

We are cementing the WWII-era Guiuan airport's runway and apron. Earlier today, I inspected the Jipapad-Lapinig Road being constructed by the AFP Engineering Brigade out of the President's Social Fund. We have also improving the Artech-Lapinig.

Yet in the near term, we must address the very real issues of hunger and poverty that affect us here and now.

Ayon sa survey na lumabas noong Lunes, those living in poverty have declined. But we must accelerate the trend to eliminate poverty more aggressively. That is why, during the holiday and beyond, we will do everything in our power to bring rice to those who need it most and work hard to protect the poor from high prices.

Congratulations also for focusing on the development of your most precious resource – our people. Your lowest town literacy rate is still an admirable 91.95%. Five of your high schools were in the top 20 of the most recent National Achievement Test—with Bobon High School and Hilaboan High School placing 1st and 2nd. Congratulations to them.

Education is a core value of Philippine society and family life. The hard working men and women of this nation put their family first. The best gift a family can give to a child, and any nation can give to its people, is access to a good education.

Education is the foundation of economic prosperity and individual liberty, justice and self worth. That is why we will continue to invest in new school construction at the elementary school level.

Congratulations to Eastern Samar for enjoying the ideal student to classroom ratio of 30 to 1. We are constructing nine more school buildings. Four of them here in Borongan.

We will continue to bolster our college scholarship program for those high school students ready for higher education.

Teachers are the backbone of our educational system. Without these selfless men and women, our children would fall short of their dreams and aspirations. We are deeply indebted to the hard work and dedication of all of our teachers. Their work is noble and patriotic. They deserve the praise and respect of every Filipino.

Congratulations to Borongan City for defeating insurgency. Congratulations to the AFP for dismantling several guerilla fronts of the Eastern Samar Regional Party Committee.

Through the end of my term, we aim to provide increased political stability, continued economic growth and sustainable peace and order. We will not let the nation slip into election year instability. We want this to be an era of peace, reassurance and hope.

The people can be assured that we lead with a steady hand to guide the nation to a new election and new leadership. We will not falter in keeping our hand on the tiller of the ship of state.

Our goal is to leave this nation stronger and more stable. To provide even more jobs and build more and better schools. And to lift up the poor through investments in infrastructure, healthcare, better housing and improved social justice.

Madamo nga salamat ha iyo suporta and congratulations!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). 42nd Anniversary of Eastern Samar and Provincial Anti-Poverty Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140020/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2286&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo at the launching and induction of officers of the Philippine Chinese Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Inc.

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the launching and induction of officers of the Philippine Chinese Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Inc.

[Delivered at One Rizal Park, Manila Hotel, Manila, November 10, 2007]

Today's launching of the Philippine Chinese Chamber of Commerce and Industry paves the way for a new generation of Filipino-Chinese businessmen.

Congratulations to your newly-inducted Board of Directors, headed by Chairman Emeritus, Francis Chua; Chairman of the Board, John C. Co; and President, Anson Tan.

Through your leadership, we look forward to the PCCCI working hand in hand with the government to create more jobs and broader business opportunities.

I commend your deep concern to further our country's economic growth and progress in spite of the seemingly relentless political noise and partisan intrigues going on around us.

I know you want results, not rhetoric, action not political posturing. I ask you to tell the politicians that you support in the elections to get on with the people's work.

I know you are tired of negative political rhetoric that does nothing to bring about the legislation that will create a new future for our nation.

I ask you to call on the legislators you support in the elections to stop partisan wrangling and start legislating. Congress has demonstrated that when it sets aside self-interest it can produce legislation that improves the quality of life of all Filipinos. The most notable recent example is the bill that reduces the cost of life-giving medicines.

But much more needs to be done to improve human rights, secure budgets for healthcare and education, invest more in peace and order and advance our national interests with other nations on trade, economy and security issues.

The Filipino-Chinese community has been instrumental in realizing our gains in the fight against poverty and for peace and security.

Eradicating poverty is the central mission of this government and our society. As we enter the holiday season, it is essential that every person of means helps those in need. The government is doing everything in its power to be a catalyst for this process.

Rice is not only a staple for our people, it is symbolic of our ability to deliver on our promise to feed those less fortunate. We are committed to ensuring that the needy throughout our nation have access to affordable rice during this important holiday season. I ask you to help me in this project.

We can't say that we have moved forward as a nation if we don't lift up the poor and hungry amongst us. Let us be a society measured by our ability to live by our faith.

The strength of your partnership with the government will help take us to our long term vision is for the Philippines to reach the verge of first world in 20 years. To do so, we will need a robust middle class, world class infrastructure and strong institutions of government. Yet in the near term, we must address the very real issues of hunger and poverty that affect us here and now.

According to an independent survey that came out last Monday, those living in poverty have declined. But we must accelerate the trend to eliminate poverty more aggressively. That is why, during the holiday and beyond, we will do everything in our power to bring rice to those who need it most and work hard to protect the poor from high prices. I ask for your help in this hard work.

This week I ordered the release of P1 billion to boost the government's food production and distribution program to mitigate hunger for the rest of the year.

Part of the food distribution program is to create an NGO network to support feeding programs under the responsibility of the DSWD. I ask you to be part of that NGO network.

Education is a core value of Philippine society and family life. The hard working men and women of this nation put their family first. The best gift a family can give to a child, and any nation can give to its people, is access to a good education.

Education is the foundation of economic prosperity and individual liberty, justice and self worth. That is why we will continue to invest in new school construction at the elementary school level. We will continue to bolster our college scholarship program for those high school students ready for higher education. I ask you help me in this scholarship program.

Teachers are the backbone of our educational system. Without these selfless men and women, our children would fall short of their dreams and aspirations. We are deeply indebted to the hard work and dedication of all of our teachers. Their work is noble and patriotic. They deserve the praise and respect of every Filipino. I ask your help to make them feel such praise and respect.

Through the end of my term, I aim to provide increased political stability, continued economic growth and sustainable peace and order. With your help we will not let the nation slip into election year instability. We want this to be an era of peace, reassurance and hope.

Be assured that I lead with a steady hand to guide the nation to a new election and new leadership. We will not falter in keeping our hand on the ship of state. With your support we will also continue strong, focused leadership in the international arena to advance the interests of our nation and our people, including our relationship with China.

Our special relationship with China is marked by a glorious history of trade that has grown to make China and Hong Kong together our largest export market today. More opportunities lie ahead, which your leaders can help us develop.

Like the fabled maritime trade routes between the Philippines and China, the greater cooperation in trade and investment facilitated by the prime movers of Filipino-Chinese business can lead to an economic boom for us.

My goal is to leave this nation stronger and more stable. To provide even more jobs and build more and better schools. And to lift up the poor through investments in infrastructure, healthcare, better housing and improved social justice.

Unity is a real aspiration that manifests itself through progress.

People want to know are we strong, are we stable, are we growing as a nation. Is everyone benefiting equally, is there social justice in the land, do people feel good about themselves and the society in which they live.

Unity of purpose is driven by a common desire to know where we are going as a nation, that are leaders are strong, hard-working and committed to the best interests of the people.

Unity is about action, not discussion. It is about working together not just talking together.

Within unity there is and must be room for dissent, even conflict as part of the process of moving the nation forward. At the end of the day, unity is measured by collective hope, commitment and confidence.

I look forward to PCCCI being a true partner for development in the years ahead. United, we shall make a progressive, modernizing Philippines a reality.

Thank you and mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). Launching and Induction of Officers of the Philippine Chinese Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Inc. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140005/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2285&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 13th Academic Meeting and Annual Convention of the Philippine Academy of Medical Specialists (PAMS)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 13th Academic Meeting and Annual Convention of the Philippine Academy of Medical Specialists
(PAMS)

[Delivered at the Isla Ballroom, EDSA Shangri-la Hotel, Mandaluyong City, November 12, 2007]

Thank you so much Dr. Rene Catan and congratulations to you!

To Dr. Daisy Camitan, to PAMS Treasurer Dr. Elmer Punzalan and Dr. Gerry Genuino, and all your officers and members for being at the vanguard of a healthy and energetic society at the forefront of a strong economy. Maraming salamat sa inyo.

Noong una inimbata ako, akala ko ang PAMS, Philippine Association of Medical Specialists. Pero marami akong nalaman sa unang mga minuto ng ating pagpupulong ngayon, Academy of Medical Specialists, and that makes you very special indeed. (applause)

But before we talked about your uniqueness, let me first thank you for the medical missions and self-help programs of your academy. Notably those that support our goals to cut the cost of medicine and of bringing specialized training to the provinces. (applause)

Kanina nung pinag-uusapan namin na academy pala and “A” doon sa PAMS, pinapaliwag sa akin ni Dr. Catan na itong grupo ninyo ay nagbunga noong nagkaroon ng debolusyon. At yung mga doktor na nalipat mula sa national payroll, napunta sa mga payroll ng mga local governments, eh mas maliit kasi ang... dahil sa linipat ang mga district hospitals, naging mabigat para sa local governments ang iba’t-ibang mga gastos para sa mga local health services, lalo na ‘yung specialization. Doon pumasok yung inyong academy. Tumulong para sa tuloy-tuloy na specialization ng mga devolved medical personnel.

Napaka-marangal na layunin. (applause) At sa ibabaw noon, dahil kayo ay tumutulong sa mga pamayanang lokal, doon nagbunga rin yung inyong mga medical and surgical missions.

And that is why, I would also like to... That’s why I have authorized PAGCOR, ng kakapasok ni President Butch Francisco ditto. Dalawa ang aking i-aatas sa iyo, Butch. (applause) Makinig ka hanggang sa dulo ng diskurso ko kasi doon ko ibibigay ang pangalawa. Pero una, I have authorized PAGCOR to release 100 million pesos to set up mobile clinics. (applause) This is in support of the outreach programs of your organization. (applause)

Pasalamat natin si Dr. Catan sa PAMS goal for medical advancement. (applause)

At pasalamat natin si Dr. Genuino na nag-follow up noong proposal doon sa PAGCOR. (applause) Pati na rin for initiating the “Heal the Nation Now” project. (applause) As I understand it, the “Heal the Nation Now” project aims for physical, spiritual and political healing.

‘Yung political healing. Unity is a real aspiration that manifests itself through progress. People want to know: Are we strong? Are we stable? Are we growing as a nation? Is everyone benefiting equally? Is there social justice in the land? Do people feel good about themselves and the society in which they live?

Unity of purpose is driven by a common desire to know where we are going as a nation. To know that our leaders are strong, honest, hardworking and committed to the best interest of the people.

Unity is about action not discussion. It is about working together, not just talking together. Within unity, there can be and must be room for dissent, even conflict as part of the process of moving the nation forward. At the end of the day, unity is measured by collective hope, commitment and confidence. At yun ang inaasahan natin sa “Heal the Nation Now” movement. (applause)

‘Yung spiritual healing. A leader must be driven by a strong vision for the nation and the determination to deliver a better life. I, as your leader, I’m driven by my faith in God and my faith in the people of this nation.

I get up everyday and fight in behalf of the average hardworking Filipino. We all share the same values of family, hardwork and faith. The people deserve an honest, hardworking government just as they are honest and hardworking. And so with your help, with the help of the “Heal the Nation Now” movement, we aim to renew our efforts to stamp-out corruption and set a new standard of governance for our nation.

Maraming salamat sa inyong kontribusyon. (applause)

Hindi pa ako tapos. (laughter)

And ‘yung physical healing, dahil naglilingkod kayo sa maraming mahihirap. The prescription of generic or cheaper drugs by your members has healed the sick and tempered the prevailing attitude that only expensive medicines can work. Yung inyong panawagan, nanawagan kayo sa mga legislators.

Congress has demonstrated that when it sets aside self-interest it can produce legislation that improves the quality of life of all Filipinos. The most notable recent example is the bill that reduces the cost of life-giving medicines.

But much more needs to be done to improve human rights, to secure budgets for health care and education, to invest more in peace and order and to advance our national interests with other nations on trade, economy and security issues. And since you have made your call on legislators, indeed, continue to help me call on the legislators to stop political wrangling and concentrate on legislating. (applause)

Kasama pa rin sa physical healing, thank you for offering specialization courses leading to diplomates and fellowships in the provinces. (applause)

Education is a core value of Philippine society and family life. The hardworking men and women of this nation, including you, put their family first. And the best gift any family can give a child, and any nation can give its people, is access to a good education.

Education is the foundation of economic prosperity and individual liberty, social justice and self worth. That is why we continue to invest in new school construction at the elementary school level, and to bolster our college scholarship program for those high school students ready for higher education.

At doon naman sa nagtapos na ng college, gaya ng medicine at nagtapos na ng kanilang board exams at ngayon ay nagpa-practice sa mga local governments, maganda yung inyong ginagawa. At sana makatulong sa inyo yung programa rin ng pamahalaan na ‘yung mga primary hospitals ay ginagawa nating secondary hospitals. At yung mga secondary hospitals kung saan marami ang mga populasyon pero kulang ang tertiary hospitals ay ginagawa nating tertiary hospitals. Hindi lang, ito ay makakapagbigay ng magandang paglilingkod sa taumbayan kundi doon din pwedeng magkaroon ng mga hours yung mga gusto niyong bigyan ng mga fellowships at diplomates. (applause)

Magbibigay ako ng isang halimbawa. Noong ako ay nandoon sa Eastern Samar itong weekend nagkaroon ng diarrhea outbreak doon sa Gamay, sa eastern part doon sa Pacific side ng Northern Samar. At yung hospital ng Gamay kung saan sila dinala 25 beds ang capacity pero 600 ang total number of patients. Mula sa Tacloban, nagpabili ako sa PCSO ng mga dextrose at ibang gamot. At dahil meron akong military and police helicopters na kasama at 5:30 in the morning, kasi binili yung... Nakuha yung balita ng hapon ng Biyernes, binili yung gamot nung gabi ng Biyernes. Sabado ng 5:30 am, yung helicopter kasama ng mga doktor... At iyung mga gamot kasama ng mga doktor ng military at yung nakuhang doktor na nandoon ay lumipad sa Gamay. And thank goodness, yesterday, tumawag ako sa gobernador ng Northern Samar, ay marami nang na-discharge dahil sa dumating na mga dextrose at iba pang gamot at mga doktor na tumulong.

Pero ang leksiyon dito ay yung gamay kawawa naman. Eh hindi naman makakapunta yung mga pasyenteng may diarrhea sa Catarman dahil maraming lugar doon walang kalsada. Nagtatayo nga tayo ng mga kalsada ngayon doon sa Pacific side. Kaya mas mabuti na kaysa aayusin pa natin at gagawing tertiary hospital doon sa malayong lugar, sabi ko kay Secretary Duque, gastusan na lang natin yung hospital ng Gamay at gawin nating secondary hospital. (applause)

At sana doon sa secondary hospital kahit na meron isa lang na espesyalistang surgeon, meron isang espesyalistang anesthesiologist, meron isang espesyalistang gynecologist dahil iyon ang mga pangangailangan for secondary. Magiging pagkakataon din na yung mga doktor sa banda roon ay makapag-diplomate or fellowship training na rin sa ilalim ng PAMS. (applause)

Eradicating poverty is the central mission of this government and our society. Yun ngang lugar na yun, Northern Samar, wala na siya doon sa top 10 poorest provinces pero kasama sa top 20. Kaya kailangan ang mga kalsada, upgrading ng hospital na malayo and so on. But today, back here in Manila, nakikita ko nagtatayo na tayo ng mga Christmas decorations sa mga kalsada. As we enter the holiday season, it's essential that every person of means help those in need. The government is doing everything in its power to be a catalyst for this process.

We can't say that we have moved forward as a nation if we don't lift up the poor and hungry among us. Kaya dito darating ang aking pangalawang utos sa PAGCOR, Butch. Ewan ko kung alam ni Efraim ito. Hindi pa niya yata alam, kaya ikaw na ang bahala to make sure it happens. Aside from the P100 million for mobile clinics, I am instructing PAGCOR to contribute 100 million pesos to help ensure that the needy throughout our nation will have access to affordable rice during this holiday season. (applause)

Sama-sama tayong magtulongan. Let's be united and heal the nation politically, spiritually and physically.

Working all together, we will be able to heal the nation.

Mabuhay ang Academy of Medical Specialists!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the 13th Academic Meeting and Annual Convention of the Philippine Academy Of Medical Specialists (PAMS). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135954/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2284&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the presentation of the awardees of the Microentrepreneurs of the Year Awards

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the presentation of the awardees of the Microentrepreneurs of the Year Awards

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, November 14, 2007]

Maraming salamat Secretary Cerge Remonde. (laughter)

Una sa lahat, binabati ko si Joey Concepcion ang ating consultant sa entrepreneurship dahil yung trabahong kailangan natin sa pagplano at programa ng mga entrepreneurship, yung advocacy ang isang malaking bahagi at wala ng kailangang dagdag na gawin pa si Cerge Remonde dahil ginagawa na ni Joey Concepcion. Congratulations! (applause)

I'd also like to greet the Countryhead of Citigroup Sanjeev Bora because Citibank is one of the banks that lend to the microfinance institutions who in turn lend money to our micro-entrepreneurs.

I understand from Sanjeev that one of his... One of the conduits is based in San Pablo, one of the dozens or so very successful microfinance institutions.

I'd like to greet the Chairman of the People Credit and Finance Corporation si Egay Generoso. (applause) Ito ay yung korporasyon na nalikha doon sa Anti-poverty Law na ang inyong lingkod ang principal author sa senado at talagang trabaho ng PCFC ay ipalago ang micro-finance na dinadaan din sa mga micro-finance institutions. At kaya babatiin din natin si Nestro Custodio, ang General Manager ng Rural Bank of Bulacan dahil siya nga yung isang pinagdadaanan ng salapi ng PCFC at ito ang umaabot sa ating mga nagtanggap ng tseke kanina.

Ganundin din yun National Livelihood Support Fund. Itong National Livelihood Support Fund ay ito naman yung dating KKK– kilusan... Ano ba yun? Basta yung tungkol sa... Kabuhayan at kaunlaran. At ginawa nating National Livelihood Support Fund so ito ay matagal na institusyon na at ganun din... Noong araw wala pang micro-finance talaga pero ngayon at nagkaroon ng micro-finance dahil meron naman silang puhunan pa ay dinadaan din ang kanilang salapi sa mga conduit micro-finance kagaya noong Rural Bank of Bulacan.

Pero ngayon pinagsasama-sama na natin Egay, ano? Yung NLSF at saka yung PCFC. Matagal na nagka-problema kasi yung isa ay corporate pati ang sweldo corporate, yung isa naman ay bureau at pati sweldo ay bureau. So, you can imagine sino yung mas mataas ang sweldo sa dalawa. Meron silang problemang ganun. Pero inaayos natin yun. In other words, hindi bababa ang sweldo ng kahit na sino dito sa ating pagka-kombina nung dalawang 'yun.

At gusto ko ring batiin yung iba't-ibang mga nanalo. Congratulations sa ating mga micro-entrepreneur of the year awards. Kayo ay inspirasyon sa napaka-maraming pilipinong gusto ngang maging negosyante.

At kinukwento ni Joey sa akin yung ilang mga kasaysayan ninyo na lumabas doon sa video kahapon doon sa Central Bank.

Our awardees bravely wrestled all kinds of trials and challenges to get to where they are now. Meron yung mga nabubuwag ang pamilya. Meron yung mga halos mamamatay ang anak at wala ng panggagalingang panggastos.

Nagdasal sa panginoon at lumago ang negosyo. And we can still produce more entrepreneurs of their caliber – innovative and daring.

Congratulations din kila Joey Concepcion, Citigroup, PCFC, yung NLSF, yung ating mga micro-finance institutions kagaya ng Rural Bank of Bulacan, yung Micro-SMED Council of the Philippines headed by Cerge Remonde, because of your glowing example of civic leadership. At salamat din sa Central Bank kung saan ginanap yung programa ninyo kahapon. Ay ako dun na sana ako dadalo kaya lang Tuesday ay Cabinet Day. Pero ako naman ay nasiyahan nung sinabi ni Joey kahit na hindi ako makapunta kahapon pupwedeng pumunta kayo ngayon. Eh sabi ko tamang-tama dahil gusto natin talagang i-highlight yung importansya ng micro-finance sa ating ekonomiya.

Kaya kino-congratulate din natin yung mga nagtanggap ng mga tseke mula sa Rural Bank of Bulacan kung saan ay puhunan ay dumaan sa Rural Bank at nanggaling sa PCFC at saka NLSF at yung halos lahat kayo ay second or third borrowing na ito kaya maayos na ang inyong mga unang puhunan na napaka-liit noong araw, pinalaki nang pinalaki ninyo, eh ilan sa inyo ay malapit ng maging small enterprise kung hindi pa ngayon from micro-enterprise.

The current benign, stable growth conditions are likely to spark a wave of entrepreneurial activity in the Philippines. And itong mga nanditong pumunta sa entablado, ito ay mga senyas na ito nga ay nangyayari na.

Kailangan natin ang napaka-masigasig na middle class kung aabot tayo sa pinto ng first world sa loob ng dalawampung taon na ito ang ating aspirasyon. At itong sistemang itinayo na una sa lahat ay lumaganap sa sarili pero pinalakas ng Anti-poverty Law ay sa ilang mga lugar, in many key areas we have promoted a new entrepreneurial class. At isa na nga dito ay yung micro-finance.

Itong micro-finance, itong PCFC ay nagsimula noong 2001. Although meron ng ilang mga micro-finance noon pa, yung PCFC ay nagsimula noong 2001. Yung ating programang dedicated ng pamahalaan na micro-finance ay nagsimula noong 2001. At mula noon, itong sistemang ito kasama ang PCFC, NLSF, Citigroup, yung mga micro-finance institutions gaya ng Negros women for tomorrow, yung Rural Bank of Bulacan, yung card at yung iba pang mga kagaya ng sinasabi ko isang dosenang mga napaka-successful na MFI, itong buong sistema ay nakapaghiram na ng higit sa 80 billion pesos sa nakaraang anim na taon sa mga low at middle income na lalaki at babae na gustong magsimula ng kanilang mga negosyo.

Banggit ko lalaki at babae, kasi itong micro-finance nagsimula doon sa Bangladesh, si Dr. Yunus, nagsimula ito ang kanyang talagang tanging beneficiary ay yung incomeless assetless rural women. Pero siyempre, we adjust the system to our own system. At sabi nga ni Joey kanina ay kahanga-hanga na kasama sa ating siyam na awardees ay tatlong lalaki. And that is something that is very remarkable in the Philippines. A new development kasi talagang dati-dati yung mga babae ang talagang pinaka-magaling sa micro-enterprise at pinaka-magaling magbayad ng utang.

Well, this more than 80 billion pesos that the whole micro-finance system – government and non-government – has lent has generated 1.82 new jobs in the last six years. In addition, our Central Bank who is much to be admired also for what it has been doing hindi lang sa karaniwang micro-entrepreneurs kung hindi na rin it has created a series of investment incentives and programs for foreign remittances, yung mga pera ng OFW kasi dahil lumalakas ang piso. Kung hindi naman lumalakas ang piso tataas masyado ang presyo ng bilihin dahil mataas ang presyo ng langis ngayon sa buong mundo. Pero meron syempreng mga disadvantages yung mga dollar earners gaya ng OFW kaya dapat na nadadagdagan yung kanilang pinapadala sa pamamagitan ng nagiging puhunan at hindi lamang for consumption. And the Central Bank has that program of transforming remittances into investment for capital enterprises.

Doon naman sa SME kung saan itong ating mga successful entrepreneurs hindi na siguro tatagal hindi na magiging micro-entrepreneur kung hindi small enterprises na. Hindi na kailangang humiram sa micro-finance institutions kung hindi diretso na sa mga rural bank na kahit na hindi micro-finance or sa mga savings banks. This small and medium enterprise system, more than P100 billion has been released to SME accounts under the Sulong Program which was started in 2004 and that has supported 1.71 million jobs of which half-a-million are new jobs.

We want the benign, stable growth conditions to continue.

When I came here, Countryhead Sanjeev Bora said, tough day today.

Nakikiramay tayo at nagdarasal para sa mga nasawi at nasaktan, kasama na ang ilang mambabatas, sa pagsabog sa batasan kagabi. Habang nagsisiyasat ang pulis at pinagtitibay ang pagbabantay sa bansa, nananawagan tayo na iwasan ang mga haka-haka, paratang at sabi-sabi na maaaring lumikha ng kaguluhan, takot at hidwaan at lalong sasama ang kondisyon ng mga negosyo. Sa halip na magturuan, kailangang magkapit-bisig tayo, magmatyag laban sa iba pang banta na maaaring nakaumang sa ating kapayaaan.

Walang salitang makakabigkas ng pagkasuklam natin sa karahasang ito. Subalit hindi tayo magpapasupil sa mga nagpakana nito. Kasi gusto nating tumuloy ang ating magandang at matatag na kondisyon ng pagsulong ng ekonomiya maging sa mga malalaking negosyo gaya ng Citibank or maliliit na negosyo gaya ng ating mga micro-entrepreneurs na nagwagi at nagtanggap ng renewal ng mga pantawag ngayon.

The rule of law must prevail. No person is above the law. Justice must be served and the law upheld.

We are creating by executive order a task force against political violence to be headed by the Department of National Defense with the following as members: Department of Justice, Department of Interior and Local Government, Office of the Adviser on the Peace Process, Armed Forces of the Philippines, Philippine National Police, National Bureau of Investigation, Department of Social Welfare and Development and the Public Information Agency working with the Judiciary, the Council on Values Formation, the Union of Local Authorities of the Philippines and non-government organizations.

The mandate of this task force shall be to harness and mobilize government agencies, political groups, the religious, civil society, sectoral organizations and the public for the prevention, investigation, prosecution and punishment of political violence. The care and protection of people and communities victimized and threatened by violence, and the promotion of a culture opposed to violence and for the advancement of reconciliation and peace.

Kung itong task force ay magiging kasing-bisa nitong ating Go Negosyo partnership ng gobyerno, NGO at maliliit na negosyante ay talagang maresolba natin ang problema ng political killings gaya ng pagresolba natin ng malaking bahagi ng kahirapan dahil sa ating micro-entrepreneur and micro-finance system.

Palagay ko, kayong mga micro-entrepreneurs at yung mga nagpapahiram at tumutulong ng technical assistance gaya ng Citibank ay isang dahilan kung bakit bumaba ang self-rated poverty. Pinaka-mababa sa ating administrasyon haming sa ibang administrasyon.

And so, I thank you for all being here because with your support, we will make this an era of peace, re-assurance, stability and prosperity.

Once again, congratulations sa mga bagong pina-utang at mga nagwagi gantimpala. (applause)

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech During the Presentation of the Awardees of the Microentrepreneurs of the Year Awards. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135929/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2280&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Top Level Management Conference of the Kapisanan ng mga Brodkaster sa Pilipinas

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Top Level Management Conference of the Kapisanan ng mga Brodkaster sa Pilipinas

[Delivered at the Oxford Hotel, Clark, Pampanga, November 14, 2007]

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Marami tayong tinatamasa ngayon – bumubuhos na pamumuhunan, gaya ng inanunsyo kanina ng Banyan Tree na siyang nagsimula ng Phuket tourism, na magtatayo na five-star resort sa Palawan; malakas na piso, masigasig na stock market, at anim na milyong trabaho sa anim na taon. Hindi natin sana natamo ang mga ito kundi sa suporta ng mga mapagmatyag na kampion ng demokrasya gaya ninyo.

Ibig kong samantalahin ang pagkakataong ito upang magpasalamat sa lahat ng ginagawa ninyo para sa ating bansa.

Lagi kayong naroon sa hirap at ginhawa.

Nagpapa-salamat tayo sa taong bayan at sa mga bahagi ng media sa inyong maingat na pag-uulat tungkol sa pagsabog sa Batasan upang maiwasan ang haka-haka. At pinupuri natin ang PNP sa mabilis na pagkilos upang bigyan ng higit na seguridad ang ating mambabatas sa patuloy nilang paglilingkod sa bayan sa kabila ng trahedyang naganap.

Sa paglaban natin sa karahasan at krimen, napakahalag ang pagkakaisa at pagtutulungan ng pamahalaan at mamamayan.

I met the National Security Council Executive Committee last night and today to assess the security situation and institute immediate measures to address any threats. Please convey our message to our people and our friends here and abroad that the Philippines and your government shall not rest until we get to the bottom of this tragedy and hunt down and punish the perpetrators.

Walang salitang makakabigkas ng pagkasuklam natin sa karahasang ito. Subalit hindi tayo magpapasupil sa mga nagpakana nito.

The rule of law must prevail. No person is above the law. Justice must be served and the law upheld.

I have instructed Secretary Andaya to boost intelligence spending for operations.

We assure Congressmen and Senators that measures are being taken to enable them to continue their sessions in peace and security.

We are permanently assigning bomb-sniffing dogs in Batasan and the Senate.

I have instructed the Presidential Legislative Liaison Office to identify and secure possible assassin targets in Congress. I propose that KBP do the same for the media.

We are determined to solve the killings of journalists. Of the 27 cases since 2001 that were related to media personalities, two perpetrators have been convicted and 21 are ongoing trial.

We are offering a P5 million reward for information to catch perpetrators of political and media killings, and/or foil future attacks, including tip-offs on illegal explosives.

We are creating by Executive Order a Task Force Against Political Violence headed by the Department of National Defense with the Department of Justice, Department of Interior and Local Government, Office of the Adviser on the Peace Process, Armed Forces of the Philippines, Philippine National Police, National Bureau of Investigation, Department of Social Welfare and Development and the Public Information Agency and working with the Judiciary, Council on Values Formation, Union of Local Authorities of the Philippines and non-government organizations. Its mandate shall be to harness and mobilize government agencies, political groups, the religious, civil society and sectoral organizations and the public for the prevention, investigation, prosecution, and punishment of political violence, the care and protection of people and communities victimized and threatened by violence, and the promotion of a culture opposed to violence and for the advancement of reconciliation and peace.

Maganda ang ipinapakita ng inyong temang “New Beginnings, New Challenges, New KBP,” tungkol sa pagsisikapan natin alang-alang sa kagalingan ng ating bayan at bansa.

It is time for the nation to move on and focus on the issues that are important to our future: creating more jobs, lowering prices, providing affordable housing, and providing access to education for all our children.

The preoccupation with politics does not promote the stability, policy continuity, security and peace and order that we need to continue to move our country forward.

The people want results, not rhetoric; action, not political posturing. Salamat sa pag-papa-alala ninyo sa ating mga pinuno to get on with the people’s work.

Hinihiling ko sa inyo na magpatuloy sa inyong pananalig. Marami pang kailangang gawin. Hindi tayo dapat malihis.

Ipunla natin ang mga binhi ng kabutihan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo’s Speech During the Top Level Management Conference of the Kapisanan ng mga Brodkaster sa Pilipinas. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135938/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2279&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the San Beda College Law Alumni Association Homecoming and Fellowship Night

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the San Beda College Law Alumni Association Homecoming and Fellowship Night

[Delivered at One Esplanade, Pasay City, November 27, 2007]

Thank you very much, Attorney Ave Cruz. And I'd like to congratulate you because earlier you talked about so many achievers among the San Beda Law alumni. And I'll have to add to those achievers, the youngest bar topnotcher, number one bar topnotcher in the history of our country and that is no other than Attorney Avelino Cruz. Congratulations! (Applause)

Justice Acosta, President of the Association; Father de Jesus, Father Rector and President; Attorney Roque, Chairman of the Board of San Beda College; Rudy Robles, another number one bar topnotcher. I remember very well attending the beautiful long gown/black tie dinner dance when he became number one in the bar. Congratulations! Again. (Applause)

I'd like to greet Senator Nene Pimentel and the other elected officials who are here with us tonight. (Applause) and of course, Justice Nachura and the other very distinguished members of the judiciary, (Applause) and to the entire San Beda Law alumni on your 55th founding anniversary. (Applause)

The law alumni association was founded 55 years ago, because those who graduated then represented the first graduates after four years of the founding of the law school in 1948. And it was in 1948, in the then newly formed San Beda College of Law that our very beloved Dean Feliciano Jover Ledesma, as Attorney Ave Cruz quoted, wanted to produce good Christians as well as highly principled lawyers to take their place among the real apostles of justice. And my family is very honored — Arthur, my brother; Kuya Echo, my cousin and I — we are very honored that one of those whom he asked to join was his classmate in U.S.T. law school, my father Diosdado Macapagal, who at that time was not yet in politics. (Applause) my father was the first bar topnotcher from U.S.T. and the second bar topnotcher from U.S.T. was Roberto Concepcion, and Dean Ledesma recruited both of them to teach at the San Beda Law School. (Applause)

There were other legal luminaries, and we have seen the list of those that we honored tonight, from the list of legal luminaries that taught in the San Beda Law School in that first batch. That group has produced one president, two chief justices, one cabinet member, two very distinguished lawyers and one future head of San Beda itself. So, indeed, no wonder San Beda went on to become one of the best law schools in the country. (Applause)

So, we thank the founding fathers of San Beda Law School for their contribution not just to the College of Law but also to the country. Not only are they role models for believing and investing in the Filipino, they produced role models and outstanding Filipinos in the legal profession whether in business or in the practice of law, or in the judiciary, or in the political world. So, congratulations once again to us, the families of the founders. (Applause)

Congratulations! Also to the Jubilarians, to the Golden Jubilarians like undersecretary Spanky Perez, who handles our search committee. Maybe that's why there are so many San Bedans (laughter) in our government today. (Applause) And Governor Colet whom I'm very happy to see after so many years, and I see also Mel Mathay belonging to the Golden Jubilee batch. (Applause)

I'd like to congratulate also the Silver Jubilarians here in such big force. (Applause) and of course, we know that Winston Garcia is the President of GSIS in our administration. (Applause)

And then of course, Arthur. You see, I'm not a Bedan but I'm a Bedan sister because Arthur, my brother is a Bedan and I have very fond memories of going to the San Beda school fairs because my brother would invite me. (Applause) And Arthur got married in San Beda, in the beautiful church, in the beautiful chapel. And for a long time, it was closed to weddings but now, I'm glad it's open again because it's also one of the most beautiful churches in our country. (Applause)

Another Bedan, though not a Bedan from the San Beda Law School, was the late Senator Ninoy Aquino. Of course, there's Raul Roco who was from the law school. But I mentioned Ninoy Aquino because today happens to be his birthday. (Applause)

And as I was of course recalling the birthday of Ninoy in my own introspection today, I remembered that I recently pardoned one of the soldiers convicted of killing Ninoy. The pardoned convict had turned 70 years old. I pardoned him in accordance with the practice that started with Memorandum Circular 155, dated November 17, 2004. That circular directed the Bureau of Corrections, the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology, and the Board of Pardons and Parole to submit to the Office of the President records of inmates who are 70 years old and above for the purpose of extending executive clemency.

One of the reasons why I enunciated this policy of giving clemency to those 70 years and above was that some of the bishops who were ministering to the prisoners as well as the then head of prisons — I believe it was General Dionisio Santiago — were telling me about how crowded the penitentiary was. And General Santiago was the one who said why don't we decongest it by giving clemency to those who have been there for such a long time or those who probably won't be a menace to society anymore — those who've turned the age of 70.

The same policy forms the basis for my granting executive clemency to the former president, President Estrada. Both a soldier and a former president were convicted according to the rule of law and pardoned according to the rule of law. The rule of law has prevailed and proved that no person is above the law. And no person is below it either because if you're going to give that privilege to one then you give it to all similarly situated. And the rule of law must continue to prevail regarding the case of Mr. Estrada so that justice is served and the law upheld.

It is time for the nation to move on and focus on the issues that are important to our future: creating more jobs, lowering prices or at least preventing them from rising, providing affordable housing, and providing access to education for all the children of our nation.

The preoccupation with politics, past and present, does not promote the stability, policy continuity, security, and peace and order that we will need to continue to move our country forward. After all, we all need to fight poverty because poverty is a great injustice to a significant number of our people.

Eradicating poverty is the central mission of this government — many of whom whose members are Bedans — and our society. And as we enter the holiday season, it's essential that every person of means helps those in need. And the government is going to do everything in its power to be a catalyst for this.

Rice is not only a staple for our people, it's symbolic of our ability to deliver our promise to feed those less fortunate. So, we are committed to ensuring that the needy throughout our nation have access to affordable rice during this important holiday season. And that's what we're going to work on. Because we cannot say that we have moved forward as a nation if we don't lift up the poor and the hungry among us. We must be a society measured by our ability to live our faith. Just as the San Beda Lawyers are measured by your ability to live out the beautiful mission statement that was read by Attorney Ave Cruz.

Our long-term vision for the Philippines is to be on the threshold of first world in 20 years. And to do so, we will need a robust middle-class. We will need world class infrastructure. We will need strong institutions of government. Yet in the near term, we must address the very real issues of hunger and poverty that affect us here and now.

Those living in poverty have declined, thank God! But we must accelerate the trend to eliminate poverty more aggressively. That's why during the holiday season and beyond, we will do everything in our power to bring rice to those who need it most and work hard to protect the poor from high prices. And I ask you, Bedans, to be partners in taking the Philippines to the threshold of the first world. (Applause)

I was so happy when I was listening to our earlier speakers today and they talked about Father Rector and when Father Rector took over, and you all applauded because I'm sure you know more than I what it meant. That he said, what he was going to do was to work on unity. And that's wonderful because with a people united in working for prosperity, as with San Beda united in working for advancing the San Beda type of Christian education, we can succeed.

I'm glad that Father de Jesus wants to work on unity. Unity is a real aspiration that manifests itself through progress. Whether it is the nation or a school people want to know that we are strong, we are stable, we are growing whether as a nation or as a school.

Is everyone benefiting equally when it comes to the nation? Is there social justice in the land? Do people feel good about themselves and the society in which they live?

Unity of purpose is driven by a common desire to know where we are going, whether it is as a school or as a nation. That our leaders are strong, honest, hardworking and committed to the best interests, whether of the school or the nation.

Unity is about action, not discussion. It's about working together and not just talking together. Within unity, of course, there is and must be room for dissent, even conflict as part of the process of moving the nation forward because after all we are a democracy.

But at the end of the day, unity is measured by collective hope, commitment and confidence. And so, I count on the Bedan lawyers to help in promoting unity, hope, commitment and confidence both in your beloved, our beloved institute of San Beda and also in our beloved nation.

Maraming salamat at maligayang anibersaryo sa inyo lahat!

Thank you. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria-Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the San Beda College Law Alumni Association Homecoming and Fellowship Night. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135834/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2267&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Annual General Assembly of the League of Municipalities of the Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Annual General Assembly of the League of Municipalities of the Philippines

[Delivered at the Waterfront Hotel, Cebu, November 29, 2007]

Thank you very much Secretary Remonde for your introduction.

Let me begin by greeting our host city mayor, Mayor Tommy Osmeña; (applause) and the boss of the mayors of the Cebu chapter hosting you today, Governor Gwen Garcia; (applause) of course your national president, Mayor Monching Guico; (applause) Congratulations for being the first LMP representative to head the Ulap. (Applause) To all our new officers and re-elected officers of the LMP who are here on stage and to all our mayors from all over the country.

How impressive that you're all here in the first LMP convention ever held outside Manila. (applause) Congratulations on your election last May; congratulations to the officers on your election to the LMP and congratulations and thank you to all our local officials, especially in the areas hit and threatened by the recent typhoons, for your immediate response to the needs of your constituents. Some of you, some of them are not here yet because they have not yet finished attending to the needs of their constituents. But, I'm glad that enough of those affected by the recent typhoons are here to be able to tell me as I was walking through the aisle what you have been able to do to attend to the needs of your constituents. And I congratulate you for that! (applause)

You have shown our people that you are leaders they can rely on in their hour of need. A leader must be driven by a strong vision, whether for the municipality or the city in case of Mayor Osmeña, or the province in case of Governor Garcia or the nation in my case. A leader must be driven by the determination to deliver a better life. Let us all be driven by our faith in God and our faith in the people of our municipalities and this nation. (applause)

Let us get up every day and fight on behalf of the average, hard- working Filipino in your municipalities. We share the same values of family, hard work and faith. Family and opportunity for our children is a central guiding value of every Filipino. That is why we believe so strongly in education as the key to our next generation in order to get ahead and get a good job. And that is why education is the biggest item in the national budget as well as that is why your real estate taxes go to the school fund.

Education is a core value of Philippine society and family life. The hard working men and women of your municipalities and this nation put their family first. And the best gift any family can give to a child, and any nation can give to its people, is access to a good education.

Education is the foundation of economic prosperity and individual liberty, justice and self worth. That is why we should help each other continue to invest in new school construction at the elementary school level. So, if there are any of you who still have grade schools in your municipalities where the ratio is more than 50 students to one classroom for every shift of two shifts, please let us know so that we can prioritize the building of classrooms in your municipalities (applause). Please let Monching Guico know so that he can give me the list of the municipalities where the student classroom ratio is more than 50:01 for two shifts.

And all of these values we put in education is also why we will bolster our college scholarship program for your high school students ready for higher education. We have scholars in our CHED system and Cerge Remonde who is here, mainly because he is the cord for Region VII but, also because he's the Presidential Management Staff Director General. I asked him to make sure that in our college scholarship program, the best high school graduate of every municipality will be a recipient and that will be called the "town's scholar" of your municipality (applause). While we're at it, talking about classrooms for your towns to complete the 50:01 ratio for two shift, and giving... Making sure that the best high school graduate this coming school year this coming graduation will be sure of a college education.

I also heard very loudly your applause on the request to allocate ambulances, fire trucks and patrol cars to all provincial chapters (applause). So, I told Cerge Remonde that in the chapters where not all have ambulances or not all have fire trucks or not all have patrol cars, then to allocate at least one ambulance or one fire truck or one patrol car to the provincial chapter. Okay, Cerge (applause), at least. At least because we have to check on how many have and how many don't have. Remember your resolution is provincial chapter not every municipality (applause).

In any case, over the last six years, I think if we have an accounting of how many municipalities have received at least an ambulance or a patrol car or a fire truck. Many of you have already received from the national government. So, let us work on those who do not have any of these. And we will pass it through the chapter. So, the chapter will be responsible or will be credited for at least one of them. The rest we will have to deal with each other directly.

When we talk about giving what is due to our, to those who serve the people, I think we all also have to give the proper due to the teachers. And I was talking about making sure that every municipality is complete on grade school classrooms. Every municipality's best student goes to college. It's also important that the teachers of all municipalities are properly given their rightful due. Teachers are the backbone of our educational system. Without these selfless men and women, our children would fall short of their dreams and aspirations. We're deeply indebted to the hard work and dedication of all our teachers. Their work is noble and patriotic. They deserve the praise and respect of every Filipino.

And just as the national government helps the local government with your educational needs, I would also urge the local government as much as possible to use your school board fund to give our teachers a little extra something at least for this Christmas (applause).

Even the success, even the success of the recently-held barangay elections would not have been possible without the vigor and vigilance of our teachers who selflessly showed so that we can all exercise our right to suffrage. Their industry indeed, should not go unappreciated. That's why two weeks ago we ordered the Budget Secretary to release an additional one thousand pesos to all teachers who served in the last elections (applause).

The augmentation we ordered brought to 2,500 the total remuneration teachers are receiving for the election. The 2007 budget authorized 1,500 honorariums for barangay election duty, but we adjusted this pursuant to our powers and procedures vested by law, from savings made possible by the prudent utilization of our fiscal surplus.

I'm also instructing the Department of Budget and Management and the Department of Education to coordinate with the Commission on Elections in revisiting policies pertaining to the release of pay for teachers marshaled for election duty so that the miscommunication that attended the barangay polls should not happen again. And I ask you— the mayors to check also whether the teachers in your municipalities were able to receive their full 2,500 pesos for election duty. And if you know of teachers who were not able to receive this please let Monching Guico know so that we can also do justice to the teachers who teach our children so well (applause).

This financial incentive to our teachers was extended to them by a grateful government not just for the services beyond the call of duty in the last elections but to the sacrifices they continue to endure in the molding of minds of our young. We have also assuaged their sacrifices by the two salary adjustments we've had in the last two years. And if Congress will pass our bill there will be another salary adjustment for our teachers this coming July (applause). Please let them know the good news.

Because you and I should count on our teachers to teach our young the values of honesty and hard work, especially as Monching Guico said in his speech that the League of Municipalities wants to promote the values of good governance in what you will be carrying out in the next three years.

The people deserve an honest hardworking government just as they are honest and hardworking. Let us strive to stamp out corruption and set a new standard of governance for our municipalities and our nation as a whole. Corruption saps the lifeblood of our political system. It must be stamped out if the Philippines is to reach the verge of first world in 20 years which is our aspiration.

That is why in organizing our pro-performance system which where the secretariat is lodged in the Presidential Management Staff we have included the union of local authorities of the Philippines as an observer in our monitoring of projects to make sure that they are aboveboard as far as their implementation is concerned. We had a meeting recently and a representative of Ulap attended—the executive director.

Public service is an honor that the people of our municipalities provide their leaders, and the people provide their national leaders as well. But they do so with the expectation that those leaders will use that platform to deliver the programs and services needed to move our society forward. And I guess if you're wondering why I'm only giving at least one remember that I am the President that gave you your IRA in full and even paid the IRA debts of previous presidents (applause). So, let us use our IRA to maximize the services for our people.

To reach the verge of first world in 20 years, we will need a robust middle class, world class infrastructure and strong institutions of government. And that is why in creating a robust middle class in ensuring world class infrastructure, in strengthening institutions I am very grateful to the league of municipalities for your two resolutions endorsing the ratification of the Japan-Philippines economic partnership agreement (applause). I'm sure many of your municipalities have either experienced a Japanese investment or more likely experienced the blessings of a project that was funded by Japanese assistance whether a JBIC loan or a JICA grant. Therefore, we know how important Japan is to our quest to reach first world in 20 years (applause).

Yet in the near term, we must address the very real issues of hunger and poverty that affects us here and now.

Rice is not only a staple food for our people, it is symbolic of our ability to deliver on our promise to feed those less fortunate. Let us together commit to ensuring that the needy in your municipalities throughout our nation have access to affordable rice during this important holiday season. And that is why another project we would like to share with you aside from patrol cars, ambulances and fire trucks is to have the “tindahan natin” programs where you have the sari-sari stores that sell rice for only p 18.25 or p 18.50 no matter what the market price will be outside, because surely every municipality have at least an enclave where the people are very poor. And let us make sure that in those enclaves you all have a “tindahan natin” that we can capitalize (applause).

Those living in poverty have declined, in fact the poverty rate in our administration is the slowest in our history. But we must accelerate the trend to eliminate poverty more aggressively. That is why, during the holiday season and beyond, let us do everything in our power to bring rice to those who need it most and work hard to protect the poor from high prices. And rather than having a new initiative every year, I thank Monching for giving us a report on your upland development program that was launched last year. Because that is indeed a very important program.

We cannot forever be increasing the area of lowland for agriculture. We must increase productivity on the one hand on the remaining lowlands which gets smaller and smaller simply from the housing needs of the people not to mention the needs of industry and services. But if we're going to expand any land for agriculture it will have to be now in the uplands. And well, we have been to many upland areas— you and I, I think most of us have tasted upland rice. It's very good and very healthy.

So, I would want that if we are going to be self sufficient in rice and make rice affordable to our poor, let us also make sure that those uplands aside from the high value crops like vegetables, we also plant upland rice because we need that to feed our people, to feed the hungry and the poor.

Monching was talking about legacy. And I'm glad that you think of legacy not just of what will happen today or tomorrow. Through the end of our terms, let us aim to provide political stability, continued economic growth and sustainable peace and order. And i know that patrol cars, fire trucks and ambulances are important for political stability, peace and order and sustained economic growth (applause).

So, we shall help you there as much as we can but, our commitment to the provincial chapter is one of each of these (applause). But as I said, it doesn't stop us from making sure that all municipalities will eventually have at least one of these as we have been trying to do all these years from 2001. In fact, Gwen told me that she's taking a big burden away from me because she's providing all the municipalities of Cebu with these needs (applause).

The important thing is let us not let the nation slip into election year instability. Let us do what we can to make this next three years an era of peace, re-assurance and hope.

Let us assure the people that we lead with a steady hand to guide the nation. Let us not falter in keeping our hand on the tiller of the ship of state, because that ship of state at the end of the day depends on how steady the different municipalities are. I've always said that the hardest job after a president is a mayor. (applause) with due respect to governors like Gwen, I really think that mayors have a very very hard job because you're the ones in the frontline and I sympathize with you and I try my best to help you.

So, I hope that (applause) as we move along, I hope that at the end of the day, you will be able to say that you have provided what your people expected of you or what the people deserve from you– an honest, hardworking government because you strengthened your institution with the good use of your IRA and because we had a good cooperation between the national and the municipal governments.

Maraming salamat and have a very successful assembly here in Cebu (applause).

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Annual General Assembly of the League of Municipalities of the Philippines. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135813/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2261&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Local Peace and Security Assembly (LPSA)-CALABARZON (Region IV-A)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Local Peace and Security Assembly (LPSA)-CALABARZON (Region IV-A)

[Delivered at the Villa Escudero Plantation and Resort, San Pablo City, Laguna, November 29, 2007]

Maraming salamat Secretary Bert Gonzales sa iyong pag-imbita at sa iyong pag-organisa nitong ating peace and security assembly. Maari na ho kayong umupo.

Gusto kong batiin... Wala kasi si Governor Lazaro dito, out of the country pero ang nagho-host tuloy ay ang ating bagong Chairman ng Regional Development Council, si Governor Raffy Nantes (applause) at ang ating host mayor, si Mayor Umali. Maraming salamat. (applause) Actually, malaki kasi ang Villa Escudero, ang pinaka-host natin si Mayor Vic Amante. (applause)

Gusto ko rin batiin ang ating mga kinatawan na narito ngayon, si Congresswoman Ivy Arago, ang ating host congresswoman; (applause) Si Congressman Procy Alcala, yung... (applause) kasi hindi ba ang Villa Escudero bahagi noon sa inyo, kaya dalawa ang host natin; at nandito rin si Congressman Dan Fernandez; (applause) si Congressman Mark Mendoza; (applause) si Congressman Mark Enverga na kamukhang-kamukha ng nanay; (laughter) at lahat ng mga local chief executives natin na narito, napakarami. Nandito rin yung ating mga leader ng sandatahang lakas at saka ng kapulisan, pati na rin yung mga leader ng ating mga importanteng ngo at people's organizations. Sa inyong lahat, mga minamahal kong kababayan, magandang umaga at congratulations! Sa inyong assembly. At salamat sa mga ulat na ibinigay ninyo sa akin, Sister, ngayong umaga.

Malinaw at walang duda na magkapatid ang kapayapaan at kaunlaran na hindi mapaghihiwalay. Kaya naman bahagi ng malawakan at palagiang paglago at pag-unlad ng lipunan ang lahat ng ating pagsisikap upang maging payapa at ligtas ang taong-bayan.

Layunin dapat natin ang pag-iral ng kapayapaang dinidilig ng kaunlaran. Magpursige tayo upang maging panatag ang taong-bayan laban sa mga terorista na hangad ipataw sa atin ang kanilang marahas na ugali, at laban din sa mga rebelde na humahadlang sa kaunlaran.

Dito sa buong CALABARZON, tuluy-tuloy ang pagwawagi ng ating sandatahang lakas at kapulisan laban sa mga rebelde sa rehiyong ito. Subalit ibig ng mamamayan natin na malutas ang suliraning ito sa lalong madaling panahon. Hindi natin dapat hayaang maging sagabal ang isang bigong ideolohiya sa kaunlaran at pagsulong ng sambayanan. (applause)

Hangad nating mawakasan sa taong 2010 ang pag-aalsa sa rehiyong ito, lalo na sa lalawigan ng Quezon, kung saan alam natin naroon ang pinaka-aktibong mga rebelde. Pero ako ay nasisiyahan na narinig kay Raffy Nantes at kay Procy Alcala na medyo nagwagi na tayo doon. Matagal na nga hindi natin naririnig yung tinig ng kanilang tiga-spokesman na ang kanyang kuta ay naroon sa Quezon. Kaya congratulations! Sa ating mga taga Quezon. (applause) eh congratulations! Sa lahat, kino-congratulate natin sa Quezon dahil doon ang pinakamabagsik pero sabi ni Raffy ay nananalo na.

Hindi hihinto ang ating mga kawal sa pagtugis ng mga kalabang kapit-tuko sa komunismo. Ngunit sa mga dating rebelde at tagasuporta nila na ibig magbalik-loob sa panig ng batas, alok natin ang bukas-palad na kapayapaan sa pamamagitan ng malawakang amnestiya na ating idineklara in our new paradigm for peace. At a time when hard power has not proven its value in the world, our model for dealing with the insurgency has focused on a combination of soft and hard power to promote peace.

Dapat din magdala ng pagkain sa mesa ang ating pagsusulong ng kapayapaan at kaunlaran, sampu ng mga serbisyong pangkalusugan, mahusay na edukasyon para sa mga anak at apo, hanapbuhay, pag-iral ng batas laban sa krimen at hustisya sosyal. Yung hustisya sosyal, sabi ko nga kay Bert Gonzales nung pinakikinggan ko yung ulat ni Sister ay umpisa, gitna at patapos ang pag-uusap ay karapatang pangtao.

At naalala ko nung ako ay nagpunta sa ganitong asembliya rin doon sa Eastern Samar sa Borongan at bago nagkaroon ng... Ah, hindi. Hindi pala doon. Ang asembliya nasa Tacloban pero bago nun dumaan ako ng Eastern Samar at nag lunch sa mga official at dumating yung bagong obispo na the day before lang siya na-install bilang obispo. Di nagbigay ang report yung ating mga sundalo at yung ating mga pulis tungkol sa ginagawa nila kontra sa krimen at kontra sa rebelyon dahil ang Eastern Samar din ay parang Quezon dati. Pero ngayon yung Borongan na ang dami-daming influenced barangays nung 2003 zero na ngayon ang influenced barangay.

So, ang kuwento ng obispo sabi niya, narinig niya na ang dahilan kung bakit humina ng husto ang kaliwa doon sa Eastern Samar, sabi niya, ay dahil mababait daw ang mga sundalo. (applause)

At doon din sa Surigao del Sur kung saan yun din ang pinakamabagsik na lugar doon sa sentro de grabidad din yun ng insurgency hindi pa tayo nagkakaroon ng peace and security assembly doon dahil ang huwaran ng pagsugpo sa rebelyon ay doon sa butuan diocese. Pero nagpunta rin ako sa Surigao del Sur at nag report din yung... Doon din ang pinakakuta ng rebelyon doon sa banda roon, rineport din ng commander yung kanyang mga ganansiya kontra sa rebelyon. At sa kanilang paglaban umaabot sila sa mga liblib na matagal hindi naaabutan ng pamahalaan, naging mukha tuloy ng pamahalaan ang ating mga sundalo at sila ang pinagbigyan ng mga daing ng taong-bayan, kinekuwento ng mga tao sa mga liblib na barangay na wala pala silang gamot at nagtataka ako dahil meron naman tayong barangay... Botika sa barangay. Pero dahil nakaabot sa atin itong impormasyong ito sa pamamagitan ng ating mga sundalo nakaabot sa pinakamalayong mga sitio ay nagkakaroon tayo ng programa ngayon doon sa malalayong lugar, malalayong sitio ng malalayong barangay.

Sa madaling salita, ang ating patakaran, patakaran ng ating sandatahang lakas, kapulisan at buong pamahalaan ay ang pagrespeto sa karapatang pangtao. Hindi natin patakaran ang political killings. In fact, doon sa U.N. Assembly on Human Rights may mga sampung mga bansa at magugulat kayo sa listahan ng mga bansang yun na ayaw magtanggap ng rapporteur ng United Nations. Tayo ang isa sa mga kunting-konting tumatanggap ng rapporteur. Nauna pa nga tayo kaysa sa Myanmar na hanggang ngayon ay nahihirapan pa rin yung pagpasok ng rapporteur on human rights.

Kaya bukas tayo sa pagsusubaybay at bukas din tayo sa tulong na makapagbibigay sa atin ng mabisang paraan sa imbestigasyon at prosekusyon para umabot sa konbiksyon ang mga maysala. Yung mga sundalo o mga pulis na sangkot hindi natin ino-otorga yun. At meron na tayong mga napreso, meron nang mga napo-prosecute, meron na yatang pati na-convict kaya sabi ko kay Bert Gonzales — at sayang wala si sonny razon dito dahil siya ang head ng task force usig — pero if you can give the information, jess versoza, gusto ko na ipakita ninyo sa press conference, Bert, yung mga dato ng mga pulis at mga sundalo na hinuli at kinasuhan dahil sa paglabag ng karapatang pangtao.

Dahil nobenta'y nueve porsiyento ng ating mga sundalo at pulis ay gumagalang sa tao at karapatang pangtao. Yung maliit na porsiyento o porsiyento ng porsiyento yun hindi natin ino-otorga, at kinakasuhan at pinaparusahan natin sila. Kaya yung first, middle and last recommendation ko, Sister, we are very very much internally in accordance with you.

Nagpupugay rin tayo sa pagkukusa ng department of national defense upang itigil ang mga opensiba noong nakaraang bagyo at sa gayon matutukan ng mga sundalo ang pagsasaklolo at pagbangon ng taong-bayan matapos ang bagyo. Yun namang... Dahil importante na makaabot ang pagkain sa taong-bayan, yung 'tindahan natin' eto ang pinakamahalagang sistema natin upang maghatid ng murang bigas para sa mga mahihirap. Maraming 'tindahan natin' ang nasa lalawigan ng Quezon, dahil ang Quezon — at hindi ito nakakagulat — isang dahilan kung bakit ito ang pinakakuta ng mga rebelde sa CALABARZON, eto na ang pinakamahirap na probinsiya sa CALABARZON gawa nang pinakamalayo. May dalawang daan at limampung tindahan na raw sa Quezon.

Ngayon itong Quezon gusto ko lang magbigay ng isang konting kuwento. Aking mga paalala nung ako ay undersecretary ng trade and industry at namamahala ako ng policy and planning. Nung na-promote ako bilang undersecretary, ang proyektong ito ay tawag CALABA (Cavite-Laguna- Batangas) gawa nang si Congressman Ding Tanjuatco ay nag lobby para sa Rizal ay naging CALABAR. Pagkatapos di yung mga official ng mga Quezon ay lumapit naman sa akin at sinabi sana naman isama rin ang Quezon. Di sinabi ko kasi itong mga infrastructure bakit tayo gumagawa ng masterplan para mapondohan ng hapon yung mga imprastruktura natin. Eh yung mula CALABA hanggang CALABAR naku! Matagal pumunta sa hapon, pinag-aralan muli ng mga official, buwan-buwan or taon pa nga yung umabot pero bago ako, yun nung ako umabot yung Quezon na ang pinakikiusapan sa akin ng mga official.

Eh di binalik ko sa Board of Investments, dahil member of the board ako ng Board of Investments, sabi ko, isama natin yung Quezon sa CALABARZON. Ay sagot nila pati yung funding agency kung humaba ng taon ang pagdagdag ng Rizal na hindi naman gaano kalayo ang proyektong CALABA eh hahaba na naman ang pag-aaral bago lumabas na naman ang pondo kung gagawin niyong... Isasama ang Quezon. Pero alam ko... Naalala ko ang sinagot ko, ilan dekada nang naghihintay ang Quezon para sa kaunlaran, siguro kung ilang buwan o kahit isang taon pwede maghintay. Kaya nasama yun, kaya ngayon ito ay CALABARZON. (applause) kaya nila nadagdag yung marikina-infanta road kasi yun ang paraan kung papano ang Quezon ay magiging bahagi nitong CALABA na supposed to be an industrial area.

A leader must be driven by a strong vision for the nation and the determination to deliver a better life. We're driven by our faith in god and our faith in the people of this nation.

Siya nating layunin ang makaabot ang ating bayan sa antas ng mga maunlad na bansa sa unang daigdig sa loob ng dalawampung taon. At tama yung sinabi ni Sister, etong CALABARZON ang pinakapareho sa first world sa buong Pilipinas. Sinasabi nga nila yung productivity ng Filipino ay medyo mababa. Pero sabi ng mga investors, sa nakikita nila, hindi. Kasi nakikita nila yung mga manggagawa sa mga pabrika ng CALABARZON ay kasing galing o mas magaling pa sa manggagawa ng ibang lugar. Ang problema natin ay produktibidad sa agrikultura. Yun ang nagpapababa ng ating average pero yun naman ay more or less problema ng north Luzon at saka ng Mindanao gawa ng ito ay mas lalong lumalawak ang industriya dito sa CALABARZON.

At upang mabilang ang Pilipinas sa antas ng mga first world kailangan palaganapin ang matipunong middle-class, kailangan ng world class infrastructure kaya tama rin yung linagay sa mga panukala sa inyong resolusyon at kailangan ng malalakas na institusyon ng pamahalaan.

Yet, in the near term, we must address the very real issues of hunger and poverty that affects us now.

Totoo ang CALABARZON ang pinaka-kaitsura ng first world. Ako pag pumupunta ako sa Tagaytay, pag dumadaan ako sa santa rosa, naku! Parang turista ako, tinitigan ko yung mga pabrika, ang ganda-ganda. Pero ayon din sa inyong papel kanina dito rin naman ang napakalaking pagkahiwalay, agwat sa mayayaman at mahihirap. At dito rin ang isa sa pinakamalaking unemployment gawa ng kung saan-saan sila nanggagaling dahil nababasa nila, naririnig nila, napapanuod sa telebisyon na maraming investor dito pupunta sila dito. Eh sa dami nang pumupunta kahit na may mga bagong trabahong lumalabas hindi pa rin ma- accommodate lahat, nahihiya namang umuwi uli, sasabihin na wala silang nahanap na trabaho. So, dito na nananatili, nagiging informal settler o squatter at nagiging unemployed.

Kaya pagbawas sa kahirapan ang layuning nangingibabaw.

We get up every day and fight in behalf of the average, hardworking Filipino. Kaya hindi rin ako halos makatulog nang pinuntahan ako ni Congressman Ivy Arago isang araw, isang gabi actually, nag-dinner kami dahil yung franklin baker raw ay aalis na ng san pablo. Ang blessing na lamang doon, ang silver lining na lamang ay hindi aalis para sa ibang bansa kundi aalis para sa Mindanao. So, naririnig ko naman doon sa mga taga-Mindanao, masaya naman daw sila dahil pupunta doon magkakaroon sila ng dagdag na trabaho. Kaya lang mababawasan ang trabaho dito.

Kaya nung nagpunta ako sa Singapore gawa nang ang may-ari ng franklin baker ay isa sa pinakamayamang Singaporean, dinala ko si ivy at habang ako ay nagkakaroon ng aking summit meeting, si Ivy naman ay nagkaroon ng kanyang summit meeting sa CEO ng Chem Oil na siya ang mother company ng Franklin Baker. Pero talagang sinabi na sa kanya ni Robert Chandran na talaga yung kanyang arithmetic ay talagang mas kikita sila sa Mindanao kaysa dito sa San Pablo gawa nang Mindanao mas maganda ang lupa, mas productive ang mga puno ng niyog at lahat. Ngunit dahil siguro sa charm ni Ivy, sabi ni Mr. Chandran, hindi bale maglalagay daw siya ng ibang klaseng investment dito pero hindi na agricultural investment kung hindi services investment. Possibly I.T. or possibly tourism kaya siya ay babalik dito para sa ganun ay hahanap ng kung ano ang dapat magawa para naman yung mawawalaan ng trabaho ay magkakaroon muli ng trabaho.

Kaya mamaya kung meron akong panahon hindi ako magso-socialize dito pagkatapos ng speech ko pupunta ako sa San Pablo sa Franklin Baker at kakausapin ko yung... Titignan ko yung... Talaga kakausapin ang mga tao, pag-usapan natin, tignan natin kung anong paghahanda ang kailangan nating gawin para sa kanila, para sa bagong trabahong dadating at papano natin tutulungan sila ng pagtawid in between the closure and the opening of the new investment na gagawin ng Chem Oil.

Kasi yan ang kailangan nating gawin at ito ay ginagawa natin all the time. Kaya naibaba na natin ng malaki ang lubos na kahirapan.

Those living in poverty have declined, but we must accelerate the trend to eliminate poverty more aggressively. That is why during the holiday season and beyond, we will do everything in our power to bring rice to those who need it most and work hard to protect the poor from high prices.

Rice is not only a staple for our people, it is symbolic of our ability to deliver on our promise to feed those less fortunate. We're committed to ensuring that the needy throughout our nation have access to affordable rice during this important holiday season. At itong Laguna bagamat sinasabi natin na ang dami-daming mga industriyang narito eto pa rin ang isa sa mga malalaking pinangagalingan ng ating bigas. Kaya importante pa rin na yung produktibidad ng agricultural workers ay maitaas natin.

Yung binanggit ninyong kailangan pabilisin ang imprastruktura, totoo yun. Mataas ang preyoridad ng pagpundar ng imprastruktura sa CALABARZON region, sapagkat industriya ang nagbubunsod ng paglago ng ekonomiya dito. Isa itong sentro ng industriya na kapantay ng mundo, at isa sa mga pusod ng ekonomiya ng buong bansa.

Walang hinto ang pagtayo natin ng imprastruktura at pagpapabilis upang makapantay itong rehiyon sa mga primera klaseng sentro ng industriya, kalakal at serbisyo sa mundo. Kabilang sa mga proyekto ang expressway mula metro manila hanggang Batangas Port, para makalabas ang produkto ninyo doon sa Batangas at hindi na kayo papasok ng traffic doon sa metro manila na nagbabawas ng competitiveness. Meron din yung Coastal Road hanggang Cavite, at yung Batangas Port nga ay napakaimportante kung gusto natin na yung pangangalakal ay competitive at yung ito naman ang pinapabilis yung pagdala ng crane, yung mga equipment para modern ang pagkarga ng mga gamit sa barko, yun ang ginagawa naman ng tatay ni Congressman Mark Mendoza. And tapos binanggit ko nga yung marikina-infanta road na napaka-strategic ito kung gusto natin na ang Quezon ay talagang maging bahagi ng industriya ng CALABARZON.

At nabanggit din ninyo doon sa... Hindi lang nabanggit, malaki ang... Mahaba ang sinabi rin niyo doon sa inyong resolution tungkol sa mga governance, transparency and fighting corruption.

The people deserve an honest, hardworking government just as they are honest and hardworking. And we do aim to stamp out corruption and set a new standard of governance for our nation. We recognize that corruption saps the lifeblood out of our political system and it must be stamped out.

Yung Presidential Anti-Graft Commission gumagawa ng mga lifestyle check, pero we cannot just do simplistic witch hunting expeditions. Our systems may have been largely responsible for corruption with their many loopholes and their propensity to discourage personal responsibility in the discharge of official functions. Kaya bahagi rin ginagawa ng pagc ay yung integrity development review.

Nagpupundar tayo sa pagsugpo sa katiwalian, paglutas ng mga anomaliya sa mga proseso at istraktura ng gobyerno, at pagbubunsad ng ating mga sistema bilang mga mekanismong pinagkakatiwalaan. Marami nang ahensiya ang nagpapatupad ng mga reporma sa kanilang mga sistema at proseso upang bawasan ang mga rekisitos. Pihadong maraming locator dito ang nakinabang sa mga sistemang mas makinis ang takbo, gayon din sa mga one-stop shop ng DTI na pinupuri kahit ng mga ibang bansa.

Nilikha natin ang Properformance System task Force upang subaybayan at itulak ang mga nabinbing proyekto sa imprastruktura. Ang mga LGU ay may kinatawan sa Task Force mula sa ulap. Kaya kung may naantalang mga proyektong dumaraan sa inyong mga komunidad, ipaalam agad sa Task Force. Palagay ko iniisip na nitong mga nandito, ah yung yung kalsada patungo sa Quezon kasi ma-traffic dito, di ba? At hindi ba meron tayong mga proyekto doon ngayon kung gaano kabilis yun bahala na kayong magsabi sa task force gaano kabilis o gaano kahina.

Iniatas rin natin sa Properformance Task Force at sa Procurement Transparency Group sa ilalim ng DBM na repasuhin ang lahat ng mga pangunahing proyektong kalsada at magbigay ng detalyadong ulat sa inyong lingkod. Kabilang ang mga kinatawan ng civil society sa Transparency Group na magbabantay ng pagkokontrata ng mga proyektong nagkakahalagang 100 million pesos at higit. Eto ay ating mga sagot dahil maraming mga sumbong tungkol sa mga ibat-ibang mga malalaking proyekto.

Public service is an honor that the people of our nation provide their leaders, expecting that those leaders will use that platform to deliver the programs and services needed to move our society forward. Kailangan maglatag ng matibay na pundasyon para sa malinis na halalan bilang saligan ng ating demokrasya.

We have long provided funds for computerization. We look forward to the modernization of voting, counting and canvassing. At matapos ang masusing pagtimbang, pagdating ng pebrero, magtatalaga tayo ng tagapamuno ng comelec na kilala sa karunungan, kakayahan at katapatan sa tungkulin, malamang isang dating mahistrado ng korte suprema.

The people can be assured that we lead with a steady hand to guide the nation to a new election and new national leadership. And through the end of my term, we aim to provide increased political stability, continued economic growth and sustainable peace and order. We will not let the nation slip into instability. We want this to be an era of peace, reassurance and hope.

Our goal is to leave this nation stronger and more stable. Pinalalakas din natin ang investment sa bansa at mamamayan sa larangan ng edukasyon, ang saligan ng magandang kabuhayan at malayang mamamayan, katarungan panlipunan at dangal ng tao.

Unity is a real aspiration that manifests itself through progress. The people want to know, are we strong? Are we stable?

Umaasa tayo na itong mga dumalo sa asembliyang ito, tayo ay tutugon lahat sa hamong ito.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Local Peace and Security Assembly (LPSA)-CALABARZON (Region IV-A). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135823/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2262&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during her meeting with the Filipino community in Madrid

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During her meeting with the Filipino community in Madrid

[Delivered at the Colegio Nuestra Senora de las Maravillas, Madrid, Spain, December 2, 2007]

Maraming salamat Secretary Romulo sa iyong pagpakilala. Batiin ko rin si Mrs. Romulo. Maraming salamat Ambassador Bernardo sa lahat ng iyong ginagawa para sa ating mga Pilipino dito sa España.

Alam ninyo napakasayang makasama kayong muli. Mas marami pa nga kayo ngayon kesa noong dko'y narito noong isang taon. Maraming salamat. At salamat sa ating pagsasama dito at salamat sa mainit na pagtanggap na ibinigay ninyo sa inyong lingkod at sa aking buong delegasyon mula sa Pilipinas.

Mukhang napakasaya dito sa Madrid dahil ang darning mga Pilipino na dito!

Ang sabi ng Embajador natin sa España, si Lani Bernardo, halos umabot na ng limangpung libo ang bilang ng mga Pilipino na nakatira sa España. At salamat kung saan-saan kayo nanggaling. Napakalayong mga lugar ng Españapati mga teritoryo niya ay napuntakayo itong linggong ito, maraming salamat. Sabi rin ni Lani na halos lahat ng ating mga kababayan dito ay Spanish resident or Spanish citizen na. At may mga iba naman ay may dual citizenship na rin.

Kaya ako'y nasisiyahan na noong 2003, nagawa na natin yung batas, yung Citizenship Reacquisition and Retention Act. At kayo dito ay napaka suwerte dahil kahit na meron tayong dual citizenship law, may mga bansa na ayaw na kung magiging Pilipino kayong muli mawawala na yung citizenship n'yo sa kanilang bansa. Pero dito pumapayag na magkaroon ng dual citizenship kahit na kayo ay nabigyan na ng Spanish citizenship.

And we are happy to see firsthand, how you, our kababayan here in Spain, have integrated so well into Spanish society. You have contributed many positive benefits to your host country, you have earned the respect and affection of the Spanish people. Kaya nga kanina sinasabi ni Ed Angara, kasi yung 300 na magtra-trabaho doon sa Andalucía ay dapat daw taga Aurora. Tapos sinasabi, nila nagbibiro sila dapat daw yung ipapadala yung mga hindi maganda kasi yung maganda raw ay hindi na uuwi dahil liligawan na ng mga kastila ditto. Kasi napaka-charming ang mga Pilipino ditto sa España. Kaya lang sabi ni Ed, wala naman daw pangit sa Aurora kaya ang dadating ditto ay magaganda pa rin. Anyway we feel very proud of your achievements here in Spain.

And of course we know that over a century ago, Spain was also a haven, there was also a Filipino community here, the best minds and talents of the Philippines. At that time, we had a Filipino community in this country, it was probably the very first organized Filipino community abroad. Kaya napakagiting ang inyong tradisyon — ang tradisyon ng Filipino community dito.

Noon kilala na ang talento, ngayon kilala pa rin ang talento ng mga Pilipino dito. Kaya dahil kilala ang inyong talento madaling makapasok sa España. Halimbawa, iyong mga enhinyerong binanggit ni Lani, nandito ba sila? yung mga enhinyerong kukuha...ayun, kayo, congratulations ha. Apatnapu kinukuha ng Kastilang kompanyang Grupo Tecnicas Reunidas para ihanda yung engineering design para sa isang malaking proyekto sa Middle East. So congratulations sa inyong lahat.

At siyempre noong isang taon, binanggit din ni Lani nakilala natin yung unang grupo, isang daan muna at dalawampung Pilipinong caregivers, na pumarito, sino yung nandito noong isang toon sa mga caregiver? Ayun, kumusta kayo muli? O masaya kayo ha. Pumunta kayo rito sa pilot project upang tingnan kung mabisa ang pag-employo ng mga skilled Filipino caregivers sa bansang ito. So 130 nung isang toon, ilan na ngayon? 480 na kinikwento ni Lani napanay puri ang natanggap ng ating embahada mula sa Ministry of Labor ng España tungkol sa pilot project na ito. At dahil dito, gaya rin nang sabi ni Lani, gustong-gusto ng Pamahalaang Kastila na ituloy niyang palawakin pa, para kumuha ng higit ng ating mga caregivers at nurses para dito sa España.

La estracha relación entre nuestros países también se manifiesta en la presencia de ustedes la gran comunidad Filipina aquí en España. Estamos orgullosos de vuestros logros y vuestras contribuciones a este país. Asimismo reconocemos vuestro papel vital en el forjamiento de los vínculos personales más estrechos entre los pueblos Filipinos y Españoles.

Overseas Filipinos like you are honored by the government and the people for your sacrifice and your dedication to your work, your family and our nation. And we welcome your contribution.

Alam nyo kanina sa Lourdes, pinag-uusapan namin yung sa obispo yung mga Filipino overseas workers. At sinabi pa nga sa sermon nung pari na kilalang-kilala ang mga Filipino sa iba't ibang bahagi ng Europa at mahal na mahal ang mga Pilipino. Kaya pinag-uusapan namin kanina, sampung porsiyento ng Pilipino ay nasa labas kasi 85 million ang Pilipino, 8 million ang nasa labas. Pareho raw ito ng porsiyento ng Portugal, sampung porsiyento rin ng mga taga Portugal ay nasa labas. Higit pa ng porsiyento ng New Zealand, 25 percent ng mga taga New Zealand ay nasa labas ng New Zealand. Kaya lang ikinuwento sa akin ng Prime Minister nila ang diperensiya, yung 25 percent ng New Zealand ay mga yuppies, pinapadalhan pa ni mom and pop mula sa New Zealand ng dagdag na allowance kung nasaan sila. Pero kayo, kayo ang nagpapadala doon sa ating bansa.

But we're working towards the day when Filipinos no longer need to go abroad for a job. We're working for the day when overseas work will be just another career option and not the only choice a hard working Filipino has to earn a living.

Kanina binanggit noon gating Filipino community yung ilang mga reporma na ginagawa natin para nga dumami ang inyong trabaho. And we firmly believe that our ambitious economic reforms will help break the offshore cycle and will increasingly be keeping our best and brightest right in the Philippines, closer to friends and families, helping to build our communities and providing the next generation of leadership.

Alam ninyo sabi nila, kung gusto nating sugpuin ang kahirapan sa isang bansa, kailangan mga pitong taon na 7 percent ang growth rate. Noong araw an gating growth rate kung nagpapa-five percent tayo, nagse-celebrate na tayo. Kaya ang ginawang ambisyon n gating administrasyon na by the end of my term in 2010, makaabot tayo sa 7 percent. Pero sa awa ng Panginoon, 2007 pa lamang nakaabot na tayo sa 7 percent.

Siyempre malaking kontribusyon na dito ay yung mga overseas Filipinos na hindi umaasa sa mom and pap back home at sa halip nagpapaaral pa nang susunod na henerasyon

We've been working with the Central Bank of the Philippines to raise what they call the financial literacy of overseas Filipinos and your families. We advocate that financial freedom doesn't stop at having enough funds to sustain your family's basic needs. But it's good if you will accumulate sufficient savings and turn this hard-earned money into solid capital. We've been promoting a culture of savings and encouraging overseas Filipinos and your families to channel your savings into investments.

Alam ninyo itong 8 million na numero ng Filipino, ganoon na iyon noong nagsimula ako nung 2001, ganoon pa rin ngayon, 8 million. Kasi habang lumalabas, merong umuuwi. And... meron kasing note pero hindi na. Papaliwanag ko mamaya kung bakit. Anyway, habang may umuuwi, may lumalabas, may umuuwi. Kaya 8 million noon, 8 million pa rin ngayon. Pero noong nagsimula ako, naabutan kong remittances 7 billion dollars. Ngayon 13 billion dollars na. Same number halos doble ang pinauwi. Kaya talagang ang laki ng kontribusyon ninyo sa ating bansa.

And today, your remittances are increasingly being used towards investments in human resource capital kasi gaya nang sabi ko kanina ay pinapaaral ninyo yung mga kamag-anak ninyo, kaya kung sasabihin nila na may braindrain, meron naman kayong sinusuportahang kapalit na edukasyon doon sa ating bansa; healthcare also for your families; physical capital because you acquire real properties, including land purchases and home construction; in fact, ano nga ba yung porsiyentong sabi nila na ang ating real estate boom ngayon. Kung pupunta kayo sa Pilipinas makikita ninyo na panay construction ang nagyayari, marami doon ay government construction, pero kahit natayo ay nagpapagawa ng mga kalsada, lumiliit naman ang ating deficit, hindi lumalaki. Dahil sa reporma ng ating mga congressmen at senador, tumaas ang buwis pero nilalagay naman natin sa imprastraktura para hindi na masyadong kailangang umutang. Pero marami din sa construction ay yung mga bahay, condominium units. At sabi ng mga real estate companies, 40 percent ng kanilang real estate market ay nanggagaling sa overseas Filipinos kaya ang laki-laki ng kontribusyon ninyo sa ating housing sa Pilipinas.

And more Filipinos abroad are also investing in financial and capital investment. Maraming mga Filipino nag-i-invest na ngayon sa stock market. Kaya kanina sa pagka-intindi ko sabi ni Lani Bernardo, nagpunta na nga dito si Francis Lim, ayun, tapos ka na ba Francis sa iyong presentation, ang Pangulo ng Philippine Stock Exchange para ipahayag sa ating mga Filipinos overseas yung mga benepisyo ng pag-invest sa stock market natin sa Pilipinas na napaka-masigasig ngayon, one of the best performing stock markets in the world today. At marami rin sa inyo, nagpopondo na ng mga small and medium enterprises ng inyong mga kamag-anak.

Kaya ako'y nasisiyahan, not only do we have in this visit Francis Lim of the Philippine Stock Exchange, I have the opportunity to thank you, magpasalamat sa inyo that aside from the benefits of investing in the Philippine stock market, you also invest in direct investment for the small and medium enterprises of your families.

Kanina doon sa pahayag ng inyong suporta sa inyong lingkod, hindi lamang ninyo binanggit yung mga magagandang mga programa na nakakatulong sa inyo, binanggit din ninyo yung ligalig na nangyari nung isang araw. At salamat sa inyong suportang pinahayag sa inyong lingcod

At gusto kong ipaalam sa inyo mga minamahal kong kababayan, panatag at matiwasay ang sitwasyon sa Pilipinas ngayon. Mabisa at mabilis ang pagresolba nung ligalig sa Makati. At isang gabi lamang iyong curfew. Bumalik na ang tao sa karaniwang gawain. Normal na ang takbo ng Makati at ng buong bansa na rin.

Narapat maging magaan ang inyong kalooban, kalooban ng taong bayang Pilipinas na malakas at matatag ang mga institusyon ng ating pamahalaan at lipunang sibil Ipinagtatangol ng gobyerno ang taong bayan at nagtataguyod ng kaayusan at katatagan.

Nakita natin noong isang araw, nanaig ang rule of law. And I can assure that the transgressors will not hold our nation hostage with impunity. Paparusahan sila ng buong higpit ng katarungan. Justice shall be served and the interests of the people upheld.

At muli, sino ang naging bayani? Muli ang mga bayani ay yung mga bayaning tahimik, yung mga masisipag gaya ninyo, yung mga makabansa gaya ninyo, yung mga may malasakit na Pilipino gaya ninyo, yung mga tumalikod doon sa labis na kabaliwan kagaya ninyo. Maraming salamat sa sinabi ninyo, hindi n'yo sinusuportahan iyon.

And so once again let me thank you for being such heroes. Thank you for continuing to be a valuable member of both the Philippine and the Spanish community.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches [off] Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during her meeting with the Filipino community in London

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During her meeting with the Filipino community in London

[Delivered at the Dorchester Hotel London, England, December 5, 2007]

Maraming salamat Ambassador Espiritu, sa iyong napakagandang pagpapakilala sa akin at yung mga napakagandang ulat mo tungkol sa Filipino Community dito at saka yung mga ginagawa ng ating embahada.

Ako ay labis na nagpapasalamat sa inyong lahat. Magandang gabi. Salamat sa inyong mainit na pagtanggap. Salamat sa inyong malasakit na paghihintay dahil huli ang aming pagdating mula sa España. Thank you for all being here. Babatiin ko rin si Mrs. Espiritu. Masayang-masaya kami na nakapunta kayo dito ngayong gabi. Hindi ito linggo kaya kailangan after office hours ang ating miting. Alam ko bukas magta-trabaho na naman kayo kaya mas doble ang aking pagpapasalamat na naghintay kayo sa akin.

And well I was here last September, some of us saw each other. We are visiting Europe and we have to visit Europe to advance Philippine foreign policy through high level deliberations with our allies abroad. Our national security is central to our economic security – to generate foreign investments, create jobs and expand economic opportunity to every province of our great archipelago. To that end, we are being aggressively engaged with businessmen and women to continue to invest in our country.

The Philippines takes its global responsibilities seriously, from ASEAN to providing peace forces to global hotspots around the world. We believe in our commitment to be a true global citizen to advance the cause of human rights, economic progress and mutual security to secure global peace.

And our European allies are part of our history and part of our future.

Pinag-uusapan nga natin parati yung lalo na galing ako sa España, parati pinag-uusapan yung apatnadaang taon na nandoon sila. At eto ang mga henerasyon naman natin, naalala natin, yung mga tatay natin, yung mga kwento nila tungkol naman sa mga Amerikano, pero actually pati Ingletera, tatlong taon nandoon sa Pilipinas nung panahon ng mga Kastila.

So we have to continue to reach out to our European allies and let them know about the great strides forward we have made in the Philippines.

Sabi ni Ambassador Espiritu na ang Filipino community sa U.K. ay tuloy-tuloy ang paglaki sa mga nakaraang taon. Hindi lamang dahil ang daming pumapasok na mga nurses dahil siguro if they would have one million Filipino nurses here they would, pero konti lang ang mabibigay ng ating bansa at nakapasok pa ang mga pamilya. Tapos gaya nang sabi ni Ed, ang naipapanganak dito. Kaya lumalaki ng lumaki ang ating Philippine community. Di ba Ed, nung nandito ako ng Septiembre, anong sabi mo yung paglaki nila in the last five years from 50,000 it's now 200,000 in the last five years. Our OFW's are our day-to-day ambassadors to the U.K. and always, you are part of our agenda.

As I've said very often, you must have heard me say this before but I must say it again, we honor and value the contribution of our overseas workers for your sacrifice and dedication to your work, your family and our nation.

Sampung porsiyento ng ating mga Filipino ay nasa labas. Ganun din ang Portugal, sampung porsiyento ng mga Portuguese ay nasa labas. Yung New Zealand, 25 percent ng kanilang population ay nasa labas. Pero ikinuwento mismo ng mga opisyal ng New Zealand sa akin, ang kaibahan ng mga overseas Filipinos at overseas New Zealand, yung mga lumalabas mula sa New Zealand mga yuppies. Kaya mom and pap in New Zealand, nagpapadala pa ng dagdag na allowance. Pero yung mga Pilipino, maging yuppies o maging mas matanda, nagpapadala sa Pilipinas. Kaya yun ang kaibahan.

Alam natin na ang manirahan sa ibang bayan ay hindi lamang masagana at masaya. Siyempre, meron tayong mga successful. Marami sa ating mga nurses successful. Yung ating mga chef, biro mo, executive chef ng mga malalaki at kilalang establishment, successful. Pero meron din tayong mga kababayan na humaharap sa pagsubok. Nangunguna dito yung binanggit ni Ed Espiritu kanina na kinuwento sa akin yung trabaho ng mga senior carers na humaharap sa mga bagong patakaran ng bansang ito.

Danil dito, inaatasan ko si Ambassador Espiritu na ipagpatuloy ang pakikipag-ugnay ng ating gobyerno, pati na rin ako, ang inyong lingkod, at ating mga congressmen ang pag-usap sa mga parliamentarians bukas sa mga iba't ibang opisyal ng U.K. upang mabigyan tugon ang problemang dinadanas ng ating mga senior carers. Kaya ito ay isang malaking agenda natin sa pag-uusap bukas. At sana makatulong.

But I'm proud to say that our ambitious reforms are helping to break the offshore cycle and supporting an economy that is growing at its fastest pace in 20 years, 7 percent itong taong ito so far. The economic gains we are seeing now are paving the way for the day when Filipinos no longer need to go abroad for a job, and the day when overseas work is just another career option and not the only choice you have to earn a living. We've created 6 million jobs, new jobs in the last 6 years. By continuing down this path, we will increasingly be keeping our best and brightest right in the Philippines, close to friends and families, helping to build our communities and provide the next generation of leadership.

We've been looking forward to meeting you our hardworking OFWs on this trip. Kaya naman ito sa ating biyahe sa Inglatera, kayo ang unang-unang agenda item. Doon din sa España, sila rin ang unang-unang miniting ko bago yung opisyal ng España.

At nasisiyahan akong iulat sa inyo na ang ating bansa ay nananatili sa landas patungong kaunlaran ng ekonomiya. Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, or cut down on tax cheats, or sorry ha pag-usapan natin mamayang konti, strengthen the peso, and no one thought we could move the stock market. And no one thought we could bring down our budget deficit. No one thought we could pay our debts, and certainly not before they are due and no one thought we could raise employment, all that was ... six years ago, but we have.

At itong lumalakas na piso, the fact that we even have to discuss the rising peso, is a positive reflection on the strength of the economy. Kasi otherwise, humihina naman ang piso anung ibig sabihin noon. At para sa inyong mga pamilya sa Pilipinas, kasi tumataas ang presyo ng langis sa mundo. Eh tayo naman umaasa tayo sa importasyon ng langis para sa ating gasolina. Pero dahil malakas ang ating piso, kahit na ang lakas ng pag-akyat ng presyo ng langis sa buong mundo, pagdating naman sa presyo ng gasolina sa Pilipinas at transportasyon ay hindi gaano ang pagtaas. Kaya yung mga jeepneys, mga buses, mga taxi drivers at operators ay naiintindihan nila, nauunawaan nila, na hindi natin sila so far binibigyan ng rate increase.

Anyway, that said, we have one of the world's best central banks and one of the world's best Central Banker si Sy Tetangco, at siya ay nananalo ng mga premyo Best Central Banker in the World and we continue to trust him to continue to manage our macroeconomic fundamentals.

Siguro marami sa inyo alam n'yo, the Central Bank is constitutionally, hindi naman constitutionally, legally independent. Gumawa kami ng batas, gumawa'tayong batas nung panahon.... yung mga thrird termers dito, fourth termers or... the Central Bank is by law independent nung araw Hindu Nung araw yung Central Bank ang chairman Secretary of Finance kaya under the Office of the President. Pero gumawa ng bagong batas, kailangan independent so we cannot influence the decisions of the Central Bank. But in any case, I want to assure you we are mindful of the impact on our overseas workers of a strong peso as you send remittances home. And we are working on ways to mitigate the impact of the peso on your families' incomes.

For one thing, tiningnan lalo na yung mga domestic helpers ganun. Hinanap ng Department of Labor kung saan nanggagaling sila at doon pumupunta ang Department of Labor para magbigay ng espesyal na programa para sa mga pamilya ng mga OFWs. And like what Ambassador Espiritu said, for OFWs and your families, it's very important that you keep or even enhance your financial freedom during this time of a rising peso. And financial freedom does not stop at having enough funds to sustain a family's basic necessities. Accumulating savings is part of financial freedom, sufficient savings and turning this hard-earned money into solid capital that is equally important. So we encouraged OFWs and your families to save and channel their savings into investments.

And that is why I'm glad that today, remittances are increasingly being used towards investments in human resource capital through education and healthcare for beneficiaries. Sabi nga nila hindi ba kayo nagkakaroon ng braindrain sa dami ng lumalabas na talented overseas Filipinos? Actually, yung mga lumalabas na talented na Filipinos ay nagpapadala muli ng pera sa pamilya para mag-aral yung mga mga pamangkin, mga anak kaya nire-replace yung braindrain na yun. And also overseas Filipinos we noticed are also now investing in physical capital acquiring real properties, including land purchases and home construction, yung mga construction firms, yung mga housing developers, ang kwento nila sa inyong lingkod ay lumalawak ng lumalawak ang kanilang negosyo dahil kwarenta porsiyento na mga binebenta nilang mga tahanan ay binibenta sa mga OFWs. Ganun ang laki ng inyong tulong. And now there is also financial and capital investments. For thing, maraming OFWs pinopondohan and small and medium enterprises ng mga kamag-anak. Pero ngayon marami na rin akong naririnig, nai-interview na OFWs na nag-i-invest sa ating financial instruments. Kaya nga si Francis Lim, ang pangulo ng Stock Exchange ay pumunta dito upang ipaliwanag sa ating mga OFWs na yan ang isang napaka-gandang paraan kung paano lumaki ang inyong pinapadala sa inyong mga pamilya sa ating bansa. And we hope this trend will continue.

Today as I said, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. And investments are pouring in, real investments or direct investments and our stock market has reached historic heights. Ano ba Francis, narinig ko sa Umabot ng 4200 na ba yung ano.....3800, so pinakamataas, sa buong kasaysayan natin. And the world is taking notice, I believe the Philippines offers one of the best values in Asia for domestic and foreign investors.

The surge of investments has been anchored by the announcement of several major international companies that we call the Billion Dollar Club, including Texas Instruments, pinili ng Texas Instruments, wafer fabrication sa Clark yun ang pinili nila at hindi yung Tsina dahil sa marami silang nagustuhan sa ating bansa. Yung Hanjin ng Korea nagtayo ng shipyard ng 1.6 billion dollars sa Subic, katatapos lang nila, kaka-deliver ng mga unang barko, ngayon nagtatayo ng pangalawang shipyard, doon pa nila gagawin ang components na binibili ngayon abroad, at saan nila ilalagay? Doon sa Mindanao, sa Ozamis Oriental. Yung Marubeni bumili ng 3.5 billion dollars worth of power plants at mag-e-expand pa ng kanilang Quezon power plant by half a billion dollars. At dito sa Londres, yung pamilya Mittal, may-ari ng global steel sa Pilipinas ay maglalagay ng 1.6 billion dollars para sa Integrated Steel Mill. In fact, kakausapin ko si Mr. Mittal bukas para pag-usapan yung pangangailangan para bumilis ang kanyang investments. Kaya kasama ko yung mayor ng Iligan City para masigurado na yung investment climate sa Iligan ay maganda.

And these kinds of investments are happening across the board in a number of industries. We're working to ensure this will be sustained. We are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, healthcare and training along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines.

We take great pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. I'm very focused like a laser beam. Ano mang mababasa n'yo sa headlines, I'm focused on the economy. We will not sacrifice long term gains for short term political expediency.

Pag-usapan natin ng konti yung politika. Iyong nangyari sa Manila Peninsula noong isang lingo, nakita n'yo naman sa telebisyon. It's clear that the actions of these few desperate men reveal just how out of touch they are with the hopes and dreams of the average Filipino. Alam n'yo, more than anybody else that Filipinos want political stability, a bright economic future and social justice. The actions of these misguided men undermine each and every one of the genuine aspirations of real Filipinos. Instead of working to bring the nation together by working within our democratic process, their actions merely are fuel for selfish motives and for personal gain.

But in the end, the rule of law prevailed. The transgressors will not hold this nation hostage with impunity. They will be punished to the full extent of the law. Justice shall be served and the interests of the people upheld.

Yung pag-usapan natin yung rule of law. The trial and conviction of the former president was a major step forward for the rule of law in the Philippines. It proved that no one is above the law when it comes to meting out punishment, including former presidents.

I honored the request for pardon because I believe it was in the country's interest. It was a tough choice, but I have never been one to shy away from making tough choices when it comes to moving the nation forward. Now, I believe it is time to put this black chapter in our country's history behind us and concentrate on what is really important for our people, which is to ensure that all Filipinos benefit from the fruits of our economic progress.

Gaya ng mga migrante, marami sa mga migranteng Pilipinong naghanap ng kanilang tagumpay sa ibang bansa, yung sinabi nga ni Ed Espiritu kanina nauunawaan ko yung kalagayan ng marami sa inyo na yung mga anak ay apo ay ipinanganak, pinalaki at pinaaral dito sa U.K. biro mo between U.K. and Ireland six Filipinos are being born everyday. Kaya meron na tayong mga second and even third generations of Filipinos. We hope that our second and third generation kababayans would continue to develop their identity and pride as Filipinos. Sabi ni Ambahador Espiritu, na yung ating embahada sa Londres, kasama na ang ating mga organisasyong Pilipino na pinamumunuan ninyo ay nagpapairal ng mga gawain na bibigyang pagkakataon ng ating mga kasaping pangalawa at pangatlong henerasyon na matutunan ang ating mayaman at maluwalhating pamana na kanila bilang Pilipino. Kaya maraming salamat doon.

Bukas gaya nang sabi ni Ed, makikipagkita ako sa reyna at makikipagpulong sa mga negosyante mula sa bansang ito, para sa ating mga overseas Filipino. At yung inyong mga achievements halimbawa, itong ating Singles for Christ in the healthcare na ang ganda-ganda ng kanta, yung ating chefs, at iba pang matagumpay na trabaho ninyo. At sigurado pag pinag-usapan kayo wala silangmasasabi tungkol sa inyo kundi mga pagpuri, panay puri parasa inyo at inyong mga pamilya kasi ganun ang narinig ko sa ating mga Pilipino dito sa Londres.

At ipagpaumanhin n'yo, payagan ako na magkaroon ng pribilehiyo na tanggapin naman iyong mga mababait na salita nila na parangalsa inyo. Hayaan ninyo akong sabihin ko sakanila, in your behalf maraming salamat sa kanila sa paggalang sa inyo. Buo ang aking paniniwala na patuloy silang mataas ang tingn sa inyo. Talagang pwede kayong ipagmalaki.

And be assured that I will lead with a steady hand to guide the nation to a new election in three years and new leadership. I will not falter in keeping my hand on the tiller of the ship of state. And we will also continue strong, focused leadership in the international arena to advance the interests of our nation and our people.

Mga kaibigan, mga kababayan, di dalawang taon na akong pumupunta dito sunud-sunod ano. Baka ngayon it's worth try naman to visit the Philippines. Inaanyayahan ko kayong dumalaw muli sa ating bansa para makita n'yo yung tunay na katayuan ng ating lipunan, yung mga bagong nakamit natin, mga bagong nagawa natin – mga kalsada, yung construction ongoing all over the place, at yung mga bagong mga pabrika na itinatayo at dalhin din ninyo iyung inyong mga kaibigang taga rito, mga Briton, para makita nila where you come from kasi ang galing-galing ninyo.

There's more of that back home. Kasi yun ang ibig sabihin ng "ambassador" di ba? Yung magandang katangiang pinapakita ninyo. Ang mensahe ako aykinatawan lamang ng ating aking mga kababayan. Ganun din. Kung gaano ako kagaling, yun ang mensaheng ipinapahayag ng ating overseas Filipinos, kahit hindi n'yo sinasabi. Ang inyong mensahe ay kung gaano kayo kagaling, ganun ang kagalingan ng ating bansa. Kaya mas lalong dalhin ninyo ang mga kaibigan ninyo mas lalong maniniwala sila.

Kaya muli, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. At gaya nang sabi ng ating Singles for Christ, wag nating kalimutan, meron tayong Pasko, panahon ng pagmamahal sa isat' isa dahil may Panginoon na nagmamahal at nagmamahal sa atin.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches [of] Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Message of President Arroyo to her fellow countrymen [Filipino]

Mensahe
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa kanyang mga kababayan

[Ipinahayag noong ika 7 ng Disyembre, 2007]

Mga kababayan, magandang araw.

Nagagalak ako para sa bayan at sa ibinubunga ng aking biyahe.

Nagtungo ako sa Europa upang isulong ang patakarang panlabas ng Pilipinas sa ating mga pulong sa matataas na opisyal ng mga kaalyado nating bansa. Napakahalaga ang seguridad ng bayan sa pag-unlad ng ating bansa. Ang pagpatuloy na pagbuo ng malalapit na alyansa sa iba't ibang dako ng mundo ay nagpapalakas ng seguridad natin sa ating bansa.

Isa pang haligi ng ating seguridad ang katatagan ng ekonomiya — sa pag-akit ng investment, paglikha ng trabaho, at paglaganap ng oportunidad sa hanapbuhay sa bawat lalawigan ng ating dakilang kapuluan. Para dito, masigasig tayong nagsisikap upang makipag-ugnay sa mga negosyanteng mamuhunan sa ating bansa.

Malaking halaga ang ibinibigay ng Pilipinas sa ating mga responsibilidad sa mundo, mula sa ASEAN hanggang sa pagpapadala ng mga pwersang pangkapayapaan sa mga bansang may labanan sa daigdig. Matibay ang ating paniniwala sa ating katapatan bilang tunay na mamamayan ng mundo, upang isulong ang karapatang tao, kaunlaran ng ekonomiya, at seguridad ng mga bansa para sa kapayapaan ng daigdig.

Kasama ng ating kasaysayan ang mga kaalyado natin sa Europa, at kasama din ng ating kinabukasan. Dapat tayong patuloy na makipag- balikatan sa kanila, at magbatid sa kanila ng ating malalaking hakbang sa Pilipinas. Ang mga OFW ang ating mga sugo araw-araw sa maraming bahagi ng mundo. kabilang sila sa ating agenda sa bawat bansa. Ipinagmamalaki natin ang kanilang kontribusyon sa maganda nating pangalan sa daigdig. lagi tayong nagagalak na maKipagtagpo sa ating masisipag na OFW sa bawat biyahe.

Minarapat kong magbigay ng pahayag mula sa biyahe upang siguruhing nakatutok ang pamahalaan sa mga mahalagang pagkilos para sa bayan at ekonomiya, sa kabila ng ligalig sa Makati noong Huwebes.

Unang-una, marapat maging masigasig ang buong Kapulisan at Sandatahan lakas sa pagtugis ng ilang nalalabing tauhan na kasangkot sa pag-aalsa, upang hindi na muling magambala ang bayan. Pupilungin ko ang National Security Cabinet Group sa pamamagitan ng video conferencing, upang repasuhin ang ating seguridad.

Ang mga pangyayari kamakailan ay nagpapabawas lamang ng pagtingin ng mundo sa Pilipinas. Bagaman napakalaki ang ating pag-angat sa bansa at sa ibayong dagat, pinakamalubha naman ang tama sa mahihirap ng mga pakana ng mga rebeldeng makasarili. At maralita rin ang pinakamalaking pakikinabang sa agos ng capital mula sa ibayong dagat, na lilikha ng trabaho at oportunidad sa bansa.

Pangalawa, ipinapa-alaala sa Gabinete na isulong nang walang lubay ang mga pagkilos na ating itinakda sa mga pulong kamakailan upang aksyunan ang pagtaas ng presyo ng langis, at maghatid ng abot-kayang bigas at iba pang handog sa masa. We must also prevent delays and anomalies in infrastructure, hit our fiscal targets, and help exporters.

Pangatlo, nananawagan tayo sa Kongreso na patuloy na magtuon ng pansin sa mga kinakailangang panukala, lalo na ang budget. Cheaper Medicines Bill, amyenda sa EPIRA para sa mas murang singil sa koryente, at amnestiya para sa maraming rebelde na ibig magbalik-loob. Huwag natin hayaang mapinsala ng gulo noong isang ling go ang milyun-milyon nating kababayan na naghihintay ng imprastraktura, murang gamot at koryente, kapayapaan at kaunlaran.

Buo ang paniniwala ko na mabubura natin ang imahen nitong pangyayari habang nakiki- pagpanayam sa mga pinuno ng daigdig at mga investor.

Sa pakikipag-usap sa mga pinuno, mga investor at mga kababayan sa Europa, maliwanag na buo pa rin ang kanilang tiwala at pag-asa sa ating bansa. Sabi nila, basta patuloy tayong magkakaisa at magsisikap para sa masiglang ekonomiya at panatag ng bansa, lalo silang magdadala ng investment sa bansa, lilikha ng trabaho, at magsusulong ng pag-unlad.

Pagkakaisa, pag-unlad, kapayapaan at kasaganaan para sa lahat — ito ang mga adhikain natin, at hindi tayo hihinto sa ating pagsulong.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Message. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135719/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2334&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during her meeting with the Filipino community in Kuwait [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pagpupulong kasama ang komunidad ng mga Pilipino sa Kuwait

[Ipinahayag sa Kuwait, ika 9 ng Disyembre, 2007]

Mga kababayan, magandang gabi.

Maraming salamat na kahit ilang oras na pag-ulat sa inyo nakaabot kayo ngayong gabi. Alam ko naman araw ng trabaho ngayon di ba pero nakapunta kayo at thank you very much at maraming salamat din kay Ambassador Eric Andaya dahil siguro lahat ng inyong staff ay nasa telepono kaninang hapon. Maraming salamat.

Nagagalak ako para sa bayan at sa ibinubunga ng biyahe natin.

Nagtungo ako sa Kuwait upang isulong ang patakarang panlabas ng Pilipinas sa ating pulong sa kanilang hari at sa kanilang mataas na opisyal na nandoon sila lahat nung nag-tanghalian. Doon nga pinag-usapan na dapat mag-overnight ang aming grupo at maimbita kayo ngayong gabi. Napakahalaga ang seguridad ng bayan sa pag-unlad ng ating bansa. Ang pagpatuloy na pagbuo ng malapit na alyansa sa Kuwait ay nagpapalakas ng seguridad natin sa ating bansa.

Ang Kuwait ay sumusuporta sa proseso ng kapayapaan sa Mindanao.

Isa pang haligi ng ating seguridad ang katatagan ng ekonomiya – sa pag-akit ng investment, paglikha ng trabaho, at paglaganap ng oportunidad sa hanapbuhay sa bawat lalawigan ng ating dakilang kapuluan. Para dito, masigasig tayong nagsisikap upang himukin ang mga negosyante na mamuhunan sa ating bansa. Nagagalak tayo na ang Kuwait Foreign Petroleum Exploration Company ay pumasok sa joint venture sa paghanap ng langis at gaas kasama ng Shell at South China Resources sa isang lugar sa dagat northeast ng Palawan.

Malaking halaga ang ibinigibay ng Pilipinas sa ating mga responsibilidad sa mundo, mula sa pagsuporta sa pagpataw ng safeguards ng International Atomic Energy Authority tungkol sa nuclear power sa middle east hanggang sa lahat ng mga pagsisikap ng pangmundong komunidad na palakasin ang pamahalaan ng iraq upang makamit niya ang pangmatagalang kapayapaan at prosperidad. Matibay ang ating paniniwala sa ating compromise bilang tunay na mamamayan ng mundo, upang isulong ang karapatang tao, kaunlaran ng ekonomiya, at seguridad ng mga bansa para sa kapayapaan ng daigdig.

Kasama ng ating kasaysayan ng mga kaalyado natin sa mga Islamic countries, at kalahok din ng ating kinabukasan. Dapat tayong patuloy na makipagbalikatan sa kanila, at magbatid sa kanila ng ating malalaking hakbang sa Pilipinas. Kayong mga OFW ang ating mga sugo araw-araw sa Kuwait. Maraming salamat sa inyo. (applause)

Mahalaga ang binibigay natin sa kontribusyon ng ating mga overseas workers sa inyong sakripisyo, sa inyong pagmamalasakit sa inyong trabaho, sa inyong pamilya at sa ating bansa. Ngunit pinagmamalaki rin natin na ang ating mga ambisasyong reporma sa ekonomiya ay tumutulong na, you know to break the offshore cycle, and tumutulong sa pagsuporta sa ekonomiya na ngayon ay umaangat sa pinakamabilis sa loob ng nakaraang dalawampung taon, 7.5 percent ang ating growth rate itong taong ito, the highest in 20 years. At itong mga ganansiyang nakikita natin ngayon ay hinahanda yung paraan para sa araw na yung mga Pilipino ay hindi na kailangang mag-abroad para sa trabaho. And the day when overseas work is just another career option and not the only choice that you have to earn a living. (applause)

Nakapagalikha tayo ng 6 na milyong trabaho sa nakaraang anim na taon. At sa pagpapatuloy sa landas na ito, tuluy-tuloy sana that we will be increasing, be keeping our best and brightest, right in the Philippines malapit sa pamilya, malapit sa kaibigan, tumutulong magpatayo ng ating pamayanan at naghahandog ng susunod na henerasyon ng liderato.

Kayo nangunguna kayo sa ating agenda sa Kuwait. Ipnagmamalaki nating ang inyong ambag sa maganda nating pangalan sa daigdig. Nagagalak tayo kanina sa makatagpo ng ating masisipag na OFW doon sa bagong mall ano ba yung pangalan ng bagong mall, yun, na kalian lamang binuksan ng kanilang hari. Sabi nga nila kanina sapat matulog kayo ngayong gabi, mag-shopping kayo at makipagkita sa mga Pilipino.

Doon sa mall, nakikita ko doon kasi nakipag-kwento ako sa mga Pilipino, ang dami-daming mga Pilipino, at nagkaroon ako ng pagkakataon makipagkwento-kwento sa kanila. At nakikita ko na marami sa inyon ang nakakaalam ng aking panguhahing pakay sa pagtungo dito sa Kuwait. (applause) Kanina nga sa mall, may isang Pilipinong nagtanong sa akin, “positive ba ang resulta ng pag-uusap n’yo?”

Ako’y nasisiyahang sabihin sa inyo positive ang resulta. (applause)

Nagkaroon tayo ng positibo at napakamabungang pagkikita sa kanilang hari kaninang umaga. Nagpapasalamat tayo sa napakamabait na pag-uunawa at konsiderasyon na ini-abot niya sa ating kababayan.

Sinisikap nating pangalagaan ang inyong kapakanan. Kailan lang, tayo ay naglunsad ng mga reporma ng patakaran tungkol sa pagpadala ng mga household service workers. Yung mga bagong patakaran kasama dito yung pag-iibayo ng kakayahan ng ating manggagawa, yung nagkakaroon ng kurso ng orientation tungkol sa mga kultura ang lengguage ng iba’t ibang mga bansa. Yung pagpoproteksyon, yung mga mekanismo kung papaano makaproteksyon ng karapatan sa mga lugar na pinagta-trabahuhan at saka inuobliga yung mga employer na sila ang dapat gumastos para sa deployment ng domestic helpers. At yung tinataas yung minimum salary sa level na karapat-dapat naman sa mga natututunang kakayahan.

Itinaguyod ng ating administrasyon ang pagtaas ng minimum wage para sa domestic service workers, mula sa $200 a month at ginawa ng $400 a month.

Mula nung nagsimula itong patakaran nung Disyembre ng 2006, una maraming umalma pero ngayon nakikita natin ang kanyang bunga. Halimbawa sa Hongkong, sa umpisa bumaba yung mga Pilipinong kinukuha pero ngayon nakikita natin bumabalik naman ang karamihan kahit mas mataas na ang singil ng sweldo.

Dito sa Kuwait, kapansin pansin ang pagdami ng job orders para sa mga engineers, nurses at iba pang skilled workers. Lumiit din ang bilang ng mga naitalang kaso ng maltreatment at runaway workers.

In fact, kamakailan lang, ang inyong lingkod ay nagbigay ng atas sa DSWD, sa DFA at saka sa DOLE na dapat repasuhin at ipaiba yung mga mekanismo at paglilingkod para mabilis makaabot, ready access, at mabilis makasagot, rapid response sa mga OFW na malubha ang pinaghihirapan para sa ganito hindi na mapipilitan na gumawa ng mga kilos na desperado yung ating mga OFW.

Halimbawa sabi ko dapat pag-isipan nilang maglagay ng mga toll free hotlines at assistance groups, ito meron kayong mga Pilipino dito na ang tagal-tagal na ninyong narito, pwede nga kayong mga lider, maging yung assistance groups nga sa mga lugar kung saan marami ang OFW kagaya ng Kuwait. At itong mga repormang ginagawa natin lalo na yung pagtaas ng minimum wage, nakita natin yung ibang labor-exporting countries katulad ng India at Indonesia ay sumusunod na rin sa ating halimbawa, at ngayon ay nagtataas na rin ng hinihinging sahod para sa kanilang mga manggagawa.

Alam nating marami sa inyo ang nababahal sa patuloy na pagtaas ng piso. Sa isang banda, ito ay tanda ng malakas na pambansang ekonomiya at nagbibigay din ng maraming benepisyo tulad ng di gaanong tumataas ang gasolina at hindi tumataas ang pasahe bagamat tumataas ng lubha ang presyo ng langis sa mundo. Ngunit nauunawaan din natin ang inyong kalagayan. Dahil dito, ang pamahalaan ay gumagawa ng kaukulang hakbang para mapababa ang remittance fees. At isa pa nagtatayo tayo ng programag tutulong sa mga probinsyang maraming OFW na mababa lamang ang kita. Gumagawa tayo ng survey, saan ba nanggagaling ang ating mga domestic helpers, anung probinsya. At yung mga probinsiyang yon, doon tayo nagdadala ng tulong para sa mga pamilya ng OFW. Yan ang ating programa para mabigyan ng ginhawa yung pagtaas ng piso sa ting mga OFW.

Nakikita ko ang ating mga OFW dito ay alam na alam niyo yung balita. Una nga alam na alam ninyo kung bakit ako narito. Tapos alam na alam ninyo yung nangyari nung isang linggo.

Tungkol doon sa nagtangkang coup noong isang linggo, klarong-klaro na itong mga kilos ng iilang mga desperadong tao pinapakita na they are out of touch with the hopes and dreams of the average Filipino. Di ba, tayong mga karaniwang Pilipino, ang gusto natin ang political stability, a bright economic future, social justice. Kaya itong mga kilos itong mga misguided men ay sinasabotahe ang bawat isa dito sa mga tunay na aspirasyon ng tunay na Pilipino. Sa halip na pinagbubuo ang bansa at nagta-trabaho sa loob ng ating prosesong demokratiko, ang ginagawa nilang kilos ay parang gasolina sa makasariling motibo for personal gain. But in the end, nanaig ang rule of law. (applause)

The transgressors will not hold our nation hostage with impunity. Paparusahin sila ng buong higpit ng batas. justice shall be served and the interests of the people upheld.

Ang kailangan natin at alam niyo ito sa Kuwait, ito ang nakita ko sa inyong pamayanan nung nandito ako noong 2003, pagkakaisa, pag-unlad, kapayapaan at kasaganaan para sa lahat — ito ang mga adhikain natin, at hindi tayo hihinto sa ating pagsulong.

At muli gaya nang sabi ko sa inyo nung 2003, maraming-maraming salamat na ginagawa ninyo ating mga Pilipino dito sa Kuwait para sa ating bansa.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. Salamat muli sa inyong pagdalo sa short notice. And merry Christmas to all of you! (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech During her Meeting with the Filipino Community in Kuwait. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135652/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2333&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the 100th anniversary of the Philippine Columbian Association

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 100th anniversary of the Philippine Columbian Association

[Delivered at the PCA Building Plaza Dilao, Manila City, December 11, 2007]

Thank you very much past President Buencamino for your introduction. Thank you very much President Beltran for your very, very kind words.

And I'd like to greet everybody here tonight. We have such distinguished guests like Justice Velasco and (applause) Justice Hermosissima and Senator Benitez. (applause) I'd like to greet the board of directors and members of the Philippine Columbian Association. Ladies and gentlemen. Please sit down.

And a happy 100th birthday to Philippine Columbian! (applause)

You know when I was invited to come tonight I had already accepted the invitation to go to a concert in San Beda College which is the alma mater of my brother Arthur. But Evelyn Kilayko was the one who was telling me but this is not just another anniversary, this is the 100th anniversary. So, indeed, we beat my schedule because it is important to be here exactly 100 years after the founding of your important institution. (applause)

As we can see from the attendance tonight, the members of Philippine Columbian are leaders and prime movers of various sectors of Philippine society. And therefore we can say that for 100 years now the members of Philippine Columbian have demonstrated your commitment to the nation's peace, growth and pride in the Filipino.

I still remember when I was young, you had an old clubhouse. And I do remember when the new clubhouse was built and this complex has a marker that aptly conveys the legacy of Philippine Columbian as measured by Mr. Beltran, President Beltran as the "sanctuary of Filipino nationalism."

And I'm very happy to hear about the history of Philippine Columbian. I'm sure that those who will listen to my speech, because it's been covered by the media all the time, will therefore be gratified to remember that the club became the center for the campaign for Philippine independence during the leadership of President Quezon. And that it served as the headquarters of congress for the Philippine independence in 1934. And although the world war ii forced the club to hibernate, because its building was razed to the ground in 1945, so typical of the important buildings in Manila during that time. The club rebounded to become now the Philippine Columbian that we know — robust, progressive and still committed to its advocacies.

Your members' involvement and contributions have shown because many of your members are businessmen that business does not exist for and by itself, and that efficient enterprise does not only improve private profitability. It benefits the larger society.

For your sincere concern from 100 years ago up to today. For making our economy more efficient and our governance more responsive. Thank you very much from the people of the Philippines. (applause)

We look back 100 years.

We are here celebrating today.

We also look forward.

And, well, I'm sure Philippine Columbian has a vision for the future. But I do hope that you share our vision for the next 20 years because we envision that the Philippines will be ready for first-world status in 20 years. That means by that time, hopefully, we will have dramatically reduced poverty, we will have created a robust middle-class, we will have all the hallmarks of a modern society in strong, stable institutions. Because the strength of institutions is after all what the founders of Philippine Columbian fought for when they fought for independence.

And by the time I leave the presidency in 2010, I hope that with your support, we will have launched the Philippines well on its way to achieving that vision. But I'm glad to say already we have moved mountains with our macroeconomic conditions through fiscal discipline, towards a balanced budget, pre-paying our debts and investing billions in human and physical infrastructure. These fundamentals are paying off in huge increases in investment, in six million new jobs, in a strong peso and a strong stock market.

I must congratulate and thank you for the biggest single act that led to the surge in our economy — that's the passage of our value-added tax. And you are our taxpayers. That value-added tax in one bold stroke raised enormous amounts of new revenue. It also sent an unmistakable signal that we are serious about moving our nation forward. But that isn't all. It is also because of our complete focus on the economy, on fiscal discipline, on a balanced budget and the need for long overdue human and physical infrastructure. The focus on these helps round out our economic gains.

And as I said, our efforts are paying off. With the six million jobs we've created in the last six years, our unemployment rate is the lowest in a generation. Our poverty rate is the lowest as well. And to me, that is the most important statistic.

Because eradicating poverty is the central mission of this government and our society of which such prominent representatives are members of Philippine Columbian. And I am glad that we're celebrating this centenary as we enter the holiday season because it is essential that we remember that every person of means and being leaders of society — people here are persons of means — should help those in need. The government is going to do everything in its power to be a catalyst for this process.

We're making progress in alleviating poverty. Not only our poverty rate but our education and health services to the poor are vastly improved. Of course, we have a long way to go, but only through a strong economy can we improve the plight of the poor. And to that end, we have turned the corner of our economy. Of course, we face short-term challenges in meeting our projects, but revenues are up this year compared to 2006. The credit rating agencies recognized that the new revenue sources are here to stay and that our budget will be balanced. This allows us to invest in job creation, it allows us to invest in better health care, and it allows us to invest in more educational opportunities. These are the keys to lifting the poor up. And we're doing that in magnitudes that are for the first time in a generation. So, we are optimistic.

So, as we move forward, we will increase investment in our country, in our people to improve our infrastructure to create an environment in which your businesses will feel confident to expand and employ more people, because more jobs means less poverty.

Investing in infrastructure also includes building up our environment. As was very much pointed out in the Bali Convention on Climate Change this past weekend, people need to breathe clean air and swim in clean water while we build manufacturing and bridges to span our waters.

We will continue to improve social services such as health insurance and anti-hunger programs.

Let me tell you about our anti-hunger programs. Patuloy tayong nakikibaka sa hamon ng kagutuman. Nakasentro ang hamon sa murang pagkain, tulong sa nagugutom, pagtrabaho sa kalsada at kabukiran, gulayang pampamilya, microfinance, and dagdag sahod sa ilalim ng regional wage boards.

Nakabase ang neda hunger mitigation program framework sa pagkikilala na nagkakaroon ng gutom; una, dahil kulang ang pagkaing abot-kaya, at pangalawa, walang pambili ng pagkain. Sa gayon dapat paramihin ang murang pagkain — ito ang supply side strategy. At palaguin ang kita at hanapbuhay ng masa — ito naman ang demand side strategy.

Sa supply side, bahagi ng plano ng NEDA ang number (1) palakasin ang produksiyon ng pagkain; number (2) pahusayin ang sistema ng panghatid sa pagkain, or tinatawag na efficiency of logistics and food delivery.

The logistics and food delivery program in turn consists of barangay food terminals and Tindahan NJatins. Yung barangay food terminal yung mga bagsakan yun nilalagay natin sa ibat-ibang mga mahihirap na lugar. Halimbawa sa Maynila, Metro Manila. At yung tindahan natin, ito ay parang sari-sari store pero hindi sari-sari, nagko-concentrate tayo sa murang bigas at saka murang noodles at murang lpg at murang gamot.

And then also ports, especially the roll on-roll off ports which makes transportation cheaper in bringing food from Mindanao to Luzon. Then, farm to market roads is also part of the logistic system and efficient local transport within the local government units.

And then to bring the food to the families of the very poor, we bring rice to them through the school feeding program. Instead of giving breakfast to the children which cost 20 pesos, we give them a kilo of rice each when they go to school which also cost 20 pesos, so that they can bring the rice home to their families and the entire family can benefit from that.

This is a very big program with so many schools, in so many areas that are poor. And so one of our measures to improve on this part of the supply side logistics is the creation of an NGO network to support feeding programs. I remember one time Evelyn Kilayko was telling me that many of the civic groups are looking for programs where they can tie up with the strategic needs of society. And I hope that on your centenary, one of your centennial programs will be that Philippine Columbian will join this NGO network which is under the responsibility of the DSWD to bring rice to the children of the poor when they go to school. (applause)

The good thing about the food-for-school programs is that not only does it help the families, it also entices the families to send their children to school because that's the way that they will have their rice for the day.

We will boost educational support in our efforts to reduce poverty by investing in better school buildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators.

We all know — because most of the people, all the people here are educated — that education is a core value of Philippine society and family life. The hardworking men and women of this nation put their family first. And the best gift a Filipino family feels it can give to a child, and any nation can give to its people is access to a good education.

We will also invest in cutting red tape and eliminating corruption from the system.

The people deserve an honest, hardworking government just as the Filipino people are honest and hardworking. We aim to stamp out corruption and set a new standard of governance for our nation. Corruption saps the lifeblood of our political system, it must be stamped out.

Our anti-corruption adviser, Tony Kwok, the former anti-corruption czar in Hong Kong who was a key player in efforts to clean up corruption there, believes that perceptions clout the reality of progress — our progress in reducing corruption and red tape. But the fact is that we are undertaking a strong and steady effort to curb graft through criminal justice, administrative controls and procedural reforms.

This effort is focused on the revenue agencies, that's why they have improved their performance in recent years. It's also focused on agencies that are in the frontline of day-to-day public services. And one of the things that Philippine Columbian can help us with is to give us feedback on the agencies that we interact with how are they behaving. We take this issue seriously. And we believe that perception will match reality in a few short years. However, this is a problem that has plagued the Philippines and other countries for generations. As experience has shown, it won't be eliminated overnight but I assure you progress is being made.

Not even the empty political rumblings of an ambitious few can bring our hard-earned gains down. The actions of the few desperate men in Makati last week reveal just how out of touch they are with the hopes and dreams of the average Filipino. It's not only the leaders of Philippine Columbian but the average Filipino that want political stability, a bright economic future and social justice. The actions of those misguided men undermine each and every one of the genuine aspirations of real Filipinos. Instead of working to bring the nation together by working within our democratic process, their actions merely are fuel for selfish motives for personal gain.

But thank god, in the end, the rule of law prevailed.

The transgressors will not hold this nation hostage with impunity. They will be punished to the full extent of the law. Justice shall be served and the interests of the nation upheld. (applause)

To the caretakers of nationalism, you can be assured that I lead with a steady hand to guide the nation to a new election, a new leadership in three years.

We will not falter in keeping our hand on the tiller of the ship of state. We will also continue strong, focused leadership in the international arena to advance the interests of our nation and our people. And I thank you for your appreciation of the efforts that we had to undertake so that we could save the life of one Filipina in Kuwait. (applause)

Actually, hindi madali yung nagawa doon dahil nung kinekwento sa akin nung Emir yung krimen — at baka lumabas na sa peryodiko rin dito —napaka brutal yung paraan kung papano niya pinatay yung kanyang amo. Hindi lang isang saksak at hindi lang isang kutsilyo, dalawang kutsilyo, maraming saksak, tumakbo pa yung amo, hinabol pa niya. At in the early stages, I don't know how long or up to the end, parang unrepentant yung maysala. Ngunit... Kaya... At hindi pa yun, ngayon lang sila gumawa ng commutation, first time sa kanilang kasaysayan. Kaya hindi popular yung ginawa ng Emir, medyo maraming nagalit sa kanya. Na headline nung paalis ako na headline doon at controversial yung headline na yuon. Ngunit sabi nung foreign minister yun ay tanda ng kung gaano kinoconsider ng Kuwait ang importansiya ng relasyon ng Pilipinas. (applause)

And if we have reached the stage where our international relations can be concretely mobilized in order to benefit individual Filipinos concretely, it is because we have reached the stage of our institutions that was worked for by the founders of Philippine Columbian who fought for Philippine independence in the 1940s. (applause)

So, I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate you for a century of achievements and valuable contributions to national heritage and progress.

I thank you all and I ask you to continue to help the country as you have been helping the country for 100 years. To help the country now again, to ensure that we will indeed have an era of peace, reassurance and hope.

Mabuhay ang Philippine Columbian! (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA Speech at the 100th Anniversary of the Philippine Columbian Association. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135629/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2331&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 45th Anniversary of Angeles University Foundation and the 100th birth anniversary of Dr. Barbara D. Yap-Angeles Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 45th Anniversary of Angeles University Foundation and the 100th birth anniversary of Dr. Barbara D. Yap-Angeles

[Delivered at the Main Campus, Angeles University Foundation, Angeles City, Pampanga, December 12, 2007]

Thank you very much.

Thank you very much Manny for your introduction. Thank you for inviting me to be here for the 100th birthday of your beloved and much respected mother. Thank you for changing the date of the celebration because I had to be in a state visit in Europe during her actual birthday. Thank you also for waiting today because having arrived a day later than I was supposed to arrive, I had to compress two days of activities in one day. But maybe it's all worth it because we were able to save the life of a Filipino in Kuwait. (applause)

Our beloved Archbishop Aniceto, Chairman of the Board and our champion of pro-life policies in the church and to the government; Mr. Pama, President of AUF; our cabinet members who are here with us today: We have Jing Lapus, Ed Pamintuan and Medy Poblador; I see mayor Boking Morales of Mabalacat; I saw Mayor Gerry Pelayo of Candaba, and if there are any other mayors here, I'd like to greet them; and of course all the friends of AUF and all the admirers of Dr. Barbara Yap-Angeles. (applause)

We celebrate tonight the life of an exemplary woman, Mrs. Barbara Yap-Angeles. "B.Y.A." to most, as we often call our CEOs by their initials. She was the paragon of the determined Filipina whose values of thrift, hard work, discipline and strong faith in developing our provinces human resources led to the founding of the Angeles University. From the small Angeles Institute of Technology which reopened in 1962 rose the AUF which came to offer multi-disciplinary courses and became a university.

The AUF continued to achieve more in the service of the people of our beloved Pampanga and Central Luzon, establishing a medical school with a base hospital 20 years after its reopening. And may I again thank Angeles University Hospital because you gave my husband first aid when he had a helicopter crash in the Cordilleras many years ago when I was not yet president. He deplaned here in a helicopter, he got his aid here. (applause)

Well, going back to AUF and what you've done, you received from the CHED Autonomous Status as a Center of Instruction, Research and Community Service in 2003. You received the ISO-9001 certification. (applause) You're recognized as one of the country's centers of excellence in information technology education. (applause)

So, if we will congratulate Angeles University, we must congratulate the Angeles family led by University Chancellor Manny Angeles (applause) for never letting go of B.Y.A.'s or Ima's goal. Congratulations! Also to AUF's Chairman, our beloved Archbishop Aniceto (applause) and the board of trustees of AUF for furthering the university's reach and the positive benefits of quality education that AUF offers.

We know all about your education because my family has been involved in the growth of AUF. My late father, President Diosdado Macapagal, was Chairman of the Board of Angeles University Foundation until he passed away in 1997. And when he passed away, I succeeded him in the board until I got elected Vice-President and I had to comply with the constitutional prohibition of having another job, so I had to resign from my seat in the board. My brother Boboy took my place and now his wife sits as a member of the board. Thus, the Macapagal family is familiar with the endeavors of this university to develop the talents of our Kabalens to world-class levels. (applause) Four of us having sat in the board, we know the sacrifices of the Angeles family to maintain the university's standards. Congratulations! To the Angeles family for five decades of selflessness. (applause)

Ima's life leaves many in awe of the person and the drama in her life. But I understand that many more will come to know her story by the way of a book, a book that will teach us how to dream. Beyond the drama of the stage and the printed word, every one of us here should be encouraged by her example. Ima dared to dream big, and she gave her best to attain it.

She had her vision to bring out the best in every Kapampangan through education, and she rallied her family to achieve it. Like Ima, a leader must be driven by a strong vision for the nation and the determination to deliver a better life. I am driven by my faith in god and my faith in the people of this nation.

As a nation we have our own dream similar to the dream of Ima for Angeles University. We dream of a Philippines that's ready for first-world status in 20 years when we will dramatically have reduced poverty, created a robust middle-class and have all the marks of a modern society in strong, stable institutions. And by the time I leave the presidency in 2010, we will have launched the Philippines to be well on our way to achieving that vision. (applause)

Already we have moved mountains with our macroeconomic condition through fiscal discipline, toward a balanced budget, toward paying off our debts, and investing billions in human and physical infrastructure. One only needs to have a glimpse of our Subic-Clark-Tarlac Highway to be able to see what we mean. (applause) And these fundamentals are paying off in huge increases in investment, six million new jobs — many of them in our Clark Economic Zone where Manny was the President — and a strong peso and strong stock market.

Poverty alleviation is our overarching goal. We will focus on it in the remainder of my term. Balancing the budget is just the first step. Over the next three years, we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people. We will increase investment in our country, in our people to first of all, improve our infrastructure to create an environment in which businesses feel confident to expand and employ more people, because more jobs means less poverty; second, improve social services such as health insurance subsidies for indigent families and food-for-school nutrition programs; third, boost educational support in our efforts to reduce poverty by investing in better school buildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators.

And I am very glad to let you know that in working on our educational reform we have put together a task force to reengineer our educational system. And I am very happy to let you know that in this very small and select task force, one of the members is none other than AUF chancellor Manny Angeles. (applause)

Speaking of the next three years, aside from infrastructure, social services and education, number 4, we're cutting red tape and continuing to eliminate corruption from the system.

Our anti-corruption advisor, Tony Kwok, the former anti-corruption czar in Hong Kong who was a key player in efforts to clean up corruption there, believes that perceptions cloud the reality of our progress in the Philippines in fighting corruption. The fact is that we have taken an effort to curb graft through criminal justice, administrative controls and procedural reforms. This effort is focused on the revenue agencies, which is why they have improved their performance in recent years; on agencies that are in the frontline of day-to-day public services; and on large infrastructure projects.

For infrastructure projects, we have recently put up a procurement transparency group and a performance monitoring group or what we call an infrastructure monitoring task force projects performance tracking system, and both the procurement transparency group and the infrastructure performance tracking system, both have very heavy civil society participation.

We take the issue of corruption seriously. We believe that perception will match reality sooner or later. However, this is a problem that has plagued the Philippines and other countries for generations. It won't be eliminated overnight but progress is being made. And we need that also to eradicate poverty which as I said earlier is the central mission of this government and our society.

As we enter the holiday season — and I'm so happy to see all these beautiful lanterns made in San Fernando — it is essential that every person of means helps those in need. Every person of means must aim to be like Mrs. Barbara Yap-Angeles, who was not born poor but her heart was with the poor. She never faltered in her belief, as Manny said, that education is the best way out of poverty. She influenced the lives of thousands of our Kabalens by helping them acquire quality and affordable higher education.

The social impact of the institution she founded is just as laudable as she was: becoming a foundation; pioneering in the “study now, pay later plan” which opened windows to a better life to thousands of poor but bright Kapampangans; achieving a faculty-student ratio of 1:16, way above the average ratio of most Philippine colleges and universities; (applause) and keeping Barbara Yap-Angeles' missionary zeal alive by offering scholarships and financial grants to 16 percent of the student population. (applause)

Ima understood only too well that education is a core value of Philippine society and family life. She understood that the hardworking men and women of this nation put their family first. And the best gift any family can give to a child, and indeed I must say any nation can give to its people, is access to a good education.

Education is the foundation of economic prosperity and individual liberty, justice and self-worth. That is why in the government, we will continue to invest in new school construction at the elementary school level and bolster our college scholarship program for those high school students ready for higher education.

Teachers are the backbone of our educational system. Without these selfless men and women, our children would fall short of their dreams and aspirations. We're deeply indebted to the hard work and dedication of all our teachers. Their work is noble and patriotic. They deserve the praise and respect of every Filipino.

That is why on the occasion of the 100th birthday of Mrs. Barbara Yap-Angeles, we are passing on to Angeles University, providentially, a contribution made to me this morning by the Philippine Chinese Chamber of Commerce of five million pesos. (applause) Because I asked earlier how much is one year's tuition, and so I calculated this five million would provide one year scholarship for 100 education students. (applause) But because of our discussion in the task force on education yesterday when we said we have to improve English teaching, I would like this to be for scholarships of education students majoring in English. (applause)

Indeed, much needs to be done in our country to improve human rights, secure budgets for health care and education, invest more in peace and order, and advance our national interests with other nations on trade, economy and security issues.

Unity is a real aspiration that manifests itself through progress.

The preoccupation with politics, past and present, does not promote stability or policy continuity or security or the peace and order our country needs to continue to move forward. Through the end of my term, we aim to provide increased political stability, sustained economic growth and lasting peace and order. We will not let the nation slip into instability. We want this to be an era of peace, reassurance and hope.

Our goal is to leave this nation stronger and more stable; to provide more jobs and build more schools; and to lift the poor up through investments in infrastructure, health care, better housing and improved social justice.

Be assured that we lead with a steady hand to guide the nation to a new election and new leadership. We will not falter in keeping our hand steady on the tiller of the ship of state. And so, I would just like to say that in making sure that we keep our leadership steady, we are inspired by the leadership of the founder of Angeles University, Ima Barbara Yap-Angeles. (applause)

As we exercise leadership and as we promote education, on this 100th birthday of B.Y.A., we remember the lessons that she gave us.

Thank you to the Angeles clan, once again, for perpetuating the memory of Ima Barbara Yap-Angeles, a great Kapampangan and a great Filipino.

Thank you and merry christmas to everyone! (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech During the 45th Anniversary of Angeles University Foundation and the 100th birth anniversary of Dr. Barbara D. Yap-Angeles. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135613/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2323&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Human Rights Celebration 2007

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Human Rights Celebration 2007

[Delivered at the Heroes' Hall, Malacañang, December 12, 2007]

As Chairwoman Quisumbing said earlier, this year's celebration of human rights is a milestone because the United Nations just launched a full year of activities to mark the 60th year of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. And we are very proud that the Philippines was one of the first signatories of that declaration.

In the spirit of the constructive interaction urged by the United Nations, we thank our international partners – represented by the diplomatic corps here – who have gone beyond just expressing concern about human rights issues in the Philippines but they have gone on to extend offers of cooperation and assistance to strengthen our capacities to address these issues.

We take the Alston report seriously today, as we did when it was made almost a year ago.

Napakalungkot ang kasaysayan ng ating bansa sa karahasan sa pulitika ng kaliwa at kanan. Inaasahan nating wakasan nang lubusan ang gantihang ito. Walang dapat mamatay dahil sa kanilang paniniwala sa pulitika.

Kinokondena natin ang anuman at lahat ng pagpaslang ng mga aktibista at mamahayag. Nakapanayam na natin ang mga pangkat ng peryodista at gayon din mga human rights activists. Nakikiisa tayo sa kanilang pagkasuklam.

Sinusunod natin ang mga rekomendasyon ng Melo Commission, kabilang ang pagtalaga ng mga bukod na korte, pabilisan ang paglilitis, gayon din ang mas malawak na pagtulong sa mga biktima, at dagdag-pondo para sa mas maraming imbestigador.

Gaya nang pinakita ng ating video mahigit limampung kaso na ang nasa hukuman. And ating hinihiling sa mga korte na tuparin ang panukala ng Chief Justice para sa animnapung araw na walang tigil na paglilitis.

And we have told our military, and if they have taken it to heart, that if there are rogue elements, they must be brought to justice. They know and we all know that no person is above the law in this nation. Whether a former president, a member of the military, or an average citizen, all men and women in this nation are equal before the law. The death of any Filipino in pursuit of their right to political expression violates human liberty.

But let it also be noted that terrorists like the Abu Sayyaf and armed communists are a threat to the sovereignty of the nation. And they must be checked once and for all.

We will continue to bring perpetrators to justice, work with congress to pass new laws to protect victims and jail criminals, and the other legislation as recommended by chairwoman Quisumbing and exhort the nation to leave behind its terrible legacy of political violence and clan vendettas.

Thankfully, as was dramatically shown in the video, political killings are way down this year. We have been meeting with success in the fight to put an end to the legacy of political violence in the Philippines. But we should not rest until we reach zero political violence.

The Presidential Human Rights Committee, mentioned in the video, chaired by Executive Secretary Ermita, is now mandated to begin activities necessary to bring all stakeholders in consultation for a national human rights action plan and program, which will set the roadmap for human rights work for the next five years.

We urge all sectors of our nation to participate.

The United Nations Country Team is supporting our national action plan. Thank you. And through its various agencies, helping us to promote the rights of children, women and other vulnerable sectors as described in our video. Japan, the U.S., New Zealand are working with our investigative and security sectors which protect our society from lawless elements. And we look forward to hearing soon from the European Union on the kind of assistance it can extend to us.

Gaya nang sinabi natin, hindi natin pinapahintulutan ang anumang uri ng paglabag sa karapatang pantao. Subalit liwanagin natin ang ilang bagay: gaya nang sinabi ko doon sa video, isinusulong ko mismo ang prosesong pangkapayapaan sa mindanao sa bagong antas ng talastasan, nakatutok sa interfaith dialogue, kaunlaran ng ekonomiya at seguridad para sa lahat ng panig. Kabalikat natin dito ang maraming bansa. Ang kapayapaan doon sa Mindanao ay isyu ng karapatang pantao, gaya nang paglaya sa kahirapan, na siyang pangunahin nating hangarin.

We are making progress in alleviating poverty which as is part of the theme today is closely intertwined with human rights. The rate of poverty is down. Employment is up. Our education and health care services to the poor have vastly improved. We have a long way to go, we know, but only through a strong economy can we improve the plight of the poor. To that end, we have turned the corner on our economy.

While we face short-term challenges in meeting our projections, for example in the BIR, our revenues are up this year compared to 2006. Our credit rating agencies recognize that the new revenue sources which congress passed in the last session are here to stay, that our budget will be balanced, and this is the reason why our stock market is up and the peso is strong. This allows us to invest in job creation, better health care and more educational opportunities. These are the keys to lifting the poor up. We are doing that in that magnitude for the first time in a generation. We are optimistic.

We envision the Philippines that is ready to reach first-world status in 20 years, when we will have dramatically reduced poverty, created a robust middle-class and have all the hallmarks of a modern society in strong, stable institutions. One of these institutions which we have all agreed that must be strengthened is the Commission on Human Rights.

And therefore, we endorse all the recommendations and request made by Chairperson Quisumbing earlier; measures that will protect its fiscal autonomy – which means that Secretary Ermita will have to transmit the appropriate instruction to the department of budget and management; measures that will strengthen its financial resources; measures that will give it quasi-judicial powers and this would be in the realm of legislation.

A strong and independent commission is vital to the protection and promotion of human rights. And we will ask the DBM to study how the savings of the Commission on Human Rights can be applied to other programs and salary augmentation rather than being returned to the National Treasury.

We can claim advances on human rights because the Philippines is the most democratic country in the region. The universal declaration of human rights underscores that all of us have a responsibility to respect, promote and protect human rights not only within our respective national borders but throughout the world.

We stated unequivocally at the United Nations in September and again in Singapore just a few weeks ago that Aung San Suu Kyi must be released now. The government there needs to deal with her as a genuine political force and move quickly toward a democratic path. For its part, now that ASEAN has taken tangible steps to be a true union, it must accept its responsibility to advance the cause of economic and social justice within its membership.

Malaking halaga ang ibinibigay ng Pilipinas sa ating mga responsibilidad sa mundo, mula sa ASEAN hanggang sa pagpapadala ng mga pwersang pangkapayapaan sa mga bansang may labanan sa daigdig. We are firm believer in our commitment to be a true global citizen to advance the cause of human rights, economic progress and mutual security to secure global peace. And we're gratified that both the U.N. High Commissioner for Human Rights and the Special Rapporteur, Mr. Alston, have commended the Philippines for being a good international citizen, open to scrutiny on our human rights challenges.

Yes, we acknowledge the challenges. And today, we repeat our strong commitment to move onward and upward in our shared mission for human rights in the Philippines and in the world community.

Mabuhay ang karapatang pantao!

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches [of] Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the Region V Peace and Security Assembly

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Region V Peace and Security Assembly

[Delivered in Masbate, December 13, 2007]

Mga problema ng kapayapaan at katiwasayan ay pinahihirapan pa rin ang Bicol Peninsula at ang mga islang probinsya ng Catanduanes at Masbate.

The Communist rebels have spent years as a low-level threat. It is time for their disruption and violation of human rights to be put to rest so that the nation can move ahead. They impede the progress and development of a number of rural areas. They are responsible for a wide range of human rights abuses. If we are to become a first world country, we have to put a stop to their ideological nonsense and their criminal acts once and for all. It is either get rid of them now, or get rid of them later. Whatever happens, they must be stopped.

Kailangang harapin natin itong hamon katabi ng hirap ng gutom na nanggaling sa lubhang kahirapan at pinalala ng mga tama ng malalakas na bagyo na dumaan sa Bicol sa nakaraang dalawang taon.

We can't say that we have moved forward as a nation if we don't lift up the poor and hungry amongst us. Let us be a society measured by our ability to live by our faith.

Our long term vision is for the Philippines to join the ranks of first world nations in 20 years. To do so, we will need a robust middle class, world class infrastructure and strong institutions of government. Yet in the near term, we must address the very real issues of hunger and poverty that affects us here and now.

Those living in poverty have declined, but we must accelerate the trend to eliminate poverty more aggressively. That is why, during the holiday season and beyond, we will do everything in our power to bring rice to those who need it most and work hard to protect the poor from high prices.

Rice is not only a staple for our people. It symbolizes our ability to deliver on our promise to feed those less fortunate. We are committed to ensuring that the needy throughout Region 5 have access to affordable rice during this holiday season.

In addition, we will have a Christmas rice distribution to the poorest of the poor of Masbate and Catanduanes, which are among the provinces in the country most vulnerable to hunger.

The way to peace isn't through the barrel of a gun. Rather it begins with providing a person a job, food on the table and human dignity. And central to that success is to invest in the people – in education, healthcare, roads, bridges and schools. We are making those investments. It is working.

Education – We are particular about increasing the number of high school scholarships under the GATSPE or voucher system in Camarines Sur. I am instructing the Department of Education to provide 4,000 scholarships to private high schools since there are not enough public high schools but a surplus of private high schools.

I would also like 4,000 high school scholarships to private schools given out here in Masbate which about the same shortage of public high schools as Camarines Sur.

Healthcare – Health care is also high in our list. In addition to the free indigent health insurance program carried out by PhilHealth, 315 Botika ng Barangays throughout the region sell affordable medicine.

We will increase the BnB's, paying more attention to the thickly populated provinces of Camarines Sur and Albay, but we must also increase the number of BnB's in Sorsogon which has only 5 BnB's now and Catanduanes where only 6 are currently operating.

I have also identified the Bicol Training Hospital in Legazpi City to be regional Heart and Lung Center.

Roads – We must always maintain the Quirino Highway and Andaya Highways in good condition. We must finish the road through Partido District so that travel to Catanduanes will be shorter.

Schools – The last time we were in Bicol, the Regional Disaster Coordinating Council reported that the school building repair under the Bicol CARE fund was far from completed. We are instructing the DepEd to finish them by Christmastime.

The positive impact of these projects cannot be overstated: from health care to building schools, the outreach builds more than buildings – it builds trust, which is the basis for effective and lasting peace.

Importante sa seguridad ang pag-iwas ng sakuna, lalo na iyong mga dinadaan ng bagyo gaya ng Region 5. Kapuri-puri ang mga plano ng mga local na opisyal para sa paghahanda sa mga kalamidad. Lalo na iyong mga pre-emptive measure sa nakaraang dalawang bagyo.

Ang mga pagpupulong na ginawaga natin sa kapayapaan ay nagpapakita ng suporta mula sa baba para sa ating programa ng amnestiya. Congress has demonstrated that it can produce legislation that improves the quality of life of all Filipinos. The most notable recent example is the 2008 budget especially for healthcare and education.

But we need the Congressional concurrence to the Amnesty Proclamation to improve human rights and invest more in peace and order.

Coupled with amnesty is our new paradigm for peace in Region 5. At a time when hard power has not proven its value in the world, our model for dealing with the insurgency in Region 5 focuses on a unique combination of soft and hard power to promote peace. We meld together confidence-building measures grounded on dialogue and investments in economic and basic infrastructure development.

Kailangan masigasig nating itulak ang pagkumpleto ng mga importanteng proyektong tutulak ng turismo sa rehiyon.

Kaya ng inanunsiyo natin sa mga State of the Nation Address, magkakaroon ng Region 5 ng international airport sa Daraga, dahil ito ang pinagkasunduan ng mga gobernador. Gagawa rin tayo ng maliit na airport sa Bulan at papahabain natin ang runway sa Pili. Ang roll-on-roll-off ferry port and road system ay dadaan sa sa Esperanza, Aroroy, Burias at Pasacao. Ang mga ito ay mga importanteng koneksyon ng Central at Eastern Nautical Highways na magpapadali ng pagdala at pagbaba ng presyo ng pagkain.

Karamihan sa mga paliparan at pantalang ito ay inulat ng Pro Performance System Task Force na nahuhuli dahilan sa bagyo, technical or pera. Inaatasan ko ang DOTC at PPA na bilisan ang resolusyon ng mga technical issue para bilisan itong mga proyekto.

Regular na nag-uulat sa inyong lingcod ang Pro Performance Task Force at ang Procurement Transparency Group tungkol sa kalagayan ng importanteng imprastraktura. Inaasahan nating marinig ang higit na progreso sa mga proyekto dito.

Gusto nating mamulaklak nang husto ang turismo ng Bicol: trade and agriculture to bloom fully: na ang Mt. Mayon sa Albay, Donsol sa Sorsogon, Rodeo ng Masbate, wakeboarding sa Camarines Sur, at surfing sa Camarines Norte at Catanduanes ay magdala ng libu-libong visita mula sa loog ng bansa at sa ibayong dagat.

Binabati natin ang ating mga sandatahang lakas sa kanilang mabayaning pagsisikap. Nagluluksa tayo sa dalawampu't dalawang sundalo at pulis na nasawi sa labanan mula Enero nitong taon. Ang mga rebeldeng komunista ay hinohostage ang Bicol sa kanilang agenda ng kaguluhan ngunit hindi tayo mapipigil sa ating layunin, na magdala ng pangmatagalang kapayapaan sa rehiyon. Ang opensibang military kontra sa mga komunistang rebelde ay ipagpapatuloy, hindi bilang kilos ng benggansa kundi bilang estratehiya upang ipanalo ang kapayapaan.

Ngunit, we deplore any and all killings of political activists and journalists. No person is above the law in this nation. Whether a former president, member of the military or an average citizen, all men and women in this nation are equal before the law. The death of any Filipino citizen in pursuit of their right to political expression violates human liberty.

We will continue to bring perpetrators to justice, work with Congress to pass laws to protect victims and jail criminals. We exhort the nation to leave behind the terrible legacy of political violence and clan vendetta. Thankfully, political killings are down this year but we will not rest until we reach zero.

We have also told our military in no uncertain terms that if there are rogue elements, they must be brought to justice.

But terrorists like armed communists are a threat to the sovereignty of the nation and must be checked once and for all.

The people of Bicol dream of leaving to their children a prosperous and peaceful Region 5.

Thank you and mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech During the Region V Peace and Security Assembly. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135603/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2315&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 7th National Convention of the Trade Union Congress of the Philippines and the 32nd Anniversary Celebration of the Occupational Safety and Health Center

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 7th National Convention of the Trade Union Congress of the Philippines and the 32nd Anniversary Celebration of the Occupational Safety and Health Center

[Delivered in North Avenue, Diliman, Quezon City, December 14, 2007]

At gusto kong batiin si President Democrito Mendoza, hindi lamang siya'y Spiderman o Superman, pwede pa sa High School Musical.

Hindi ko na babatiin isa-isa ang mga narito kasi I have to conserve my voice. May pharyngitis ako and this is my last speaking engagement for the next three days, kinansel ko na lahat ang iba. Pero TUCP hindi ko pwedeng ikansel.

Binabati ko kayo sa inyong kumbensyon. Imagine 32 years old na kayo since 1975. Pinakamalaki sa Pilipinas at pinakamatagal and long lasting and long surviving. Congratulations! At nakakatuwang pakinggan yung talakay ninyo sa pagpapalawak ng mga benepisyo para sa ating manggagawa at kanilang pamilya. You want to go beyond the traditional services that a regular labor organization renders.

Nais kong bigyan ng matinding pansin ang paghahanap ng trabaho, ang pakikipag-ugnay sa mga trade unions sa ibang bansa para sa proteksyon ng ating manggagawa doon sa ibang bansa, pagtatayo ng training centers at pagbibigay ng scholarships sa mga anak ng unyonista.

Dito sa training center gaya nang sabi ni Manong Mocring kaagapay ninyo ang TESDA sa pagbibigay ng pagsasanay, at dahil dito lalo naging competitive ang mga manggagawa ng TUCP dito at sa ibang bansa. Bahagi ang TUCP sa apat na milyong Pilipinong naka-enroll sa ibat-ibang programa ng TESDA at mga accredited voc-tech schools.

Maraming programa ay dumadaan dito nga sa TUCP, congratulations! Nais ninyong bigyang pansin ang pagtatayo ng grocery at tindahan kung saan mas mura ang bilihin. Alam ko na ayun pa yun ang ginagawa ni Boy Herrera, kumukuha ng mga supply sa ibang mga trade union sa ibang bansa. Pero maganda rin na meron tayong paraan kung paano mag partner dahil nag tatayo ng mga Tindahan Natin kung saan nakabili ng murang bigas, noodles at pwede nating ipatayo and mga ito sa mga lugar ng bansa kung saan nakakaranas ng gutom. At ngayon na may halos na walong libong Tindahan Natin sa bansa, magbalikatan tayo, maglagay tayo ng TUCP Tindahan natin outlets sa mga tindahan ni Boy Herrera.

Nais din niyong bigyan pansin ang paglikha ng negosyo para tumaas ang pondo ng inyong samahan at pagtulong sa mga miyembro sa pagtatayo ng kani-kanilang negosyo.

We already see signs of the current benign, stable growth conditions sparking a wave of entrepreneurial activity in the Philippines. And it will not only help you raise money for your union, trade union, it will also help you become the vibrant middle-class we need, if we are to join the ranks of first-world in 20 years. In several key areas we have promoted a new entrepreneurial class. One is in microfinance, where the system has extended more than P80 billion loans to low income men and women who want to start their own business. In addition, through our Central Bank, we have created a series of investment incentives and programs for foreign remittance to be invested into capital enterprises.

Sa micro at SME sector, na yung dati kasama si Cerge Remonde na kasama ko na ngayon ay nakalikha tayo ng mahigit dalawang milyong trabaho mula 2004. Nakapagpautang ng P190 billion sa mahigit tatlong milyong micro at SME, at marami dito ay manggagawa.

Siguro Art Brion, abogado ka naman, pag-aralan mo kung papano ang pwede nating gawing microfinance conduit ang TUCP. Yan ay isang magandang negosyo.

Nais din niyong bigyan pansin ang pagtatayo ng murang pabahay, sabi ni Manong Mocring, at tulad ng gusto ninyo, ginagawa nating abot kaya ang mga programang pabahay para sa ating manggagawa. Ibinaba ang interest rate ng pag-ibig housing loans sa 6 percent na lamang, noong araw 9 percent. Ang interes naman para sa may 300,000 pesos and above ay bumaba na sa 9 percent mula 10 percent. At pinahaba rin ang repayment period hanggang tatlung taon. Magandang negosyo na ang TUCP pumasok sa housing for the workers.

Nais niyong bigyan pansin ang pagkakaloob ng mga tulong pang-kalusugan. Katugma nang inyong programa ang Philhealth program. Over the next three years, we will invest in our country and our people to improve services like health insurance for ingredient families. Ngayon, 63 million na ang mga Pilipinong kasama sa programang ito. Hindi lang mahihirap, lahat ng Pilipino kasama sa programang ito. Hindi lang mahirap, lahat ng Pilipino. Out of the 85 million Filipinos 63 are already covered by health insurance. At doon lubhang mahihirap na kasapi ng TUCP pwede nating tulungan bayaran and first premium ng mga kasapi ninyo para makatulong at umaangat ang kanyang kalusugan.

Yung mga Botika ng Bayan at Botika ng Barangay, nakakabili ng gamot na kalahating presyo. Meron na tayong almost 10 000 Botika ng Barangay. Ang Botika ng Bayan naman ay may more than 1,000. Yung isa over the counter, yung isa kasama ang prescription. Umaasa tayong maipasa na ng kongreso ang batas ng cheap medicine para kahit na wala sa botika ng barangay ay pwedeng makabili ng kalahating-presyong gamot. Pero in the meantime, pwede rin magkaroon ng TUCP Botika ng Bayan. Magandang negosyo rin yun ng TUCP.

Over the next three years, we'll also invest to improve our infrastructure. Kasi sabi niyo gusto niyong makahanap ng trabaho sa mga walang trabaho at kayo ang magiging trabaho niyo yung jobnet. Ang trabaho naman ng pamahalaan is to create an environment in which businesses feel confident to expand and employ more people because more jobs means less poverty.

A strong infrastructure network is the backbone of a modern nation. That's why this year, we're spending 50 percent more on infrastructure than in 2001 when our administration took over. And we're able to do that because of the additional resources generated by our economic reforms. This is part of our 1.7 trillion-peso plan to invest in social and physical infrastructure which includes billions of pesos in education, health care and training along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines. This will attract more investment and create more jobs gaya nang sabi ninyo. Mas maraming company ang maglilista sa Jobnet.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with one of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. In 2001, six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on our tax cheats, strengthen the peso, move the stock market. No one thought we could bring our consolidated public sector deficit budget into balance, or lower our debts and raise employment, but we have. Meron na tayo yatang sa ating consolidated national sector deficit ay 62 billion na yata ang ating surplus. At yung ating national government din ay bumababa dahil lumalakas ang piso.

Employment in April 2007 Tama ba ito, Art? – increased by 3.1 percent with around one million new employed workers. Employment was raised to 33.7 million from 32.7 million in April last year. So, we have kept up with our average of one million jobs a year, the highest in any administration.

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Investments are pouring in and the peso is strong. I know this is a two-edged sword and we want to help our overseas workers cope with a strong peso. Our stock market has reached historic heights and we have created six million jobs in six years. And the world is taking notice, I believe because we have such productive workers and such rational and reasonable trade unions like TUCP, the Philippines offers one of the best values in Asia for investors. Marami doon ay dahil sa TUCP.

As I said earlier, we want to join the ranks of first-world nations in 20 years. As I said earlier, we'll need a robust middle-class world class, world class infrastructure, strong institutions of government. Yet in the near term we must address the issues of hunger and poverty. We can't say we have moved forward if we don't lift up the poor and the hungry among us. Let's be measured by our ability to live our faith.

Patuloy tayong nakikibaka sa kagutuman. Noong isang taon, bumalangkas tayo ng plano para labanan ang kagutuman. Nakasentro ang plano sa murang pagkain, tulong sa nagugutom pagtrabaho sa kalsada at kabukiran, gulayang pampamilya, microfinance, at dagdag sahod sa ilalim ng mga Regional Wage Boards.

At ako ay nasisiyahan at ipinagmamalaki ko na sa Regional Wage Boards halos lahat ng employees representatives ay galing sa TUCP. Nakabase ang hunger mitigation program sa pagkikilala na may gutom: una, dahil kulang ang pagkaing abot-kaya; at pangalawa, walang pambili sa pagkain. Sa ganun, kailangan paramihin ang murang pagkain – supply side; at palaguin ang kita at hanapbuhay – demand side.

Sa supply side, bahagi ng plano: palakasin ang produksiyon ng pagkain; pahasayin ang sistema ng paghatid sa pagkain. On the demand side: kailangan dagdagan ang kita ng tao; ituro ang wastong pagkain; palaganapin ang natural family planning.

Upang palakasin ang produksiyon ng pagkain, isinusulong natin ang mga programang manukan, babuyan, bakahan, pagsasaka, patubig, gulayan ng masa, at pagpapalago muli ng mga kakahuyan at palaisdaan sa dagat. Dito pwedeng pumasok ang TUCP, pwedeng tulungan ng pamahalaan.

To enhance efficiency of logistics and food delivery the program consists of: barangay food terminals. Pwede ring maglagay ang TUCP ng bagsakan ng pagkain aside from Tindahan Natin, kaya makakatulong kayo rito; roll-on/roll-off ferry routes. Meron na kayong mga pinapatakibong pantalan ba't hindi kayo magpatakbo ng roll-on/roll-off ferry boat mismo?; farm- to-market roads; efficient local transport in the provinces; the food-for-school program; an NGO network to support feeding programs; farmers option to buy back their produce. Ito ang paraan upang maging mas mabilis ang pagdala ngpagkain.

On the demand side of hunger mitigation, putting more money in people's pockets, the program includes: more aggressive micro financing. Kaya kabalikat kayo; aggressive training. Kabalikat din kayo.

To provide good nutrition, the program includes: social marketing; promoting exclusive breastfeeding; nutrition education in schools. And to promote natural family planning, responsible parenthood programs are being done, kasama ang birth spacing.

It's really time, I'm glad that TUCP is reinventing itself, because it's really time for the nation to focus on issues that are important to our future: creating more jobs, keeping prices down, providing affordable housing, providing access to education for our children.

Malaking tulong ang pagtatayo ninyo ng mga eskwelahan para maibsan ang ating pangangailangan para sa edukasyon. Education is a core value of Philippine society and life. The hardworking men and women of this nation put their family first. And the best gift any family can give to a child is access to a good education.

Education is the foundation of economic prosperity and individual liberty. That's why we will continue to invest in new school construction at the elementary school level and to bolster our college scholarship program for schools ready for higher education. Pwede din tayong tumulong art sa pagbigay ng scholarship sa mga anak ng TUCP members. Ikaw na lang mag-aayos sa CHED.

Teachers are the backbone of our educational system. Without these selfless men and women our children would fall short of their dreams and aspiration. We're indebted to their hard work and dedication. Their work is noble. They deserve the praise and respect of every Filipino.

Noong araw dahil ang teachers ay napakarami, half a million, pag nagbibigay ng extra bonus ang gobyerno hindi kasama ang teachers. Pero sa ating administrasyon sinasama natin ang mga guro sa ating extra Christmas bonus.

At sana yung PGEA, na kasama ng TUCP, ay mag-recruit ng mga guro bilang kasapi ninyo para mas marami tayong kabalikat sa pagpapalano ng kung anu-ano ang maganda sa mga guro.

Lubos ang aking tiwala na magtatagumpay kayo sa inyong bagong balakin. Sana rin ay ipagpatuloy ninyo ang suportang laging binibigay sa inyong lingkod.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches [of] Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Speech of President Arroyo during the Infant and Young Child Feeding Orientation [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa oryentasyon ng Infant and Young Child Feeding

[Ipinahayag sa Manila Hotel, ika 17 ng Disyembre, 2007]

Thank you very much, Secretary Duque. Dr. of the World Health Organization; Dr. from UNICEF, Bernie Flores of NNC, chiefs of hospital; chiefs of medical professional services, participants from private hospitals:

Nagtitipun-tipon tayo ngayon upang protektahan at alagaan ang ating pinakamahalagang yaman: ang ating mga bata. Nagkakaisa ang ating pamahalaan, lipunang sibil at pribadong sektor sa likod ng pinakamahalagang isyu sa ating panahon: kung papano maka-ahon sa kahirapan.

Sa araw na ito, ang Manila Declaration on Infant and Young Child Feeding ay lumilikha ng isang hakbang upang wakasan ang paggutom at handugan ng malusog na panimula ang mga bata.

A strong and healthy child is as valuable as a strong a healthy nation.

Naglalayon ang infant and child feeding na punuin ang ating mga bata ng pag-asa. Kailangan ng bawat bata ang “healthy start” o malusog na simula ng buhay. Kaya sabi ko kay Secretary Duque itong mga programa sa loob ng declaration tawagin nating healthy start o malusog na simulang programang IYCF.

Tayo ay gumawa ng mahihirap na desisyon para makalikom ng bagong buwis upang ang pinakamahihirap nating mga bata ay hindi magutom. Sa salaping ating kinikita ng ating bansa tayo ay makakatulong na palakihin ang ating mga anak sa pagkaing wasto at masustansiya.

Over the next three years, ang ating plano ay ihatid ang mga biyaya ng malakas at matatag na ekonomiya sa mga mamamayan. Wala nang mas mahalaga kaysa mamuhunan sa kalusugan at kapakanan ng ating mga bata sa pamamagitan nitong infant and young child feeding, o “malusog na simula.”

Kailangan nating gawin ang lahat ng nasa ating kapangyarihan bilang isang lipunan, pamahalaan at indibiduwal na mamamayan upang alagaan ang ating kinabukasan. At ang ating kinabukasan ay ang mga bata.

Sa ating paglilibot sa ating bansa, nakakausap natin ang mga ina at mga ama na ang tanging hiling ay mabigyan ang kanilang mga anak ng mga pagkakataong hindi sila nagkaroon. Ang ating “malusog na simula” o healthy start program ay hakbang tungo sa katuparan ng mga pangarap na yan.

Ang ating adhikain na maitayo ang iisang Pilipinas ay nagsisimula sa pagtitiyak na ang ating mga anak ay mabigyan ng healthy start of malusog na simula.

Bilang nakatatanda sa kanila, may pananagutan tayo sa mga bata sa buong pilipinas na tiyakin na ang kanilang mga pangunahing panganga- ilangang pagkain ay matugunan upang sila ay makapag-ambag ng tama sa katatagan ng ating bansa.

Infant and Young Child Feeding, na tatawagin na nating “malusog na simula,” is a component of a broader accelerated hunger mitigation program.

We continue to face the challenge of cutting the incidence of hunger.

Last year, we formulated a plan to cut hunger, it is centered on low-cost food, food aid, roadworks and rural building jobs, family farms, microfinance and regional wage adjustments.

The hunger mitigation program framework proceeds from the recognition that hunger is caused by (1) unavailable or insufficient food to eat and (2) no money to buy food.

Therefore hunger mitigation consists of supply and demand measures.

On the supply side, the program is (1) to increase food production and enhance efficiency of logistics and food delivery. On the demand side, the program is (1) to put more money in poor people's pockets, (2) promote good nutrition and (3) promote natural family planning.

Let me share with you the elements of this framework: to increase food production, the emphasis is on productivity programs including livestock, crops, regeneration of mangrove and coastal fishery, farm family or (gulayan ng masa) and irrigation.

Kahapon nagsimbang gabi kami sa Smokey Mountain at dun inagurahan yung kanilang green house yung kanilang gulayan ng masa kung saan tinatanim nila lahat ng ingredients ng pinakbet.

To enhance efficiency of logistics and food delivery, we have:

A) The Barangay Food Terminals. Eto yung mga bagsakan na nilalagay natin sa mahihirap na lugar. Halimbawa sa smokey mountain maglalagay tayo ng bagsakan sa tabi ng ilog para yung mga barge na nanggaling sa palawan ibat-ibang lugar ng mimaropa ay papasok sa ilog at ibabagsak na lang doon sa river banks sa smokey mountain.

B) At saka yung Tindahan Natin. So gaya nang sabi ko yung Barangay Food Terminal bagsakan ito in the areas thickly populated by the poor. Whereas yung Tindahan Natin ay parang sari-sari store actually sari-sari store ang itsura pero specialty store ang concept. Makakabili dito ng murang bigas at noodles na kinakain sa araw araw.

Inuna nating ipinatayo ang mga ito sa mga lugar kung saan maraming nakakaranas ng gutom. Ngayon ay mayroon nang halos walong libong Tindahan Natin outlets natin sa bansa.

Yung logistics kasama dito nandun din yung roll-on- roll-off ferry ports kasi mas mura yun kaysa yung mga sinasakay sa narko ang pagkain. Sinasakay na lamang yung delivery truck. Tapos pinapabuksan din natin yung mga private ports saka private shipping. Sa ganun mas marami. When you have big supply of ports, you have lower prices ... Kumpetensya sa isa-isa.

Tapos yung farm to market roads para mura ang transportasyon mula sa sakahan hanggang sa palengke.

At saka yung efficient local transport at the local government level. Pinapaalala natin yung mga local government units ay walang kapangyarihang mag kolekta ng mga fees sa mga truck na dumadaan lamang sa kanila.

And then we have the food for school program of the national government, kung saan binibigyan ng isang kilong bigas ang mga pre-school, day care at grade one sa mga food poor areas para iuwi sa kanilang pamilya.

Dapat nating busugin ang mga puso at isipan ng ating mga bata sa pamamagitan ng biyaya ng edukasyon, subali't bago mangyari ito, kailangan muna nila ang busog na tiyan.

Dapat harapin ng ating mga bata ang bawat araw na masaya, malusog at puno ng pag-asa. Dapat panabikan nila lamang ang karunungan at hindi ang pangunahing kailangan ng pagkain.

Layunin din ng programang ito na mabigay ng wastong pagkain sa pamamagitan ng early childhood care and development system, sang ayon sa Early Childhood Care and Development Law na mukhang nakakalimutan natin ma-implement.

The ECCD system includes nutrition service programs that provide for the needs of young children from birth to age six.

One of its objectives is to achieve improved infant and child survival rates by ensuring that adequate health and nutrition programs are accessible to young children and their mothers from the pre-natal period throughout their early childhood years.

Bagamat hindi pa natin fully implemented ito, with what we have been achieving so far, we are gratified that according to the millennium development goals monitor, the child mortality rate has been reduced from 40/1000 live births. Now, we are down to 32/1000. And we're very much on track with the millennium development goal to reduce it to 27/1000 by 2015. Congratulations to all of you involved in child nutrition! (applause)

Ang pagkakaloob ng sustansiya sa mga bata na kung hindi ay gugutumin ang pinakamahalagang bagay na magagawa ng ating bansa. Ito ay kagandahang asal, panglipunang pangangailangan at kagalingang pangkabuhayan.

In our hunger mitigation program, we also create an NGO network to support feeding programs.

And we also have now given the farmers' option to buy back the rice they sell the NFA if they can get a higher price outside from the traders.

Now on the other side, the demand side: to put more money in poor people's pockets, the program includes:

First, improve productivity in coconut areas by promoting coconut coir, virgin coconut oil and other value-added products, and coconut production. Kasi ang pinakamahihirap na magsasaka atin ay yung mga magniniyog.

Second, more aggressive microfinancing.

Third, maximize employment in the construction and maintenance of farm-to-market roads, irrigation and road maintenance. Ewan ko kung nakikita niyo pag kayo ay dumadaan sa kalsada yung mga naka asul na tshirt na naglilinis linis dyaan sa mga shrubs yan ang mga tinatawag nating oyster out-of-school-youth. At yan ay para nga magkaron ng income yung kanilang pamilya.

At aggressive training importante .. Natin para maging competitive tayo.

And then, upland land distribution for jatropa and rubber.

And of course, to promote good nutrition, the program includes the following:

Conducting social marketing, of which this orientation is a part.

Nutrition education in schools.

And promoting breastfeeding, appropriate complementary feeding until two years of age, and increased consumption of vegetables. The promotion of breastfeeding for children up to two years old, with emphasis on exclusive breastfeeding for the infant's first six months, is our fundamental approach to reduce if not eliminate hunger among infants and the very young children.

There is no substitute for mother's milk, as most Filipinos know, but this knowledge has not been translated into practice. Our data indicate that more and more mothers are weaning their infants from breastmilk after only one month. A mere 16% of infants remain exclusively breastfed at 4-5 months, and very few are nourished by mothers' milk up to 2 years old. We must act, and act fast to ensure that the nation builders of the future are provided proper nourishment.

One immediate concern which is why we're having this is to involve all 1,426 accredited mother-baby friendly hospitals to fully implement the rooming in and breastfeeding act, the milk code and other laws on providing proper nourishment for infants. We need the strong will to make hospitals uphold our laws and work even harder to encourage other hospitals to join in our campaign.

The Supreme Court's decision upholding all but three provisions of the milk code encourages us to be more creative in advocating breastfeeding as the best way to nourish our young.

By breastfeeding, we promote natural family planning where we emphasize birth spacing.

And it is the DOH, through the national nutrition council, that oversees the implementation of the hunger mitigation program.

Labis nating nadarama ang kalagayan ng ating mga kapus-palad. Ang pagwakas ng kahirapan ang ating pangunahing kinakailangang gawin sa kasalukuyan. Itinuturing ko ito bilang personal na pananagutan at tungkulin ng ating pamahalaan na bigyan ng dignidad at ginhawa ang bawat mamamayan sa ating bayan.

Ang kadakilaan ng pagtao ay hindi maaaring matamo kung ang sambayanan ay gutom at hikahos. Matibay nating hinahangad maibsan ang di-makatao, imoral, di-makatungan at di-magaling sa pangkabuhayang kahirapan.

And I'm glad that we're making real progress in alleviating poverty. The incidence of extreme poverty is down, it's below 10% for the first time in our history. (applause)

So, the people can be assured that we lead with a heavy hand to guide the nation. That we will not falter in keeping our hand on the tiller of the ship of state.

As we enter the holiday season, it's essential that every person of means help those in need. Those of us in government should do everything in our power to be a catalyst for this process.

You—who are involved in infant and young child feeding are securing our country's future, for tomorrow belongs to today's child. And you cannot give the nation a better christmas gift than what you are giving now.

On behalf of the Filipino children, thank you. Merry christmas and best wishes for your continued success! (applause) Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Infant and Young Child Feeding Orientation. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135545/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2310&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the inauguration of the first three buildings under the “Pulis Kalinga” NCRPO Quartering Project

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the inauguration of the first three buildings under the “Pulis Kalinga” NCRPO Quartering Project

[Delivered at Camp Bagong Diwa, Bicutan, Taguig City, December 19, 2007]

Maraming salamat Secretary Puno sa iyong pagpapakilala. Maraming salamat din sa iyon... Dito ka nag christmas bagamat ang pamilya mo ay nakatira sa ibayong dagat sila ang pumunta dito kasi gusto natin iwasan ang isa pang Peninsula. (laughter/applause) Thank you. Please sit down.

General Razon, ang ating chief mamang pulis; (applause) General Versoza na siya ang namamahala sa housing. Noong araw enforcer siya, sabi ni Secretary Puno ngayon housing manager; (applause) General Barias na ang tawag ng lahat ay Richard Gerey. (laughter/applause) nagkasama kami sa isang christmas party kagabi yung pagkanta, ang pagsayaw ni Gerey ay parang si Richard Gere sa Chicago. (laughter) Pero sabi ko naman after Peninsula may ‘k.’ (applause)

Mayor Tinga of Taguig City. (applause) Talagang Global City ang Taguig, Mayor Tinga, (applause) at malaki ang tulong sa pulis, wala pang binibigay na sakit ng ulo sa pulis. In fact, ang isang selling point ng Taguig — the only rallies in Taguig are the “go kart” rallies; (laughter/applause) Attorney Joe Tale, the Chairman of Gawad Kalinga (applause) and other officials of Gawad Kalinga; other government officials, nandito nga si Thelsa Biolena representing DSWD; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Nasisiyahan tayo lahat na magkasama ang ating mga magigiting na pulis sa ilalim ng pamumuno ng numero unong mamang pulis na si Director Sonny Razon. (applause) At tayo’y narito dahil ang inyong magiting at tapat na pagtatanggol sa bayan at saligang batas dapat lamang may gantimpala mula sa sambayanan. (applause) Kaya naman nagagalak tayo mag-award ng pinakabagong imprastruktura ng PNP para sa magandang pabahay ng mga mama at aleng pulis sa Kalakhang Maynila.

Ito ang una sa, gaya nang narinig natin, labimpitong gusaling pabahay na itatayo sa Camp Bagong Diwa. Ang ganda ng presentation ni General Versoza, di ba? Yun ay para humingi ng dagdag ng pondo. (laughter/applause) Eh sabi ko naman kay Ronnie Puno, ang ating budget projections dapat by the end of November meron tayong mga 50 billion na deificit. Pero sa halip ng 50 billion na deficit meron tayong 12.0 billion na surplus. (applause) kaya sabi ko kay Ronnie, hingiin mo na kay nonoy andaya yung magagastos niyo itong buwan ng disyembre doon sa prinesenta ninyo. (applause) para sa ganun itong mga gusali na ang ganda-ganda, naka Gawad Kalinga colors pa, ay masusundan nitong iba dito sa Taguig, at yung mga binanggit na Kampo, Panopio sa Quezon City — tinatanong ko kay Ronnie, saan yung Panopio? — sa across the street from Araneta Center, biruin mo ang ganda-ganda ng location.

Doon sa San Miguel, Bulacan. Ano naman ang kasaysayan nitong San Miguel Bulacan. Ito ay isang malaking property, 1,600 hectares, tatlong beses kasinglaki ng Taguig, di ba, freddie? Na foreclose ng bangko, hinandog sa Central Bank bilang dacion en pago at yung Central Bank naman binigay sa national government bilang dibidendo instead of cash dividend. Kaya itong 1,600 ay hinati natin sa apat na bahagi — 400 hectares para sa pulis; (applause) 400 hectares para sa sundalo; (applause) 400 hectares para sa teacher; (applause) at 400 hectares para doon sa ibang government employees. (applause) kaya yan ay magiging talagang malaking government city, at nagsisimula na ba kayo ng land improvement?

Yun naman sa Camp Castañeda, doon sa Silang, Cavite. Yan yung nasa likod ng PNP Academy. Sa likod ng PNP Academy ang laki-laki pala ng lupa ng PNP doon. At kung kayo ay may bahay doon parang nandoon na kayo sa Tagaytay, kaya napakagandang lugar yun. At yung sa Baras, Rizal naman yun ang pinakita ni mamang pulis Sonny, doon sa harap meron siyang model, ito ay bagong development.

At nagpapasalamat tayo sa Gawad Kalinga foundation at nagpupugay — (applause) very characteristic yang mga kulay ng Gawad Kalinga, yang benetton colors, Gawad Kalinga colors ang tawag natin dyaan — at nagpupugay din tayo sa housing board, lalo na sa Chairman, si Deputy Director General Jess Verzosa, dahil maagang natapos ang building na ito. (applause)

And as the year ends, it symbolizes that it's time for the nation to move on and focus on issues that are important to our future: Creating more jobs, kasama na yung recruitment ng pulis; keeping prices down. Kaya dito sa ibabaw, sa bubong kasama ng programa ng Gawad Kalinga ay magtatanim kayo ng mga gulay dyaan to help reduce the demand and keep prices down; (applause) providing access to education for all our children; and providing affordable housing.

It's wise to address the root cause of the perennial issues on performance, efficiency and discipline by first making sure that the basic needs of individual personnel are taken care of. Then the other dimensions of transformation programs will follow when the foundation for individual transformation has been laid.

Sa inyong pagtataya ng buhay para sa bayan, hindi dapat ipag-alala pa ninyo ang bubong na sisilungan ng inyong pamilya. All police personnel and their families deserve to reside in decent and dignified living quarters or housing units. (applause) And this quartering project is our way of addressing the housing needs of personnel who are yet to get their own off-base housing units. Biro niyo yung mga pulis natin marami sa inyo ay nakatira sa squatter areas. Kung minsan katabi pa nga ninyo yung mga hatchet men ng mga sindikato kaya mas dapat meron kayong disentang pabahay.

Bilang kampeon ng komunidad, kayo ang nagbabantay ng pamayanan kontra sa mga kriminal at iba pang banta ng kapayapaan at kaayusan. Ipinamalas ninyo ang inyong katapatan sa tungkulin at trabaho sa tangkang pag-aalsa sa Manila Peninsula sa Makati.

Yung mga nagtangka, it's clear that the actions of these few desperate men reveal just how out of touch they are with the hopes and dreams of the average Filipino. Gusto ng mga Pilipino ang mga bagay gaya nito — katatagan sa pulitika, maliwanag na kinabukasan at sa ekonomiya at social justice. The actions of these misguided men undermine each and every one of the genuine aspirations of Filipinos, real Filipinos. Instead of working together to bring the nation together by working within our democratic process, their actions merely are fuel for selfish motives for personal gain.

But in the end, with your fighting faith, nanaig ang rule of law. Maraming salamat sa inyo. (applause) The transgressors will not hold this nation hostage with impunity. Nandoon si Geary Barias, Ground Commander. Nandoon si General Santiago ng SAF, maraming salamat din sa inyo. (applause) Siguro nami-miss ni General Ramboanga yung action. Pero never mind, general, maganda na rin ang iyong ginagawa para sa ating lipunan as head of AFPSLAI, helping to contribute housing here.

Itong mga sa halip na naglilingkod, nanggugulo paparusahan sila ng buong higpit ng batas. Justice shall be served and the interests of the people upheld.

Katatagan at kakayahan din ang ipinakita ninyo noong naresolba agad ang pagbomba sa batasan.

Sa galing at giting na ipinakita ninyo rito at sa iba pang banta sa batas at kaayusan, nagpapasalamat sa inyo ang sambayanang Pilipino. (applause)

Yung pagresolba kaagad ng kaso sa batasan shows that we have been meeting with success in the end to put an end to the legacy of political violence in the Philippines. Sinusunod natin ang mga rekomendasyon ng Melo Commission. Iniulat natin sa United Nations ang mga pagsisiyasat at pagsasakdal na ginawa ng Task Force Usig.

Sinundan natin ito ng Presidential Task Force Against Media Harassment. Ngayon yung Task Force Usig — di ba, Sonny? — 144 na ang kaso ng pagpatay ng militante at media na ini-imbestiga ng or pinaglilitis na. Sa masusi ninyong pag-uusig, nabibigyan natin ng hustisya ang pamamaslang ng mga aktibista at tauhan ng media, at ipinapamalas sa mundo ang tunay na demokrasya at karapatang-tao na umiiral sa pilipinas. Mabuhay ang PNP! (applause)

Kinokondena natin ang pagpaslang ng mga aktibista at mamamahayag. Whether a former president, member of the uniformed services, or an average citizen, all men and women in this nation are equal before the law. The death of any Filipino citizen in pursuit of their political right to political expression violates human liberty.

And so, I instruct you — continue to bring perpetrators to justice. While we work with congress to pass new laws to protect victims and jail criminals, and exhort the nation to leave behind its terrible legacy of political violence and clan vendettas. Thanks to you, political killings are way down this year but we should not rest until we reach zero.

We can claim advances in human rights because the Philippines is the most democratic country in the region. Pinupuri natin ang mga seminar at panukala ng PNP upang pagtibayin ang inyong mga patakaran at ugaling nagtatanggol sa karapatan ng bawat mamamayan.

Napakahalaga rin ng papel ng kapulisan sa pagtugis sa mga terorista at mga hard core rebeldeng komunista.

The Abu Sayyaf stand in the way of bringing peace, stability and order to southern Philippines, while the communists rebels have spent years as a low level threat.

Marami na ang pulis na nagbuwis ng buhay upang alagaan ang sambayanan laban sa pag-aalsa at terorismo. We commend our police for your heroic efforts. We mourn for those policemen who have been caught in the line of fire. We condole with their families.

Hindi dapat kalimutan na sa mga pagkakataong ganito, ang karapatang pangtao ng mga pulis ang nilalabag, lalo na kung napatay o nasugatan sila ng mga nagtatraidor... Yung mga pagtraidor na paraan. Sa katunayan, terrorists and rebels have been responsible for a wide range of human rights abuses, sa kanilang pagpatay sa mahigit siyam na daang sibilyan mula 2001.

Hindi tayo titigil hangga't hindi masugpo ang terorismo, rebelyon at krimen. At sa lahat ng ito, katulong ng pamahalaang pambansa ang lahat ng mamang pulis at aleng pulis. Andami nating aleng pulis na nabigyan kanina ng ating pamaskong handog at nakita ko sa inyong mga maliliit na sanggol, at least you still have a life, you have a love life. (laughter/applause)

Napakalaki ng sakripisyo ninyong ginagawa upang ipagtanggol ang ating mga kababayan. Nararapat lamang na bigyan kayo ng higit na kagamitan at kakayahang labanan ang kasamaan.

The Filipino people look to you for the highest standard of service in our country. Through your sense of professionalism and commitment to your mandate, our nation has arrived at the gates of permanent political stability under the rule of law and criminal justice. For every criminal brought to the bar of justice, for every case resolved under due process, good credit must go to the police officer on the beat and on patrol. Congratulations! Maraming salamat sa inyo. (applause)

Sa paglago ng ekonomiya at kaban ng bayan sa ilalim ng mga repormang isinusulong natin, mas naipapatupad natin ang pangunahing hangarin na ma-i-angat ang kakayahan, kagamitan at kita ng ating pulis. Kaya inaatasan natin ang hepe ng PNP na dagdagan ang pulis, dagdagan ang inyong mga sasakyan, at dagdagan ang inyong mga gamit.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in a generation. Kailan pa ba tayo nagkaron ng 12.7 billion na budget surplus. (applause) Six years ago seems so long ago, no one thought we could get more revenues; no one thought we could cut down on tax cheats; no one thought we could strengthen the peso. Ngayon umaangal dahil masyadong malakas ang piso; No one thought we could move the stock market; No one thought we could bring our public sector consolidated budget into balance; no one thought we could lower our national debt. It's lower now because of the strong peso; no one thought we could raise employment, but we have created one million jobs a year. From January to November, as I said earlier, the national government recorded a surplus of p12.7 billion at doon manggagaling ang dagdag na pabahay ng ating PNP. (applause)

Gaya nang narinig natin noong 2006, last year, noong panahon nga ni oca calderon nagsimula tayo ng accelerated hiring upang magdagdag ng labinlimang libong bagong alagad ng batas sa loob ng tatlong taon kasi nga meron na tayong budget, meron na tayong tax revenues. At bibili tayo ng 2,500 patrol cars sa buong bansa. (applause) Noong isang taon limandaan ang binili, ngayon taon limandaan pa ang nabibigay sa mga estasyon ng pulis at bansa. Sa ganitong mga proyekto, binabalik natin sa taong bayan ang mga bunga ng mas masiglang ekonomiya, mas matatag na bansa, at mas malaking kaban ng bayan na pinaghirapan natin.

Over the next three years, we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people. We will increase investment in our country and our people to: first of all, to improve our infrastructure to create an environment in which businesses feel confident to expand and employ more people because more jobs means less poverty; number two, improve social services such as health insurance subsidies for indigent families and anti-hunger programs, gaya ng ating gulayan sa pamilya; third, boost educational support in our efforts to reduce poverty by investing in better school buildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, and training programs for teachers and school administrators; and fourth, cutting red tape and continuing to eliminate corruption from the system of which the police transformation program is a very important part.

And of course we will continue to fight against terrorism.

At ang payapa at ligtas na mga tahanan, lansangan at pamayanan ay gagawin din natin, salamat sa mama at aleng pulis. (applause)

Gaya nang sinabi ng lahat ng nagsalita ngayon nararapat lang na matamasa ng ating mga pulis ang mga biyaya ng kaunlaran. Naunang pinagtutuunan ng pansin ang pabahay dahil, gaya nang sinabi natin, karamihan ng mga pulis ay umuupa lang at animnapu't-pitong libong pulis ay walang sariling tirahan. At gaya nang sabi natin kanina, meron pang nakatira sa iskuwater, kapitbahay ng mga kriminal. Eh anong klaseng environment yan para sa transformation? Di dapat malagay kayo sa ganitong peligro na nagiging kapitbahay ng sindikato.

Kaya inaatasan natin si Chief Sonny Razon at si DDG Versoza na siguraduhing matapos kaagad ang pabahay dito sa camp bagong diwa, at yun na nga sabi niyo kailangan ninyo ng pera kaya alam na rin ng ibang mga ahensya kasi na meron na tayong 12.7 billion surplus kaya unahan kayo kay Nonoy Andaya. (laughter/applause) Tapos yun nga ang report, nireport na kanina kung anu-ano ang kinakailangang gawin para sa proyektong pabahay sa apat pang lugar sa Quezon City, Bulacan, cCavite at Rizal. Sinabi na sa report ang kailangan ay bigyan ng pera. Kaya yun ang gawin ninyo ngayon, lakarin ninyo ang papeles sa DBM.

During the holiday season and beyond, we should do everything in our power to bring rice to those who need it most — kaya meron tayong handog pasko na binibigay dito ay halos lahat ay bigas — and work hard to protect the poor from high prices.

Inaatasan natin si Sonny Razon na makipag-ugnayan sa NFA upang magkaroon ng mga outlets dito sa neighborhood na ito ng Tindahan Natin kung saan binebenta ang murang bigas at murang noodles. At meron pang murang gamot kung minsan sa lugar na malalapit sa mga kampo ng pulis.

Binibigyan din natin ng awtoridad ang pagbibigay ng sampung libong pisong performance bonus sa lahat ng kawani ng gobyerno. (applause) Yung 10,000 ay kung kaya ng sariling budget. (laughter) Yung mga walang sariling budget ginagarantiya ng dbm na hanggang 7,000 ay meron. Pero ewan ko, kaya ba ng budget ninyo ang ten? Seven kayo, naku 7,000. Okay. Eh may pabahay naman kayo, yung ibang ahensya wala pa. (applause) At saka yung 7,000 ninyo mas malaki kaysa sa 5,000 last year. At saka nung araw hindi kasama ang PNP pag merong national government bonus. Kaya we have to remember kasi six years ago, yung mga nae-enjoy natin ngayon wala yun six, seven years ago. Ang laki na ng kaibahan ng ating ekonomiya at yung kalagayan ng ating kaban ng bansa.

Sa ngalan ng sambayanang Pilipino, gusto nating ulitin salamat sa lahat ng pulis hindi lang sa NCR, kungdi sa ibat-ibang dako ng pilipinas. Inaasahan natin na patuloy nating pagkakaisa tungkol sa higit na ligtas, mapayapa at maunlad na sambayanan.

Kaya mabuhay ang mamang pulis at aleng pulis! Salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo' s Speech During the Inauguration of the First Three Buildings Under the "Pulis Kalinga" NCRPO Quartering Project. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135525/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2307&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 72nd Founding Anniversary of the Armed Forces of the Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 72nd Founding Anniversary of the Armed Forces of the Philippines

[Delivered at Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, December 21, 2007]

Thank you very much Secretary Teodoro for your introduction.

General Esperon and all the officers and men and women of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; President Ramos, my predecessor and former chief of staff of the Armed Forces, and all the other former chiefs of staff of the Armed Forces present today; members of the diplomatic corps; ladies and gentlemen.

Happy anniversary! At salamat sa mga magigiting na nagtatanggol ng demokrasya at kapayapaan — ang mga kawal ng sandatahang lakas ng Pilipinas. (applause)

Troop Commander General Dolorfino, give ‘tikas pahinga.’

Sa ngalan ng buong bansa, salamat sa lagi niyong pagsagip ng bayang Pilipino sa hamak, mga kalamidad tulad ng bagyo, baha, bulkan at guho, o mga banta ng terorismo at pag-aalsa.

We laud your valor, your sense of duty, your loyalty to our flag and constitution.

Sa inyong pagtanggol sa ating republika at saligang batas, matipuno ang ating demokrasya, matibay ang ating mga institusyon, at hindi sumusunod ang taong-bayan sa mga makasariling pakana laban sa ating konstitusyon at demokrasya.

Napag-usapan ni General Esperon yung pangyayari sa Peninsula.

It is clear that the actions of those few desperate men reveal just how out of touch they are with the hopes and dreams of the average Filipino. Filipinos want political stability, a bright economic future and social justice. The actions of those misguided men undermine each and everyone of the genuine aspirations of real Filipinos. Instead of working to bring together the nation by working within our democratic process, their actions merely are fuel for selfish motives for personal gain.

But in the end, because of you, together with the police and the citizenry, the rule of law prevailed. The transgressors will not hold this nation hostage with impunity. Sila ay paparusahan sa buong abot ng batas. Justice shall be served and the interests of the people upheld.

The guarantee of stability and the rule of law which you safeguard all across the archipelago is the foundation on which we are building the current surge of our economy.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in many, many years including a seven percent growth rate. Six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso, move the stock market, bring our budget into balance, lower our national debt and raise employment — but, we have.

If we have seven percent growth today, if we have a 12.7-billion surplus today, it's in large part because you, the men and women in uniform, are 100 percent behind the constitution and our democracy. Maraming salamat sa inyo. (applause)

Nobeinta'y nuwebe porsiyento ng mga tauhan ng sandatahang lakas ay mabuti, katangi-tangi, matapat na nagmamahal na bayan, nakikibaka upang proteksyonang ating bansa araw-araw.

We must all be true to our God, faithful to our values, and loyal to our nation. An essential part of building a modern nation in these trying times is to have a military as strong and modern as the nation it serves. We have put our money where our rhetoric is. As General Esperon has said, and you have applauded, we have invested heavily in new and better equipment, more training and more cooperation with our allies — some of whom are represented here today by their ambassadors — to professionalize our military.

We have achieved much to the Philippine Defense Reform Program which is now on its fourth year of full-pledged implementation. When I was acting secretary of defense I ordered the simultaneous roll out of all ten PDR programs. Therefore, with the AFP capability upgrade program which we started last January, we have bought Huey helicopters or upgraded them for the Air Force, plus V-150 light armor repower system upgrade units for the marines. We are also acquiring light utility and night attack helicopters with the special allotment. And we now have hundreds of squad automatic weapons, the first batch of night fighting systems, the military trucks, some of those that you see on this field so crucial in the battlefield, as well as Harris radius for what General Esperon termed as the move, shoot and communicate capability. Congratulations! To Secretary Teodoro and General Esperon for giving the capability upgrade program top priority. (applause)

Bukod sa mas matinding paglaban, hangad din nating alagaang mas mabuti ang ating mga kawal. Maraming buhay na nasagip ang kagyat na saklolo at paggamot ng forward-field medical support system. Naalala natin yung mga heart-breaking experience ng mga sundalong namatay dahil hindi nakaabot sa tamang panahon sa paggamot. They bled to death. That's why we have concentrated on forward-field medical services. Pinopondohan din natin ang pag-upgrade ng ilang hospital gaya ng Camp Aquino Station Hospital; Cavite Naval Station Hospital; Camp Capinpin Station Hospital; ang trauma hospital sa Jolo sa Sulu; ang Camp Siongco Station Hospital sa Cotabato; at ang nakatakdang upgrade din ang Camp Navarro General Hospital sa Zamboanga; at Camp Bautista Station Hospital sa Sulu. Ito ay para sa mga sundalo, para rin sa inyong mga pamilya, at para sa mga nakapalibot na komunidad.

At kung naaalala ninyo, nang ako ay naging presidente tinaas natin ang sahod ng mga sundalo, pati na rin mga pulis, upang maging kapantay sa sweldo ng mga guro. At sa programang pabahay sa mga kawal, merong mga off-base units na kasama ang pabahay sa iba't-ibang kampo ng buong bansa.

Tinataas rin natin ang tulong sa mga sundalong nasugatan o namatay sa pakikipaglaban. At yung combat pay incentive na matagal na niyong hinihiling ay binibigay na abot sa 150 pesos araw-araw sa mga kawal na mismong nakipagbarilan o actual combat. (applause) Itinaas ng 30 pesos bawat araw ang inyong subsistence allowance at nadagdagan din ng 120 pesos bawat buwan ang inyong hazard pay.

It is important to constantly enhance your welfare just as it is important to constantly enhance your ties with local communities and governments through peace and development activities, like medical missions, building of community centers and other small infrastructure.

Ako'y nasisiyahan na kasama na binigyan natin ng gantimpala o award, parangal itong araw na ito ay yung punongbayan ng tagkawayan. Parati sinasabi ko nung araw yung tagkawayan ay parang Camp Abubakar ng mga NPA pero ngayon hindi na. And that is a great symbol of the success of our fight against the npa. (applause) At binibigyan natin ng parangal hindi lamang yung mga sundalong nakakamit noon kung hindi na rin yung mga sibilyan.

It dramatizes that the way to peace isn't just through the barrel of a gun. Rather it begins with providing a person a job, food on the table and human dignity. Central to that success is to invest in the people, in education, health care, roads, bridges and schools. We are making those investments and it is working. In southwestern Philippines, we have worked with the U.S. Military on a number of beautiful community projects.

But to have this done all over the Philippines, we ask the Congressional Bicameral Conference Committee as it meets to reconsider restoring the original amount of the Kalayaan Barangay fund which finances the infrastructure programs in conflict-ridden areas that ordinary contractors do not want to touch. (applause)

This special infrastructure program is significant to the success of our soft power strategy. These efforts have opened for you new bridges of public cooperation and trust so crucial in the fight against terrorism, crime and insurgency.

Nagagalak din tayo sa pagtutok ninyo sa reporma sa karapatang-tao. We have followed the roadmap laid out by our Melo Commission. We have been meeting with success in the fight to put an end to the legacy of political violence in the Philippines. During human rights day, the report about political killing showed a very, very drastic reduction in 2007 compared to previous years.

Anuman ang relihiyon, kabuhayan o antas sa lipunan, pantay-pantay ang lahat sa harap ng batas na dapat magtanggol sa buhay at laya ng bawat mamamayan.

Kinokondena natin ang bawat at lahat ng pagpaslang ng mga aktibista, tauhan ng media, at iba pang biktima, kabilang ang mga sundalo at pulis na marami ring nabiktima ng human rights violations. Whether a former president, member of the military or an average citizen, all men and women in this nation are equal before the law. Paglabag sa kalayaan ng tao ang pagkamatay ng sinumang mamamayang Pilipino dahil sa kanyang pagpahayag ng kanyang paniniwala.

I congratulate the AFP for creating the AFP Human Rights Office. This office has not just created the awareness of our soldiers on human rights and instructional humanitarian law. It has provided a responsive venue where the public-at-large can lodge their human rights concerns to the AFP.

At the same time and in view of our adherence to the rule of law and respect for human rights, we allow no quarter to terrorists who are the most reprehensible violators of human rights in their violent quest to impose their selfish demands on us.

Let it be noted that terrorists like the Abu Sayyaf and the armed communists are a threat to the sovereignty of the nation and they must be checked once and for all.

The Abu Sayyaf stand in the way of bringing peace, stability and order to the southern Philippines. We must wipe them out once and for all. They are a menace to peace and a beacon for international thugs who wish to join their ranks. Kaya salamat sa sundalo sa inyong puspusang operasyon nagbunga ng pagkawatak-watak ng Abu Sayyaf. Congratulations! For recently neutralizing Abu Sayyaf leaders like Abu Sulayman and others with prices on their heads. (applause)

But we mourn the death and some of them very cruel deaths of our soldiers who have had to give their life in pursuit of the fight against terrorism. We also mourn for civilians here and abroad. For instance, we mourn with the family of Jean Luna, a Filipina employed at the U.N. World Food Program who died in the recent terrorist attack on the U.N. Building in Algeria. Kaya't kailangang pag-ibayuhin natin ang pakikipagtulungan sa ibang bansa upang masugpo ang terorismo sa asya at sa buong mundo sapagkat saan mang sulok ay meron tayong mga kababayang maaaring maging biktima ng terorismo.

The communist rebels, as General Esperon said, have spent years as a low-level threat. It's time for their disruption and violation of human rights to be put to rest so that the nation can move ahead. They impede the progress and development of a number of rural areas. They're responsible for a wide range of human rights abuses. If we are to become a first-world country, we have to put a stop to their ideological nonsense and their criminal acts once and for all.

And I'm very happy to hear the report that the insurgents' strength has been brought down to about 6,000 from 12,000 in 2001 and 7,000 a year ago. In other words, you have brought down their strength to one-half of what they used to be. And I am very happy to hear that from a high of 107 NPA guerrilla fronts in 2005, continuing dismantling of their structures in barangays has eliminated 20 fronts. At the rate we are going, I feel we are on track to put an end to the insurgency by 2010. Congratulations! (applause)

As for peace in Muslim Mindanao, we remain optimistic that we can overcome the final barriers on ancestral domain, that we can finally bring peace with finality. However, even now we have achieved a great deal. The region is vastly improved in terms of safety, security and economic growth. And we thank you, the AFP, for upholding the ceasefire agreement agreed upon by the government panel and the MILF way back in 2003. Our ceasefire has been holding for four years. It is making things better, and the peace will really take off, the region will really take off if we achieve lasting peace and the millions of foreign aid promised comes in.

Indeed, not only the foreign aid but many other things considered. A peace agreement will bring a new era of economic development to Mindanao. Coupled with this is our paradigm for peace in the island. At a time when hard power has not proven its value in the world, our model for dealing with the flashpoint of Mindanao has focused on a combination of what I mentioned earlier, soft power and hard power to promote peace: we have been able to meld together confidence-building measures grounded on strong interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness. And I congratulate you for your AFP-PNP-BUC dialogue which has moved forward very much the interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness aspect of soft power; also investments in economic and basic infrastructure development. That's why I'm glad that part of what we gave as awards today were those who contributed to building community infrastructure in the areas in which we are working for peace; and part of soft power are mutual security arrangements to keep the peace in Mindanao.

I would like to congratulate Secretary Teodoro and General Esperon for a fruitful year for the AFP.

And I would like to congratulate all our soldiers, lahat ng mga sundalo, mula sa sambayanang Pilipino, salamat sa inyong paglilingkod na tapat sa buong bayang Pilipinas. (applause)

At sa ating lahat, isang maligaya at mapayapang pasko!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. And happy anniversary! Once again. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech during the 72nd Founding Anniversary of the Armed Forces of the Philippines. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135509/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2305&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the Awarding Ceremonies of the Outstanding Volunteer Workers/Mother Leaders of Bulacan [Filipino]

Talumpati
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas

Sa seremonya ng pagbibigay-parangal sa mga Outstanding Volunteer Workers/Mother Leaders of Bulacan

[Ipinahayag noong ika 22 ng Disyembre, 2007]

Congratulations sa mga Outstanding Volunteer Workers ng Bulacan!

Isinusulong natin ang voluntarism sa ating bansa sapagkat napakarami ang dapat gawin para sa ating kaunlaran at hindi lamang dapat i-asa ang mga ito sa pamahalaan.

Ang pinaka-importanteng mithiin nitong pamahalaan at lipunan ay ang pag-ahon ng bansa sa kahirapan. Nitong Kapaskuhan, kailangan bawat may kaya ay tulungan ang mga nangagailangan. Ang gobyerno ay gagawin ang lahat para tutukan ito.

Ang bigas ay hindi lamang pangunahing pagkain ng ating taumbayan; ito ay simbolo ng ating kakayahang tuparin ang ating kompromisong pakainin iyong mga kulang-palad. Naka-kompromiso tayong isigurado na ang nangangailangan sa buong bansa ay may abot-kayang bigas dito sa panahon ng Kapaskuhan.

Hindi natin masasabing nakasulong tayo bilang bansa kung hindi natin i-aahon ang mahihirap at nagugutom sa kapaligiran natin. Dapat tayo ay lipunang nakasukat sa ating kakayahang mamuhay ayon sa ating pananampalataya.

Ang pangunahing layunin para sa Pilipinas ay makisali sa antas ng mga bansang First World sa loob ng dalawampung taon. Para gawin iyon, kailangan natin ng masigasig na middle-class, imprastrakturang world-class, at malalakas na institusyon ng pamahalaan. Ganumpaman, in the near term, kailangan nating harapin ang mga tunay na issue ng gutom at kahirapan na nakakaapekto sa atin ngayon.

Iyong nakatira sa kahirapan ay kumaunti, ngunit kailangang mas agresibo nating pabilisin ang landas patungong pagsugpo ng kahirapan. Iyon ang dahilan kung bakit, sa panahon ng Kapaskuhan at pagkatapos, gagawin natin ang lahat sa ating kapangyarihan na dalhin ang bigas sa mga pinaka-nangangailangan nito at magsikap upang proteksyonan ang mahihirap sa matataas na presyo.

Patuloy tayong nakikibaka sa hamon ng kagutuman. Ginawa natin ang programa laban sa gutom na may dalawang mahalagangistratehiya: una, ang nasa supply side na pagpaparami ng supply ng pagkain, at ang pangalawa, ang nasa demand side upang magkaroon ng sapat na salapi ang taumbayan upang mabili nila ang pagkaing kailangan.

Kasama ng supply side ang mga proyekto sa irigasyon, ang pagpapaayos ng imprastraktura upang mapabilis ang pagdadala ng pagkain sa mga sentro ng pamilihan at maibaba ang presyo ng pagkain; ang mga distribution centers tulad ng mga bagsakan na food terminals at ang halos sampung libong Tindahan Natin outlets na nagbebenta ng murang bigas at noodles. Kasama rin sa istratohiyang ito ang Gulayan ng Bayan at ang Food-for-School Program para sa mga mag-aaral na mula sa pamilya ng mga higit na mahihirap.

Ang istratohiya para sa demand side ay kinabibilangan ng mga paglikha ng mga bagong trabaho sa pamamagitan ng pagpapalaganap ng microfinancing, pagbibigay ng emergency work sa mga walang trabaho at ang pagpapalakas ng programang libreng training upang magkaroon ng kasanayan na kailangan sa trabaho sa pamamagitan ng Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (TESDA). Ang karagdagang performance bonus na ibinigay sa mga kawani ng pamahalaan ay maituturing din na kasama sa demand side.

Mahalagang parte ng demand side ang pagtuturo ng tamang nutrisyon sa mga pamilya, at dapat ay magsisimula ang pagbibigay ng tamang pagkain mula sa pagkabata. Tinatawagan ko ang mga ina, lalo na ang may bagong silang na anak: mas mainam kung mag-breastfeeding kayo nang dalawang taon at gawing exclusive breastfeeding ito hanggang umabot sa anim na buwan ang inyong anak. Ang batang na-breastfeed ay lumalaking mas malusog at mas listo kaysa sa mga batang gatas ng baka ang iniinom.

Kasama rin sa demand side ang pagpalaganap ng natural family planning.

Inaasahan nating kabisado ng mga lokal na opisyal ang mga programang ito.

Puno tayo ng pag-asa na sa pagwawakas ng kasalukuyang taon at pagbukas ng Bagong Taon, ngayong Pasko, makikitang matatag, malakas at mapayapa ang Pilipinas, masigla ang ekonomiya, tumatalon ang stock market, at umaagos ang investment.

At habang marami ang nakikipagbuklod sa mag-anak sa buong daigdig, ibig nating kilalanin ang walong milyong Pilipino sa ibayong dagat, kabilang ang maraming hindi makauwi sa Pasko. Gusto nating ipabatid sa kanila kung gaano sila nami-missed ng kamag-anak at kaibigan dito.

Panghuli, nananawagan tayo sa lahat na magkapit-bisig, magdasal para sa kapayapaan, at tumulong sa mahihirap. Walang mas dakilang adhikain kaysa sa mamuhay nang payapa at ligtas sa gutom at kakulangan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech at the Awarding Ceremonies of the Outstanding Volunteer Workers/Mother Leaders of Bulacan. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135454/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2303&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 107th Manila Police District (MPD) Founding Anniversary celebration

of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 107th Manila Police District (MPD) Founding Anniversary celebration

[Delivered at the Manila Police Headquarters, United Nations Avenue, Ermita, Manila, January 11, 2008]

Maraming salamat PNP Director General Sonny Razon, ‘Mamang Pulis’, (applause) na naaalala ko isa sa unang pagkakataon nagkakilala kami, siya ang WPD at inimbata niya ako dito bilang senador para tignan yung kanyang facilities. Nag-shooting pa ako pero I missed the mark.

Kagalan-galang na punong-lunsod ng Maynila na dati ring chief ng WPD, Mayor Lim; (applause) Ating mga minamahal at ginagalang na mga kinakatawan ng Kamara ng Representante, kumakatawan sa Maynila, nandito si Congressman Amado Bagatsing at nandito si Congresswoman Grace Bonoan; binabati ko rin ang mga officials ng Metro Manila na pinamumuno ni General Geary Barias, si Richard Gere. (laughter/applause) Nung Christmas party namin sa Malakanyang kung siya ay kumanta ay bigay na bigay, masigasig na masigasig. Sabi ko ang galing, ang ganda ng rhythm ni General Barias. Sabi nung iba, kasi parating nasa Peninsula. (laughter) Kaya sabi ko naman after Manila Pen, may k naman siyang sumayaw at kumanta nang ganoong kasaya. At siyempre ang ating host, ang ating kasalukuyang head ng Manila Police District, si General Boysie Rosales at lahat ng mga kapulisan ng distrito; (applause)

Yung ating mga awardees, ilan ang mga outstanding police personnel at ilan naman yung mga outstanding mga donors natin, yung hindi lang si Mayor Lim, kung di na rin yung Filipino Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chamber, yung Filipino Chinese Business Club, yung Philippine-Chinese General Hospital at si Don Emilio Yap na nagbigay ngayon. Nakita ko yung tseke niyang P500,000 pesos; (applause) mga kaibigan; mga taga-Maynila. Kasi ako taga-Maynila rin dahil Malakanyang, sakop ni Boysie Rosales yon.

Nasisiyahan akong makasama kayong lahat, makasama nating lahat ang magigiting na pulis ng Maynila sa pamumuno ni Boysie Rosales muli sa inyong anibersaryo bilang Manila Police District.

Naalala ko nagpunta ako dito nung panahon ni Pete Bulaong, gawa nang si Pete galing sa akin. He was the head, the police head of my security force as Vice-President and as President, eh di siyempre karapat-dapat naman pumunta ako sa kanyang selebrasyon.

Usually, pag mga local officer, pupunta ako minsan, hindi na ko pupunta muli, pero napaka-importante ang Manila Police District kaya narito na naman ako. (applause) at talaga naman para makadagdag din sa pagpapasalamat sa mga binigyan natin ng parangal. At kasama sa mga binigyan ng parangal iyong inyong magiting na puno ng lungsod na dating puno rin ng WPD, si Mayor Fred Lim na isa ring pulis na tinitingala sa paglilingkod bilang alagad ng batas at bilang pinunong halal ng lungsod.

Noong si Mayor Lim ay nasa Manila Police District, na Western Police District pa noon, di ba Mayor, siya ay nagkaroon ng pagkakataon na maglingkod sa pangulo ng Pilipinas, na siya ang aking tatay si dating Pangulong Diosdado Macapagal. At nalaman ko ito nung binigyan si Mayor Lim nung siya ay umupo sa pwesto bilang mayor, binigyan siya ng dinner ng aking mga magulang, President and Mrs. Diosdado Macapagal nung unang pag-upo niya bilang mayor at pinag-usapan nila yung mga panahong yon at ang nanay ko may pinakita sa akin na litrato ni Mayor Lim nung siya ay nasa Western Police District. Tinatanong ko kanina, “Mayor, ano yung litratong yon? Kayo raw yung nasa litratong yon?” Sabi niya “oo, kasama ako kasi doon sa police force na nag-augment doon sa inagurasyon nung iyong ama bilang pangulo ng Pilipinas.” (applause) kaya napakaganda ang ating mga coincidences dito.

At kaya tuloy malaki ang aking pagsalig sa kaniyang isang salita nung nagkita tayo sa isang function dito sa Maynila na ipagtatangol ni Mayor Lim ang panguluhan sa panahon ng inyong lingkod at sa kanyang panahon. Maraming salamat Mayor Lim. (applause)

Si General Boysie Rosales naman na ito ay kanyang unang selebrasyon bilang pinuno ng Manila Police District ay talagang dinesisyon kong pumunta rito nung nag-imbata siya dahil matagal ko na siyang sinusubaybayan. Mula noong napag-alaman natin ang kaniyang mga record-breaking na nagawa laban sa droga noong panahon nang siya pa ay nasa Quezon. In fact, doon sa aking State of the Nation Address noong 2003, tinukoy ko kasama nang ibang mga kahanga-hangang mga personalidad noon si Colonel Boysie Rosales sabi ko, kilabot ng mga drug lords, tumanggi ng suhol na P35 million pesos. (applause)

Kaya naman nang si Mayor Lim ay naging Mayor muli ngayon at sinabi niya tatanggapin niya kung sinuman ang ilalagay kong chief ng MPD, gawa nang sakop ng MPD ang Malacanang, pinili ko si General Boysie Rosales. (applause)

And with your record-setting performance, at that time, the biggest drug-bust hindi ba? Tapos na-presong mga nahuli mong mga V.I.P., now I count on Boysie to move aggressively against drug syndicates in Manila and the gang wars disturbing its neighborhood.

Kasi like si Trish, hindi ba, naglilibot-libot tayo sa mag barangay at maraming nagsasabi naiistorbo sila sa mga drug addicts at saka yung mga gang war. So yun ang isang aasahan natin na maituloy ni boysie yung kanyang magandang trabahong nakita natin sa Quezon, dalhin niya dito sa lungsod ng Maynila.

There's much to celebrate today, especially the big decrease in crimes in the past year dito sa Maynila at dito rin sa buong bansa di ba? Ano, Sonny 40 percent reduction in crimes. Kaya congratulations sa pulis ng Maynila! Congratulations sa pulis ng Metro Manila, congratulations sa pulis ng buong Pilipinas! (applause) At kanina sinabi nung ating announcer yung mga dahilan kung bakit binigyan ng award si Mayor Lim ngayon. Hindi lamang kung dahil siya'y isang outstanding alumnus na dating chief of police nyo dito, kundi na rin because the City of Manila, the government despite a reduced budget has provided the MPD with 60 new mobile cars, tapos 20 galing sa federation, two galing sa Filipino-Chinese Business Club. So, meron kayong 82 na bagong patrol cars. (applause)

Tinatanong ko kay Sonny, “Sonny, magkano ba yung gastos ng gasolina sa isang kotse?” Sabi niya, “15 liters per month... Per day, per day, I mean, oo. Kaya lang we have to listen to the speeches, hindi na ako nakapag-arithmetic. Anyway, pero sabi naman ni Sonny, pero ano naman, ang ginagawa naman binibigay natin yung ano... Yung kotse tapos tumutulong ang lgu sa gasolina. Eh dito opposite, ang LGU ang nagbibigay ng kotse kung tayo ang tutulong sa gasolina. Okay. (applause)

Kasi mataas ang krudo sa buong mundo ngayon so medyo talagang mabigat ang karga ng gasolina sa 82 na bagong sasakyan. Kaya nung bingyan ng Efren genuino ng award dahil consistent donor daw siya sa MPD. Sabi ko, “Efren, tatalagdo-donate ka naman dito sa Manila Police District sagutin mo na yung gasolina ng 82.” (applause/laughter)

Salamat din sa pamahalaan ng Maynila sa paghahatid ng mga pulis ng limangdaang dagdag na buwanang allowance, tapos meron pa yatang libreng paaral yung mga anak. At saka meron pang oo, at saka health services, at yung pabahay naman dito sa likod, meron pang malaking lote at isang malaking proyekto ng ating ‘Kalinga Pulis’ ay yung quartering. Ang ganda-ganda nga yung ini-naugurate natin doon sa Bicutan para sa Metro Manila Police. Kaya sabi ko kay Sonny Razon kanina siguro maglagay tayo ng quartering dito sa likod. (applause)

At dahil naalala ko that was December at noon binanggit ko meron tayong ano, magkano, 11 billion surplus at that time. Kaya sabi ko, pinapahayag ko sa lahat ng mga ahensiya, meron tayong surplus, total the market is expecting us to have a balanced budget 2008 pa. So ano'ng gagawin natin sa surplus? Discounted na yon ng market. Gastusin na lang natin yon para sa kinabubuti ng ating mga mamamayan. Kaya pumila na kayo sa DBM. Unahan na kayo, makuha niyo ang 11 billion na yon. Ewan ko kung nakakuha ang PNP pero dapat nakakuha yon para doon sa mga quartering nga, okay. So kasama ngayon ang likod ng MPD sa nakuha nila doon sa budget. (applause)

At dahil mahal ang krudo sa buong mundo, I would like the men and women of MPD to have affordable food and other necessities like quartering. Wala si Secretary Yap dito. Siya ay... I mean sa ating selebrasyon, tinatawagan ko siya kaninang umaga. Pero madali namang kausapin si Secretary Yap gawa ng meron naman siyang budget. Kaya aatasan ko na lang si Sonny Razon na makipag-usap kay Secretary Arti Yap na magtayo rin yung tindahan natin dito para mabenta ang murang bigas at noodles para sa pamilya ng ating mga pulis. (applause)

On the national scale, we've also started addressing several concerns of the PNP for better law enforcement and a better life for our law enforcers.

Noon pang 2006, nung nagkapondo ang pamahalaan sa bisa ng ating mga reporma sa buwis, agad nating sinumulan ang mabilisang pagdagdag at pagsasanay. Hindi ba labinlimang libong bagong mga pulis ang ating nakuha na sa loob ng tatlong taon.

At bago pa man dagdag-pulis, nagkaroon na kayo ng dagdag-sahod. Naalala ninyo yung ating administrasyon ang nagpapantay ng inyong sahod pinantay sa suweldo ng mga guro.

At noong Disyembre tumanggap kayo ng pinakamalaking performance bonus palagay ko sa kasaysayan ninyo P7,000, (applause) at Sonny hindi ba dumoble ang subsistence allowance? Naging P180 mula P90, yung hazard pay dumoble rin naging P240 mula P120.

At the same time, we recognize that peace and order is also a result of a widening halo of development, which gives citizens more reasons to follow the law and respect our institutions.

Mas marami naghihirap, mas marami magnanakaw. Kaya mas konting naghihirap, mas konting magnanakaw.

Our efforts for peace and order should always be viewed in the context of our endeavors for sustainable growth to achieve a better life for our people.

And conversely, mas maganda ang kapayapaan, mas madaling maka-negosyo. Mas pangit ang kapayapaan, mas mahirap mag-negosyo. Napaka-intertwined ang kapayapaan at ang kaunlaran.

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. We've created seven million new jobs in seven years, kasama na yun, yung mga trabahong nakuha sa pulis. We've achieved 28 consecutive quarters of economic growth in the last seven years. And that's something that even our neighbors cannot say. There were times during this 28 quarters that the... Singapore for instance, experienced negative growth and many of our neighbors and even the United States, there were quarters when they experienced negative growth.

And in the last, in the three quarters of 2007 for which we have had our accounting completed, our economy rose 7.1 percent and this is the fastest growth in more than a decade, in a very, very long time. According to the Grand Thornton survey: business and investor confidence is on the rise. And of course, we all know that the peso was appreciated more than 15 percent since 2006, yan ay isang dahilan kung bakit nakaka-surplus tayo, gawa ng interes na binabayad natin ay lumiliit in peso terms, gawa ng mga kinakailangang i-import natin na mga gamit ay lumiliit din in peso terms, so nagkakaroon tayo ng savings at yun ang nailalagay sa inyong mga pabahay pati yung mga tindahan natin.

And therefore the Philippine currency is one of the world's best performing currencies, ngayon nga ang problema natin hindi kung papano ipagtanggol ang piso kundi kung papano nga medyo bagalan ang paglakas ng piso. Mas magandang problema naman yon kesa doon sa baligtad. Pero bahala na ang ginagamit natin para bagalan ang pagtaas ng piso, iniwasan na natin ang foreign loans.

Halimbawa kahapon, nagpunta ako doon sa cagayan de oro, nag-groundbreaking doon sa bagong airport, yun ay hiram sa Korea. Pero yung ganun kasing laking airport na ilalagay sa Bohol, sa Panglao ay hindi na foreign loan, local money na lang. Ang hihiraman ng DOTC ay ang DBP.

Kasi kung umuutang tayo ng foreign loan, di siyempre pag pinapautang sa atin, papasok ang dollar. Eh di nagpapalakas naman ang piso. So we are avoiding that. On the otherhand, we are prepaying our foreign loans. So kahit hindi pa due and demandable, basta hinto tayo magbabayad ng malaking penalty for pre-payment ay binabayaran natin. So bahagi doon sa 11.7 billion surplus na nakita natin noong November ay ginagamit natin para pagbayad ng foreign loans. Para kung babayaran natin ang foreign loans, lalabas ang dollar, so mababawasan din ang... Mababagalan din ang pagbilis ng piso. Pero gaya nang sabi ko, mas magandang problema yon kesa sa problemang tumataas nang tumataas ang palit ng piso.

And our stock market has reached historic heights. I hope that it will make our Chinese businessmen even more generous in contributing to our police enforcement.

And for the first time in our generation, our budget is under control, in a generation kaya nakakapagpila para sa kalinga. We're lowering our deficit. In fact, supposed to be and balanced budget natin ay 2010. Pero sabi ng ating mga economic managers. Hindi kaya ng 2008. Aba, kung nag-surplus tayo ng November 2007 at kung hindi nakipag-pila lahat ng ating mga ahensiya dahil kulang ang paperwork ay baka gulatin tayo ni Gary Teves paglabas ng figures ng 2007, baka masabi niya na 2007 pa lang ay nag-budget balanced na tayo. Pero hindi ko hinihintay yon. Pero kung mangyari, salamat. Kasi gaya nang sabi ko, total ang palengke, hinihintay pa naman this year, so kung magagamit natin sa taong-bayan, sa pulis, sa kalinga, eh mas gusto ko yon. Ganunpaman, magkaroon ng balanced budget or hindi for 2007, what we can say is that we are raising unprecedented amounts of revenue.

So inaasahan ko na patuloy ang ating pagkakaisa tungo sa higit na ligtas, tungo sa mapayapa, tungo sa mas maunlad na sambayanan lalung-lalo na yung ating premiere city ng ating bansa, walang iba kung hindi ang Lungsod ng Maynila.

Congratulations to all of you again! And happy anniversary! (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the 107th Manila Police District (MPD) Founding Anniversary Celebration. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412124219/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=939&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 5th Biennial Convention and 10th Anniversary Celebration of the Chinese-Filipino Business Club, Inc.

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 5th Biennial Convention and 10th Anniversary Celebration of the Chinese-Filipino Business Club, Inc.

[Delivered at the Centennial Hall, Manila Hotel, One Rizal Park, Manila, January 17, 2008]

Thank you very much.

Thank you very much Secretary Favila for your introduction.

Outgoing president, Mr. Lee, congratulations! On your two years of very fruitful administration of the Chinese-Filipino business club; incoming president, Mr. Siy Yap Chua whom I've known a long time ago and always reminds me to keep coming today, so here I am today; Secretary Artie yap; Don Emilio Yap, our awardee and benefactor of the Chinese-Filipino Business Club; Congresswoman Naida Angpin who represents not only her district but the Chinese-Filipino community in Congress; other leaders of the Chinese-Filipino Business Club; Ambassador Benedicto; ladies and gentlemen.

Happy 10th anniversary! (Applause) it's good to be with you again, my partners in building a progressive Philippines, on this your 10th anniversary truly a jubilee anniversary which is why I've come here today. Not only because Mr. Siy Yap Chua always reminds me to come but also ten years is a very important jubilee.

And I was recalling as I was preparing my speech about the many times we've been together. For instance, I remember six years ago, we celebrated together Filipino-Chinese friendship day.

In 2001, we celebrated together the salute the flag. And also seven years ago on your recommendation, I pushed for and signed republic act 9139, the administrative naturalization act. (Applause) And because that was mainly on the advocacy of the Chinese-Filipino Business Club, I hope you, the members, will work hard to convince many of our local Chinese to avail of that law and become Filipino citizens. (Applause)

After all, you in the Chinese-Filipino business club have shown yourselves to be good Filipino citizens in your unceasing and many activities for national advancement and the upliftment of our less fortunate countrymen. Congratulations to all of you! (Applause)

Congratulations! For helping the government provide more school buildings, materials and facilities, including two classrooms that you put up in the former MILF headquarters in Camp Abubakar.

Congratulations! For your "Van Aralan" which teaches computer know-how to children and even adults in the remotest areas.

Thank you for helping the government provide urgent services through many projects, including your "Poso Mula sa Puso" which provides water to depressed areas, and your operation brotherhood donating cash and relief goods in calamities.

Thank you for your palugaw feeding program, for your medical and dental missions, for your anti-dengue campaign.

Thank you for last week's donation of police cars to the Manila Police District. (Applause) your help to our law enforcers will go a long way to help the PNP repeat the double-digit drop in crime last year.

Thank you for your SME center, your joint undertaking with the DTI, which helps entrepreneurs through counseling in various business centers. Entrepreneurship is one of the most powerful engines of growth and prosperity, as many of you have shown with your self-made success. You have indeed been practicing the virtuous principles of Confucius: generosity of soul, sincerity, earnestness and kindness.

And I hope you shared the optimism of 90 percent of our people that we will have a peaceful and successful year in 2008 as mentioned by President George Lee. (Applause) In 2008, we look forward to this year, as we're bringing with confidence on the resilience of our economy, hopeful for peace and security for our people.

2007 was the year the Philippine economy turned around. Through the tough choices we made and in which you supported me. The tough choices we made to enhance revenue, raise tax collections and run a tight budget, we are now on a path to sustained economic growth. We have the highest growth rate in a generation, the lowest unemployment, a surge in investments, high job creation and a budget coming into balance. And the peso is strong.

As a result of our focus and discipline, we have been able to take the hard-earned revenue and savings and put it to work for the people by investing in education, health care and infrastructure. We have been setting our sights on a modern Philippines, ready for joining the ranks of first-world nations in 20 years. In 2007, we made a huge down-payment toward that day. We aim to make sure we keep it that way throughout the duration of my term.

Of course, let me be realistic: 2007 was not always smooth sailing, not least of which is the political sector. The November coup attempt fizzled, but it still gives a black eye to our nation. Half of our battle in the Philippines is to overcome the self-indulgent political theatrics that send the wrong messages.

The reality is that we have become a stronger, more stable nation as these types of political shenanigans fall flat with you and with the people. I have had chance to meet with many of you not only during our events of your club but many times in small groups or one-on-one, and I can see that you, the members and leaders of the Chinese-Filipino business club, are tired of the political sideshow. And you and the Filipinos want peace and order and security. The Filipinos want a good job and a good education. Perhaps, especially pressing today are the issues of energy independence and the price of foreign oil.

We are bound and determined to move the Philippines toward energy independence based on heavy investments in biofuels, geothermal, wind, solar and other alternative energy sources. We are equally determined that conservation must be an essential part of the equation. To that end, we are holding a series of high level meetings this month and next. Out of these meetings we will develop a blueprint, or more aptly a "greenprint" for the energy future of our nation.

The poor among us suffer the most due to the high price of global oil. So any program we initiate will focus not just on energy independence in the long run, but to relieve the pain of energy cost in the short run. How this will be carried out is an open question, but we will do everything in our power to share the burden and relieve the poor from bearing the biggest burden.

Let me also touch on our peace efforts in Mindanao where you have helped us build education in Camp Abubakar. We are close, yet sometimes the closer we get, the farther the distance seems to be. We are determined that peace in Mindanao is one of the most essential building blocks this nation can achieve to secure its future.

With the continued support of the Chinese-Filipino business club, this administration will focus on working for peace in Mindanao and other areas. With your support, we will remain focused on the national agenda of more jobs, stable prices, peace and order and a better life for all Filipinos.

I look forward to the Chinese-Filipino business club continuing to be a true partner for development in the years ahead. Together, let us make a progressive, modernizing Philippines a reality.

Once again, happy 10th anniversary! Congratulations to the new president, Mr. Siy Yap Chua! And to all of you, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the 5th Biennial Convention and 10th Anniversary Celebration of the Chinese-Filipino Business Club, Inc. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412124137/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=937&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Vin d'Honneur, January 18, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Vin d'Honneur

[Delivered at Rizal Hall, Malacañang Palace, Manila, January 18, 2008]

Welcome to a peaceful and successful year in 2008. We look forward to this year, as together with 91 percent of the Filipino people, we're brimming with confidence in the resilience of our economy, hopeful for peace and security for our people here and at home and abroad, and determined to continue to pursue a strong foreign policy abroad.

2007 was the year the Philippine economy turned around. Through the tough choices we made to enhance revenue, raise tax collections and run a tight budget, we are now on a path to sustained economic growth. We have the highest growth rate in a generation, the lowest unemployment, a surge in investments, high job creation, a budget coming into balance, a strong peso. We're grateful for the support of our allies and development partners for our reforms and investments, which have enabled the Philippines to join the ranks of fast growing Asian economies with strong finances, infrastructure and social programs.

As a result of our focus and discipline, we had been able to take the hard-earned revenue and savings, and put it to work for the people by investing in education, health care and infrastructure. We had been setting our sights on a modern Philippines ready for joining the ranks of first world nations.

In 2007, we made a huge down payment toward that day. We aim to make sure we keep it that way through the duration of my term. For the Philippines to succeed, we must aggressively engage the world. We continue this engagement in 2007, as we have done throughout my presidency. We will continue it in 2008. We need the world and we like to think the world needs us, our hardworking people, our ideal geographic location and our reliability as a friend and ally.

The United States, China and Japan, Singapore, New Zealand, India and Australia, Spain, the Vatican, England, Portugal and France, Kuwait and Africa have all been part of our itinerary this past year forging security alliances, encouraging investments, protecting the interest of our valued overseas foreign workers. Closer to home, significant progress has been made in our fight against political violence. In less than a year, since we authorized the Melo Commission and followed up its recommendations, we have seen an 83 percent drop in violence against political activists and journalists. While we are pleased with the progress, we will not be satisfied until every last incidence of violence has stopped and every criminal prosecuted and behind bars. We must stop the legacy of violence and start the era of political harmony.

We take pride in the continued strength of democracy in our country, even as we make gains in the protection of human rights and the promotion of social justice.

Let me of course be realistic: 2007 was not always smooth sailing, not least of which in the political sector. The November coup attempt fizzled, but it still gave a black eye to our nation in the eyes of the world. Half of our battle in the Philippines is to overcome the self-indulgent political theatrics that send the wrong message to the world.

The reality is that we have become a stronger, more stable nation as these types of political shenanigans fall flat with the people. Filipinos are tired of political sideshows. They want peace, order and security and a good job and a good education.

In the international arena, we had hoped by now to have a trade agreement signed, sealed and delivered with Japan. We remain optimistic that our Senate will see the wisdom of approving this vital agreement.

Perhaps even more pressing are the issues of energy independence and the price of foreign oil. We are bound and determined to move the Philippines toward energy independence based on heavy investments in biofuels, geothermal, wind, solar and other alternative energy sources. We are equally determined that conservation must be an essential part of the equation. To that end, we are holding a series of high level meetings this month and next. Out of these meetings we will develop a blueprint, or more aptly a 'greenprint' for the energy future of our nation.

In our quest for first world status in a generation, we will safeguard not just the rights of man but those of nature too, through more support for programs to preserve the environment and address climate change while building a better life for our people.

The poorest among us suffer the most due to the high price of global oil, so any program we initiate will focus not just on energy independence in the long run, but to relieve the pain of energy cost in the short run. How this will be carried out is an open question, but we will do everything in our power to share the burden and relieve the poor from bearing the biggest burden.

The eradication of poverty has always been the overriding goal of my presidency. In its last three years, we will build a momentum in key program areas, that would make the millennium development goals well within reach by 2015.

Finally, let me touch on our peace efforts in Mindanao. We are close, yet sometimes the closer we get, the farther the distance seems to be. We are determined, as we have said to you before, that peace in Mindanao is one of the most essential building blocks this nation can achieve to secure its future. Peace is better than conflict.

Our alliances with you are also indispensable in advancing our peace efforts, in expanding international understanding and interfaith dialogue, and in keeping terrorism in check.

Once again, we look forward to another year with you and wish you every success. Our door is always open to friends in this room. We remain humble about the job we do everyday and excited about what we achieve every year.

Excellencies, ladies and gentlemen: please join me in a toast for a year of deeper international friendships and stronger hope for peace and progress in the Philippines and the whole world.

Thank you very much.

Mabuhay!

Source: Adamson University Library

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Swiss Asian Chamber, “A Path to Permanent Economic Growth and Stability: Creating a New Philippines”, January 23, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Swiss Asian Chamber, “A Path to Permanent Economic Growth and Stability: Creating a New Philippines”

[Delivered at the Savoy Hotel, Baur au Lac, Zurich, Switzerland, January 23, 2008]

Thank you Mr. Zuellig. I'm glad you're the one who introduced me because your family's investments in the Philippines is one of the proofs that the Philippines is worth investing and staying in. Thank you.

I thank the Swiss Asian Chamber for your warm reception and hospitality on this winter day and I thank each and every one of you for taking time out to join us today. I also want to thank those of you who visited the Philippines last year.

This meeting is timely because it's taking place during a period of great uncertainty for the global economy. This is especially crucial time for world leaders in business and government to band together to turn the challenges we face today into opportunities, challenges from the issue of climate change to volatility in the world markets, and the rise of Asia against these uncertainties. So I'm glad that there is a Swiss Asian Chamber.

And within Asia, the Philippines offers a strategic location in this, our very fast-growing region of Southeast Asia. Our workforce is well educated, productive and English speaking, and we are cutting red tape to simplify the requirements for investments. In the midst of world uncertainties, we remain a competitive location for a wide range of manufacturing and high-end services.

The Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. We have created seven million new jobs in seven years. We have achieved 28 consecutive quarters of economic growth even when many of our neighbors experienced negative growth or even recession at some time or another of the last seven years. In fact, our economy, which rose 7.1 percent in the first three quarters of 2007, is experiencing its fastest growth in more than a decade.

The Philippine economy grew faster than the rest of Southeast Asia, despite oil price volatility and a global economic slowdown. Our international reserves are also at record levels. We have a balance of payments surplus, a low inflation rate and low interest rates.

Business and investor confidence is on the rise, the peso is one of the world's best performing currencies, and our stock market has reached historic heights. Our budget is under control and we are raising unprecedented amounts of revenue.

The Philippines offers one of the best values in Asia for investment. Over the last seven years, our administration and our people have aimed high. We have met the challenge of economic and fiscal reform. Seven years ago, expanding the taxpayer base, strengthening the peso and attracting foreign investment were our biggest challenges. To some, our goals of balancing the budget, lowering debt levels and raising employment seemed ambitious at best. Seven years down the road, our unwavering commitment to installing the necessary reforms to move our nation forward has allowed us to make important progress on all these fronts.

In the midst of world uncertainties, it helps that we have one of the best and most awarded central banks in the world, which has helped the Philippines achieve a stable macroeconomic environment, that is, making us much more resilient to external volatility. We are vigilant that our efforts should not be derailed by the sub-prime crisis and the subsequent credit crunch. We count on the Central Bank governor and his team, who operate independently, to continue to ensure stable macroeconomic fundamentals to support our robust economic growth during a time of continued global economic volatility.

Foreign investment in the Philippines has grown more than five-fold from 2003 to 2007. This surge of investments has been anchored by billion dollar plus investments by several major international companies, including Texas Instruments, which chose the Philippines over other locations including China for its $1.6 billion wafer fabrication plant, Korea's Hanjin which is putting up two shipyards for $3.7 billion, making us the fourth largest shipbuilder in the world; Marubeni, Tokyo Electric and America's AES which have put in billions in our electric power industry, and Mittal Global which has conveyed to me their plans for putting up a $1.6 billion integrated steel mill in Mindanao. Significant new investments are being made across the board in a number of industries, especially mining, technology, energy, tourism, business process outsourcing and infrastructure, are also creating significant investment opportunities for both domestic and international investors alike.

The Philippines is ranked among the most attractive off-shoring destinations in the world because of cost competitiveness and more importantly our country's highly trainable, English-proficient, IT-enabled quality manpower. Our outsourcing sector has the potential to grow 40 percent per year from 2007 until 2010, which would put in on track to double its global market share in three years. This rate of growth also means revenues from the outsourcing sector would grow four-fold from the current level of $1.3 billion, and employment would triple to 900 000 jobs.

The government and private sector work together to develop talent to support the rising demand for quality workers in outsourcing, and expand outsourcing capabilities to new locations across the country beyond the centers of Manila and Cebu to tap larger talent pools.

Some of the joint initiatives include training, funding for education, and creating awareness of career opportunities to attract more graduates to pursue jobs in the outsourcing sector. The government and the private sector also work together to reassess current tertiary and secondary education curricula, to respond to the emerging needs of the market. To develop next wave cities, the government is developing IT hubs in Clark, Dumaguete and Iloilo to encourage greater levels of outsourcing investment in these locations.

In recent years, the outsourcing sector has expanded beyond call centers and IT to include a range of professional and business processes including accounting, human resources, financial analysis, design engineering, animation, medical services, legal services, insurance processes, banking processes, map making, publishing, content creation, and research.

We are certainly a leader in the outsourcing space, but we cannot underestimate the contribution of other high growth sectors to our economy: manufacturing, technology, mining, energy, tourism, and infrastructure.

Our strongest competitive advantage, our people, is also opening doors for us in medical tourism. The Philippines is recognized internationally for the uniquely Filipino brand of hospitality, care and compassion that makes us a competitive player in this sector. In fact, recently, the European Chamber of Commerce and Industry together with the American, Japanese and Korean Chambers of Commerce have endorsed our strengths in this area by forming a coalition to promote the Philippines as a healthcare destination for foreigners.

Mining is a key driver of our economy and an important sector that is bringing in significant levels of investment, creating jobs for the people and spurring exports.

The world's biggest players from Australia, America, China and Japan have already been flocking to our country to invest and to conduct exploration.

Last year, investments grew more than the last three years combined. Mining will grow into a US$10 billion industry by 2010.

Our economy is booming, but like so many places in rich and poor nations alike, we must fight to close the gap in income inequality. There is no justification in this time and place in history that government policies should be tilted to maintaining the status quo that ensures the domination of the many by the few. And while I am fighting for social justice, I am fighting even harder for economic justice, for a strong economy is the best weapon for the liberation of the poor and oppressed.

We are now focused on further raising our competitiveness to sustain our momentum. For the first time in decades, less of our revenue is being used to service debt and more resources are being directed towards investment in human and physical infrastructure including education, healthcare and training as well as new bridges, roads and ports. Hopefully this will attract more investment, including Swiss investment.

We take pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health.

Our economy is performing at an all-time high in every aspect. We are in a stronger position than ever to instill permanent economic change in our country and to work together to ensure we achieve long-term prosperity for many generations to come. There is no better time for investors to take advantage of the many opportunities created by our strengthening economy.

Thank you.

Source: Adamson University Library

Speech of President Arroyo before the Dubai Business Leaders, January 27, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Before the Dubai Business Leaders

[Delivered in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, January 27, 2008]

I want to thank each of you for taking time out of your very busy schedules to join us.

An aggressive foreign policy is essential to the lifeblood of the Philippines. I am here to meet with investors who have expressed willingness in investing in the Philippines.

This week's global economic uncertainties underscore that business and government leaders around the world must all collaborate more closely. Being in Dubai with the business, economic and political leaders at this critical juncture is very helpful, given your rapid rise in the world of finance and economics.

Your skyscrapers and gleaming office blocks attest that your development has been well managed, demonstrating that the wealth of a nation, if well handled and channeled can change landscapes for best. The world's tallest buildings, the world's largest man-made islands, the world's most luxurious hotels, shopping malls and 'the world' are but a few of these as examples.

Emirates is fearless of the global economy.

Further economic integration among Asian nations is imperative if we, as a region, are to take advantage of the expanding global trade and economic opportunities and face the challenges of the global economy.

The Philippines imports from the UAE petroleum oils, butane, propane, aluminum alloys and urea. We encourage the Emirates to consider purchasing from the Philippines garments, consumer electronics, footwear, beauty or make-up accessories, automotive parts and accessories, air-conditioning machines as well as furniture.

The Philippine economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macro-economic fundamentals in a generation. We have aimed high and we have met the challenge: seven years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, crack down on tax cheats and smugglers, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. And no one thought we could bring our budget close to balance, lower our national debt and raise employment, but we have.

The single biggest act that led to the surge in our economy was the passage of our Value Added Tax, which in one bold stroke raised enormous amounts of new revenue. That act also sent an unmistakable signal that we are serious about moving the nation forward.

That isn't all, though. Our complete focus on the economy, fiscal discipline, a balanced budget and the need for long overdue human and physical infrastructure improvements help round out our economic gains.

Our efforts are paying off. Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent growth and stability. Investments are pouring in, the peso is strong, our stock market has reached historic heights, and we have created 7 million jobs in seven years. The peso has helped offset the impact of the rising cost of oil and has contributed to lowering the price of imports and in the process, inflation.

Our unemployment rate and poverty rate are the lowest in a generation. By continuing on our path of economic reform, we will be able to sustain this momentum.

The Philippines offers one of the best values in Asia for domestic and foreign investors today. We offer a strategic location in a fast-growing region, our workforce is well educated, productive and English speaking. We are cutting red tape to simplify the investments for investing in the Philippines.

We offer excellent opportunities in a range of sectors, particularly mining, technology, energy, various forms of tourism including medical and eco-tourism, bio fuels, infrastructure, and business process outsourcing.

The Philippines is ranked among the most attractive off-shoring destinations in the world because of cost-competitiveness and more importantly the country's highly trainable, English-proficient, IT-enabled quality manpower.

We are certainly a leader in the outsourcing space, but we cannot underestimate the contribution of other high growth sectors to our economy, for instance manufacturing, technology, mining, energy, tourism and infrastructure.

Our reforms are succeeding in attracting more foreign investments. These industries will continue to grow as drivers of the economy. Billion dollar plus investments by various international companies including Texas Instruments, Hanjin, Marubeni and Mittal Global are validations that our strategy is working.

Texas Instruments' choice of the Philippines over other destinations including China for its $1.6 billion wafer fabrication. The surge in investments has also been anchored by the two new shipyards of Korea's Hanjin costing $3.7 billion and making us the fourth biggest shipbuilder in the world; Marubeni, Tokyo Electric and America's AES have also invested in the power sector in the Philippines for some $6 billion; and Global Mittal has announced plans to put up a $1.6 billion integrated steel mill in Mindanao.

Our efforts to raise investor confidence through reforms and investments in infrastructure to improve the business environment are bearing fruit. Business confidence in the Philippines has been bolstered according to a recent survey conducted by the global audit and accounting firm Grant Thornton International, which showed the Philippine businesses were the most optimistic and bullish about their prospects in 2008.

We have had plenty of interest and investment in the mining business. Mining is a key driver of our economy and an important sector that is bringing in significant levels of investments, creating jobs for the people and spurring exports. In 2007 alone, investments grew to more than in the previous three years combined.

Our strongest competitive advantage – our people – is also opening doors for us in medical tourism. The Philippines is recognized internationally for the uniquely Filipino brand of hospitality, care and compassion that makes us a competitive player in this sector.

The global economic situation is clearly a prime issue for us because the more interconnected we become, the more we need to manage through the ups and downs of other nation's economic bubbles. This is certainly true should the U.S. economy experience more volatility.

Clearly, there will be some impact of the U.S. uncertainty on all countries because of the global significance for the U.S. economy. However, while a slowdown in the U.S. economy could dampen the growth of emerging markets, we are confident that the Philippines will withstand most of the adverse aspects of such a development largely, because of our improving economic fundamentals.

Moody's upgraded the Philippines to positive this week for very good reasons: we have the fastest growth in a generation – 7% for 2007. It was also a faster growth than our neighbors.

The good news for the Philippines is that we have matured and diversified our economy, so much the last few years that we are confident that our economic turnaround is permanent and our economy resilient to major economic disruptions.

We have one of the best central banks in the world. It has ably navigated our monetary policy and it has been a huge asset to our economic reform agenda. We trust the central bank team, who operate independently, to continue to manage our macro-economic fundamentals during a time of high oil prices and continued economic volatility.

The short answer to continuing the economic growth is summed in three words: invest, invest, invest. We must follow up the pain of tax raising measures with the gain that only comes from significant investment in people and projects. Only then will we truly ensure that progress cannot be reversed.

Our aim in the remainder of my term as president is to make our economic reforms permanent so that our nation is on a sustained path of economic growth and stability. We have turned the economy around. For the first time in a generation, we are investing hundreds of billions in human and physical infrastructure. Roads, bridges and airports as well as new schools and scholarships are the central building blocks that are necessary for the long term prospects of our citizens.

But of course, I am most interested in your investing in the Philippines. We are a good business environment getting even better. Thank you.

Source: Adamson University Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the Opening Program of the First Biennial National Congress on Education, January 31, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening Program of the First Biennial National Congress on Education

[Delivered at Tent City, Manila Hotel, January 31, 2008]

Education is a core value of Philippine society and family life. The hardworking men and women of this country put their family first, don't we? And the best gift any family can give to a child, and the best gift any nation can give to its people is access to a good education.

Education is the foundation of economic prosperity and individual liberty, justice and self-worth.

For this reason, we issued Executive Order No. 652, creating the Presidential Task Force for Education to assess, plan and monitor the entire educational system. We called this Congress, to discuss the progress report of the task force which will be presented after the coffee break.

But, of course, it was not only the creation of the task force that started our attention to education. From the beginning of our administration, we have recognized education as the key to our next generation in order to get ahead and get a good job.

And it is recognized all over the world, one of the goals of the United Nations Millennium Development Goals, is to achieve universal primary education by 2015. And we have internalized that, even before we read the Millennium Development Goals.

In the year 2001 school year, to increase the chances of children finishing school, the Department of Education minimized the cost of going to school by stopping the collection of miscellaneous fees on enrollment day. That single act brought almost a million children to school.

Today, we have voluntary fees for the PTCA, the Red Cross and the Boy Scouts that have found their way back into the system.

Yesterday, I discussed this with Secretary Jing Lapus and I said that because the Millennium Development Goals wants us to achieve universal primary education by 2015, let's not give any excuse for parents not to send their children to school at least up to fourth grade. So the fees PTCA, Red Cross, Boys and Girls Scouts should only be collected starting grade 5, so that there will be no reason to keep children away from primary school.

In 2001, we also said in the State of the Nation Address that to reduce the time and money spent to actually travel to school we will build classrooms starting in the far-flung barangays unserved by nearby schools. Within a year, we completed more than one thousand of those school buildings. And by 2006 we had achieved our more ambitious medium-term plan target ratio of one classroom for every 50 grade school students on double shift. And even if we achieved that, because eventually we want to go to 45 students per shift, in 2007 we added another 15,000 classrooms. This year, we will start the construction season for 10,000 classrooms by a series of groundbreaking activities starting this Saturday.

There are of course still a few instances of shortages in classrooms, amid the nationwide sufficiency. The most famous or maybe infamous of these is the Batasan Elementary School in Quezon City, which makes the front page every opening of the school year. The Department of Education, the Quezon City government and the DSWD, which owns the adjoining lot, are addressing this exception because the problem is not that there are no funds but there is no space available. So Secretary Lapus had to talk to Secretary Espie Cabral, because that is going to require the use of the very property of the main office of the DSWD itself.

Speaking of photos, today while there was a photo of a supposed tent classroom in Albay, so immediately we checked the field. According to the field, the classroom project in that school has been completed. The tent is being used as a recreational shed of children of evacuees.

Anyway, going back to attendance in schools. at Day Care Centers, pre-schools and grade 1 in depressed areas, we initiated the food-for-school program which gives a kilo of rice per day to pupils in those levels. This program not only increased class attendance, it also helped dramatically cut hunger incidence as well as self-rated food poverty, which is now the lowest in our statistical history. Now, we will begin to harmonize day care centers and pre-schools so that they can provide the needed extra year of basic education.

As a further and more direct incentive to school attendance, late last year we launched the “Ahon Pamilyang Pinoy” program of conditional cash donations to poor households who comply with rules that enhance learning and health. So we give the money because they are very poor, but the money— the condition is that they have to send their children to school among other conditions.

Now, under the proposed fiscal stimulus program to keep us resilient from the anticipated US slowdown, I have instructed Secretary Andaya and Secretary Cabral to scale up this “Ahon Pamilyang Pinoy” from 50 million pesos last year to five billion pesos this year.

Also, to further reduce the time and money spent to travel to school, we now invite the local governments, and I see representatives of local governments here — to join us in a bike-for-school program, similar to Thailand’s program to improve school attendance and something we have already quietly piloted in the province of Eastern Samar. In this case, two siblings whose school is 10 kilometers away and I hope that there are not too many of those cases now, can be provided a bicycle which the family will amortize at one peso a day, and then the two siblings can bike to school. That will be at one peso a day that is less than one-tenth of the 13,200 pesos they would have to spend for fare for transportation, if they have to take a ride ten kilometers away from home.

In 2001 we said, that to prepare our youth to be the next generation of knowledge workers, we would upgrade math and science teaching. By 2006, we had trained over 100,000 teachers to improve math and science instruction. Now, we can afford one billion pesos for teacher training this year, but 500 million of that will go to English training. We want all teachers to have 24 units of English, whether you get it in the course of getting your degree, or if you were not able to get 24 units during your degree years to get it in service.

In 2001, we said that to improve the quality of education as required by a new economy, we would increase the number of textbooks per student. Within a year, we distributed 54 million textbooks to 16 million elementary and high school students up to second year high school. By 2006, we had achieved an initial target, our initial target of one-to-one textbook-student ratio in priority subjects up to second year high school. And in 2007, we distributed more than 14 million textbooks, teachers’ manuals and instructional materials.

I would like to congratulate the Department of Education’s governance reforms that reduced the average cost per textbook and ensured correct and prompt deliveries, as monitored by NGOs including NAMFREL and the Boy and Girl Scouts.

But we recognized that there have been long standing problems of learning materials with erroneous or inappropriate content. If we cannot even ensure that textbooks are error-free, it would be extremely difficult to get the rest of our education program right. So sometime ago, I instructed Jing Lapus to create a high-level textbook review task force to rid learning materials of erroneous or inappropriate content, and I asked him to seek guidance and assistance from the members of the Presidential Council on Values Formation, as well as the leading institutes of education and science and technology.

In 2001, we said we would hire more teachers. Within a year, we hired 15,000 new teachers compared to 2,000 a year before, compared to 5,000 in year 2000 before I became President. Between 2002 and 2007, we've hired more than 50,000 teachers.

We have installed internet-linked computers in dozens of public high schools. We are now aiming for distance learning and cyber education where we hope to install computer linkage in every public high school especially in the rural areas, which will become community centers outside school hours.

You know, I was inspired in the Davos World Economic Forum because there was great support for this project among the information technology governors of the WEF, including Microsoft and Hewlett Packard. In fact, it was Hewlett Packard who raised it during our roundtable, not even me. So I'm very happy and I have validation that it is something that we should do and is very desirable.

On high schools, we have a lack of public high schools but we have a surplus of private high schools. We recognize the pivotal role of private high schools in national life. That is why instead of building more public high schools, we are expanding high school scholarships for the private schools. We are doing this through the voucher system and the government assistance to teachers and students in private education or GATSPE. We will build public high schools only in the jurisdictions where there are no private high schools available. So GATSPE and high school vouchers will be the key for high school education.

Likewise, in tertiary education and technical education, we have raised the number of scholarship grants and loans to give the poor access. We have increased to one billion pesos the allocation for TESDA's training program and we are encouraging scholarships in ladderized education.

I wanted to make an announcement today as far as TESDA is concerned, but I don't want to make any announcements until I confer with Secretary Nonoy Andaya. So you have something to wait for Secretary Syjuco.

Why are we able to do all these increases? We're able to do all these because for the first time in a generation, less of our revenue is being used to service debt and more resources are being directed towards investment in human and physical infrastructures including education, health care and training aside from new roads, bridges and ports.

And we are also able to do this because of the contributions to the classroom building program and computer linkage program of development-minded citizens and entities, including the chambers of commerce represented here today, including the corporate foundations, including the local governments, and including our overseas Filipinos. And we thank them all for their contribution to our human infrastructure.

And we are able to do this, the large portion that still comes from national government funds, because the Philippine economy has turned around with 28 consecutive quarters of growth, topped off by seven percent in 2007.

Our stock market is up, seven million jobs were created in seven years, and our currency is one of the strongest in Asia. Investments and many are surging and many new companies are investing in US. We're one of the best values in Asia right now, and we can be the best value if we are able to match education and job requirements.

Poverty alleviation is our overarching goal. We will continue to focus on it. Balancing the budget is just the first step. Over the next few years, we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people, a number one benefit is education.

We will continue to invest in new school construction at the elementary school level. We will bolster our scholarship program for high school students and for those ready for higher education.

In return, we ask colleges and universities to update themselves about the current market demands in the local and international market, and to offer the courses that fit their graduates to the skills requirements of available jobs.

Maybe no more customs administration or maybe a little bit less of business management, more of entrepreneurship, things like that.

And we instruct the Professional Regulatory Commission, to update licensure examinations to reflect technical and scientific requirements of business and industry.

We ask local government colleges and universities to comply with the standards of CHED.

Now to the teachers. You know, I asked Mona yesterday or the day before yesterday, "Mona, how many teachers are attending our congress?" "Well, not that many," she said, "Mostly, administrators." "Mona," I said, "I want my speech to be primarily a speech to the teachers. They make up the backbone of our education system. I want them to be the majority of the attendees in the Congress."

So I am to see all these uniformed ladies and gentlemen around here, because I want to say that the teachers indeed are the backbone of the educational system. And without you, our selfless men and women, our children would fall short of their dreams and aspirations.

I remember when I was a little girl in Iligan, my idol aside from Prinsesa Tarhata of Sulu who was like Princess Diana for me. You know, well, what Princess Diana was for many, later on at that time she was for me, my other idol was the teacher in Buroon Elementary School in our barangay.

And we are deeply indebted to the hard work and dedication of all our teachers. Your work is noble and patriotic. You deserve the praise and respect of every Filipino. That's why you received additional compensation in 2006 and a 10 percent salary increase in 2007.

That's why unlike in previous years, in our administration, teachers now receive at least the same amount of the ever increasing bonus that national government workers receive. In fact, Jing Lapus tells me your second installment of your bonus is coming soon to complete your 10,000 pesos.

And also that is why teachers are included in our administration bill for a third round of salary standardization and increase. So let us all work, Congressman De Guzman, let us all work for Congress to pass this bill. It's already in the 2008 budget.

Teachers, but above all every participant here is a stakeholder in our national effort to fight poverty by working towards a relevant and a high-quality educational system.

And so let us all move forward together.

Labanan ang kahirapan, isulong ang karunungan. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: Adamson University Library

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Ibon – Ebon Festival

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Ibon – Ebon Festival

[Delivered at Poblacion, Candaba, Pampanga, February 1, 2008]

Metun a mayap a pagbati keko ngan king mumunang diling pamagdiwang ning Candaba king IBON-EBON FESTIVAL.

Abalu ku na adwa yang bage iting pamagdiwang: ing tagumpe yu king pamag-protekta da ring ayup a manibat karing aliwang lugar o migratory birds ampo ing pamanyulung king industriya na ning itik.

Pauli ning galing da ding kekayung gewang akbang ban sesen la dening ayup, lalu la pang darakal banua-banua. Balita ku, atin pang atlung e karaniwang species da ding ayup a dadayu ngeni king Candaba Swamp.

Iti metung ya karing bunga ning pamagsumikap nang Mayor Jerry Pelayo at ikayu ngang taga-Candaba, pati na ing mabilug a probinsiya ning Pampanga a akamit na ing ustung balansi king kailangan da deng tao ampo pa ing kapaligiran o “Balance Between the Needs of the People and Those of the Environment,” a tema king pamagdiwang.

In the case of our country as a whole, we have begun the Green Philippines plan. This is a blueprint for mapping our environment and economic policies that will allow for sustainable development that doesn’t fall on the backs of the poor or erode our environment. There is a cost to make the Green Philippines come to life. But the cost is greater without the plan and the investment in our people and environment.

From rising tides, to changing weather to deforestation and pollution of air, sea and land, the challenges of the environment at this time of climate change are great. As a nation made up of over 7,000 islands, rising seas due to global warming takes on a whole new meaning. Florida may lose some coastline, we lose a nation. Our response to this grave challenge may sound humorous, but our intent is deadly serious: we must work together to solve this problem. If we do, it will be one of our great achievements.

Every nation, developed or developing, must assume the mantle of leadership and work to address the challenge of climate change. Each and every person bears some measure of responsibility for what we have done today and throughout history to diminish our environment. Obviously, some are more responsible than others; and some are more responsible today than yesterday. But all that apportionment of blame does nothing against a rising tide of global warming that will swamp our nation if we do not act with solidarity.

Unity is a real aspiration that manifests itself through progress.

Unity is about action, not discussion. It is about working together and not just talking together.

Susi ya king kekatomung pamag-ahon king kakalululuwan, ing pamanese tamu king kapaligiran ampong likas a yaman. Kasabay ng pagdami ng mga ibong napapadpad sa Candaba Swamp ang pagdami din ng mga taong dadayo, local man o galing sa ibang bansa, upang manood ng kakaibang natural phenomenon na ito.

Tungkul naman king pamanese karing bibi, malamang a dakal kekayu, buri dang gawan iti pero ala lang capital.

Kaya kaniting okasyon na ning Ibon Ebon Festival, ating kung tsekeng metung a milyon para karing livelihood projects da ring memalen Candaba.

Poverty alleviation is our overarching goal. We will continue focus on it. Getting our growth rate of 7.3%, the highest in 31 years, is just the first step. Over the next few years, we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people. We will increase investment in our country and our people to: 1) improve our infrastructure, kalupa ning Subic-Clark Tarlac Expressay ampu ing potang umpisan tang Third Bulacan Circumferential Road, to create an environment in which businesses feel confident to expand and employ more people, because more jobs means less poverty, 2) improve social services such as health insurance subsidies for indigent families and Food for School anti-hunger programs, 3) boost educational support in our efforts to reduce poverty by investing in better school buildings, new textbooks and teaching materials, training programs for teachers and school administrators, ampu karing facilities kalupa ning binuklat tang aklatan nandin, and 4) cutting red tape and continuing to eliminate corruption from the system.

Puspusan ing pamagpatupad na ning guyernu – kayabe da karing lokal a opisyaless- karing programang tutugun karing pangunahing kailangan da ring kekatamung memalen.

Iti parte ne ning pamagbalik tami karing kekatamung membalin karing bunga na ning pamanyulung ning kekatamung ekonomiya.

Dakal a salamat kekayu at masayang pamagdiwang kekatamu ngan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Speech of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo during the Ibon – Ebon Festival. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123641/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1006&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Grand Spring Festival Reception

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Grand Spring Festival Reception hosted by the Embassy of the People's Republic of China

[Delivered at the Centennial Hall, Manila Hotel, February 4, 2008]

Thank you very much Secretary Romulo, Ambassador Song Tao member to the diplomatic corps, Vice-president De Castro, other officials of the Philippine government, members and leaders of the Filipino-Chinese community, ladies and gentlemen:

It is an honor to join our Chinese friends on this auspicious occasion. Chinese New Year is widely celebrated in the Philippines and very popular even outside the Chinese community.

But while we are delighted to be together tonight, I am also sad about the reports of widespread devastation in many provinces across Central and Eastern China due to heavy snowfall.

And I speak for the Filipino people in expressing deepest sympathies to those whose family and friends perished in the disaster.

The extensive damage to property and the disruption of the normal course of life for many of our Chinese brothers and sisters before the spring season are tremendous challenges.

More snows in China may mean higher world commodity prices this year as demand remains strong while agricultural supplies are badly hit by weather.

In the face of these trials, the Filipino people stand squarely with the Chinese people in the hope and confidence that resolve and commitment will lead to full recover of all distressed individuals, and the complete rehabilitation of all affected communities.

With the resilient nature of the Chinese people and under the able leadership of President Hu Jintao, we are sure that the challenges the people of China face now will be overcome.

This disaster and the global economic situation are a key issue for us because the more interconnected we become, the more we need to manage through the ups and downs of other nation's problems. And this is true certainly with any further volatility in the big economies of the world.

To keep our economy resilient to major economic disruptions, we have ordered a surge in infrastructure spending – 200 billion pesos from the national government, government corporations and local governments; three thousand kilometers of roads and 10,000 school buildings – these are a firewall against the world volatility and as a springboard for further growth. We are focused like a laser pointed on frontloading the infrastructure boom and expansion of public services.

We are able to do this because of the additional resources generated by our economic reforms.

Our economy through those reforms has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in a generation. And I thank Ambassador Song Tao for acknowledging a 7.3 percent growth rate. (applause)

Seven years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. No one thought we could bring the budget close to balance, lower our national debt and raise employment, but we have.

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent growth and stability. Investments are pouring in.

China's Jinchuan, Citic and Jilin Nickel are some of the investors who have expressed interest in project in the Philippines. In terms of mining, China is one of the world's biggest consumers of metal so for the mining industry, this represents a significant opportunity in terms of mining exploration, development and mineral exports, particularly at a time when we are looking to develop our 1 trillion dollars worth of mineral reserves across the country. We hope to see the nickel and other Chinese investments come to fruition soon.

With Beijing hosting the 2008 summer games, the Olympics and China's rise as the third-largest economy in the world, China's performance is also expected to bring heightened economic progress in our region.

We see the rise of China as a significant opportunity for the Philippines. Our overall relations with China are now more confident, mature, and comprehensive, they are punctuated with substantial and important projects not just the legal mines, many projects aimed at deepening exchanges in a number of areas, including trade and investment. On trade, China is now our largest export market (applause) and as Ambassador Song Tao has said, we have had a substantial trade surplus with China since 2002. Our framework agreement on expanding and deepening bilateral economic and trade cooperation is further enhancing bilateral merchandise trade with China.

And even though both our economies are booming, Philippines with a 7.3 percent, the lowest poverty rate, self-rated in actual, unemployment rate down, and China with its continuing double-digit growth like so many places in the world whether rich and poor alike, we must both fight to close the gap in income inequality. We are cautiously optimistic that both our countries have worked to manage our economy so that we can weather any storm whether it be economic or a snow storm or a typhoon in the near term. We are bullish about the long term economic prognosis of our two countries and we are even more bullish about our relationship with each other.

An aggressive foreign policy is essential to the lifeblood of the Philippines, that is why we are so gratified, reflecting on our relationship during this Chinese new year's eve that the Philippines and China, and our relations with each other have so much to expand and build on in 2008.

And so as we prepare to toast the lunar new year, we wish the Chinese people all over the world, and especially the Chinese people and the Filipino-Chinese in the Philippines, a happy and prosperous year of the rat. (applause) May we all have—the Chinese, the Filipinos and our friends from all over the world, may we all have a meaningful and progressive 2008 ahead.

Kong hae fa tsoi. Xiexie. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech during the Grand Spring Festival Reception. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123633/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1004&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Energy Summit, February 5, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Energy Summit

[Delivered at the SMX Convention Center, Roxas Boulevard, Manila, February 5, 2008]

Thank you for your expression of support.

This is a great day for energy independence as we meet in this summit to enhance policies and programs, attract investments and technology, and launch development projects that will impact favorably on energy in the medium term. In this energy summit, we especially want to reach consensus on efforts to moderate energy costs — a top concern of investors and ordinary Filipinos alike.

Even before crude hit $100 a barrel, we instituted a plan for immediate relief, including the rollback in oil tariffs, which recently cut one peso off the diesel price. We have cracked down on kotong and colorum activities, eroding the earnings of franchised buses and jeepneys. Congratulations to Secretary Reyes and his anti-kotong and anti-colorum task force. I have also instructed Secretary Favila to make the Bureau of Consumer Protection, petition the Energy Regulatory Commission to grant bigger electricity discounts for low-income consumers.

We are always concerned about prices that consumers and industrial users alike pay. We want our power costs to be about average for the region.

That is why seven years ago, I signed the EPIRA into law to provide competitive power rates for our electric power consumers. It provides for open access once we privatize 70% of the power generating plants of NAPOCOR.

We are eager to move along the privatization of NAPOCOR. Not only will it enable open access, it will also free the government of its subsidy and allow us to use the windfall proceeds to subsidize power costs.

We made important progress last year, with the successful sales of four NAPOCOR generating plants worth a total of more than $2 billion. This is in addition to the $3.9 billion bid for the concession contract for TRANSCO, where the government received much more than we asked for. We are confident we will be able to sustain this momentum.

Yet, seven years after the EPIRA, we continue to experience the high cost of electricity. I have been wondering why power costs in the Luzon Urban Beltway are so high, when Luzon is reliant on imported oil for only 1% of its power.

Preliminary information from NAPOCOR indicates that MERALCO buys 45% from NAPOCOR, 45% from its Independent Power Plants, and 10% from the Wholesale Electricity Spot Market. The average selling price of NAPOCOR to all Luzon electric cooperatives is P4.11 per kilowatt hour, if they buy 100% from NAPOCOR. MERALCO buys electricity from NAPOCOR and WESM at peak hours, which are more expensive at P6-10 per kilowatt hour. So the general charge of Meralco is much higher because of the blended mix. I instruct NAPOCOR, to charge Meralco the same rate it charges Luzon electric cooperatives. I instruct the DTI, to petition ERC to enjoin MERALCO from buying electricity from WESM at peak hours.

We also learned that the charges of TRANSCO are not equally distributed by MERALCO to industrial commercial and residential users. Since they differentiate anyway, I instruct the DTI to petition ERC to ensure preferential treatment for poor households and power-intensive industries in the distribution of TRANSCO charges by MERALCO.

We also learned that MERALCO's system loss is charged as a separate item. I instruct the Bureau of Consumer Protection, to petition ERC to prohibit this.

We also learned that MERALCO's distribution charge is the highest among all 140 distribution utilities and electric cooperatives in the country. Veco, Cebeco and Davao Light have a lower distribution charge. I instruct the DTI's Bureau of Consumer Protection, to petition ERC to require MERALCO to charge the same as Veco, Cebeco or Davao Light.

Another way we could mitigate the high cost of electricity and give our industrial consumers the power of choice is, to accelerate the implementation of open access. With 42% of NAPOCOR generating capacity sold, the consumers still do not have a choice of where they can source the most competitive rates. Therefore we have proposed the amendment of EPIRA to remove the 70% privatization as a requirement for open access.

The private sector has expressed their willingness for an early implementation of open access even without the 70% privatization. I therefore urge industry players, particularly private generation companies and distribution utilities, to cooperate in finding solutions on how to implement open access now. This way, instead of EPIRA, we can prioritize the Renewable Energy Bill, which we have certified as urgent.

Energy security also demands the development of indigenous and renewable sources, including domestic oil and gas, geothermal, solar, wind, wave and biofuels. We have made gains in energy independence, with domestic sources having grown 43% since our administration started in 2001 and now supplying 60% of our needs. The strong peso has helped offset the impact of the rising price of oil. But we must further cut our reliance on foreign oil.

The publicly-listed Chemrez is producing coco-biodiesel in Quezon City, while Sember is producing in Lucena City. But both are working at under-capacity levels for lack of coco oil supply. I instruct the Philippine Coconut Authority, to help them look for the supply and to plant more coconut in Luzon.

We cannot underestimate the contribution of energy to our economy. We are encouraged by major investments in generating facilities.

In 2005, we launched the National Ethanol Fuel Program by breaking ground of the San Carlos Bioenergy plant in Negros Occidental, which will go on stream in December.

For indigenous power sources, the windmills in the north are supplying almost all the energy needs of an entire town in the Ilocos. Vince Perez, who used to be Secretary of Energy but is now back in his private sector role as investment banker, was with me in my last trip to Dubai. He has raised $150 to invest in renewables like wind power.

The first Philippine-made bioethanol from molasses will be on in March in Ormoc, with investment from Praj Industries – a result of our India State Visit last year.

The Northwind Power Corporation in Luzon will be completed this year, the Sibulan hydro-electric plant in Mindanao to be completed in 2009, the Mindanao Geothermal in 2010, and KEPCO, Nasulo Geothermal and Global Business Power Corporation, all in the Visayas to be completed in 2010.

Bionor Transformacion of Spain is looking for 100,000 hectares for jatropha nursery in Palawan – a result of our Spain State Visit last year. Abengoa of Spain is interested in 60,000 hectares for cassava bioethanol nursery. They are looking at Misamis Occidental.

We must also sustain and expand investments in the delivery of non-traditional fuels, like compressed natural gas from now available to dozens of provincial buses through mother-daughter CNG stations. We must make CNG available to hundreds, not dozens of buses by pursuing the large investors from Japan and India, who have long expressed interest in building a chain of CNG stations and natural gas pipeline from Batangas to the various stations in that chain.

Solar power is lighting up rural homes in Mindanao. Aside from the projects in the land reform areas, the private investment in Cagayan de Oro is the largest solar power plant in the developing world.

The geothermal fields in South Luzon, the Bicol region, central Visayas and some Mindanao provinces make us, in the words of Bill Clinton, the world's geothermal leader.

Your knowledge in energy conservation are also all-important in our quest for energy security. Like Australia, we should phase out incandescent lights by 2010.

The unceasing combustion of fossil fuels on a planetary scale is the main culprit of climate change. From rising tides, to changing weather to deforestation and pollution of air, sea and land, the challenges of climate change are great. As a nation made up of over 7,000 island, rising seas due to global warming takes on a whole new meaning. Florida may lose some coastline, we lose a nation. Our response to this grave challenge may sound humorous, but our intent is deadly serious: we must work together to solve this problem.

Every nation, developed or developing, must assume the mantle of leadership and work to address the challenge of climate change. Each and every person bears some responsibility for what we have done today and throughout history, to diminish our global environment. Some nations are more responsible than others; some are more responsible today than yesterday. But all that apportionment of blame does nothing against a rising tide of global warming that will swamp our nation, if we do not act with decisiveness and solidarity.

In the case of our country, we have begun the Green Philippines Plan, a blueprint for mapping out our environment and economic policies, including energy policy, that will allow for sustainable development that doesn't fall on the backs of the poor or erode our environment. There is a cost to make the Green Philippines come to life, including investments in developing alternative fuels, renewable energy and energy efficiency. But the cost is greater without the plan and the investment in our people and our environment.

Compounding the challenges we face on the energy front is the global economic situation. It is clearly an issue for us because the more interconnected we become, the more we need to manage through the ups and downs of other nations' economic bubbles. This is certainly true with any further volatility in the US economy. The good news for the Philippines is that, we have matured and diversified our economy so much the last few years that our economic turnaround is permanent and our economy resilient to major economic disruptions.

I have ordered a surge in infrastructure spending as a firewall against US volatility and as springboard for further growth. We are focused like a laser pointed on the infrastructure boom and expansion of public services.

As of last month, there are now lights in all but 3% of the country's 42,000 barangays. We will wire up the remaining 1,400 villages before 2010. At the same time, expect to see me groundbreaking projects the whole month of February, as we frontload our 2008 budget for the surge.

We thank the DOE and the collaborating agencies and program partners of this summit.

Let us now move in concert, and together, fulfill the opportunities to sustain our development even in this time of volatility. Thank you

Source: Adamson University Library

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 17th anniversary Celebration of the Philippine National Police (PNP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 17th anniversary Celebration of the Philippine National Police (PNP)

[Delivered at the Multi-Purpose Hall, Camp Crame, Quezon City, February 6, 2008]

Thank you very much Secretary Puno for your introduction.

Former President Ramos, not only former president of the Philippines but also former Chief of the Philippine Constabulary; General Razon and the other officers and men and women of the Philippine National Police; members of the diplomatic corps; colleagues in the Armed Forces and the civilian government agencies; benefactors and friends of the Philippine National Police; awardees; ladies and gentlemen.

Sa ating mga mamang pulis at aling pulis, happy anniversary sa inyong lahat! (Applause)

At taos-pusong pagbati sa lahat nang tumanggap ng parangal kanina. Una sa lahat, nabigyan natin ang isang biyuda ng isang pulis na nagbuwis ng buhay para magsagip sa iba. (Applause) Nagbigay din tayo sa mga nakasolusyon at nakahuli doon sa nagbomba sa Batasan at doon sa nakasagip kay Father Bossi mula sa kamay ng mga teroristang kidnapper. (Applause) at nagbigay tayo ng pinakamataas na parangal doon sa mga nagpamalas ng kagalingan at katapatan sa tungkulin noong pangyayari sa Manila Pen. (Applause)

Yung nangyari sa Manila Pen pinapakita that people want political stability, a bright economic future and social justice. Those who dream of doing things to disrupt our progress are out of touch with the hopes and dreams of the average Filipino. We have been through many upheavals and time and again, the people have indicated they want a stable government and economic progress — that is what they are getting now. And thanks in no small measure to mamang pulis and aling pulis. (Applause)

Tamang-tama rin yung special award sa Human Rights Office dahil nga ang tema ng anibersaryo ninyo ay, “Mamang Pulis: Tagapagtaguyod ng Karapatang Pangtao Tungo sa Kapanatagan ng Mamamayan.”

And together with you, in fact, you have made it easy for us to follow the roadmap laid out by the Melo Commission to get at the bottom of unexplained political killings. Thanks to Mamang Pulis and we should say Aling Pulis because the head of the Human Rights Office is a woman. We have been meeting with success in the fight to put an end to the legacy of political violence in the Philippines.

And with the priority you have given that legacy, we will continue to bring perpetrators to justice, jail criminals, and exhort the nation to leave behind its terrible legacy of political violence. And thanks to your investigations and the building-up of evidence and arresting perpetrators, political killings were down 83 percent last year. Congratulations! (Applause) But we must not rest until we reach zero.

Pinupuri ko ‘yung mga ginagawa ng human rights office ng PNP. Yung mga seminar at panukala ng PNP upang pagtibayin ang inyong mga regulasyon at tradisyon nagtatanggol sa karapatan ng bawat mamamayan.

And congratulations as well for decreasing last year's total crime volume by 7.4 percent. And especially, I'm sure the Chinese community — Don Emilio and the other members of the federation and the business club — will thank you especially, the kidnapping went down by half. Congratulations also for that! (Applause)

And congratulations for your neighborhood partnership program which was cited by the U.N. Agency for Asia and Far East Institute for Crime Prevention and Treatment of Offenders as a model for community participation in crime prevention. That institute also noted the PNP's achievements against the trafficking of persons, particularly child sexual exploitation.

And so you have devoted yourselves to the protection of human rights not only in the political sphere but in the sphere of women and children's welfare. Malapit na 'yung Children's Month. Dati-dati nagsi-celebrate tayo ng PNP anniversary sa Enero pero ginawa nating Pebrero ngayon, early February, dahil hindi pa natin alam noon nung hinahanda ninyo ito kung kailan ako babalik mula sa Davos at Dubai. Mabuti na rin dahil tayo ay nasa runup na patungo sa selebrasyon ng Women's Month at magandang pagkakataon lalo na dahil sa naganap niyong gantimpala tungkol sa child protection against sexual abuse, tungkol... pwede nating i-highlight ngayon yung mga ginagawa ng pulis para proteksyunan yung mga bata at mga kababaihan.

Ang Women and Children's Concerns Division ay pinalakas natin, pinalakas ninyo bilang Women and Children's Protection Center. And I am glad that after ordering the hiring of 2,000 policewomen in 2006, equivalent to four battalions, now we can unveil the center as the country's first all-woman police outpost. (Applause) And I was saying that this center should also serve as a prototype station women's desk. Not that all the other stations should be all women but that woman's desk or the cubicle should showcase a woman's touch. It should be in cool pastel colors or feminist purple. It should have victim-friendly reception rooms. It should have shelves that will display 'help' literature on domestic violence, and it should have a clean comfort room.

Pero mayroon na rin tayong all-women SWAT team at CDM team mula sa regional special actions units ng NCRPO at sa Quezon City Police District. Sana nakatulong ito kay Police District Director Gatdula na siya ay nakakuha ng Outstanding na Police District Office dito sa Metro Manila. We will meet the all-women swat team later. We will present them to the media. And they should be able to respond to extreme cases of domestic violence when hostage taking is involved. We want to show that police girl power is not limited to sisterly counseling. It packs a mean firepower as well. (Applause)

We need today as much as ever all the hallmarks of our police forces, male and female — patriotism, loyalty and professionalism which you have all shown as epitomized by our awardees but also the entire organization. With the support of our policemen and policewomen, we will leave this nation stronger and more secure for all. With your support, we will continue to provide increased stability, economic growth and peace and order.

Patuloy tayong magkaisa. Ang PNP sa ibabaw ng mga katangiang pinakita ninyo itong nakaraang taon. Pinakita ninyo ang pagkakaisa. Ituloy natin ito tungo sa higit na ligtas, mapayapa at maunlad na sambayanan.

Kaya sa inyong lahat, sa inyong anibersaryo, hindi ko na uulitin yung mga benepisyong inulat ni General Sonny Razon. Ang sasabihin ko na lamang, congratulations sa inyong magandang gawain!

Mabuhay ang PNP!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during The 17th Anniversary Celebration of the Philippine National Police (PNP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123606/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1001&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Local Peace and Security Assembly for Region XI

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Local Peace and Security Assembly for Region XI

[Delivered in Tagum City, Davao Del Norte, February 8, 2008]

Kining Peace and Security Assembly gisundan ang usa sa labing makasaysayang hitabo dinhi sa atong nasod – ang unang higayon nga usa ka tawo gikan sa Mindanao ang galingkod isip Speaker sa House of Representatives.

Nahinumduman ko nga sa kumperensiya sa Peace and Security sa Cagayan de Oro, niadtong Hulyo sa miaging tuig, mihangyo kanako si ang mga taga-Mindanao agi kan Cong. Rufus Rodriguez nga kung mahimo, ihatag unta ang traynta porsyento isip alokasyon sa Mindanao gikan sa atong national budgat matag tuig. Gisugo ko dayon ang mga namuno sa Department of Agrarian Reform (DAR), Department of Agriculture (DA) ug Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) aron siguruhon nga masunod dayon kini sa ilang mga programa.

Peace will bring a new era of economic development to Mindanao. Coupled with our increased budget for Mindanao is our new paradigm for peace in the island. At a time when hard power has not proven its value in the world, our model for dealing with the flashpoint area of Mindanao has focused on a unique combination of soft and hard power to promote peace. We have been able to meld together confidence-building measures grounded on strong interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness; investments in economic and basic infrastructure development; and mutual security arrangements to keep the peace in Mindanao.

Congratulations to the region's military and police in their joint efforts with the military in curbing terrorists and rebels.

The terrorists stand in the way of bringing peace, stability and order to Southern Philippines. We have decided we must wipe them out once and for all. They are a menace to peace.

Recently, six of our soldiers died and eight were wounded in an ambush by the New People's Army (NPA) in Davao Oriental.

We commend our armed forces for their heroic efforts. We regret and mourn with the families of those soldiers who have been caught in the line of fire.

The communist rebels have spent years as a low-level threat. It is time for their disruption of human rights to be put to rest so that the nation can move ahead. They impede the progress and development of a number of rural areas and they are responsible for a wide range of human rights abuses. If we are to become a First World country, we have to put a stop to their ideological nonsense and their criminal acts once and for all.

I have specified a timeline – 2010 – to end armed rebellion.

Kauban sa angay masumpo ang trese ka guerilla fronts dinhi, labi na gayod kadtong ga-kuta didto sa Compostela Valley ug kadtong ana-a sa boundary sa Davao del Sur, Agusan ug Bukidnon.

I extended the term of AFP Chief of Staff General Hermogenes Esperon for three months because I want him to continue the AFP's current initiatives in fighting terrorism.

I hereby announce the Investment Defense Force function of the military to give protective shield to power assets, other infrastructure, and mineral development projects.

We have made peace with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) a cornerstone of our Administration. We have made great progress thanks to the commitment of the parties involved and to the support of our friends and allies including Malaysia, Libya, Brunei, Japan and others. We are close to an agreement. Our negotiating team has just created a new draft paper on creating a homeland for Muslims in Southern Philippines. We are hopeful this will help restart the talks with the MILF and equally hopeful that it will result in a definitive peace agreement.

However, even as we have achieved a great deal, the island is vastly improved in terms of safety, security and economic growth, our paradigm for peace in the island is really making things better; it will really take off if we achieve lasting peace and the millions of foreign aid promised comes pouring in.

We take the issue of human rights seriously. We have followed the roadmap laid out by the Melo Commission. We have been meeting with success in the fight to put an end to the legacy of political violence in the Philippines.

We deplore any and all killings of political activists and journalists. No person is above the law in this nation. Whether a former president, member of the military or an average citizen, all men and women are equal before the law. The death of any Filipino citizen in pursuit of their right to political expression violates human liberty.

We will continue to bring perpetrators to justice, work with Congress to enact the law on human rights compensation, and exhort the nation to leave behind the terrible legacy of political violence and clan vendetta. Thankfully, political killings were down 83 percent last year but we will not rest until we reach zero.

Ang atong mga kampanya kontra sa terorista ug rebelyon kinahanglan nga ikonekta sa atong pakiglaban sa kapobrehon.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 30 years, including a 7.3 percent growth rate. Seven years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. And no one thought we could bring our budget close to balance, lower our debts and raise employment, but we have.

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Investments are pouring in, the peso is strong, our stock market has reached historic heights and we have created seven million jobs in seven years.

The global economic situation is a key issue for us because the more interconnected we become, the more we need to manage through the ups and downs of other nation's economic imbalances. This is true with any further volatility in the US economy. The good news for the Philippines is that we have matured and diversified our economy so much the last few years that we are confident our economic turnaround is permanent and our economy resilient.

I have ordered a surge in infrastructure projects. We have allocated almost 200 billion pesos for these infrastructure projects. These funds will come from the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) and other concerned agencies.

Daghang mga proyekto sa imprastraktura ang gibutang dinhi sa rehiyon sa Davao ug Compostela Valley, sama sa Davao-Surigao Coastal Road nga gisa-ad ko sa akong State of the Nation Address, ug ang pagpadako sa pantalan sa Sasa nga mura'g mahuman na.

Apil ining mga imprastraktura ang otsenta'y syete nga Farm to Market Roads sa inyong upat ka probinsiya, kauban ang disisyete nga gitukod dinhi sa Davao del Norte.

Ni-labaw na sa 500 ang mga Botica ng Barangay sa inyong rehiyon. Ang mga probinsiya sa Davao del Norte ug Compostela Valley ang may labing daghang outlets tungod kay kini ang mga probinsya sa rehiyon nga mas daghan ug kinahanglanon. Hapit sa 400 ang gidaghanon sa Tindahan Natin nga gabaligya ug baratong bugas.

I-focus nato ang atong mga gihimo aron makab-ot nato ang permanenteng kalinaw dinhi sa rehiyon ug sa tibuok nasod samtang gipadayon ang mga paningkamot alang sa pag-usbaw.

Pina-agi sa inyong tabang, sa suporta sa ubang pang Pilipino ug sa kalu-oy sa atong Gino-o, malampuson kining atong mga paningkamot aron makab-ot ang atong mga tuyo.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech at the Local Peace and Security Assembly for Region XI. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123552/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=999&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Sentenaryu: 100th Year Celebration of Pampanga High School

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Sentenaryu: 100th Year Celebration of Pampanga High School

[Delivered at the Bren Z. Guiao Convention Center, San Fernando, Pampanga, February 11, 2008]

Masayang pamagdiwang ning sentenaryu Pampanga king High School.

Malapit ya king puso ku ing PHS uli na ning ing kanakung tatang, i Presidenti Diosdado Macapagal, kabilang ya king Batch 1929 na niting eskuwelahang iti.

In 1925 when he was 15, he was chosen class valedictorian in Lubao Elementary School.

The nearest high school was in San Fernando, some 40 kilometers from Lubao.

For the children's sake, his mother moved the entire family to San Fernando. She rented a nipa house in San Fernando and accepted boarders in order to meet their our living expenses.

Pampanga High School opened a completely new world for my father. For one thing, education, which until then had been a chore, though an easy chore, began to be a pleasure. He started to make friends who would remain with him for life, even as far as Malacanang. One of them recalled, "He borrowed textbooks because he could not afford to buy them. Ten minutes before class he would ask a classmate for a textbook and stand under the shade of an acacia tree skimming it. Then, to the astonishment of everyone, he always knew the lesson."

His four years of stint in the secondary courses were spiced with memorable events. He did his best to rank among those at the head of his class from school year to school year, to show his undying gratitude to his mother.

My father's experience reflects that of many Filipino families. Education is a core value of Philippine society and family life. The hard working men and women of this nation put their family first. The best gift any family can give to a child is access to a good education.

Education is the foundation of economic prosperity and individual liberty, justice and self worth.

Ding eskuwelahan ila ding pangadwang bale na ning metung a anak, inya pin yang metung a maragul a panibatan na ring mayap a bage a dadala na king mabilug nang bie.

Deting bage deni ilang pigkalub ning PHS karing keyang estudyante king kilub na ning metung a siglo.

Ngening aldo iti, pagdiwang taya ing metung a siglo ning tradisyon ning PHS king academic excellence ampong dekalidad at relevant a edukasyon a bibie na karing kekatamung kabalen a kayanakan ban saupan lang magsadya para karing pagsubuk king karelang panahun at maka-ambag la king kekatamung pagnasan a bawasan in kasakitan.

We are making real progress in alleviating poverty. The rate of poverty is down, both objective measures and self-rated poverty. Employment is up. Our education and healthcare services to the poor vastly improved. Only through a strong economy can we improve the plight of the poor. To that end, we have turned the corner on our economy.

Today the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Investments are pouring in, the peso is strong, our stock market has reached historic heights and we have created 7 million jobs in seven years.

For the first time in a generation, we are investing heavily in human and physical infrastructure. Roads, bridges and airports as well as new school buildings and scholarships are the central building blocks that are necessary for our long term prospects.

Later today we will ground-break new classrooms in Mexico, part of the 10,000 classrooms we will build this year.

King Pampanga High, binie na ning gubyerno ding rehabilitation na ning Gabaldon Building, Elevated Drainage System, Dama de Noche Building at ing Diosdado Macapagal Inner Court.

Kinimut tamu ban pasikanan ing kalidad ning edukasyon king elementary among High School.

Sasaupan tala ding estudyante king high school a maki-agape la king panahun na ning internet kapamilatan na ning pamalage ning computer linkage balang metung a public high school. Atin na ba king Pampanga High School?

Makanyan mu naman, ban ta lang adinan tsansa ding pakakalulung estudyante king high school a makapag-kolehiyo, digdagan ta la ding scholarship para king kolehiyo at pesikanan ta ya ing ladderized system, para karing vocational/technical students a magnasang manikwang diploma king kolehiyo.

Teachers are the backbone of our educational system. Without these selfless men and women, our children would fall short of their dreams and aspirations. We are deeply indebted to the hard work and dedication of all our teachers. Their work is noble and patriotic. They deserve the praise and respect of every Filipino.

Kaya menikwa ta nang migit-kumulang 53,000 tala-turu manibat 2002 hanggang 2007.

Teachers received additional compensation in 2006 and a 10% salary increase in 2007.

Unlike in previous Administrations, teachers now share the increasing bonus that other national government workers receive. Teachers received a P10,000 bonus in 2007.

Teachers are included in the salary increase provided in our Administration bill for a new third round of salary standardization. Let's ask our Capangpangan Congressmen to author the bill.

Pasibayu, congratulations king Pampanga High School, king kekayung pamagdiwang king kekayung sentenaryu. Pupugayan da ko king pamilyag yu king kinabukasan kapamilatan na ning pamag-tuun yung pansin king panyulung da ding kekatamung peka-maulagang yaman – ding kayanakan.

Dakal a salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Speech of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo during the Sentenaryu: 100th Year Celebration of Pampanga High School. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123517/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=995&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the CEO Forum of E-Services Global Sourcing Conference and Exhibition with the theme “Centers of Excellence”, February 11, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the CEO Forum of E-Services Global Sourcing Conference and Exhibition with the theme “Centers of Excellence”

[Delivered at the Convention Center, SM Mall of Asia, Pasay City, February 11, 2008]

Good morning to all of you and welcome to the Philippines!

Welcome, to our delegates from the various centers of excellence of global offshoring and outsourcing or the “O&O industry”.

This meeting comes at a time when the global economic situation is clearly an issue for us. The more connected we become, and I.T. has connected us so much, the more we need to manage the ups and downs... through the ups and downs of other nations’ economic bubbles. This is true especially with any further volatility in the U.S. economy. At this time, firms are working to support their margins and the good news for the Philippines is that, we have matured and diversified our economy so much the last few years that, we are confident that our economic turnaround is permanent and our economy is resilient to major economic disruptions.

This is the result of seven years work. Seven years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. No one thought we could bring our budget close to balance, lower our national debt and raise employment — but, we have. So our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 30 years.

Moody’s investor service upgraded the Philippines to positive last month for very good reasons. We have the fastest growth in a generation — 7.3 percent for 2007. We have created seven million jobs in seven years, our peso is strong, our stock market up. We have a surge in foreign reserves at the same time our budget is almost in balance.

The strong peso has helped impact the rising cost of oil, reducing the cost of servicing some of our national debt, and it has contributed to keeping the price of imports down and in the process keeping inflation down.

That’s why today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Investments are pouring in, especially in E-services.

In October 2007, the Philippines was named “Offshoring Destination of the Year” by the National Outsourcing Association of the U.K.

In international data corporation’s top 10 list of BPO destinations in the Asia-Pacific region, Manila was ranked number 2, second only to Bangalore.

In a survey commissioned by the London Financial Times, Quezon City, Cebu and Davao were included in the top 10 Asian cities of the future, with Quezon City ranked 7th, Cebu 8th and Davao 10th, comparable with cities like Hongkong, Singapore and Taipei which were the top three.

In another study conducted by Tholons— and we thank Tholons for being a partner in organizing this event in a study conducted on the top 50 emerging cities, Cebu was ranked number 4, just behind three Indian cities.

These distinctions from the global ICT firms and experts in the O&O sector provide our investor friends who have come to E-services Philippines, with objective third-party assessments of our O&O capabilities. They validate our position as a major player in the global O&O market.

The Philippines is ranked among the most attractive offshoring destinations in the world because of cost competitiveness and more importantly, the country's highly trainable, English-proficient I.T. enabled quality manpower.

And as Peter Favila has said, in recent years, the outsourcing sector has expanded beyond call centers and I.T. to include a range of professional and business processes including accounting, human resources, financial analysis, design engineering, animation, medical services, legal services, insurance processes, banking processes, map making, publishing, content creation, and research.

This is a quality we are working hard to maintain through investments in human capital, to ensure the competitiveness of our workforce. We will continue to leverage our level of I.T. proficiency, that currently includes almost a hundred thousand licensed professionals with technical expertise in software development and engineering design.

Upgrading our curriculum in all levels of education is a main thrust of our administration. We recently held an education congress where challenges were presented and solutions explored by our educational institutions and stakeholders from the O&O industry.

The government and the private sector work together under the BPOAP (Business Process Outsourcing Association of the Philippines) roadmap, we work together to develop talent to support the rising demand for quality workers in outsourcing and to expand outsourcing capabilities to new locations across the country, beyond the centers of Manila and Cebu to tap larger talent pools.

And as Secretary Favila has said, a major portion of our joint initiatives is training. We are accelerating the O&O “near-hire” training effort, as Secretary Favila has said, by allocating a budget of 350 million pesos this year exclusively for this sector, together with the Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (TESDA). And more than 40,000 maybe, 55,000 young potential recruits will be recipients of training vouchers and most probably 40,000 should be offered jobs within two months of completion. This is a sizeable contribution to building manpower development and employment in line with our administration's commitment to create 10 million jobs all over the country.

The runaway growth of the O&O industry has echoed throughout the entire system, spawning impressive growth in other sectors like real estate, telecommunications, food and retail, among others.

The demand for prime real estate for BPO operations has spawned feverish construction for office space and campuses, that can house the current demand for expansion sites. This trend is expected to grow by more than 30 percent in the next few years.

The up-and-coming O&O destinations in the Philippines are of course outside Metro Manila. And in support of this, our public-private sector partnership has been assessing various cities, which, I understand will be presented tomorrow to delineate what we have been calling but now we will delineate the area more specifically — the Philippine Cyber Corridor, which are positioned as viable alternatives for O&O locators. The scorecard used by the BPOAP together with the government for assessing the competitiveness of each location includes criteria such as number of graduates, telecom infrastructure, office space and local government support.

Indeed, the information revolution has been good to the Philippines. As a government, we have insisted on building world class I.T. infrastructure for developing the skills of our citizens and as an essential backbone to attract global business.

A strong infrastructure network is the backbone of a modern nation. That is why this year, we're spending almost 200 billion pesos in infrastructure. We're able to do that because of the additional resources generated by our economic reforms. This is part of the two trillion-peso public-private sector medium-term plan, to invest in social and physical infrastructure which includes billions of pesos in education, health care and training along with billions in new bridges, roads, and ports, and connectivity to upgrade our competitiveness.

In the classroom, in the community and across our business sector, our investment on I.T. has paid off well and quickly. We have been able to take advantage of our great Filipino worker by utilizing fully the voiceover internet protocols and landline capacity, to deliver quality voice and data services to any point on the globe.

The speed of innovation can be your friend or your foe. That's why we have our annual meeting. And that's why we want to cement our gains in I.T. and BPO services, to make sure we continue to build up our local industries and move up the value chain. This requires not only good public-private sector partnerships, but a huge investment in our educational system in order to produce the engineers and I.T. professionals of tomorrow.

The competition is fierce, we know that. Change is happening at an accelerated pace. We must live and work in a global environment. We must move quickly to exploit technology innovation to our advantage.

Let me give you an example. When I took office in 2001, the BPO and I center space hardly existed. Today, we employ over 300,000 people and next to India, the Philippines has become the premier global destination for these types of I.T.-enabled services. We are proud of what we have achieved, but we are anxious to solidify our gains. We are anxious not to be complacent in the face of rapid change.

For 2008, we have targeted to grow our O&O workforce by 40 percent in order to cope with the industry demands, and also, achieve a 40 percent growth rate in the O&O sector.

But let me end by applauding all of you, the movers and shakers of global e-services — many are here today — you're on the cutting edge of innovation and change. We admire the risks you are taking to push the envelope, to turn wild ideas into indispensable tools to advance business and the quality of our lives.

Thank you for your support and commitment. Maraming salamat.

Source: Adamson University Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the 2nd General Assembly of the League of Provinces of the Philippines, February 13, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 2nd General Assembly of the League of Provinces of the Philippines

[Delivered at the Villa del Ray, Pili, Camarines Sur, February 13, 2008]

Thank you for your support. Thank you for working together with me toward a first world Philippines in 20 years.

Together we are making real progress in alleviating poverty. The rate of poverty is down, employment is up. Our education and healthcare services to the poor are vastly improved. We have a long way to go, but only through a strong economy can we improve the plight of the poor together. To that end, together we have turned the corner on our economy. This allows us to invest together in job creation, better healthcare and more educational opportunities. These are the keys to lifting up the poor.

Our economy has reached a new level of stability, with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in three decades. Together, we have aimed high. We have met the challenge. Seven years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. No one thought we could bring our budget close to balance, lower our national debt and raise employment. But we have.

The 2007 National Government deficit was P9.4 billion, versus the deficit target ceiling of P6.3 billion. Total revenues amounted to P1.13 trillion, P15.9 billion more than target. Interest payments declined 14 percent and posted P36.5 billion in savings. We could have had a surplus or balanced budget if we wanted, but we decided to take the opportunity of our good fiscal position, to provide for higher spending especially for infrastructure to sustain a high growth in 2008. Funds were disbursed to government owned and controlled corporations and government financial institutions, for pump priming activities and to allow additional contributions from them in 2008 including dividends.

I have always supported the LGUs' right to receive your IRA in full. When I became President, I waived the President's prerogative to retain part of the IRA, as the Local Government Social Equalization Fund. We have provided automatic appropriation for your IRA. We have even paid debts of previous administrations. I have asked Nonoy Andaya, to study how to securitize the IRA shortfalls from the years when we had re-enacted budgets.

But while the fiscal numbers are better than expected, we need to work harder and more effectively in improving the tax effort together. I ask our governors to join the BIR's LGU Assurance Program which will result in better collections of both national and local taxes, as illustrated by the experience of Calbayog City.

We have secured a new loan from the Asian Development Bank in the Yen equivalent to $300 Million for Local Government Financing and Budget Reform.

The program will support the DOF's efforts to help the LGUs improve your capacities to plan and budget, as well as deliver better services for the general welfare of your constituent communities. The program will support reforms in (i) intergovernmental fiscal relations; (ii) fiscal management, planning and public expenditure at the LGU level; (iii) LGU performance measurement and service; (iv) credit financing; (v) local-own source revenue.

We have ordered a surge in infrastructure spending, as a firewall against the economic slowdown in the United States, and as a springboard for further growth.

The global economic situation is clearly a key issue for us. The more interconnected the world becomes, the more we need to manage the ups and downs of other nations' economic bubbles. This is certainly true with any further volatility in the U.S. economy. The good news for the Philippines is that we have matured and diversified our economy so much the last few years that we are confident our economic turnaround is permanent and our economy resilient to major economic disruptions.

We can afford to and should spend more for infrastructure, hopefully, P200 billion between the national government, the GOCCs, and you, the local governments.

Investing in vital infrastructure includes building up our environment as a reflection of our commitment to our quality of life. People need to breathe clean air and swim in clean water while we build manufacturing and bridges.

These programs and activities mirror how you have operationalized your theme, “Enhancing National and Local Government Partnerships in Improving Environmental Governance and Natural Resources Stewardship”.

From rising tides, to changing weather to deforestation and pollution of air, sea and land, the challenges of climate change are great. As a nation made up of 7,000 islands, rising seas due to global warming takes on a whole new meaning. Florida may lose some coastline, we lose a nation. Our response to this grave challenge may sound humorous, but our intent is deadly serious: we must work together to solve this problem. If we do, it will be one of the great achievements of our partnership.

We must assume the mantle of leadership and work to address the challenge of climate change. Each and every person bears some measure of responsibility for what we have done today, and throughout history to diminish our global environment. Our nation has been more responsible than others. But all that apportionment of blame does nothing against a rising tide of global warming, that will swamp our nation if we do not act with decisiveness and solidarity.

We have begun the Green Philippines Plan, a blueprint for mapping our environment and economic policies that will allow for sustainable development, that doesn't fall on the backs of the poor or erode our environment. There is a cost to make the Green Philippines come to life, but the cost is greater without the investment on people and environment.

We aim to make our economic reforms permanent, so that our nation is on a sustained path of economic growth and stability. We have turned the economy around and for the first time in a generation, we are investing hundreds of billions in human and physical infrastructure. Roads, bridges and airports as well as new school buildings and scholarships are the central building blocks that are necessary for the long term prospects of our citizens.

Moody's upgraded the Philippines to positive last month for very good reasons. We have the fastest growth in a generation – 7.3% for 2007. And we have a surge in foreign reserves at a time our budget is almost in balance.

An aggressive foreign policy is essential to the lifeblood of the Philippines. Nowhere is it more important, than protecting and advancing the interests of our overseas workers. That is why we include a governors' representative in my trips abroad.

I want to spend more time with you more often. Let us stay united and continue to work together for a Philippines that will be ready to be in the first world in 20 years.

Thank you.

Source: Adamson University Library

Message of President Arroyo during the 50th anniversary of the Philippine College of Criminology Alumni Association, Inc.

Message
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 50th anniversary of the Philippine College of Criminology Alumni Association, Inc.

[Delivered at the Manila Hotel, Intramuros Manila, February 14, 2008]

Happy golden anniversary, and Happy Valentine's Day!

We fondly remember PCCR's founder, the late Supreme Court Justice Felix Angelo Bautista, represented here by his grandson, law professor Gregory Allan F. Bautista, who had the vision to establish the country's first learning institution for police and detective science.

Before the PNPA and other police training institutions were set up, the PCCR was the main source of government's police investigators and other law enforcers.

Nangunguna sa mga nagtapos dito sina dating PNP Chief at ngayon Public Works and Highways Secretary General Jun Ebdane at si retired General Pete Bulaong, ang presidente ng inyong asosasyon at unang graduate ng PCCR na naging Hepe ng Manila Police District, at ngayon Assistant Director ng NBI.

Marami pang ibang nagtapos dito at naglingkod sa sambayanan. Maraming salamat. Sa inyong sipag, laging mamamayani ang kaayusan at batas, upang magtamasa ng kapayapaan at katarungan ang ating mamamayan.

The five pillars of criminal justice system — enforcement, investigation and prosecution, the courts, the correctional system, and the community — underpin the nation's peace and the people's assurance of security.

The alumni of the PCCR play central roles at least two pillars of the criminal justice system — enforcement and investigation — and provide crucial support to the other three tenets.

Malaki na ang pagsulong ng ating laban sa krimen at karahasan. Natatandaan ko maraming taong nakararaan, dahil sa pagkilos ng ilang listong pulis, natuklasan ang planong pagpatay sa Santo Papa John Paul II, pati na rin ng isa pang malagim na pakana na maglunsad sa Maynila ng mga unang atake ng terorismo. The slay plot against the Pope was foiled, the terrorist attack was not as gruesome as planned, and Manila policemen were lauded by the Interpol for bringing to the world's attention the beginnings of international terrorism.

A number of PCCR graduates have figured prominently in the solution of many high profile crimes.

Last year's total crime volume decreased by 7.4% and street crimes went down by 18.2% from 2006 figures. Kidnapping incidents were cut by half.

Through all these measures, we do not forget that peace is vital to development, and development is vital to lasting peace.

2007 was the best year for the Philippine economy in over 30 years. Economic growth was 7.3%; a million new jobs were created; unemployment is down, poverty is down; the peso is up and the stock market is up.

Investment from abroad is pouring in; we have been cited by the Financial Times of London and the International Data Corporation as the Offshore Destination of the Year and the top global outsourcing destination after India, respectively.

Our billion dollar investment club includes Texas Instruments with its $1.6 billion wafer fabrication facility; two new shipyards of Korea's Hanjin costing $3.7 billion and making us the fourth biggest shipbuilder in the world. And Marubeni, Tokyo Electric and America's AES have all invested over a billion dollars to join the ranks of Intel and Proctor and Gamble to name but a few major investors.

And 2008 holds real promise for a different reason: not only do we expect strong growth in the 7% target zone, but as a result of our total economic overhaul, we are poised to weather a global economic slowdown for the first time in our history.

The real story for 2008 is that our macro economic fundamentals are as strong as they ever have been due to tough choices on raising new revenue, cracking down on tax cheats, bringing reform to our revenue collection and modernizing our banking and financial sector. And we have reformed our budget so that we will be in balance way ahead of schedule.

In your time as students at PCCR and in current times, several facts stand out: Our people want peace, stability and progress, our people want to feel secure in a harmonious society, and the whole nation is clamoring for growth and development.

I have been informed that this association has several proposals to achieve peace for the nation and enhance the profession of crime-fighting. I thank you for your willingness to help. I am prepared to refer these proposals to the proper agencies.

Sustaining growth should be done not only by the police and military personnel. There are tasks for everyone in our quest for peace and development.

With your and the rest of the nation's support, we will meet the challenges squarely to fulfill our destiny as a progressive nation.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's message during the 50th anniversary of the Philippine College of Criminology Alumni Association, Inc. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123433/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=981&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Philippine Economic Briefing with the Economic Team and IRO, February 15, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Philippine Economic Briefing with the Economic Team and IRO

[Delivered at the Rizal Ballroom, Makati Shangri-la Hotel, Makati City, February 15, 2008]

Thank you all for coming. And thank you Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, the Foreign Correspondents Association of the Philippines, the Manila Overseas Press Club, and I understand, the Economic Journalists Association of the Philippines, for putting together the audience for this briefing.

2007 was the best year for the Philippine economy in over 30 years. Economic growth was 7.3 percent, as we have seen and you all know; a million new jobs were created; unemployment is down, poverty is down; the stock market is up; the peso is at its highest level in many, many years.

Investments from abroad is pouring in. We have been cited by the Financial Times of London as the “offshore destination of the year” and by the International Data Corporation, as the top global outsourcing destination after India.

Our billion-dollar investment club includes Texas Instruments with its new, well, rising 1.6 billion-dollar wafer fabrication facility; two shipyards of Hanjin, one up and one coming up costing 3.7 billion-dollar total which makes us the fourth biggest shipbuilder in the world; Marubeni, Tokyo, AES have all invested billions of dollars in our power sector. And most recently, Mittal Global joined the ranks of Intel and Proctor and Gamble, to name but a few of our major investors.

2008, holds real promise for a different reason. Not only do we expect strong growth in the seven percent zone, but as a result of our total economic overhaul, as we have seen in the video, we are well-positioned to weather a global economic slowdown.

The real story for 2008 is that, our macroeconomic fundamentals are stronger than ever due to tough choices on boosting revenues, cracking down on tax cheats, bringing reform to our revenue collection and modernizing our banking and financial sector. We have reformed our budget to be in balance ahead of the medium- term plan schedule of 2010.

Last year, our deficit was only P9.4 billion, the lowest in ten years and far below the ceiling of P63 billion. Revenues were up 16 percent from 2006. Seven years ago, no one thought we could do it, but we have. We are continuing the pace of progress that has made our economy so strong.

This maturity in our economy has brought a new confidence that forms the foundation of sustained economic growth moving forward. We are at a tipping point. And I’m confident that the Philippines will tip forward in pursuit of reaching the status of first world, within a generation.

We should all be proud of what we have accomplished. I thank our economic managers. I thank the leaders of industry and most important, all the hardworking and dedicated Filipino workers leading this nation to a new beginning.

It is the people of this nation whom we serve, whom our government serves, and it is to the people that we owe our allegiance and dedication, to advance this nation every single day. We have weathered a global transformation together, as we fight to rise above the political noise in order to uplift the poor and dispossessed who deserve a rightful place at the table of economic opportunity and social justice.

The global economy is facing challenges. The slowing of the economy in North America and Europe, as we have seen also in the audio-visual presentation, is top of mind in our calculations to protect our economy. To that end, we have developed a program that includes: first, to ensure a surge in investments in people and infrastructure; second, to ensure that we continue to pursue anti-corruption initiatives and to cut red tape; and third, to blunt the global rise in energy by providing targeted relief to the poorest amongst us who suffer the most from the high price of global energy.

We take the ZTE issue very seriously. I moved quickly to cancel the project as soon as I could after proper consultation with the government of China, which after all is our largest export market. We want to fight corruption. The Ombudsman, who is constitutionally independent, has announced that she will carry out a review of this issue and the related allegations. And I have given clearance to the Secretary of Justice to investigate those implicated who are not within the jurisdiction of the Ombudsman. I cannot comment more on this until the reviews are complete, except to say that, I trust that the Ombudsman will investigate this issue thoroughly and I trust that she will ensure a transparent process in doing so. And I instruct the Secretary of Justice to be likewise thorough and transparent in his investigation.

And let me also note that these types of charges have regularly emerged even in previous administrations, as part of our less than impressive political culture. I just hope that this set of charges will not be a political football.

We do not want to tolerate corruption. There is no room in the development of our country wasting money on corruption, when so much remains to be done to invest in the nation. It is a sad fact that the Philippines has a legacy of political corruption. While that legacy will not be erased overnight, we have made tremendous strides. We have made anti-corruption one of the key areas of focus for reform in the remainder of our term.

Last year, we organized the Anti-red Tape Task Force headed by Trade and Industry Secretary Peter Favila, and many of you are helping him in that. We also organize a procurement transparency group headed by Budget Secretary Andaya. Last week, I reminded them to link up with the business sector, academe and the church to implement reforms in government systems. But as Andaya has reminded the public in a very beautiful interview a few days ago, as early as last year, he already had representatives of the Makati business and clergy, in his procurement transparency group, so the reforms are underway.

The foundation of our economic renaissance is built on a vision for our nation that includes strong global engagement, tough economic reforms, and huge investments in people and infrastructure to move our nation forward. Our day in the sun will come if we redouble our efforts to achieve a moral transformation, social justice and economic equality.

The work of governance is difficult. The ability to change the status quo is an uphill fight every day, as exemplified by the struggles we have to go through in our tax reforms. We battle to liberate every Filipino from poverty and invest in their health, education and welfare.

We will not rest until we leave office in 2010, from keeping this nation on the path of progress. We have come a long way, but we have a long way to go. Though poverty has gone down, both by objective measure and by self-rated poverty, there are still too many poor. Though hunger has gone down, there are still too many hungry. There are still too many left out of our political processes. And there are too many who cloak themselves in easy rhetoric and lazy charges who would put personal ambition ahead of national progress.

We call on our political leaders of all parties and preferences to look to our future. We call on them to ensure stability for the sake of the nation. Let us put aside partisan wrangling as candidates jockey for the presidency.

Let us focus on a common agenda of growth, hope and opportunity that lifts up rather than tears down our nation at this important time in our history.

The results of 2007 show the promise of what the Philippines can and should be. Let us work together to make sure we attain this promise uninterrupted.

We are confident and bullish on our economy, our people and our ability to join hands to move this nation forward. As the theme of this economic briefing succinctly puts it, “the Philippines is defying gravity, rising steadily.”

Thank you.

Source: Adamson University Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the 2nd National Convention of the League of Cities of the Philippines

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 2nd National Convention of the League of Cities of the Philippines

[Delivered at the Isla Ballroom, EDSA Shangri-La Hotel, Mandaluyong City, Metro Manila, February 18, 2008]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Puno.

Other Cabinet members, Mayor Benhur Abalos, Mayor Jerry Treñas, Mayor Mel Sarmiento, the other city mayors, the other city officials who are all here to give their moral support to our mayors, other guests, ladies and gentlemen:

To all of you, good noon. And thank you for this opportunity to address you at a time when we really need to join hands against the global crisis.

As we all know, the global financial turmoil has spread and jeopardized the well-being of people across the globe.

It is a crisis for two-thirds of the world. And we are not one of the two-thirds yet, so we must all join together to prevent this global crisis from becoming a Philippine crisis.

This is a time when national and local leadership must give all its attention to managing the impact of the global crisis. And in doing this, we must not neglect those who feel the hardship of the global downturn. As we continue to build an economy, we continue to grow and offer long-term opportunity. Crisis management is one area where the League of Cities of the Philippines has shown utmost efficiency and remarkable success in the past. (Applause)

For instance, the League of Cities exhibited leadership and effective governance in crucial moments in the life of this nation, like the crisis over SARS and the avian flu and the numerous natural disasters and calamities.

And as we... I believe should be our theme today, this time of the world situation, the League of Cities also deserves commendation for instituting ways to simplify business practices in the cities. (Applause)

For instance, many of you I have visited have one-stop shops. Your idea of one-stop shop for businessmen applying permits is a convenience well-appreciated by investors. This puts the Philippines on the map of attractive destinations for business which will ultimately redound to the benefit of our people in terms of jobs and income.

In my first State of the Nation Address in 2001, I said that we should minimize bottlenecks to productivity such as red tape at the national and local government levels. I said that we should try to make setting up a business a seamless procedure between national and local governments.

Again, in the Competitiveness Summit of October 2006, where the League of Cities was very active, one of the recommendations was to set a target that 50 percent of our local government units should be ISO-certified. With the backing of the Cities, this initiative will bring down the barriers of red tape, increase government efficiency and opening up the door to doing business more easily at the local level.

During this time of the year... or not of the year... During this time of economic history when there are firms under strain from the global financial crisis, what the Metro Manila cities have presented today is truly monumental and momentous.

They have especially gone a long way to comply with the requirements of competitiveness through the standardization of the Metro Manila city business registration and permit processes which was launched in this convention. What was presented today will reduce red tape and the cost of doing business in Metro Manila. So, congratulations to our Metro Manila cities! (Applause)

And we hope that in the other cities as well, whatever is the clamor of the firms who are under strain will be the response of the different cities — each one: urban city, rural city, Luzon city, Visayas city, Mindanao city — there'll be different needs of the different firms. And therefore, you all have your own solutions to helping the firms becoming competitive in this global crisis.

Your achievements contribute to the Philippines remaining an island of stability in an otherwise stormy global sea of economic troubles.

You supported me when we had to reboot our economy several years ago, and that rebooting of the economy has held us in good stead.

As a result of dramatic reforms in revenue collection and generation — and some of you were congressmen then when this was done — fiscal controls, banking reforms in 2007, our GNP grew 8.0 percent.

And in 2006 when two-thirds of the world went into recession, our GNP still grew at 6.0 percent.

We have therefore, so far, weathered the initial global shocks well, and that is because of the painful reform medicine we took several years ago.

You were supportive when we made massive reforms in tax collection, revenue raising, banking and financial regulation, fiscal controls and the like. But more importantly — because we've done that reform already before. Now, we are less concerned about rebooting our economy than rebalancing our priorities against the dramatic change in the global landscape.

For instance, we are making transformational investments in physical and human infrastructure, not just to soften the blow of a softening world economy, but to prepare ourselves for the rebound.

As you know, because you travelled to coming here, it now only takes half an hour from Caloocan or Quezon City to Angeles City using the North Luzon-Clark Expressway.

Construction is ongoing to connect C-5 to NLEX so that we will have a seamless expressway system from Olongapo City to Batangas City.

And you can also travel by car from Laoag City to General Santos City through our Roll-on/Roll-off Ferry Nautical Highway System. (Applause) That makes your bonding even easier to do.

The increase in Value-Added Tax also increases your IRA. Although temporarily, there were new cities that had to share in your IRA (applause) for a while, it was not your actual income that went down, but your potential income.

And because Secretary Nonoy Andaya had said that if there's any city that would going to suffer actual declining income, he was ready to compensate from other sources. Like for instance, "Kilos Asenso" or other sources in the budget. (Applause)

But at the end of the day, if you look at your finances before VAT and after VAT, your IRA in absolute terms has increased. That's why in partnership with you, we have been able to invest unprecedented amounts in all those things that Benhur mentioned: in education, healthcare, and other services along with infrastructure.

And, we speak of infrastructure, we speak of building — building the edifice of a strong republic is the responsibility of all levels of government.

And I want to thank you, to take this opportunity to thank you, for taking the need for economic stewardship very seriously. You make the job of national government easier because you take on so much of what has to be done for economic reforms.

So on this day, together, let us renew the call for everyone to forge an alliance to face the daunting global challenges. The resilience of our economy is acknowledged by economic experts. The most recent group that acknowledges is Moody's Investor Services, and these acknowledgements, internationally by accepted experts make us confident that, in spite of the global economic crisis, we are on our way to sustainable growth and the vision of having the Philippines on the verge of first world in 20 years.

So, let us continue to pursue that vision.

As I said earlier, and you were happy to be acknowledged, the League of Cities is very good in managing crisis. (Applause)

The League of Cities is very good in knowing what the businessmen need. And in complying the League of Cities will continue to be very good in pursuing our goal to be first world in 20 years.

Congratulations sa inyong lahat! (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech during the 2nd National Convention of the League of Cities of the Philippines. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412105345/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=20689&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the inauguration of the Binalonan Airfield and Aircraft

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the inauguration of the Binalonan Airfield and Aircraft on the occasion of Binalonan Town Fiesta

[Delivered in Binalonan, Pangasinan, February 18, 2008]

Dios ti agngina unay, kasinsin ko ni apo Mayor Mon Guico. (applause) ken congratulations kenni Vice-mayor Guico ken napintas nga airport na, private airport.

Kasama ko ngayon si Secretary Jesli Lapus of the Department of Education at saka si Undersecretary Ann Lontoc of the Department of Transportation. Let us also greet our Congresswoman Rachel Arenas (applause) and the different mayors of Pangasinan who have come to join us for the annual town fiesta of Binalonan.

Umuna, kayat ko nga dios ti agngina kadakayo amin manen, kakailyak ti bangir ni mamang ko ti kanayon nga suporta yo kanyak.

Maykadua, congratulations toy napintas nga airport and I would like to say, kausap ko kanina si Undersecretary Ann Lontoc, diay Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan para ti North Luzon. Ti North Luzon ket ti agri-business superregion tayo para ti Luzon. Kadua dagidiay importante nga imprastraktura para ti agri-business toy North Luzon ket dagiti no frills airport for agricultural cargo. Iso nga importante toy airport ta as the ATO. has said this is 800 meters, if it becomes 1.2... Pwede na for agri even at 800, for agricultural cargo? At 800 meters, the Air Transportation Office is prepared to give a license to this airport for use commercially for agricultural cargo. (applause)

Ta ti Pangasinan ket ti kadakkelan nga probinsiya toy North Luzon, toy North Luzon Agri-business Quadrangle. And last month, President Ramos wrote two columns about Pangasinan. Kuna na, Pangasinan's more strategic role today is that... Oh! I have to greet also ni governor tayo, Governor Espino. Sorry, okay. (applause) Because we're talking about Pangasinan, haan laeng ti ili tayo nga Binalonan, Pangasinan's more strategic role today is that of investment route and development destination but kuna na Pangasinan is still a laggard compared to even small provinces in seaports, airports and agricultural efficiency. Iso nga no kayat tayo nga ti kadakkelan nga probinsiya ti North Luzon agri-business quadrangle, ag-improve ti agricultural efficiency, importante dagiti no frills agricultural airports kasla ti airport ti Binalonan. (applause)

Importante met sabali pay nga airport diay bangir ti Pangasinan. So I have also asked the ATO... The DOTC to make a feasibility study on where other airports' no frills airports to begin with and eventually to develop into tourism airports dagidiay sabali pay nga ili wenno siyudad ti probinsiya ti Pangasinan. (applause)

Maykadua, no kayat tayo met nga nangato ti agricultural efficiency ti Pangasinan, importante met nga data importante nga resource tayo ti capital investment tayo ti San Roque Dam nga itatta ket anti-flooding dam, agbalin met agricultural irrigation dam. Iso nga ta adda tayo nga six billion pesos tawen-tawen para ti irigasyon, importante nga dakkel nga parte ti irrigation funds tayo mapan dagidiay downstream irrigation canals nga gapo ti San Roque Dam. And that is what I will instruct Secretary Arthur Yap to release maybe the first 100 million that is needed for the downstream irrigation dams of San Roque ken gapo na ti San Roque Dam, adda diay karruba tayo diay ili ti san manuel ta mapan dagidiay naduma pay nga ili ti Pangasinan sigurado it will I suppose pass through Binalonan and also benefit the farmers of Binalonan. (applause)

Maykatlo, malpas ti airport ken ti irrigation, kuna ni Presidente Ramos, importante met nga ti Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway nga asidegen malpas this coming month, kuna na kuma nga agtuloy aging gana rosales, Pangasinan where we gave him the good news, not very long ago just like this one which is a private sector investment, a private sector corporation, consortium was able to win the unsolicited proposal contract for a build-operate-and-transfer expressway from Clark all the way up to Rosario, La Union. (applause)

Ikauppat, kuna na, sapay koma nga ti railroad ti northrail nga itatta, dagiti plano tayo mapan aging gana clark, sapay kuma, kuna that it should go all the way up to Dagupan. And so we will also ask the DOTC, Undersecretary Ann Lontoc, to also make the study so that the Northrail now which is plan to go from Caloocan to Malolos, to Clark should also be extended up to Dagupan. (applause)

And finally, awan kano ti napintas nga seaport toy probinsiya tayo. Of course, it cannot be here in Binalonan because we are landlocked. But it is important also for the DOTC, iso nga importante nga addadtoy ni Undersecretary Ann Lontoc, that the DOTC should also look to see where there should be the best place for a seaport for the province of Pangasinan.

So lima dagiti importante tayo, importante para ti masterplan ti Pangasinan — dagiti airprots, ti expressway, ti railroad, ti irigasyon ken ti seaport. And also ta ti San Manuel, asideg diay Cordillera, and there's already a beautiful lake in San Manuel. We can also have, Ann, water transportation in San Roque that can bring us all the way to the Cordillera and close to Baguio City so that Binalonan will be able to go to Baguio City two ways — ti Kennon Road ken ti San Roque through a beautiful water transport. (applause)

So data, apo Governor Espino, data ket ti masterplan tayo para ti probinsiya ti Pangasinan and the reason why I am saying this here in Binalonan is that these are the challenges kuna ni President FVR, ken kuna na, likewise challenged is President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo whose beloved mother Doctora Evangelina Macaraeg-Macapagal comes from Binalonan, and also it is a challenge to Mayor Ramon Guico because not only is he a mayor of Binalonan, he is also the president of the Mayors' League of the Philippines and therefore of Pangasinan. (applause)

Iso nga agyamanak nga addadtoy tayo amin, tano am-ammo tayo amin anya ti kayat tayo nga agbalin ti probinsiya tayo ken ti ili tayo and I'm happy to be here once again kasla dagidiay malpas nga tatawen to be here always together to remind ourselves that we are one family, one province and one nation.

Dios ti agngina kadakayo amin ken naragsak nga fiesta. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Inauguration of the Binalonan Airfield and Aircraft on the occasion of Binalonan Town Fiesta. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123354/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=969&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 35th Founding Anniversary of Tahanang Walang Hagdanan (TWH), Inc.

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 35th Founding Anniversary of Tahanang Walang Hagdanan (TWH), Inc.

[Delivered at the Manila Bay Ballroom, Bayview Park Hotel, Roxas Blvd. cor. U.N. Ave., Manila, February 21, 2008]

Thank you.

Thank you so much Chairperson Lovely Romulo for your introduction and thank you for consenting to be the chairperson of the Council for the Welfare of Persons with Disabilities. Please sit down.

Sister Valeriana Baertz, thank you very much for what you have done over the last 35 years. And we're so happy that we have two women here who are such leaders in the care of persons with disabilities. This is not of course to belittle the role of the gentlemen.

So, I would like to also thank our awardees, Mr. Gonzalez for your many, many years of service as the head of the Tahanan ng Walang Hagdanan; (applause) and our best wishes to a very well-known leader of the community of persons with disabilities now president and CEO of TWH, Mr. Manuel Agcaoili, congratulations and good luck to you! (applause) Undersecretary Alice Bala, representing the DSWD; I would like to greet also Bishop Gabby Reyes; and of course to our awardees led by the two great pillars of the Tahanan and also the outstanding products of Tahanan ng Walang Hagdanan; to all the partners, donors, sponsors of Tahanang Walang Hagdanan, congratulations for 35 years of fruitful service! (applause)

Indeed, Tahanang Walang Hagdanan has lived up to its name as a tahanan — a home that gives shelter, comfort and care to persons with disabilities, and that it has continued to this date. Thirty five years is a long time despite some rough times sometimes within its walls testifies to all of you and your strong faith in the human spirit and the will to persevere in your cause.

Tahanang Walang Hagdanan celebrates its 35th anniversary in the middle of the Philippine decade for persons with disabilities which is 2003 to 2012. We proclaimed this in keeping with our country's commitment to the U.N. Convention of the rights of persons with disabilities. And in tandem with this proclamation, we also have Republic Act 9442, which amended the Magna Carta for disabled persons. This was put in place to grant more privileges and incentives to the differently-abled and to make sure that Philippine society will regard persons with disabilities with due respect. We have also put together the national plan of action for this Philippine decade of persons with disabilities.

And as a result of the work that you're all doing together, I am very happy to see that more PWDs because of laws, policies and advocacies more PWDs now enjoy discounts in various establishments and service sectors, from drugstores to public transport. I'm happy to learn that more LGUs have complied with the law to install PWD-friendly sidewalks, that more buildings have constructed ramps and more public utility vehicles have reserved seats for PWDs as well as the elderly.

And among our recipients of the awards today, we can see that ICT-related businesses like call centers, transcriptions, web content and design, and other services are areas where the differently-abled can feel equal to non-PWDs. We urge outsourcing and offshoring firms to consider hiring more of them.

And we'd like to thank Joey Concepcion of 'Go Negosyo' because he also has the program to highlight the achievements of the entrepreneurs with disabilities — disabilities some were physical but very abled as far as organizing and running a business is concerned. And our awardees had been able to show that.

We have been encouraging businesses to hire disabled but qualified workers. I myself when I was vice-president, I took in a number of PWDs in my staff and when I became president, they moved with me to Malacanang. And we're very happy of the good work that they do.

This year, so that we can have more and more of persons with disabilities to be able to have good jobs and even persons without disabilities, we have allocated four billion pesos for vocational training, especially 350 million pesos for call centers and other BPO for near hires. And I hope that Tahanang Walang Hagdanan can avail of the scholarships being provided by TESDA for this purpose. In fact, Tahanang Walang Hagdanan I hope is or should be one of the accredited training institutions for the scholarships of the TESDA. And if it's not that way yet, I'll ask Alice Bala to make sure that that is done. (applause)

I think that's the best way to celebrate the 35th year for Tahanang Walang Hagdanan to explore with the DSWD and TESDA the possibility of more scholarships and work training grants.

Persons with disabilities, yes, have a fair chance of competing with non-disabled in entrepreneurial activities, and we have seen that from one of our awardees. And the DSWD also has its own microfinance but DSWD can also link up the persons with disabilities with microfinance institutions. These are for those who want to start and with very, very small businesses.

Our plan of action makes special mention of women with disabilities because women with disabilities being female and disabled have a double discrimination.

Pero tignan natin naman ang nangyari ngayon halos lahat ng ating mga awardees ay kababaihan. Kapansin-pansin ang mga babae sa pinaparangalan natin ngayon. At angkop na angkop ito dahil sinisimulaan natin ang pagdiriwang ng Araw ng Kababaihan na mangyayari sa pag-umpisa ng Marso, ikawalo ng Marso ang Women's Day. Kaya for a whole month... For a whole month before and the month of March we're celebrating women. And today, we celebrate women with disabilities and women who work for persons with disabilities. So, we thank you and congratulations! (applause)

So, siyempre pagdating ng araw ng kababaihan ay maraming selebrasyon, maraming pagdiriwang. So Alice, siguro dapat ang DSWD sa pagdiriwang ng araw ng kababaihan bigyan ng espesyal na lugar sa pagdiriwang ang mga babaeng nakakamit ng parangal itong araw na ito because you are really truly (applause) such worthy role models to emulate.

Puspusan ang pagkilos ng pamahalaan upang mapabuti ang kalagayan ng mga may kapansanan maging mga mahihirap. Kasi hindi masasabing umuunlad ang bansa hangga't hindi natin mai-angat ang kalagayan ng mga maralita at yung may ibang mga disadvantages gaya ng mga kapansanan.

And just as Tahanang Walang Hagdanan has helped the differently-abled in its care and allowed them to develop into productive citizens, as we see from our awardees, government will continue to invest in the Filipino. Government will continue to nurture people's talents that's why we're spending for the first time almost 200 billion pesos in human capital to give every citizen a better chance to live a purposeful life. And we can afford to do this now, offer scholarships to Tahanang Walang Hagdanan, because our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in more than 30 years.

Seven years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues to afford these things because no one thought we could cut down on tax cheats. No one thought we could strengthen the peso to be able to import your raw materials at lower cost. No one thought we could move the stock market and make the top 16 corporations so rich that their foundations can afford to support beautiful projects like Tahanang Walang Hagdanan. No one thought we could bring our budget close to balance or lower our national debt so that instead of spending on debt service, we're spending on training. And no one thought we could raise employment, but we have.

We have created seven million jobs in seven years. And thanks to Tahanan, some of these jobs are being enjoyed by persons with disabilities.

And we hope that in this 35th year there can be even more because of more expanded care in the home that we call Tahanan ng Walang Hagdanan.

And just like the residents of Tahanan are courageous and hopeful, our Filipino people in general are hardworking and determined to carve a better future. And so, on this occasion of a jubilee anniversary, 35th anniversary, let us all face tomorrow confidently, as we saw in our video presentation, let us all be winners.

Maraming salamat, maligayang anibersaryo muli sa inyong lahat! (applause)

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech During the 35th founding anniversary of Tahanang Walang Hagdanan (TWH), Inc. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123340/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=966&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Building a School and “Ahon Pamilyang Pilipino” (APP) Program

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Building a School and “Ahon Pamilyang Pilipino” (APP) Program

[Delivered at the Silanganan Elementary School, Phase II, Caloocan City, February 25, 2008]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat Secretary Cabral sa iyong pagpakilala. At maraming salamat din, Mayor Echeverri sa inyong mainit na diskursong pagtanggap. Maraming salamat, Congressman Malapitan dahil ang Kongreso ay nagpapasa ng budget na nagbibigay sa atin ng pagkakataong mapagawa itong ating proyektong ito.

Mga kababaihan, maupo ho kayong lahat.

Happy Edsa Anniversary sa inyong lahat.

Itong araw ang pag-apat o huling araw ng apat na araw na pagdiriwang natin ng Edsa — February 22 hanggang February 25. At pinagdiriwang natin ang Edsa dito sa paligid ng mga karaniwang mamamayan dahil iyon ang tunay na diwa ng People Power o kapangyarihan ng taong bayan.

At kanina, tayo ay tumulong maglagay ng dalawang hollow block dito sa ating eskuwelahang tinatayo. Magkano nga itong eskuwelahang ito? Ilang classroom, Undersecretary Bacani? P8.6 million na bahagi ng P200 billion na gagastusin natin sa imprastraktura nitong taon at anim na classroom sa mahigit 10,000 classroom na itatayo natin.

Dahil alam natin na sa karaniwang Pilipino, ang pamilya ang lahat at ang kinabukasan ng mga anak ay sagrado at kaya malaki ang pinupuhunan na nilalagay natin sa edukasyon.

Itong taon, yung budget na ginawa nina Congressman Malapitan na pipirmahan natin sa ilang darating na araw, maybe the first week of March ay P160 billion ang nilalagay sa edukasyon. Pinakamalaking porsiyento ng budget na pumunta sa edukasyon sa ilang taon ng nakaraan.

Kaya itong ginagawa natin, kung minsan, nag-i-inaugurate, kung minsan nagga-ground break, kung minsan nagdadagdag ng hollow block depende kung anong stage ng construction ng ating mga proyekto.

Ngayon, gusto natin kasi na lahat ng bata ay pupunta sa eskuwelahan at libre naman ang eskuwela, eh. Kaya kung tutuusin mo, dapat walang dahilan. Kaya lamang kung minsan, may mga pamilya na lubha ng kahirapan, kahit na libre ang eskuwela, hindi nagpapadala ang mga bata sa eskuwelahan. Ito yung mga pinakamahirap sa ating bansa. At para tulungan isagot yang problemang yan, na kahit na libre ang eskuwelahan, sa sobrang..., hindi pa rin mapadala ang mga bata sa eskuwela ay linulunsad natin itong programang ‘Ahon Pamilyang Pilipino’.

Ano itong programang ito? Ito ang programa hindi sa mga mahihirap kundi sa pinakamahihirap sa lahat ng mahihirap. At gaya ng nakita natin — cash ang binibigay. Dadaan sa atm ng LandBank of the Philippines kaya nandito ang pangulo ng LandBank, si Gilda Vitug. Dalawampu ang binigyan natin nong ATM card ngayon. Pero dito sa Caloocan, Espie? Isang libo ang nakitang pamilyang bahagi sa pinakamahirap sa buong Pilipinas. Nandito ba yung isanglibo? Nandito ba sila? Ah, kayo palang naka-uniporme, okay. At iba-iba ang amount na binibigay sa inyo depende sa pangangailangan ninyo, depende sa ilang anak ninyo at lahat. Pero may kondisyon ito — ang kondisyon kailangan ang mga anak niyo, pumapasok sa eskuwelahan. Kung maliit, kung 5-years old or below dapat nagpupunta sa day care. At kung 6-years old and above, dapat nagpupunta sa elementary school. At buwan-buwan pa, bibisitahin kayo ng DSWD para masigurado na tinutupad niyo yung mga kondisyon. At ito ay habang tinutupad ninyo ang kondisyon at habang ako ay pangulo, buwan-buwan — ibibigay ito sa inyo.

Kasi alam natin na kahit na kung anong ganda ang takbo ng ating ekonomiya, at sa kasaysayan ng ating ekonomiya sa mahigit isang henerasyon, ito na ang pinakamaganda. Meron pa ring mga lubos na naghihirap at yun ang pinakamagdudusa, nagdudusa kapag sa mundo, humihina ang ekonomiya ng mundo ng Amerika, o tumataas pa ba ang presyo ng langis sa mundo, ang pinakanahihirapan ay yung mga pinakamahihirap. Kaya itong programa nating ‘Ahon Pamilyang Pilipino’ ay para makatuwid kayo, para makapag-aral ang inyong mga anak. Para pumunta kayo sa mga health center para malusog ang inyong pamilya. At sa ganon, makakaahon ang inyong pamilya sa lubhang-lubhang kahirapan.

Kaya ito ang tunay na diwa ng People Power — tulungan yung mga pinaka-naghihirap maging pangmatagalang paghihirap, kahit kayo ay kasama sa pinakadukhang pamilya sa ating bansa o kaya nagdudusa kayo kahit pansamantala dahil nagkaroon ng sakuna. Gaya ng nangyayari sa ating mga kapatid: sa Bicol, sa Samar, Leyte, sa Mindoro. Kaya bahagi rin ng diwa ng EDSA, hinihiling din natin don naman sa mga mas maykaya, tulungan natin yung mga kapatid natin na nagdudusa doon sa mga lugar na yun dahil sa mga lubhang ulan.

Yang mga lubhang ulan ay dumating naman dahil sabi nila, yung climate change — nag-iiba-iba tuloy ang panahon, somosobra ang ulan. Kahit na hindi Pilipinas ang may kasalanan, pangmundo yung climate change, ang sagot na lang natin doon ay sikapin nating alagaan ang ating kalikasan.

Dito sa mga barangay, dito sa mga lungsod, ang ating kontribusyon sa ating kalikasan o Green Philippines ay conservation. Linisin natin yung mga basura. Siguraduhin natin na ang tubig ay malinis, kasi yun ang kailangan sa kalusugan.

Marami tayong kailangang gawin, sa susunod na dalawang taon at kalahati, doon tayo maglalagay ng ating pagdiin: yung gumanda ang ekonomiya at iahon ang pinakamahihirap na sumama sa kaunlaran, yung edukasyon na susi ng kinabukasan ng susunod na salinlahi at yung pag-alaga ng ating kalikasan. Sa ganoon sa darating na henerasyon, mas malusog at mas may ginhawa ang ating mga bata ng kasalukuyang panahon.

Ito ang diwa ng People Power na gusto nating ipagdiriwang itong araw na ito.

Maraming salamat. Mabuhay Caloocan, mabuhay ang Pilipinas.

*Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). PGMA's Speech during the Building a School and "Ahon Pamilyang Pilipino" (APP) Program. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123327/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=956&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Peace Rally at the Capitol grounds

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Peace Rally at the Capitol grounds

[Delivered at the Trece Martires, Cavite City, Cavite, February 25, 2008]

Maraming salamat. Maraming salamat po. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Maraming salamat, Governor Maliksi sa inyong pagpakilala sa akin at pinayagan niyo akong mag-gate crash sa inyong talakayan.

Maraming salamat Congressman Pedie Barzaga, ang ating host congressman dahil doon sa Kongreso, isa kayo sa sinasandalan ng inyong lingkod.

Maraming salamat, Mayor De Sagun sa inyong pag-host nitong talakayan ng mga pamahalaang lokal at mga NGO.

Maraming salamat Mayor Roy Loyola sa inyong pahayag sa pangalan ng lahat ng punong bayan ng Cavite province.

Maraming salamat dating Congressman Del Abaya at salamat din na meron tayong kinatawan ng pamilya ni General at President Emilio Aguinaldo.

Maraming salamat sa lahat ng mga opisyal ng probinsiya, mga opisyal, mga mayor ng iba't-ibang bahagi ng Cavite; maraming salamat sa ating mga pinuno ng NGO na narito; maraming salamat kay Ginang Liabres, ang pangulo ng chamber dito sa Cavite; ako'y nasisiyahan na narinig sa iyo kung gaano kaliksi ng ating mga small and medium enterprises dito. At maraming salamat din sa pahayag ninyo mula sa mga malalaking namumuhunan, Pilipino o dayuhan na isang pinakahinihintay na imprastraktura ay walang iba kung hindi yung Coastal road na apat na pangulo na ang nag-groundbreaking, pang-apat ako doon pero ako naman ang makakatapos dahil ito ay matatapos ayon kay Governor Maliksi, ang schedule katapusan nitong taong 2008.

Maraming salamat Ginang Caraan, na kumakatawan sa mga kababaihan ng Cavite. Napaka-importanteng narito ka para magsalita sa pangalan ng mga kababaihan dahil sa March 8 pagdidiriwang natin ang Araw ng Kababaihan at marami na tayong mga gawain para sa run-up para sa araw ng kababaihan at isang dapat nating pinagdiriwang nga ay ang kung papano lumalakas ang mga karapatan sa pangtao at sa ekonomiya ng ating mga kababaihan.

Malaking karangalan ko na nakatulong doon sa mga kabalikat ng silang sa kaunlaran at naalala ko yung malaking problema noon nong nagkita tayo ng 2005. Yung problema ng ating mga magsasaka. Pero ngayon kuwento na ni Governor Maliksi kung gaano kaunlad ang sakahan dito sa probinsiya ng Cavite.

Maraming salamat kay Ginoong Sarmiento na kumakatawan sa ating mga taga-sports at may kapansanan at talagang gusto natin na ang kabataan ay parating malusog at kung may problema sa kalusugan kagaya ng kapansanan, hindi magiging hadlang sa kanyang pagkakataon.

Maraming salamat kay Ginoong Alvarez at ako'y nasisiyahan na marinig na yung pamana ay isa sa mga millionaire cooperatives na naalagaan natin, P51 million ang kanyang asset days. At yung dalagang doon na kanina pa sumisigaw, kumusta ka? Maraming salamat, karaniwang mamamayan, binabati kita, binabati ko kayong lahat, isang mainit na pagdiriwang ng Edsa People Power revolution.

Yung ating mga supporters, meron silang pagdiriwang ng Edsa People Power doon sa Liwasang Bonifacio ngayong hapon. Pero inisip ko na sa halip na pumunta sa isang pagdiriwang ng mga pagdidiskurso, pupunta ako kung saan puwede nating ipagdiriwang ang tunay na diwa ng People Power kung saan nandoon ang karaniwang mamamayan.

Kanina nandoon ako sa Caloocan dahil tumulong magtayo ng paaralan at nagsimula ng pagbibigay ng cash transfer sa pinakamahihirap. Malayo ang Caloocan mula sa Cavite pero nong isang araw, binalita sa akin ni Bert Gonzalez na magkakaroon kayo ng talakayan dito: local government, mga NGO, kaya sabi ni Bert Gonzalez maganda dumaan sandali dito. Yun ang dahilan, yung ang istorya ng aking pag-gate crash sa inyong talakayan. At maganda na dumaan sandali sa Cavite gawa ng kung pag-uusapan natin ang People Power o pag-uusapan natin ang kalayaan, saan ba napanganak ang kalayaan ng ating bansang Pilipinas? Walang iba kung hindi sa lalawigan ng Cavite.

Gaya nga ng sabi nila, kung ano raw yung pagka-importante ng June 12, 1896 doon sa 19th century, ganon din ka-importante yung apat na araw ng Edsa noong 1986 doon naman sa 20th century.

Yung mundo pinagdiriwang ang Edsa 1. Yung mundo pinayagan ang Edsa 2. Yung mundo hindi patatawaran ang Edsa 3. Sasabihin ng mundo, ano ba yang Pilipinas? Pinakamagaling na manggagawa sa buong mundo kaya hinahanap sa buong mundo tapos parating binabaril ang sarili at hindi matatag? Kung ganon, sino ang darating na investor dito? At ang Cavite, napakalaki ng stake ninyo sa katatagan ng pulitika dahil ang Cavite ang isa sa pinaka-industrialized sa ating buong bansang Pilipinas.

Ang Cavite, isa sa pinakamaraming mga investors either small and medium enterprise or foreign investors. At yung mga foreign investors neninerbiyos kapag nakikita nila na hindi matatag ang ating pulitika. Ganoon na lang ang ginagawa natin: si Governor; si Congressman; mga mayor ng iba't-ibang lugar kung saan mayroong mga investments; the DTI; si PEZA na sinasabi parati sa mga investor dito na kayo, kung ano ang ibibigay sa inyo ng ibang bansa, ibibigay din namin sa inyo pero puwede nating mapag-usapan yung diskuwento sa taxes gaya ng ginagawa ni governor maliksi, puwede nating pag-usapan yung diskuwento ng kuryente gaya ng ginagawa ng Department of Energy, pero ang katatagan ng pulitika ay nasa kamay ninyo — taongbayan ng Cavite at Pilipinas.

Yung Coastal road, pinaka-importanteng imprastraktura para sa Cavite, matutupad na natin sa wakas. Yung isang hinahanap niyo — yung LRT nabibinbin sa mga banta ng imbestigasyon kaya nasa kamay na rin ninyo na yung mga nagsasabing nagmamahal sila ng Cavite, huwag naman nila bigyan ng peligro yung hinahanap niyong LRT na aabot ng mga pasahero sa Cavite at sa Kamaynilaan. Kaya ang laki ng tungkulin ng mga Cavite. Malaki ang inyong ginawa nong 19th century para sa ating kalayaan, malaki rin ang magagawa ninyo para sa ating kaunlaran. Ang inyong tinig ay dalhin niyo hanggang doon sa senado. Yung mga sinabi niyo ngayon, yes! Lahat tayo laban sa katiwalian ngunit ang ipinaglaban naman ni Emilio Aguinaldo ay rule of law, democratic principles, ipaglaban natin yun.

Ang paglilitis hindi dinadaan sa tsismis. Ang paglilitis dinadaan sa ebidensiya. Merong sapat, merong karapat-dapat na korte para doon. Kaya kung pag-uusapan natin ang kalayaan, kung pag-uusapan natin ang demokrasya, pag-uusapan natin ang rule of law at ako ay nasisiyahan na ako ay nakadaan dito sa bungad ng ating kalayaan para sa ganon, maalala natin ang tunay na diwa ng People Power — demokrasya and rule of law.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). PGMA's Speech during the Peace Rally at the Capitol grounds. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123306/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=962&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 28th Joint Meeting of the Philippines-Japan Economic Cooperation Committee (PHILJEC) and the Japan-Philippines Economic Cooperation Committee (JPECC)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 28th Joint Meeting of the Philippines-Japan Economic Cooperation Committee (PHILJEC) and the Japan-Philippines Economic Cooperation Committee (JPECC)

[Delivered at the Rigodon Ballroom, The Peninsula Manila, Makati City, February 27, 2008]

Thank you, Secretary Remonde for your introduction.

Ambassador Katsura, please thank the Prime Minister for his wonderful words in greeting this event.

Mr. Hagiwara and other delegates from Japan; Chairman Alcantara and other delegates from the Philippines; Mr. Tsuji; Roy, Mr. Navarro; ladies and gentlemen:

First of all, to all our friends who have traveled from Japan for these important discussions, welcome to the Philippines! I am pleased to see such distinguished representation from Keidanren, the Japan Chamber of Commerce and Industry and the Keizai Doyukai and from the private sector.

To JPECC and to PHILJEC, to the members of the Philippine-based Japanese and Philippine diplomatic and private sector communities working hard to achieve the already positive relations between our two nations, thank you. We value your commitment to help us achieve our economic goals.

Japan has been one of our most important trade, investment, tourism and development assistance partners, since February 1953 or 56 years ago, when President Elpidio Quirino received the first Chief of the Permanent Japanese Mission.

When my father was President in the 1960s, the Crown Prince and Princess, now Their Imperial Majesties Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko, made a state visit to the Philippines.

And today Japanese-Philippine relations have never been stronger. Japan remains one of our country's largest sources of foreign direct investments. Japan has made a major contribution to peace and stability in Mindanao. And as in the case of many recipient countries, and in fact, the world at large, witnessed the announcements of Prime Minister Aso with regard to the IMF fund in the G20 meeting and the fund for developing countries in the Davos meeting, Japan is by far the number one source of Official Development Assistance.

While the global economic crisis has created unprecedented challenges for all countries in the world, we are fortunate to have inaugurated the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement as a milestone in our relations. This landmark agreement can play a significant role in helping our nations capitalize on the mutually beneficial economic opportunities that will support our efforts to meet the global challenges and build a stronger long-term economic relationship.

The JPEPA is about bringing advantages to both nations while eliminating disadvantages. Any trade agreement requires adjustment for both parties, but this agreement will benefit both of our economies.

The agreement will bring about liberalization of trade and services between our two countries, facilitation and greater liberalization of investment, and enhanced technical cooperation and capacity building. It will promote an increased flow of resources and help create a bigger market that will provide greater opportunities and larger economies of scale for both Philippine and Japanese businesses.

Also, it will improve access of Philippine products and services for the Japanese market. It will immediately have a positive impact on farmers, fishermen and processors because bananas, pineapples, crabs, shrimps, chicken, and tuna will have better access. Japanese industries will be able to supply the Philippine manufacturing sector with critical inputs such as Japanese specialty steel products, auto and auto parts, and electrical and electronic appliances and parts. Textiles and apparel will enjoy mutual elimination of tariffs. With limited exceptions, the Agreement enhances Philippine service providers' access to the Japanese market and guarantees non-discriminatory treatment. For the first time, Japan will accept foreign health workers — our very much in-demand Filipino nurses and care workers. We hope to see more trade in outsourcing, tourism, maritime and air transport, banking and telecommunications.

This is particularly important because with the global economy and trading system under assault it is essential, as Mr. Hagiwara said, that political and business leaders throughout the world stand up and face down those challenges.

This certainly isn't the time to raise barriers to trade, as what was done in the 1930s or to retreat into domestic isolation, as what destroyed the world in the 1930s. Instead, we must come together — as we are doing today — to address our common economic needs as we have done in the past and will continue to do for many years to come. So I congratulate both the Philippine and Japanese delegations for your efforts to find ways to expand trade, investment and other levels of cooperation. History will look back on this dark period in the world economy as one that rewarded those who had the foresight to look beyond current challenges and recognize that long-term solutions can only be found if they are based on mutual trust, respect and benefit. This first year of JPEPA's implementation gives both the Philippines and Japan an opportunity to build on and reinforce the high level of existing cooperation between our two nations.

It is, of course, natural as what happened in 1930s, for any country to do what it can to protect its citizens against the threats posed by the global economic crisis, to consider setting aside commitments to reform and to liberalization, and to seek short-term relief at the expense of long-term benefits. But having learned our lessons from the past, and if we review the world figures cold-bloodedly in the last few years, we cannot overlook the fact that trade has been good for the world; it has helped reduce poverty and lift up the poor. True, we have far to go before we can rid the world of poverty, but the journey would be longer if we abandon our commitment to a strong global trading system. The Philippines is more committed than ever to a strong global trading system, but one where the interests of the developing countries take a rightful place in the global order.

And that is why I thank our speakers. I thank the Japanese Prime Minister for giving importance to the G20 because it is much more representative of the world than the G7 or the G8, and perhaps the G20 should become a G30 to be even more representative. On the part of the Philippines — yes, as I said — it is natural to want to protect your citizens. And on our part, we have made sure that the way to protect our citizens is to focus our government resources on programs to see the poor through the lean times first. We must adjust and change, but we must not do so at the backs of those who can least afford it.

We have accelerated our assistance to the poor and our investments in 2009. That is our version of the economic stimulus; we call it an 'Economic Resiliency Plan.' These expenditures are not meant to break the bank, but to further stimulate our economy to help our people, and to sustain the growth that has been so important to our economic success that has generated 8.0 percent GNP growth in 2007 and 6.1 percent GNP growth in 2008 when two-thirds of the world went into recession.

If there is any bright side to the darkening world economy, it is this: we all have an opportunity to do things differently. To fix what hasn't worked; to repair what has worked; to experiment and innovate; and to unleash the creative spirit of all our peoples.

We have the opportunity to create new industries to clean our environment, save energy, and create new and rewarding jobs in the process. And I congratulate Japan for its pioneering work on this way back in the Kyoto Protocol.

Today, in the Philippines, I have an Executive Order on climate change. And every Friday is “Anti-climate Change Day.” It is a day when I devote my own activities to making sure that we promote the work that has to be done to mitigate climate change. One of them is making sure that our government agencies across the board have their own solid waste management facilities. And after this event, I will be going to the Manila Police District to make sure that they work on that. And I can’t help but think, “I’m glad that my meeting with you today is on a Friday.” It’s on a day, a Climate Change Day, because it is also a means for us to be able to recognize and congratulate Japan’s leadership in fighting climate change.

We must be bold and try harder in trying global times. The JPEPA is the greatest test of keeping our bonds strong and our economies open to each other.

And so I look forward to a more brisk and energetic collaboration between the Philippines and Japan. The “Land of the Morning” and the “Land of the Rising Sun” to mutually benefit our present and future generations.

Arigato. Maraming salamat. Thank you. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo’s speech during the 28th Joint Meeting of the Philippines-Japan Economic Cooperation Committee (PHILJEC) and the Japan-Philippines Economic Cooperation Committee (JPECC). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412104529/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=21492&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the League of Municipalities Congress – Mindanao Cluster

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the League of Municipalities Congress – Mindanao Cluster

[Delivered at the Davao City, February 27, 2008]

Daghang salamat. Daghang salamat Secretary Jess Dureza, ang atong Presidential Adviser for the Peace Process ug ang atong Cabinet Officer for Regional Development sa Region 11.

I'd like to greet also his fellow cabinet member, Bayani Fernando, our MMDA Chairman;(Applause) And I'm very happy to be able to sign the law on the Agricultural Competitiveness Enhancement Fund whose principal sponsor is Senator Edgardo Angara; (Applause) And Congressman Baja Mitra; (Applause) may I greet our host congressmen here in Davao City: Congressman Vince Garcia (Applause) and Congressman Sid Ungab; (applause) And of course our host for this affair, the Mayors' League of the Philippines headed by Mayor Monching Guico, president. (Applause) And Mayor Mon Abalos, President LMP Mindanao; (Applause) I would also like to greet our soldiers headed by General Ding Luna, our East Mindanao Commander; (Applause) and our policemen headed by General Andy Karo. (Applause) And governor Cora Malanyaon of Davao Oriental. (Applause) I'd like to greet also DILG Assistant Secretary Panadero; (Applause) And all of you tanang atong mga mayors na nakaanhi din... Mga taga-Mindanao, maayong hapon kaninyong tanan.

Una sa tanan, daghang salamat sa inyong padayon nga pagsuporta kanako. (Applause) Salamat sa resolusyon gihatag ninyo agikan Mayor Abalos, thank you very much. (Applause) Salamat Sab sa tema: "Unity Amidst Diversity Towards Genuine Peace, Progress and Countryside Development."

And that's why I'm very happy to be here to sign the Agricultural Competitiveness Enhancement Fund extension because that is a key to peace, process and countryside development. We've decided to do the signing here even if it's a session day and most of the other congressmen... Oh! May I also, I'm sorry. I'd like to thank OIC Mayor Ortis for your kind words of welcome. (Applause) Okay. And well, we decided to have the signing of this bill into law here in the League of Municipalities Convention for Mindanao even if it's a session day and most of the congressmen are in Manila for the session because our Super Region creates five major regions and two of them are agri-business regions. The Northern Luzon and Mindanao which is agribusiness. And we wanted to sign this bill here in front of you so that our mayors from all over Mindanao will be able to witness yet another means of helping your constituents, the farmers in your municipal list become competitive. Of course, the northern islands of Mindanao are tourism islands, that's their part of another Super Region. But that will be another way of helping them. The agricultural competitiveness enhancement fund is to help our agricultural sector and also it is a means to spread development away from an inequitable concentration in Metro Manila.

I'm very happy to be here also to have included in your program and thank you for allowing us to include in your program our honoring our soldiers — the soldiers and our policemen. The soldiers who are able to have very important victories in our battle against terrorism, like our soldiers who caught the Jemaah Islamiyah international terrorists and this has made this island even more peaceful. The soldiers who have been wounded, the soldiers who have died or the soldiers who have won in the battles against the NPA and the civilians who helped them do it. It only stresses that we have advanced the process of peace in Mindanao to a new level of engagement, and many of you are involved in this new level of engagement. It's focused not only on fighting but on interfaith dialogue on economic development and mutual security. And we have been able to focus on this new level of development with the largest possible international involvement and many of the mayors of Mindanao are witnesses to this new level of engagement. I was looking at the mayor of Barira here where Camp Abubakar is located and I just want to let you know, Mayor, that there is, right now a Singaporean group here in Davao and they are looking for 3,000 hectares of land for banana plantations. (Applause) and maybe Camp Abubakar will be a beautiful place to host them. (Applause) In any case, they are here because we have such a big market for bananas now in the world. We're number one in Japan, number one in China, number one in the Middle East and these are huge markets. And that is all part of Agribusiness Mindanao. We thank Mindanao for your contribution to our strong and growing economy.

A strong and growing economy is the central pillar that together you — the mayors, our legislators and I have labored to create, to help guarantee peace and order and stability in our country especially in Mindanao. That's what the new level of engagement or peace is all about. If we want peace, we have to have development. This is our motive for getting up every day to work hard and focus like a laser beam to fix our economy. We have made tough and unpopular decisions, tax reforms to raise revenues and crack down on tax cheats so that we could invest in our physical infrastructure and in our people. I am glad that our speakers earlier recognize that the more value added tax we collect, the more the internal revenue allotment becomes bigger. (Applause)

Of course, we are in a world where there is a lot of economic uncertainty. The high price of gasoline and everyday commodities hits our poor the hardest. This hits Mindanao because seven of the ten poorest provinces in the country are in Mindanao. While the high price of oil is a global issue outside the control of government, we have nevertheless taken and will continue to take actions to reduce the pain on the people of these high prices. We have cut tariffs on oil. We have begun providing targeted cash payments to the poorest of our poor, especially in the seven poorest provinces in Mindanao to help them cope. For instance, we started this conditional cash transfer in the province of Misamis Occidental in the town of Lopez Jaena. And we also have extended this to Agusan Del Sur in the town of Esperanza. We started 2007 with 7,000 families, we hope to reach at least 150,000 families this year the poorest of the poor. And I hope that the seven of the ten provinces in the country who are the poorest, the seven here in Mindanao will soon begin to feel this assistance from the tax revenues that we have all worked to be able to pass into law.

And today, we signed the law to extend the agricultural competitiveness enhancement fund up to the year 2015 to help the farmers and the agribusinessmen especially the small agribusinessmen, many of whom are in Mindanao, become more competitive and improve their lives.

Paagi sa ACEF, ang mga kaayuhan gikan sa atong paglambo mubalik sa katawhan pinaagi sa pagpadaghan sa higayon aron modako ang ani ang makabutang ang katawhan ug igong pagkaon sa ilang mga mesa.

Paagi sa ACEF, ang buot ipasabot sa pagpamuhunan sa katawhan mao nga makakita ug makagamit ang mga Pilipino labi ng mga taga-Mindanao ug mga proyekto ug serbisyo nga maoy mo-ayo sa inyong kinabuhi, labi na gayod ang kinabuhi sa labing kabos nga daghan nga mang-uuma. Bu-ot sab ipasabot niini nga padaghanon ug siguruhong mahuman ang labing kinahanglanong imprastraktura sa agrikultura nga maoy modani ug mga inbestor sa agribusiness, sama sa mga investor sa gikan sa Singapore, nagingkon kanina kay sila ang mogama ug mga bag-ong trabaho alang sa mga ordinaryong lumulupyo.

Ang ACEF mahatabang sa pagdaghan sa pondo sa nasod, and earlier, when we we're having an interview in the airport, we were asked by Edith Regalao of Philstar, how much is this going to be? Well, it depends on what is the difference between the way it works is, when we use to have quantitative restrictions, that only so much of a particular product can come in. Beyond that, it cannot come in. Now what we've done is beyond that amount, it can come in but at a higher tariff and that higher tariff is the source of the agricultural competitiveness enhancement fund. And so it depends therefore on how much we can collect. But the estimated Baja was giving me earlier in the plane is about 6 billion pesos. And of the 6 billion pesos tuod kay sa adta nga trenta porsiyento sa atong mga lumpsum, labi na sa agrikultura muadto sa Mindanao of the 6 billion pesos (applause) we will be able to put 2 billion pesos here in Mindanao. Kining 2 billion pesos, kining tibuok nga 6 billion pesos makatabang sa alokasyon nga 200 billion sa imprastraktura, ug apil sa pondohan niining kantidad mao ang farm to market roads, irigasyon alang sa mga probinsiya sa Mindanao nga mo-abot sa 2,000 ka kilometro ang gusto nato nga mahuman sa farm to market road and irrigation, we would like to make sure that we have about 200 million a month times twelve months, that would be for irrigation here in Mindanao.

Pondohan sab niini ang mga importanteng kalsada, pantalan ug airport, agricultural airports aron moabot ang mga produkto sa agrikultura nga paspas ug barato.

Senator Angara has always been telling me about the need for no frills agricultural cargo airports and this ACEF fund hopefully will be able to provide also for that.

That is why I'm honored to sign the ACEF extension in Mindanao, because you are the nation's food basket. With the ACEF, we can strengthen the infrastructure juggernaut of the P200 billion budget which comes partly from the appropriations act, the government corporations and you the local governments. Apil ining mga proyekto sa infrastructure juggernaut ang pagpatukod ug bag-ong bangkerohan bridge dinhi sa davao aron molu-ag ang trapiko ug aron mopasas gihapon ang pagdala sa mga produkto sa uma ngadto sa merkado sa bangkerohan. Because this is an important bridge that was destroyed in a previous calamity and therefore we have to rebuild this and this is about P200 million plus. Gangina, gi-inspect nato ang tulay and I'm glad to hear that this bridge will be finished by August 10.

Kauban sab sa infrastructure juggernaut magpatindog kita ug kapin sa diyes mil ka kwarto sa eskwelahan. Adunay bahin ang Davao City sa mga proyekto sa eskwelahan, ug ang labing bag-o dinhi mao upat ka classroom ggroundbreak naamo kanina sa Sirawan Beach Elementary School sa distrito ni Congressman Ungab dito sa Toril and that is a Muslim community and I'm very happy to hear that I'm one of the few presidents who have been able to visit such a far, far part of the City of Davao (applause) and that's also the district of OIC mayor, Mayor Ortis.

Ang imprastraktura importante gayod aron masiguro nga igo kanunay ang atong pagkaon pinaagi sa pagpadaghan sa produksiyon ug sa paspas nga pagdala sa merkado. So ginapirmahan nato sa inyong tungod kining balaod sa Agricultural Competitiveness Enhancement nga mosiguro nga kanunay mapundohan ang mga aktibidad alang sa agrikultura ug agribusiness. Siguradong dako murag ingong ko kanina ang madawat nga benepisyo sa mga lungsod, laing-laing lungsod sa Mindanao tungod kay ang tibuok isla ang kinadak-ang food producer sa atong nasod.

Gipadak-an nato ang budget sa internal revenue allocation. As Mayor abalos said, you have a bigger IRA because we have bigger value added tax, ug karun tuiga ang allocation P210 billion kini, wala'y labot ang budget sa mga ahensiyang dunay proyekto sa inyong mga lungsod.

Unta seguruhon nga ang 20% sa IRA sa matag LGU, sa matag lungsod gamiton sa mga proyektong direktang makahatag ug paglambo sa inyong lungsod labi na sa pag uswag sa atong mga mang-uuma.

Gisuportahan nato kanunay ang katungod sa LGU nga makadawat sa inyong tibuok IRA. Kun mahinumduman ninyo, wala nako gigamit ang katungod sa presidente nga ung nasa una, yung ...(audio cut).... (applause) usa ka bahin sa IRA isip Local Government Social Equalization Fund, diretso na tanan sa atong mga lungsod. Ug ako sab ang milihok aron mahimong automatic appropriation sa budget ang IRA. So dili na kinahanglan pa nga ma-submit ug laing-laing mga papeles sa dbm. Ug kumahog naman ninyo, gibayran ko sab ang utang nga IRA sa mga miaging administrasyon. Ug gisugo ko na si Secretary of the Budget Nonoy Andaya nga estudyuhan kung unsay paagi aron mabayran ang kulang nga IRA niadtong mga tuig nga re-enacted ang budget sa akong administrasyon. Duha ka tuig.

Gi-anunsyo nako sa Peace Assembly didto sa Tagum nga ihatag gayod sa Mindanao ang 30% sa budget, ug gisugo ko dayon ang DAR, DA ug DENR ug karon ang ACEF nga igahin ang 30% sa budget sa mga programa sa Mindanao.(Applause)

Muhangyo ko nga tumanon ninyo ang inyong saad nga alang sa malungtarong kalinaw sa Mindanao.

Kamo ug ako dunay katungdanan nga angay tumanon: kini mao ang paghatod ug mga serbisyo ug programang makapadayon sa atong pag-uswag. Gasalig ako nga manguna kamo aron kanunay nga sundon sa inyong katawhan ang dalan sa pag-uswag.

Congratulations sa tanang atong mga mayors sa Mindanao, maayong hapon kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech during the League of Municipalities Congress – Mindanao Cluster. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123250/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=953&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Opening Program of the Philippine-Japan Manning Cooperative Forum

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening Program of the Philippine-Japan Manning Cooperative Forum

[Delivered at the Plenary Hall, Philippine International Convention Center (PICC), February 28, 2008]

Thank you very much, Secretary Brion.

President Manese; His Excellency the Japanese Ambassador, the Panamenian Ambassador; the leaders and officers of the associated Marine Officers' and Seamen's Union of the Philippines; the Japanese Shipowners' Association; the cadets and trainees of the maritime and shipping academies; guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Today we celebrate the special partnership between the Philippines and the Japan on a very important sector of both our economies — the Filipino seafarers who work in Japanese vessels.

We are proud of Japan's faith in the ability of Filipinos, particularly our seafarers and caregivers. The doors of Japan to Filipino caregivers will open once the Philippine senate ratifies the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement. In the meantime, we have a robust partnership with regards to our seafarers who dominate the manpower on Japanese vessels. More and more Filipinos are becoming management level officers such as masters and chief engineers. And so that is another welcome development.

Most Filipinos are natural-born sailors. The country's 7,000 plus islands with a total coastline of 18,000 kilometers make our people comfortable with the sea. This inborn inclination and the great Filipino workers' drive to excel in whatever he does explain the country's stature as the world's manning capital. A quarter of our kababayans comprise 28 percent of the international maritime industry's total workforce.

Our Japanese friends have acknowledged the superior quality of Filipino seamen. The 30,000 Filipinos working in Japanese ships comprise 80 percent of the total manpower complement of Japanese vessels.

Being the largest sector among our OFWs, seafarers also constitute a major factor in the rise of the Philippine economy and contribute to the 14.4 billion-dollar remittances last year. Our seafarers are truly making waves in serving not only the nation but the world.

The rising remittances and the continued effectiveness of the economic reforms we have implemented for a few years now, have made 2007 a banner year in our economic history. We achieved 7.3 percent, the highest in more than three decades.

A strong and growing economy is the central pillar we have labored to create to help guarantee peace, order and stability in our economy. This is our motivation for getting up everyday to work hard and focus like a laser beam to fix our economy. We have made tough and unpopular decisions to raise revenues and crackdown on tax cheats so that we could invest in our physical infrastructure and in our people.

We are reinvesting the gains of our growth in people. People-oriented programs, for instance, to further hone the skills and talents of Filipinos. We are making sure the marginalized have better chances to acquire relevant and adequate skills training.

We would have to spend a lot more on seafarers and marine officers training if we did not have the Filipino and Japanese private sector. So we thank the Japanese shipowners and their Filipino partners who not only employ Filipino seamen but who also aggressively invest in maritime education and training of Filipinos. Our Japanese-backed maritime schools and training centers contribute, superior as they are, to ensure that the Philippines will continue to be the undisputed manning capital of the world. (Applause)

Furthermore, the Japan seamen's union and its Filipino counterpart, the associated marine officers and seamen's union of the Philippines headed by Captain Gregorio Oca, attend to the well-being of Filipino seafarers not only in ensuring that their wages are competitive and good for their families but also by providing social facilities like the hospitals located in Manila, Cebu, Iloilo and Davao, housing projects for seafarers plus a world-class maritime school, the Maritime Academy of Asia and the Pacific. Do we have some of the cadets from there? (Applause)

I also thank the Japan Seamen's Union, which is dominated by Filipinos, that's why they always allow me to use their facilities as a venue when I want to meet the Filipino workers in Tokyo. (Applause) Any way you measure it, Japan-Philippine relations have never been stronger. Aside from the human link provided by Filipino seafarers and officers on Japanese vessels, there has been a welcome influx in Japanese tourists, an impressive upswing in Japanese direct investment. We only need to remember, for instance, Marubeni and Tokyo Electric who have invested about four billion dollars in our power sector or Sumitomo which has invested almost a billion dollars in our mining sector, Toyota which has put up additional facilities in our country, and so many other Japanese contributions. And very importantly, Japan is making a major contribution to peace and stability in Mindanao.

We thank the Japanese investors when we bring in investments and create jobs, our people have a more stable and predictable life. With more investments come more revenues in taxes that can be invested in schools, roads and bridges as well as health care, education and the environment. And over time, everyone will benefit.

Yet we are aware that no matter how much improvement there is at the top of the economic ladder, many of our people still struggle mightily. And we are deeply aware that many hardworking Filipinos work hard every day just to put food on their table and provide adequate shelter for their families. And furthermore we are aware that many of these hardworking Filipinos find their way to Japanese vessels. (Applause)

And so we thank you, shipowners, investors in maritime training, investors in the manning industry for preparing our youth for a better future as world-renowned seafarers and officers.

Congratulations! Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech During the Opening Program of the Philippine-Japan Manning Cooperative Forum. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123230/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=948&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Women's Month kick-off ceremony

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Women's Month kick-off ceremony

[Delivered at the New City Hall Grounds, Calamba City, Laguna, March 3, 2008]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Cabral, ang ating kababaihan sa Gabinete na siya ang namamahala sa pag-alaga ng mga kababaihang kailangan alagaan.

Batiin na rin natin ang isang member ng Cabinet na narito, si Secretary Pingkoy Duque. (Applause) Kanina nung kami ay nandoon sa... Nanggaling sa isang tulay na in-inaugurate, dumaan sa ospital at may nagsabi sa ospital, "Marami may sakit dito." at sabi ni Governor Lazaro, marami kasing typhoid fever ngayon kaya narito si Secretary Duque para asikasuhin yung mga may typhoid fever. (Applause)

Nabanggit ko na si Governor Lazaro. Batiin din natin si Governor Lazaro, isa sa pinakamasenior sa dumadami nating kababaihang gobernador sa ating bansa, gobernador ng makasaysayan na lalawigan ng Laguna, ang kababaihang gobernador, governor Ningning Lazaro; (Applause) At dito naman sa lunsod ng Calamba, nagpapasalamat tayo sa ating host, ang ating host city mayor, si Mayor Jun Chipeco; (Applause) Pati na rin yung kanyang batang-batang mga kasamahan sa trabaho, yung kanyang batang-batang anak, si Congressman Timmy Chipeco; (Applause) si Vice-Mayor at yung mga konsehal na napakarami ay batang-bata rin dito sa Calamba; (Applause) At batiin natin yung dalawa nating mga legislators na kasama itong araw na ito. Ang isa sa mga dumadaming kababaihan na congresswomen, si Congresswoman Ivy Arago (Applause) at saka si Congressman Dan Fernandez. (Applause)

Batiin natin lahat ng mga board members, si Vice-Governor Hernandez at yung mga mayors na ang dami-daming narito. Sorry at nakatindig kayo dahil napuno ang lugar kaya pati yung mga upuan ninyo, naupuan. At lahat ng ating mga ibang mga opisyal na narito, si General Obañana at yung mga sundalo at mga pulis na nag-aalaga sa atin. Yung ating mga scholar at awardee na binigyan natin kanina. Halimbawa yung mga taga-Self Employment Assistance na taga-Siniloan lahat ay binabati natin kayo at mga kababaihan ng Siniloan. Yung mga binigyan natin ng kagamitan para magamit sa kanilang inensayo sa TESDA at binabati rin natin ang representate ng mga TESDA rito, yung mga tricycle driver na natutong mag-ayos ng kanilang sariling tricycle at yung ating mga massage therapists na marami ang pagkakataon dito sa Calamba at saka doon sa Pansol sa ating mga spa. At sa inyong lahat, mga kababaihan ng Calamba at ng lalawigan ng Laguna, happy Women's Month sa ating lahat! (Applause)

Ang tema ng buwan ng kababaihan itong taon ay — "CEDAW ng Bayan: Yaman ng Kababaihan." CEDAW ng bayan ha, hindi sigaw ng bayan. Ang CEDAW ay C-E-D-A-W, Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women, sa ilalim ng United Nations. Ang CEDAW ay yaman ng kababaihan sa buong mundo dahil pinagtatangol ang karapatan ng kababaihan sa buong mundo sa ilalim ng United Nations. Ayun si Mayor Arcillas ng Santa Rosa, (Applause) Babae rin ay may malaking delegasyon dito — "CEDAW ng Bayan: Yaman ng Kababaihan." ang CEDAW ng Bayan ay yaman rin ng kababaihang Pilipina sapagkat dahil sa ating mahusay na pagpapatupad ng CEDAW ay maraming kababaihang nagkaroon ng pangkabuhayan kagaya ng mga kababaihan ng siniloan na binigyan natin dito kanina, yung mga naka-pink. (Applause) At dahil sa ating masusing pagpapasunod sa programa para sa karapatan ng kababaihan, pinarangalan tayo ng U.N. nung nakaraang taon bilang bansang may malaking pinagbabawas sa diskriminasyon sa kababaihan. At inimbata rin tayo sa World Economic Forum at binigyan ng parangal bilang tanging bansa sa Asia na nasa top ten sa buong daigdig sa gender parity.

Kasi on schedule tayo sa pagtataguyod ng U.N. Millennium Development Goal na umabot sa gender equality by 2015, kasama yung ibang mga layuning eradicate extreme hunger and poverty; achieve universal primary education; reduce child mortality; combat HIV and AIDS, malaria and other diseases; ensure environmental sustainability; at magbuo ng global partnership para sa kaunlaran. Itong mga millennium development goals, ito ang laman ng ating medium-term development plan. Kaya sabi ng development guru na si Jeffrey Sachs, ang plano ng Pilipinas sa ating ekonomiya ang pinakamagandang nakita niyang development plan sa lahat.

At kaya dito pang-anim tayo sa buong mundo sa gender parity. (Applause) Alam niyo, ang nauuna lamang sa atin yung New Zealand at saka yung apat na Scandinavian countries, tapos tayo na ang pinakamagaling sa karapatan ng kababaihan. Sa Asia, tayo lamang ang nakasarado na ng gender gap kapwa sa edukasyon at sa kalusugan. At isa lang tayo sa anim sa buong mundo na nasarado na ang gender gap sa kalusugan at sa edukasyon. (Applause)

Halimbawa, sa edukasyon, nangunguna tayo sa kapantayan ng gender sa literacy rate at sa enrollment rate maging primary, secondary at tertiary. Sa katunayan, yung mga babae — sorry ha, Mayor Chipeco, Congressman Chipeco at Congressman Fernandez — ang mga babae lamang sa mga lalaki sa simple literacy rate at functional literacy rate. (Applause) Lamang rin ang mga babaeng Pilipina sa enrollment rate at lamang din ang mga babae sa net enrollment rate dahil mas maganda ang participation rate at yung drop-out rate ng mga babae ay mas mababa kaysa sa mga lalaki. At kaya mas maraming babaeng nabubuo ang pag-eskuwela kaysa sa mga lalaki.

Pati sa scholastic achievement, lamang rin ang mga babae. At habang umaakyat sa higher grade sa primary school, mas lumalamang ang babae sa achievement rate.

Sa kalusugan naman at haba ng buhay, nangunguna rin ang Pilipinas sa kapantayan. Mas mahaba ang buhay ng mga Pilipina kaysa sa mga lalaking Filipino. (Applause)

And most surveys indicate a decline in the mortality ratio in the Philippines. Ngunit doon sa walong millennium development goals nasa pito ay on schedule tayo, ang talagang pinakadapat itrabaho natin ay yung pangwalo. Kailangan tayong magtrabaho para bumaba pa ang mortality rate o maternal mortality rate.

Kaya ito ang ginagawa natin. The government addresses maternal health through a two-pronged strategy: yung isa, health services to pregnant women for safe motherhood; at yung pangalawa, natural family planning.

Merong survey na nagawa noong 2006, ayon doon sa survey sa mga babaing may asawa na within reproductive age, 15 to 49, 50.6 percent ang gumagamit ng family planning. Karamihan contraceptives, may konti natural family planning. Pero gusto natin dahil ang ating bansa ay bansang katoliko, at ayon sa pag-aaral, isang malaking nag-iimpluwensiya ng desisyon natin tungkol sa family planning ay ang ating relihiyon at ang ating mga kultura. Pinapairal natin ang natural family planning para itong 50.6 percent na gumagawa ng tinatawag na responsible parenthood ay maitaas natin at gawing 60 percent by 2010 sa pamamagitan ng dagdag na pag-ensayo sa natural family planning.

For safe motherhood naman, we are shifting to facility-based delivery instead of home-based delivery kasi yung mga nanganganak sa bahay, yun ang maraming pinanggagalingan ng maternal health. Kaya para mas maraming pumasok sa ospital para manganak ay, hindi ba Pingkoy Duque, yung pregnancy puwede ng magamit ang Philhealth ngayon? At yung mga hospital naman, yung mga health services, sa katunayan ito ay devolved sa mga local government kaya isa sa mga malaking problema ni Governor Lazaro na sinasabi niya kanina bagamat mayaman ang Laguna, napakalaki ang populasyon, ang bigat-bigat raw sa kanya yung mga health services, yung mga ospital na kailangan itayo o ipalawak dahil ang dami-daming district hospital at provincial hospital dito. Kaya bagamat devolved ang health services ay inatasan ko si Secretary Duque na tulungan ang mga local government na i-upgrade ang mga ospital. Yung mga primary hospital gawing secondary, tapos yung mga secondary hospital gawing tertiary. Anong ibig sabihin ng secondary hospital? Eh tama ba ako, Pingkoy at saka Espie dahil doktor kayong dalawa? Yung mga secondary hospital ay yung mga may gynecological, may obstetric at may surgical services para yung mga nanay ay manganganak doon sa mga ospital.

Kanina, dumaan tayo sa ospital at tinanong ko, “Ning, yan ba yung ospital ng provincial dito sa Calamba?” Hindi, sabi niya, iba pa yun. Pero inulit na naman niya yung kanyang problema sa mga ospital niya at sinabi nga niya dito sa Calamba meron ding district hospital na kailangan tulungan. Kaya itong araw na ito ay meron tayong dalang tseke

alang-alang sa pagdiriwang ng Buwan ng Kaabaihan. (Applause) Meron tayong kontribusyon sa ospital, sa district hospital dito sa Calamba pero sana ilagay natin sa mga kama at gamit at kuwarto para sa maternity. (Applause)

Tayo ang unang bansang nagtakda ng pondo para sa mga programang pangkababaihan at yung maglalagay tayo ng pondo sa ospital pero nakatukoy doon sa tutulong sa kababaihan kasama doon sa ating ginagawang CEDAW.

Noong ako ay senador, ginawa ko yung batas na nagtataguyod ng partisipasyon ng kababaihan sa mga gawaing may produktibidad at kita. Kaya naman malaki ang gusto nating ipairal sa SEA-K at sa microfinance sa kababaihan. At bilang pangulo, nagpirma naman tayo ng batas na nagbibigay ng proteksyon sa kababaihan at kabataan mula sa karahasan.

Kaya ang gagawin natin dapat, kung ang CEDAW ng bayan ang isang susi sa kayamanan, tutukan natin, tinututukan natin ang paglago ng ekonomiya sapagkat ito ang tanging daan kung papano aahon sa kahirapan maging babae o lalaki.

Kaya sa buwang ito, tutukan natin ang pagpapalawak ng mga gawain para sa CEDAW at sa kaunlaran. CEDAW at hindi sigaw ang panlaban sa kahirapan.

Happy women's month sa ating lahat! (Applause)

Maraming salamat. Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech during the Women's Month kick-off ceremony. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123217/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1073&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Signing Ceremony of the Act on Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Signing Ceremony of the Act on Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP)

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 04, 2008]

Thank you very much Secretary Ermita.

Vice-president de Castro; other members of the Cabinet; Speaker Nograles; other officials of both Houses of Congress especially the authors and sponsors. And I'd like to recognize those in the head table. On the part of the Senate, Senator Ponce Enrile, the principal author and sponsor and Chairman of the Committee on Public Services; (Applause) Senator Angara, principal author; (Applause) Senator Zubiri, co-sponsor. (Applause) On the part of the House aside from Speaker Nograles, I'd like to acknowledge Deputy Speaker Raul del Mar, (Applause) Deputy Speaker Villarosa, (Applause) Majority leader Defensor; (Applause) Congressman Puentevella, principal author and sponsor and Chairman of the Committee on Transportation; (Applause) Congressman Angara, principal author; (Applause) Congressman Zamora, principal author; (Applause) Congressman Edcel Lagman. Members of the Diplomatic Corps; representatives of the air transport and airline industries; other government officials; ladies and gentlemen.

Una sa lahat, salamat sa Kongreso sa pagpasa ng Civil Aviation Authority Act na ating lalagdaan ngayon. Magandang tanda ito para sa bayan at sa mundo na patuloy ang pamahalaan sa paglilingkod sa tao at pagsusulong ng kinakailangang reporma tungo sa mas mahusay na pamamahala.

Salamat sa bagong batas na lilikha ng Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines, magiging mas ligtas ang mga biyahe sa eroplano, at mawawalang sagabal sa paglago ng turismo at investment na lumilikha ng daan-daang libong trabaho para sa bayan o milyung-milyon pa nga. Ito ang ating mga pakay noong hiniling sa State of the Nation Address na maging batas ito. At nagalak tayo sa pagtuon ng ating mga mambabatas sa ating panawagan.

Today's enactment of the Civil Aviation Authority Law is an opportune time to underscore the immense value of the rule of law. The rule of law is the foundation and protection of every citizen's rights of peace and order in society, and of confidence in our country among investors in the Philippines and around the world. This is indispensable in attracting investment and jobs for our people.

Later on, we will, in the Cabinet meeting, discuss the International Law of the Seas and the filing of the Philippine claim over resource areas within our exclusive economic zone. Through this claim, we shall advance the rights and interests of our nation in harnessing these rich resources. We appreciate that former Secretary of Justice Estelito Mendoza has lent his unrivaled expertise in this field to help strengthen the Philippine claim on this very valuable portion of our national patrimony.

Tunay naman dapat mangibabaw ang batas at bayan kaysa sa pulitika. Pagtupad sa batas ang panata ng bawat pinunong halal at opisyal na hinirang. Ito ang ating gagawin kahit hindi muna maunawaan ng marami lalo na kahit bigyan pa ng masamang kulay ng mga namumulitika.

That's why we uphold the principle of due process in investigating and adjudicating criminal allegations against any citizen. No one's rights must be sacrificed just to spare government leaders from the ire of protesters and the fire of politicians.

Susunod ako sa saligang batas at sa sarili kong nais na bumaba sa pwesto sa pagwakas ng termino sa 2010. Pero hanggang sa araw na yon, magsisikap tayo sa pagsulong sa mga reporma upang maiwan natin nang matipuno ang bansa sa susunod na pinuno. (Applause)

In the Philippines, there is and there shall continue to be due process, rule of law, and utmost respect for the Constitution. This is my pledge as President and Commander-in-Chief.

Thank you. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Signing Ceremony of the Act on Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123202/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1072&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Maliksi-Cavite Mass Housing Project and the Women's Month Provincial Kick-off Ceremony "0", March 5, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Maliksi-Cavite Mass Housing Project and the Women's Month Provincial Kick-off Ceremony "0"

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 5, 2008]

Ako ay nagpapasalamat sa lahat ng mga taga-Cavite at nagpapasalamat sa tuloy ninyong suporta sa ating administrasyon.

Doble ang pagdiriwang natin ngayon, ang pagdiriwang ng buwan ng kababaihan dito sa Cavite at yung pasinaya nitong pabahay sa masa na sinulong ni Governor Ayong Maliksi. Ang ganda-ganda, "Pamayanang Maliksi". In other words, energetic community, yun ang ibig sabihin ng "Pamayanang Maliksi".

Mapunta muna tayo sa kababaihan. Ipinagbubunyi natin ang tema ng buwan ng kababaihan, "CEDAW ng Bayan: Kayamanan ng Kababaihan." CEDAW, hindi sigaw.

Ang CEDAW ay U.N. Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination Against Women. Ito ang nagtatanggol sa karapatan ng mga kababaihan sa buong mundo. Pero ipinagmamalaki natin ang ating bansa, gawa ng kinikilala tayong mahusay sa pagtupad ng CEDAW na pinagmumulan ng maraming kabuhayan at pagtanggol ng karapatan ng kababaihan, kaya't tayo sa buong mundo ay pang-anim na bansa sa husay ng pagsunod sa mga panukala ng CEDAW. Ang nangunguna lamang sa atin ay yaong apat na Scandinavian countries at saka yung New Zealand, tapos tayo na, pang-anim sa buong mundo.

Bakit tayo pang-anim sa buong mundo? Doon sa mga ebidensiyang tinignan nung mga naghuhusga, tayo lamang ang bansa sa Asya na nasarado ang gender gap sa edukasyon at sa kalusugan, at isa sa anim lamang sa buong mundo na nasarado na itong gender gap na ito.

Halimbawa sa edukasyon, nangunguna ang Pilipinas sa kapantayan sa literacy rate at sa enrollment rate sa eskwelahan—ayun si Mayor Strike Revilla, nandiyan. Strike, sinabi ko na yung problema mo kay Vice-President Noli De Castro ha? kaya mag-usap kayo. Ito yung mga mangingisda na nagkakaproblema dahil doon sa pagtayo ng bagong Coastal Road, o bukas, Strike.

Sa katunayan lamang yung mga babae sa mga lalaki sa simple literacy rate. Sorry na lang governor ha, kaya masunurin ang mga Kabitenyo dito. Lamang din ang mga babae sa pag-enroll sa paaralan at mas mababa ang drop-out rate ng mga babae. Sa mga honor students, lamang din ang mga babae. Sa kalusugan at haba ng buhay, nangunguna ang Pilipinas sa kapantayan ng babae at lalaki. Sa katunayan, mas mahaba ang buhay ng mga Filipina kaysa sa lalaking Pilipino.

Pinuri na natin si Justice Herrera, si Senadora Helena Benitez, si Vicky Bataclan, yung mga kababaihan sa pamumuno ni Gobernadora at saka ni Mayora ng Dasmariñas, yung mga kabataan at kababaihan ng pamumuno ng ating Mutya ng Kalayaan, pero kung papayagan ho ninyo ako, hayaan niyong purihin ko rin ang isang Kabitenya, ito ay ang pangalan niya Escolastica Romero. Siya ay taga-Cavite City pero nag-asawa sa isang Kapampangan at naging Mrs. Macapagal. Siya ang lola ng aking tatay. Siya'y isang komadrona at isang catechism teacher sa Catholic school. Siya ang nagpaanak sa kanyang apo at nagbigay ng pangalang “Diosdado”, bigay ng Diyos, dahil very religious siya. At noong ang tatay ko pagkatapos mag-high school, bago nag-aral ng abogasiya at bago nag-topnotcher doon sa bar exams, kumuha muna siya ng civil service exam at nag-number one din siya sa. Pero kahit na number one siya, hindi siya makahanap ng trabaho. Ganun din pala noong unang panahon. Pero yung aking lola sa tuhod, si Eskolastika Romero, dahil marami siyang mga pasyente bilang komadrone, merong isang pasyente si Mr. Mills, isang mistesong Aleman na nagtrabaho sa Bureau of Lands. Siya ang kumuha sa aking tatay sa unang trabaho niya bilang civil servant.

Kaya kung naaalala ko yun, yung kahirapan ng paghanap ng trabaho kahit na number one sa civil service, at ang ating mga suliranin sa ekonomiya ngayon, talagang iniisip ko na noon hanggang ngayon isang malakas at lumalagong ekonomiya ang sinisikap nating ilikha upang tumulong tiyakin ang kapayapaan, katiwasayan at katatagan ng ating bansa. Ito ang dahilan sa ating nagiging maliksi yung pagbabangon natin araw-araw para magsikap at mag-focus, parang laser beam upang ayusin ang ating ekonomiya. Gumawa tayo ng mahihirap at hindi popular na mga desisyon upang maiangat ang koleksyon ng pamahalaan at habulin ang mga nagdadaya sa buwis upang makapuhunan tayo sa ating imprastruktura at ating taumbayan.

Kaya naman, pag humihiling si Governor Maliksi ng kalsada na maging maayos, maaliwalas ang entrance at exit dito sa magandang pabahay na proyektong ito, puwede nating atasan kaagad si Undersecretary Aquino, ayusin mo yung hinihingi ni Governor Maliksi.

Kapag nagdadala tayo ng mga puhunan, at ang daming namumuhunan sa Cavite at naglilikha ng mga trabaho, may higit na matatag at predictable na buhay ang ating taong bayan. At sa mga higit na pamumuhunan ay kasama ang higit na koleksyon sa buwis na maaaring ipuhunan sa mga eskwela, mga kalsada gaya ng hinihingi ni Governor Maliksi at yung mga tulay gaya ng hinihingi ni Mayor Ferrer, huwag mong kalimutan ha? Dapat i-groundbreaking na natin yung isang tulay doon sa tatlong hinihintay nila, Undersecretary Aquino. At pati na rin sa kalinga at saka sa kalusugan, at saka edukasyon at saka sa kapaligiran. Sa dating ng panahon, sa ganun, makikinabang ang lahat.

Ngunit batid natin na gaano pa man nagkakaroon ng pag-ibayo sa taas ng economic ladder, marami pa rin sa ating mga taong bayan ay kumakayod ng maliksi. Batid na batid natin nagtatrabaho araw-araw ang marami sa mga nagsisikap na babae at lalaki para lamang makalagay ng pagkain sa mesa at makapagbigay ng shelter sa pamilya.

Dahil sa pag-akyat ng ating ekonomiya ay layunin natin na makagastos ng apatnapu't apat bilyong ang ipupuhunan sa pabahay. Ang walong bilyon dito ay manggagaling sa national budget, at sabi ni Vice-President De Castro, meron tatlung bilyon na nanggagaling naman sa PAG-IBIG na napakababa ang interes. At meron ding nanggagaling sa pribadong sektor at sa mga bangko, meron ding binalita si Vice-President De Castro na yung Asian Development Bank ay nagpahiram ng Official Development Assistance sa Development Bank of the Philippines na puwedeng gamitin ng take-out kaya yung mga bibili ng bahay dito puwedeng humiram sa PAG-IBIG, puwedeng humiram sa DBP para sa take out dito sa bahay na ito. Kasi yun ang sistema pag pribadong sektor ang nagtatayo ng pabahay.

Pero dito, bagamat private sector ang magtatayo ng bahay, ang gobyerno ng Cavite ang bumili ng lupa kaya mura ang pagbibili ng lupa dito, 500 pesos lamang tapos around P1,300 yung bahay, so P1, 800 ang gastos ng pabahay dito. At ang daming puwedeng manirahan dito, walong libo, maging yung mga dating squatters or yung mga sundalo.

Binabati natin si General Obañana at yung ibang mga officers natin dito. So General, yung inyong mga sundalo ay puwedeng manirahan dito at P1,800 a month. Mga pulis, so binabati rin nating si General Padilla, yung mga pulis niyo dito puwede rin kasi walong libo ang puwedeng pabahay dito, tatlong libo na di ba, Governor, ang meron na? Although sa bilang ni Governor Maliksi, mga labinlimang libo palagay niya ang maghahanap ng bahay dito, saka kalahati ng mga nangangailangan ay mabibigyan.

Kaya nagpapasalamat tayo kay Governor Maliksi sa patuloy niyang suporta sa pambansang layunin na matugunan ang mga pangangailangan ng ating kababayan.

Itong bagong pabahay sa Cavite para sa mahigit walong libong pamilya mula sa iba't-ibang sektor gaya ng sabi ko, dating squatter, lalagyan ng bahay ng Gawad Kalinga. So hindi kasama yun sa P1,800, di ba? Iba yon. Yung mga P1, 800 more or less mga guro, mga trabahador sa pabrika, mga pulis at sundalo, lahat makikinabang sa bahay na tinatayo kasi ito ay limampu't tatlong hektarya na suwerte naman, ano, sa napakasiksik na lugar sa Luzon Urban Beltway nakahanap pa si Governor ng mahigit limampung hektarya ng puwedeng bilhin para sa taumbayan.

Kaya congratulations, Governor Maliksi! Napakagandang paraan kung papano natin ipagdiriwang ang buwan ng kababaihan sa Cavite dahil yung mga maybahay ay magkakaroon ng bagong bahay.

Sa inyong lahat, congratulations mga Caviteño, babae o lalaki at mabuhay ang Caviteño at Caviteña!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

*Source: Adamson University Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the groundbreaking ceremony of the Pamayanang Maliksi-Cavite Mass Housing Project and the Women's Month provincial kick-off ceremony Speech

of

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo

President of the Philippines

During the groundbreaking ceremony of the Pamayanang Maliksi-Cavite Mass Housing Project and the Women's Month provincial kick-off ceremony "CEDAW ng Bayan: Kayamanan ng Kababaihan"

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 05, 2008]

... Pagpakilala at paghayag ng inyong suporta at suporta ng lalawigan ng Cavite sa ilalim ng inyong liderato.

Binabati natin si Vice-President at HUDCC Chairman Noli De Castro, (Applause) na siya ang namamahala sa pabahay sa ating administrasyon; binabati rin natin si Mrs. Maliksi at lahat ng kababaihan ng lalawigan ng Cavite ; (Applause) binabati natin si Congressman ninyo, si congressman Pidi Barzaga at ang kanyang maybahay na si Mayora Barzaga ng Dasmariñas; (Applause) Binabati natin si Congressman Jun Abaya (Applause) At meron siyang lola sa tiya na isa sa pinakakilalang kababaihan ng Cavite , si Justice Amorfin Herrera; (Applause) Binabati natin ang ating kababaihan sa Gabinete, si Secretary Espie Cabral at lahat ng mga nag-aalaga ng kababaihan sa Cavite at saka sa buong bansang Pilipinas.

At nagpapasalamat tayo sa mayor ng General Trias, si Mayor Ferrer sa magandang welcome niya sa atin kanina; (Applause) At nandito rin yung mayor ng yung tatlong bayan na sinasakupan nitong proyektong ito, si Mayor De Sagun ng Trece Martires (Applause) At saka si Mayor Arayata ng Tanza; (Applause) At nandito rin ang iba't-ibang mga mayor, nandito sa entablado si mayor ng Tagaytay City, si Bambol Tolentino; (Applause) Nandito si Mayor Loyola na kinakatawan ng iba't-ibang mayor na narito rin ngayon pati na rin si Bise-Gobernador at yung ating mga board member na nandito in full force; (Applause) si Vice-Mayor Campaña binabati natin; At gusto rin nating batiin siyempre ang lahat ng mga tumanggap ng mga biyaya itong araw na ito lalung-lalo na yung mga maybahay na ang pamilya nila ay titira dito sa napakagandang housing project ng lalawigan ng Cavite . (Applause)

Ako ay nagpapasalamat sa lahat ng mga taga-Cavite at nagpapasalamat sa tuloy ninyong suporta sa ating administrasyon. (Applause)

Dahil araw ng kababaihan, kaya't pinaakyat ko si Gobernadora at saka si Mayora na maybahay ni Congressman. Batiin din natin yung Mutya ng Kalayaan na narito. (Applause) At saka binati natin si Mayora Cantimbuhan na nasa Palawan na pala ngayon at yung isa kong babaeng ambassador, si Vicky Bataclan na taga-Cavite . (Applause) tayo ay binabati natin espesyal yung mga Caviteña maging kilalang sa labas, kilala sa loob, nabanggit ko na si Justice Amorfin Herrera na siya ay apo ni Pangulong Emilio Aguinaldo. Pinagmamalaki natin rin si Senadorang Helena Benitez, kaya maraming-maraming kilalang Caviteña.

Doble ang pagdiriwang natin ngayon, ang pagdiriwang ng buwan ng kababaihan dito sa Cavite at yung pasinaya nitong pabahay sa masa na sinulong ni Governor Ayong Maliksi. Ang ganda-ganda, "Pamayanang Maliksi". In other words, energetic community, yun ang ibig sabihin ng "Pamayanang Maliksi". (Applause)

Mapunta muna tayo sa kababaihan. Ipinagbubunyi natin ang tema ng buwan ng kababaihan — "CEDAW ng bayan: kayamanan ng kababaihan." CEDAW, hindi sigaw. Ang CEDAW ay U.N. Convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women. Ito ang nagtatanggol sa karapatan ng mga kababaihan sa buong mundo. Pero ipinagmamalaki natin ang ating bansa, gawa ng kinikilala tayong mahusay sa pagtupad ng CEDAW na pinagmumulan ng maraming kabuhayan at pagtanggol ng karapatan ng kababaihan, kaya't tayo sa buong mundo ay pang-anim na bansa sa husay ng pagsunod sa mga panukala ng CEDAW. (Applause) Ang nangunguna lamang sa atin ay yuong apat na Scandinavian countries at saka yung New Zealand, tapos tayo na, pang-anim sa buong mundo.

Bakit tayo pang-anim sa buong mundo? Doon sa mga ebidensiyang tinignan nung mga naghuhusga, tayo lamang ang bansa sa asya na nasarado ang gender gap sa edukasyon at sa kalusugan, (Applause) At isa sa anim lamang sa buong mundo na nasarado na itong gender gap na ito.

Halimbawa sa sa edukasyon, nangunguna ang Pilipinas sa kapantayan sa literacy rate at sa enrollment rate sa eskwelahan — ayun si Mayor Strike Revilla, nandiyaan. Strike, sinabi ko na yung problema mo kay Vice-President Noli De Castro ha? (Applause) Kaya mag-usap kayo. Ito yung mga mangingisda na nagkakaproblema doon sa pagtayo ng bagong Coastal Road, Strike. O bukas, Strike.

Sa katunayan lamang yung mga babae ay lamang sa mga lalaki sa simple literacy rate. Sorry na lang governor ha, kaya masunurin ang mga Kabitenyo dito. Lamang din ang mga babae sa pag-enrol sa paaralan at mas mababa ang drop-out rate ng mga babae. Sa mga honor students, lamang din ang mga babae. Sa kalusugan at haba ng buhay, nangunguna ang Pilipinas sa kapantayan ng babae at lalaki. Sa katunayan, mas mahaba ang buhay ng mga Filipina kaysa sa lalaking Pilipino. (Applause)

Pinuri na natin si Justice Herrera, si Senadora Helena Benitez, si Vicky Bataclan, yung mga kababaihan sa pamumuno ni Gobernadora at saka ni Mayora ng Dasmariñas, yung mga kabataan at kababaihan ng pamumuno ng ating Mutya ng Kalayaan, pero kung papayagan ho ninyo ako, hayaan niyong purihin ko rin ang isang Kabitenya, ito ay ang pangalan niya Escolastica Romero. Siya ay taga-Cavite City pero nag-asawa sa isang Kapampangan at naging Mrs. Macapagal. Siya ang lola ng aking tatay. Siya’y isang komadrona at isang catechism teacher sa catholic school. Siya ang nagpa-anak sa kanyang apo na si... Dahil komadrona siya, siya ang nagbigay ng pangalang “Diosdado”, bigay ng Diyos, dahil very religious siya. At noong ang tatay ko pagkatapos mag-high school, bago naging... Nag-aral ng abogasiya at bago nag-topnotcher doon sa bar exams, kumuha muna siya ng civil service exam at nag-number one din siya sa civil service exam. Pero kahit na number one siya, hindi siya makahanap ng trabaho. Ganun din pala nong unang panahon. Pero yung aking lola sa tuhod, si Eskolastika Romero dahil marami siyang mga pasyente bilang komadrona, merong isang pasyente siya na si Mr. Mills. Isang mistesong Aleman na nagtratrabaho sa Bureau of Lands. Siya ang kumuha sa aking tatay sa unang trabaho niya bilang civil servant. Kaya kong naaalala ko yuon, yung kahirapan ng paghanap ng trabaho kahit na number one sa civil service, at ang ating mga suliranin sa ekonomiya ngayon, talagang iniisip ko na noon hanggang ngayon isang malakas at lumalagong ekonomiya ang sinisikap nating ilikha upang tumulong tiyakin ang kapayapaan, katiwasayan at katatagan ng ating bansa. Ito ang dahilan sa ating nagiging maliksi yung pagbabangon natin araw-araw para magsikap at mag-focus parang laser beam upang ayusin ang ating ekonomiya. Gumawa tayo ng mahihirap at hindi popular na mga desisyon na iangat ang koleksyon ng pamahalaan at habulin ang mga nagdaya sa buwis upang makapuhunan tayo sa ating imprastraktura at ating taumbayan.

Kaya naman, pag humihiling si Governor Maliksi ng kalsada na maging maayos, maaliwalas ang entrance at exit dito sa magandang pabahay na proyektong ito, puwede nating atasan kaagad si Undersecretary Aquino, (Applause) Ayusin mo yung hinihingi ni Governor Maliksi.

Kapag nagdadala tayo ng mga puhunan, at ang daming namumuhunan sa Cavite at naglilikha ng mga trabaho, may higit na matatag at predictable na buhay ang ating taong bayan. At sa mga higit na pamumuhunan ay kasama ang higit na koleksyon sa buwis na maaaring ipuhunan sa mga eskwela, mga kalsada gaya ng hinihingi ni Governor Maliksi at yung mga tulay gaya ng hinihingi ni Mayor Ferrer, huwag mong kalimutan ha? Dapat i-groundbreaking na natin yung isang tulay doon sa tatlong hinihintay nila, Undersecretary Aquino. (Applause) At pati na rin sa kalinga at saka sa kalusugan, at saka edukasyon at saka sa kapaligiran. Sa dating ng panahon, sa ganun, makikinabang ang lahat.

Ngunit batid natin na gaano pa man nagkakaroon ng pag-ibayo sa taas ng economic ladder, marami pa rin sa ating mga taong bayan ay kumakayod ng maliksi. Batid na batid natin nagtatrabaho araw-araw ang marami sa mga nagsisikap na babae at lalaki para lamang makalagay ng pagkain sa mesa at makapagbigay ng shelter sa pamilya.

Dahil sa pag-akyat ng ating ekonomiya ay layunin natin na makagastos ng apatnapu’t apat bilyong ang ipupuhunan sa pabahay. Ang walong bilyon dito ay manggagaling sa national budget, at sabi ni Vice-President De Castro, meron tatlung bilyon na nanggagaling naman sa PAG-IBIG na napakababa ang interes. At meron ding nanggagaling sa pribadong sektor at sa mga bangko, meron ding binalita si Vice-President De Castro na yung Asian Development Bank ay nagpahiram ng Official Development Assistance sa Development Bank of the Philippines na puwedeng gamitin ng take-out kaya yung mga bibili ng bahay dito puwedeng humiram sa PAG-IBIG, puwedeng humiram sa DBP para sa take out dito sa bahay na ito. Kasi yun ang sistema pag pribadong sektor ang nagtatayo ng pabahay.

Pero dito, bagamat private sector ang magtatayo ng bahay, ang gobyerno ng Cavite ang bumili ng lupa kaya mura ang pagbibili ng lupa dito, 500 pesos lamang tapos around P1,300 yung bahay, so P1,800 ang gastos ng pabahay dito. At ang daming puwedeng manirahan dito, walong libo, maging yung mga dating iskwaters or yung mga sundalo. Binabati natin si General Obañana at yung ibang mga officers natin dito. (Applause) So General, yung inyong mga sundalo ay puwedeng manirahan din dito, P1,800 a month. Mga pulis, so binabatin rin nating si General Padilla, yung mga pulis niyo dito puwede rin kasi walong libo ang puwedeng pabahay dito, tatlong libo na di ba, Governor, ang meron na? At although sa bilang ni Governor Maliksi, mga labinlimang libo palagay niya ang maghahanap ng bahay dito, (Applause) saka kalahati ng mga nangangailangan ay mabibigyan.

Kaya nagpapasalamat tayo kay Governor Maliksi sa patuloy niyang suporta sa pambansang layunin na matugunan ang mga pangangailangan ng ating kababayan.

Itong bagong pabahay sa Cavite para sa mahigit walong libong pamilya mula sa iba't-ibang sektor gaya ng sabi ko, dating squatter, lalagyan ng bahay ng Gawad Kalinga. So hindi kasama yun sa P1,800, di ba? Iba yon. Yung mga P1,800 more or less mga guro, mga trabahador sa pabrika, mga pulis at sundalo, lahat makikinabang sa bahay na tinatayo kasi ito ay limampu't tatlong hektarya na suwerte naman, ano, sa napakasiksik na lugar sa Luzon Urban Beltway nakahanap pa si Governor ng mahigit limampung hektaryang puwedeng bilhin para sa taumbayan.

Kaya congratulations, Governor Maliksi! (Applause) Napakagandang paraan kung papano natin ipagdiriwang ang buwan ng kababaihan sa Cavite dahil yung mga maybahay ay nagkakaroon ng bagong bahay.

Sa inyong lahat, congratulations mga Caviteño, babae o lalaki at mabuhay ang Caviteño at Caviteña!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

*Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech during the groundbreaking ceremony of the Pamayanang Maliksi-Cavite Mass Housing Project and the Women's Month provincial kick-off ceremony "CEDAW ng Bayan: Kayamanan ng Kababaihan". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123147/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1071&Itemid=38

Send-off Speech of President Arroyo during the Sagip-Tulong ni PGMA Caravan Send-off Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Sagip-Tulong ni PGMA Caravan

[Delivered at the Villamor Airbase, Pasay City, March 06, 2008]

Recent widespread flooding and heavy rains have severely damaged crops and infrastructure in several regions of the country, especially V and VIII.

We thank everyone involved in this “Sagip-Tulong” Caravan for calamity victims in Samar, who will be in the eastern seaboard of Region VIII for one week and return to Manila via Region V.

Nagpapasalamat din ako sa lahat ng ating mga kababayang nakiki-isa at nagpapalakas ng loob ng mga biktima ng kalamidad. Salamat at ipinakikita ninyo na patuloy ang diwa ng malasakit at bayanihang likas sa ating mga Pilipino.

When I visited Eastern Samar last month, we brought goods for almost 35,000 people. Each victim municipality also received a share of the 500 kilos of seaweed seed-stock worth P75 million to help the victims back on their feet.

We have also ordered the line agencies to effect as soon as possible the rehabilitation of all the provinces on the Eastern Seaboard hit by the heavy rains, especially the repair of roads and other infrastructure needed to return normalcy.

Our country prone to natural calamities such as flooding, landslides and earthquakes, caused in large part by climate change and global warming. The Philippines is a climate taker rather than a climate maker because we are to be blamed for less than 1% of the total global bas emissions to the environment. While climate change is a global issue outside the control of government, we have nevertheless taken and will continue to take actions to mitigate the pain on our people.

Protecting the environment is one of our top priorities. An example of our efforts to preserve the “Green Philippines” is our support for the Samar Island protected area, the Southern Leyte ecosystem and the Bicol River Basin. These are initiatives that seek to protect the fragile ecosystems in Central Philippines, as part of the responsibility of the Philippines to future generations.

On a broader scale, we have also begun the Green Philippines plan, a blueprint for mapping our environment and economic policies that will allow for sustainable development that does not fall on the backs of the poor or erode our environment. There is a cost of making the Green Philippines come to life. For instance, the enforcement against logging in the Samar Island protected area, the relocation of the Ginsaungon, Southern Leyte families to a new community and the P250 million budget this year for the Bicol River Basin. But the cost is greater without the plan and the investment in our people and our environment.

Malakas at lumalagong ekonomiya ang sinisikap nating ilikha upang makatulong tiyakin ang kapayapaan, katiwawayan at katatagan sa ating bansa. Ito ang dahilan kung bakit bumabangong tayo araw-araw para kumayod at mag-focus parang laser beam para ayusin ang ating ekonomiya. Gumawa tayo ng mahihirap at di popular na mga desisyong itaas ang buwis at hulihin ang mga nandadaya sa buwis para tayo ay makapuhunan sa ating imprastruktura at sa ating taong bayan.

Kapag nagdadala tayo ng mga pamumuhunan gaya ng surfing tourism sa Guian, Eastern Samar, at lumilikha ng trabaho, may higit na matatag at predicable na buhay ang ating taong bayan. Sa higit ng mga pamumuhunan kasama ang higit na buwis na maaaring ipuhunan sa mga paaralan, kalsada at tulay gaya ng mga itinatatyo natin muli sa Eastern Samar at Bicol pati na rin sa kalinga sa kalusugan, edukasyon at ang kapaligiran. Darating ang panahon na lahat ay makikinabang.

Ganumpaman, batid nating kahit gaano gumaganda ang ibabaw ng kumakayod pa rin ang marami sa ating taong bayan. Batid na batid natin na maraming masisipag na tao ay nagtatrabaho araw-araw para lang maglagay ng pagkain sa kanilang mesa at magbigay ng sapat na shelter sa kanilang mga pamilya.

Binibigyan natin ng pangunahing pansin ang mga naging biktima ng kalamidad.

The government has responded quickly, digging into calamity funds and harnessing agencies to accelerate assistance to hard-hit communities and bring back normalcy.

Malaki ang pasasalamat natin sa mga lokal na pamahalaang tumutulong upang maibsan ang paghihirap ng Samar, Leyte at Bicol. Salamat din sa iba pang LGU na kumikilala sa pag-iral ng batas bilang susi sa kasaganaan.

Sa lahat ng kabalikat sa caravang Eastern Seaboard, , sa mga ibang patuloy na sumusuporta sa ating mga gawaing pang-kaunlaran at sa lahat ng mga Pilipinong patuloy na nagsisikap para sa kaunlaran at kapayapaan — maraming salamat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's send-off speech during the Sagip-Tulong ni PGMA Caravan. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123128/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1070&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Lakas National Directorate Assembly

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Lakas National Directorate Assembly

[Delivered on March 10, 2008]

Thank you, Secretary Ermita, for your introduction. Ed Ermita has been with Lakas since its founding and since the start of his own political career. Thank you, Ed for your reliable and trustworthy work as the primus inter pares of our Lakas-led Cabinet.

President Ramos, beloved chairman emeritus, thank you for your words of wisdom. Thank you for continuing to be the beacon of sobriety, unity and peace not only for our party but also for our country. Every single one party member in this hall finds great relevance and urgency in your challenge and admonition.

Speaker Boy Nograles, congratulations on your election as President of Lakas. With your leadership, CMD will be in very able and worthy hands. A bar top-notch, a leader of Mindanao and now Speaker of the House, you have the qualities, experience and stature not only to uphold the lofty traditions of our party but also of our country.

Beloved partymates, thank you for being my steady allies. Thank you for sustaining our party's eminent role in the life of the nation.

In the last elections, our party's victory brought us thousands of Lakas officials, including three senators, 96 members of the House, 41 governors, 38 vice governors, 67 city mayors, 49 vice mayors, 605 municipal mayors, 495 vice mayors, and a slew of governors, vice governors, city mayors and vice mayors, municipal mayors and vice mayors, provincial board members and city and municipal councilors.

Now, the merger of Lakas with Kampi will combine the talents and resources of two great political parties into a powerhouse team of 5 senators, an absolute majority of the House with 143 representatives, 55 governors, 85 city mayors, 945 municipal mayors and over 7,000 vice governors, board members, vice mayors and councilors.

Together with our other coalition partners, our merged party can create the dominant support infrastructure that is a key to delivering the governance that our people expect and deserve. Our merged party will be a colossus that calls to mind Mahatir Badawi of Malaysia, whose decades-old dominant political machinery, supported by key business groups, provided the underpinning for Malaysia's development. Similarly, a composite of Ramos, Arroyo, and our successor will mean a two-decade period, 1992 to 2016, interrupted only by 2-1/2 years of Estrada, a two-decade period of political leadership by our coalition.

With the Lakas-Kampi merger, our energies can be devoted to the strong and growing economy which is the central pillar our party has labored to create to help guarantee peace, order and stability in our country. This is our motivation for getting up every day to work hard and focus like a laser beam to fix our economy. Our party has made tough and unpopular decisions to raise revenues and crack down on tax cheats so that we could invest in our physical infrastructure and in our people.

When we bring in investments and create jobs, our people have a more stable and predictable life. With more investments come more tax revenues that can be invested in schools, roads and bridges as well as health care, education and the environment. Over time, everyone will benefit.

Yet we are aware that no matter how much improvement there is at the top of the economic ladder, many of our people still struggle mightily. We are deeply aware that many hard working men and women work every day just to put food on their table and provide adequate shelter for their families.

The high price of gasoline and everyday commodities hits our poor the hardest. While the high price of oil and the high world price of rice are a global issue outside the control of any one government, we have nevertheless taken and must continue to take actions to reduce the pain on our people of these high prices. We have cut tariffs. We have started providing targeted cash payments to the poorest of our poor to help them cope. We are spending billions on seed support, irrigation, farm to market roads, no-frills agricultural cargo airports and roll-on-roll-off ferry systems for agricultural cargo to ensure food security. We have introduced in Congress an amendment to the EPIRA to protect our citizens from unreasonably high electric power rates.

We live in a time of great challenges. The issues we champion define our party. We count the fight for a strong economy to dramatically cut poverty, the fight for a clean environment and the fight for a quality education the highest imperatives of our time. These three issues – the three “E’s” of Economy, Environment and Education – are central to lifting our nation up and preparing the next generation of leaders, hopefully many of them from our party.

With our reinvigorated party’s leadership, and with our continuing unity, I remain bullish on our country, optimistic about our future and deeply committed to being a force for good. I am humbled at having the privilege of serving this nation not only as President of the Philippines but also as Chair of Lakas.

Let us work hard together for the good of the nation and for our party’s victory in 2010, when, by the mighty hand of Lakas and the blessings and support of the Filipino people, I shall pass on the torch of national leadership in a milieu of tranquility, justice, hope and economic well-being for our beloved countrymen.

Mabuhay ang LAKAS CMD!!!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Speech of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo during the Lakas National Directorate Assembly. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123058/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1069&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 4th Mindanao Cooperative Summit [Filipino] Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 4th Mindanao Cooperative Summit [Filipino]

[Delivered at the Atrium, Lim Ket Kai Center, Cagayan de Oro City, March 10, 2008]

Giabi-abi ko ang tanang mitambong dinhi sa Summit sa mga kooperatiba sa Mindanao.

Magpahalipay sab kita kang Administrator Rosalinda Villaseca nga gasaulog sa iyang birthday karon.

Ang kooperatiba gapadaghan ug gapadako sa negosyo nga maoy gikanan sa mga bag-ong trabaho ug labaw pang pag-usbaw sa negosyo. Gipadayon sa gobyerno ang pagpakusog sa mga kooperatiba isip epektibong paagi aron mabuntog nato ang kapobrehon. Gapamatu-od sab kita nga ang kooperatiba maoy gapadako sa kabubut-ong pagboluntaryo ug gahatag sab sa matag tawo ug kumpiyansa sa kaugalingong paninguha.

Nalipay ako nga kahibalo ang mga taga-Mindanao sa pagka-epektibo sa kooperatiba. Ang paglampos sa mga kooperatiba dinhi gapakita kung unsay himuon aron managkuyog ang profit, innovation and competitiveness ug ang katuyuan nga social justice. Dunay hapit ka kooperatiba dinhi ug may labaw usa ka milyong miyembro. Sa matag napulo ka adults nga gapuyo sa Mindanao, usa ang miyembro sa kooperatiba. Maayo kini ng ratio, ug gahamdom ako nga modaghan pa kamo kay sa 100 best cooperatives sa nasod, traynta niini ani-a sa Mindanao. Gahandom sab ako nga kining traynta maka-apil sa mga labing dakong negosyo dinhi sa Mindanao.

Dako ug gitabang ang kooperatiba sa Mindanao sa pagpa-usbaw sa nasodnong ekonomiya, kay mi-abot sa hapit P25Billion niadtong tuig 2006 ang business volume dinhi, ug nakahatag kamo ug trabaho sa hapit 30,000 ka tawo. Nalipay sab ako nga saysenta porsyento sa inyong mga kooperatiba ana-a sa microlending, tungod kay kini usa sa labing importanteng programa sa pamunuan alang sa paglambo sa nasod ug pag-create ug mga trabaho.

Kahibalo ako sa inyong mga isyu, labi na ang mahitungod sa mga buhis. Ang mga matters nga naa sa korte magpadayon didto sa mga korte, labi na ang isyu sa kwalipikasyon sa mga kooperatiba. Samtang tungod kay aduna representante ang kooperatiba sa Kongreso, gatu-o ako nga daghan ang mosuporta sa mga balaod alang sa kaayuhan sa kooperatiba.

Gapasalamat ita sa pamilya ni Kongresman Guillermo Cua nga representante sa NATCCO Party List sa ilang donasyong yuta aron patindugan sa co-op training center sa Mindanao. Naa ta kontribusyon aron matabangan kamo sa pagpatindog ining HRD center.

Tomorrow we will sign the budget passed by Congressmn Cua and his colleagues in the legislature. It is a budget that reflects the will of the government to work together with Congress to invest in the people and keep the economy on a strong, stable path.

Tuyo sa atong mga paningkamot nga pakusgan ang mga kooperatiba aron motabang kamo kontra sa kapobrehon.

A strong and growing economy is the central pillar that we have labored to create to help guarantee peace, order and stability in our country. This is our motivation for getting up every day to work hard and focus like a laser beam to fix our economy. We have made tough and unpopular decisions to raise revenues and as we in the executive crack down on tax cheats so that we could invest in our physical infrastructure and in our people.

When we bring in investments including the cooperatives' investments and create jobs, our people have a more stable and predictable life. And with more investments come more tax revenues that can be invested in schools, roads and bridges as well as healthcare, education and the environment. Over time, everyone will benefit.

Yet we are aware that no matter how much improvement there is at the top of the economic ladder, many of our people still struggle mightily. We are aware that many hard working men and women especially in Mindanao work every day just to put food on their table and provide adequate shelter for their families.

The high price of gasoline and everyday commodities hits our poor the hardest. While the high price of oil is a global issue outside the control of government, we have nevertheless taken and will continue to take actions to reduce the pain on our people of these high prices. We have cut tariffs. We have started providing targeted cash payments to the poorest of our poor to help them cope. We ask Congress to enact Consumer Bill of Rights to protect our citizens from price gouging, false advertising and other scams that prey on our people.

Cooperatives can do much to reduce the pain on our people of high prices through bulk buying of inputs and transportation services and joint marketing. I instruct CDA Mindanao to work with DA, DTI, DOTC so that the Mindanao cooperatives can do more of these activities.

We live in a time of great challenges. The issues we champion define our being. We count the fight for a strong economy to cut poverty, the fight for a clean environment and the fight for a quality education the highest imperatives of our time.

Cooperatives have helped bring positive and lasting change for the nation. Cooperatives have helped create some of the 7 million in jobs and brought in some of the billions in new investment. Cooperatives have helped bring unemployment down and bring down the incidence of hunger.

Ang mga kooperatiba apil sa mga na-a sa unahan sa atong pagpamuhunan sa katawhan, sama sa edukasyon, serbisyo sa panglawas ug uban pang serbisyong labing kinahanglanon.

Mangayo ang gobyerno ug tabang sa mga kooperatiba aron magpadayon ang pagtubo sa negosyo kay kini ang nagpa-usbaw sa ekonomiya.

Ang mga kooperatiba sa Mindanao dako ug gitabang sa pag-usbaw sa atong nasod. Sa mosunod nga mga adlaw, magpatabang ako kaninyo aron mopaspas pa ang pag-uswag ug Mindanao, kay gipakita na ninyo nga dako ang inyong ikahatag sa atong pag-usbaw.

Gasalig ako nga ang mga kooperatiba dinhi magpadayon sa inyong role isip usa sa mga labing importanteng driver pag-uswag sa sa Mindanao.

Many things are left to be done. I plan on working hard with you the next two years to fulfill our Philippine Reform Agenda until the day I leave office in 2010. I will count on you as we fight for the Economy, Education and the Environment. Will count on you as we work to fix the corruption that still plagues our nation.

I remain bullish on the cooperative movement, optimistic about the future of cooperatives and the future of our country. I am grateful for the privilege of serving Mindanao and the nation together with you.

Daghang salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Speech of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo during the 4th Mindanao Cooperative Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123111/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1068&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Ceremonial Signing of the General Appropriations Act of 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Ceremonial Signing of the General Appropriations Act of 2008

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 11, 2008]

Vice-president de Castro; Speaker Nograles; Senator Enrile; Senator Angara; Chairman of the Finance Committee and Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, Congressman Lagman and the other members of Congress; Speaker Nograles; other members of the House of Representatives; members of the Cabinet; members of the business community; members of the government.

At gusto kong batiin ang ilan sa ating mga espesyal na panauhin, yung ating mga kaibigan mula sa Parola, Tondo; (Applause) ating mga kaibigan mula sa Baseco; (Applause) ating mga kabibigan mula sa Navotas; (Applause) nandiyan din si Congressman Alvin; (Applause) at yung mga household beneficiaries ng DSWD, (Applause) Mga kaibigan ni Espie Cabral; yun ding ating mga leaders sa corn program; (Applause) Sa rice program yung mga seed growers natin; (Applause) Sa high value crops program (Applause) Nandiyan ang Phil-foodex; yung livestock; (Applause) yung fisheries; (Applause) ating mga guro at mga estudyante; (Applause) at sa inyong lahat, magandang umaga.

Today is a good day for the Philippines. The people elected members of Congress and me, Noli in the executive, our LGUs to work for the common good. The people are tired of politics of division and despair. They want us to make tough decisions on the economy to fight against poverty, to keep our nation safe, secure and moving forward.

With this in mind, we're all here to celebrate another milestone in the forward progress of our nation with the signing of our national budget. This budget is significant for many reasons, let me note three this morning:

First, this budget reflects our values and policy priorities for investing in our people. This budget invests in what we call the three 'E's,' they're the essential building block of our nation, namely, the economy, education and the environment. Every Filipino wants a good job, food on the table, sound education for their children and a healthy environment with clean air, clean water and clean land.

Second, this budget represents another important step in the economic development of the Philippines. We've the strongest economy in over thirty years as a result of the tough reforms we have made to break the cycle of despair which has kept our nation back. Part of the plan includes a march toward a balanced budget for the first time in many years. The average Filipino must live within their means so must the government. For the first time in a generation, the tough political choices we made have left us with more revenue to invest in our people. This is what this budget is going to do.

Lastly, this budget proves once again that members of Congress from both the House and the Senate and all parties can come together to work with the executive branch to get things done for the nation. Indeed, the people are tired of partisan wrangling and want all of us to do our job — which is to work for the interest of the people, keep the nation strong and stable, and always moving forward.

On behalf of a grateful public, we thank each political leader for being here today and to paraphrase the bible, "for forging unity out of the swords of partisanship."

Our strengthened economic fortunes comes none too soon, for there are clouds on the economic horizon that we must guard against. Much remains to be done to lift up our poor in particular. The global forces that are driving up the price of oil. The environmental forces that are driving up the price of rice. The forces driving down the U.S. and European economies are hurting us here in the Philippines. The recent rise in the incidence of poverty is tied to the rising global demand for oil and the decelerating supply of rice due to global warming.

The budget we are signing today is a major step forward for investing in our people and our nation. It provides a buffer to mitigate the pain of a deteriorating global economy and the accompanying rise in prices which affects food and transportation the most.

Concerning the first “e” — the economy. Let me tell how this budget and our overall policies are being directed. Perhaps no other issues are more important to the average Filipino than the high price of gasoline, electricity and everyday commodities like rice. And these issues hit our poor the hardest. While the high price of oil and rice in the world market is a global issue outside the control of any one government, we have nevertheless taken and will continue to take actions to reduce the pain on our people.

We have cut tariffs on oil. We have started providing targeted cash payments to the poorest of our poor to help them cope – Espie, sila yung kasama sa ating mga bisita ngayon — because the price of rice per metric ton in the world market has gone up from a 180 dollars in 2001 to 400 dollars this year. We have had to spend unprecedented amounts on rice subsidies. That’s really a strain on the NFA budget. And we are spending on agricultural modernization. I hope senator Angara will be happy to know that we have allocated 23 billion for agricultural modernization, more than what you demanded in your AFMA, and this is over and above the credit provided by our GFIS.

Our central objective to create more jobs and grow our economy is to invest, invest, and invest. We’ve been doing that and with this budget, the march to modernization through human and physical infrastructure will continue.

Key components of our economic investments include key physical infrastructure projects across the nation to build up our roads, bridges and ports. And to also invest in our people through better healthcare, improved social services and housing, and a more productive, modern and profitable agricultural sector.

The final pillar of a strong economy is an open and transparent economy — free from corruption. This budget invests more and more to clean up the culture of corruption that has plagued this nation for generation.

To fix the corruption that still plagues our nation, we call on Congress now that you have passed the budget to work with us to pass a comprehensive anti-corruption reform act in 2008. On our part, we will hold officials accountable if they are found to be corrupt after due process. Let the chips fall where they may as investigations are concluded and friend and foe alike are brought to account for their actions in the proper courts.

Meanwhile, I instruct the implementing agencies of the budget to submit project and procurement information requested by the procurement transparency group on the priority projects earmarked for monitoring. And I instruct all national government agencies, GOCCS and GFIS to provide their annual procurement plans, also requested by the procurement transparency group for monitoring of major bidding processes.

The infrastructure budget of 200 billion pesos from the GAA, the GOCCS and the local governments enable us to implement key infrastructure projects. For instance, national roads like the Surigao-Davao, the Davao del Norte-Bukidnon, the Lebak-Maguindanao, the Butuan-Esperanza in Agusan del Norte, the Sibuco-Siraway-Siocon-Baliguian in Zamboanga del Norte, some examples of major projects in Mindanao;

In central Philippines: sta. Barbara airport to Iloilo city; Caticlan-Pandan-Libertad in Panay so that Boracay tourism can spread; Bacolod to Silay airport; El Nido to Rio Tuba in Palawan ‘cause there are some segments that are not yet completed; Esperanza to Aroroy in Masbate — I see the governor here — the Caramoan peninsula road in Camarines Sur;

In the urban beltway: the c5-nlex-slex link, which Bayani Fernando is working very hard on because there are relocation and right of way issues that we have to address; and the Marikina-Infanta road;

In the North Luzon agri-business quadrangle: the Halsema highway, the Bontoc-Tabuk-Tuguegarao, the Tarlac-Nueva Ecija-Dingalan;

The farm-to-market roads and irrigation projects together worth 15 billion pesos;

Bridges like Panguil Bay Bridge in Mindanao between Misamis Occidental and Lanao del Norte;

Airports like the remediation works on NAIA 3 to comply with FAA standards; Cotabato, Pagadian, Siargao, Zamboanga airports in Mindanao; Panglao, Tacloban, Dumaguete, Daraga, Puerto Princesa in Central Philippines, among others; and in the North Luzon agri-business quadrangle, a series of no-frills airports including Alaminos in Pangasinan and San Vicente in Cagayan;

Seaports like Dingalan in Aurora; Healthcare infrastructure like the upgrading of hospitals from primary to secondary hospital care;

Housing and relocation — with five billion pesos, Noli? Almost? — Aside from his Pag-Ibig funds of 30 billion pesos.

The second “e” – education — takes a front seat in this budget. No other issue is as important to Filipinos as the opportunity education affords the next generation to be liberated from poverty and live a life of hope, optimism and prosperity.

The 200 billion pesos allocated for various agencies dealing with education allows us to invest in more than 10,000 classrooms; 36 million new textbooks; 900 plus computer labs in public high schools; 60,000 Gastpe scholarships under the education service contracting; and for the separate high school voucher, an increase in each voucher from 5,000 pesos to 7,000 pesos, and per recommendation of Jing Lapus because it's more expensive in Metro Manila said, 10,000 for Metro Manila;

Engineering, RD, technology and science scholarships at high school, college, masters and Phd levels at 1.4 billion pesos overseen by Nina Alabastro, unprecedented in our history; other college scholarships worth 400 million pesos; vocational training worth three billion pesos, including p350 million for BPO training; 10,000 more teachers; teacher training in math, science and English worth a billion pesos with 500 million of that going to English.

And finally, the third “e” — the environment. Filipinos love our nation. We must be careful stewards of our natural environment. Our environment is God-given; we must not abuse what god has created. This includes a commitment to clean air, clean water and a clean, healthy environment, free from toxic wastes that can harm each and every one of us.

The GAA will help — just help, not fund the whole thing — it will help fund the creation of a green Philippines that encompasses: conservation to beautify our villages and cities of trash; build more urban parks and recreation areas; purify our water and clean up industrial sites that are an eye-sore and are unhealthy. And the DENR has a five billion allocation mainly for conservation.

We have almost 300 million also to support DOE's energy independence. But Angie Reyes has various PNOG corporations have a lot more resources to fund our quest for energy independence.

Reforestation at 300 million pesos. So when I asked Angie to move to DOE, I asked him also to allocate some of the PNOG resources for reforestation. And I asked our ODA partners who are here and I have asked especially New Zealand that hopefully all forthcoming ODA from New Zealand will go to reforestation.

We also want to turn our coral reefs and beaches, our mountain vistas and our tropical forests into national parks and international sanctuaries for eco-tourism and scientific research. And we have 240 million pesos to start that up, but we can put PTA funds to augment that.

While we have accomplished much, much remains to be done. We plan on working hard the next two years until the day our term ends in 2010 to fulfill our Philippine reform agenda. We must and we will press forward with more reforms. We will fight for the economy, education and the environment. We will fight to feed the poor, improve job creation and do everything in our power to mitigate the global forces increasing the price of commodities like oil and rice.

Overall, we remain bullish on our economy, optimistic about our future and deeply committed to being a force for good.

To all of you, thank you for joining us — not just joining us today — but joining us in the work that we must do.

Thank you for demonstrating your commitment to our nation's stability and to invest in the people.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Ceremonial Signing of the General Appropriations Act Of 2008. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123042/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1067&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Launching of the Giant Turtle Conservation Program

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Launching of the Giant Turtle Conservation Program

[Delivered at the Pawikan Center, Nagbalayong, Morong Bataan, March 12, 2008]

Maraming salamat sa mga opisyal at mamamayan ng Nagbalayong sa Morong, Bataan. Kapuri-puri ang inyong malasakit sa ating pawikan at ang pagtatag ninyo ng Bantay Pawikan People's Organization. Malaking tulong ito sa Pawikan Conservation Project.

Pinakawalan natin sa dagat kanina ang mga batang pawikan. Mas mabubuhay sila roon, at lalo tayong makasisiguro sa ating pangangalaga. At sa mahabang panahon, makikinabang sa yaman ng karagatan ang mga Pilipino ngayon at sa hinaharap.

Ipinamamalas din natin ang ating pagpapahalaga sa kapaligiran na isa nang haligi ng ating balangkas pangkaunlaran.

Kahapon pinagdiriwang natin ang isang importanteng hakbang sa pag-alaga ng ating kalikasan sa pagpirma ng ating pambansang budget.

Linalarawan ng ating budget ang ating mga asal at prayoridad sa patakaran para mamuhunan sa ating taong bayan. Naglalaan tayo ng pondo sa mga bagay na magpapa-assenso lalo sa ating bansa. Ito ang tintatawag na "Tatlong E" – Ekonomiya, Edukasyon at Environment.

Bawat Pilipino gusto ng mabuting trabaho, pagkain sa mesa, mabuting edukasyon para sa kanilang mga anak at isang malusog at malinis na kapaligiran na may malinis na hangin, malinis na tubig at malinis na lupa.

Sa araw na ito, ipinagdiriwang natin sa Bataan ang Environment. Mahal ng mga Pilipino ang ating bansa. Kailangang tayo ay maingat ng taga-alaga ng ating likas na kapaligiran. Bigay ng Panginoon ang ating kapaligiran. Dapat hindi natin abusuhin ang linikha ng Panginoon. Kasama dito ang commitment sa malinis na hangin, malinis na tubig, at isang malinis at malusog na kapaligiran, ligas sa mga nakakalasong basura na maaaring saktan bawat isa sa atin.

Sa Environment tayo ay tututok sa:

1) Conservation – We need to beautify our villages and cities and rid them of trash; build more urban parks and recreation areas; purify our water and clean up industrial sites that are both unhealthy and aesthetically unpleasant. From our newly-approved budget that is allocating the biggest chunk to social services, we have put aside P 5 Billion for conservation activities from the DENR's P 8 Billion total budget.

2) Energy independence – We need to tap alternative indigenous sources of power and energy, and we put a premium on green and renewable energy. We are veering away from imported fossil fuels whose prices are not only sky high, but also highly volatile. Our budget gives P274.16 million to support DOE's efforts on energy resource development and utilization and conservation activities. The PNOC has its own billion of corporate funds for the development of New and Renewable Energy sources even as we work harder to convince investors to venture into the promising areas of solar, wind, geothermal and biofuel energy.

3) Reforestation – We will recover our lost forests through massive tree planting with the help of communities. The DENR budget sets aside P 300 million for reforestation. We have also convinced several countries like New Zealand to give their grants as reforestation projects. Inatasan din natin ang PNOC na gumastos sa forestation upang bawiin ang oxygen na kinakain ng langis kaya nagkakaroon ng global warming.

4) The protection of our national parks and wildlife refuges is also high in our priority. We want to turn our coral reefs and beaches, the rice terraces — our contribution to the wonders of the world — as well as our mountain vistas and tropical forests into national parks and international sanctuaries for eco-tourism and scientific research. P 240 Million will be spent for protected areas, apart from what they can raise as gate receipts from holidaymakers. There are specific provisions for wildlife sanctuaries, including P 5 million for the Pawikan Conservation Project. Inaatasan ko ring gumamit ng pondo ng Philippine Tourism Authority para dito. Samantala, may dala akong tseke bilang tulong sa livelihood nga Sagip Pawikan para magtayo ng lodging rooms para sa mga turista at marine biologists sa sentrong ito.

Habang marami na tayong nagawa, marami pa ring dapat gawin. Balak nating magtrabaho nang masipag sa susunod na dalawang taon hanggang mataposang aking termino sa 2010 para matupad ang ating Philippine Reform Agenda. Kailangan at gagawin natin, susulong tayo ng higit pang mga reporma. Ipaglalaban natin ang Ekonomiya, Edukasyon at ang Enviroment.

“Alagaan ang Kalikasan — Panlaban sa Kahirapan” — angkop ang temang ito sa hangad nating pagsamahin ang edukasyon at ekonomiya sa pangangalaga ng kalikasan. Maging ang nag-u-umapaw na yaman ng kalikasan, madaling mau-ubos kung salaula ang paggamit. Ngunit kung maayos ang pangangalaga, higit tayong bibiyayaan ng dagat, gubat at lahat na nakapaligid sa atin, at sa yamang ito aahon sa hirap ang milyun-milyong mamamayan ngayon at ang mga susunod pang henerasyon.

Halimbawa, dati, marami sa inyo ang nangunguha ng itlog ng pawikan o nanghuhuli ng pawikan upang ibenta, ngunit ngayong alam na ninyo ang halaga ng nilalang na ito, nangunguna kayo sa pangangalaga. At kayo na rin ang nagpatunay na mas gaganda ang inyong kabuhayan kung ipagtatanggol ninyo at tutulungan dumami ang pawikan sa halip na lipulin ito sa walang awang pagtugis.

Nagbalayong is a good example of how conservation efforts can be turned into livelihood opportunities that can lift people up from poverty. Maraming salamat sa inyong magandang halimbawa.

Aasahan kong ipagpapatuloy ninyo ito. Inaasahan kong tularan kayo ng lahat ng Pilipino sa tindi ng inyong pagsisikap na alagaan ang kalikasan bilang laban sa kahirapan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo’s speech during the Launching of the Giant Turtle Conservation Program. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123032/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1066&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during her meeting with Students and Teachers on Education Budget

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During her meeting with Students and Teachers on Education Budget

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacanang, March 13, 2008]

Maraming salamat sa inyong pagdalaw sa Malacanang. Kapuri-puri ang inyong malasakit sa bansa. Malaking inspirasyon kayo sa ating pamamahala.

Inihalal ninyo ako at mga mga mambabatas para magtrabaho para sa ikabubuti ng lahat. Thank you for expressing your weariness of the politics of division and despair. Salamat sa inyong pahayag na gusto ninyong gumawa kami ng mahihirap ngunit wastong desisyon para sa ekonomiya, labanan ang kahirapan, at panatiliin ang ating bansang payapa at maunlad.

Ito ang nasa isip ko nang nilagdaan ko noong Martes ang pinakamalaking budget na naipasa sa kasaysayan ng Kongreso – P1.2 trillion para sa 2008. Isusulong nitong pondo ang tatlong E – ekonomiya, edukasyon at environment – ang mga programang pinakamahalaga upang gumanda ang ating buhay.

Ipinamamalas ng ating budget ang ating pagkilos at prayoridad sa patakaran para mamuhunan sa ating taong bayan.

Hindi ba, gusto ng bawat Pilipino ang mabuting trabaho, pagkain sa mesa, mabuting edukasyon para sa mga anak, at maaliwalas at dalisay na kapaligiran na may sariwang hangin, malinis na tubig at mayamang lupa.

Siguro nakalimutan na ng ibang tao at mga pulitiko, ngunit sa kauna-unahang pagkakataon sa isang henerasyon, nagkaroon tayo ng badyet at ekonomiya na nagbibigay ng revenue na pwedeng gastusin sa pagpapaganda at pagaangat ng buhay ng Pilipino. Noong araw, sapat lang ang budget para sa sweldo, interes sa utang at IRA (Internal Revenue Allotment) sa mga pamahalaang lokal. Noong araw, kailangang umutang pa para magtayo ng imprastraktura. Ngayon hindi na. Pwede na tayong gumastos sa imprastraktura at social services sa sarili nating kakayahan at hindi na sa utang.

Itong tinatawag nating “Social Payback” ay nagsimula noon pang isang taon nang simulan nating lakihan ang pondong panggastos para sa mga imprastraktura at sa mga pangunahing serbisyo sa ating mga kababayan, kasama na dito ang edukasyon.

Education, in particular, is taking a front seat in our budget this year. Hindi ba, wala nang ibang mas importante para sa mga Pilipino ngayon kundi ang edukasyon? Ang oportunidad na magkaroon ng kalidad na edukasyon ang siyang paraan para sa inyong mga kabataan na nabibilang sa susunod na henerasyon na makalaya sa kahirapan at mamuhay ng maginhawa.

Education is a core value of Philippine society and family life. Edukasyon ang pinakatanging hiyas na pamana ng bawat magulang, kuya, ate, tiyo o tiya sa kanyang anak, kapatid o pamangkin. Upang makatapos ang kapamilya, magpupuyat sa trabaho of mangingibang-bansa ang Pilipino, titipirin ang pananghalian, mamumulot ng basura, at iba pang sakripisyo, alang-alang sa ina-asam na diploma. Iyan ang halaga ng pag-aaral.

Sapagkat pinakamahalaga ang edukasyon para sa pamilyang Pilipino, sinisikap ng pamahalaan na ilaan ang pinakamalaking pondo ng bansa sa edukasyon.

Ngayon, dahil sa ating mga reporma sa buwis, mas malaki na ang alokasyon sa mga programang panlipunan kaysa sa pambayad sa utang. Umaabot halos dalawandaang bilyong piso ang sa edukasyon. Ito rin ang pinakamalaking bahagi ng budget na napunta sa edukasyon sa mahabang panahon.

Tatanggap ng malaking pondo para sa edukasyon ang Department of Education (DepEd) na may P150 bilyon para sa elementarya at high school, Commission on Higher Education (CHED), state universities and colleges, Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (TESDA), Department of Science and Technology (DOST), Commission on Information and Communications Technology (CICT) at Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD).

Paiiralin ng DepEd ang pre-school sa dalawang bilyong piso. Unti-unti gagawing pre-school ang mga day care centers.

Tatlo't kahalating milyong maralitang mag-aaral sa pre-school ang tatanggap ng bigas sa ilalim ng Food for School Program.

Mga P6 bilyon ang nakalaan sa 11,000 na silid-aralan.

Mamamahagi ng lampas 35 milyong libro.

Kasama rin sa budget ang pag-hire ng sampung libong karagdagang mga teacher.

May P1 bilyon para sa teacher training sa Math, Science at English.

At may probisyong pantaas ng sweldo, baka sa gitna ng taon.

Mahigit 60,000 na estudyante sa buong bansa ang bibigyan ng tulong upang makapag-aral sa pribadong high school sa ilalim ng Government Assistance to Students and Teachers in Private Education (GATSPE) Education Service Contracting.

Itataas ang high school voucher sa National Capital Region (NCR) sa P10,000 mula P5,000.

Bibili ng halos sanlibong computer laboratories sa high school.

Tatlong bilyong piso para sa pagbibigay ng mas maraming vocational training, kasama ang isang bilyong pisong scholarship para sa 100,000 na mahihirap at P350 milyon para mag-training para sa mga business process outsourcing (BPO) at call center.

Strengthening the ROTC program consistent with the doctrine of a citizen's army enshrined in the Constitution.

College scholarships na nagkakahalaga ng P700 million, kasama ang P300 million sa science.

Masters at doctorate sa Science at Engineering na higit P1 billion.

Marami na tayong nagawa, marami pang nalalabing kailangang gawin. Balak nating magtrabahong masipag sa susunod na dalawang taon hanggang sa araw na matapos ang aking termino sa 2010, upang ipatupad ang ating Philippine Reform Agenda. Kailangang sumulong tayo at susulong tayo sa dagdag pang mga reporma. Ipaglalaman natin ang Ekonomiya, Edukasyon at ang Environment.

Overall, we remain bullish on our country, optimistic about our future and deeply committed to being a force for good. Salamat na narito kayo ngayon. Thank you for demonstrating your commitment to our nation's stability and to investing in the people.

“Isulong ang Karunungan — Panlaban sa Kahirapan.”

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during her meeting with Students and Teachers on Education Budget. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123006/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1065&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Presentation of the 2008 Budget on the Economy with the Liga ng mga Barangay and the Working Poor, March 14, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Presentation of the 2008 Budget on the Economy with the Liga ng mga Barangay and the Working Poor

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 14, 2008]

Magandang hapon sa inyong lahat.

Nagpapasalamat ako kay Congresswoman Reyes at yung ibang mga congressmen at senators doon sa budget na ipinasa na napakaganda na pinirmahan natin noong Martes. Itong budget na ito ang atin binibigyan-diin at halaga sa pamumuhunan sa taong-bayan. Namumuhunan ang ating budget sa tinatatawag nating tatlong “E” — Ekonomiya, Edukasyon, Environment

Di ba, pinakamahalaga sa bawat Pilipino ang magandang trabaho, pagkain sa mesa, mahusay na edukasyon para sa mga anak, at maaliwalas at dalisay na kapaligiran na may sariwang hangin, malinis na tubig at mayamang lupa.

Nakalaan sa social services ang pinakamalaking bahagi ng budget, kasama ang paaral; paggamot, gaya ng 11,000 na Botika sa Barangay na nagbebenta ng kinalahating-presyong gamot, at ito ay isang magandang programa natin mga taga barangay; pag-uupgrade ng mga primary hospital sa inyong mga probinsiya para maging secondary hospital, para magkaroon ng surgeon, anesthesiologist at obstetrician, at pagpalawak ng sakop ng PhilHealth sa pitumpung milyong benepisyaryo; at nakalaan din ang pautang sa munting negosyo, lalo na yung micro-entrepreneurs tulad ng mga sidewalk vendors. Salamat vendors, taga-Baclaran, salamat sa inyong suporta. May grocery na kayo, hindi ba? Okay.

Yung DSWD may 43 million pesos dito sa budget na ito, pero ito ay bahagi lamang ng 50 billion pesos sa ating banking system para sa small and micro finance.

Nakalaan din sa budget ang pabahay. Kanina kausap niyo si Vice-President Noli de Castro, siya ang namamahala sa pabahay gaya ng housing project na nakabiyaya sa mga sundalo sa Taguig at iba pa. At doon may 30 billion pesos ang budget ng Pag-ibig para sa housing, meron pang 5 billion pesos sa budget para sa housing ng mga hindi kasapi sa Pag-ibig.

Ang budget natin din ay buffer upang maibsan ang hira sa maaring idulot ng ekonomiya sa pagbaba ng ekonomiya ng daigdig at yung walang humpay na pagtaas ng presyo ng langis at bigas sa mundo, na naka-aapekto sa presyo ng ating pagkain at transportasyon.

Mayroon programang Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino. Ito ay nagbibigay ng targeted cash payment sa isangdaang libong pinakadukha sa ating bansa — isangdaang libong pamilya. At kanina, kausap ko yung World Bank at sabi nila ay tutulong din sila upang dumami itong Pamilyang Pantawid at humigit sa 100,000 sa poorest of the poor ng ating bansa.

Laman ng international news network ngayon ang worldwide shortage sa bigas. Meron na ngang problema ng langis ngayon may worldwide shortage sa bigas. Noong 2001, 200 dollars ang presyo ng bigas sa pandaigdigang merkado. Ngayon, 700 dollars na, ganun tumaas ang bigas sa buong mundo. Kaya bilyun-bilyong piso ang ginagastos ng NFA upang sa kabila ng pagtaas ng presyo ng bigas sa mundo nang ganito, nananatili ang bigas sa mga Tindahan Natin na P18.50 kada kilo.

Ganun na lang ang ating paghahanap ng ginhawa para sa ating taong-bayan na nagdudusa sa mataas na presyo ng langis at bigas sa buong mundo. Para maibsan ang pasakit ng mataas na presyo ng langis at bigas sa buong mundo, babawasan ng Manila Water at Maynilad ang singil sa maralita para sa tubig.

Binaba ng SLEX-PNCC portion naman ang toll ng sampung porsiyento noong nakaraang Lunes.

Pero itong sa bigas, ang hinihiling ko sa ating mga leader sa barangay, sana samahan ninyo sina Kalihim Peter Favila at Secretary Arthur Yap na habulin yung mga rice hoarders para hindi naman masayang yung inilatag natin sa NFA. Alam niyo, meron ng apat na opisyal ng NFA na kakasuhan kasi nakikipagsabwatan sa mga unscrupulous traders, yung murang bigas ibinebenta sa traders at yung traders ibinebenta sa commercial market Eh, biro mo ang subsidy natin kung gaano kalaki na ang presyo ng bigas ngayon kaya dapat hulihin natin yung mga nagsasamantala dahil ninanakawan nila ng murang bigas yung mahihirap.

Kaya yun ang pagtutungan rin natin mga barangay. Kasi kung hindi, hindi lang sayang yung ating NFA subsidy, sayang din yung inilalatag natin na farm-to-market roads sa buong kapuluan para dumami ang ating ani at hindi na kailangan bumili sa labas sana. Dahil naglalagay tayo sa budget na ito ng pondo para sa farm-to-market road: dalawang libong kilometro sa Mindanao; dalawang libong kilometro sa hilagang Luzon, dahil ito ang mga lugar na agricultural; isanglibong kilometro sa Central Philippines, Bicol at Visayas; isanlibong kilometro dito sa Luzon, sa Southern Luzon, Southern Tagalog at sa Central Luzon sa Bulacan.

At itong farm-to-market roads na ito ay matatayo natin dahil meron tayong nakalagay na halagang pitong bilyong piso sa budget para sa farm-to-market roads At para dumami rin ang ani, mamumuhunan din tayo ng walong bilyon na inilaan para sa irigasyon. Itong seven billion para sa farm-to-market roads at eight billion para sa irigasyon kasama ito sa 23 billion pesos na alokasyon para sa modernisasyon ng agrikultura.

Kasama rin ito sa dalawangdaang bilyong piso mula sa Pambansang Budget, mga korporasyon, yung inyong bahagi ng tinatawag nating development fund ng IRA ng pamahalaang lokal na gugugulin natin para sa imprastruktura. Kabilang ang mahahalagang kalsada, halimbawa, napakarami pero babanggitin ko ang ilan: yung Sibuco-Siraway-Siocon-Baliguian Road sa Zamboanga del Norte. Nandito ba yung mga taga Zamboanga del Norte? Yun! meron. Okay; yung pag-ayos ng Maharlika Highway sa Samar Island. Meron ba tayong mga taga Samar dito? Kasi hindi ba nasira na ng husto, okay; yung Halsema Highway sa Cordillera. Meron bang mga taga Cordillera dito? Yes; at saka dito naman yung pagdugtong ng C-5 at NLEX para konektado na ang SLEX, C-5 at NLEX.

Mga daungan gaya nang doon sa Dingalan, sa Aurora; doon sa Kawit sa Marinduque; doon sa Esperanza, Cauayan at Aroroy sa Masbate; at iba pang mga dadaanan ng roll-on/roll-off ferry na magdadala ng pagkain mula Mindanao hanggang dito para maging mas mura o hindi gaanong tumaas ang presyo ng pagkain. At maglalagay din tayo siyempre ng mga daungan na mas maganda sa mga mahihirap na lugar kagaya ng probinsya ng Tawi-Tawi. Kaya tinanong ko kay President Echeverri, meron ba tayong taga Tawi-Tawi rito? Napakalayong lugar, pinakamalayo sa atin.... hindi. Batanes ay mas malayo pero ang Batanes dahil sa konting-konti ang tao mataas ang antas ng buhay. Doon sa Tawi-Tawi malayo at mahirap ang buhay.

Magtatayo rin tayo ng mga paliparang no-frills sa Hilagang Luzon para makapunta dito yung kanilang mga produkto at para makapunta rin doon yung mga eco-tourists, kagaya ng doon sa Alaminos sa Pangasinan. Meron bang taga Pangasinan dito? Okay. At saka doon naman kung saan maraming mga turistang pumupunta, maglalagay naman tayo ng international airport, kagaya doon sa Panglao doon sa Bohol, at nakita ko si Board Member Conching Lim doon.

Maglalagay din tayo ng pera para sa pagpapakabit ng kuryente sa mga barangay na wala pang kuryente at tubig at sa mga bayang wala pang tubig. At tututungan natin sa connectivity yung mga gustong puntahan ng mga namumuhunan sa call center. Bahagi rin sa ating budget yung commuter trains, hindi ba dito yung LRT natin U shape, gagawin nating O shape para kahit na saan pwede kayong umakyat, kahit na saan pwede kayong bumaba para makamernos din sa gastos ng transportasyon.

Kausap ko nga kanina si Secretary Larry Mendoza ng DOTC, sabi niya kasi hinati nila sa tatlong package yun, meron nang na-award sa dalawang package, yung isa walang nag qualify, so uulitin muli yung bidding. Pero sa madaling salita, at least yung dalawa o kahit na naniniwala sila na itong pagkakaroon ng bidding magiging successful this time. So at least, hopefully 18 months from now meron na tayong O shape at hindi na lang U shape or horseshoe shape na loop dito sa Metro Manila.

Yung mga IRA para sa inyo, Local Governments, mula sa budget ay P210.7 billion. Nawa'y gamitin ng mga local officials kasama yung mga barangays ang 20 percent nung development fund ninyo para sa imprastraktura at social services. In other words, lahat tayo mamuhunan sa sambayanan.

Marami na tayong nagawa. Kayo sa inyong mga barangay pero napakarami pa rin ang dapat nating gawin. Kaya dadagdagan natin ang ating pagsisikap upang makamit ang mga layunin ng ating Philippine Reform Agenda.

Kaya kayo mga barangay officials, kayo ang pinaka grassroots na mga leaders, kaya aasahan ko kayo, aasahan ko ang tulong ninyo.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

*Source: Adamson University Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the Presentation of the 2008 Budget on the Economy with the Liga ng mga Barangay and the Working Poor

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Presentation of the 2008 Budget on the Economy with the Liga ng mga Barangay and the Working Poor

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 14, 2008]

Magandang hapon sa inyong lahat.

Mga lider ng Liga ng mga Barangay; si Congresswoman Carmencita Reyes na sinamahan ng kaniyang ABC dito; mga nagtatrabaho sa formal sector, mga manggagawa; mga nakatanggap ng mga biyaya ng housing; mga nagtatrabaho sa informal sector, (applause) mga vendor; (applause) mga gumagamit at nagpapatakbo ng transportasyon.

At gusto kong batiin si Secretary Ed Pamintuan, si Secretary Panganiban at saka si Undersecretary Soliman. At sa inyong lahat, kayo ay mga leaders ng grassroots. Maraming salamat na kayo ay narito. (applause) At salamat na pinahayag ninyo na ibig ninyong magtrabaho ang Pangulo at mambabatas para sa kinabubuti ng madla.

At nagpapasalamat ako kay Congresswoman Reyes at yung ibang mga congressmen at senators doon sa budget na ipinasa na napakaganda na pinirmahan natin noong Martes. (applause) Itong budget na ito ang atin binibigyan-diin at halaga sa pamumuhunan sa taong-bayan. Namumuhunan ang ating budget sa tinatatawag nating tatlong “E” — Ekonomiya, Edukasyon, Environment.

Di ba, pinakamahalaga sa bawat Pilipino ang magandang trabaho, pagkain sa mesa, mahusay na edukasyon para sa mga anak, at maaliwalas at dalisay na kapaligiran na may sariwang hangin, malinis na tubig at mayamang lupa.

Nakalaan sa social services ang pinakamalaking bahagi ng budget, kasama ang paaral; paggamot, gaya ng 11,000 na Botika sa Barangay na nagbebenta ng kinalahating-presyong gamot, at ito ay isang magandang programa natin mga taga barangay; (applause) pag-uupgrade ng mga primary hospital sa inyong mga probinsiya para maging secondary hospital, para magkaroon ng surgeon, anesthesiologist at obstetrician, at pagpalawak ng sakop ng PhilHealth sa pitumpung milyong benepisyaryo; at nakalaan din ang pautang sa munting negosyo, lalo na yung microentrepreneurs tulad ng mga sidewalk vendors. (applause) Salamat vendors, tiga-Baclaran, salamat sa inyong suporta. May grocery na kayo, hindi ba? Okay.

Yung DSWD may 43 million pesos dito sa budget na ito, pero ito ay bahagi lamang ng 50 billion pesos sa ating banking system para sa small and microfinance.

Nakalaan din sa budget ang pabahay. Kanina kausap niyo si Vice-President Noli de Castro, siya ang namamahala sa pabahay gaya ng housing project na nakabiyaya sa mga sundalo sa Taguig at iba pa. At doon may 30 billion pesos ang budget ng Pag-ibig para sa housing, meron pang 5 billion pesos sa budget para sa housing ng mga hindi kasapi sa Pag-ibig.

Ang budget natin din ay buffer upang maibsan ang hirap na maaring idulot ng ekonomiya sa pagbaba ng ekonomiya ng daigdig at yung walang humpay na pagtaas ng presyo ng langis at bigas sa mundo na naka-aapekto sa presyo ng ating pagkain at transportasyon.

Mayroon programang Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino. Ito ay nagbibigay ng targeted cash payment sa isangdaang libong pinakadukha sa ating bansa — isangdaang libong pamilya. At laman... kanina kausap ko yung World Bank at sabi nila ay tutulong din sila upang dumami itong Pamilyang Pantawid at humigit sa 100,000 sa poorest of the poor ng ating bansa. (applause)

Laman ng international news network ngayon ang worldwide shortage sa bigas. Meron na ngang problema ng langis ngayon may worldwide shortage sa bigas. Noong 2001, 200 dollars ang presyo ng bigas sa pandaigdigang merkado. Ngayon, 700 dollars na, ganun tumaas ang bigas sa buong mundo. Kaya bilyun-bilyong piso ang ginagastos ng NFA upang sa kabila ng pagtaas ng presyo ng bigas sa mundo nang ganito, nananatili ang bigas sa mga Tindahan Natin na P 18.50 kada kilo. (applause)

Ganun na lang ang ating paghahanap ng ginhawa sa ating taong-bayan na nagdudusa sa mataas na presyo ng langis at bigas sa buong mundo. Para maibsan ang pasakit ng mataas na presyo ng langis at bigas sa buong mundo, babawasan ng Manila Water at Maynilad ang singil sa maralita para sa tubig. (applause)

Binaba ng SLEX-PNCC portion naman ang toll ng sampung porsiyento noong nakaraang Lunes. (applause)

Pero itong sa bigas, ang hinihiling ko sa atin mga leader sa barangay, sana samahan ninyo sina Kalihim Peter Favila at Secretary Arthur Yap na habulin yung mga rice hoarders para hindi naman masayang yung inilatag natin sa NFA. (applause) Alam niyo, meron ng apat na opisyal ng NFA na kakasuhan kasi nagkakasabwatan sa mga unscrupulous traders, yung murang bigas ibinebenta sa traders at yung traders ibinebenta sa commercial market. Eh, biro mo ang subsidy natin kung gaano kalaki na ang presyo ng bigas ngayon kaya dapat hulihin natin yung mga nagsasamantala dahil ninanakawan nila ng murang bigas yung mahihirap.

Kaya yun ang pagtulungan rin natin mga barangay. Kasi kung hindi, hindi lang sayang yung ating NFA subsidy, sayang din yung inilalatag natin na farm-to-market roads sa buong kapuluan para dumami ang ating ani at hindi na kailangan bumili sa labas sana. Dahil naglalagay tayo sa budget na ito ng pondo para sa farm-to-market road: dalawang libong kilometro sa Mindanao; dalawang libong kilometro sa hilagang Luzon, dahil ito ang mga lugar na agricultural; isanglibong kilometro sa Central Philippines, Bicol at Visayas; isanlibong kilometro dito sa Luzon, sa Southern Luzon, Southern Tagalog at sa Central Luzon sa Bulacan.

At itong farm-to-market roads na ito ay matatayo natin dahil meron tayong nakalagay na halagang pitong bilyong piso sa budget para sa farm-to-market roads. (applause) At para dumami rin ang ani mamumuhunan din tayo sa walong bilyon na inilaan para sa irigasyon. Itong seven billion para sa farm-to-market roads at eight billion para sa irigasyon kasama ito sa 23 billion pesos na alokasyon para sa modernisasyon ng agrikultura.

Kasama rin ito sa dalawangdaang bilyong piso mula sa pambansang budget, mga korporasyon, yung inyong bahagi ng tinatawag nating development fund ng IRA ng pamahalaang lokal na gugugulin natin para sa imprastruktura. Kabilang ang mahahalagang kalsada, halimbawa, napakarami pero babanggitin ko ang ilan: yung Sibuco-Siraway-Siocon-Baliguian Road sa Zamboanga del Norte. Nandito ba yung mga taga Zamboanga del Norte? Yun! meron. Okay; yung pag-ayos ng Maharlika Highway sa Samar Island. Meron ba tayong mga taga Samar dito? Kasi hindi ba nasira na ng husto, okay; yung Halsema Highway sa Cordillera. Meron bang mga taga Cordillera dito? Yes; at saka dito naman yung pagdugtong ng C-5 at NLEX para konektado na ang SLEX, C-5 at NLEX.

Mga daungan gaya nang doon sa Dingalan, sa Aurora; doon sa Kawit sa Marinduque; doon sa Esperanza, Cauayan at Aroroy sa Masbate; at iba pang mga dadaanan ng roll-on/roll-off ferry na magdadala ng pagkain mula Mindanao hanggang dito para maging mas mura o hindi gaanong tumaas ang presyo ng pagkain. At maglalagay din tayo siyempre ng mga daungan na mas maganda sa mga mahihirap na lugar kagaya ng probinsya ng Tawi-Tawi. Kaya tinanong ko kay President Echeverri, meron ba tayong taga Tawi-Tawi rito? Napakalayong lugar, pinakamalayo sa atin.... Ay, hindi. Batanes ay mas malayo pero ang Batanes dahil sa kunting-konti ang tao mataas ang antas ng buhay. Doon sa Tawi-Tawi malayo at mahirap ang buhay.

Magtatayo rin tayo ng mga paliparang no-frills sa hilagang Luzon para makapunta dito yung kanilang produkto rin at para makapunta rin doon yung mga eco-tourists kagaya ng doon sa Alaminos sa Pangasinan. Meron bang taga Pangasinan dito? Okay. At saka doon naman kung saan andami-dami ng turistang pumupunta maglalagay naman tayo ng international airport kagaya doon sa Panglao doon sa Bohol, (applause) at nakita ko si Board Member Conching Lim doon.

Maglalagay din tayo ng pera para pagkabit ng kuryente sa mga barangay na wala pang kuryente at tubig sa mga bayang wala pang tubig. (applause) At tutulungan natin sa connectivity yung mga gustong puntahan ng mga namumuhunan sa call center. (applause) Bahagi rin sa ating budget yung commuter train dito sa... Hindi ba dito yung LRT natin U shape, gagawin nating O shape para kahit na saan pwede kayong umakyat kahit na saan pwede kayong bumaba para makamernos din sa gastos ng transportasyon.

Kausap ko nga kanina si Secretary Larry Mendoza ng DOTC, sabi niya natapos... kasi hinati nila sa tatlong package yuon, meron nang na-award sa dalawang package, yung isa walang nag qualify, so uulitin muli yung bidding. Pero sa madaling salita, at least yung dalawa o kahit na naniniwala sila na itong magkakaroon ng bidding magiging successful this time. So at least mga hopefully 18 months from now meron na tayong O shape at hindi na lang U shape or horseshoe shape na loop dito sa Metro Manila.

Yung mga IRA para sa inyo, Local Governments, mula sa budget ay P210.7 billion. (applause) Nawa'y gamitin ng mga local officials kasama yung mga barangays ang 20 percent nung development fund ninyo para sa imprastraktura at serbisyo sosyal. In other words, (applause) lahat tayo mamuhunan sa sambayanan. (applause)

Marami na tayong nagawa. Kayo sa inyong mga barangay pero napakarami pa rin ang dapat nating gawin. Kaya dadagdagan natin ang ating pagsisikap upang makamit ang mga layunin ng ating Philippine Reform Agenda.

Kaya kayo mga barangay officials, kayo ang pinaka grassroots na leader, kaya aasahan ko kayo, aasahan ko ang tulong ninyo.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech during the Presentation of the 2008 Budget on the Economy with the Liga ng mga Barangay and the Working Poor. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122951/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1063&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo at the 103rd Philippine Military Academy Graduation Rites

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 103rd Philippine Military Academy Graduation Rites

[Delivered at Fort Del Pilar, Baguio City, March 18, 2008]

Congratulations to BAGHAWI Class of 2008.

Congratulations to your parents, other family members and friends who shared your dreams and inspired and supported you.

Congratulations to the people of the Philippines who spent for your military education so that you will work for the common good. They are tired of the politics of division and despair. They want you to keep our nation safe, secure and moving forward.

Every Filipino wants a good job, food on the table, a sound education for their children. Dear parents, congratulations to you and the PMA for giving your children a sound education.

BAGHAWI Class of 2008, know the multifaceted roles of a twenty-first century soldier: not just a combatant but a military professional, a manager, a partner in development. Your four-year stay in the Academy honed the skills you to perform these roles.

PMA exposed you not only to military science but to other aspects of national life such as the actual experience of building the hopes of our fellow Filipinos through the Gawad Kalinga and distributing relief goods to the calamity stricken.

Innovations gave your class a sense of distinction. The greatest paradigm shift in the military protocol which is at the helm of those innovations was the deviation of the class from “Rank has its Privilege” to “Rank has its Responsibility.”

Your classes focused on institutional building and shifted from personality-driven to institutional leadership.

You will be leaders of character.

You will be fine pillars of a strong economy and a strong military free from corruption.

We have placed mechanisms to fix the corruption that still plagues our nation, such as a Procurement Transparency Group, a partnership between government and civil society to make sure that biddings for projects will be above board. The group has members from the Makati Business Club and the Ateneo School of Government G-Watch, among others, and lately the National Secretariat for Social Action of the Catholic Bishops’ Conference of the Philippines. At present, this group monitors 40 priority projects, including the petroleum, oil and lubricants procurement of the AFP.

An essential part of building a modern nation in these trying times is to have a military as strong and modern as the nation it serves. We have put our money where our rhetoric is. We have invested heavily in new and better equipment, more and better training and more cooperation with our allies in professionalizing our military.

We are investing in brand new helicopters, in watercraft, squad automatic weapons, mortars and military trucks radio systems and force protection equipment. We are investing in the great Filipino soldier through better care and improved services. Maraming buhay na nasagip ang kagyat na saklolo at pagamot ng Forward Field Medical Support System. Pinopondohan din natin ang pag-upgrade ng mga ospital ng hukbo, gaya ng Camp Bautista Trauma Hospital sa Jolo, at hindi kukulang sa isang bilyong pisong pabahay.

The 2008 budget allocates of P12 billion for a 10% increase in the basic salary of civilian, military and uniformed personnel starting July.

We have set 2010 as the deadline to win the war against the insurgency. As of last year, we had succeeded in halving the number of active insurgents in 2001.

The way to win isn't just through the barrel of a gun. Rather it begins with providing a person a job, food on the table and human dignity. Central to that success is to invest in the people – in education, healthcare, roads, bridges. We have allocated P1 billion in the 2008 DND budget for this.

Our central objective to create more jobs and grow our economy is to invest, invest and invest. We have been doing that. We have the strongest economy in over 30 years as a result of the tough reforms we have made to break the cycle of despair which has kept our nation back.

Our strengthened economic fortunes come none too soon, for there are clouds on the economic horizon that we must guard against. Much remains to be done to lift up our poor.

I learned that the battle cry of the BAGHAWI Class 2008 is “BAGHAWI-Buo.” This emanated from the earlier cry “BAGHAWI – Not One Less.” Buo nating itaguyod ang mga pangarap ng bawat Pilipino. Not one less of the BAGHAWI Class 2008 shall stray from the time-tested virtue of the Philippine Military Academy – Courage, Loyalty, Integrity. Much will be expected of you.

I now pardon the outstanding punishments of the cadet corps of the PMA as may be prescribed by the Superintendent.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Speech of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo at the 103rd Philippine Military Academy Graduation Rites. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122935/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1062&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on Research and Production of Vegenoodles

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Research and Production of Vegenoodles

[Delivered at Brgy. Betag, La Trinidad, March 22, 2008]

I wish to take advantage of my visit to instruct the study of manufacturing of vegenoodles whose raw materials can be sourced from the salad bowl of Cordillera and the pinakbet bowl of Pangasinan (Villasis et al). The vegenoodles can be part of Tindahan Natin stock. The program is given a substantial allocation in this year's national budget. Vegetable-fortified noodles will make them more nutritious and delicious and less costly to manufacture in this era of soaring wheat prices. They will improve the income of farmers, and solve storage problems of what by nature are quickly perishable items.

Benguet State University can partner with vegetable processors and noodle makers, which include family of Mr. GoNegosyo, Joey Concepcion, with respect to the technological aspect of commercial production, DA to ensure supply through technical assistance to growers of these high-value crops, PMS to ensure credit assistance, and DTI to support marketing concerns.

Filipino companies, notably the Chan family of Oishi fame, have been producing veggie-based and veggie-added snacks and noodle. These patriots, I know, will join in any national project that will feed our children, help our farmers and give our consumers more and better nutritional choices.

I am giving a check of P10 million to Benguet State University with the instruction for them to concentrate on vegenoodles as their research and development mandate.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech: Research and Production of Vegenoodles. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122811/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1061&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Philippine Development Forum, March 26, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Philippine Development Forum

[Delivered in Clark, Pampanga, March 26, 2008]

It is my pleasure to join you in our constantly productive and insightful dialogue on Philippine development.

2007 was the best year for the Philippine economy in over 30 years. Economic growth was 7.3 percent; a million new jobs were created; and foreign investments have been strong. We have been cited by London as the “offshore destination of the year” and by the International Data Corporation as the top global outsourcing destination after India.

Our billion-dollar investment club includes Texas Instruments with its 1.6 billion dollar wafer fabrication facility under construction; Hanjin with two shipyards. One up and one coming costing $3.7 billion total, which makes us the fourth biggest shipyard in the world; Marubeni, Tokyo Electric and AEA which have invested billions of dollars in our power sector. They join the ranks of Intel and Proctor and Gamble, to name but a few of our major investors.

Just this month the IMF lauded our economic growth, the substantial reduction in our budget deficit, low inflation and the improvement in consumer confidence. The IMF highlighted in particular our fine Central Bank, for smoothening foreign exchange fluctuations as the peso touched an eight-year high against the dollar in recent months. During this time, the country has built its foreign exchange reserves to a record high.

2008 holds real promise for a different reason. Not only do we expect to sustain our growth, but as a result of our total economic overhaul, we are well-positioned to weather a global economic slowdown which, unfortunately, will affect all of us, something which I will discuss in greater detail in a few moments.

The real story for 2008 is that our macroeconomic fundamentals are stronger than ever due to tough choices we have made on boosting revenues, cracking down on tax cheats, bringing reform to our revenue collection and modernizing our banking and financial sector. We have reformed our budget to be in balance way ahead of the medium-term plan schedule of 2010.

Last year, our deficit was only P12 billion the lowest in a decade and far below the ceiling of P63 billion. Revenues were up 16 percent from 2006. Seven years ago, no one thought we could do it, but we have. There will be no rest. We are continuing the pace of progress that has succeeded in strengthening our economy.

The maturity in our economy has brought with it a new confidence that forms the foundation of sustained economic growth moving forward. We are at a tipping point. I’m confident that the Philippines will tip forward in pursuit of reaching the status of first-world within a generation.

Our strengthened economic fortunes come none too soon. As we are all aware, there are clouds on the economic horizon that we must guard against. The global economy is facing significant challenges. The slowing of the economies in North America and Europe, is top of mind in our calculations to protect our own economy. To that end, we have developed a program that includes: first, to ensure a surge in investments in people and infrastructure; second, to ensure that we continue to pursue anti-corruption initiatives and to cut red tape; and third, to blunt the global rise in the cost of energy by providing targeted relief to the poorest among us who suffer the most from the high global price of energy.

These global forces are putting more strain on our working poor, as prices for commodities like rice and fuel increase. We are a price-sensitive nation. So while our macroeconomics are strong, the benefits are still working their way down more slowly than we would want to lift up our citizens who live and work pay day to pay day.

We need a strong middle class to become a strong modern nation. We are working to soften the blow from the current global economic challenges to those working hardest, to make it to the middle class.

The best thing we can do in the short term is to provide responsible, targeted relief to those most in need. The best thing we can do for the remainder of my term until I step down in 2010, is to stay focused on further economic reforms while providing peace, order and stability. Our last two years will be dedicated to one main objective: invest, invest and invest some more in the nation.

The national budget which I signed a few weeks ago, provides a roadmap for realizing our priorities in 2008 and for the remainder of my term. It should provide you with a sense of our priorities and our thinking about the future of our nation.

First, the budget reflects our values and policy priorities for investing in our people. This budget invests in what we call the three 'E's.' They're the essential building blocks of a nation, namely, the economy, education and the environment. Every Filipino wants a good job, food on the table, sound education for their children and a healthy environment with clean air, clean water and clean land.

Second, this budget represents another important step in the economic development of the Philippines – namely, fiscal discipline. We have the strongest economy in over thirty years as a result of the tough reforms we have made, to break the cycle of despair which has held our nation back for so many years. Part of the plan includes a march toward a balanced budget for the first time in many years.

Lastly, this budget proves once again that members of Congress from both the House and the Senate and all parties can come together to work with the Executive Branch, to get things done for the nation. Political noise need not interfere with economic progress and reform. This budget helps make that point. The people are tired of partisan wrangling and want all of us to do our job – which is to work for the interest of the people, keeping the nation strong and stable, and always moving forward.

Overall, the budget provides a buffer to mitigate the pain of a deteriorating global economy, and the accompanying rise in prices which affects food and transportation the most. Most importantly, it is a budget dedicated to investing in the vital physical and human infrastructure to continue to modernize our nation. Roads, bridges and ports along with education and healthcare build up the foundation of the nation and make us more competitive.

The issue of corruption that has plagued our nation for several generations is an issue we take seriously. As an economist, I know that first and foremost, a strong economy is an economy that is transparent and free from corruption. This budget invests more and more to clean up the culture of corruption that has plagued this nation for generations.

To fix the corruption that still plagues our nation, I have called on Congress to pass a comprehensive anti-corruption reform act in 2008. On our part, we will hold officials accountable if they are found to be corrupt after due process. Let the chips fall where they may as investigations are concluded and friend and foe alike are brought to account for their actions in the proper courts.

With its budget doubled since 2002, the country's primary anti-corruption body the Office of the Ombudsman, has hired several dozen prosecutors and investigators, and trained them better. As a result, the Ombudsman's conviction rate has hit nearly 60%, from just 6% historically.

We have undertaken an effort to curb graft through criminal justice, administrative controls and procedural reforms. Just to name an example, we established the Procurement Transparency Group, to make sure that biddings for projects will be above board. The group is partnership between the government and civil society. At present, this independent group is monitoring 40 priority projects.

To apply the same government-civil society synergy to revenue generation, yesterday, I instructed the DOF to form watchdog bodies for the BIR and BOC, with private sector and civil society participation to monitor tax collection and big BIR and Customs cases.

While we have accomplished much, more remains to be done. We plan to work hard the next two years until the day our term ends in 2010, to fulfill our Philippine reform agenda. This includes legislative efforts to improve our banking and finance system; to strengthen our tax collection and continue to broaden our tax payer base; and crack down on corruption and red tape.

We will fight for the economy, education and the environment to feed the poor, improve job creation and do everything in our power to mitigate the global forces increasing the price of commodities like oil and rice.

Our use of official development assistance will necessarily be guided by the three E's of our priority thrusts, as well as our need to adjust foreign exchange flows to avoid excessive upward pressure on the peso. We ask our creditor community to work with us on standardizing ODA loan conditionalities. We will likewise apply the targeted spending of ODA. For health related projects, foreign borrowings shall focus on upgrading primary hospitals to secondary, half-priced medicines and health insurance. I have recommended to particular ODA lenders that loans for environmental protection be assigned to reforestation. For education, we prioritize early childhood education, grade school classrooms, vocational education, high school and college scholarships, teacher training in English, and graduate courses in science, technology and engineering.

We are bullish on our economy, optimistic about our future and committed to being a force for good for our nation.

Thank you all for your commitment to the Philippines.

Source: Adamson University Library

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Philippine Development Forum

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Philippine Development Forum

[Delivered in Clark, Pampanga, March 26, 2008]

It is my pleasure to join you in our constantly productive and insightful dialogue on Philippine development.

2007 was the best year for the Philippine economy in over 30 years. Economic growth was 7.3 percent; a million new jobs were created; and foreign investments have been strong. We have been cited by London as the “offshore destination of the year” and by the International Data Corporation as the top global outsourcing destination after India.

Our billion-dollar investment club includes Texas Instruments with its 1.6 billion dollar wafer fabrication facility under construction; Hanjin with two shipyards. One up and one coming costing $3.7 billion total, which makes us the fourth biggest shipyard in the world; Marubeni, Tokyo Electric and AEA which have invested billions of dollars in our power sector. They join the ranks of Intel and Proctor and Gamble, to name but a few of our major investors.

Just this month the IMF lauded our economic growth, the substantial reduction in our budget deficit, low inflation and the improvement in consumer confidence.

The IMF highlighted in particular our fine central bank for smoothening foreign exchange fluctuations as the peso touched an eight-year high against the dollar in recent months. During this time, the country has built its foreign exchange reserves to a record high.

2008 holds real promise for a different reason. Not only do we expect to sustain our growth, but as a result of our total economic overhaul, we are well-positioned to weather a global economic slowdown which, unfortunately, will affect all of us – something which I will discuss in greater detail in a few moments.

The real story for 2008 is that our macroeconomic fundamentals are stronger than ever due to tough choices we have made on boosting revenues, cracking down on tax cheats, bringing reform to our revenue collection and modernizing our banking and financial sector. We have reformed our budget to be in balance way ahead of the medium-term plan schedule of 2010.

Last year, our deficit was only P12 billion the lowest in a decade and far below the ceiling of P63 billion. Revenues were up 16 percent from 2006. Seven years ago, no one thought we could do it, but we have. There will be no rest. We are continuing the pace of progress that has succeeded in strengthening our economy.

The maturity in our economy has brought with it a new confidence that forms the foundation of sustained economic growth moving forward. We are at a tipping point. I’m confident that the Philippines will tip forward in pursuit of reaching the status of first-world within a generation.

Our strengthened economic fortunes come none too soon. As we are all aware, there are clouds on the economic horizon that we must guard against. The global economy is facing significant challenges. The slowing of the economies in North America and Europe is top of mind in our calculations to protect our own economy. To that end, we have developed a program that includes: first, to ensure a surge in investments in people and infrastructure; second, to ensure that we continue to pursue anti-corruption initiatives and to cut red tape; and third, to blunt the global rise in the cost of energy by providing targeted relief to the poorest among us who suffer the most from the high global price of energy.

These global forces are putting more strain on our working poor as prices for commodities like rice and fuel increase. We are a price-sensitive nation. So while our macroeconomics are strong, the benefits are still working their way down more slowly than we would want to lift up our citizens who live and work pay day to pay day.

We need a strong middle class to become a strong modern nation. We are working to soften the blow from the current global economic challenges to those working hardest to make it to the middle class.

The best thing we can do in the short term is to provide responsible, targeted relieve to those most in need. The best thing we can do for the remainder of my term until I step down n 2010 is to stay focused on further economic reforms while providing peace, order and stability. Our last two years will be dedicated to one main objective: invest, invest and invest some more in the nation.

The national budget which I signed a few weeks ago provides a roadmap for realizing our priorities in 2008 and for the remainder of my term. It should provide you with a sense of our priorities and our thinking about the future of our nation.

First, the budget reflects our values and policy priorities for investing in our people. This budget invests in what we call the three 'E's.' They're the essential building blocks of a nation, namely, the economy, education and the environment. Every Filipino wants a good job, food on the table, sound education for their children and a healthy environment with clean air, clean water and clean land

Second, this budget represents another important step in the economic development of the Philippines – namely, fiscal discipline. We have the strongest economy in over thirty years as a result of the tough reforms we have made to break the cycle of despair which has held our nation back for so many years. Part of the plan includes a march toward a balanced budget for the first time in many years.

Lastly, this budget proves once again that members of Congress from both the House and the Senate and all parties can come together to work with the executive branch to get things done for the nation. Political noise need not interfere with economic progress and reform. This budget helps make that point. The people are tired of partisan wrangling and want all of us to do our job – which is to work for the interest of the people, keeping the nation strong and stable, and always moving forward.

Overall, the budget provides a buffer to mitigate the pain of a deteriorating global economy and the accompanying rise in prices which affects food and transportation the most. Most importantly, it is a budget dedicated to investing in the vital physical and human infrastructure to continue to modernize our nation. Roads, bridges and ports along with education and healthcare build up the foundation of the nation and make us more competitive.

The issue of corruption that has plagued our nation for several generations is an issue we take seriously. As an economist, I know that first and foremost, a strong economy is an economy that is transparent and free from corruption. This budget invests more and more to clean up the culture of corruption that has plagued this nation for generations.

To fix the corruption that still plagues our nation, I have called on Congress to pass a comprehensive anti-corruption reform act in 2008. On our part, we will hold officials accountable if they are found to be corrupt after due process. Let the chips fall where they may as investigations are concluded and friend and foe alike are brought to account for their actions in the proper courts.

With its budget doubled since 2002, the country's primary anti-corruption body, the Office of the Ombudsman, has hired several dozen prosecutors and investigators, and trained them better. As a result, the Ombudsman's conviction rate has hit nearly 60%, from just 6% historically.

We have undertaken an effort to curb graft through criminal justice, administrative controls and procedural reforms. Just to name an example, we established the Procurement Transparency Group the Procurement Transparency Group to make sure that biddings for projects will be above board. The group is partnership between the government and civil society. At present, this independent group is monitoring 40 priority projects.

To apply the same government-civil society synergy to revenue generation, yesterday I instructed the DOF to form watchdog bodies for the BIR and BOC with private sector and civil society participation to monitor tax collection and big BIR and Customs cases.

While we have accomplished much, more remains to be done. We plan to work hard the next two years until the day our term ends in 2010 to fulfill our Philippine reform agenda. This includes legislative efforts to improve our banking and finance system; to strengthen our tax collection and continue to broaden our tax payer base; and crack down on corruption and red tape.

We will fight for the economy, education and the environment, to feed the poor, improve job creation and do everything in our power to mitigate the global forces increasing the price of commodities like oil and rice.

Our use of official development assistance will necessarily be guided by the three E's of our priority thrusts, as well as our need to adjust foreign exchange flows to avoid excessive upward pressure on the peso. We ask our creditor community to work with us on standardizing ODA loan conditionalities. We will likewise apply the targeted spending of ODA. For health related projects, foreign borrowings shall focus on upgrading primary hospitals to secondary, half-priced medicines and health insurance. I have recommended to particular ODA lenders that loans for environmental protection be assigned to reforestation. For education, we prioritize early childhood education, grade school classrooms, vocational education, high school and college scholarships, teacher training in English, and graduate courses in science, technology and engineering.

We are bullish on our economy, optimistic about our future and committed to being a force for good for our nation.

Thank you all for your commitment to the Philippines.

*Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Philippine Development Forum. Retrieved https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123139/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1059&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 29th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA), “Oman-Silang” Class 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 29th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA), “Oman-Silang” Class 2008

[Delivered at the Silang, Cavite, March 28, 2008]

Thank you very much Secretary Puno.

Inspector Enciso give ‘tikas pahinga’.

Vice-President Noli de Castro; Director General Avelino Razon; president of the Public Safety College, Dr. Cojuangco; Police Chief Superintendent Abarzosa and other officials of the PNPA; Secretary Remonde and other government officials; faculty of the Philippine National Police Academy; other PNP officials; mga magulang; mga kaibigan na nagtatapos nang araw na ito; Graduate Class PNP “Oman-Silang” Class 2008. Congratulations sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Natatanging pagbati rin sa ating dalawang kababaihan na kasama sa sampung pinakamagaling estudyanteng nagtatapos. At salamat sa sampung pinakamagaling na estudyanteng nagtatapos. (applause) At isang pagbati rin at pagpasalamat sa pagpapasigurado ng inyong valedictorian, si Inspector Enciso, sa katapatan ng “Oman-Silang” Class 2008 sa ating Konstitusyon at sa ating demokrasya. (applause)

Congratulations to Chief Superintendent Abarzosa, the first PNPA alumnus to be named director of this Academy. (applause) Noong isang araw nabasa natin yung full page ad ng mga alumni at inaasikaso yung mga isyu doon ni Secretary Puno. Pero kung pag-uusapan natin yung systematic prejudice against non-PMA, siguro si Abarzosa ay isa ng napaka-gandang halimbawa. Dahil si Abarzosa very junior siya, hindi siya PMA, very junior siya nung ginawa ko siyang chief ng Manila Police District. Isang talagang hinahangad na assignment. (applause) Congratulations din sa ating pangulo ng Public Safety College, si President Tingting Conjuangco for initiating reforms, among them allowing new graduates of previous classes to undergo the officers basic course.

Ito ang napaka-importante gaya nang sabi ng ating valedictorian — yung reporma. Reporma ang ating isinusulong ngayon sa bansa — reporma sa ekonomiya, gobyerno at seguridad.

Doon sa ekonomiya, 2007 was the best year for our economy in over 30 years. Our strengthened economic fortunes come none too soon for there are clouds on the economic horizon that we must guard against. The global economy is facing significant challenges.

The global forces are putting more strain on our working poor, at marami sa ating working poor yung mga ordinaryong mga pulis. As prices for commodities like rice and fuel increase in the world market, ‘di natin maiiwasan na tatamaan din ang ating bansa. We are a price-sensitive nation. So we are working to soften the blow from the current global economic challenges to those working hardest to make it into the middle class at kasama nga dito yung ating ordinaryong pulis.

The best thing we can do in the short-term is to provide responsible, targeted relief to those most in need. Kaya halimbawa sinasama na natin yung mga pulis sa Extra Performance Bonus sa Disyembre na noong araw hindi ginagawa. At pinalaki natin ang subsistence allowance at hazard pay ng ating mga pulis.

At sinisimulan na natin ang malalaking proyektong pabahay para sa mga pulis dahil hindi natin gusto makita ang mga pulis nakatira sa squatter area katabi pa ng mga hatchet men ng mga sindikato. Kaya dito sa likod ng PNPA, at sabi nga ni Tingting meron pang nasa labas ng bakod na talagang lupa ng PNPA, ito ay dapat gawing pabahay.

Kanina tinanong ko ano ang nangyari na dito sa ating proyektong pabahay lalo na't nandito si Vice-President de Castro na siya ang namamahala sa ating pabahay. Hinihintay pala yung Memorandum of Agreement ng PNPA at AFP dahil officially pala ang may-ari ng lupa ay AFP gawa nang ang PCI dating bahagi ng AFP. Eh sabi ko keysa maghihintay pa tayo ng red tape nung Memorandum of Understanding, 'di pagbigyan na natin, gawin nating joint housing for the AFP and the PNP itong lupa sa likod at lupa sa tabi. (applause)

The 2008 budget allocates P12 billion for a 10 percent increase in the basic salary of civilian, military and uniformed personnel starting July kasama ang ating mga pulis. (applause)

For the remainder of my term until I step down in 2010, the best thing we can do is stay focused on further economic reforms while providing peace, order and stability. At yan ang trabaho ng ating bagong nagtapos, PNPA "Oman-Silang" Class 2008 — peace, order and stability.

From investigating and apprehending different kinds of criminals, petty thieves as well as the most dangerous of terrorists, nadadagdagan parati ang trabaho ng pulis, lalo na't magkabalikat ang pulis at sundalo sa laban kontra sa insurgency gawa ng ating Executive Order. Kaya kailangan pabilisin ang modernisasyon ng PNP. Lalo na't we have set 2010 as the deadline to win the war against insurgency.

I am glad that as of last year, we had succeeded in cutting by half the number of active insurgents compared to 2001. Ibig sabihin noon nag-ugat na ang reporma sa PNP.

Sa pag-unlad ng ekonomiya nagmula ang pondo upang madagdagan ang 15,000 na bagong pulis ang PNP sa loob ng tatlong taon. Tayo ay nasa pangalawang taon na nitong 5,000 a year for three years na bagong mga pulis. (applause) At sa halagang natipid natin sa pagbayad ng interes ng utang nagmula ang mga unang patrol cars na ipinamahagi sa mga istasyon ng kapulisan sa buong bansa.

Bahagi yun sa ating modernisasyon pero pinapabilis natin ang modernisasyon ng PNP, kasama dito ang pagbili ng dalawampu't tatlong helicopter at anim ang darating ngayon, itong taon. (applause) Kasama ang patrol craft para sa Maritime Command. Kasama ang specialization sa mga lugar ng turismo for tourism police — yun bang baywatch, ganun. Naka-shorts, sabi ni Vice-President de Castro. Totoo yun, sa Boracay hindi mo mahahalata kung sino ang pulis at sino ang turista dahil naka-shorts. For instance, in Cebu the top tourist attraction for foreign tourists, the placing of close circuit TV to protect the tourists.

Also bringing your weaponry to par with the syndicated crime, like night vision equipment and intelligence. And against terrorism, increased forensics and investigative crime laboratory aids.

Daragdagan pa rin ang mga patrol cars, di ba Sonny? Kahit na nagpalabas na tayo dadagdagan pa rin at dadagdagan din ang gasoline allocation, totoo ba yun? Kasi mahal ang presyo ng gasolina kaya kailangan dagdag ng allocation. Pero nagpapaalala tayo na dahil mahal ang gasolina ay huwag nating sayangin yung ating gasoline allocation.

Ang pangunahing hamon na hinaharap ng mga miyembro ng Class "Oman-Silang" 2008 sa pagpasok ninyo bilang regular na miyembro ng kapulisan o ng jail management o ng fire protection kasama ng mga datihan nang mga Mamang Pulis at Aleng Pulis, ay sugpuin ang krimen at ipairal ang proteksyon ng karaniwang mamamayan maging mula sa krimen, mula sa sunog at siguraduhin na yung mga kriminal ay hindi tumatakas mula sa ating mga preso. At importante rin ang paglaban kontra sa rebelyon. Kaya ang inyong trabaho itaguyod ang kapayapaan at katahimikan upang magpapatuloy ang ating kaunlaran.

You know, whenever I see members of the uniformed service, I remember the poem, 'The Charge of the Light Brigade' — "Theirs is not to reason why, theirs is but to do or die." Yan ang kapalit ng paghawak ng baril. Hindi ang humahawak ng baril ang nag-phiphilosophize, ang nag-phiphilosophize ay yung mga totally civilian leaders. Kayo, ang inyong talagang problema — peace, order and stability.

When you start your regular service, you will see every single day as a challenge and an opportunity. Embrace the opportunity. That is how to apply what you have learned in the Academy and to grow as a professional, as an individual — yes, as a concerned citizen of our Republic. Pero nung nanduon ako sa PMA graduation pinaalala rin nung isang speaker, in return for your guns, there are certain civil rights that you have to give up and that is the right to speak politically. So, yun kasama doon ang disiplina.

At ako naman ay nakakatiyak na buong husay ninyong matutupad ang inyong katungkulan sapagkat gaya nang sabi ng inyong valedictorian, sinanay kayo sa PNPA upang manguna sa pagsugpo ng krimen at rebelyon, at bagamat hindi kayo makakasali sa pulitika maging magandang halimbawa ng bagong sibol na kapulisang nag-aalaga sa kaligtasan at katahimikan ng ating bansa.

Once more, to your parents and to you PNP “Oman-Silang” Class of 2008, Congratulations! More power!

Mabuhay! (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo’s Speech during the 29th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA), “Oman-Silang” Class 2008. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122509/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1058&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Cebu City Galing Pook Awards

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Cebu City Galing Pook Awards

[Delivered in Cebu City, March 28, 2008]

Gapahalipay ako sa mga Lupong Tagapamayapa Volunteers nga maoy nagpadaog sa Cebu City sa Galing Pook Awards tungod sa programang Strengthening the Justice System in the Grassroots.

Gia-abi-abi ko sab si Mayor Tommy Osmena kay gihatag niya ang dungog sa mga volunteers kay matud pa niya, sila ang tinuod nga mida-og, ang “real and deserving winners.”

Alang kanako, kamong tanan ang midaog: ang otso syentos ka volunteers nga gasiguro nga dili maolayi ang pagdala ug hustisya sa barangay ug maoy nakatipig alang sa gobyerno ug milyones nga gastuhon unta sa mga korte; si Mayor Tommy Osmena kansang paghatag ug credit sa sa iyang katawhan gapakita sa iyang matuud nga pagka-lider; ug ang syudad sa Sugbo nga gapadayon sa pag-uswag tungod kay maayo ang serbisyong gidawat sa mga Sugbuhanon gikan sa ilang mga opisyales. Ang ika-upat nga midaog mao ang good governance sa mga lokal nga pamunuan kay aduna sila’y maayong role model sa Cebu City.

Ang ubang LGU’s mahimong mosunod sa mga paagi ninyo dinhi sa Cebu City. Makalipay nga 72% sa mga kasong gidala sa inyong mga barangay ang nasolbad sa pakigsabot. Sa tibuok nasod, kamo ra ang barangay mediation group nga gihatagan us saktong training. Ug ang trabaho sa mga volunteers gisuportahan gayod sa lokal nga pamunuan, sa pagpanguna ni Mayor Tommy Osmena nga maoy mihatag sa matag volunteer ug dagdag nga P 1,000 nga allowance kada bulan. Unta sundon sa ubang LGUs sa nasod ang mga gihimo sa mga volunteers dinhi.

Daghang mga syudad ug lungsod naga-hesitate nga adopthon ang gihimo dinhi tungod kay dili sila kulang ang ilang kwarta. Aduna’y solusyon ni-ini. Tingali, kadtong mga interesadong LGU’s makahangyo kang Mayor Osmena kung mahimong patabangon ang iyang kwarenta’y syete ka accredited trainors aron mo-extend ang mga representante sa ubang LGUs, ug ang pondong gamiton sa training mogikan sa 20% sa ilang IRA nga angay gamiton para sa mga development projects, labi na gayod kay gipadak-an ug maayo ang IRA karong tuig-a.

Ang gipadak-ang IRA ug ang gipadak-ang national budget gikan sa tough choices we have made on boosting revenues, cracking down on tax cheats, bringing reform to our revenue collection and modernizing our banking and financial sector.

2007 was the best year for the Philippine economy in over 30 years. Economic growth was 7.3 percent; a million new jobs were created; and foreign investments have been strong. We have been cited by London as the “offshore destination of the year” and by the International Data Corporation as the top global outsourcing destination after India. Kusog kaayo ang industriya sa BPO tungod sa mga call centers nga na-a sa syudad sa Cebu.

Just this month, the International Monetary Fund lauded our economic growth, the reduction in our budget deficit, low inflation and the improvement in investor confidence.

2008 holds real promise for a different reason. Not only do we expect continued strong growth, but as a result of our total economic overhaul, we are well-positioned to weather a global economic slowdown which, unfortunately, will affect all of us.

Our strengthened economic fortunes come none too soon, for there are clouds on the economic horizon that we must guard against. The global economy is facing significant challenges. The slowing of the economies in North American and Europe is top of mind in our calculations to protect our own economy. To that end, we have developed a program that includes: first, to ensure a surge in investments in people and infrastructure; second, to ensure that we continue to pursue anti-corruption initiatives and to cut red tape; and third, to blunt the rise in the cost of energy and rice by providing targeted relief to the poorest amongst us who suffer the most from the high global price of energy and rice.

These global forces are putting more strain on our working poor as prices for commodities like rice and fuel increase. We are a price-sensitive nation. So while our macroeconomics are strong, the benefits are still working their way down more slowly than we want to lift up our citizens who live and work payday to payday. We need a strong middle class to become a strong modern nation. We are working to soften the blow from the current global economic challenges to those working hardest to make it to the middle class.

The best thing we can do in the short term is to provide responsible, targeted relief to those most in need. The best thing we can do for the remainder of my term until I step down in 2010 is to stay focused on further economic reforms while providing peace, order and stability. My last two years will be dedicated to one objective: invest, invest and invest some more in the nation.

Ang Syudad sa Cebu naa'g maayong pagpamuno tungod kay ang inyong mga programa gapatipig ug pondo samtang paspas ug maayo ang gihatod nga mga serbisyo sa katawhan.

Ang atong mga Lupong Tagapamayapa volunteers dinhi daghan ug nahimo aron paspas ang paghatod sa hustisya sa mga pobre sa syudad sa Cebu. Tingali, pinaagi kang Mayor Tommy, mahimo ninyong padak-an kining inyong pagtabang sa mga kabos kun motabang kamo sa pagbantay sa presyo. Siguruhon nato nga ang presyo sa mga labing kinahanglanong palaliton dili molapas sa presyo sa listahan sa DTI, ug siguruhon sab nato nga kanunay nga dunay ibaligyang bugas sa mga pobrang barangay dinhi sa syudad.

Ang mga Lupong Tagapamayapa volunteers, kauban ang inyong Mayor, mao ang garbo sa pamunuan sa syudad sa Sugbo. Gasalig ako nga sa mga mosunod nga adlaw mas daghan pa ang inyong himuon aron labaw pan'g ma-ila ang iyong pagpromote sa Katarungang Pambarangay.

Daghan salamat sa gipakita ninyong maayong example.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Cebu City Galing Pook Awards. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122559/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1057&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Formal Launch of OFQ Savings Instruments of DBP and LBP with the Filipino Community in Hong Kong, March 30, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Formal Launch of OFQ Savings Instruments of DBP and LBP with the Filipino Community in Hong Kong

[Delivered at the Tiffin Lounge, Grand Hyatt Hotel, Hong Kong, March 30, 2008]

Nagagalak ako na makasama kayong muli. Linggo ang karaniwang araw ng pagpapahinga, pero nandito kayo ngayong gabi kaya maraming, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

At narito si Secretary Romulo at saka si Ambassador Brady mula pa sa Beijing, dahil nowhere is foreign policy more important than in protecting and advancing the interests of our overseas workers, kayo ang napakaimportanteng layunin ng ating foreign policy lalo na doon nga sa mas malayong lugar kaysa Hong Kong — Bert I'd like to congratulate you all. The DFA recently reported a seaman released after 14 years in a Bangladeshi jail. At kung naalala ninyo noong ako ay nagpunta sa Saudi Arabia napalaya natin ang 700 na mga bilanggo. Ngayon meron namang 150 being freed from Middle East jails. At napaka-importante yun doon sa Middle East, dahil dalawang milyon ang Pilipino doon.

Pero dito sa Hong Kong popular na popular din ang Hong Kong bilang destination ng OFWs. Kayo ay 120,000 na Pilipinong nakatira at nagtatrabaho dito, at saludo sainyong lahat ng mga tagarito sa Hong Kong. Congratulations! Eh lang dapat naman, hindi matatawaran ang inyong sipag at ang inyong kalidad ng trabaho, yung inyong mabuting asal, yung inyong katapatan sa tungkulin. Kaya bagama't si Sonia Brady ay malayo, nandoon sa Beijing, meron tayong 120,000 Philippine ambassadors dito sa Hong Kong — kayo na nga ang ating overseas Filipinos.

At hindi lamang dito kaya mas lalong matimbang kayo sa ating bansang Pilipinas. Ipinagdarangal at binibigyan ng halaga ang inyong sakripisyo at katapatan sa inyong trabaho, sa inyong pamilya at sa ating bansa.

Kanina sabi ni Consul General, kumokonti na raw yung mga nag-e-emigrate mula sa Southern Europe, pero kung titignan natin yung Portugal, medyo mayaman-yaman na rin, 10 percent pa rin ang population nila ay Overseas Portuguese Workers kagaya ng Pilipinas, 10 percent.

Doon sa New Zealand, mayaman siya pero 25 percent ng New Zealand overseas din. Ang kaibahan ng New Zealand bagama't yung kanyang mga yuppie nagtatrabaho sa ibang bansa pinapadalhan pa rin ng pera ng mom and pop yung anak na nasa ibang bansa. Ang mga Pilipino, kayo ang nagpapadala sa inyong pamilya ng inyong tulong, hindi the other way around, kaya tumutulong kayo sa pamilya niyo, tumutulong kayo sa ating bansa. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Ngunit hinahangad natin ang araw, gaya nang sabi ni Consul General na sana hindi na kailangang mangibang-bansa pa ang isang masipag na Pilipino upang makahanap ng disenteng trabaho. We're working for a strong and growing economy, to pave the day when Filipinos no longer need to go abroad for a job, and being an overseas worker is just another career option, not the only choice one has to earn a living.

A strong and growing economy is the central pillar that we have labored to create to help guarantee peace, order and stability in our country. And it is paying off: 2007 ang pinakamagandang taon para sa ekonomiya ng Pilipinas sa mahigit tatlung taon. Kaya lamang pag malakas ang ekonomiya ay malakas din ang piso.

Kaya lang hindi rin kaila, talagang hindi kaila, na ang nakabawas ang paglakas ng piso sa panggastos ng mga pamilyang OFW. Kaya lang naman nakinabang din ang 80 milyong Pilipino dahil hindi tumama gaano sa kanila ang buong presyo ng pagtaas ng langis sa mundo. Kasi kung 55 pesos kada dollar ang palitan, gaya noong araw, mas mataas pa sana nang five pesos bawat litro ng presyo ng gasolina at diesel. Nabawasan din ang dolyar na utang ng gobyerno at mga korporasyon, kung kaya mas nailalaan natin sa budget para sa mga proyektong pangmasa. Bumaba rin ang singil sa pautang ng bansa, kaya mas mababa pa rin ang interest sa pabahay at pahiram sa negosyo, six percent na lamang yung Pag-ibig. Ngayon lang nangyari yun dahil yun sa malakas na piso. Kung hindi lumakas ang piso, mas malala pa sana ang pagtaas ng presyo sa bansa.

Ganunpaman, upang hindi lubhang mabigat ang paglakas ng piso sa mga OFW, nakita ninyo kaninang hapon ang mga masigasig na pagkilos ng ating administrasyon. Inatasan natin ang mga institusyong pinansiyal ng gobyerno na lumikha ng mga paraan upang lubus-lubusin ang pakinabang ng OFW sa inyong kinikita. Kung naalala ninyo noong Enero, hindi ba pumunta dito si Bise Presidente Noli de Castro para ilunsad yung programa sa Hedging ng Development Bank of the Philippines. Kasama niya noon si Mike Arroyo, ang aking asawa. He was here at that time para proteksiyunan ang halaga ng kinikita ninyo.

Sa programang Hedging, you can already decide, gaya nang sabi ni Jojo, what exchange rate you can change your U.S. dollars for your pesos in the future. Or you can get some insurance and have the option to sell your dollars for pesos in the future, either at a certain protected rate or at the prevailing market rate, whichever is better for you.

Itong DBP Hedging Program — ito nandito si President ng DBP, hindi ba nandiyan si Rey David, nakita ko. Ayun! Rey nabanggit na ba niyo kanina yung incentive to the first 100 OFWs? Ang DBP ay magbibigay ng incentive sa unang 100 OFWs na kukuha ng peso insurance. Bibigyan ng 50 percent discount sa insurance fee ng remittance. Basta lang hindi lalampas ng HK$30,000 ha bawat buwan.

Samantala, mayron naman, binanggit na ni Consul General Vicente yung i-Net Negosyo Program ng DBP para maka-asenso, makaka-pagnegosyo ang inyong mga pamilya sa Pilipinas. Mayron isang bilyong pautang ang DBP para makapagtayo ng mga munting istasyon ng internet ang mga OFW.

Atin ding inilunsad ang mga programa ng Bangko Sentral, nandiyan ang ating Central Bank of the Philippines Governor, si Say Tetangco. Alam niyo si Say hindi yan pwedeng mautusan kasi independent yan sa national government, pero nandito siya kasi tinuturuan niya ng Financial Literacy program ang mga OFW. At nandito yung mga stock exchange para kayo ay mag-invest sa stock exchange, mas mabuti yun keysa doon sa mga pyramid. Yung stock exchange nakikita niyo minuto-minuto kung ano ang presyo ng inyong stock. Itong mga ito ay para magbigay ng kaalaman sa pera at mamuhunan ang mga OFW at sa inyong mga pamilya. Kasi hangad natin na bigyan ang mga OFW ng pagkakataong hindi lang maging Overseas Filipino Workers, hindi lang maging ambassador to Hong Kong kundi maging Overseas Filipino Investors or OFI's.

Isa pang programa, yung Tindahang Pinoy. Nung pumasok kayo meron kayong nakitang booth na Tindahang Pinoy, para sa gustong magbenta ng mga produktong Pinoy sa mga lugar na pinagtatrabahuan ng OFW. Pinagsama-sama nang mga Tindahang Pinoy ang iba't-ibang produkto na gawa sa atin, gaya ng Cornick o Boy Bawang, gapo diay amianan, broas at iba pang kakanin sa katimugan; sardinas mula sa Sarangani Bay — madami yatang taga South Cotabato diyan, magbenta kayo ng sardinas from Sarangani Bay sa Mindanao, at dried mango mula sa Cebu. At hindi lang pagkain. Bahagi din dito ang pagsasanay sa negosyo para sa uuwing OFW, na ipinapatupad ng OWWA, na noong araw ang namumuno ay ang ating bagong Secretary of Labor, si Nitoy Roque. Congratulations, Nitoy!

Ang DOLE at ang OWWA ay magbubukas ng call center training program para sa mga OFW dito sa Hong Kong. Di ba maraming OFW ditong mga teachers? Oh, mga teacher na magagaling mag-Ingles. O yung Ingles ninyo sa call center training ay lalaki pa ang kita niyo pagbalik sa Pilipinas. Ang training cost ay bibigyan ng subsidy ng OWWA, sa pamamagitan ng kanilang scholarships for OWWA members bilang paghahanda sa inyong pagbabalik-trabaho sa Pilipinas.

Yung Land Bank naman ligtas at abot-kaya basta meron kayong 20,000 pesos na minimum. In fact, itong 20,000 pesos mas maliit pa kaysa sa maraming time deposit, mas mataas ang interest for five years or ten years na deposito kaysa sa karaniwang pag-iimpok sa bangko.

Tungkol naman sa singil sa pagpapadala ng pera, may OFW Cash Card ang Land Bank na madaling gamitin at mas mura ang remittance. At nandiyan si Manny Pangilinan, isang OFW sa Hong Kong, by choice not by necessity. Yung Smart, hindi ba? Manny, yung Smart ay yun din ay electronic remittance. So, yun ang serbisyo ni Manny dahil alam niya ang buhay ng OFW bagamat mayaman na mayaman na OFW si Manny Pangilinan.

Anyway, binabati ko ang mga gumagamit ng mga produktong ito. Congratulations, to those who have availed of these products. Mahikayat nawa ang iba sa pakinabang ninyo sa mga programa ng gobyerno.

Siya nga pala, speaking of remittances, nandito si Congressman Danny Suarez. Ayan. Meron siyang panukalang batas, reducing the transaction cost for money remittances from abroad coursed through the Philippine Banking System and Remittance Centers paramakatulong sa ating OFW.

Magbalik tayo sa ekonomiya ng Pilipinas. Malakas ang agos ng investment. We're close to balancing our budget. Pero nung araw, we had to make tough and unpopular decisions to raise revenues and crack down on tax cheats, so that we could invest in our physical infrastructure and in our people. Pero alam natin ang mga problemang humaharap sa ating bansa at kung ano ang inaasahan ng taong- bayan. And we are delivering the economy, education and the environment. Gusto natin na pag-uwi ninyo sa Pilipinas maganda ang uwian ninyo, na may trabaho kayo hindi lamang dahil sa reintegration program, ngunit dahil marami ang oportunidad sa Pilipinas.

Kaya maraming salamat sa inyong mga sakripisyo dito sa Hong Kong, sana pag-uwi ninyo sa Pilipinas maginhawa ang inyong buhay dahil sa ating mga pagsisikap na palakasin ang ekonomiya ng ating bansang Pilipinas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat at mabuhay ang Pilipinas!

*Source: Adamson University Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the Formal Launch of OFQ Savings Instruments of DBP and LBP at the Reception with the Filipino Community in Hong Kong

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Formal Launch of OFQ Savings Instruments of DBP and LBP at the Reception with the Filipino Community in Hong Kong

[Delivered at the Tiffin Lounge, Grand Hyatt Hotel, Hong Kong, March 30, 2008]

Maraming salamat. (applause)

Maraming salamat Secretary Romulo sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

At binabati natin ang ibang mga Cabinet members at national government officials na narito ngayon sa ating business mission; binabati ko rin ang ating mga elected officials na narito sa pamumuno ni Deputy Speaker Giraldo Villarosa ng Mindoro Occidental; (applause) binabati ko ang ating mga official na Pilipino na nandito sa Hong Kong at saka sa China sa pamumuno ni Ambassador Brady (applause) at saka ni Consul General Vicente; (applause) at binabati ko rin si Jojo, thank you; (applause) at kayong lahat na mga Pilipinong narito, mga minamahal kong ... (audio cut)... magandang gabi sa inyong lahat. (applause)

... (audio cut)... nagagalak na kasama kayo muli. (applause) Linggo ang karaniwang araw ng pagpapahinga, pero nandito kayo ngayong gabi kaya maraming, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

At narito si Secretary Romulo at saka si Ambassador Brady mula pa sa Beijing dahil nowhere is foreign policy more important than in protecting and advancing the interests of our overseas workers — kayo ang napakaimportanteng layunin ng ating foreign policy. (applause) Eh doon nga sa mas malayong lugar kay sa Hong Kong — Bert I'd like to congratulate you all. The DFA recently reported a seaman released after 14 years in a Bangladeshi jail. At kung naalala ninyo noong ako ay nagpunta sa Saudi Arabia napalaya natin ang 700 na mga bilanggo. Ngayon meron namang 150 being freed from Middle East jails. At napaka-importante yun doon sa Middle East dahil dalawang milyon ang Pilipino doon.

Pero dito sa Hong Kong popular na popular din ang Hong Kong bilang destination ng OFWs. Kayo ay 120,000 na Pilipinong nakatira at nagtatrabaho dito, at saludo kayong lahat ng lahat ng mga tagarito sa Hong Kong. Congratulations! (applause) Eh dapat naman, hindi mapapatawaran ang inyong sipag at ang inyong kalidad ng trabaho, yung inyong mabuting asal, yung inyong katapatan sa tungkulin. Kaya bagama't si Sonia Brady malayo, nandoon sa Beijing, meron tayong 120,000 Philippine ambassadors here in Hong Kong — Kayo na nga ang ating overseas Filipino. (applause)

At hindi lamang ito mas lalong matimbang kayo sa ating bansang Pilipinas. Ipinagdarangal at binibigyan ng halaga ang inyong sakripisyo at katapatan sa inyong trabaho, sa inyong pamilya, at sa ating bansa.

Kanina sabi ni Consul General, kumokonti na raw yung mga nag-e-emigrate mula sa Southern Europe pero kung titignan natin yung Portugal, medyo mayaman- yaman na rin, 10 percent pa rin ang population nila ay Overseas Portuguese Workers kagaya ng Pilipinas, 10 percent.

Doon sa New Zealand mayaman siya pero 25 percent ng New Zealand overseas din. Ang kaibahan ng New Zealand bagama't yung kanyang mga yuppie nagtatrabaho sa ibang bansa pinapadalhan pa rin ng pera ng mom and pop doon sa anak na nasa ibang bansa. Ang mga Pilipino kayo ang nagpapadala sa inyong pamilya ng inyong tulong, hindi the other way around, kaya nagtutulong kayo sa pamilya niyo, tumutulong kayo sa ating bansa. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Ngunit hinahangad natin ang araw, gaya nang sabi ni Consul General na sana hindi na kailangang mangibang-bansa pa ang isang masipag na Pilipino upang makahanap ng desenteng trabaho. We're working for a strong and growing economy to pave the day when Filipinos no longer need to go abroad for a job, and being an overseas worker is just another career option, not the only choice one has to earn a living.

A strong and growing economy is the central pillar that we have labored to create to help guarantee peace, order and stability in our country. And it is paying off: 2007 ang pinakamagandang taon para sa ekonomiya ng Pilipinas sa mahigit tatlong taon. Kaya lamang pag malakas ang ekonomiya ay malakas din ang piso.

Kaya lang hindi rin kaila, talagang hindi kaila, na ang nakabawas ang paglakas ng piso sa panggastos ng mga pamilyang OFW. Kanya lang naman nakinabang din ang 80 milyong Pilipino dahil hindi tumama gaano sa kanila ang buong presyo ng pagtaas ng langis sa mundo. Kasi kung 55 pesos kada dollar ang palitan, gaya noong araw, mas mataas pa sana nang five pesos bawat litro ng presyo ng gasolina at diesel. Nabawasan din ang dolyar na utang ng gobyerno at mga korporasyon, kaya mas nailalaan natin sa budget ang mga proyektong pangmasa. Bumaba rin ang singil sa pautang ng bansa, kaya mas mababa pa rin ang interest sa pabahay at pahiram sa negosyo, six percent na lamang yung Pag-ibig. Ngayon lang nangyari yun dahil yun sa malakas na piso. Kung hindi lumakas ang piso, mas malala pa sana ang pagtaas ng presyo sa bansa.

Ganunpaman, upang hindi lubhang mabigat ang paglakas ng piso sa mga OFW, nakita ninyo kaninang hapon ang mga masigasig na pagkilos ng ating administrasyon. Inatasan natin ang mga institusyong pinansiyal ng gobyerno na lumikha ng mga paraan upang lubus-lubusin ang pakinabang ng OFW sa inyong kinikita. Kung naalala ninyo noong Enero, hindi ba pumunta dito si Bise Presidente Noli de Castro para ilunsad yung programa sa hedging ng Development Bank of the Philippines. Kasama niya noon si Mike Arroyo, ang aking asawa. He was here at that time pati na rin si... kaya ito ay para proteksiyunan ang halaga ng kinikita ninyo.

Sa programang hedging, you can already decide, gaya nang sabi ni Jojo, what exchange rate you can change your U.S. dollars for your pesos in the future. Or you can get some insurance and have the option to sell your dollars for pesos in the future either at a certain protected rate or at the prevailing market rate, whichever is better for you.

Itong DBP Hedging Program — ito nandito si President ng DBP. Hindi ba nandiyan si Rey David, nakita ko. Ayun! nagre-raise pa nga... (applause) Rey, nabanggit na ba niyo kanina yung incentive to the first 100 OFWs? Ang DBP ay magbibigay ng incentive sa unang 100 OFWs na kukuha ng peso insurance. Bibigyan ng 50 percent discount sa insurance fee ng remittance. (applause) Basta lang hindi kayo... basta lang hindi lalampas ng HK$30,000 ha bawat buwan.

Samantala, mayron naman, binanggit na ni Consul General Vicente yung i-Net Negosyo Program ng DBP para maka-asenso, makapagnegosyo ang inyong mga pamilya sa Pilipinas. Mayron isang bilyong pautang ang DBP para magtayo ng mga munting istasyon ng internet ang mga OFW.

Atin ding inilunsad ang mga programa ng Bangko Sentral, nandiyan ang ating Central Bank of the Philippines Governor, si Say Tetangco. Alam niyo si Say, (applause) hindi yan pwede mautusan kasi independent yan sa national government, pero nandito siya kasi tinuturuan yung Financial Literacy program ng mga OFW. At nandito yung mga stock exchange para kayo ay mag-invest sa stock exchange, mas mabuti yun key sa doon sa mga pyramid. Yung stock exchange nakikita niyo minuto-minuto kung ano ang presyo ng inyong stock. Itong mga ito ay para magbigay ng kaalaman sa pera at mamuhunan ang mga OFW at sa inyong mga pamilya. Kasi hangad natin na bigyan ang mga OFW ng pagkakataong hindi lang maging Overseas Filipino Workers, hindi lang maging ambassador to Hong Kong kungdi maging Overseas Filipino Investors or OFI. (applause)

Isa pang programa, yung Tindahan Pinoy. Nung pumasok kayo meron kayong nakitang booth Tindahan Pinoy para sa gustong magbenta ng mga produktong Pinoy sa mga lugar na pinagtatrabahuan ng OFW. Pinagsama-sama ang mga Tindahan Pinoy ang iba't-ibang produkto na gawa sa atin gaya ng Cornick o Boy Bawang — gapo diay amyanan — broas at iba pang kakanin sa katimugan, sardinas mula sa Sarangani Bay — andami yatang South Cotabato diyaan, magbenta kayo ng sardinas from Saranggani Bay sa Mindanao — at dried mango mula sa Cebu. At hindi lang pagkain. Bahagi din dito ang pagsasanay sa negosyo para sa uuwing OFW, na ipinapatupad ng OWWA, na noong araw ang namumuno ng OWWA ay ang ating bagong Secretary of Labor, si Nitoy Roque. Congratulations, Nitoy! (applause)

Ang DOLE at ang OWWA ay magbubukas ng call center training program para sa mga OFW dito sa Hong Kong. Di ba maraming OFW dito teacher? Oh, mga teacher magaling mag Ingles. O yung Ingles ninyo sa call center training ay lalaki pa ang kita niyo pagbalik sa Pilipinas. Ang training cost ay bibigyan ng subsidy ng OWWA sa pamamagitan ng kanilang scholarships for OWWA members bilang paghanda sa inyong pagbalik-trabaho(audio cut)... sa Pilipinas.

Yung Land Bank naman (audio cut)... ligtas at abot-kaya basta meron kayong 20,000 pesos na minimum. In fact, itong 20,000 pesos mas maliit pa kaysa sa maraming time deposit, mas mataas ang interest for five years or ten years na deposito kaysa sa karaniwang pag-iimpok sa bangko.

Tungkol naman sa singil sa padala ng pera, may OFW Cash Card ang Land Bank na madaling gamitin at mas mura ang remittance. At nandiyan si Manny Pangilinan, isang OFW sa Hong Kong, by choice not by necessity. (applause) Yung Smart, hindi ba? Manny, yung Smart ay yun din ay electronic remittance. So, yun ang serbisyo ni Manny dahil alam niya ang buhay ng OFW bagamat mayaman na mayaman na OFW si Manny Pangilinan.

Anyway, binabati ko ang mga gumagamit ng mga produktong ito. Congratulations! to those who have availed of these products. Mahikayat nawa ang iba sa pakinabang ninyo sa mga programa ng gobyerno.

Siya nga pala, speaking of remittances, nandito si Congressman Danny Suarez. (applause) Ayan. Meron siyang panukalang batas, Reducing the Transaction Cost for Money Remittances from Abroad coursed through the Philippine Banking System and Remittance Centers para makatulong sa ating OFW. (applause)

Magbalik tayo sa ekonomiya ng Pilipinas. Malakas ang agos ng investment. We're close to balancing our budget. Pero nung araw, we had to make tough and unpopular decisions to raise revenues and crack down on tax cheats, so that we could invest in our physical infrastructure and in our people. Pero alam natin ang mga problemang humaharap sa ating bansa at kung ano ang inaasahan ng taong- bayan. And we are delivering the economy, education and the environment. Gusto natin na pag-uwi ninyo sa Pilipinas maganda ang uwian ninyo, na may trabaho kayo hindi lamang dahil sa reintegration program ngunit dahil marami ang oportunidad sa Pilipinas.

Kaya maraming salamat sa inyong mga sakripisyo. Dito sa Hong Kong sana pag-uwi ninyo sa Pilipinas maginhawa ang inyong buhay dahil sa ating pagsikap na palakasin ang ekonomiya ng ating bansang Pilipinas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Formal Launch of OFQ Savings Instruments of DBP and LBP at the Reception with the Filipino Community in Hong Kong. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122432/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1056&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo in Hong Kong

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
In Hong Kong

[Delivered on March 30, 2008]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Romulo sa iyong pagpapakilala sa akin. Binabati natin ang ilang mga Cabinet Members at national government officials na naririto ngayon sa ating business mission. Binabati ko rin ang ating mga elected officials na naririto sa pamumuno ni Deputy Speaker Girlie Villarosa ng Mindoro Occidental. Binabati ko ang ating mga opisyal na Pilipino na nandito sa Hong Kong at saka sa China sa pamumuno ni Ambassador Brady at saka ni Consul General Vicente at binabati ko rin si Jojo, thank you! At kayong lahat na mga Pilipinong naririto, mga minamahal (transmission cut) magandang gabi sa inyong lahat!

Ako ay nagagalak na makasama kayong muli. Linggo ang karaniwang araw ng pahinga, pagpapahinga pero nandito kayo ngayong gabi kaya maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. At narito si Secretary Romulo at saka si Ambassador Brady mula pa sa Beijing dahil nowhere is foreign policy more important than in protecting and advancing the interest of our overseas workers, kayo ang napakaimportanteng layunin ng ating foreign policy. Doon nga sa mas malayong lugar kaysa sa Hong Kong, — Bert, I would like to congratulate you all. The DFA recently, reported that a seaman (was) released after fourteen (14) years in a Bangladeshi jail. At kung naaalaala ninyo, noong ako ay nagpunta sa Saudi Arabia, napalaya natin ang seven hundred (700) na mga bilanggo. Ngayon, mayroon na namang mga one hundred fifty (150) being released from Middle East jails. At napakaimportante iyon doon sa Middle East dahil dalawang milyon (2,000,000) ang mga Pilipino doon, pero dito sa Hong Kong — popular na popular din ang Hong Kong bilang destination ng mga OFW's. Kayo ay one hundred twenty thousand (120,000) na Pilipinong nakatira at nagtatrabaho rito at saludo kayong lahat — ng lahat ng mga taga-rito sa Hong Kong. Congratulations!

Dapat naman, hindi matatawaran ang inyong sipag at ang inyong kalidad ng trabaho, iyon inyong mabuting asal, iyon inyong katapatan sa tungkulin, kaya, bagamat si Sonia Brady ay malayo, nandoon sa Beijing, mayroon tayong one hundred twenty thousand (120,000) Philippine ambassadors here in Hong Kong, at kayo na nga iyon, ang ating mga overseas Filipino. At hindi lamang ito, mas lalong matimbang kayo sa ating bansang Pilipinas, ikinararantal at binibigyan ng halaga ang inyong sakripisyo at katapatan sa inyong trabaho, sa inyong pamilya at sa ating bansa.

Kanina sinabi ni Consul General, kuma-kaunti na raw iyong mga nag-i-immigrate mula sa Southern Europe. Pero kung titingnan natin iyong Portugal, medyo mayaman-yaman na rin, ten (10) percent pa rin ng population nila ay Overseas Portuguese Workers, kagaya ng Pilipinas, ten (10) percent. Doon sa New Zealand, mayaman siya, pero twenty five (25) percent ng New Zealand ay overseas (workers) din. Ang kaibahan ng New Zealand, bagamat iyong kanyang mga yate ay nagtatrabaho sa ibang bansa, pinapadalhan pa rin ng pera ng mom and pap iyong anak na nasa ibang bansa. Ang mga Pilipino, kayo ang nagpapadala sa inyong pamilya ng inyong tulong, hindi the other way around. Kaya, tumutulong kayo sa pamilya ninyo, tumutulong kayo sa ating bansa. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat!

Ngunit, hinahangad natin ang araw, kagaya ng sinabi ni Consul General na sana ay hindi na kailangang mangibang bansa pa ang isang masipag na Pilipino upang makahanap ng disentang trabaho. We are working for a strong and growing economy to pave the way when Filipino's no longer need to go abroad for a job and being an overseas worker is just another career option, not the only choice for (someone) to earn a living. A strong and growing economy is the central pillar that we have labored to create to help guarantee peace, order and stability in our country. And it is paying off, 2007 ang pinakamagandang taon para sa ekonomiya ng Pilipinas sa mahigit na talumpung (30) taon. Kaya lamang, kapag malakas ang ekonomiya ay malakas din ang piso. Kaya lang hindi rin kaila ang paglakas ng piso sa paggastos ng mga pamilyang OFW's. Kaya lang naman, nakinabang din ang eighty (80) milyong Pilipino dahil hindi gaanong tumama sa kanila ang buong presyo ng pagtaas ng langis sa mundo. Kasi kung fifty five (55) pesos ang palitan kada dollar kagaya noong araw, mas mataas pa sana ng five (5) pesos ang bawat litro ng gasoline at diesel.

Nabawasan din ang dolyar na utang ng gobyerno at mga korporasyon kaya mas nailalaan natin sa budget ang mga proyektong pang-masa. Bumaba rin ang singil sa pautang ng bansa, kaya mas mababa rin ang interest sa pabahay at pahiram sa negosyo. Six (6) percent na lamang iyong Pag-ibig, ngayon lang nangyari iyon, dahil iyon sa malakas na piso. Kung hindi lumakas ang piso, mas malala pa sana ang pagtaas ng presyo sa bansa.

Ganunpaman, upang hindi maging lubhang mabigat ang paglakas ng piso sa mga OFW's, nakita ninyo kaninang hapon ang mga masigasig na pagkilos ng ating administrasyon. Inatasan natin ang mga institusyong pinansiyal ng gobyerno na lumikha ng mga paraan upang lubos-lubusin ang pakinabang ng mga OFW's na inyong kinikita.

Kung naaalaala ninyo, noong Enero, hindi ba pumunta rito si Bise Presidente Noli De Castro para ilunsad iyong programa sa Hedging ng Development Bank of the Philippines. Kasama niya noon si Mike Arroyo, ang aking asawa, he was here at that time. Ito ay para proteksiyunan ang halaga ng mga kinikita ninyo. Sa programang Hedging, you can already decide, kagaya ng sinabi ni Jojo, kung what exchange rate at you can change your US Dollars into Pesos in the future or you can get some insurance and have the option to sell your Dollars for Pesos in the future, either at a certain projected rate or at the prevailing market rate, whichever is better for you. Itong DBP Hedging Program, heto nandito ang President ng DBP, hindi ba nandiyan si Rey David, nakita ko? Hayun! Rey, nabanggit na ba ninyo kanina iyong incentive to the first one hundred (100) OFW's? Ang DBP ay magbibigay ng incentive sa unang one hundred (100) OFW's na kukuha ng Peso Insurance. Bibigyan ng fifty (50) percent discount sa insurance fee ng remittance, basta lang hindi lalampas ng thirty thousand (30,000) dollars bawat buwan. Samantala, mayroon naman binanggit si Consul General Vicente, iyong I-net Negosyo Program ng DBP para makaasenso, makapagnegosyo ang inyong mga pamilya sa Pilipinas. Mayroong isang bilyong (1,000,000,000) pautang ang DBP para magtayo ng mga munting estasyon ng internet ang mga OFW's.

Atin ding inilunsad ang mga programa ng Bangko Sentral, nandiyan ang ating Central Bank Governor, si Say Tetangco, alam ninyo si Say, hindi iyan puwedeng mautusan kasi independent iyan sa national government, pero nandito siya kasi itinaturo niya iyong Financial Literacy Program sa mga OFW's. At nandito iyong mga stock exchange para kayo ay mag-invest sa stock exchange. Mas mabuti iyon kaysa doon sa mga pyramids. Iyong stock exchange, nakikita ninyo minu-minuto kung ano ang presyo ng inyong stocks. Itong mga ito ay para magbigay ng kaalaman sa pera at mamuhunan ang mga OFW's para sa inyong mga pamilya. Kasi hangad natin na bigyan ang mga OFW's ng pagkakataon, hindi lang para maging overseas workers, hindi lang para maging ambassador to Hong Kong, kung hindi para maging Overseas Filipino Investors o OFI's. Isa pang programa ay iyong Tindahang Pinoy. Noong pumasok kayo, (hindi ba) mayroon kayong nakitang booth? Iyon ay Tindahang Pinoy. Iyon ay para sa mga gustong magbenta ng mga produktong Pinoy sa mga lugar na pinagtatrabahuhan ng mga OFW's. Pinagsama-sama ng Tindahang Pinoy ang mga ibat-ibang produkto na gawa sa atin, kagaya ng Kornik o Boy Bawang, gapo diyay Amianan, broas at iba pang kakanin na nagmula sa Katimugan; sardinas na mula sa Saranggani Bay — ang dami yatang mula sa South Cotabato diyan, magbenta kayo ng sardines from Saranggani Bay sa Mindanao at dried mango mula sa Cebu. Hindi lang pagkain, bahagi rin dito ang pagsasanay sa negosyo para sa mga uuwing OFW's na pinapatupad ng OWWA, na noong araw, ang namumuno ng OWWA ay ating bagong Secretary of Labor, si Nitoy Roque. Congratulations Nitoy! Ang DOLE at ang OWWA ay magbubukas ng call center training program para sa mga OFW's na nandito sa Hong Kong. Hindi ba maraming OFW's na teachers? Mga teachers na magaling mag-Ingles? Iyong Ingles ninyo, kapag may call center training (kayo) lalong lalaki ang kita ninyo pagdating sa Pilipinas. Ang training cost ay bibigyan ng subsidy ng OWWA, sa pamamagitan ng kanilang scholarship for OWWA members bilang paghahanda sa inyong pagbabalik-trabaho sa Pilipinas. Iyong Land Bank naman, (coverage cut) ligtas at abot-kaya, basta mayroon kayong twenty thousand (P20,000) pesos na minimum. In fact, itong twenty thousand ay mas maliit pa kaysa maraming time deposit, mas tataas ang interest for five (5) years or ten (10) years na deposito kaysa sa karaniwang pag-iimpok sa bangko.

Tungkol naman sa singil sa padala ng pera, may OFW Cash Card ang Land Bank na mas madaling gamitin at mas mura ang remittance. Nandiyan si Manny Pangilinan, isang OFW sa Hong Kong, by choice, not by necessity, iyong Smart hindi ba? Manny iyong Smart, iyon din ay electronic remittance. So, iyon ang serbisyo ni Manny dahil alam niya ang buhay ng OFW. Bagamat mayaman na mayaman na OFW si Manny Pangilinan.

Anyway, binabati ko ang mga gumagamit ng mga produktong ito, congratulations to those who have availed of these products. Mahikayat nawa ang iba sa pakinabang ninyo, sa mga programa ng gobyerno. Siya nga pala, speaking of remittances, nandito si Congressman Danny Suarez. Mayroon siyang panukalang batas, reducing the transaction cost for money remittances from abroad coursed to the Philippines Banking System and remittance centers para makatulong sa ating mga OFW's.

Magbalik tayo sa ekonomiya ng Pilipinas, malakas ang agos ng investment, we are close to balancing our budget. Pero noong araw, we have to make tough and unpopular decisions to raise revenues and crackdown on tax cheats so that we could invest in our physical infrastructures and in our people. Pero alam natin ang mga problemang humaharap sa ating bansa at kung ano ang inaasahan ng taumbayan and we are delivering the economy, the education and the environment. Gusto natin na pag-uwi ninyo sa Pilipinas, maganda ang uuwian ninyo, na may trabaho kayo, hindi lamang dahil sa Reintegration Program, ngunit dahil sa marami ang oportunidad sa Pilipinas. Kaya maraming salamat sa inyong mga sakripisyo dito sa Hong Kong. Sana sa pag-uwi ninyo sa Pilipinas, maginhawa ang inyong buhay dahil sa ating pagsisikap na palakasin ang ekonomiya ng ating bansang Pilipinas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Speech of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo in Hong Kong. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122348/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1055&Itemid=38

Keynote Address of President Arroyo at the 11th Asian Investment Conference with the theme “Modernization, Investing in the Future”, March 31, 2008 Keynote Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 11th Asian Investment Conference with the theme “Modernization, Investing in the Future”

[Delivered at the Main Ballroom of Conrad International Hotel, Hong Kong, China, March 31, 2008]

The year 2007 was the best year for the Philippine economy in over 30 years. Economic growth was 7.3 percent; a million new jobs were created; and foreign investments have been steady and strong. We have been cited by London as the “offshore destination of the year” and by the International Data Corporation as the top global outsourcing destination after India.

Our billion-dollar investment club includes Texas Instruments, with its new 1.6 billion-dollar wafer fabrication facility under construction and two shipyards of Hanjin, one up and one coming up costing 3.7 billion-dollar total, which makes us the fourth biggest shipbuilder in the world. In addition, Marubeni, and AES have each invested billions of dollars in our power sector. They have joined the ranks of Shell and Proctor and Gamble, to name but a few of our major investors.

We will continue to be increasingly strong in manufacturing, high technology, services across the board from outsourcing to aircraft maintenance, as well as tourism and real estate. We see many, many opportunities for investors—the Philippines one of the best values in Asia. We hope you all find out why.

Just this month, the International Monetary Fund lauded our economic growth, the substantial reduction in our budget deficit, low inflation and the improvement in investor confidence.

The IMF executive directors highlighted, in particular, our fine Central Bank for smoothening foreign exchange fluctuations as the peso touched an eight-year high against the U.S. dollar in recent months. During this same time, the country’s foreign exchange reserves reached a record high.

2008 holds real promise for a different reason. Not only do we expect continued strong growth, but as a result of our total economic overhaul, we are well-positioned to weather a global economic slowdown which, unfortunately, will affect all of us.

The real story for 2008 is that, our macroeconomic fundamentals are stronger than ever due to tough choices we have made on boosting revenues, cracking down on tax cheats, bringing reform to our revenue collection and modernizing our banking and financial sector. We have reformed our budget to be in balance ahead of the medium-term plan schedule of 2010.

Last year, our deficit was only P12.4 billion, the lowest in ten years and far below the ceiling of P63 billion. Revenues were up 16 percent from 2006. Seven years ago, no one thought we could do it, but we have. There will be no rest. We are continuing the pace of progress that has succeeded in strengthening our economy.

Tax revenues in 2008 aren’t stagnant: they are up 17% over 2007. They will continue to improve with more money for enforcement, modernization and computerization and closing of loopholes.

This maturity in our economy has brought with it a new confidence, that forms the foundation of sustained economic growth moving forward. We are at a tipping point. I’m confident that the Philippines will tip forward in pursuit of reaching the threshold of first-world nation within a generation.

Our strengthened economic fortunes come none too soon, for as we are all very aware, there are clouds on the economic horizon that we must guard against. The global economy is facing significant challenges. The slowing of the economies in North America and Europe is top of mind in our calculations to protect our own economy. To that end, we have developed a program that includes: first, to ensure a surge in investments in people and infrastructure; second, to ensure that we continue to pursue anti-corruption initiatives and to cut red tape; and third, to blunt the global rise in the cost of energy and rice by providing targeted relief to the poorest amongst us, who suffer the most from the high global price of energy and food.

These global forces are putting more strain on our working poor as prices for commodities like rice and fuel increase. We are a price-sensitive nation. So while our macroeconomics are strong, the benefits are still working their way down more slowly, than we want to lift up our citizens who live and work paycheck to paycheck. We need a strong middle class to become a strong modern nation. Our middle class made up of the families of the overseas Filipino workers. We are working to mitigate the impact of the movement of the peso on them. We are working to soften the blow from the current global economic challenges, to those working hardest to make it into the middle class.

The best thing we can do in the short term is provide responsible, targeted relief to those most in need.

The political environment will not force us to do anything we do not think is in the best interests of the nation. The economic environment, however, will dictate that we provide a buffer, as much as prudently possible, to the poorest who suffer most from rapidly rising prices. We will continue on the path of reform and economic discipline; the near-term pain will provide long-term gain for our nation. It may not be popular, but it is setting the nation on a new course. Within our existing budget, we will frontload investments to stimulate the economy and we will provide additional funds to help cushion the high price of fuel and food.

The best thing we can do for the remainder of my term until I step down in 2010, is to stay focused on further economic reforms while providing peace, order and stability. Most importantly, my last two years will be dedicated to one main objective: to invest, invest and invest some more in our nation.

The National Budget which I signed a few weeks ago, provides a roadmap for realizing our priorities in 2008 and for the remainder of my term. It should provide you with a sense of our priorities.

First, the budget reflects our values and policy priorities for investing in our people. This budget invests in what we call the three 'E's,' the essential building blocks of our nation, namely, the economy, education and the environment. Every Filipino wants a good job, food on the table, sound education for their children and a healthy environment with clean air, clean water and dean land.

Second, our budget represents another important step in the economic development of the Philippines – namely, fiscal discipline. We have the strongest economy in over thirty years as a result of the tough reforms.

We have been able to strike the appropriate balance, since coming to office between the competing objectives of spending more on much-needed social programs and public investment and keeping the fiscal deficit low. Part of the plan includes, a march toward a balanced budget for the first time in many years.

Lastly, this budget proves once again that members of Congress from both the House and the Senate and all parties can come together, to work with the Executive branch to get things done for the nation. Political noise need not interfere with economic progress and reform.

Our budget provides a buffer to mitigate the pain of a deteriorating global economy, and the accompanying rise in prices which affects food and transportation, the most. It is a budget dedicated to investing in the vital physical and human infrastructure, to continue to modernize our nation. Roads, bridges and ports along with education and healthcare, build up the foundation of the nation and make us more competitive.

Let me also address head-on the issue of corruption. It is an issue we take seriously. As an economist, I know that first and foremost, a strong economy is an economy that is transparent and free from corruption. We are freeing ourselves of the shackles of corruption evidenced by our growing economy, which is increasingly free of corruption and inefficiency. Our budget invests more and more to clean up the culture of corruption. It pumps billions of pesos into the country's investigative arm to weed out corruption.

We have called on Congress to pass a comprehensive anti-corruption reform act in 2008. We will hold officials accountable, if they are found to be corrupt. For our part, any allegations of wrong doing go straight to the independent Ombudsman. We will let the chips fall where they may, as investigations are concluded and friend and foe alike are brought to account for their actions.

While we have accomplished much, much more remains to be done. We plan on working hard the next two years until the day our term ends in 2010, to fulfill our Philippine Reform Agenda.

This includes legislative efforts to continue to improve our banking and finance system; to strengthen our tax collections and to continue to broaden our tax payer base; and crack down on corruption and reduce red tape. We will balance needed investments in our people and infrastructure, with a prudent eye toward fiscal discipline. We will invest most where the country will benefit most: in the economy, education and the environment.

We must and we will press forward with more reforms. We will fight for the economy, education and the environment. We will fight to feed the poor, improve job creation and do everything in our power to mitigate the global forces increasing the price of commodities, like oil and rice.

Overall, we remain bullish on our economy, optimistic about our future and deeply committed to being a force for good in our nation and in our region.

Thank you for your interest in the Philippines and for a strong, united Asia. Thank you.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat at mabuhay ang Pilipinas!

Source: Adamson University Library

Keynote Address of President Arroyo at the 11th Asian Investment Conference “Modernization, Investing in the Future”

Keynote Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
At the 11th Asian Investment Conference “Modernization, Investing in the Future”

[Delivered at the Main Ballroom of Conrad International Hotel, Hong Kong, March 31, 2008]

2007 was the best year for the Philippine economy in over 30 years. Economic growth was 7.3 percent; a million new jobs were created; and foreign investments have been steady and strong. We have been cited by London as the “offshore destination of the year” and by the International Data Corporation as the top global outsourcing destination after India.

Our billion-dollar investment club includes Texas Instruments with its new 1.6 billion-dollar wafer fabrication facility under construction and two shipyards of Hanjin, one up and one coming up costing 3.7 billion-dollar total which makes us the fourth biggest shipbuilder in the world. In addition, Marubeni, and AES have each invested billions of dollars in our power sector. They have joined the ranks of Shell and Proctor and Gamble, to name but a few of our major investors.

We will continue to be increasingly strong in manufacturing, high technology, services across the board from outsourcing to aircraft maintenance, as well as tourism and real estate. We see many, many opportunities for investors; the Philippines one of the best values in Asia. We hope you all find out why.

Just this month, the International Monetary Fund lauded our economic growth, the substantial reduction in our budget deficit, low inflation and the improvement in investor confidence.

The IMF executive directors highlighted, in particular, our fine central bank for smoothening foreign exchange fluctuations as the peso touched an eight-year high against the U.S. dollar in recent months. During this same time, the country’s foreign exchange reserves reached a record high.

2008 holds real promise for a different reason. Not only do we expect continued strong growth, but as a result of our total economic overhaul, we are well-positioned to weather a global economic slowdown which, unfortunately, will affect all of us.

The real story for 2008 is that our macroeconomic fundamentals are stronger than ever due to tough choices we have made on boosting revenues, cracking down on tax cheats, bringing reform to our revenue collection and modernizing our banking and financial sector.

We have reformed our budget to be in balance ahead of the medium- term plan schedule of 2010.

Last year, our deficit was only P12.4 billion, the lowest in ten years and far below the ceiling of P63 billion. Revenues were up 16 percent from 2006. Seven years ago, no one thought we could do it, but we have. There will be no rest. We are continuing the pace of progress that has succeeded in strengthening our economy.

Tax revenues in 2008 aren’t stagnant: they are up 17% over 2007. They will continue to improve with more money for enforcement, modernization and computerization and closing of loopholes.

This maturity in our economy has brought with it a new confidence that forms the foundation of sustained economic growth moving forward. We are at a tipping point. I’m confident that the Philippines will tip forward in pursuit of reaching the threshold of first-world nation within a generation.

Our strengthened economic fortunes come none too soon, for as we are all very aware, there are clouds on the economic horizon that we must guard against. The global economy is facing significant challenges. The slowing of the economies in North America and Europe is top of mind in our calculations to protect our own economy. To that end, we have developed a program that includes: first, to ensure a surge in investments in people and infrastructure; second, to ensure that we continue to pursue anti-corruption initiatives and to cut red tape; and third, to blunt the global rise in the cost of energy and rice by providing targeted relief to the poorest amongst us who suffer the most from the high global price of energy and food.

These global forces are putting more strain on our working poor as prices for commodities like rice and fuel increase. We are a price-sensitive nation. So while our macroeconomics are strong, the benefits are still working their way down more slowly than we want to lift up our citizens who live and work paycheck to paycheck. We need a strong middle class to become a strong modern nation. Our middle class made up of the families of the overseas Filipino workers. We are working to mitigate the impact of the movement of the peso on them. We are working to soften the blow from the current global economic challenges to those working hardest to make it into the middle class.

The best thing we can do in the short term is provide responsible, targeted relief to those most in need.

The political environment will not force us to do anything we do not think is in the best interests of the nation. The economic environment, however, will dictate that we provide a buffer, as much as prudently possible, to the poorest who suffer most from rapidly rising prices. We will continue on the path of reform and economic discipline; the near-term pain will provide long-term gain for our nation. It may not be popular, but it is setting the nation on a new course. Within our existing budget, we will frontload investments to stimulate the economy and we will provide additional funds to help cushion the high price of fuel and food.

The best thing we can do for the remainder of my term until I step down in 2010 is to stay focused on further economic reforms while providing peace, order and stability. Most importantly, my last two years will be dedicated to one main objective: to invest, invest and invest some more in our nation.

The national budget which I signed a few weeks ago provides a roadmap for realizing our priorities in 2008 and for the remainder of my term. It should provide you with a sense of our priorities.

First, the budget reflects our values and policy priorities for investing in our people. This budget invests in what we call the three 'E's,' the essential building blocks of our nation, namely, the economy, education and the environment. Every Filipino wants a good job, food on the table, sound education for their children and a healthy environment with clean air, clean water and clean land.

Second, our budget represents another important step in the economic development of the Philippines – namely, fiscal discipline. We have the strongest economy in over thirty years as a result of the tough reforms.

We have been able to strike the appropriate balance since coming to office between the competing objectives of spending more on much-needed social programs and public investment and keeping the fiscal deficit low.

Part of the plan includes a march toward a balanced budget for the first time in many years.

Lastly, this budget proves once again that members of Congress from both the House and the Senate and all parties can come together to work with the executive branch to get things done for the nation. Political noise need not interfere with economic progress and reform.

Our budget provides a buffer to mitigate the pain of a deteriorating global economy and the accompanying rise in prices which affects food and transportation the most. It is a budget dedicated to investing in the vital physical and human infrastructure to continue to modernize our nation. Roads, bridges and ports along with education and healthcare build up the foundation of the nation and make us more competitive.

Let me also address head-on the issue of corruption. It is an issue we take seriously. As an economist, I know that first and foremost, a strong economy is an economy that is transparent and free from corruption. We are freeing ourselves of the shackles of corruption evidenced by our growing economy – which is increasingly free of corruption and inefficiency. Our budget invests more and more to clean up the culture of corruption. It pumps billions of pesos into the country's investigative arm to weed out corruption.

We have called on Congress to pass a comprehensive anti-corruption reform act in 2008. We will hold officials accountable if they are found to be corrupt. For our part, any allegations of wrong doing go straight to the independent Ombudsman. We will let the chips fall where they may as investigations are concluded and friend and foe alike are brought to account for their actions.

While we have accomplished much, much more remains to be done. We plan on working hard the next two years until the day our term ends in 2010 to fulfill our Philippine reform agenda.

This includes legislative efforts to continue to improve our banking and finance system; to strengthen our tax collections and to continue to broaden our tax payer base; and crack down on corruption and reduce red tape. We will balance needed investments in our people and infrastructure with a prudent eye toward fiscal discipline. We will invest most where the country will benefit most: in the economy, education and the environment.

We must and we will press forward with more reforms. We will fight for the economy, education and the environment. We will fight to feed the poor, improve job creation and do everything in our power to mitigate the global forces increasing the price of commodities like oil and rice.

Overall, we remain bullish on our economy, optimistic about our future and deeply committed to being a force for good in our nation and in our region.

Thank you for your interest in the Philippines and for a strong, united Asia.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Keynote address at the 11th Asian Investment Conference "Modernization, Investing in the Future". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122300/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1054&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during a State Banquet in Honor of President Tommy Remengesau, Jr. and First Lady Debbie Remengasau of the Republic of Palau

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a State Banquet in Honor of President Tommy Remengesau, Jr. and First Lady Debbie Remengasau of the Republic of Palau

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, April 02, 2008]

President Tommy Remengesau and Madame Debbie, other very distinguished members of the Palau delegation, Vice-President de Castro and other officials of the Philippine government, His Excellency Archbishop Adams and the members of the diplomatic corps, members of the business community, admirers of Palau, ladies and gentlemen.

It is our great pleasure to welcome one of Palau's most youthful and energetic leaders. Not just one of Palau's leaders but one of the leaders of our region, especially in the field of environment.

His Excellency holds the distinction of being the first and the youngest in so many ways in Palau. He was the youngest senator elected to the Palau National Congress at the age of 28. He was the youngest Vice President to be elected in Palau. And at 44 years old he was the youngest President to be elected in Palau.

His Excellency is younger than the friendship of our two countries which dates back to the 1940s immediately after the second world war and almost 50 years before Palau gained independence, when some Filipino servicemen of the United States Navy were invited to work in Palau to commission a power plant. Today, there are some 4,000 Filipinos working and residing in Palau and we are proud of their contribution to Palau's economic development.

His Excellency, President Remengesau is known to be a hero of environmental protection. And his efforts are certainly paying off because Palau is one of the most attractive spots in the world for diving tourism. And on our part, we also receive tourists from Palau especially in medical tourism.

President, His Excellency, knows that my daughter Luli has been diving in Palau. But his sister and many other officials and prominent citizens of Palau have also been availing of the medical services here as medical tourists. So, we have a wonderful interaction of people between our two countries.

That is why we were happy that today there was a signing of an amendment, an expansion of our air services agreement with each other, so that this two-way exchange of tourists, diving tourists and medical tourists, will become bigger than ever.

At a time when both Palau and the Philippines are making a name. The Philippines is also an attractive dive spot, among the most attractive dive spots in the world. When tourism is increasingly becoming a source of prosperity for many countries, it's imperative that we both stay focused on containing to strengthen our respective economies through aggressive outreach to investors and to enhance our cooperation with each other.

That's why we're very happy to receive His Excellency today. Palau is only two hours flight away from the Philippines. We are the closest neighbor of Palau and therefore it is really good for both of our countries to be more aware of each other, more familiar with each other's people and more familiar with each other's culture and attractions and have more economic exchange with each other.

We appreciate that among our economic interactions, we have Filipino companies who do business with Palau, especially the Filipino companies who do fishing business in Palau in joint ventures. We have two of them doing joint ventures. And we hope that we can soon forge a bilateral Memorandum of Understanding on Fisheries Cooperation so that this economic exchange will expand even more.

In addition to that, His Excellency the President, is inviting economic cooperation on the development of the aquaculture of Palau because in a country that receives so many tourists, they do need to serve in a lot of grouper and crabs. And so we can do that economic cooperation with them, one of the many potential engagements we can have with each other that we were able to discuss in our bilateral conversation today.

We're also very happy that PLDT signed an agreement with the Telecommunications Commission of Palau so that they will avail of the mobile and fiber optic services of our corporation. And with our fiber optics connecting Palau and the Philippines that will be another connection aside from air connection and sea connection.

Indeed, it's important for us to work together because there are global forces in the world today that threaten the resiliency of our respective economies.

I'm speaking about global forces outside our control including a major economic slowdown in North America. Both our countries have a great economic interaction with the United States, so we know that we must both work together to reduce our vulnerability to any slowdown that should occur in the United States.

We also are both oil-importing countries, so we both have to work together with other countries on how to cope with a historic spike in the price of oil. We are both rice-importing countries, so we also have to work together to exchange ideas on how we can help the vast majority of the poor in our population cope with the near crippling spike in the price of rice.

So, His Excellency's State Visit is an action to continue to bolster our economies through more economic exchange and to confer with each other on cooperative steps we can take to cushion ourselves in the Pacific against these global issues.

We want to learn more from Palau as far as their championship of the environment is concerned.

On our part, we are happy also that there will be exchanges between our higher educational system and that of Palau. More exchanges of people and more exchanges of ideas.

So, we thank Your Excellency for honoring us with this state visit. It certainly enhances our interest in the growing economic fortunes of Palau.

Ladies and gentlemen, please join me in a toast to the health and happiness of President and Mrs. Remengesau and to the evolving partnership between Palau and the Philippines.

Mabuhay!

Mabuhay, Mr. President! Debbie, Mabuhay! (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech During a State Banquet in Honor of President Tommy Remengesau, Jr. and First Lady Debbie Remengasau of the Republic of Palau. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122231/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1361&Itemid=38

Keynote Speech of President Arroyo during the National Food Summit

Keynote Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the National Food Summit

[Delivered at the Fontana Convention Center, Clark Air Base, April 4, 2008]

A strong and growing economy is the central pillar we have labored to create to help guarantee peace, order and stability in our country. It is paying off: we have the strongest economy in over 30 years, a strong peso, with investments surging in, and we are close to balancing the budget.

Our economic comeback comes none too soon, for there are global clouds on the horizon that are driving up the price of oil and food, particularly rice.

Half of the planet depends on rice but stocks are at their lowest since the mid-1970s when Bangladesh suffered a terrible famine. Rice production will fall this year below the global consumption level of 430 million tons.

Wheat is suffering greater pressures, with price up 115 percent in a year.

Farmers worldwide are worried about feed costs.

For the last seven years we have been spending P20 billion a year from budget and off-budget sources on Philippine Agriculture.

Since the global situation became apparent many months ago, I have been committed to helping increase and stabilize the supply of rice, as well as to deliver targeted subsidies to the poor who are most directly affected by the global price rises. We have reached out to our neighbors in Vietnam and others in ASEAN to ensure stable rice supplies. We have directed our government to crack down on price gouging; increase the supply of rice where necessary; invest more in planting and agricultural modernization; and to provide rice subsidies for our poor. I have delivered rice to the poor and gone to markets across the country to spot-check prices to protect our consumers.

We must work harder to grow and breed what we need.

We are going to cluster our food production drive in six assistance packages, which are the essential ingredients in making food abundant, accessible and affordable. It is called FIELDS – F-I-E-L-D-S. F is for fertilizer. I is for irrigation and infrastructure. E is for extension and education. L is for loans and insurance. D is for dryers and other post-harvest facilities. S is for seeds.

On fertilizer, we will renew our push for organic fertilizer because the price of urea fertilizer, being oil-based, has increased 200 percent in the last two years. We must set aside P500 million from the ACEF fund for fertilizer support and production, especially for organic fertilizers. Specifically, the DA must utilize proven technologies like Bio-N to increase the yields of rice farmers in the current wet season and third crop.

On irrigation and infrastructure, I direct NIA to finish the rehabilitation of irrigation systems by 2010. On new construction, we encourage small irrigation systems, except for the large ones we have already committed to, like Kabunanan, Balintingan, Malmar and San Roque. We will spend P6 billion a year on irrigation and P6 billion on infrastructure, including farm to market roads, roll-on-roll-off ferry ports, and no-frills airports for agricultural cargo.

On extension and education, we recognize the importance of continuous training of farmers and fisherfolk on new technology. I instruct the DA to continuously implement programs and interventions with close cooperation from the DILG and the LGUs, as well as the DOST, aimed at training more trainors and technicians on new technology for dissemination to farmers; utilize the SUCs in its extension-related activities; provide more funds for training of farmers and fisherfolk on new and emerging technology. We will allocate P2 billion in research and development, P1 billion in capability building, P1 billion in trainors and technicians and P1 billion in the agricultural and fisheries education system.

On loans, I direct Secretary Yap to study how to maximize bank compliance to the agri-agra law. Meanwhile, the government financial institutions can assure P15 billion available for agricultural credit. But for farmers to have access to all this formal credit, I ask Congress to enact a law making farm land acceptable as loan collateral.

On dryers and other post-harvest facilities, I instruct the DA to establish appropriate integrated processing and trading centers in collaboration with the private sector, like the cold chain system and rice and corn processing centers. We will spend P2 billion on this from budget and off-budget sources.

On seeds, the most important is to support the seed growers. Their success will enable rainfed-lowland areas presently planted to good seeds to migrate to certified rice seeds and those planted to certified seeds, to migrate to hybrid seeds. Some 600,000 hectares this year will be targeted all over the country for certified seeds, with another 900,000 hectares for hybrid seeds planted by our farmers from 2009-2010. We must sustain funding this program which will require P2.7 billion for hybrid seeds and P6.5 billion for certified seeds for 5 harvests from 2009 until 2010.

In all these programs, we must be transparent. We will work to fix the corruption that still plagues our nation, including in the agri-business sector. We especially prohibit officials from dealing with fertilizer brokers and agents. They can only deal with official distributors in the regions and provinces.

The DA, NFA and NBI shall strictly monitor rice deliveries and investigate cases of hoarding, price manipulation and other illegal activities. We are holding officials accountable that have found to be corrupt and conniving with unscrupulous traders; we are letting the chips fall where they may as investigations are concluded and friend and foe alike and brought to account for their actions.

I have directed the DA and NFA to cancel the existing licenses of rice traders, retailers and bodegas. They have to apply all over again for accreditation.

According to Congressman Baham Mitra, Chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture, the DA cannot watch over all transactions. According to him, RA 6670 gives power to appoint more Deputy Ombudsmen. In 1990 such deputy was appointed for the military. Considering the fact that farm spending may now be bigger than defense spending, a Deputy Ombudsman may be needed in agriculture. The appointment of a Deputy Ombudsman will be pursuant to our transparency initiative. It will also ensure that money is spent wisely.

Many things are left to be done. We plan on working hard the next two years to fulfill my Agri-business Agenda until the day I leave office. We will fight for Economy, including food security, Education and the Environment. We remain bullish on our country, optimistic about our future and deeply committed to being a force for good.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Keynote Speech of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo during the National Food Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122218/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1359&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Observance of the 66th Anniversary of “Araw ng Kagitingan”

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Observance of the 66th Anniversary of “Araw ng Kagitingan”

[Delivered at the Dambana ng Kagitingan, Mt. Samat Shrine, April 9, 2008]

Thank you very much, Secretary Teodoro. Thank you.

Her Excellency Kristie Kenney, His Excellency Makoto Katsura, other members of the diplomatic community, Senator Richard Gordon, members of the House of Representatives. And I would like to acknowledge them individually: we have Deputy Speaker Girlie Villarosa; (applause) we have Majority Leader Art Defensor; (applause) we have the Representatives of Bataan, Herminia Roman (applause) and Abet Garcia. (applause) I'd like to greet also Abet's father, Governor Garcia. (applause) And I'd like to greet the Vice Chairman of the Committee on Veterans Affairs of the House, Joey Solis (applause) and Buhay Congresswoman Iyay Coscolluela (applause) who together with Congressman Solis, both of them, were the principal authors of the Veterans Law of 2008 as Dick Gordon was the principal author in the Senate. Thanks to all of them. (applause)

I've greeted Governor Garcia, I'd like to greet all the people of Bataan; General Esperon and the other officials of the Armed Forces of the Philippines. I've greeted Secretary Teodoro, I'd like to greet all other government officials at higit sa lahat ating mga beterano at kanilang mga pamilya. (applause)

Sa araw na ito, gaya nang ginawa ng ating nagsalita na kanina, nagpupugay at sinasariwa natin ang kabayanihan at kadakilaan ng ating mga bayaning kawal pati na rin yung mga kawal ng ating mga kakampi na buong tapang na lumaban at nag-alay ng buhay noong World War II. Ginugunita na rin natin ang kabayanihan ng iba pang sundalong Pilipino sa ibang digmaan at pati ang mga nakikibaka sa mga terorista at rebelde hanggang ngayon sa iba't-ibang dako ng bansa.

Kadakilaan ng ating mga sundalo, kabilang kayo, mga iginagalang nating mga beterano, ang siyang pinagkakautangan ng ating pagtamasa ng kalayaan. Kaya, minamahal naming bayani, maraming salamat sa inyo. (applause)

Sa ating kasaysayan, buong tapang na nakipagtagisan ang mga Pilipino para sa ating paglaya at para sa kalayaan at kapayapaan ng mundo. Hindi sapat na magpasalamat ang sambayanan sa inyo, ating mga beterano. Dapat ding siguruhing natutugunan ang inyong mga pangangailangan.

Sabi nga nila hindi lang dapat salapi pero yun ang napakaimportante lalo na sa mga edad ng ating mga beterano ngayon. Kaya kahit noong panahong gahol tayo sa pondo, nasimulan nating bayaran nung 2005 ang utang sa mga beterano. At noong 2007, nabayaran ang halos dalawang bilyong utang sa pensiyon sa matatanda para sa higit 12,000 na beterano at milyun-milyong benepisyo sa mahigit tatlong libong beterano. Napondohan din ang utang sa eskwela ng mahigit limang libong estudyante na mga anak ng mga beterano.

Since last year, thanks to our Congressmen, we have doubled the budget for the payment of arrearages, the debt to you our veterans, to three and a half billion pesos so that hopefully all outstanding old age pensions can be settled by the end of this year 2008. (applause)

The government, the PVAO has also reduced claims processing time and it's delivering faster the pensions through bank payments. Today, I understand from Secretary Teodoro that nearly all pensioners now get pensions through ATM.

We also continue working for the Filipino Veterans Equity Bill in the United States. A joint Philippine Executive-Legislative delegation including Senator Gordon and Congressman Solis will leave this month to lobby for its passage. (applause) But of course, we will begin our lobbying with Ambassador Kristie Kenney right here in Mt. Samat. (applause)

And in the meantime, today at the end of my remarks, I will sign before you the "Filipino World War II Veterans Pensions and Benefits Act of 2008." (applause)

The courage and patriotism of all war heroes live on. You are bequeathed to today's Filipino soldiers who battle lawless violence to protect citizens and brave deadly calamity to rescue disaster victims.

Courage and patriotism also shine through our efforts to forge lasting peace, shown by peace advocates who persevere in building trust and restraining violence despite years, if not decades of strife.

Ambassador Katsura talked about the peace process. We thank Japan. We thank the U.S. We thank all our allies represented by the ambassadors here for this help in the peace process.

Courage and patriotism are manifest also in the determined toil of farmers who are doubling their efforts to produce more food for our people.

Our near-term objective is to focus on putting food on the table for our people. The global rise in the price of basic commodities like fuel and rice is putting a strain on all hardworking Filipinos and veterans, and others who live on fixed pensions and especially our very poor.

We aim to prevent these strains on individuals and your families by preventing these strains from becoming a crisis by taking decisive action.

Concerning rice, it is essential that the people of the nation understand exactly what the situation is and what we are doing about it. It would be unfortunate if panic overtook logic, because we will endure and survive the moment and come through it stronger, the way we endured Bataan, survived the war and came out stronger.

In the meantime, however, just like Bataan, it will take unity and hard work.

Overall, our strengthened economic situation gives us the ability and flexibility to respond forcefully to make sure we maintain control of the situation. Specific to the rice issue, we have an Action Plan, comprising three phases, to make sure our rice situation remains stable: First, is to secure supply; second, to ensure proper distribution; third, is to guarantee enforcement to protect of our people against price gouging and corruption.

The Philippines is not alone in seeking to manage this challenge, just as the Philippines was not alone in the Second World War. There is a convergence of global forces that are buffeting the Philippines and every other nation at this time. This includes an economic slowdown in our allied countries; it includes a surge in the price of oil, a surge in the price of important food commodities such as rice.

In anticipation of time such as this, we have been working every day since I came to office to rebuild the Philippine economy to weather this kind of storm. We have increased our foreign reserves, raised revenues, stimulated investments, diversified our export base. Regionally and globally, we have developed strong partnerships with our allies, some of whom used to be our fiercest enemies in the war and now are among our most ardent allies in our war against poverty. Most importantly, we have been able to turn our strong economic gains into investments for our people in terms of jobs, education, health care and roads, bridges and ports.

With this newfound stability, we are in a much better position to weather these economic and price pressures than ever before. That does not mean it lessens the pain on our poor when rice and gas prices increase, but we are able to help ease this burden.

I thank Governor Garcia for saying that the provincial government will provide rice subsidies to the veterans of Bataan and their families. That is a great example. (applause) It is essential for our political leaders to join hands and close ranks to meet this challenge. This is no time for political posturing. We need food on the table, not headlines in the newspapers.

We must invest, not just investigate. It is time for action, not political wrangling. The people deserve that we focus on a positive agenda, not get wrapped up in political jockeying.

No endless investigation will put rice on the table, a computer in a classroom or a health clinic in a barangay. We must put the interests of the individual Filipino above all else and make sure to reassure our people that we are providing steady and strong leadership at this critical point in time. To repeat: We must put rice on the table and not politics on the front page.

As we manage our way through the fuel and food spikes, we must not lose sight of advancing the long-term interests of our nation. We remain focused on the essential building blocks: economy, education, environment.

While we invest in our people, we will also not lose sight of the economic gains we have made through fiscal discipline. We will not only meet the near-term investment needs to prevent any type of food crisis, but we will further reach for a balanced budget. This means to put greater pressure on revenue collection through enhanced use of technology and some of the administrative measures that were proposed by Governor Garcia as well as the political will to get the job done. The revenue is there to bring us to the threshold of first-world in 20 years; we just need to ensure that we collect it.

Para sagutin lahat itong hamon huhugutin ang lakas ang sambayanan mula sa huwaran ng katapangan at kadakilaan na ipinamalas ng ating mga beterano. (applause) Mga minamahal nating beterano, matapang kayong nakipaghamok noon, nararapat lang na matapang din ang kasalukuyang henerasyon ng inyong mga anak at apo sa pagharap sa mga banta sa kaunlaran.

Kayong beteranong Pilipino ay tunay na gabay ng sambayanan tungo sa pagkakaisa, kapayapaan at kaunlaran. Nagpapasalamat kami sa inyong kadakilaan. Mga kababayan, suklian natin ang kabayanihan ng ating mga beterano sa pamamagitan ng nagkakaisang pagkilos upang malampasan ang mga balakid sa pambansang layunin na pangmatagalang kapayapaan at kaunlaran.

At ngayon alang-alang sa ating mga minamahal na beterano, iniimbita ko ang ating senador, ang ating mga congressmen, ang ilang kinatawan ng ating mga beterano ng World War II na sana ay pumunta rito sa aking paligid para maging testigo sa ating pagpirma ng bagong batas para sa inyong kapakanan. (applause)

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech During the Observance of the 66th Anniversary of "Araw ng Kagitingan". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122150/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1354&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Observance of the 66th Anniversary of “Araw ng Kagitingan”, April 9, 2008

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Observance of the 66th Anniversary of “Araw ng Kagitingan”

[Delivered at Dambana ng Kagitingan, Mt. Samat Shrine Bataan, Philippines, April 9, 2008]

I would like to thank Congressman Solis, both of them, were the principal authors of the Veterans Law of 2008 as Dick Gordon was the principal author in the Senate. Thanks to all of them.

I'd like to greet all government officials at higit sa lahat ating mga beterano at kanilang mga pamilya.

Sa araw na ito, gaya nang ginawa ng ating nagsalita na kanina, nagpupugay at sinasariwa natin ang kabayanihan at kadakilaan ng ating mga bayaning kawal pati na rin yung mga kawal ng ating mga kakampi na buong tapang na lumaban at nag-alay ng buhay noong World War II. Ginugunita na rin natin ang kabayanihan ng iba pang sundalong Pilipino sa ibang digmaan at pati ang mga nakikibaka sa mga terorista at rebelde hanggang ngayon sa iba't-ibang dako ng bansa.

Kadakilaan ng ating mga sundalo, kabilang kayo, mga iginagalang nating mga beterano, ang siyang pinagkakautangan ng ating pagtamasa ng kalayaan. Kaya, minamahal naming bayani, maraming salamat sa inyo.

Sa ating kasaysayan, buong tapang na nakipagtagisan ang mga Pilipino para sa ating paglaya at para sa kalayaan at kapayapaan ng mundo. Hindi sapat na magpasalamat ang sambayanan sa inyo, ating mga beterano. Dapat ding siguruhing natutugunan ang inyong mga pangangailangan.

Sabi nga nila hindi lang dapat salapi pero yun ang napakaimportante lalo na sa mga edad ng ating mga beterano ngayon. Kaya kahit noong panahong gahol tayo sa pondo, nasimulan nating bayaran nung 2005 ang utang sa mga beterano. At noong 2007, nabayaran ang halos dalawang bilyong utang sa pensiyon sa matatanda para sa higit 12,000 na beterano at milyun-milyong benepisyo sa mahigittatlong libong beterano. Napondohan din ang utang sa eskwela ng mahigit limang libong estudyante na mga anak ng mga beterano.

Since last year, thanks to our Congressmen, we have doubled the budget for the payment of arrearages, the debt to you our veterans, to three and a half billion pesos so that hopefully all outstanding old age pensions can be settled by the end of this year 2008.

The government, the PVAO has also reduced claims processing time and it's delivering faster the pensions through bank payments. Today, I understand from Secretary Teodoro that nearly all pensioners now get pensions through ATM.

We also continue working for the Filipinos the Veterans Equity Bill in the United States. A joint Philippine Executive-Legislative delegation including Senator Gordon and Congressman Solis will leave this month to lobby for its passage. But of course, we will begin our lobbying with Ambassador Kristie Kenney right here in Mt. Samat.

And in the meantime, today at the end of my remarks, I will sign before you the “Filipino World War II Veterans Pensions and Benefits Act of 2008.”

The courage and patriotism of all war heroes live on. You are bequeathed to today's Filipino soldiers who battle awless violence to protect citizens and brave deadly calamity to rescue disaster victims.

Courage and patriotism also shine through our efforts to forge lasting peace, shown by peace advocates who persevere in building trust and restraining violence despite years, if not decades of strife.

Ambassador Katsura talked about the peace process. We thank Japan. We thank the U.S. We thank all our allies represented by the ambassadors here for this help in the peace process.

Courage and patriotism are manifested also in the determined toil of farmers who are doubling their efforts to produce more food for our people.

Our near-term objective is to focus on putting food on the table for our people. The global rise in the price of basic commodities like fuel and rice is putting a strain on all hardworking Filipinos and veterans, and others who live on fixed pensions and especially our very poor.

The aim to prevent these strains on individuals and your families by preventing these strains from becoming a crisis by taking decisive action.

Concerning rice, it is essential that the people of the nation understand exactly what the situation is and what we are doing about it. It would be unfortunate if panic overtook logic, because we will endure and survive the moment and come through it stronger, the way we endured Bataan, survived the war and came out stronger. In the meantime, however, just like Bataan, it will take unity and hard work.

Overall, our strengthened economic situation gives us the ability and flexibility to respond forcefully to make sure we maintain control of the situation. There is a convergence of global forces that are buffeting the Philippines and every other nation at this time. This includes an economic slowdown in our allied countries; it includes a surge in the price of oil, a surge in the price of important food commodities such as rice.

In anticipation of time such as this, we have been working every day since I came to office to rebuild the Philippine economy to weather this kind of storm. We have increased our foreign reserves, raised revenues, stimulated investments, diversified our export base. Regionally and globally, we have developed strong partnerships with our allies, some of whom used to be our fiercest enemies in the war and now are among our most ardent allies in our war against poverty. Most importantly, we have been able to turn our strong economic gains into investments for our people in terms of jobs, education, health care and roads, bridges and ports.

With this newfound stability, we are in a much better position to weather these economic and price pressures than ever before. That does not mean it lessens the pain on our poor when rice and gas prices increase, but we are able to help ease this burden.

I thank Governor Garcia for saying that the provincial government will provide rice subsidies to the veterans of Bataan and their families. That is a great example. It is essential for our political leaders to join hands and close ranks to meet this challenge. This is no time for political posturing. We need food on the table, not headlines in the newspapers.

We must invest, not just investigate. It is time for action, not political wrangling. The people deserve that we focus on a positive agenda, not get wrapped up in political jockeying.

No endless investigation will put rice on the table, a computer in a classroom or a health clinic in a barangay. We must put the interests of the individual Filipino above all else and make sure to reassure our people that we are providing steady and strong leadership at this critical point in time. To repeat: We must put rice on the table and not politics on the front page.

As we manage our way through the fuel and food spikes, we must not lose sight of advancing the long-term interests of our nation. We remain focused on the essential building blocks: economy, education, environment.

While we invest in our people, we will also not lose sight of the economic gains we have made through fiscal discipline. We will not only meet the near-term investment needs to prevent any type of food crisis, but we will further reach for a balanced budget. This means to put greater pressure on revenue collection through enhanced use of technology and some of the administrative measures that were proposed by Governor Garcia as well as the political will to get the job done. The revenue is there to bring us to the threshold of first-world in 20 years; we just need to ensure that we collect it.

Para sagutin lahat itong hamon huhugutin ang lakas nang sambayanan mula sa huwaran ng katapangan at kadakilaan na ipinamalas ng ating mga beterano. Mga minamahal nating beterano, matapang kayong nakipaghamok noon, nararapat lang na matapang din ang kasalukuyang henerasyon ng inyong mga anak at apo sa pagharap sa mga banta tungo sa kaunlaran.

Kayong mga beteranong Pilipino ay tunay na gabay ng sambayanan tungo sa pagkakaisa, kapayapaan at kaunlaran. Nagpapasalamat kami sa inyong kadakilaan. Mga kababayan, suklian natin ang kabayanihan ng ating mga beterano sa pamamagitan ng nagkakaisang pagkilos upang malampasan ang mga balakid sa pambansang layunin na pangmatagalang kapayapaan at kaunlaran.

At ngayon alang-alang sa ating mga minamahal na beterano, iniimbata ko ang ating senador, ang ating mga congressmen, ang ilang kinatawan ng ating mga beterano ng World War II na sana ay pumunta rito sa aking paligid para maging testigo sa ating pagpirma ng bagong batas para sa inyong kapakanan.

Maraming salamat at mabuhay ang Pilipinas!

Source: Adamson University Library

Speech of President Arroyo during the Local Peace and Security Assembly in Abra
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Local Peace and Security Assembly in Abra

[Delivered at the Bangued, Abra, April 10, 2008]

Agkakadwa tayo tatta tapno pagsasaritaan no ania pay iti pagtutulongan tayo para ti kinatalna ken seguridad ti Cordillera.

Addu nga sumsumrek no pagsasaritaan ti kapia ken kinatalna. Uray no karigatan ti kadasaran nga rason ti panagalsa, ti rebelyon met iti mangmangted ti aglalo nga rigat dagiti umili.

Maragsakanak ti anunsyo ti AFP ken ti PNP nga dakkel ti naikkat ti pigsa dagiti immalsa ti CAR iti napalabas nga mano nga tawen. Kablaawak dagiti soldado ken pulis para ti panggep tayo nga maabak ti rebelyon ti 2010. Makilamay-ek met kadagiti soldado nga nagbuis ti biag daytoy nga tawen diay Abra.

Ti entiro nga pagilyan, dakkel met ti naaramid dagiti soldado ken pulis kontra ti rebelyon.. Iti napalabas nga tawen, bimaban ti 6,000 dagiti immalsa nga armado. Kayat tayo tatta nga babasit da pay tapno malpasen iti manu nga dekada nga panagalsa.

Panggep ti AFP daytoy nga tawen nga maabaken 38 kadagiti insurgent fronts. Namnamaek nga maykada itoy iti ennem nga insurgent fronts ti CAR nga adda pay impluwensya na iti 45 nga barangay, ken idtoy Abra iti kaaduan kadagitoy nga barangay.

Pinalakasan natin ang AFP at PNP upang makamit ang layunin ng pangmatagalang kapayapaan at kaunlaran sa lahat ng dako ng Pilipinas. Sa ilalim ng Philippine Defense Reform na tinutupad ng ating administrasyon, at ng PNP Modernization Program, matindi na ang paghahanda n gating mga sundalo at pulis upang labanan ang rebelde.

Subalit hindi tayo magwawagi sa pamamagitan lamang ng armadong pakikipaglaban. Pinakamabisang sandata ang pinagsanib ng pwersa at confidence building — soft and hard power. Subok na ang estratehiyang ito sa mga probinsiya nga dati nga lugar ti rebelede ngem natalna ken narang-ayen tatta.

Ngem pigsa ti aramaten kadagiti rebelede nga agmadmadi ti kapia ken rang-ay.

Meanwhile, soft power ti panangited dagiti serbisyo para ti nasayaat nga panagbiag ken kinabukasan saan laeng dagiti dati nga immalsa ken dagiti timultulong kaniada, ngem ti amin met nga umili. Kadwa itoy iti nasayaat ken kanayon nga panagsarita kadua ti umili, ken ti panangited ti kinalaing ken imprastraktura tapno sumayaat ti biag.

Kayat ko nga ipapigsa nga kadwa kadagiti proyekto para ti rang-ay dagiti soldado ken kapulisan. Makitkita ti adu kadatayo iti gaget dagiti pulis ken sundalo tayo nga agsagip ti umili ti bagyo, layos ken sabali pay nga kalamidad. Ken soldado ti AFP Engineering Brigade iti ipatpatulod kadagiti lugar nga peligroso para kadagiti nga pribado nga contractor, tapno agaramid dagiti dalan ken rangtay. Ken kadagiti lugar natigil dagiti klase gapu ti kaguluan, dagiti soldado met iti agsursuro.

Dagitoy ti baro nga soldado ken pulis nga bunga ti reporma tayo ti militar ken kapulisan — agsalsalig ti natalna nga dalan ti panangkontra ti immalsa, ken dumaydayaw ti human rights. Disiplinado da tapno agpayso nga agserbi ti umili ngem no masapul, napigsa met ti pwersa da.

Saan masapul nga panagbuis ti biag no ma-abot iti panggep nga kapia babaen ti pannangted ti ad-addu nga gundaway nga sumayaat ti biag ti amin. Ad-adda nga makatulong ti soft power gapu ti amin nga umili, kadwa dagiti immalsa nga kayat da nga agbaliw ti panagbiag, nga ada tayo programa para kenya.

Mangnam- namaak nga na iti panagmaymaysa ti pigs ken panagrang-ay ket malpansen ti panagalsa sakbay nga malpas ti terminok kas Pangulo.

Maysa nasayaat nga bunga ti seguridad ken kapia iti makan ti lamisaan ken pagsayaat ti pagbiagan.

Our near-term objective is to focus on putting food on the table for our people. The global rise in the price of basic commodities like fuel and rice is putting a strain on all hard-working Filipinos, particularly on our very poor provinces like Abra.

We aim to prevent these strains on individuals and their families from becoming a crisis by taking decisive action.

Specific to the rice issue, we have an Action Plan, comprising three phases, to make sure our rice situation remains stable. First, is to secure supply. Second, to ensure proper distribution. Third, is to guarantee enforcement of prices to protect our people.

To help secure supply, today we launch the Abra Sustainable Development Program that will improve small-scale irrigation and therefore boost agricultural production.

Ditoy CAR, ti panagtalon ti ibinibiag ti kaaduan. Nataba ti daga ti CAR ken panagmulmula ti palay, mais ken sab-sabali nga gulay. Isu nga ti puonan kadagiti taga-CAR ket dagiti proyekto nga makatutulong tapno padakkelen ti panagtalon ti rehiyon.

Kas puonan kadagiti taga-Abra ket inrugik tattay iti Abra Sustainable Agricultural Development Program nga espesyal nga paraan iti padanum iti upland farming tapno magamit dagiti talon ti pagpapadakkel ti palayan ti Abra.

The program is an integrated approach to communal upland farming. It utilizes planning and the application of appropriate soil and water conservation technologies that will transform areas into productive self-sufficient farming communities.

A few days ago, I instructed DPWH Secretary Ebdane to complete the long unfinished Manabo Bridge, a monument to corruption because it was started many administrations ago and is standing half built. It needs P290 million for its completion.

Para ti entero nga CAR, dagdag ti gobyerno dagiti imprastraktur ti transportasyon kas dagiti Farm to Market Roads, tapno nadardas nga mapan dagit ani yo diay tindaan, ken dagiti adanum para iti babassit nga pagtalonan. Itatay nangted ti DAR ti P5 million diay Pilar. We expect the mayor to use it for the uplands in the area and use labor-intensive method so that many of his constituents can be employed.

The DA Bureau of Soils and Water Management gave P5 million for an Upland Water Impounding Project and fruit trees that can be used for agro-reforestation in Pilar.

Agpatakder tayo iti maduma-dum nga padanum kas iti Small Water Impounding Systems, Small Farm Reservoirs at Shallow Tube Wells iti sab-sabali nga pagtalonan ti rehiyon tapno maaddaan ti danum dagiti taltalon yo ken aglalo nga pumigsa iti ani ken dumakkel met ti kita ti agtaltalon.

For the first phase of DA's Upland Development Program Sec. Yap has set aside an initial P100 million that I am instructing to include: 1) Organic Agriculture (production of organic fertilizers),

2) FMR, Small Scale Water Projects, Watershed and Spring, and Tramlines (Footbridges),

3) Education, extension and distribution of basic farm implements, tools and equipment,

4) Loans,

5) Dryers, and

6) Seedlings for upland trees suitable for sloping land above 18 degrees like Abaca, Jackfruit, Falcata (trees used for boxes), Rubber, Coconut, Mango, Pili, Durian and Rambutan), seeds for assorted vegetables and legumes like mongo, beans, peanuts, bataw and kadyos, and small ruminants dispersal like goats and poultry and hograising.

34.5% iti porsiyento dagiti pamilya nga marigrigat ditoy CAR, ken 60% iti Apayao ken Abra. Insigida nga inbaon ko ti Gabinete nga kadwa iti Apayao ken Abra iti Priority One provinces tayo nga un-unaen nga ikkan iti tulong, nangruna iti makan para iti karigatan. Kayat nga siguraduen ti gobierno nga maikkan iti insigida nga pamuspusan iti bisin ka dagiti karigatan ken kayat tayo met nga siguraduen nga iti natulungan nga pumanaw iti karigatan ket saan manen maibilang kadagiti pinakamarigrigat.

Dagiti probinsiya nga adda ti Priority One iti un-unaen nga ikkan iti benepisyo babaen iti programa nga Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino nga mangted iti bassit kuarta kas tulong kadagiti pamilya nga agrigrigat. Nailista na ti DSWD iti 10,000 nga pamilya nga adadiay Apayao ken Abra nga mabalin nga umawat ti benepisyo aggapu daytoy nga programa.

Dawdawatek kadagiti lideres ditoy nga aglalo pay nga agkaysa tayo amin tapno maabaken iti bisin, maabak iti rigat, maabak ito harahasan, ken mapigsa ti kapia ken rang-ay.

Agtimulongtayo amin tapno maituloy iti rang-ay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech during the Local Peace and Security Assembly in Abra. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122129/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1352&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during a visit to the Expansion Facility of Yazaki-Torres Manufacturing, Inc.

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a visit to the Expansion Facility of Yazaki-Torres Manufacturing, Inc.

[Delivered at Brgy. Makiling, Calamba City, Laguna, April 14, 2008]

Congratulations sa Yazaki Torres at sa mga Batanguenos sa inyong expansion at sa inogurasyon ng Cancer Institute ng St. Frances Cabrini.

Lumaki na ang Yazaki Toress mula dalawang daang empleyado noong 1974 hanggang walong libo ngayon, na sineserbisyo ang pangangailangang wiring harness ng mga sasakyan sa buong mundo.

Napag-alaman ko na ang St. Frances Cabrini ay nagsimula upang paglingkuran ang mga health requirements ng mga empleyado ng Yazaki-Torres at ibang mga kliyente sa industriya.

We are visiting factories to personally attend to the working conditions of labor. I encourage wage and non-wage benefits like the medical center in Cabrini and day care centers for mothers in the work place.

As we travel abroad, we will continue to fight for the interests of our vital OFWs in places that are far from home, including Japan. Our government has worked long and hard to improve the quality of life of our brothers and sisters abroad. We will remain vigilant in that effort until the end of my term.

We will also leave no stone unturned as we seek even more foreign investments to bring more jobs to our nation. We will do everything to project a positive image of the Philippines to the world. The Filipino worker is the best in the world. We want the world to know that we not only have great people, but that as a nation we live up to our global responsibilities.

The success of Yazaki-Torres is a tribute both to the excellence of its Filipino workforce and to the vision of its Filipino and Japanese investors.

The Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement will further enhance our partnership.

To quote the respected economist Winnie Monsod:

The benefits of the JPEPA far exceed the costs. The draft agreement has been available on the internet since sometime the end of 2003/beginning of 2004. And the agreement is negotiated every five years.

The Philippines was the first country (after Singapore) with which Japan pursued the idea of an Economic Partnership Agreement. But it has entered into the same kind of agreements with Malaysia, Thailand, Indonesia and Brunei. Here we are, at the starting point, with everybody moving in front of us.

The Philippine Institute of Development Studies estimates JPEPA benefits between P 6.5 billion and P 110 billion, due to an improved investment climate, with projected direct foreign investment from Japan amounting to P365 billion, plus more than 200,000 jobs; compared with costs of around P 4 billion because of tariff reductions. The studies also show an overall positive impact on poverty eradication.

Tariffs on our farm goods would fall to zero, boosting exports of Philippine produce. Add to that the high-wage hiring of our nurses and caregivers.

About the environmental issue – the fear that we are going to be made a dumping ground for Japanese toxic wastes. Their importation is banned (by international as well as national fiat). In any case, Japan has signed a side letter making that even clearer.

The JPEPA is worth it. We cannot afford not to ratify, because with everyone else but us on board, dadalhin ng Hapon ang negosyo sa kanila.

We hope the Senate will ratify the JPEPA when Congress convenes next week.

Magtulungan sana tayong lahat para sa sama-sama nating kaunlaran at magandang kinabukasan!

We must put the interests of the individual Filipino we above all else.

In this challenging task, I count on the cooperation of all hardworking Batanguenos.

Mabuhay ang ating mga kababayan sa Yazaki Torres!

At maraming salamat po muli sa inyong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech During a Visit to the Expansion Facility of Yazaki-Torres Manufacturing, Inc.. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122119/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1349&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Opening of the First Siargao Invitational Billfish Tournament

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening of the First Siargao Invitational Billfish Tournament

[Delivered in Siargao Island, April 17, 2008]

In behalf of the people of the Philippines, welcome to Siargao.

Economic development in our rural areas is not just about promoting modern agricultural practices or investment in our mining sector, it is also about working to responsibly develop those parts of our country that are uniquely suited for development as environmentally sensitive destinations for domestic and international tourists.

Siargao, known around the world as one of the best surfing destinations, also has incredible game fishing resources. These serve to help position Siargao as an adventure sports tourism paradise.

This is the first and what will be hopefully be a regular sport fishing tournament. It will help put this beautiful area on the world tourism map.

Tourism has the potential to be a major driver of economic development for our rural areas. As part of our commitment to helping develop the tourism assets of areas such as Siargao we are local governments improve their infrastructure. That includes the development of the Siargao airport, the road from Siargao to Cloud 9 our championship surfing spot, and the improvement of the Siargao hospital.

I have met with a number of companies in my travels around the world to promote international investment in the Philippines who say that the natural beauty of our provinces are magnets for tourism investments. We are working with local officials to ensure that these investments materialize. This includes infrastructure development, environmental protection initiatives, and even staff training.

Thank you all for being here. I hereby open the First Siargao Invitational Billfish Tournament.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Speech During the Opening of the First Siargao Invitational Billfish Tournament. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122056/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1343&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the First Quarter Fellowship meeting of the Association of Generals and Flag Officers, Incorporated

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the First Quarter Fellowship meeting of the Association of Generals and Flag Officers, Incorporated

[Delivered at the AGFO Center, Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, April 18, 2008]

Sa patuloy na pagtataguyod ng AGFO sa ating Saligang Batas at mga proseso ng batas, maraming maraming salamat.

Hindi matawaran ang mataas na pagtingin sa inyo ng ating mga kawal at kapulisan, at ng taong bayan. Tunay na patuloy kayong tinitingala ng marami.

You continue to play your role in nation-building.

With your inspiration, we have succeeded in cutting by half the number of active insurgents from the 2001 numbers. Our AFP Chief of Staff and all those who served in his post before him have imparted the right principles to our soldiers. Congratulations.

With your inspiration, crime rates have dropped over the years even as our police forces have proven themselves in enforcing the law and defending the Constitution. The leadership of the PNP and their predecessors have built up the PNP into the dutiful civilian force it is meant to be. Congratulations.

We have had an unfortunate legacy of political violence. I abhor it, and we have tackled it head on. We have met with a lot of success since we announced the formation of what was to become the Melo Commission. Extrajudicial killings are down and prosecutions are up. We will not be satisfied until we are at zero, but we are making progress.

As we improve the security of the parts of the country that have known some degree of violence, we are able to quickly move to develop the economy of those areas. When we do that we ensure a lasting peace and order that ensures that security is no longer an issue.

Our vision is based on a strong and growing economy. It is the central pillar that we have labored to create to help guarantee peace, order and stability in our country. It is paying off: we have the strongest economy in over 30 years, the peso is strong, investments are surging in, we are close to balancing our budget.

We have made tough and politically unpopular decisions to raise revenues and crack down on tax cheats so that we could invest in our physical infrastructure and in our people, including our soldiers and policemen.

In both the PNP and the AFP, we have had an increase in salaries and benefits along with improvements in equipment, materials and support services.

In the AFP, we have cleansed the pensioners list, saving millions of pesos and cutting processing time for veterans' claims. With this rationalized list, I hope all outstanding old age pensions can be settled by year end, especially since we have doubled since last year the budget for paying arrearages to P3.528 Billion. I signed last week the law granting pensions to Filipino WWII veterans who get pensions from the U.S. And we continue to lobby for the passage of the Filipino Veterans Equity Bill in Washington.

As for the shortfall for pensioners that AGFO has pointed out, the Defense Secretary can perhaps request a supplemental budget to make the pensions current.

I am also directing Secretary Teodoro to give me a full report on the actions taken on the RSBS. Let us have an end to this issue that will give satisfaction to our men and women in uniform.

The people want, and we are delivering, investments in three critical areas – what we call the three “E’s” – namely, the Economy, the Environment and Education — all this to elevate the quality of life of our people.

Our first obligation and commitment is to put food on the table in the Philippines. Rice is a global issue and has deeply impacted the Philippines. We are taking strong, swift decisive action to make sure it doesn’t become a crisis, with a singular focus on mitigating price to the best of our ability.

Since the global situation became apparent many months ago, I have been committed to helping increase and stabilize the supply of rice, as well as to deliver targeted subsidies to the poor who are most directly affected by the global price rises. We have reached out to our neighbors like Vietnam and others in ASEAN and elsewhere to ensure a stable supply and affordable prices.

We will continue to work with our neighbors in the region to secure rice supply. We work with nations of the world to share best practices and best ideas to make sure this is a one time global event. We have directed our government to crack down on price gouging; increase the supply of rice where necessary; invest more in planting and agricultural modernization; and provide rice subsidies to the poor.

Our strengthened economic situation gives us the ability and flexibility to respond forcefully to make sure we maintain control of the situation.

With this base of new-found economic stability, we are in a much better position to weather these economic and price pressures than ever before. That does not mean that it lessens the pain on our poor when rice and gas prices increase, but we are able to help ease this burden.

With your support, I remain bullish on our economy, optimistic about our future and deeply committed to being a force for good.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapaga-Arroyo’s Speech During the First Quarter Fellowship meeting of the Association of Generals and Flag Officers, Incorporated. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122002/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1340&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the University of the Philippines (U.P.) Charter Bill Signing Ceremony

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the University of the Philippines (U.P.) Charter Bill Signing Ceremony

[Delivered at the U.P. Cebu Library Conference Hall, UP Library Bldg., Cebu City, Cebu, April 29, 2008]

Daghang salamat, UP Cebu, ang atong host karon, ang alma mater og akong inahan sa iyang pre-med.

It is an honor to mark the year of the UP centennial anniversary by enacting the law to “Strengthen the University of the Philippines as the National University.”

There is no greater pleasure for a UP alumna and former faculty member like me, than to be able to sign into law what will confer on our alma mater the enhanced capability to fulfill its mission and spread the benefits of knowledge to our people.

Surely the pride and honor are shared by the legislators who authored, co-authored, sponsored, co-sponsored and refined the bill that now becomes law. Most of them graduated from UP, or have children attending UP. All of them believe in the mission of the University of the Philippines. To all our authors and sponsors and all who voted for the law, thank you.

UP has been the training ground of the country’s top leaders in government including many of our Presidents, pillars of business and various professions, and of a great number of our intellectuals past and present.

Strengthening the UP Charter now is timely, not only because the University turns a hundred years old this year, but also because new challenges in the 21st century call for new ways of thinking and new approaches to modern situations.

The new Charter ensures that the revenues of UP will be plowed back into its programs. It safeguards the University’s physical assets and exempts its earnings, including donations and grants, from taxes. It exempts UP personnel from the Salary Standardization Law.

By providing institutional autonomy, the UP Charter protects students’ democratic access, strengthens the University’s administration through the Board of Regents and upholds academic freedom.

It recognizes the effectiveness of the UP System, which has set up constituent universities in strategic parts of the country, including our host campus today.

Furthermore, as a centennial gift, this law provides for the allocation of P500 million to the University of the Philippines, to be released over five years.

This is in addition to the P200 million we gave the PGH in 2006 and 2007 and in addition to the P500 million for the science and technology complex in Diliman.

